The new gymnasium will seat well over 1,000 spectators, even without bleachers being installed in an upper level balcony, where this picture was taken. Bleachers for the lower level and basketball backboards are expected to be installed soon. (Photos by Jim Baumann)

The school cafeteria is a lively place over the noon hour. Music is piped in for students, and it doesn't disturb other students who are attending classes on the other side of the building. A folding partition, at left, can be opened to use the cafeteria for additional seating for a small auditorium.

Everyone agrees: new school is great

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN - After two weeks in their brand new $2.5 million high school, teachers and principal John Winter, the teaching staff and most students are highly pleased with the new facility. It's not just that the school is bright, shiny, big and beautiful.

"I'm sure the quality of learning is much improved," Winter said, pointing out that middle and high school students had been on half-day sessions for the past four years.

"The classes are longer, and the kids are wide awake for their first classes and not tired for their last classes," he said—and the same goes for the teachers. (High school students started school at 7 a.m. during the half-day sessions.)

"I think the kids are basically happier,

'The quality of learning is much improved,' says the principal and their overall conduct and manners have improved. I see a big difference, a vast improvement," Winter said.

The principal likes the layout of the building. "One thing that has really impressed me is that during our split lunch shift, we can have 200 kids listening to music and eating lunch while we have 200 other kids working in their classrooms." The arrangement works nicely, he said, because the building is designed properly and because the teachers and students help make it work by cooperating.

Basically, the school is laid out in three "wings" surrounding a central area of the principal's office, counselor's office, faculty lounge, rest rooms, and book storage area.

One wing includes three large shops for wood, metal and auto classes.

Another wing is made up of academic classrooms which surround the library and media center.

A third wing includes the gymnasium, band and home economics rooms, the combined cafeteria and auditorium area.

Students interviewed at random during a lunch hour last week all said they liked the new building. Some, however, said they didn't like the new "closed campus" policy and the longer school days.

Sophomore Janet Kuntz commented: "I liked going in the morning and getting out early." But she said she thinks the new building is great -- and has resulted in improved student attitudes.

"The kids have shaped up a lot more," they even dress better," she laughed. "After all, who wants to look scuzzy in a beautiful new building like this?"

"I think the kids appreciate it more. Even the football team is better!" she said.

Martha Weisler agreed. "Nobody's tearing it up or writing on the walls like they did in the old school," she said. "They used to stuff rolls of toilet paper in the johns and you couldn't even flush them a lot of the time." That kind of thing has been conspicuously absent this year, she said.

Ann Healey, president of the junior class, thinks the new high school is "really nice."

At first, she said, she didn't like the closed campus policy—where students can no longer leave school for lunch. "But now I can see their point. It has really cut down on the amount of skipping."

She, too, has noticed that "Students have a lot better attitude. Before we had to go to school. Now we want to."

'The kids have shaped up....they appreciate it more. Even the football team is better,' students say

Miss Healey said the student council will be planning special activities to make the school even more enjoyable—like card games and chess tournaments over lunch hour.

The students are somewhat split on how they like the school's new lockers. One boy said they were "too skinny", but a girl who said she had six sets of gym clothes stolen last year was grateful for the locks.

Dale Bayster summed up his feelings about the school this way: "I like it, but I don't like the rules. You can't go downtown for lunch."

Ruth McPherson thinks the school is "pretty cool," while Diane Sulkowski likes the cafeteria. "They have better lunches and good music," she said.

Anna Everett likes the fact that the building is "bigger and not so crowded."

Teachers also are happy with how the school turned out, although there have been some problems—especially in the first few days—with unfinished work.

"Despite a few unfinished things, it's great change," said Kathy Martinchek, a Spanish and English teacher.

Band teacher Tom Steggell commented: "Potentially the band room is going to be fantastic. Now there's a real facility. Before we had a double classroom, not a band room." The new band room is larger and has private practice rooms.

Art teacher Dick Cunningham is also happy with his bigger and better room, although like many of the rooms, there are a number of finishing touches yet to be added.

"We're going to be able to do a lot of things we've never been able to do before," he said. "It's going to be an awful nice place to work in." He, too, was working in a converted classroom, rather than a room designed specifically for his subject area.

Now he will have a pottery kiln right in the art room, plus more cabinets and shelves for storage. "We'll be able to have open houses and exhibits in here this year," Cunningham said.

Principal John Winter and Superintendent Mel Ruhlman say it will be another four to six weeks before the school is actually finished. And even then, "little things" will be finished all year long, Ruhlman said.

Right now, electrical wiring to the three shop areas is being completed ("Hopefully by the end of this week," Winter says), appliances and cabinets are still being installed in the home economics room, bleachers and basketball backboards must be put in the gym, and numerous other small jobs must be finished.

When the major jobs are done, probably in late October or early November, the public will be invited to tour the new building during an open house. Supt. Ruhlman thinks area residents will like what they see. "The number one thing is that there has been good workmanship throughout. The quality of the work is great."

Architects laid out the school to take advantage of existing pine trees in landscaping the property.

To call school...

Have you had trouble reaching the new high school by phone?

The phone number listed as East Jordan High School in the telephone directory is (536-2254) is actually the phone number for the old high school, which is now the middle school.

To call the new high school, dial 536-2259.

Lionesses come out of shadows

EAST JORDAN - It's official. There are now 27 Lionesses on the loose in the East Jordan area.

But don't worry, they didn't escape from the circus. They are members of a new service group affiliated with the Jordan Valley Lions Club.

The Lioness Club received its charter and installed its first set of officers at a dinner meeting Monday night at the Country House.

Lions and Lionesses were present from East Jordan as well as a number of surrounding communities, including Charlevoix, Belaire, Central Lake and Boyne City.

Seven Lions district officers and Mrs.

Rose Chaffee, the first charter Lioness president in the northern district, also attended the dinner meeting.

District Governor J.L. Lee and his wife Patsy of Oscoda installed the officers of the new East Jordan Lionesses.

The officers are president Jackie Hawkins, first vice-president Joan Romback, second vice-president Patricia Shoemaker, third vice-president Judy Bernier, secretary Ruth Chanda, treasurer Jean Zoulek, Lioness tamer and tailwister Jane Mayhew and directors Rhea Parsons, Pat Ruhlman and Barb Cihak.

President Jackie Hawkins said the 27 member club was formed because the wives of Lions Club members had long been active in Lion projects, "but we were tired of being in the men's shadow."

"There are projects that we can be involved in that are different from the men's," she said, mentioning an upcoming child abuse prevention seminar as a good example.

Mrs. Hawkins said the Lions had encouraged the women to start Lioness club several years ago, and "Now we feel ready to form one. Several of the women have older children now and they are ready for more outside interests."

Vice-president Joan Romback said the club is "a good way of meeting people and doing things for the community. People live here a long time and don't really get to meet other people." The club was actually organized in June. Members sold peanuts and refreshments during the Fourth of July celebration and have already donated more than $400 of the proceeds to the East Jordan ambulance squad.

The club holds its meetings on the fourth Thursday of the month. The next meeting will be at 6:30 p.m., Sept. 28, at the Wagon Wheel restaurant.

Any woman in the East Jordan area is welcome to join the Lionesses, Mrs. Hawkins said. Their husbands don't have to be members of the Lions Club before women can join.

Classrooms in the new high school are extra large and carpeted, which makes the building extremely quiet.

New job for 'unlikely' recreation head

BY JOE McELROY
BOYNE CITY - Mike Davis, Boyne City's unlikely recreation director, is moving on.
Davis, 23, will be leaving his job in early October to become Emmet-Charlevoix Youth Activities Coordinator for the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix. He will be working with probation officers and kids who have had problems with the law, developing and supervising recreation programs that hopefully will help keep them out of trouble. He succeeds Gary Hice, who left the position to teach in Petoskey.

It's a step upward in the recreation field for Davis, who never had any particular interest in it until three years ago. After graduating from Boyne City High School, where he was a "middle of the road, maybe," student, Davis worked as an ice truck driver and as a struggling freelance photographer who barely had enough money to buy film.

"I wasn't making any money at all," he says. One day, after one of his few sales, Davis was sitting in his "studio" (the attic above Mr. J's Restaurant) celebrating his recent success by eating a salad. He decided he wanted to play basketball, so he called Community Education Director Bill Lyman grover to see if he could use the gym.

"I couldn't even remember Lyman grover's last name," Davis says. "So I called the school office, asked for 'Bill' and prayed there was only one Bill working there."

Lyman grover let him use the gym and also asked Davis if he knew anyone who needed a job. "I told him I needed a job real bad. He had me come down and fill out an application. I figured it would be thrown in the trash can."

Lyman grover could have contacted the recreation department of any large university and had his pick of students with majors in the increasingly crowded recreation field. But he wanted somebody local who knew the community, so at age 20 Mike Davis became Boyne's recreation director, a position funded at $10,000 per year by the federal government's Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

"I kept asking him, 'Are you sure you have the right guy?'" Davis says now. "He said he liked my attitude." One reason for Mike's uncertainty was that he still associated recreation primarily with organized sports. Davis had never been heavily involved in organized sports because, "I didn't like the way they were run. People take it too seriously."

"We've tried to make people realize that recreation is more than just a ball and bat. Everyone thinks athletics is synonymous with athletics. But watching a play after dinner or listening to music in the park are also forms of recreation."

In addition to dinner theater and summer concerts, Davis had also introduced new sports to the community, such as gymnastics and soccer. "I decided to find an organized sport nobody knew about and push it to the hilt," Davis says, "so people would have to come to me for information. That's how soccer got started around here."

Davis has also built programs in more traditional sports, such as adult leagues in volleyball, basketball and softball. "I got credit for softball but Lynda Christensen did most of the work. I didn't do any of these things by myself. I would come up with an idea and other people would implement it."

Davis also wrote the grant proposals for the development of Rotary Park and the proposed beach on the tannery property. Instead of just working locally, he made frequent trips to Lansing to establish ties with state officials who he thought could benefit the community.

But after a while Davis found that the job's challenge was fading. "Up until about three months ago there was never a day when I didn't wake up excited about my job, thinking about things I could do. But it was getting to be routine. I was letting myself get into a hole."

Still, even when he was offered the social services job, with its $10,500 starting salary and increased job security, Davis was hesitant to leave. "I didn't want to leave the people I've worked with here," he says. "I called them back and planned to tell them no. But they put me on hold."

While he was waiting on the phone, Davis had a change of heart. "I started thinking that if CETA goes under I'd be out of a job and wouldn't get to work with people around here anyway," he said. "Then where would I be?"

Mike Davis watches a softball game at Rotary Park, which was one of the projects he worked on as Boyne City's Recreation Director. Davis is leaving his position for a similar job with the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix.

When Davis started his job three years ago, he didn't have any background in the field, but has certainly grown with the job. (Press photo by Joe McElroy.)

Boyne Falls seeks accreditation

BY SANDY VANSTEENKISTE
BOYNE FALLS - The Board of Education Monday night discussed what the school system needs to do to regain its accreditation from the University of Michigan.

Superintendent William Upton said, "If we are to pursue accreditation as a goal, we must set our standards. We can meet those once again with the faculty we have now."

Accreditation for a school means being recognized as an educational institution which maintains standards that qualify the graduates for admission to higher or more specialized institutions.

Boyne Falls School lost their accreditation when they couldn't meet the standards for a library or counselor or for certified teachers in foreign language and chemistry.

Upton said that the board authorized him to hire new teachers in order to meet this standard. So instead of hiring one full-time employee, he thought it best to hire two part-time employees.

"It's hard to get one person who can teach or counsel or do all," Upton said, "as opposed to having two share the work load."

The board has hired two new teachers. James Crowell, who teaches chemistry and science, is also a certified guidance counselor and Diane Kelly as the music teacher. A library policy is in the making which could send the school on its way for U of M accreditation. At present two new board members needed extra time to look over the library policy, which in essence will state how the library will be run and how its money will be allocated. The issue will be discussed again at the board's next meeting.

In other action, the board heard William Schroderus, certified public accountant with Hill, Woodcock and Distel in Petoskey introduce and explain the 1977-1978 audit report. This is the first year the board has had this firm do their report.

Upton said that the board liked the approach where someone came in person to give an explanation of the figures. Monday, though was the first time any of the members had seen the financial report in the form that Schroderus presented. So at this time Upton said it wasn't possible to evaluate the figures. He said the audit report will probably be discussed next meeting, after everyone has had a chance to look it over.

Upton did say that last year they were in deficit spending but that this year is looking much better for the Boyne Falls School budget.

Other pertinent issues discussed were the adoption of policies and handbooks. This handbook, the board felt, would create a better understanding between teachers and the parents of the school children.

General contracts were reviewed also such as custodians, new teachers, approval coaches and teachers contracts.

October 16 is the date set for the budget review and also the next regularly scheduled board meeting.

New veep at bank

John Cutler

BOYNE CITY - A new vice-president has been named for the Boyne City branch of Northwestern State Bank, according to Chairman of the Board Charles McDowell.

He's John Cutler, 40, a native of Trenton, a town south of Detroit. Cutler has spent his entire banking career, 22 years, at Trenton State Bank, where he most recently was vice president in charge of mortgage lending.

Cutler will have similar duties at Northwestern, where he replaces Richard Metzger. Cutler will also be assistant branch manager to Bob Prebble.

Cutler said he and his wife, Nancy, became attracted to the area while vacationing and own a summer home in Mio. "If you enjoy it that much, why not live there?" Cutler said.

The Cutlers have purchased a home near Deer Lake.

Secret discussion unfair to public

Secrecy is sometimes convenient, but it has no place in government. The Boyne City Board of Education apparently forgot this when it came time to discuss the selection of a new principal.

Because of this, the people who pay dearly to operate the schools didn't get the answers to some very important questions.

Editorial

Why did the board choose a man for this very important post who has just one year administrative experience, and that as an assistant principal? Is Rick Casper the most qualified man? How do they know, since they didn't bother to accept any other applications? Why didn't they? What is Casper's philosophy towards education in general, and regarding Boyne City High School in particular? What are his goals, hopes, and aspirations for the school?

But the board didn't ask those questions, at least not in public, where the answers should be given. What they did was ask Superintendent Rich Kelly if they could have a closed session to discuss the merits of hiring Casper. Kelly said no. Job interviews, except for salary negotiation, have to be in public. That's the law.

So after the board members uttered a few platitudes about Casper, Fritz Sutter moved for a 10 minute recess, which was quickly approved by his colleagues. Kelly warned them not to congregate in groups of four or more, which would constitute an illegal majority. So Sutter jawboned with Tom Neumann and George Shiotelis, and then moved on to discuss the situation with other members - always in groups of three or less. The politicking went on for 15 minutes.

Then the meeting was re-convened and the board, without any further discussion, named Casper the new principal. Throughout all this, Casper sat by himself, looking unhappy.

No, the school board probably didn't break the letter of the open meetings law. Just the spirit. Fritz Sutter admits he was trying to circumvent the law when he requested a recess. He justifies his actions on the grounds that there were some unanswered questions in his mind about the wisdom of hiring somebody with so little experience.

We're sure glad Sutter got his questions answered. But what about the people who put him and the other board members into office? Don't they deserve to know the reasons behind the selection of the new principal?

Our quarrel here is definitely not with the selection of Casper, but with the method of selection.

Casper is bright, hardworking, well-respected and did a fine job last year as assistant principal. Internal promotions often make sense. But it's unfair to him, as well as to the public, that the board refuse to publicly discuss why they hired him without going through normal procedures. Yes, they needed somebody in the position immediately, but the board could have named Casper acting principal for a year and let him and other applicants go through a normal, deliberate, thoughtful selection process. If Casper is indeed the best possible choice for the job, this would have become even more evident after such a process.

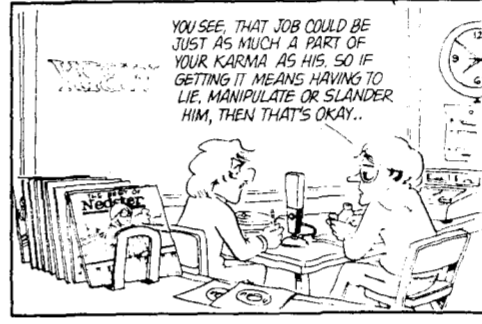

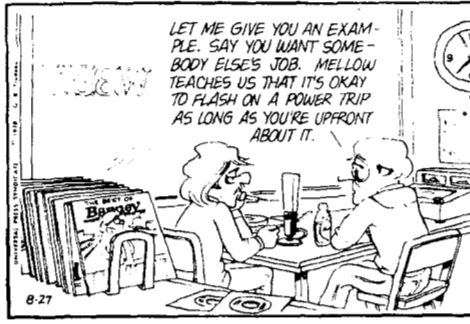

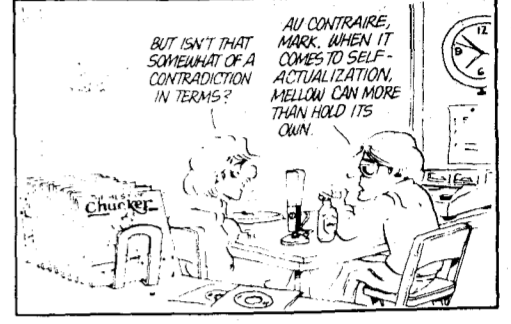

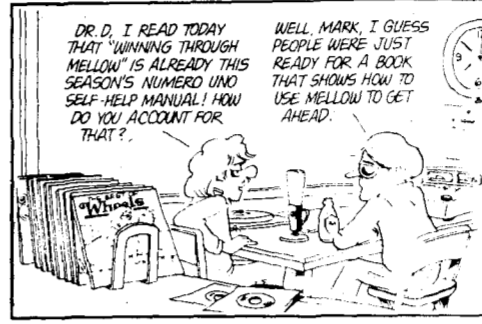

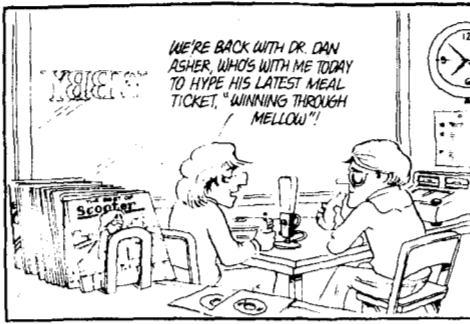

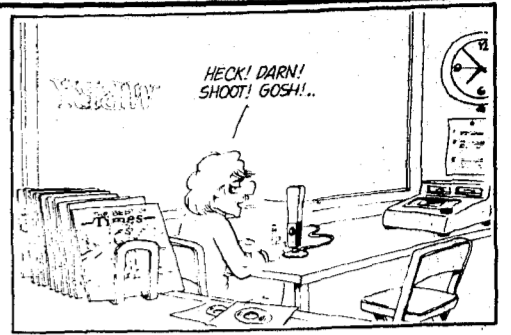

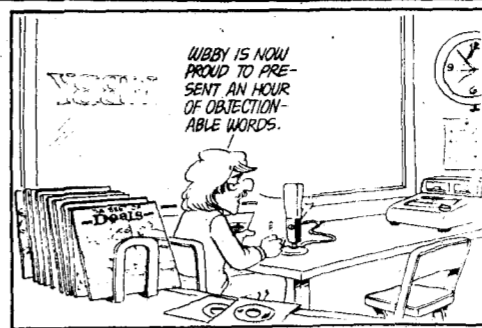

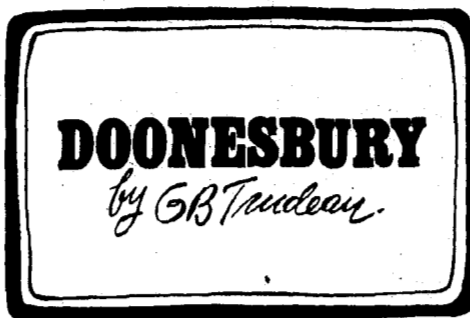

A similar situation recently presented itself in Boyne Falls when William Pollard resigned as superintendent. Some board members wanted to quickly appoint William Upton in his place, but other board members warned against such a hasty action.

So the school board solicited other applications, looked them over - and decided Bill Upton was the best man for the job. They discussed their reasons for the decision in public.

The Boyne City Commission recently picked a new city manager, and some commissioners didn't appear to feel very comfortable having a reporter scribble down their comments while they were making their decision. But the end result was that the press, and hopefully the public, knew for sure that a careful and wise decision had been reached. The commissioners were sometimes unsure of themselves during their deliberations, but they weren't afraid to let their constituents see the process.

When secrecy is the issue, those trying to hide the process of government often point out that in private industry such negotiations are usually done behind closed doors. But consumers can refuse to patronize private companies if they don't like the way things are being done.

We don't have any choice when school tax time rolls around. We pay for the school system. We deserve to know how and why important decisions within it are reached.

Surprise opinion on Front?

Last week, after months of discussion and deliberation, The Press came out in favor of the closing of Front Street as necessary for the development of condominiums on the tannery property. Since we didn't finally decide what position to take until we read Williams and Works' engineering report, I imagine some people were surprised at the stance we took.

Nobody was more surprised than I. Before coming here I lived in south Florida, pretty close to Ft. Lauderdale, which has a huge beach across the road from a wall of condominiums. One of the opponents of the road closing offered to show me a picture of this scene as proof that the tannery condos would sell even with Front Street separating them from Lake Charlevoix. I'd seen it.

South Florida is beautiful, just like northwest Michigan, although the natural attractions are somewhat different. But most of Florida has been ruined by money-grubbing real estate developers, especially condominium developers. When I moved to Miami, three of the county commissioners had just been sacked because the law had found out they were getting an extra bonus hidden in their morning newspapers - bundles of cash in exchange for crucial votes in zoning cases.

In my mind, the average real estate developer down there rates somewhere between used car salesmen and chill molesters. It's not a real estate market, it's a jungle. Everyone is a real estate agent. One time I made the mistake of telling my barber I was renting, and had to spend the rest of my haircut learning about "this great little place" he was handling for the real estate company he moonlighted for.

My favorite horror story is about the construction of a 24-floor monster condominium on a beach zoned for 12-floor maximum usage. Local legend has it that the notice of the hearing on the zoning change was nailed to a coconut tree somewhere on the property. However it happened, nobody knew about it until the damn thing had been approved.

When I moved here last fall, one of my first impressions was relief to be in an area that hasn't been ruined by over-development. I told myself that the newspaper would do everything possible to keep it that way.

Given all this, why are we in favor of closing a busy public road to make way for what would be by far the biggest housing development Boyne City has ever seen? Because, like it or not, when somebody owns a piece of land they have a right to do something with it other than pay taxes on it. The tannery is zoned for commercial use. I think this would be a waste of lakefront property and Boyne City has wasted enough of its lakefront with factories and buildings such as the one on Lake Street that houses our office.

It's a nice lake to look at and the property should be used for housing. People complain that they will lose their view, but the view will be blocked even worse if the land is sold piecemeal for commercial use. Houses? The land costs too much money. Houses would also put more of a strain on schools and other municipal services, which would minimize the tax benefits in a community that is in such a tight financial pinch that it's voting down school millage requests.

The opponents of closing Front Street say they like the low density development and simply object to the street closure. So the question is whether you think the project would make it financially with a road going through it. I just don't think so. Other areas of the country are littered with half-completed condominiums, vertical slums protruding into the sky. These financial flops usually take place when the condominiums are built in bad locations. If Front Street is as busy as its defenders say, it's doubtful many people will pay top dollar for the privilege of watching cars fly past the lake.

Despite commission approval of the closing, there is still no guarantee that the road will be closed or the condos built. The city will have to enter negotiations with Lake Associates to decide who will pay for what. If they don't like some aspects of the plan, they can refuse the zoning change.

The commission needs to protect the city against possible financial loss and changes in ownership of the property. Another important question is whether six-story buildings are really in character with a town where nothing is over half that height. We hope the commission and the developers can agree on plans that will be financially successful without overwhelming the rest of the town.

Need more stores

Editor,

I am a homeowner here in Boyne City and am a tax payer.

Boyne City doesn't need more people here, as there are plenty here now.

I can't see how bringing 250 families here will help the economy.

If it costs us $70,000 for the taxpayer's share, then where will taxes be cut? Nothing ever comes down, it always goes higher.

What about the cost of enlarging the police department and the cost of new fire equipment?

Mr. Shafer seems to fear competition, but that's just the reason everything's so high here, because there is none.

We need more stores like Giantway, Wickes and even more gas stations.

Good paying businesses would bring more taxes and would attract people from all over to buy things, without losing a street.

Even a factory to hire more people would help more than a condominium.

We need more things to help the poor working man instead of lining the pockets of the rich. If the beach is developed, that will no doubt be fenced in and the people will be charged to use it.

Bad timing

Editor,

Williams & Works' presentation last Friday at the Boyne Theatre was well attended by merchants, professional and retired people. Noticeably absent were several hundred who were opposed to the closing of Front Street, but who we know definitely wanted to attend. (Even with that, when asked to stand, well over half the audience did so.) 3:30 in the afternoon is not the time to schedule a public meeting. Far too many are still on the job.

Mr. Buick, realtor handling the sale of the tannery property, read a number of merchants' names who favor the closing of Front Street, to the commission. A great many of the 1422 who oppose the closing of Front Street, but don't oppose building of the condominiums, are amazed that their patronage to these merchants has been so lightly appreciated. Time would not permit the reading of THEIR 1422 names, however. The developers would have the support of these 1422 people with a plan that doesn't require the closing of the road.

The city government may be tempted to go along with this proposal because for many it would spell prosperity as well as growth and development. However, the masses are asked to sacrifice an important arterial road (which most of them choose to travel) to and from Boyne City. We see the need for MORE roads in the future, not less. Must we compromise again, as we have in the past? As was pointed out at the meeting on Friday, we were here first, why are we put last?

Look to M-75

Editor,

We noted at the hearing of closing Front

Street, most of the people for closing Front Street were ones that would profit, real estate men and some store owners.

The store owners should realize that if the growth continues as projected, the commercial area is on M-75, the REA. Perhaps a bank, and a new shopping center would be built on M-75. Division Street would be a direct expressway to that area. Boyne could be a ghost town. We'd hate to see that happen because we like our town and shopping area. Most of us living on this side of town use Division for going to high school, churches and Boyne Falls. But to do our shopping we use Front Street. Don't any of you appreciate OUR business? Over a thousand citizens year-round!!

We're not against the condominiums, but think they should provide another good road through that property to the business district without a cost to the taxpayers.

Do you think your taxes will go down? They didn't with the Landings.

The project is a 10 year program. We may lose the road, and if the condos don't sell right away, we'll be paying more taxes for roads.

The Smiths are fine people, but the citizens and taxpayers have to protect closing Front Street without another road provided.

Incomplete data

Editor,

As a trained engineer and a weapons system evaluator for the U.S. Navy, my reaction to the public hearing held at the Boyne Theatre, Sept. 15, whether anyone is interested or not, raises these points of contention:

INCOMPLETE - The data and figures available were very incomplete. Only the cost figures for the upgrading of Second Street were quoted. There were no cost figures for the water system, sewers, and the improvements to Division Street. No specific plans were available, only conceptual drawings.

INFORMATION CONFLICTS - Traffic study by Williams and Works stated that a 36-foot wide road would reasonably handle 1,200 cars per hour and implied that Division Street could serve this purpose now and in the future. However, Division Street is now only 23 feet wide and therefore would need major improvements. There was apparently a deliberate evasion of the costs of improving alternate routes one, two and four.

SPECULATIVE - The tax return, payroll benefits, and profit spinoff are based mainly on conjecture. No definitive graphic curves were available explaining the interrelation of gross income vs. outlay with the resultant net gain or losses vs. time were presented in either the Mercer or Williams and Works impact studies - or in other presentations.

OMISSIONS - contractual obligations or covenants were neither stated nor offered by documentation.

ENVIRONMENT - No environmental studies have been made.

I therefore reiterate the pleas that I made at the Friday meeting to slow down this judgment in street closing until the necessary hard facts and cost figures are available for a proper analysis and evaluation... and sufficient time set aside to digest them.

Remember, once Front street is closed, we all have lost an irreplaceable asset forever.

Bad taste

Editor,

The letter to the editor with the heading "Wastefulness" in last week's edition was in poor taste. The writer cast stones at two professional people's value to the schools and to the community.

One would suspect that the article was subterfuge and not an honest expression of the real issue about which the writer has concerns.

If the article is a true statement of the man's feelings I would suggest that he talk to the people who work with the two nurses in question and then form an opinion.

Bouncing around

Oops! There was a bit of misinformation in that trivia a week or so ago. Like, there's no coffee at the Coffee Mill etc. After reporting there was no ski at Ski & Shore I was sent to the corner with a dance cap. The lady said I goofed. There are two: Mark and Lyle Kowalske.

Marshall Sayles

Friend Gierlach admitted a couple hundred into the show house free for nothing for an attraction rated P.G. (Pretty good). I went in with my mind made up concerning the tannery road question. Upon leaving I discovered I had more intelligence at my fingertips than in my head.

The beautiful addition to the Northwestern State Bank will be finished on time. Which is only natch with a hard hat cousin in charge of mixing the cement and laying the brick.

A 12-year-old said he'd gotten a bang out of the humorous version of the Rambler-Red Devil football game. A 12-year-old reading this stuff! I didn't know whether to dance a jig or develop a sour stomach. (I've been told that no one reads it unless it's prescribed by a doctor.)

I would not care to be sitting on the Boyne City Commission during the eruption caused by a hankering to close a road. These are the times that reveal the political danger of using common sense.

Auctioneer Jim Brannan, selling my Aunt's antiques at the Advance Chamber building, quipped about the WPA. (For those under 30 that was one of the government's big depression "make work" projects for the unemployed.) To Auctioneer Brannan it means the Working People of Advance.

Heavens, the changes predicted for Boyne. Some to be good for the city, some bad. But what's to worry? Throughout the entire life of the city it has often been cluttered up with things that almost happened.

I did not intend to write a column of razor blades. Now I'm scared that any moment will be my next.

Here's what's cooking

Cookie time is here again

Rainy days are here, fall is in the air and it's not too hot to do some baking. What makes kids happier than some nice warm cookies to munch on?

My favorite BUTTERSCOTCH-WALNUT COOKIES

 3/4 cup granulated sugar
 2 eggs
 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
 1 cup chopped walnuts
 2 cups rolled oats
 1 -6 oz. pkg. butterscotch morsels

DIRECTIONS:

Sift flour, measure and sift again with soda and salt. In a large bowl, cream margarine and both sugars, then beat the eggs into the mixture. Add the vanilla and mix well. Stir in the dry ingredients, add the nuts, oats and butterscotch and mix thoroughly.

Drop onto greased cookie sheet (about 1 Tablespoon of batter for each cookie). Bake in a 350 degree oven for 12-15 minutes until light brown. Remove to rack to cool.

PEANUT BUTTER - CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

DIRECTIONS:

Mix peanut butter, honey and oil together until smooth. Add vanilla and salt and mix again. Add the flour a little at a time and mix until very smooth. Fold in chocolate chips. Place dough on a greased cookie sheet with your hand and flatten each with a fork. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 10 minutes, but be careful not to burn them. (Half a cup of dry unsalted chopped peanuts can be added to dough before baking, if desired.) Allow to cool on a rack.

GINGER JACKSON

BITTER CHOCOLATE - CREAM CHEESE BROWNIES

- INGREDIENTS:
 1 pkg. (4 oz.) bitter chocolate
 5 Tablespoons butter

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute in conjunction with New York Chiropractic College is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.

There is no charge to participating volunteers since the doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program. Final processing and evaluation will be done at the New York Chiropractic College.

Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Band room

The band room in East Jordan's new high school is quite spacious. As evidenced by the scaffold at right, the work isn't quite finished yet. Panels are being placed on the front wall to absorb sound. The room includes three small practice rooms, an office for teacher Tom Steggall, and doors so the marching band can go outside to practice. Directly outside is a small outdoor stage and amphitheater for outdoor spring and summer concerts.

Fly the frightening skies?

I flew to Beaver Island this weekend. That may not sound impressive to most of you, but for me it was one of those milestones in life that we must encounter from time to time.

It wasn't just that I flew, because I've flown before. I've traveled on North Central, United, and Pan American. But for some reason, I've always had a fear of small aircraft. I had made a solemn vow never to fly anywhere in what I considered to be a toy airplane.

Then Neal suggested we fly to Beaver Island for our honeymoon.

"Fine, I said, but what airline will we fly?"

"McPhillips," he answered. Then he explained that McPhillips was a charter service out of Charlevoix. Toy Airplanes! ! !

Somehow, he managed to talk me into going anyway (love is blind). Before I knew it, I found myself sitting smack dab in the middle of Charlevoix's airport terminal, with Neal grinning like a Cheshire cat, and a lot of toy airplanes just waiting for people like me.

We boarded the plane with three other people and a pilot. I fastened my seat belt and waited. There was no stewardess doing a pantomime with an oxygen mask, and no Italian steward asking if I wanted coffee. For some reason that was reassuring.

The pilot looked at the passenger in the seat next to him and said, "Have you notified your next of kin?"

The passenger nodded. "Fine, then we can take off."

Great, a comic pilot on a toy airplane. I was convinced we were doomed.*

Hazel Colburn

But as we took off, I was amazed. Not only was the scenery beautiful, but the flight was smooth. As we landed on Beaver Island the passenger who was sitting beside the pilot (who, incidentally, was Richard Gillespie, a native of the island) said, "Well, at least you didn't knock off a wheel."

"Yea, we're lucky that way," the pilot responded.

"This time I could enjoy the somewhat 'black humor'." It was a great flight.

We even flew back, via Beaver Island's own Welke Aviation and it was equally enjoyable.

The only thing I haven't figured out yet is where they found rubber bands big enough to keep the propellers going that long.

Boyer Falls names two new teachers

BOYNE FALLS - Two new part-time teachers have joined the faculty at the Boyne Falls School. They are science teacher James Crowell and music teacher Diane Kelly.

Crowell, in his 23rd year of teaching, came to Boyne Falls from Defiance, Ohio. "You try to get to know people, but in a large district like that it's hard," Crowell says. He said he likes the smaller class sizes he has in Boyne Falls.

Crowell will teach chemistry, seventh grade science and environmental science. He is also a certified guidance counselor. He and his wife live in Charlevoix.

Diane Kelly is teaching two music programs that Boyne Falls didn't offer last year. She is in charge of the junior high and high school bands, which were dropped last year because of millage problems. The passage of a three-year millage brought them back.

The other program is elementary vocal music, being offered this year for the first time. It will cover the basics of music.

A graduate of the University of Akron, Mrs. Kelly taught elementary school in Hart before she and her husband, Bill moved to Boyne City this spring.

EJ girls whip Loggers

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan girls basketball team raced off to an impressive start in its season opener last Thursday, whipping Boyne Falls 51-37. But Monday the Red Devil girls dropped a 48-37 decision to Ellsworth to even their record at 1-1.

In the Boyne Falls contest, East Jordan jumped out to a 19-4 first quarter lead and increased the score to 33-10 by halftime. Reserves played for much of the second half.

Roxann Frank poured in 21 points in the first half for the Red Devils. The sharpshooting senior ended the night with 29.

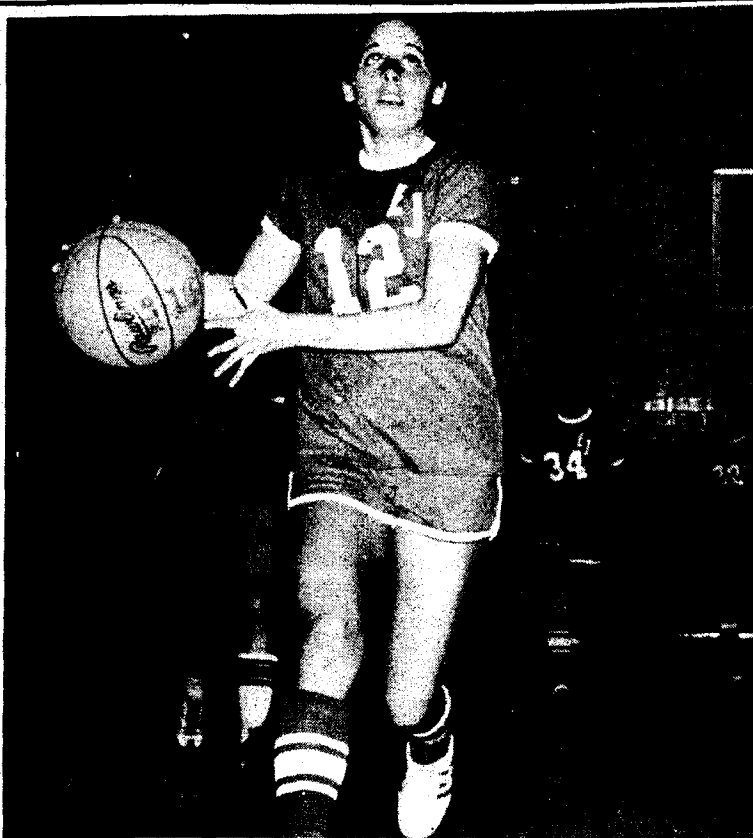

Brenda Gee added eight points while starters Jane Noiro, Brenda Baker and Donna Spence all scored four points.

Kelly Spencer paced the Loggers with 14 points, while Jane Kondrat had 10 and Sara Wasylewski scored eight.

East Jordan also whipped Boyne Falls in the junior varsity contest, 54-32. Colleen Thompson led all scorers with 18 for East Jordan, while Carmen Murphy added nine, and Laura Osowski and Deanna Skrocki both had eight.

For the Boyne Falls JV, Toni Marchinkiewicz had 11 points and Sandy Payton added nine.

East Jordan "played flat" in losing to Ellsworth Monday, said Coach Steve Zallman. "They're big and they played an excellent game," he said, referring to the Lancers.

Ellsworth led 6-3 after one quarter of play and then ran away to a 28-11 halftime lead with a hot second quarter.

Noiro topped East Jordan with 13 points, while Frank added eight. Brenda VanderArk and Chris Howes poured in 20 points apiece to dominate the scoring for Ellsworth.

East Jordan shuts out Ellsworth

BY MIKE CIHAK
EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil varsity football team ran its record to 2-0 Friday, crushing Ellsworth 32-0.

The Devils won easily thanks to a potent offense and a defense which kept Ellsworth pinned deep in their own territory most of the night.

Holes thought the Red Devils' victory over Ellsworth "was a good game in that we could play everybody. And even though we had a big lead, everybody took it seriously."

"We had some nice long runs," Holes said. "We had to run outside most of the time, because they jammed up the inside."

"It wasn't the same competition as Boyne City (the previous week's opponent), but Ellsworth has a good team and I think they're going to win some games in their league."

The Devils struck hard and fast when Dan Crick, who gained a total of 114 yards, scampered 52 yards on the third play from scrimmage. Crick scored again minutes later, this time on a 12 yard plunge, making the score 12-0.

Dave Burch scored on a 28 yard run, and then kicked the extra point to make the score 19-0 at the half.

The Devils came back in the second half like a team on fire and marched down the field following a Dennis Lapeer interception. They scored on Lapeer's 4 yard run. Dave Burch converted the extra point to make the score 26-0.

The final Devil tally came on Dan Spence's 3 yard dash, which followed Duane Cutler's interception of a Lancer pass.

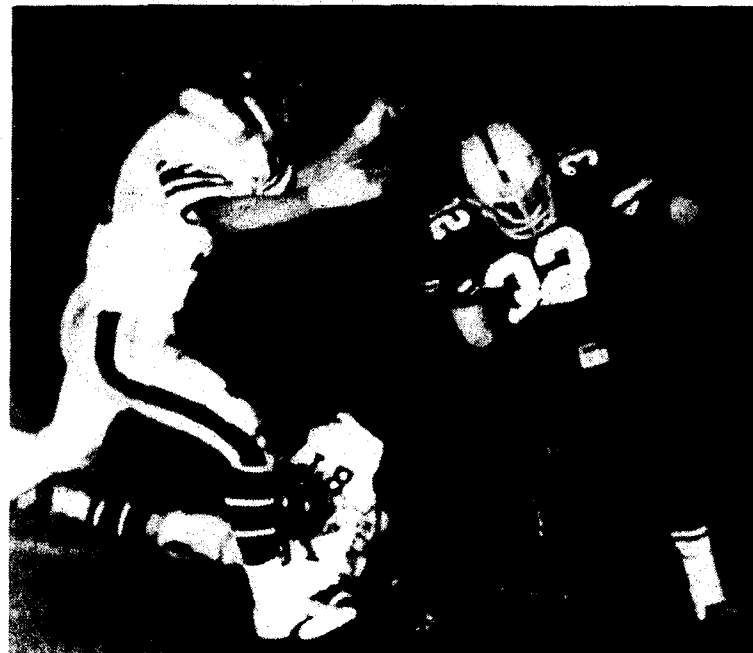

The Lancers threatened in the final seconds, but the Devil defense rose to the occasion, preserving the 32-0 shutout.

The Red Devils won't be playing a game this Friday night.

The gridgers were originally scheduled to play Ski Valley League foe Bellaire, but a millage failure has resulted in all sports being cancelled at that school.

A home game was scheduled with Yale, a large school from the Port Huron area, but that game was also cancelled - this time by East Jordan.

Coach Frank Holes said he cancelled the game after Tuesday's practice because several players were sick or injured, and he did not want to aggravate those injuries in a non-conference game with an opponent he knows nothing about.

Girl cagers win tourney

BY SANDY VANSTEENKISTE

The Boyne City girls basketball team got off to a fine start last week, winning the Central Lake Invitational Tournament.

In the opening game, Tuesday, Sept. 12, Boyne City swept away Ellsworth 53-23.

The high scorer for Boyne was Dawn Tims, the team's center, with 23 points.

"The guards did a super job on defense," Varsity coach Steph Moody said, "creating a lot of turnovers by the other team."

Moody said that her team should have had 100 points but they had a problem with their lay-ups. "As much as we practice those and we only made one lay-up the whole game," she said.

In Thursday's game against Central Lake, Boyne came out on top again, 43-37.

At the end of the first half, Boyne was down 24-20. But when both teams came out third quarter, foul trouble presented problems for both Boyne and Central Lake.

Boyne had three girls with four fouls in the third quarter who all eventually fouled out. They were: Ginny Scott, Penny Grunow and Sara Bricker. Dawn Tims resumed the second half and played with four fouls against her.

And to Central Lake's dismay, Mary Hopp, high scoring forward with 16 points, was taken out third quarter because of four fouls against her. Boyne then pushed ahead using a lot of defensive pressure, scoring 11 points in the third quarter to Central Lake's four.

Hopp was put back in for the fourth quarter but Boyne had her fouled out in 14 seconds, Moody said. "It was one of those games with a lot of fouling problems for both teams."

High scorers for Boyne were Linda Sarasin with 12, Dawn Tims with 11 and Backy Aimesbury with 10.

"I hope to keep the ball rolling and to keep winning like this," Moody said of her team. "We have a few weeks yet to practice for our next game. Our defense is good but the offense is what's going to take some work."

The girls next game is Tuesday, October 3 at St. Ignace.

Boyne soccer team loses

BY PAT LIPSKI

North West Michigan Soccer League play kicked off this weekend with two games played at Traverse City on Sunday.

In the match between Boyne City and Northport, Boyne played with only ten men, and Northport came off the winner 4-1.

Neale Henel substituted in goal for Boyne City, his first time in that position. Playing goalie for Northport was Mike Kelly.

The first goal of the match came in the eighth minute scored by Chris Todter from some good passing by John Nagle. Ten minutes later Northport tied it, and the score was 2-1 at the half-time whistle.

Early in the second half, Todter attempted a good shot on goal from a corner kick taken by wing Jack Gantner. Northport's third goal came from a defensive error, and the fourth goal occurred when the right wing found the goalkeeper out of position and booted the ball into the net.

The 3rd league match, held at Ottawa Indian Stadium, Harbor Springs, resulted in a shut-out of visiting Gaylord by the home team, the final score being 6 goals to zero, with Kenyon Johnson scoring a hat-trick.

Next Sunday's schedule sees Traverse City traveling to Boyne City to take on that team at 3:30 p.m. while the Traverse City games will feature Northport versus Harbor Springs at 1:30 p.m. and Gaylord versus Leland at 3:30 p.m.

On Saturday, September 23, two exhibition games being played: Boyne City travels to Marquette to play Northern Michigan University and Harbor Springs is at home to a team from K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base at 2:00 p.m.

Boyerne gets ready for Rogers City

BOYNE CITY - After losing to two strong teams in their first two games of the season, the Boyne City football Ramblers will face Rogers City this Friday in a game where both teams have something in common. They're both 0-2.

But Bob McCullough isn't taking the Hurons lightly. "They're loaded with potential," he says. "They're pretty much a power-oriented team. They don't pass much."

Leading Rogers City's power-I formation off is 195-pound fullback Butch Buzkowski, who is not only strong but also fast enough to be a sprinter on the track team.

Gametime is 8 p.m. on the Boyne City field. McCullough hopes the comparatively small Boyne City team will be able to keep refining its new wishbone offense in its game against Rogers City. He says that in Friday's 27-12 loss at Tawas, the offense, "went decent, but not as well as it should."

The coach said Tawas has run a veer offense, similar to the wishbone, for four years. Boyne was troubled by four fumbles in its opening game loss to East Jordan, but McCullough says against Tawas, "We played better. For one thing, we only dropped the ball twice and recovered both of them ourselves."

Tawas jumped to a 14-0 halftime lead, thanks in part to a surprising rule interpretation. Ramble Mike Anzell put Tawas in a hole with a 62-yard punt, but it was called back because the referees said he had an illegal number, 62. A substitute got off a bad punt, putting Tawas in position for their second touchdown.

McCullough says the rule requiring players to wear special numbers relating to their positions was suppose to have been dropped.

Despite having the 62-yarder called back, Anzell is still averaging 42 yards per punt after six attempts this year, exceptionally high for a high schooler. He also had 10 tackles while playing middle linebacker.

Boyerne made it close for a while in the second half, as Mitch Moore intercepted a pass and took it 85 yards for a touch-down. Boyne then recovered the kickoff and drove in for another TD, with Ray Greene putting it over from the two-yard line, making it 14-12.

Tawas gave itself some breathing room with a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Their final score came after Boyne, gambling late in the game, failed to convert on fourth down and gave the ball up on their own ten yard line.

The Ramblers had planned on making the long trip home Friday night after the game, but local supporters raised $500 to pay for hotel rooms and meals in Tawas. "I thought that was real nice and I'd like to thank those people," McCullough says. "It made the kids feel good to know that people are behind them."

Hospital fund drive extended 2 weeks

Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive has been extended two weeks until September 29.

The campaign's time limit has been pushed beyond its original closing date of September 15 in order that workers caught in the Charlevoix summer rush can complete their soliciting of area residents, the hospital Board of Directors determined at their Tuesday, Aug. 29 meeting.

Glenn Kenney, Campaign General Chairman explained that "While our goal of $750,000 is within our grasp, it would be a mistake to close down the campaign before all the workers have talked to all our potential donors."

"The press of summer activities has meant that many of our workers have not had the time to make their contacts."

The fund raising drive's total now stands at $453,475.

Fund drive organizers said that volunteers with the campaign have the names of some 800 individuals with whom they have yet to discuss the campaign.

"Summer is the best and the worst time to hold a fund drive in Charlevoix," Kenney observed. "Everyone is here, but everyone is extremely busy."

"Now we hope that those who already volunteered to work and others who now find they have time to volunteer will help us push this campaign over its goal in the short time left," Kenney said.

"The summer community gave generously and helped us pass the half way mark," Kenney stated. "Those of us who use the hospital most, we year-round citizens of Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Antrim County, must consider that supporting the hospital project now will help insure the future of this community hospital."

The $750,000 fund raising goal is to be used as capital for the project, the total cost of which is $2.1 million.

Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital Administrator, explained that after the $750,000 or more is raised, the balance to meet the $2.1 million costs of the project must be borrowed.

"It is our intention to minimize the effect of this project on hospital patient costs," Krueger said. "Obviously the more we have to borrow the greater our interest payments."

The project revolves around the expansion of over-crowded departments - X-ray, laboratory, inhalation and respiratory therapy, and emergency room - out-patient services which are also used by in-hospital patients.

The hospital which was built in 1954 has an adequate number of beds, but with the trend in medicine today placing more emphasis on out-patient treatment to hold down costs, the out-patient departments have seen as much as 300 percent increases.

Five buildings robbed

BOYNE CITY - Five local buildings were burglarized early Wednesday, September 13, but two suspects were quickly apprehended, according to the Boyne City Police Department.

The Depot Restaurant, the Chamber of Commerce office, the Boyne Theatre, the Dairy Queen and the Granary reported break-ins between 7:15 a.m. and 9:41 a.m. with a total of $150 worth of goods taken. But police later that day recovered it all and arrested two men.

Arrested were Matthew J. Serman, 18, of Vanderbilt and Dana Grandall, 17, of Boyne City. Both were charged with breaking and entering. Police said the two allegedly broke glass and pried locks to get into the buildings.

Acting director appointed

The Board of Directors of Northern Mental Health Centers, Inc. has appointed William Everett to serve as the organization's acting director until a permanent replacement is hired to fill the vacancy left by Jerry Wilson's resignation. Dr. Wilson is leaving to become the director of the undergraduate social work program at Grand Valley State College.

Everett has an M.A. in clinical psychology from Central Michigan University and has been on the staff of Northern Mental Health Centers since August 1976. During these two years Everett has opened and been in charge of the East Jordan Area Counseling Services, one of NMHC's four offices, along with his clinical duties in the Petoskey office.

Prior to joining NMHC, Everett served as a staff psychologist for psycho-therapeutic treatment clinic in Flint; unit director for S.O.D.A.T., a youth oriented drug abuse treatment agency in Flint; and psychometrist for Ionia State Hospital. Bill and his wife, Sandy, and their children, Amy and Todd, have a home in Hathaway Springs.

Northern Mental Health Centers has formed a search committee, headed by board member Clifford Denay, that is conducting a national recruitment campaign to locate a new director. Everett will be assisting Mr. Denay and the committee in this effort.

Condos come closer to reality

BY JOE McELROY
BOYNE CITY - The proposal to build 250 condominiums on the old tannery property took a major step forward Tuesday night when the City Commission passed a declaration of intent to close Front Street but all parties involved agreed it was just an initial step in a long process.

The would-be developers, Lake Associates, maintain the road closing is necessary for their development on the 55-acre piece of land to be successful. Now that the commission has given tentative approval of the closing, a long period of negotiations will begin before final approval of the entire project can be given.

City Manager Tim Clifton said the condo proposal will now move from the conceptual to the practical planning stage. As Rick Smith of Lake Associates said, "We've taken a first step, but we still have a mile to go."

The first hurdle was Thursday's hearing before Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner, who by law must approve the road closing because it is near a lake. Breighner decided at an earlier hearing that he wouldn't make a decision until the city commission passed a declaration of intent to close the road.

If Breighner approves their decision, the commission must give final approval to the road closing and also change the property's zoning from commercial to residential use before the work can begin on the $14-18 million project.

Clifton said the Planning Commission and City Commission will have to examine the details before giving final approval.

Breighner will apparently be aided in his decision by the testimony of the five commissioners, who received subpoenas from opponents of the road closing after the Monday meeting. Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick said, "I think Michael (John Michael, attorney representing those against the street closing) will probably ask us if we had all the plans when we made our decision."

"But we couldn't have them because we thought the court had to approve the closing before we voted on it. But then the judge threw it back into our laps."

"Now that the whole commission is in accord, we'll start doing that."

The developers say they will exercise their option on the property, which expires October 8, if Breighner indicates his approval of the road closure. If that happens, negotiations between the commission and the developers look to be long and hard. "It looks like the city will be demanding," Rick Smith says. "Whether we will be able to meet all their expectations and proceed with the project remains to be seen."

Mayor Fitzpatrick says he won't cast his vote for final approval of the project unless Lake Associates agrees to pay for all needed street, sewer and water improvements, including a new road on their property paralleling Second Street. This is route three proposed by the engineering firm of Williams and Works, diagramed at the right on this page.

"It's the only way I'm going for it," Fitzpatrick said. Steve Moody said, "I don't feel any route other than alternative three would be acceptable to me because that will impact less on the people on Lake and Division."

Thelma Behling, who abstained from the vote because she lives on Division and had been accused of a possible conflict of interest, said she favored the new street because it would keep some businesses, such as the Granary, Boyne Laundry and Ron's Market from being cut off from the Main flow of traffic. The other four commissioners voted yes on the closing.

Violet Manglos, one of the leaders in the fight against closing Front Street, said she was partially satisfied with the proposed new street as a substitute for Front Street. "I wanted to keep Front Street," she said. "But if the commission is going to give it away, alternative three is better than nothing." She said she didn't yet know whether her group would seek further legal appeals.

Rick Smith said he felt Mrs. Manglos and others who opposed the street closing had won some important concessions, such as a bicycle path through the project to the beach and the use of a road through the development for emergency use. "These people brought up a lot of valid points," he said.

"As a result, we have a better total plan for Boyne City."

One further concession the commission will probably seek is financial assistance from Lake Associates in buying the 900 feet of lakefront property between the northwest corner of the tannery property and the city's sewage plant near Maple Street. Catherine Jessup said she thinks the city should try to buy the land for use as a park.

"It's a critical piece of land and should be used as a park," Rick Smith said. "We wouldn't rule out helping the city buy it. We'd be willing to look at it."

This diagram was included in the engineering report done for Boyne City by the firm of Williams and Works. The numbers and dotted lines show possible alternatives to Front Street. The commission last night passed a statement of intent to close the street, but said alternative three would be the best way to keep additional traffic off Lake and Division Streets.

New Boyne Falls principal loves kids

BOYNE FALLS - Carl Mosher has this thought about kids.

He loves them. Big kids and little kids alike. Which is appropriate, since he now finds himself in the midst of 265 of them every day in his new job as principal of the Boyne Falls School.

"I've been working with kids since I was 18-years-old," Mosher says. He admits that the hours are long for a school administrator, but says his contact with the youngsters makes it all worthwhile.

"Sometimes you'll wonder why you're doing it," Mosher says. "But then a little kid will come up and hold your hand or something, or a high school student will come in and say there's something he needs to talk to you about."

Mosher says he decided to leave the classroom for administration with hopes of making some changes in education. "We tend to go in trends. For a while, in the 50's and 60's, we tuned in on the kids who were science or math-prone," Mosher said.

"But other areas, such as special education, were being neglected. And we seemed to be forgetting about the average student."

Mosher, 39, comes to Boyne Falls from the Standish Sterling Community Schools, where he was assistant principal, at different times, of the elementary, middle and high schools. The district had 2,200 students and Mosher is looking forward to trying out his theories of education in a smaller school system. He replaces Bill Upton, who became superintendent after William Pollard resigned.

"Bigger is not better," he says. "When you're dealing with schools, you're dealing with people. It's not like an automobile factory. We have 265 different individuals here."

"They're not miniature adults, although that's how they're often viewed. They're human beings at a particular stage of development. As school people, we have a responsibility to help them through that stage."

A graduate of Western Michigan University, Mosher received a master's degree in educational administration from Eastern Michigan University. A Detroit native, he left the suburban district of Southgate five years ago for Standish, a smaller city near Bay City. Now he's decided to come even further north.

"My wife and I have always liked this part of the state," he says. "I used to come up here to fall down the mountain."

Mosher said he was attracted to a smaller school district because, "There is a clear advantage in getting to know the students better than you can in a large district. Because of this, you can curtail their education to their needs and abilities."

One of the major trends in education today is "back to basics," a philosophy that calls for renewed emphasis on the "Three R's, reading, writing and arithmetic. Mosher says he's been pleased to find out that the elementary school was several years ahead of this trend by instituting the Open Court language arts program, which puts heavy emphasis on basic reading skills but also offers individual attention.

The new principal admits that a small school such as Boyne Falls can't offer as wide a range of courses, but he said it can lay a solid foundation for the student who wants to go on to more complicated subjects in college.

He added that the intermediate school district provides some of the services often provided by a large school district, such as special education.

Mosher said one of his top priorities is to have the school regain its North Central accreditation. "That sets a standard for your school," he said. "It's a gauge of how good we are or how poor we are." He said the security of a three-year millage and the addition of faculty members such as James Crowell, a certified guidance counselor, will help the school get accredited.

Mosher and his wife, Patricia, have two children, who both attend Boyne Falls School. Kristen is nine and Adam is five.

Lots of changes in new elementary school

BY JOE McELROY
BOYNE CITY - If a stranger had come to Elementary Principal Ed Snyder a year ago and said, "Show me your school," it would have been a complicated request, one that would have involved hiking over to five portable units and then on to the Boyne City Public Library.

Those days are over now that a new,

$1.6 million elementary school is a reality. It's been Snyder's baby since voters approved the project in May, 1977, and he's pleased with the results.

"The biggest difference is having everything under one roof," Snyder says. "There's no portables, no classes in the library. The communication is much better."

"Teachers can share equipment and materials much better. Also, being on one floor is much more convenient, not to mention safer."

In the old, downtown school, which now houses the middle school, children spent part of each and every school day traveling to reading classes, which are established according to various achievement levels.

To somebody like fifth grade teacher Shorty Smith, whose classroom was in the library basement, that meant bundling the students up and sending them across the street. The commuting left less time for in-class instruction.

The new school will hold 700 students, which leaves room for growth, since enrollment this year is 570.

Snyder is also excited about the new school's library, which isn't in operation yet because the companies that supply the cabinets and bookshelves have been closed by a strike. Snyder doesn't expect the library to be ready until the end of October.

When it is completed, it will offer something new for Boyne City students, what Snyder calls "a really fully-equipped elementary library with completely open access." The school in the past has had to make do with 600 books stuffed into a vacant classroom along with all the audiovisual equipment.

The Board of Education bought an 8,000 volume elementary library from the Livonia school system, which is closing school because of under-enrollment. "That's probably the nicest thing that has happened," Snyder says. "We hope to start teaching some library skills, which we were never able to really do before."

The library (which educators nowadays call a "media center") is in the center of one of two classroom wings and leads directly into each classroom. There are no doors. This saves money and makes the library more accessible to the students. A teacher can send part of his class to the library and keep an eye on them while instructing the rest of his students back in the classroom.

The open school concept forces teachers as well as students to make some adjustments. For example, art teacher Betty Adgate's room is next to a kindergarden room. "These are both activity-oriented classes," she says. "We'll just have to get used to each other."

The open concept enables teachers to have a better idea of what's going on in other classes. This can be a bit unsettling for the teachers. "You wonder at first, 'Can I be that good a teacher?'" Mrs. Adgate says. "But it helps you to be the best teacher you can be, and that's good."

"Sometimes you'll walk by somebody else's room and hear them say something that you can use yourself. It helps us learn from each other."

Mrs. Adgate and music teacher Linda Fry have their own rooms for the first time this year and are delighted to lose their nomad status. Instead of carrying their supplies from room to room, the students now come into classrooms set up for art and music.

"We're so happy to have a room," Mrs. Adgate says. "Organization is so much easier. Before I could never be sure where all my materials were since I was traveling from room to room. Because I can stay organized, I can concentrate more on teaching. That's the way it should be."

In the old school, Linda Fry had to spend part of each day shoving a piano from room to room to teach music classes. Now she has her piano and other musical materials right at hand. "I could carry only so much," she says. "With all the materials here, the classes can be a lot more spontaneous."

In addition to a new room, Mrs. Fry is also teaching a new music program this year, one that instructs the students in all areas of music from an early age. "It's not just a singing book," she says. Even first graders will begin learning how to read music.

With the new school came one unexpected problem. The Charlevoix County Road Commission donated 50 feet of land to the school which was supposed to be part of the playground area. But school officials didn't realize it was an area where the road commission dumped tar for years, and for a while had problems with workmen and students tracking tar into the newly carpeted building.

The area has now been fenced off to keep kids off it until the tar problem is cleared up. Snyder said the school has ordered a special cleanser that will remove interior tar stains.

When the elementary school was downtown, many students walked to school. Many of them now have to take the bus, which caused a bit of confusion when school first opened.

Elementary teachers have developed a clever identification system to make sure the younger students get on the right bus. Instead of making the kids remember a bus number, each bus has a picture of a cartoon character in its window. All the student needs to remember is to find the Cookie Monster bus or Casper the Friendly Ghost.

What do the students think of the new school? Betty Adgate asked her fifth grade art class to answer the question, "How is this school different from last year's school?" This is how they responded:

Hal Leach: "Some rooms have different shapes."

Mike Fortune: "The stage is in the cafeteria."

Brad Lake: "Mrs. Adgate has a desk." Connie McCraney: "The chalkboards are brown."

Alice Gardner: "No second floor."

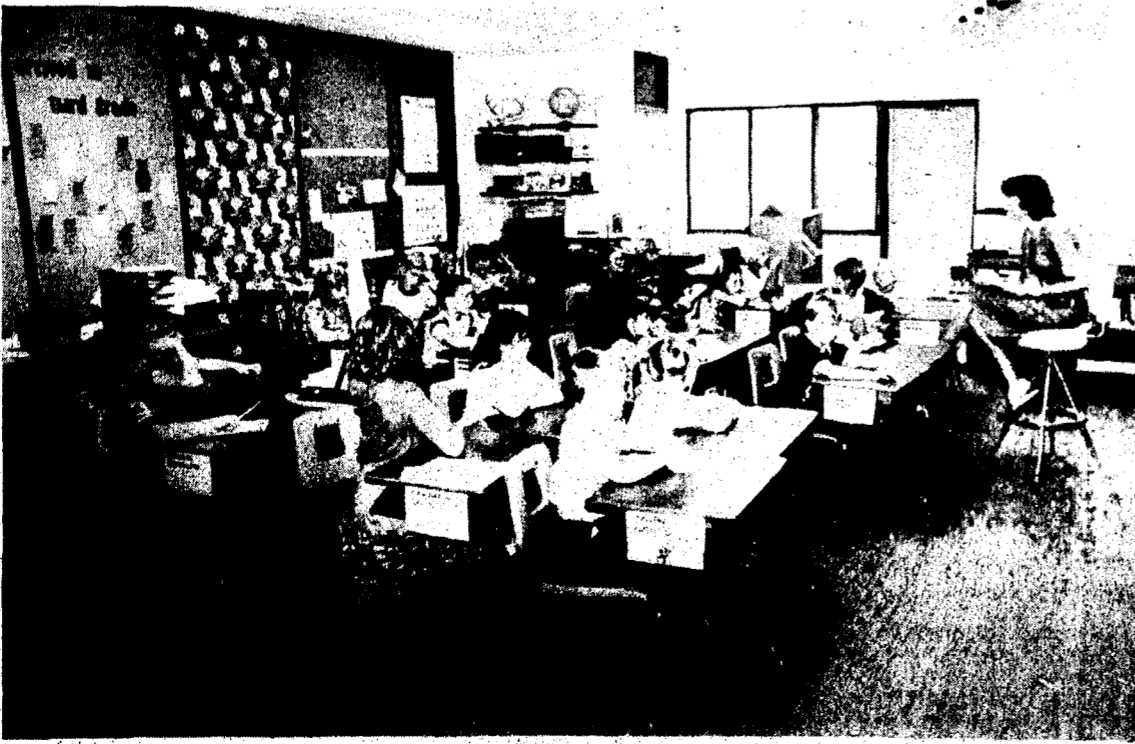

Laura Kemp: "The teachers are still the same, willing to teach anyone."

Tricia Johnson: "It has steel and brick walls."

Nadja Clute: "Bigger playground."

Deborah Gipperich: "It's open."

Anonymous: "Pretty girls."
