'We've always had a big 4th of July'

EAST JORDAN - This community has been having big celebrations for so long on the Fourth of July that no one can even remember when the first one was held.

East Jordan native and long-time Chamber of Commerce member Martha Kamradt said "We've been noted for our parades for years and years. We've always had a big July 4 celebration."

This year's Jordan Valley Festival is no exception.

Nearly every civic group in town is involved, which explains how so many activities can be organized.

The Chamber of Commerce acts as the overall schedule planner and organizer. And various Chamber board members take charge of different activities.

Debbie Carey handles publicity and the kiddie carnival. Betty Rison runs the flea market, Pam Burr organizes the parade and Freda Winter plans the craft fair.

A group of senior citizens is putting on a variety show, the Jordan Valley Lions are running the Polka Festival tent, and the Lionesses are organizing the kiddie parade.

Still others are involved: the Snowmobile Club sponsors an ice cream social, the Rotary Club has a chicken barbecue, and the fire department shoots off the fireworks to cap the weekend.

The big day for the festival will be the final one - Saturday. But Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be busy, too. Here's the schedule:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4

10 a.m. - Kiddie parade, meet across from fire hall on Main Street. Prizes in several categories for "Kiddies of Tomorrow" theme.

11 a.m. - Kiddie carnival in Memorial Park.

1 p.m. - Musical comedy, "The Family Doctor," performed by a group of senior citizens in front of the Senior Center on Main St. (It will be repeated at 1 p.m. Saturday.)

2 p.m. - 2 a.m. Michigan Polka Beats and Midas Touch appearing in the Lions polka tent on the tennis courts on highway M-32, west side of the lake. Admission to the tent is $1, with beer, pop and mixed drinks sold inside.

THURSDAY, JULY 5

6 p.m. - 2 a.m. - Bohemian Bud and the Impalas playing in the Polka tent.

FRIDAY, JULY 6

6 p.m. - 2 a.m. - Polka Kings and Ray Kaminski playing in the Polka tent.

7 p.m. - Bingo at American Legion Hall on Main Street.

7 p.m. - Bingo at American Legion hall on main Street.

SATURDAY, JULY 7

9 a.m. - Flea Market in Memorial Park, downtown on the waterfront. Open until dark.

10 a.m. - 5 p.m. - Portside Hobby and Handicraft Show at Elm Point, two miles north of M-32 on M-66.

11 a.m. - 4 p.m. Ice cream social with homemade pie and ice cream, sponsored by Snowmobile Club on Main Street in front of Cass Supply.

2 p.m. - "The Grand Parade" line-up is at the middle school on Fourth Street. To enter, call Pam Burr, 536-2160.

Parade marshal Barney Milstein will be leading the way. Milstein, 80, retired from public service in 1978 after serving as a county supervisor and commissioner for 41 years and nine months. He was also East Jordan's mayor for two years and worked as the postmaster for 17 months.

6 p.m. - 2 a.m. - Polka Towners and Harmony Jacks playing in the Polka Tent.

10:45 p.m. - Fireworks display over the harbor at dark.

Cyg Riley and her Afghan hound, Isis

Art fair season is her time of year

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - The Portside Hobby and Crafts Show is coming up at Elm Point Saturday, and that means it's Cyg Riley's time of year. With a glint of pleasure Mrs. Riley recalls the handmade doll furniture, duffle bags, jewelry, and so on displayed last year at the craft show. Pat Pepin has been in charge for the last three years.

The Hobby and Crafts Show is a child of the Portside Arts Fair, which began in East Jordan 17 years ago.

Details of the history of these organizations pour forth, but you really have to ask to learn that Cyg Riley was at the front and in the middle of these endeavors.

"Portside Arts Fair started when Sarkis Sarkisian, Director of the School for Creative Studies in Detroit at that time, made an offer," Mrs. Riley says. "He said, 'If you'll put it on, I'll bring work from ten of the top Michigan artists.'"

"Everybody came to see it," she adds. "They've been faithful about coming ever since."

"Tourists, too, of course. Over 2,500 signed the guest book, and many come in without signing."

This show, scheduled for August 4-5, a week after Charlevoix's show, is judged by a jury of professionals and draws both artists and viewers from out of the state.

Besides involvement in the shows, Mrs. Riley is a charter member of the Crooked Tree Arts Council, based in Petoskey. The Council pursues grants in the arts, and brings in performing groups and individuals.

Of course, Crooked Tree Arts Council is well-known for its sponsorship of many activities - exhibits, concerts, scholarships, courses. Art is so many things.

"What would we be without art?" Mrs. Riley exclaims. And what is art, we ask.

"There's a difference between fine arts and the 'art' of fly-casting," she hunts for words. "Art is enrichment in your life, whether in music or other arts."

Is art mainly for eggheads?

"Definitely not. Art is for everyone. All ages. It can occupy you - even just to appreciate it. When you retire, you have it."

"A homemaker can use it, making her home beautiful" says Mrs. Riley, perched comfortably on the couch in her home that illustrates what she means.

"Remember . . . ?" She looks across to Mr. Riley, and then tells the story of a woman whose young son was interested in art. The council gave him a scholarship to further his talent. The mother was invited to come to class with him, found it interesting, got into art herself. The experience created noticeable happy changes in her whole outlook on life.

Exposure, Mrs. Riley thinks, is the best way to come to enjoy the arts. "I remember in my school we had a music hour and we played records. Listened to classics over and over and became familiar with them."

Cygrid Riley has always been interested in the arts. Her own plans for an art career gradually disappeared as she was drawn into promoting the arts. "I could see the needs."

The Rileys' "semi-retired" from Lansing to East Jordan 23 years ago. But semi-retirement meant being as busy as ever. Besides the arts, there is the East Jordan Portside Historical Museum and the Garden Club.

"Garden Club," smiles Mr. Riley, "but not garden-ing," emphasizing the last syllable. "She'll plant a bean and a posy . . . but not worry if they don't come up."

Mr. Riley's semi-retirement took him into new worlds of social service.

Then there's an artistic son, and a promising artist in a granddaughter.

"You can't spend much time looking back if you're busy," is Mrs. Riley's philosophy. She quotes a Chinese friend: "Age is purely relative."

One of the things she's looking forward to is the proposed renovation of the Senior Center. "Roller skating alone would pay for it!" she says.

Such a waste to let that building stand the way it is . . . good place for traveling art exhibits . . . and yes, theater in the round."

It's hard to get Cyg Riley to talk about herself. "So many people in this area," she says, "starting from nothing, independently producing, happy in what they do. This area lends itself to artists." And Cyg Riley lends artists a hand.

Co-op protestors switch tactics

The customers who have been protesting policies of Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company have changed tactics in their attempt to get new faces on the co-op's board of directors.

After months of legal maneuvering, their recall petition has been stalled, so the unhappy customers are now focusing their energy on the August 15 board elections.

According to Bruce Sanderson, one of the leaders of the protest movement, which began during a long strike by company office workers, three "reform" candidates have been slated. The three are Ed May, a leader in the protest, Bellaire attorney John Unger and Thomas Webster of Petoskey.

They will be running for three seats against three incumbent board members and three other candidates slated by the company's nominating committee.

The incumbents are Howard Carson of Boyne City, Truman Cummings of Harbor Springs and Arthur Biehle of Mancelona. Nominated by the company were Bernard Best of Ellsworth, Martin Mang of Pellston and Dr. Alan Sidnic of Charlevoix.

Sanderson and May began leading the protest against the company after co-op officials refused to answer their questions or attend public hearings on the strike.

The company was eventually able to break the strike by threatening linemen with the loss of their jobs if they joined the office workers on the picket lines when the linemen's contract expired. But Sanderson and May vowed to continue their recall drive.

According to co-op bylaws, a recall petition must contain valid signatures from 10 percent of its membership, estimated at approximately 27,400. Sanderson's group turned in 4,210 signatures, but the company only certified 2,563.

An attorney for the company also said that no proxies would be allowed at the membership meeting which would be held to recall the directors if enough petition signatures were validated. That means approximately 2,700 customers would have to vote in person to oust any of the directors.

That type of turnout doesn't seem likely, considering that the co-op usually has to offer door prizes to get enough people (150) for a quorum at their annual membership meetings.

"I would have to say the recall is in limbo," Sanderson said. "I hesitate to say that we've given up, but they've put up so many roadblocks that we've been a bit discouraged."

"We've decided to concentrate our emphasis on getting our three candidates on the board in the August 15 election."

The elections are part of the annual meeting. "In the past they've been pretty sleepy affairs," Sanderson said. "But I don't think they'll have to give away door prizes this year."

33 patients as new doctor starts

EAST JORDAN - Mitch Carey officially started work at the Family Health Center here Monday and said he was "tired, but satisfied" when he finished a few minutes before 6 p.m.

"I had a good day," he said after seeing 33 patients. "Everything is really fine. People seemed glad that I was here."

Health center officials are also glad he is here. Except for four days when Carey "filled in," the center did not have the services of a physician during the month of June.

"It's good to see the parking lot full again," administrator Neal Colburn said happily Monday.

Carey, who will be 29 years old this month, is the second doctor to work at the center. He succeeds Klaus Hergt, who left May 31 after 18 months here to open a practice in Cheboygan.

Carey, his wife Nancy and eight-year-old Michael are now staying at the Jordan Inn. They have purchased the Don Roberts home at 995 Erie St., and they will move in later this month.

He was born in Grand Rapids and graduated from Creston High School and Grand Valley College. He went to medical school at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Carey has just completed a three-year residency in a family practice program in Saginaw. He concentrated on internal medicine, obstetrics and pediatrics during his residency.

Two Ohio men arrested after shooting near bar

EAST JORDAN - Two Dayton, Ohio men have been arrested in connection with a shooting incident outside Chuck's Place Sunday, July 1, according to police chief Joe Hammond.

Hammond said Ernest Carpenter, 35, and Thomas Capparelli, 31, have been charged with one count each of felonious assault with a deadly weapon, he said. They were scheduled to be arraigned Monday in Circuit Court.

Hammond said the incident occurred at approximately 8:40 p.m. "There was a disagreement inside the bar," Hammond said. He said the two then left the bar and, as they drove away, allegedly fired several shots at three other bar patrons with a .380 automatic handgun.

"One was driving and the other was doing the shooting," Hammond said. "We're not sure yet which one was doing what."

Nobody was hit, although Hammond said one bullet hit the tire of the car that the targets of the shooting were hiding behind.

Hammond said the two men were arrested in Ellsworth by the state police.

Glen's taking shape

After two years of planning, the new Glen's Market in East Jordan is finally taking shape. The 20,000 sq. ft. store is expected to open in late October. Located on highway M-66, the store will have a 200-car parking lot. Company officials say that at present there are no definite plans for other adjacent stores, although they hope it will eventually be expanded into a shopping center. Glen's current downtown East Jordan store is now for sale.

Pictured at left is Mr. Minto receiving a check for the East Jordan 3rd grade in the amount of $53.75.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it too and there will be a picture of one each week in this paper.

Glen's wants everyone in East Jordan to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the Store Manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once. But each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

with Tom Vanderwall

WHAT DO YOU SAY TO A GRIEVING WIDOW?

Because it is so difficult to know how the bereaved really feels, we advise that you not say, "I know how you must feel." It is not necessary to force a conversation, nor to extol the virtues of the deceased to the grieving family.

Silent expressions of emotion and compassion (like a firm gripping of the hand) and a simple, "I'm sorry," are frequently more eloquent than talkative attempts at eulogies.

Listening and just "being there" show that you care. Your presence is indication of your desire to be sympathetic and comforting.

Above all, don't try to jolt a grieving widow out of her grief. Time will do it for her gradually. She must first accept the loss, then begin to live with it and pass through several emotional stages before the natural healing effects of time take hold.

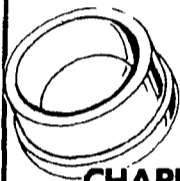

We welcome your questions and comments on this and other subjects - privately or publicly, through this column.

Chiropractic health care requires an extensive investment in equipment. Dr. Rick Pethers shows off some of his office machinery.

New doc feels at home

BOYNE CITY - How did you happen to come to Boyne City, Dr. Ricky Pethers?

"We just drove around all over Northern Michigan and picked a town we liked," says the community's new chiropractor, who started work here last December.

"This was it. We had wanted to live in Northern Michigan and there was no went to a couple medical doctors and they gave me some medication. But when the medication was gone, my back problem was still there."

"That's when I started thinking about it."

Pethers describes chiropractic as a "holistic" approach to health, which means "looking at the entire person instead of the specific ailment."

"I'll never prescribe any drugs. There's no need for that."

"We look at the cause of the problem and try to reconcile it."

Chiropractors and medical doctors have been at odds for years over treatment methods. But Pethers doesn't think chiropractic is the answer for all medical problems.

He'll even recommend surgery, although only as a last resort. "There's no health care field that's a panacea. I see myself working with medical doctors and osteopaths to provide good health care to the community."

Pethers defines chiropractic as "a manipulative technique to free spinal nerves from being pinched. As soon as that nerve flow is interrupted, you have problems."

"I don't cure disease. What I do is normalize body functions and let it cure itself. The body is very good at that."

Pethers said he doesn't believe in drugs because, "The cause of the problem is still there. It's going to crop up again."

The chiropractic field is divided between those who say it should only be used for spinal and back problems and others who say it works for other ailments as well.

Pethers said he concentrates on ailments of the back and other extremities, but believes chiropractic often helps other problems. He said he was able to help one local woman with chronic headaches by manipulating her back.

So far, Pethers has been happy with his experiences here. "I don't know if I've been lucky or whether the methods work even better than I thought they would, but I've been getting good results with my patients."

"If you're good to your patients, they'll be good for you."

People at work

chiropractor in town."

"I plan to stay here the rest of my life," says Pethers, a native of Flint. "It's nice to walk down the street and see people you know."

Pethers, 26, graduated from chiropractic school in April, 1978. He says he also was accepted to dental and medical school, but chose chiropractic because, "I like a little more natural approach to health."

"I had some back problems myself. I

Housing director Sorenson to leave

Margaret Sorenson, housing director for Boyne City and East Jordan, has resigned those positions to take a job in Grand Rapids with the federal government's Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

She will assume her new duties July 21. Sorenson, a native of Boyne City, says she hates to leave but, "This is an opportunity I can't pass up."

She has been housing director in Boyne City since 1973, and in East Jordan since 1974. Both are part-time positions.

The Boyne housing director supervises Litzenger Place, a 24-unit senior citizen housing development, and Conkle Place, a 16-unit federal housing development.

The East Jordan housing director position administers lakeview Manor, a senior development, and eight single family homes built by the government.

In her new job, Sorenson will be conducting management reviews of local operations similar to those she ran here. "My job is to make sure they are following federal rules and regulations," she said.

'You know it don't come easy'

Every week our Fun & Sun summer section has a theme. This week's subject is entertainment in the area. This column was originally going to be about how crummy the local music scene has become over the past year. A lot of good local musicians have hit the road, frustrated by the lack of a steady audience in the north country.

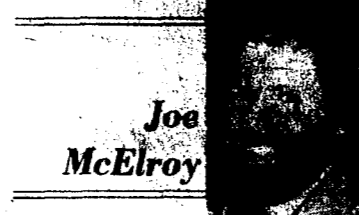

But now I feel better. The one new group we write about this week is an outfit called "Captain Fishhook and his All Night Crawlers." Honest. You might think the name is silly, and you might not ever become a fan of their "country boogie" music, but a visit to their rehearsal satisfied me that serious musicianship is alive and well in Charlevoix County.

The idea was to take a few quick pictures and leave. I stayed two hours. It wasn't all great entertainment, but it was a great behind the scene look at how seemingly spontaneous music comes together.

There's a country song called "White Line Fever." The chorus, which begins with the three words that make up name of the song, is now etched indelibly in my memory after hearing The Crawlers run over it at least thirty times.

It sounded OK at first, but they had to try it about three different ways before they decided who should sing which part of the five-part harmony, which later became a four-part when pedal steel player Joe Gierlach declared, "My part stinks. I won't sing." When they got done, they were almost happy with it, but figured they would have it down by the time they played for real on the weekend.

This is a democratic band, which leads to long discussions. Fortunately, they all respect each other's artistic egos, and phrase their concerns diplomatically.

"Somebody's holding back the tempo. I could feel it last weekend and I ended up getting frustrated and messing up verses and stuff," says one member.

"Well, maybe it's me because I don't know the tune yet," says bass player Tom Walker, who recently joined the band.

"If we start it too slow, let's pick it up," suggests Joe Gierlach. He's quickly voted down.

"I've never played music that way," says drummer Jeff Ballard.

"If it starts slow, you go with it that way," says saxophone player Marty Ward. "Then afterwards you can say 'That was too slow.'"

But all five agree they would rather spend the extra practice time hashing out small differences than goofing up on stage. The Country House, where they presently play, is not exactly Carnegie Hall, and most of the patrons would rather dance than listen close enough to pick out the band's mistakes.

That's enough to keep many bands, and many people, happy. If nobody knows you're doing a half-hearted job, don't worry, you've got it licked.

What's so unfair about the music business is that so many hackers hit the big time, while people who could play rings around them have to struggle to pay the bills.

Some things don't change. Whether it's the music of the Bee Gees, Beatles, Elvis Presley or Glenn Miller that first turned you on, remember that for every star there were 1,000 talented unknowns who helped push the level of their craft upwards.

If music is a reflection of life, then there will always be those to whom "not bad" is good enough. Once in a while, bums like this hit it big, but usually just temporarily. Musicians often have to decide between playing what they love and playing what will sell. The big challenge is to do both at the same time.

Similar challenges face us all.

Plan our economic growth

Growing pains.

Last week's Press carried a story on the apparent slow start in area tourism this year. We also had a story on the Charlevoix County Planning Commission's views on how to insure a stable economic future. It wasn't planned that way, but the two stories made an interesting combination.

The planning commissioners have said for quite some time that the county is too dependent on tourism and needs to broaden its economic base. If the slow tourism trend continues, they may soon be proven right, although we doubt if they will get much satisfaction from it.

Despite the arrival of $1 per gallon gasoline, we think the tourist business will pick up in areas such as Charlevoix County, where most of the visitors come to stay awhile. We're just a tank of gas away from millions of people, potential vacationers who will probably stay closer to home because of threatened gas shortages. Why risk going to the Yellowstone National Park when you can enjoy yourself in Northern Michigan?

So, although few people will totally eliminate their vacations unless gasoline becomes extremely scarce, the present energy situation should give us all plenty to think about. A broader based economy won't make this or any other area recession-proof, but families in a tight financial pinch will almost surely give up recreation money before they will do without basic necessities.

Without meaning to sound alarmist about the county or the country's economic future, the present situation should convince us all that the time has come to pay more attention to reports such as the one recently updated by the Planning Commission.

The role of a planner is usually advisory. They don't force any municipality to do anything. What they have done is try to study and point out the economic facts of life to the rest of us, facts which are being brought closer to home by energy problems.

Any city that sits back and waits for tourists to come up and throw dollars around is asking for big trouble. Our cities have to actively plan their economic futures, always striving for the right mixture of industry, business and tourism. City and Chamber of Commerce officials have to constantly ask themselves what they're doing to keep their towns economically healthy.

The story of the small town that faces a crisis because a large factory closes is all too common. We haven't faced any such shutdowns since Howe's Tannery closed in Boyne City.

But everybody who works in the county shares in the responsibility to keep the economy healthy. Industry is attracted by the comparatively cheap, often non-union labor available up north.

We shouldn't be expected to work for peanuts, and unions are often needed to insure that this doesn't happen, but workers do have a responsibility to do an honest day's work for a day's pay. A good, honest work force is one of our prime attractions to industry.

With some hard work, we can utilize our area's resources, including its people, to keep bread on our tables without destroying our natural resources. It's not an easy challenge, but important goals are seldom easy to attain.

No detours

Have a miserable Fourth

The next time someone says they're going to celebrate the Fourth with a fifth I shall give them an elbow in the right rib. That remark has 40 years of hair on it just waiting for an elbow in the rib - especially if it's my elbow and someone else's rib.

It's not nice to celebrate the Fourth with a fifth in front of a weakling who can no longer join in. It does not mix with the medicine I'm taking. Together they would have me thinking up logical reasons why Saint Peter should suspend the rules and admit a man from Boyne City.

Whiskey takes no detours. It goes straight to the head. It makes one think he can accomplish any deed set before him. I know boozers who are highly adept at straightening out the school board whenever they are sufficiently liquored.

The last time I tipped several night caps during the day I got this strange idea that I could become a newspaper columnist. Everyone can trace their downfall to something.

After excluding cocktails from my diet I experienced a thrilling upfall. My mind became a finely tuned organism.

Marshall Sayles

Today it's computerized to the maximum efficiency of a man syphoning gas from his neighbor's car without spilling a drop.

Everyone in Boyne City knows some hellbender who allowed whiskey to put him on speaking terms with the Devil.

Take my once good buddy. He was a "social drinker" and then gradually became a sot, in spite of the fact that he had so much money he was almost fit to become a politician. One Sunday, when there was no dazzle juice available, I found him in East Jordan trying to use a corkscrew to pull the brandy from a mince pie.

Before returning to Boyne City he had taken advantage of an excellent opportunity to further his misery. The tomfool rounded out his suffering by marrying for the second time. But his "dry" periods were delightful and I marveled at his wit and wisdom. I never forgave him for dying before I got tired of him.

Last summer a normally sober Boyne City man surprised everyone by attacking a fifth on the Fourth. When he crawled out of bed the next morning he said that his head felt as though he had just left a public hearing on the closing of Front Street.

All this rambling is the result of a suggestion for a little something about the evils of drinking during the celebration of our independence. "Tell them to quit drinking and have a safe and sane Fourth."

I agreed, setting up my typewriter and tearing into the subject with both fingers, hoping to work up a hard hitting fire and brimstone piece that would have every bartender in Charlevoix County shaking a fist at me. But along the way I turned chicken. Suppose I were to be beer bottled all the way to Boyne Falls!

That's when I decided to lie about the whole thing.

Letter

Editor, Congratulations on your June 28 issue of The Press.

A job well done

I call that a real paper in every way. It told me much about Boyne City and many of the people I knew there.

I came to Boyne City as a bride in 1910 and lived there for 61 years. I loved the town and the people in it and was quite active in it for a number of years.

I moved from there to Boston, where I lived for several years but am now back in Michigan in a small town called Milford, where I expect to spend the rest of my time.

Congratulations again, and very best wishes.

Mrs. Cecil M. Ormsby Green Milford

SURVEY QUESTION:

Do you think military men and women are paid enough?????

No: My daughter is in the military and she gets barely enough to survive.

No: I don't have any idea what their salaries are but if I knew it probably wouldn't be enough.

Yes: The officers get paid way too much and the enlisted man does all the work and gets paid way too little.

No: My husband was in the Navy for four years and we were the poorest we've ever been. Now he works at the foundry and makes more money.

Yes: The young kids going in make triple of what I did in the second world war and I was in for six years.

No: Being a military wife and having to make out a tight budget that we can hardly meet, I think they should make as much as their work is worth. If they work 24 hours in one day and 16 hours the next and still get the same 400.00 a month at times it averages out to 25 cents an hour. It doesn't seem fair when they are here to protect our country.

No: My husband retired out of the Army and we don't just live on the retirement. We both have jobs. The retirement pays for the rent and car and that's it.

At least one good thing is everyone who first goes in gets paid equal. The men and women aren't separated in their pay scale.

Yes: They get a lot more benefits than I do.

O'Flynn's moving

Fond farewell

Ozzie and Helen O'Flynn have received so many nice goodbyes that they might have to change their minds about moving to Detroit.

First, the Knights of Columbus, Boyne Valley Council, held a potluck dinner June 26 in honor of Ozzie's many years of service. Ozzie was presented a plaque at the well-attended event at the St. Joseph Parish Hall, East Jordan.

They were honored the very next evening at a dinner party hosted by the Don Dunashi's. And immediately afterward, they were treated to a surprise going away party at the home of Bill and Linda Christensen. There they received a number of gifts, including an autographed banner saying "Thanks for the Memories." Best wishes, Ozzie and Helen!

12 businesses are interested in downtown renovation plans

BY JOE McELROY

BOYNE CITY - At least 12 businesses might participate in the proposed downtown renovation project.

The two-part program offers tax breaks and possible low interest loans for commercial or industrial improvements. New construction would also be included.

The 12 are: Kaden's, Schafer's, F.O. Barden & Son Lumber, E & M Standard, Great Lakes Energy Systems, Gil Coon's Furniture, Bogema's Pharmacy, Rover's Return Bar, the Boyne River Inn, the Dilworth, Keith Dressel Realty, and a building at 116 E. Water Street recently bought by Judy Kostin.

But the degree of interest varies. Some, such as recent fire victim Aldwyn Barden, are enthusiastic and can't wait for the program to start. Others want to consider it further before making any decision.

"We're committed right now, period," Harden said at a meeting called last Thursday by the city and the downtown businessmen who are spearheading the program.

Lee Ekstrom, who owns the former Grey's Market, now housing Great Lakes Energy Systems, expresses similar enthusiasm. "I don't want to wait," he said.

"I'm ready to go on my building; I have it out for bids. I think those who are ready should be able to get going on it."

Merchants and homeowners are often reluctant to improve their property because it raises their property values and therefore their taxes. The city last summer began encouraging businessmen to take advantage of a new state law which would cut those tax hikes in half for several years.

But the program attracted little interest because many businessmen lack the upfront capital needed for extensive renovation. So the city and downtown merchants are now proposing an additional incentive, low interest bank loans.

Both First National and Northwestern State Bank were asked to participate in the program, but First National appears more interested.

"We're prepared to absorb some moderate losses," said Steve Woodcock of First National. He wouldn't commit the bank to a specific rate, but said, "We could give a good rate right now."

Chuck McDowell of Northwestern said his bank is interested in loaning money to merchants who want to improve their stores, "if it was handled as any other commercial loan."

"The terms and conditions are going to vary from one borrower to another," he said.

Gaylord has had an extensive downtown facelift and McDowell said Northwestern consulted the bank there. "They treated each loan request just like any other commercial loan," he said. McDowell said a businessman's attempt to improve the downtown area by remodeling would be one factor considered in a loan application.

The banks won't quote a specific rate until they know how much money is involved. If not enough businesses participate, there is little point in the banks giving special deals. But if too many participate, the rates might go higher, since no bank wants to loan out much money at a loss.

Approximately 20 businessmen were on hand for the renovation meeting last week. "I think everybody at times thinks about doing something with his building," said Don Toffolo of Kadens. "Now we're just trying to provide an opportunity for us all to do it together."

Realtor Martin Bieganowski said, "Some of us were going to do something with our businesses anyway. This might just help it along."

The businessmen who are spearheading the project stressed that they aren't interested in a dominant theme, such as Gaylord's Alpine look.

"I think what we're talking about is looking at a building and preserving what's there, not ripping up the front to re-do it," Gary Schafer said.

Don Toffolo said, "We might all go in a similar direction, so it helps each and every one of us."

The city recently hired the Ann Arbor firm of Johnson, Johnson & Roy to do a comprehensive master plan for the city.

As part of their work, the planners have offered to draw up a sketch proposal of what the downtown could look like.

"They may come out and give you some ideas, rather than tell you what to do," Bieganowski said.

City Manager Tim Clifton is now contacting the interested businesses individually to get a "ballpark figure" of how much money might be involved. Initial estimates are in the $500,000 - 1 million range.

Chamber supports idea

BOYNE CITY - The Chamber of Commerce has officially endorsed the renovation project proposed for the downtown area. The chamber favors renovation which would accent the city's history, such as the logging and railroad eras.

"We feel this is in the best interests of the community," said Mac McNichol, chamber president. "We're not advocating a Gaylord look. We're talking about conserving what we have. Half of the downtown is still older buildings."

McNichol said the chamber will provide assistance to merchants who want to improve their property. "If you should decide to do something, we'll have a committee that will aid you," he said. He said the committee would help businessmen arrange financing, architectural drawings and explain the renovation program presently being proposed by the city and a group of downtown businessmen.

Strike possible

School negotiations deadlocked

BY JOE McELROY

BOYNE CITY - The Board of Education and its newly unionized non-instructional staff (bus drivers, cooks, custodians and secretaries) have made little progress in their negotiations for a contract for the recently completed school year.

It's not uncommon for school employees to work an entire year without a contract, but both sides report disagreements which could eventually lead to a strike.

Asked if a strike was likely, school board negotiator Don Aho said, "There may be. I would not rule that possibility out. We're not even close to a settlement."

Aho is employed by the Michigan Association of School Boards, which provides member schools such as Boyne City with professional labor negotiators. He said one reason a strike is possible is the presence of Kay Habitz, who is representing the school employees, now aligned with the Michigan Educational Support Personnel Association in Cadillac.

"Her groups have traditionally struck," said Aho, pointing to a recent strike in Kalkaska, where Habitz represented the non-instructional employees. The Kalkaska strike didn't close the school, but curtailed attendance 30-40 percent.

"If there's a strike, it won't be because of Kay," said Verlin Thompson, a high school custodian who heads the employee union. "It will be because of their unreasonableness. They're forcing our hand."

Thompson and Habitz say the school district is trying to break the union before it ever gets off the ground. "We're going to get a contract from them one way or another," Thompson said.

"A strike is not our idea. It's something they might force us into by not negotiating." He said Aho abruptly ended last week's bargaining session while the union wanted to negotiate more. The two sides had agreed on a clause in the contract officially recognizing the union.

"We certainly don't want a strike," Thompson said. "You don't make any money that way. But it seems like they're just backing us into a corner."

Aho predicted that if a strike does come, it won't be until school starts next fall, because most of the 40 employees are now off for the summer.

Union leaders have complained that the district is seeking to take away some fringe benefits previously enjoyed by the staff. Aho agreed that this is true in one case, regarding sick days.

"We're trying to put some restrictions on some of the fringe benefits they had before the union came in," he said.

The employees can now accumulate an unlimited amount of sick days. Aho said this could become too expensive for the district.

"We want to put a cap on someplace," he said. Aho said the union is also seeking binding arbitration, when necessary, on future contract. Arbitration has produced significant benefits for labor in the past.

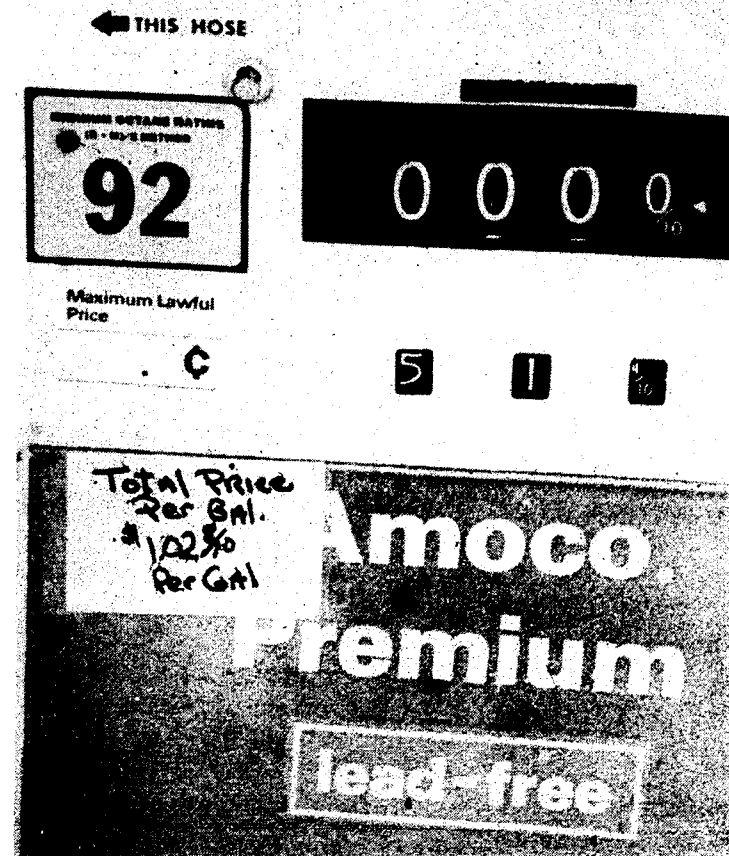

"They're trying to get things that restrict the management of the district," Aho said. "They're contending they want everything the teachers have, but the teachers don't have that."

"That's true," Thompson says, "but that's not a real far out thing. A lot of districts have that."

Regarding sick days, Aho said it's possible an employee could store up a large amount of sick days and then take an extended, paid vacation. But Thompson said, "Nobody has ever done that. We all have a lot of sick days, which indicates we haven't misused them."

The two sides haven't started negotiating salaries yet, but their initial positions are very far apart. Thompson said custodians start at $4 an hour with a salary ceiling of $4.75.

"They want a 20 percent increase," Aho said. "There's no way the tax-

It had to happen sooner or later. $1 per gallon gasoline has made its appearance in Charlevoix County. As the sign at E & M Standard explains, the price shown here is for half a gallon. Only non-leaded premium has cracked the dollar mark, but other stations aren't far behind. Despite rapidly rising prices, service station owners say their profits have actually diminished because of smaller fuel allocations.

Bank staff switches

Prebble to Petoskey

BOYNE CITY - Several important staff changes at Northwestern State Bank have been announced by Charles McDowell, chairman of the board and the bank's chief executive officer.

Bob Prebble, 40, has been named manager of the bank's new Petoskey branch office, scheduled to open July 23 on U.S. 131 South of Petoskey. Prebble formerly was manager of the Boyne City office.

The new Boyne City office manager is John Cutler, 42, who came to the bank last year from Trenton. He has been assistant manager of the Boyne City are more absurd than ours, that's for sure."

School Superintendent Rich Kelly, who sits in on the bargaining sessions, declined to comment on the negotiations, referring questions to Aho.

Negotiations will continue July 12-13.

Schools lose $15,000; It could have been worse

BOYNE CITY - School Superintendent Rich Kelly found his district almost $15,000 poorer last week, but decided to look at the bright side.

"It could have been worse," Kelly said after determining that the new Headlee Amendment will force the school system to roll back its allocated millage from 9.1 to 8.5 mills. That adds up to approximately $14,700.

For months, school officials all over the state have been waiting to find out how the legislature would interpret the Headlee Amendment, which limits the state's power to raise taxes to a corresponding growth in the economy.

Now they have the answer. "At least it wasn't a rollback of our total millage," Kelly said. "That would have been three times as bad."

The schools are funded voted millage, approved by taxpayers, and allocated millage from the county, as well as state aid.

The legislature hasn't approved a school state aid package yet, so Kelly doesn't know how much funding the Boyne City district will receive. Until he finds out, he can't decide what to do about the $15,000 taken away by Headlee.

"I don't have an answer yet," he said. "When the state aid is finalized, I'm going to re-do the whole budget and then I'll see where we stand."

The Young Americans "play catch."

Talent Young Americans overflowing with it

BY DIANNE MURRAY

Their talent leaps off the stage. The expressions are electrifying. The singing powerful, yet sweet. It's the American Music Theatre's group, The Young Americans. You have no excuse for not going to see the work of this skillful group of performers. Their opening show, "A Salute to Richard Rogers," is July 3rd and runs until July 8th at the Petoskey High School. This will mark the beginning of their fifth season in Petoskey and the members guarantee it to be better than any previous season. Other performances of the American Music Theatre's schedule include "Guys and Dolls," July 10 to 15 and returns for performances July 31 and August 1 and 2; "Gypsy," July 17 to 23 and August 3, 4, and 5; "Fiddler on the Roof," July 24 through 29 and August 7, 8, and 9. The veterans of the Young Americans will return August 11th-19th for an all-new variety show called, "An Evening with the Young Americans." The performance will be a combination of musical numbers of old and new. The 150 members, ages fifteen to twenty-one, audition for parts in the Young Americans while the American Music Theatre is on the road throughout the year. Of the 3,000 kids that audition for parts throughout the year, only 130 are picked to join. Carey Ford, publicity director, said in order to try out, you should be able to dance, sing and read a script. "For a lot of these kids it is just a hobby. But for others it fulfills a lot of dreams in their hearts. It's something that many have always wanted to do," she said. Milton Anderson, founder, director and producer of the group, started the Young Americans in 1962. Thirteen years later he founded the American Music Theatre. Anderson's goal when founding the Young Americans was "to have the finest of the young talent in the nation together to perform under one roof." The American Music Theatre performers receive credit through North

Country boogie

"Captain Fishhook and His All Night Crawlers," from left to right: John Povo, electric guitar; Joe Gierlach, pedal steel and acoustic guitar; Marty Ward, saxophone, clarinet, and flute; Tom Walker, bass guitar; and Jeff Ballard, drums.

Whether your tastes in music run to country, rock, boogie or swing, Captain Fishhook and His Night Crawlers is the band that will please your ears.

You wouldn't know from listening to them that they've all been together for only two weeks. They are already becoming known as the hottest new item on the local music scene.

"We've been pushing to get ourselves known. As a band we know a lot of different people and they've been spreading our name around," said Joe Gierlach of Boyne City, spokesman and guitarist for the group.

So what's it like to be a Northern Michigan band going straight to starlight? "Oh, we want to make it big," Gierlach said. "We want to move up the economic ladder of success. Anybody can sit around their living room and play until they die but we want to be recognized and make some money out of this venture."

The group members are: Marty Ward from Boyne City, who plays saxophone, clarinet and flute; Joe Gierlach on acoustic guitar and pedal steel guitar; Tom Walker, from Traverse City, bass guitar; Jeff Ballard from Harbor Springs, drums; and John Povo, from Boyne Falls, electric guitar. They all sing.

All members have at least ten years of musical experience behind them. Gierlach said they blend together smoothly for not knowing one another or ever performing together before.

"When we first got together for a practice it was really excellent. Good vibes. No selfishness, no egos in the way. We don't go with any gimmicks, but let each unique personality shine through," Gierlach said.

The band practices almost every night. The practice consists of going over some of their songs to improve them in any way they can. "All criticism that comes out of the practice is taken very well. We do it to help each other, not to put down anyone," Walker said.

As a band, their goals are "to be good, to be tight. The better we are and the better we present ourselves, the faster we'll move up the economic ladder of success," Gierlach said.

Gierlach said it takes a certain degree of experience and confidence to make it through their first two songs.

"Sure, we're nervous when we perform, but the nervousness is a result of wanting to do so well. If we weren't nervous we probably wouldn't be any good," he said.

What every group of musicians has to do is find a common music road, which is what the band is doing now.

The band presently playing at the Country House in East Jordan and getting offers to play other places, would like to play larger cities.

"We'd like to be a northern based band and live here in the summer but play around Lansing and Detroit in the winter," Ballard said.

The group's music is hard to categorize because the members come from a wide range of musical backgrounds. Sax player Ward, for example, has a strong jazz background and is a student at Berklee School of Music in Boston.

Gierlach, on the other hand, comes from a strong country background. A native of Kentucky, he has been playing country music for 20 years.

Since no one person musically dominates the group's rehearsals, the result is a sound that can best be categorized as "country boogie." They like to make people dance but also offer enough musical sophistication to satisfy those who would rather sit and listen.

"Sometimes we find it hard to believe that we're that good and that we're the reason the people are in the bar," Walker said.

As far as the group is concerned, they have no competition from anyone in the area.

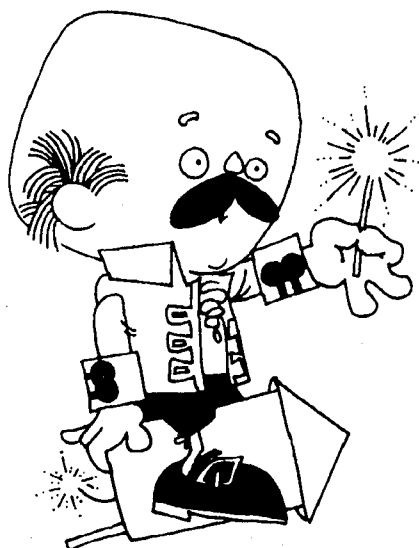

"One thing we regret about the North is that there is little local competition. There are good people and musicians up here but they're only weekend players. As a result, much of their music is sloppy," Gierlach said.

The group, which Ballard described as "full of energy and enthusiasm" is one to be watched. With the talent they have with their instruments and the harmony that blends from their voices, they can be sure to go a long way.

As their motto goes: "The early bird catches the worm, but the late bird catches the night crawler." Be sure you're one of those late birds and don't miss their performances weekends at the Country House between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m.

Young Americans

Central Michigan College for their summer's work and are given a try out at the end of the season to join the more select group, the Young Americans. Ms. Ford said that although they are not paid a salary, they get something much more valuable: experience.

The performers take classes at North Central Michigan College. They are given a broad knowledge of theatrical art. The classes range from personal relations to how to sew a seam on a costume. They also board at the college.

"We're like one happy family on and off stage," Ms. Ford said. This is quite recognizable because you can see the genuine smiles and applause they give one another on and off stage. Helping hands are always there when a performer needs help lacing up shoes or zipping up a stuck zipper.

On off stage there is always singing and dancing. Ms. Ford said that this year, more than ever before, the greatest amount of talent is in the singing and dancing areas.

Tickets for all performances are $6 a seat. All shows are at the Petoskey High School auditorium. Reserved seats are advised. For reservations or further information call (616) 347-1333.

In addition to the musicals at the high school, fourteen veteran members of the Young Americans can be seen in dinner theatre performances at Boyne Highland's Supper Club beginning July 10th and continuing through August 25th from 6:30 to 12:30 p.m. Tickets are $20 per person. Call 347-1333 for ticket information.

Realtors say market is holding up

By Joe McElroy

Although the threat of gasoline shortages concerns them, Charlevoix County realtors remain confident that they have a product well worth selling, and say business is good.

"We're much busier right now than we were a year ago," says Arthur Poineau of Colwell & Company Realty in Boyne City. "Our business started strong this year and has kept right on going."

"People still want to get the heck out of the city."

Walt Thorsen of Colwell's East Jordan office says, "I would think it's a little bit under last year, but still holding steady. There's been quite a bit of activity."

"Younger people are moving up into better homes, which is a good sign. Their wages have been pretty good the last few years and they're investing them in bigger homes."

The county real estate market is up approximately 10 percent over a year ago, according to Don Berlege, a Charlevoix attorney who owns Northern Michigan Abstract and Title Company. Berlege publishes a monthly newsletter on real estate activity for area realtors.

"There's a constant increase in (deed and mortgage) recordings and dollar volume," he says. But Berlege cautions that the 10 percent increase is partially caused by double digit annual inflation, so he describes the market as "holding up. It's about the same as a year ago."

He said high interest rates and lack of mortgage money are causing more people to buy on land contracts, which usually require smaller down payments.

Berlege said business is, especially good in the Boyne City area. "Boyne City has the highest level of activity," he said. "They're experiencing the rapid growth that Charlevoix has previously experienced. It's just their turn to grow."

Lew Hunt of John Buick Real Estate in Boyne City says he thinks business will be good as long as gas is available, no matter how high the price. "People plan all year for their one or two week vacation," he said.

"They're not going to give that up just because the price has gotten higher. As long as there are adequate supplies of gas, people will come north.

But areas that depend on the traveling tourists, those who keep going, are going to be hurt."

"If there isn't any gas available, real estate will nosedive. I think property values will hold, but there won't be as much trading."

Don Berlege says it's too early to tell how much effect the gas situation will have on Northern Michigan real estate.

"It may not have had time yet to demonstrate its full effect," he said. "But the big buying season is coming up now."

"We can probably exist on residential sales," says Hunt. "We're dependent on you and the guy who works at Courter's and wants to buy a house."

Most area realtors agree that there is also a market for what Hunt calls the "big ticket items," lakefront homes in the $100,000 and up range.

"Lake property is very scarce," says Walt Thorsen. "We have a lot more customers than sellers."

"We're selling homes between $100,000 - $200,000," said Frenchy Poineau. "The market has been much better for the more expensive homes this year than it was a year ago."

Dorian Adgate of Adgate Realty says much of his business has been in recreational property and says business is good despite some worries about gasoline problems.

"We're getting concerns from some people because of this energy situation," he said, "but it hasn't been reflected in sales yet."

Poineau says people are having trouble trying to sell medium priced homes, those in the $50,000-$75,000 range. "That's too expensive for the little guy but not enough house for the guy with really big money," he said.

"It makes it a little difficult for the medium-priced guy to sell his house."

"But on the whole, I'm optimistic about the area. I always have been."

"Sold" signs like this one in Boyne City are a common sight in Northern Michigan, even though some customers have expressed concern over gasoline supplies. The market in "big ticket items" along lakeshores is especially crowded, as realtors report more potential customers than sellers.

Camp Michigania

Where U of M alums relax

Leather crafts are one of many activities available at Camp Michigania.

On your travels between Boyne City and Charlevoix, if you think you're going crazy because you hear "Go maize, go blue!" don't worry. Back off Camp Sherwood Road is the University of Michigan campground, Camp Michigania.

Camp Michigania - Walloon is owned and operated by the Alumni Association of the University of Michigan, for use by Michigan alumni and their families.

Before the Alumni Association bought the camp in 1963, it was Camp Huntington-Sherwood, a children's camp.

The campground is located on the west corner of Walloon Lake. At the direct far opposite end of the lake you can see Walloon Village. With over a mile of lake frontage, the campground includes both water and woods in a nice combination of ruggedness and sedentary.

The camp is set up for families to stay for one week.

Glen Williams, assistant director of the camp, said there is a twenty meal contract from Saturday afternoon of one week to Saturday morning the following week.

"That only gives us three hours to clean up before the next group of families comes in," he said.

The camp can accommodate sixty-six families. When filled to capacity the camp holds about 360 Michigan alumni and their families.

"I'd like to consider this camp a 'mother's camp.' If you think of a normal Northern Michigan campground you think of Dad and the kids running off somewhere and mom gets stuck back at the camp cooking and cleaning with even more primitive facilities than she's use to. But here we have someone else to cook. There are two nurseries where the kids are taken care of for five hours out of the day, Williams said.

The camp offers plenty of activities for children. It's a wonderful playground for kids, offering horses, archery, swimming, arts and crafts, field sports, a nature program and rifling for those a little older.

There are different activities for different age groups. They range from competitive to non-competitive, from individual to group, and from instructional to recreational.

"The parents are separated from their children, and siblings are separated from each other so that they can get a break from each other but also so that new friends will be made. It seems to work out well," Williams said.

In the afternoon the activities are open. Each person has the choice of whatever they want to do. Some go out riding on the twenty horses available, or take a lesson to improve their riding abilities. Others will grab a book and head down to the warm sand to lie and bask in the sun. The more adventurous will head out to the rifle range, which is always watched by a National Rifle Association instructor. There are fifteen sail boats, and a couple of canoes that can be taken out on Walloon Lake.

"Everything is paid in their fees. It costs them (campers) a smile to check out a frisbee, tennis racket, or the younger kids will come in a check out a rubber ball to play with," Williams said.

Camp Michigania - Walloon is one of four camps offered to Michigan alumni.

In 1970 Camp Michigania - West in the High Sierra's of California was established. Two years later a Swiss Camp in Montana, Switzerland was started with fifteen-day programs combining camping and touring.

The fourth alumni family camp, Camp Michigania - East, opened in 1973 on Brant Lake in the Adirondacks of upstate New York.

If you're a Michigan alumni looking for an ideal place to spend a vacation, Camp Michigania - Walloon is the place to go.

The clocks are set back one hour. They do not go by Daylight Savings Time but stick to Eastern Standard Time because "That way when it's 10 p.m. on E.S.T., it will be dark and children will feel like going to sleep. Also if we tell the parents we're holding a seminar from 10 to 12 p.m., after a full day of crafts and sailing, they are going to say no way! So when we change the time, we really gain an hour," Williams said.

Also at the campground each activity starts fifteen minutes after it is advertised to start. Assistant director Williams said this is because people are on vacation and why should they have to punch a clock?

"If dinner is at 6 it will really begin at 6:15. Everybody knows this, but seems to work out well because on vacation nobody likes to be rushed for time," he said.

Although the night is not ended by "Hail to Michigan" you can definitely tell these are Michigan fans camping. The blue and gold beach towels, hats and tee-shirts are worn by most members of the campground.

You don't have to be a Michigan student to be on the staff. The staff seemed to be having most of the fun. They get to participate in all the activities because they have to be very versatile and able to teach all age groups at all activities. "The pay isn't the best but it's a beautiful way to spend the summer," one staff member said.

"Our staff members have to be able to teach every age group. They should also know how to teach a couple dif-

Summer—it's dinner theatre time

If it's summer entertainment you're looking for, Northern Michigan has it! Whether it be a night out on the town with dinner and a play or if you're just interested in seeing some good acting, the choices are plentiful.

The Boyne City Lakeside Players will perform the play, "The Hostage," by the Irish playwright, Brendan Behan.

This tragic-comedy play takes two serious concepts, prostitution and murder, and treats them lightly. The question the play asks is which is the most perverse act?

The play opens July 18 and runs every Wednesday and Sunday night until August 5.

This is the third production for the Lakeside Players, with new members added on every year. They are always looking for new "stars" so if you're interested in making your debut, contact Mike Davis or Gary Peltier at the Dilworth.

The dinner theatre will be run differently for this production. Tickets for the performance will be $3 and the choice of dinner items will be off the regular Dilworth menu. The option of just coming to watch the performance or to come out and have dinner is up to the guest.

Dinner will be served between 5 and 7:30 p.m. and show will start promptly at 8 p.m.

The Dilworth is located at 300 Water Street in downtown Boyne City. For further information or for reservations, call 582-6763.

New this summer at the Boyne Theatre will be the Meadow Brook Estates' production of a Musical Variety Show. The performers are sixteen Oakland University students and doing a cross-section of all types of American music. It will be a little bit of something for everyone.

Tickets for the 7 and 10 p.m. shows July 10th are $2 for those eleven years old and under and $3 for those 12 years old and older. Call (616) 582-6801 to purchase tickets or with any questions. The theatre is located at 216 South Lake Street, Boyne City.

The Grey Gables Inn, 308 Belvedere, Charlevoix, will be presenting "I Do! I Do!" performed by members of the Theatre of the Arts Production. The play opens July 23 and runs until July 15.

The play is a musical about the trials and tribulations of marriage. The performers take the audience through the growth of a married couple from the day of marriage through middle age, retirement, and old age.

Tickets are $16.96 per person and include dinner selections of pork chops, whitefish, a vegetable plate or prime rib. Dinner is served between 7 and 9:30 p.m.

"It will be the top of the line food and entertainment for the summer," Dave Phillips, manager of the Grey Gable said.

Also at the Grey Gables this summer will be William Gibson's "Two for the Seesaw," starting July 19 and running until August 12; and the madcap comedy, "Good Evening," between August 16 and September 2. Pat Paulsen's Cherry Country Playhouse in Traverse City will be presenting four different plays this summer.

Starting June 26 and running until July 1 is Jack Carter in the world premier of "Silver Anniversary," comedy.

Karen Valentine will be starring in William Gibson's play "Two for the Seesaw." This play about a girl from the Bronx who falls in love with a man from the west side of New York runs from July 3 to 13.

Bob Fisher and Marthur Marx's play, "Impossible Years," will star Ted Knight and run from July 17 to 22.

Niel Simon's comedy, "California Suite," from July 24 to August 5 will star Pat Paulsen.

Show times for the evening performances are Tuesday through Friday at 8:30, Saturday at 6 and 9:45 p.m. and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Seats are $6.75 and $5.75.

Tickets for Thursday's 2 p.m. matinee are $5.25 and $4.25, and can be purchased at the playhouse.

The playhouse is located off Park Place Hotel on State Street in downtown Traverse City. The house accommodates 729 people. A bar, restaurant and parking is available for their guests.

The Boyne Highland's Supper Club will be presenting fourteen veteran members of the Young Americans in a variety show between July 10 and August 25.

The performers will serve dinner and drinks and then jump on stage and start Act I. During intermissions they will refresh cocktails. It's a very close relationship between performer and audience.

Tickets are $20 per person and include hors d'oeuvres, dinner and the show.

Advance reservations are urged because seating is limited to 200 and a sellout is expected. To make reservations, call the ticket office at 347-1333.

Andy Robinson and Jamie Bradley portray homosexuals in the Lakeside Players play, "The Hostage," starting July 18 at the Dilworth in Boyne City.

ferent activities so we can move them around the camp a bit." Williams said.

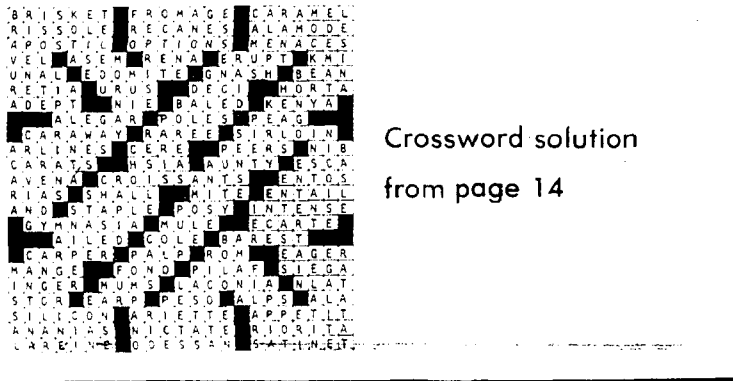

The families stay in cottages usually shared with another family. The cottages have separate bedrooms and washroom facilities. The campers don't mind having to share a cottage. "It made us get to know another family a little more than if we were just in the same activities together," one Michigan alumni said.

Reservations should be made in advance to assure a space for your family. The campground does get booked each summer.

Springs

Take some of Northern Michigan's most talented acoustic guitar players and song arrangers, add a hot rhythm section and piano player, and what do you have? We're not sure yet, but fans of the folk group Silver Springs will see a totally new look when they see the band perform at the Harbour Inn. The name has been changed to Springs and three new members have been added. Band members say they still feature the harmonies that made them well known, but there will be more of a rock & roll emphasis, especially later in the evening. Pictured above from right to left are Bob Bowne, David Barrett, Dean Mann, Peter Chinnock, Tom Tarzon and Herb Glann. The band will play Wednesdays through Saturdays. The Harbour Inn is off M-31 between Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

Our favored Cole-Hann classic penny loafer and tassel slip-on. Both feature genuine hand sewn construction with full leather soles and heels.
