Good deed

Members of the East Jordan Garden Club planted rows of marigolds in the Tourist Park on M-66 Highway this week. With a little help from members' husbands, they also planted maple trees in downtown area parkways and throughout the residential area as part of the club's Annual Spring Planting.

35 years of teaching

EAST JORDAN - When retiring elementary teacher Lois Snyder signed her first teaching contract in 1940 with the Traverse City school system, it was stated that the contract expired upon marriage. When World War II broke out the clause meant nothing. Male teachers went off to fight, and women teachers were needed desperately. Her salary for that first job was $1,200 a year, which was considered good.

Lois Snyder

Salaries and discrimination are not the only things that have changed in her 30 years as a teacher. The children have also changed, she says.

"Society has changed and so have the children," she says after announcing her retirement. "Kids aren't growing up to respect adult authority. They say things now that wouldn't have been dreamed of a few years ago."

She feels that the influence of television and the new "free society" are partially responsible for the change in the children.

"It's more difficult to hold their attention now," she says. "It's very hard to find something they haven't seen or heard on television. Children seem to be less respectful toward each other."

For the past 10 years, the motto in her classroom has been "Treat others as you wish to be treated," spelled out in large gold letters on the wall. She feels it helps to maintain discipline. When a child is misbehaving or mistreating another student, she will ask "is that the way you would like to be treated." The answer is always no. "If nothing else, it gives them something to think about."

She has seen two generations pass through her fourth and fifth grade classrooms. Some entire families have had her for a teacher. Among them are the Tom Sheridans and their family, Bob and Jean Shaw and children, Barb Cutler and her children. East Jordan school teachers Bruce Healey, Brad Jones, and Karen Root were also former students.

"I've enjoyed my years as a teacher and will miss the students, teachers, and the contact with the parents," Snyder says. But she is also looking forward to having time to take up the hobbies she never had time for, work in her garden and travel with her husband, Jason.

"It's time to let some younger teachers come in," she says. "There is such a demand for jobs and there are plenty of people ready to fill my place."

Park gets clean-up

EAST JORDAN - Clean-up Day at Sportsman's Park is being planned as a community project, according to Chamber of Commerce member Freda Winter.

"We would like anyone who is interested in working to bring a rake or a shovel and be there early in the morning June 10 to help clean the park," Winter said.

The East Jordan Sportsman's Club suggested the clean-up day to the chamber and the city last month as the first stage in the park restoration. "The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recommends this as a start," Sportsman's club member Keith Dressel said. "We almost have to do this before we can decide what we will be able to do next."

Dressel said that dead trees and fencing are to be pulled out, along with general clean-up of the park area.

Councilman Gil Fox said the city will grade the road in the park and fill in holes. After the work is done, there will be a barbecue for everyone who helped. "If you don't work, you don't eat," Dressel said.

"We've got to take this one step and then have the DNR come up with an overall plan of the park area done by a specialist," Dressel said.

Proposed so far, according to Dressel, is a dredging operation in the Jordan River. Sand that was left after the construction of four bridges on the river has ruined dockage, he said. They will have to get permission from the DNR for this.

One unopposed

3 run for school board

EAST JORDAN - Three people will be on the ballot Monday, June 12 for the two seats open on the board of education. Rick Lord will be running against incumbent Leon Bartlett and Joel Evans is unopposed to replace Ann Hite, who has chosen not to run.

RICK LORD

Lord, 26, is an employee of East Jordan Iron Works and has two children, ages seven and five. He says he is running for school board because he feels it is time younger people served. "We're the ones with the kids in school," he says. "I want to see how the school is run, how it works and be a part of it."

He knows of nothing he would like to see changed about the way the school is run at this point. "The board is doing a good job, but maybe I'd see some things I'd like changed once I'm there."

Lord, who did not graduate from high school, feels the greatest emphasis should be put on giving the students a good education. "I didn't graduate," he says. "I did go back for one year, but then my wife passed away." He plans to go back and get his diploma through community education when the children are older.

"We have a real good school up there," Lord says. "I would like to see people working more with the school."

LEON BARTLETT

Bartlett has served six months on the school board, replacing John Buick, who resigned. He has three children in school and two older children who have graduated. He is a member of the athletic boosters club, president of the Lions Club, and owner of Bartlett Excavating.

Bartlett Bartlett feels that a closer relationship between the school board, administrators, and the teachers is important right now. "There seems to be some friction there," he says. "The way I feel, is that if we work as a team you get a lot better cooperation out of everybody."

He would also like to see a closed campus, rather than "having kids coming and going as they do. I think part of the problem has been split days. Once we get in the new school, I think the students should be able to stay right there. They should be spending their time studying rather than just coming and going."

He says he has learned a lot since he started on the board. "I don't think people realize what goes on up there. There is a lot more to it than they know. If they would get involved with it they would see," he says. "It takes about a year, I would imagine, before you know what's going on with everything."

JOEL EVANS

Evans has three children, two of them in school. He is an employee of the East Jordan Lumber Company.

He says he is seeking election to the board because he is interested in the education of the students and the welfare of the school system. "I'm for extra-curricular activities such as sports and community education," he says, "but I would like to see more initiative put into education and less on sports. It's getting to be more and more out of balance all the time."

He feels the greatest need in the school district is to develop a closer relationship with parents, administrators, teachers and students. "I think we need to have an open communication and a clear understanding of the school district's needs and the student's problems."

2.8 mills sought

EAST JORDAN - Voters in the East Jordan school district will go to the polls June 12 to decide on a 2.8 operational millage increase for the coming year.

This will bring the voted operating millage up to 20.7 mills. Taxpayers will actually be paying a 1.8 mill increase if the millage passes, because of a one mill decrease in the school's indebtedness, according to Superintendent Mel Rullman.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at city hall.

Rullman says if your house is evaluated at $10,000 (State equalized valuation is approximately one half of the market value) the increase in your taxes would be $10.80, or $1.80 on each $1,000.

The increase is due to the need for an additional shop teacher and program and additional general inflationary, primarily utilities for the new building.

"The increases are just what is necessary," Rullman says. "There have been no additional programs or personnel. The administrative staff, faculty, custodial staff, secretaries, and aides will remain as they are. We're just moving to a new building."

He says the gas and electric bills will be substantial in the new building. The cost is projected to be $48,000 based on estimates from the utility companies.

The new shop instructor will receive a $15,000 base salary plus fringe benefits. Also included in the increase is the cost of small items and supplies for the shop. Major pieces of equipment were included in the building proposal which was passed last year, Rullman says.

"The board of education has been true to its word," Rullman says. "When this whole building proposal was passed the public was told that the board would levy only what was absolutely necessary not to exceed seven mills. The board levied six mills. Again this year it was lowered another mill so it will be five mills. What the board is asking for is minimal, operational, and simply to complete the job."

"The public has done its part in passing the building proposal a year ago," Rullman says. "We're very close to completion of those facilities and we want to put them into operation."

It's up to you

EAST JORDAN - Hey, East Jordan, it's your centennial! So far, there has been little response from the East Jordan area for floats and other participants in the July 4 parade, that will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, according to co-chairmen Jan Hawley and Russ Peck.

Since February, Hawley has been sending out hundreds of letters all over the state and parts of Canada inviting groups and business to enter a float in the parade. All floats should be centered around a centennial theme.

So far the East Jordan Varsity and Junior Varsity cheerleaders, the high school band, Grandvue Medical Care Facility, and many organizations from Boyne City and Charlevoix have responded to the invitation.

There is no actual deadline for entering, but they would like commitments to be made at least one day before the parade. "But if someone comes the day of the parade, there will be room for them," Peck says. "We always leave empty spaces."

Besides floats, they would also like polka bands, children's groups, and local ethnic groups. There are some funds available if groups request money to participate. "We're not going to do it for everyone," Peck says. "It will really have to be something special and something we want."

The Master of Ceremonies for this year's parade will be WCLX disc jockey West McCoy.

Last year, there were over 85 entries and they would like to top that this year. "We would really like to see more local people get involved," Hawley says. "There's no reason why they can't participate. After all, this is your centennial."

For more information call Russ Peck, 536-7513, after 4 p.m.

New bank boss

Northwestern State Bank has a new Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. He's Charles S. McDowell, 42, who will replace Alvin Pals, who resigned last December.

McDowell is currently Senior Vice President of the East Lansing State Bank. He will assume his duties June 19, taking over from Greg Boswell, who has been acting chairman since Pals left.

The new chairman has been at the East Lansing Bank for 16 years. He says he's making the change because, "It's an exciting opportunity and I like that part of the state. Between the job and the area, I see real opportunities."

McDowell predicts "tremendous growth in the area. People are moving up there and some industry is coming in. Tourism is also on the rise."

McDowell said his biggest challenge will be keeping the bank successful in the face of rapidly growing competition. First National Bank of Petoskey recently announced plans to open a branch near Boyne City, and a group of local businessmen hope to open a savings and loan association in downtown Boyne City.

McDowell said he is not overly concerned about the potential competition because, "If you're good to your customers, they'll be good to you."

"Competition can be a good thing. It's good for people to have options."

"This is happening all over the banking industry. We'll just have to do everything we can to improve our services to our customers."

While at East Lansing State Bank, McDowell worked in a variety of departments, including investments, operations, planning and lending.

Before coming to the bank, he spent four years as a bank examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

McDowell is a graduate of Michigan State University and the School of Banking at Rutgers University.

He and his wife, Kay, have three daughters. He said they hope to live in Boyne City and have made an offer on a home.

5th graders?

Nobel winner visits county

Mairéad Corrigan, Nobel Peace Prize winner, visited Beaver Island Saturday, June 3. She is touring the United States to raise money for Peace People Movement, which is seeking an end to violence in Northern Ireland. (Press photo by Neal Colburn.)

BEAVER ISLAND - Most Americans have been sheltered from the realities and the horror of war. We have watched bombings in 30 second flashes on the national news then can breathe a sigh of relief when the commercial comes on.

For the people of Northern Ireland, war has become a way of life in the past nine years. Now they are working for peace. Nobel Peace Prize winner Mairéad Corrigan, 34, of Belfast Northern Ireland has been working toward the end of violence in her country, as well as worldwide peace.

She told a group on Beaver Island, Saturday, June 3 about her holiday to Achill Island off the coast of Ireland in August 1976. She was struck by the peace and serenity of the island. "Back in Belfast they were burning buses," she said. "I thought, 'People will die today.'"

The secretary to the general manager of the Guinness Brewing Company, she cut her holiday short and returned to Belfast to find that her sister and three children had been run over during an Irish Republican Army raid. The children died.

Together with Betty Williams, who had witnessed the incident, they organized The Peace People Movement to put an end to the violence and senseless killing.

"Over 2,000 of our people were dead," she said. "The silent majority finally got up and said for God's sake, it's time to stop the killing."

Violence is not the answer to Northern Ireland's problems of bad-housing, segregation, unemployment, and lack of proper political system, she said. The people would have to solve the problems in their own communities first.

Some 60 communities have been working together on just these problems and Corrigan said there has been a 75 percent decrease in violence. "Fear is contagious," she said. "But courage can be equally contagious."

Her trip to the United States is to help Americans understand what is happening in Ireland. "The United States could play a brilliant role in world disarmament," she said. "If it could have the courage to put out its hand and say let's be friends."

She warned the audience who listened to her speech at the Holy Cross Parish Hall on Beaver Island to be careful about sending money to Ireland. Supporters should know exactly where the donations are going and be sure it is not going to the paramilitary.

"God has chosen Ireland," she said. "Ireland has a message for the world that war is obsolete. Violence and the gun create only more violence. To act for real peace and real disarmament is the answer or we're headed for disaster."

After her speech at the parish hall, she attended a cocktail party hosted by Mrs. Mary Ann Omer at the Beaver Lodge and a smorgasbord dinner at the Circle M supper club as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGlocklin.

Later in the evening, she danced the Irish Jig and talked with islanders and visitors in the Shamrock bar.

A special literary supplement to The Charlevoix County Press featuring original work by local residents will be published August 10.

Five categories have been established for the supplement, which will be a regular twice-a-year feature of the Press, according to publisher George A. Colburn.

These categories are: non-fiction essays, fiction, poetry, photography and graphics.

Permanent or seasonal residents of Charlevoix County are eligible to submit works about this region for the supplement, Colburn said.

All writing entries will be judged by a four-person panel of experts who will select the best entries in each category for publication. Entries in the photographic and graphic categories will be judged by the editorial staff of the Press.

Winning entries in each category will receive $25 from the Press in addition to the pleasure of sharing their work with other residents of the county, Colburn added.

Specific guidelines for those desiring to enter the competition are available from the Press. Deadline for submission of entries to the Press is 5 p.m. on Friday, July 7.

Because Charlevoix County is often referred to as "Hemingway Country," the Press wants to build upon that tradition and provide an outlet for those who are inspired to creative work in this region, Colburn said.

(See the Letter from the Publisher column on this subject on today's editorial page.)

Judging the writing entries will be: Tusco Heath, a professor of English at North Central Michigan College; Michael Steinberg, a professor of American Thought and Language at Michigan State University; Jay Paul, a professor of English at Northern Illinois University, and Sharon Ferrett, Dean of Continuing Education at Humboldt State University, California.

All four panelists have lived in Michigan for long periods and are familiar with "Hemingway Country." At their respective colleges, the four have shown great interest in working with aspiring writers, improving their skills, and seeing that their efforts are published.

Please send me competition details for The Press Special Literary Supplement:

Schools need funding

It simply makes good sense. If a community goes to the time, effort and huge expense of building a new school, it should make sure that school has the money to operate effectively to provide a good education. Otherwise, what's the point of building the new school?

Editorial

That is the question voters should ask themselves when deciding how they will vote in the Monday, June 12 millage elections in East Jordan and Boyne City. Both districts are in similar situations: After the turmoil of the Twin Valley era, taxpayers glad to be out of a bad situation approved building programs for their own communities.

Today a high school is nearing completion in East Jordan. An elementary school is being built in Boyne City. Both systems presently have split shifts, an undesirable way of educating people. Money is needed to fund the new schools and to end split-sessions. This should be no surprise to anyone. It should have been obvious when the building programs were first proposed that it costs more money to pay the bills for new schools. Utilities will be higher and more custodial help will be needed to keep the buildings clean.

Senior citizens should consider their eligibility for the Homestead Property Tax Credit, which in the cases of many senior citizens entitles them to a rebate on any increase in property tax. Under the plan, seniors cannot be taxed more than 3.5 percent of their total income.

Neither school board ever said it wouldn't take any more money to operate the new schools. Of course it will. But the total of 1.8 additional mills being sought by both districts is far from extravagant. Neither board picked its millage request in some pie-in-the-sky attempt to see how much they can soak out of the taxpayers in their districts.

School board members pay taxes themselves, and they are trying to fund the schools adequately with as little financial pressure to the taxpayers as necessary. Inflation is one of the country's leading problems. Schools are hurt by this hard fact of life just as much as individual families. In most cases, families can't do much about inflation or ever-increasing taxes. But they can do something about rising school taxes. They can vote against any school millage increase, no matter how modest. It's a simple, convenient way of protesting the tax crunch, but it doesn't make much sense.

If you want to protest taxes, write your congressman or support efforts to limit tax rate increases to a corresponding growth in the economy. Don't take your frustrations out on the schools. The education of our children is too important for that.

Letter from the publisher

Hemingway an inspiration

Seventy-nine summers ago, Dr. Clarence E. Hemingway of Oak Park, Illinois, and his family first became "summer people" at Bear Lake, Michigan, renamed shortly as Walloon Lake.

On that initial trip, Dr. Hemingway's first son, Ernest, accompanied the family. He was seven weeks old. Except for the war summer of 1918 when he was on the Italian Front, Ernest spent the first 21 summers of his life on the family property on Walloon Lake.

He was inspired by and wrote about his experiences in Charlevoix County on his way to international stature as one of America's giants in the literary field.

All of this is known to most county residents, whether they live here permanently, are "summer people" or just occasional visitors. For more than 79 years, Charlevoix County has attracted those who love the beauty of our out-of-doors, and there is no sign that this attraction is fading.

For many of those who live here, or who visit here, the setting is an inspiration for creative instincts - be it writing, painting or drawing, or photography.

George Colburn

We would like such creative talents among us to share with The Charlevoix County Press readers the results of some of their efforts in and about this area.

For that reason - as explained elsewhere in this issue - the Press is sponsoring a special supplement that will feature the best of those creative efforts that are submitted prior to the deadline of July 7.

There is only one reason for the Press doing this - Hemingway.

His father happened to select Walloon Lake as the location of his family's summer home and he and his wife happened to have a son named Ernest. The fateful circumstances make our little corner of the world unique. Pick up any book on Hemingway and see what I mean.

My family took its summer vacation when Neal and I were boys just north of the little town of Harrisville on Lake Huron. I had never heard of Walloon Lake until about 10 years ago when a professor of literature at Michigan State University explained why he spent a few weeks every summer at the lake. His inspiration - Hemingway.

So, I investigated, liked it, and over the years built a home here and purchased this newspaper.

All this thanks to Hemingway's influence over a professor I know.

In tribute, therefore, to the strength of the Hemingway tradition in our area, this newspaper is offering an outlet for those among us who have a creative side. We hope that those of us who can only appreciate creative talent will find this supplement a special remembrance of Summer, 1978 in Charlevoix County.

We have established a panel of experts to judge the writing entries and select the best ones for publication. The Press staff will select the best photograph and drawings.

Because space is limited, we likely will not be able to print all the entries.

Our panel includes professors at four colleges and universities - all familiar with the area and all eager to assist young or unknown writers improve their skills and have their work published.

There will be three writing categories:

1. Non-fiction essays of 1,200 words or less.
2. Fictional works of 2500 words or less.
3. Poetry.

Two other categories will provide illustrations for the supplement - photography and graphics.

Full details on competition rules may be obtained from the Press.

The basic rule for this competition is that the entrant's work must be concerned with our area - Charlevoix County and northwestern Michigan.

All of us at the Press assume that our surroundings will be inspiration enough for most people. But, if not, re-read some of Hemingway's early works, look at Carlos Baker's fine biography, or the remembrances of Hemingway's sister, "Sunny," who still is seen about Walloon Lake in the summers.

I look forward to reading your entries.

The road not often chosen

Almost 12 years ago, over 150 fidgety boys in their early teens sat in a huge Catholic chapel listening in awe to a friendly but dignified priest tell them that if all went well between them and God, they might become priests in the spring of 1978. I was there.

Last month, 14 of those boys, now young adults, laid down on the floor of another chapel in front of a large elderly man wearing an unusual hat and carrying a staff, similar to those used by shepherds hundreds of years ago. When they walked out of the chapel, they were priests for life. I wasn't there.

Joe McElroy

I've known for a while that life is one surprise after another, but this is ridiculous. When our seminary rector said some of us would become priests 12 years later, he might as well have been talking about retirement or the north pole or something else that 14-year-old minds realize exists but can't really comprehend. 1978? Too far into the future to think about seriously.

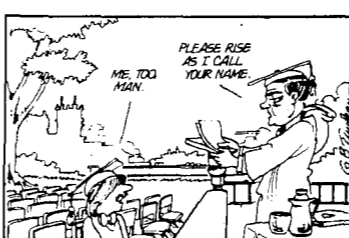

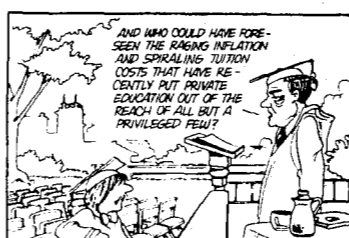

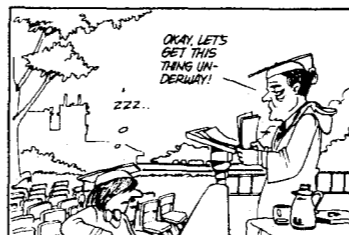

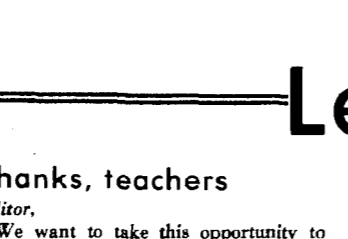

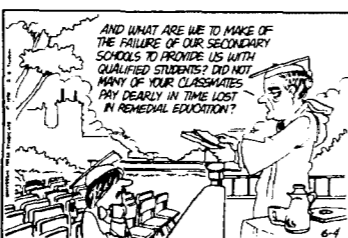

But we were sitting there because, vague and distant as it seemed, we had varying commitments to becoming priests. I was up for it. I wanted to be like our rector. He was a truly great man, intelligent, handsome, personable. It might sound weird for a boy to have priests for heroes, but to me it seems just as strange that "these kids today" (I can't believe I'm using that expression) admire the fire-spitting antics of musically incompetent rock stars.

Our goals certainly do change. When I actually lost interest in the priesthood, I really don't know. I finally admitted it to myself the day I found out that my college entrance exam scores were high enough to get me into a public college. Goodbye, seminary. I went to the library, found out which college in the state had the most promising male-female ratio and sent away for an application.

Who knows. If I had blown my entrance test, Chicago might have another badly adjusted priest and this newspaper would have a different editor. Bailing out of the seminary was the biggest decision I had ever made at that point, and probably the quickest. I've never regretted it for a second.

I hardly ever think about that part of my life anymore, but it's impossible not to think about those faces staring at me from the pages of Chicago's Catholic newspaper. I remember one of them posing for a yearbook picture wearing shorts decorated with jacks of hearts. I remember one as a brilliant student, another as a mindless boob. Now they are God's spokesmen.

Many of them were honor students in high school; none of them were close friends of mine. I wonder why. Maybe they had their minds on higher goals while I had mine on passing math and making the basketball team. I barely passed math and got cut from the team, but things have worked out fairly well. I made the right decision for me and I hope they have done the same for themselves.

Letters to the editor

Thanks, teachers

Editor, We want to take this opportunity to publicly thank the East Jordan fifth grade teachers, namely, Bill Chase, Mike Farrimond, and Dee Ann Rothenberger, for all the time and effort they gave in making the Greenfield Village trip a reality. We know that a lot of planning and preparation resulted in the success of this trip.

Our children enjoyed it so much and they received a real education from not only the many places they visited and things they saw, but the idea of working to earn their own way. We feel that the teachers did a superior job in organizing this trip.

The education that these fifth graders received while visiting the steel mill the Ford Mustang Assembly plant, the RC Center, Greenfield Village, and Ford Museum could never have been taught in a classroom.

A big thank you to each of you!

Fireworks rebuttal

Editor, I would like to respond to the editorial in last week's paper.

First, I feel you should write your representatives as the City Commission suggests in the half page ad your city taxes paid for, but not only if you want them banned. If you feel they should be allowed WITH RESTRICTIONS, then write and let them know these restrictions. - Age limits, areas and hours of discharge, etc. If you care either way - write!

You have the right to boycott my store for selling fireworks, as suggested by the editorial in last week's paper. But why stop there? If you object to pornography, alcoholic beverages, smoking, firearms, country music, sex education in schools, union or non-union shops, etc., boycott these places too. Then if you can't find what you want to buy in the stores you haven't boycotted - go to Petoskey - BOYCOTT BOYNE CITY!

Never consider that a small or new business in this town may sell products he does not totally agree with personally simply because they are the products that bring customers in the door, they are very profitable, and he needs the sales to stay in business. If he makes a few fast dollars on a passing fad like firecrackers or hula hoops or some other novelty, he just might use these profits to expand his main line or to pick up another line he couldn't afford. Then again, he may just pay a few bills and try to stay in business a little longer. Who needs his store in Boyne City anyway? BOYCOTT HIM!

Personally I feel boycotts are not the answer. They simply force the merchant to cater even more to those who buy the products you object to.

And, Mr. Editor - If you feel my business should not be patronized, why print my advertisement on page 10, which included fireworks, as you did last week? Lead the way and don't accept my advertisements any more. Your front page story on the May 25th paper was by far the best advertisement I have had. You would be surprised how many people did not know my store existed until they read about it on the front page. They don't seem to notice little ads like the one on page 10 too much. I guess you don't either.

I would also like to respond to last week's letter from Joe Gierlach, so he doesn't have to "wonder" any longer.

Just look back a year at your own business, Joe. Didn't you operate the Boyne Theater then? So why did you continue to show XXX movies for so long? I believe you were aware of some local resentment there. Now try to think of fireworks as if they were pornography and remember why you continued to show XXX movies against the wishes of so many local people. Get the picture now?

I also read Evelyn Bradley's letter. If you are concerned - Write your Senator and Congressman. I agree - write to them - I will.

What, more taxes?

Editor, The following facts should be brought to the attention of Boyne City School District taxpayers:

1. In response to taxpayer's inquiries, the Boyne City School Board published a letter in The Charlevoix County Press on May 5, 1977 stating, "We estimate that the new school could increase operating costs by one mill." This June 12 the school board is asking for not one, but 2.8 additional mills. Supt. Kelly states "...

because the new elementary school and expanded middle and high schools will cost more to operate."

2. In five years, operating millage for the TV-B.C. School District has increased from 12.8 in 1973 to 20.6 (asked) for 1978, or a 60 percent increase.

3. When school enrollment was increasing the school board widely publicized this fact to excuse their annual efforts to increase your taxes. Now that enrollments are decreasing, they are strangely silent.

4. In a letter to The Charlevoix County Press several years ago I stated, "... next year 17 mills may be demanded, the following year, 20 mills." This statement was received with considerable derision by members of the school board who stated that they would "never ask for 20 mills." Now they are asking for 20.6 operational mills, or a total of 29.7 mills for schools.

This means that if on June 12 you give the school board what it requests, average taxpayers in the school district will be paying a total rate of approximately 44 mills on 1978 taxes. Plus, if you live in Boyne City, a 21 percent increase in property valuation as determined by your County Equalization Department and County Commissioners.

As long as you, the taxpayers, "sit-still" for the school board's additional yearly demands, they will keep increasing your taxes each year. And don't forget, it takes a lot of "no" votes by ordinary taxpayers on June 12 to just counterbalance the votes of the special interests who profit from increased school spending.

H.J. Cawthra
Walloon Lake
Chipman urges millage support

Editor, The people of the Boyne City School District will have the opportunity to vote on the school millage on Monday, June 12.

May I please take this opportunity to clarify a few facts for the voters?

Last spring, it was stated that the new building project would increase the operational millage by one to one and one-half mills. I am pleased to say that this estimate was correct. But, because of the same inflationary pressure that affects your own home, we are finding it necessary to ask for additional operating millage. It was stated last spring that additional millage would be needed for inflationary increases but it was not known what the amount would be.

Last spring, the board told the voters that the increased debt retirement millage, because of the new building project, would be less than 4.1 mills. The actual amount was 3.8 mills. The board expects to decrease the debt retirement millage by 1 mill for next year.

The above examples should let the voters know that we have lived up to our statements of last year.

In conclusion, you will be voting on 20.6 mills which is an increase of 2.8 mills. But, please remember that your debt retirement millage will be decreased by 1 mill. Therefore, the total increase for you will be 1.8 mills.

I urge all citizens to vote on June 12.

Boyne City hypocrites

Editor, These people who are asking the citizens of Boyne City to boycott our stores because of the sale of fireworks in my opinion are the worse corrupters of this town.

I ask you, the people of Boyne City, to judge for yourselves which is worse, hearing a little noise or selling immorality to the young citizens through our local theater. Other stores sell liquor which causes family feuds, injuries and deaths. Dirty movies and alcohol affect the minds.

These few hypocrites of Boyne City are in no position to ask the people not to patronize our establishments.

Hats off!

Editor, Regarding the showing of X-rated movies, my hat goes off to Sam Supernaw and the Cinema III Theatre for their cooperation with the Charlevoix Police Department by now showing X-rated movies.

Their position is most welcome and causes me to wonder why the other theatres would not adopt the same attitude.

Here comes summer

Well, Mom, here it is again. With two simple words you can watch an average mother turn ashen gray and shiver with apprehension. Summer vacation. It seems like last week that I was sending my sons off in their still stiff blue jeans to a far away place called school. Before I knew it it was May and summer loomed ahead.

Let's face it, we've had it pretty easy the last nine months. Up at 7 a.m., fix breakfast, get the kids dressed and send them on their merry way, then back to bed for a couple more hours of sleep before spending the day shopping peacefully in forbidden places such as antique shops. You can't take an eight year old into an antique shop. Glass, imported crystal, and Ming vases seem to shatter when anyone under 18 walks through the door.

It's been nice since September. The kids are in bed by nine, there is time to read all those books you stockpiled, and you could spend the afternoons in quiet contemplation or finding out if Della was really blind on "Ryan's Hope." Yes, it was great; I could even say it verged on euphoria.

Well, forget it. For the next three months you will be in another dimension where peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and scraped knees are the only realities. Looking at the other side of summer vacation, though, I'm thankful it's almost here. For some reason, the knees of any brand of jeans you care to name disintegrate by mid-May. That's good timing on the part of the manufacturer, and it saves me a lot of money because they can be cut off for shorts.

You can't win, no matter which way you look at it, so brace yourself, swallow hard and get ready.

Swan City memories

A true pioneer story

At the time when my parents came to East Jordan, the town was very primitive. So-called roads were a sea of mud in wet weather, and dusty trails in dry times. The families built their own homes, (my mother held the shingles on the roof of their first house while my father drove the nails), and there were few or no conveniences. There were Indians in the area, but they were usually peaceful, and mostly hunted and fished around the lake. One thing they liked which the pioneer women made was bread, and they used to ask for it at the homes. Of course, the Indians knew nothing of manners such as knocking before entering.

One day, when my mother was busy in her kitchen, she turned, startled, to find a squaw behind her with a papoose on her back. The Indian said, "Bread," but my mother had none at that time in the house. She said, "no bread," and tried to make the squaw understand. Again the Indian said, "Bread," in a much more menacing tone, and then quickly snatched a kitchen knife and held it over mother's baby, asleep in the cradle.

Frantically, mother looked around the room and her eyes lit on the iron poker by the stove. The next instant, the squaw was surprised to see my mother holding the poker over the papoose. And there they stood - the squaw with the knife over the sleeping baby - my mother with the poker over the papoose. There were a few tense moments, and then the Indian laid down the knife and slipped silently out of the door, and mother, shakily, went on with her household chores.

As told to Alice Malpass Nesman, by her mother, Mrs. William E. Malpass

Millage election Monday

BOYNE CITY - Voters will go to the polls Monday, June 12 to determine whether the school district should receive a 2.8 operating millage increase.

If approved, the total increase in millage would be 1.8 mills, since the district will be lowering its debt retirement one mill, according to Superintendent Rich Kelly.

"The 2.8 can be misleading because we're going to reduce debt retirement," Kelly said. "I'm sure we're going to decrease it one mill because of the increase in valuation."

Debt retirement refers to the money used to pay off the cost of school buildings.

The school district is seeking a total of 20.6 mills ($20.60 on each $1,000 of state equalized valuation), of which 17.8 mills is a renewal of previous voted millage. If a taxpayer owned a piece of property worth $28,000, it would be assessed at $14,000. If the millage increase passes, that person will pay an extra $25.20 per year. This figure might be less if the owner was eligible for the Homestead Property Tax Credit.

Kelly said the increase is needed to pay for operating costs of the new elementary school. "We need it to cover operating costs in a new building and because of inflationary costs," he said.

He said utilities would go up $61,500 next year. More money will also be needed to pay higher maintenance costs and the salaries of additional custodians and a new shop teacher.

Hoping not to arouse opposition, millage supporters are conducting a low-key campaign in favor of the increase. A privately funded group, the Friends of the School Committee, has mailed out a brochure and fact sheet to probable "yes" voters, such as parents of school children.

The polls in the elementary school cafeteria will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday. Two school board seats are also up for election. (See related story on this page.)

Absentee ballots will be available at the administration building Saturday, June 10, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Hearing Wednesday

A public hearing will be held by Northwest Michigan Human Services Wednesday, June 14, at 5:30 p.m. for the purpose of obtaining public comment on "problems, needs and recommendations about present programs and their effectiveness in meeting the needs of low-income people, and also to hear any criticism or insight on unmet needs and new directions which should be incorporated in Agency goals and policies."

The public hearing will be held in Room 122 of the Main College Building, North Central Michigan College, 1515 Howard Street, Petoskey.

East Jordan Basketball Camp $63.96

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it too and there will be a picture of one each week in this paper.

Glen's wants everyone in East Jordan to know about

Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the Store Manager or Asst. Manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

We would like to say thank-you to our loyal customers whom we have served for our eight years in the restaurant business.

Also a thank you to our wonderful employees

Harbor beats Boyne, 3-2

In the first game of the soccer season Harbor Springs Merchants beat the Boyne City team 3-2 in an early evening match Sunday.

Harbor's Garry Moore scored the first goal in the 5th minute, but 10 minutes later was out of the game with a leg injury. Midway through the first half Boyne goalkeeper, Bruce Korthase, made a nice catch from a header by Brewster McVicker. A direct free kick by Dave Barrett put the Merchants ahead by 2-0 at the half-time whistle.

The second half showed a more aggressive Boyne City team with two good attempts at goal by Chris Todter and Gary Tomkins. Then, in the 15th minute, John Nagle booted in the ball past the Merchants keeper, from a corner by Ray Burdett.

Large field for school board seats

BOYNE CITY - Seven candidates are running for two Boyne City School Board seats in the Monday, June 12 election, with school financing the main concern of most candidates.

Running for a four-year term are Shirley Crozier, Harold B. Harris and Robert Schmolt. Seeking the single year position are Helen Bergmann, Kathleen Toomey, Raymond Towne and David Williamson.

The election winners will take the seats currently held by Howard Bray and Bob Reidel. Reidel was appointed to an interim position on the board after Terry Carr resigned in April.

HELEN BERGMANN

Helen Bergmann of Bay Township was associated with the school district for eight years as a secretary to Howard Bray when he was superintendent. A lifelong resident of the area, she has children in kindergarten, third, eighth and tenth grades. "I'm interested in the school because of having kids in the school," says the 41-year-old Mrs. Bergmann. "I like to be around where things are happening and I like to see things work."

Like most of the candidates, Mrs. Bergmann sees rising costs as a major school district problem. "Finances is the big question," she says. "There is going to have to be another way of financing education. Every year the taxes go up." Mrs. Bergmann thinks school administrators "have to rearrange their priorities with the money they have right now."

Asked if she thought sports or other activities should be cut back, Mrs. Bergmann said, "We need sports, but I think we've gone hog wild over them. Every time you go to a board meeting, they're transferring money into it."

A frequent member of the audience at board meetings, Mrs. Bergmann would like to see vocational education expanded. "We have building trades, but that's about all," she said.

"We're more or less geared to the college bound kids."

Mrs. Bergmann is against the district's move to collect half the school taxes in the summer. "The school can borrow half the taxes in the summer. If we have to pay taxes six months earlier it will put a hardship on the taxpayers," she said.

DAVE WILLIAMSON

Dave Williamson of Walloon Lake agrees with Mrs. Bergmann that vocational education needs to be expanded. "Voc ed is an area I would like to devote a lot of time to. It needs more attention."

Williamson would also like to see the music program expanded. "They've got one teacher for middle school and high school and he's got something like 900 kids," Williamson said. "I'm not a musician myself, but I feel music is a necessity for those who are gifted in that area."

The owner of the Boyne Valley Lodge, Williamson, 39, has lived here for three years. He has three children, one in each school.

Williamson is a strong supporter of a recently passed law permitting sex education in schools. "I believe health education should start in the early grades," he said.

He believes the sex education given in schools should "prepare them to cope with the school pressures of sexual activities."

Regarding school financing, Williamson said he would like to see income taxes used for operating expenses and property taxes used for building programs.

RAYTOWNE

Ray Towne of Boyne City says he doesn't pretend to have all the answers to the issues confronting the school board. Regarding a summer tax collection, for example, he says "I've often wondered about some of these things so I thought I'd take a closer look," he says. "At the present time I can't say I know what all the problems are, so I cannot have the answers."

"If a person is capable enough to sit on the school board, he should be open enough to change his mind."

Towne, 43, has lived in Boyne City all his life and has a child in ninth grade and another in 12th. He is Assistant General Manager of Northern Michigan Electric Co-op.

Towne sees school financing as the major issue. "The economics of the operation is the biggest thing on everyone's mind," he says. "I just don't see how taxes can keep going up or what can be done about it. But I'd sure like to find out."

At the electric co-op, many of Towne's duties are financial and he feels this experience would help him understand the school's money problems.

"Property taxes, in my opinion, are unfair because they are not really based on a person's ability to pay. If possible, I would like schools to be supported by an income tax, collected on the local level."

Regarding a summer tax collection, Towne says, "I favor a summer tax collection only if it reduces costs for the school. One would have to investigate to see whether an early collection would reduce interest costs."

Finding the right instructor for sex education classes, if offered, would be important, Towne said. "It all depends on how it's handled. I think it's just part of life if presented properly."

KATHLEEN TOOMEY

Kathleen Toomey of Boyne City believes the fact that she has no children would help her be a better board member because, "My opinions would be very unbiased."

Mrs. Toomey, 28, has lived in Boyne City for five years. She and her husband, Terry, own the Granary Restaurant, where, she says, "I work with young people all the time."

"I think the school system is lacking somewhere along the line, because their English is atrocious. It bothers me that this is our product. They don't know how to add and they don't know how to talk. It's the school system's job to correct this."

A native of Detroit, Mrs. Toomey has a degree in English from Eastern Michigan University. "The board needs some new ideas from someone who is educated differently," she says. "Most of the people who have been on the board have been people who've lived here all their lives."

Mrs. Toomey doesn't favor any changes in the present school financing system because, "We would no longer have a choice of how we educate our children in this community. We now have that option."

She favors sex education in schools because, "It's not being taught at home. Some people can't cope with it. We shouldn't make sex an under the table thing."

HAROLD (BUCKY) HARRIS

The first candidate to file for the school board election was Harold (Bucky) Harris of Horton Bay who is seeking a four-year term. The 69-year-old Harris has no children in school and says, "It would seem to me that would be a positive thing. I won't be biased by what my kid lies to me about."

Harris believes the school board should restrict its activities to determining policy, leaving the day-to-day decisions to the administration. "Don't bother me with the details," he says. "I'm only interested in what they accomplish."

He promises to "publicly and completely support the superintendent in his administration of the established policy, holding him solely responsible for the resultant success or failure."

A native of Petoskey, where his family has lived for several generations, Harris moved to Horton Bay after retiring in 1972.

SHIRLEY CROZIER

Shirley Crozier of Deer Lake was a member of the interim school board appointed after Boyne City and East Jordan demerged their school districts. A mother of two high school students and a middle school student, she has lived in the area for 21 years. "Obviously, the main reason I'm running is because I have kids in school," she said. "And I think there should be a mother on the board."

Mrs. Crozier feels much of the school district's financial problems are caused by an over-abundance of extra-curricular programs. "We just have too much offered in these schools," she said. "I think we're busing our kids to too many activities."

"I'm not saying we should cut out anything, but I think we might be able to cut back on some of them."

"I think we're spending a lot of money for unnecessary things," she said. Mrs.

Crozier mentioned the central vacuum system for the new school as an example of an unnecessary expense. "That isn't a necessity," she said.

Mrs. Crozier favors summer tax collection, "if it didn't cost the people who collect the taxes more money. I would be more in favor of paying taxes in the summer than in the winter."

She feels sex education should be taught in the homes, not the schools. "I don't think it's the school's responsibility," she said. Mrs. Crozier thinks sex education "would encourage more experimentation."

ROBERT SCHMOLT

Robert Schmolt of Bay Township shares Mrs. Crozier's opposition to school sex education. "Maybe I'm old-fashioned," he says, "but I think it's something that should be taught in the home."

"Every class has a counselor so if the kids didn't get it at home they could go to one of the counselors."

After growing up in Petoskey, Schmolt has lived in the school district for 14 years. He has children in second, third, fifth and eighth grades. A 36-year-old linesman for Michigan Bell, he would like to see more emphasis put on basic education.

"I'd like to see it get back to the way it used to be, where you learn reading, writing and arithmetic," he said. He objects to the crafts class one of his sons took, saying, "I don't think the taxpayers should have to pay to teach a kid macrame."

Schmolt feels any changes in school financing would rob local communities of control over their schools. He is also opposed to a summer tax collection because, "It would cost the townships more money because they would have twice as much paperwork."

Timothy Smith now a doctor

Timothy Smith

BOYNE CITY - Timothy V. Smith, 26, was one of 252 students (largest class in the history of the University of Michigan) to receive a doctor of medicine degree at ceremonies held June 2, in Hill Auditorium.

Dr. Smith, a 1970 graduate of Boyne City High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Smith, 1030 Bay Ridge, Boyne City, and the husband of the former Lynn Granel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Granel, 101 Winter Street, East Jordan.

He obtained his B.G.S. degree with distinction at the U of M in 1974. He is the second person in the past 30 years from Boyne City to become a physician.

On July 1, Dr. Smith will start his internship and residency for a 3-year period at St. Marys, Blodgett, and Butterworth hospitals, Grand Rapids, in the new specialty of family practice.

Following the day's ceremonies, the couple was guests of honor at a dinner for close friends and family members held at the Briarwood Hilton, Ann Arbor.

Terry Carr leaves

New lawyer for local firm

BOYNE CITY - William G. McTaggart, 53, has joined the law firm of Conkle, Varnum and Carr. He will replace Terry Carr, who is leaving to join a firm in Rochester, a suburb north of Detroit.

Carr's resignation and the subsequent hiring of McTaggart is the second major change in the firm this year. Guy Conkle, the firm's founder, died in February.

"A lot of things have happened in the past six to eight months that nobody expected," Carr said. He said he was first approached by the Rochester firm of Bebout, Potere, Cox, Hughes and Cadieux last November, before Conkle died and before Carr resigned as Boyne City School Board president.

"I would have quit the school board anyway," said Carr, who resigned after Conkle's death, citing increased work load in the law firm. Carr said he made a final decision approximately six weeks ago.

Soon after Carr told Varnum of his plans to leave, Varnum contacted McTaggart, who had done consultant work for the firm since he moved here from Flint four years ago.

McTaggart, who lives on Clute Road, came to northern Michigan after having his own practice for 24 years. A specialist in planning and zoning law, he worked full time writing law books for township officials after he moved here.

McTaggart had a general practice in Flint with emphasis on probate and real estate work. He also represented townships and villages, which gave him the background to write for township officials.

"They had difficulty following the technical aspects of zoning and planning legal procedures," McTaggart says. "These books are aimed at aiding government officials in complying with state law."

McTaggart said he accepted Varnum's offer to join the firm because, "I miss the involvement with the community and with the legal profession. I like to be a participant instead of a spectator."

McTaggart said this is a good time to be entering the legal field in the Boyne area because, "It's at a turning point and I look for continued progress."

"I hope we can achieve an orderly growth that will be a benefit to the community and avoid the haphazard growth that has plagued some other communities."

Carr said his decision to leave "is not made without some misgivings. There's a lot we've enjoyed about this area that we're going to miss. It's been an interesting five years."

3 seek Falls seats

BOYNE FALLS - Three candidates, including one conducting a write-in campaign, are running for two four-year seats on the Boyne Falls School Board.

Mary E. Hausler and Flossie Brinley returned nominating petitions and will appear on the ballot, while Irene Spelts is the write-in candidate.

"It was a last-minute thing," said Mrs. Spelts, who has children in first and third grades. She decided to run because, "I just wanted to get more involved. I wanted to find out the inside story."

Boyer Falls recently passed a three-year millage, putting at least a temporary halt to discussion of merger with another school district. Mrs. Spelts hopes Boyne Falls keeps its local school. "I really don't want to see it close," she said.

Mary Hausler agrees that the school should remain open. "The people feel that's the way it should be," she said.

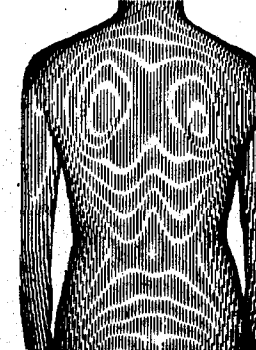

Mrs. Hausler has children in fifth, seventh and ninth grades and says, "I feel the kids are receiving a decent education. The elementary school is very good."

Mrs. Hausler said she decided to run for the board, "because of my interest in kids, primarily. I don't believe in keeping a lot of loud promises."

The Press was unable to contact Flossie Brinley.

The polls in the school cafeteria will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 12.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

There is no charge to participating volunteers, since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.
