Business people hope downtown fix up catches on

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN - A handful of business people here are still plugging away at their downtown renovation project.

Eight or 10 business owners are planning to remodel their storefronts along an old-fashioned theme, and those owners hope their efforts will snowball.

With the help of a $1,000 donation from the Chamber of Commerce, a renovation committee has hired an architect to draw plans to spruce up sidewalks and other public areas.

Architect Nick White will show his final plans for small parks, planters, benches, old-fashioned street lamps and a gazebo at a renovation committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 2 at City Hall.

All area business people are encouraged to attend the meeting.

Renovation committee member Duane Chappuies says that at times it is frustrating because his committee would like to make changes quickly. "But things like this take time," he said. "We didn't expect to get much done this summer."

Chappuies owns Jordan Valley Pharmacy, which he remodeled when he bought it about a year ago. All of the other businesses in his block, the east side of the 100 block of Main Street, are planning to remodel.

"If we can get a string of stores done, that will give others an indication of how things could look," Chappuies said. "I think we'll be at least moderately successful if we keep plugging away at it."

The renovation committee is also working with local artist Hazel Colburn, who is helping some business owners with storefront remodeling. "I'm not an architect," she says, "but I did some research on how buildings looked around the time our downtown stores were built."

Most of the stores don't need drastic structural changes, so Colburn is making suggestions about how minor changes can be made to enhance what is already there.

"I'm working with colors that were popular in that period -- subtle colors like Federal blues, buff colors and golds."

"Through the years, things have been changed and modernized, and a lot of the nicer aspects of some buildings go unnoticed, because they aren't enhanced. Many times, a little trim here and there, and a new door can enhance and retain the old-time look."

Like Chappuies, Colburn says, "It's not all going to happen at once. Some people are waiting to see what others do. There is enough enthusiasm in the business district, but understandably, some people are unable to put out a lot of money right away."

Chappuies reminds area business owners that low interest Housing and Urban Development loans are available and that redevelopment tax breaks are also available. He can provide details to anyone interested.

Do-it-yourself lawsuits popular for small claims

BY DIANNE MURRAY

More and more people are finding they can act as their own lawyer in the Small Claims Division of District Court and present their case better and cheaper than if they hired a lawyer.

The bulk of the cases in small claims court are by people unsatisfied with the quality of a product they have bought or by business suing customers for not paying bills.

Every other Tuesday, 90th District Court Judge David Fershee presides over four or five small claims cases in the county building in Charlevoix or Petoskey. Small claims cases are limited to those in which one sues to recover $600 or less.

Judge Fershee said no one can be sent to jail for any loss in small claims. Money can be issued or exchanged between the people involved in the case.

When the person suing, called the Plaintiff, decides he wants his case tried in the Small Claims Division, he gives up the right to an attorney, the right to an appeal and the right to a jury trial. Defendants cannot be represented by attorneys, either.

Gregory G. Justis, an attorney from Legal Services of Northern Michigan, said people are acting on their own behalf and bringing forth lawsuits they never would have before because the court system is loosening up. People can now understand what it takes to bring a case to court, he said.

"The court system is moving in the direction of educating people to represent themselves. More and more (law) documents and pleas are written in plain language so the layman can understand them," he said.

Legal Services represents people in Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties who can not afford lawyers. Justis said he often recommends that people represent themselves. It may be harder, he said, but it is a good educational experience and if the case doesn't involve too much money, it is sometimes more expensive to hire a lawyer than it is worth.

There are many steps a person should follow before his day in small claims court.

HOW TO START A LAWSUIT

Before you start your lawsuit, you have to first determine who the liable party is; that is exactly who "damaged" you.

It is possible for a person to sue a corporation because it is legally a "person" just like anyone else and has to be responsible for its business activities. Most businesses have "assumed name" or co-partnership statements on file with the County Clerk. These statements tell you the owners of a business.

After deciding who you will sue, you should go to District Court and ask the clerk for an "Affidavit of Claim" form.

The purpose of this form is to inform the person you are suing, the defendant, the reason for the lawsuit and to set the amount claimed.

From the date of the notice, the court will take 15 to 30 days to schedule your appearance in court.

The defendant is notified of the lawsuit either by personal service or certified mail.

WHAT DOES IT COST?

The charge for filing the suit is $5 plus $2 for each defendant to whom a copy of the Affidavit of Claim is mailed. The judge's decision costs $1.

If the plaintiff wins his case, the costs he has already paid out are assessed against the defendant. If the plaintiff has subpoenaed witnesses, the general fee of $6 for one-half day or $12 for a full day, plus 10 cents per mile to and from the court from the witness' home are added to the court costs.

If the judge enters a judgment of "no cause of action," which means the plaintiff has lost, the court would then assess all costs against the plaintiff.

If you can not afford to pay the court costs, according to a Michigan Supreme Court ruling, all fees and costs can be suspended.

HOW TO PREPARE

According to attorneys and judges, preparation is the most important and most difficult part of the trial.

Judge Fershee has these tips to follow when preparing for your day in court:

"The most important thing a person defending himself can have going for him is to come to court prepared. Write down your version of the case before you get to court so you don't forget something during the trial.

"People are nervous when they have to talk in court but if they have written down the chronological sequence of how the events happened, then when I ask them a question or they have to refer back to a fact they have the information right before them," he said.

During this process if you find anything which relates to your case, whether it be papers, books, records, receipts, orders, cancelled checks, contracts, agreements, pictures or anything that will help in presenting your case to the judge, be sure to bring them all with you.

Judge Fershee said he does not mind if the plaintiff brings the damaged material he is suing over into the courtroom. "I've gone out into the parking lot to look at damaged vehicles before," he said. "It doesn't do any good if you get to court and realize the evidence you need is left at home."

The next step is to list all witnesses and see that they are properly subpoenaed so they will show up in court. Outline your case, listing all the points you want to cover. Also write down a few questions you want to ask each witness.

Finally, try to anticipate what the "other side" will say and be prepared to answer those questions. Judge Fershee suggests if you have time, do a little investigation.

THE TRIAL

Since the law stipulates that the hearing is informal, it might be conducted in the courtroom, the judge's office or in some other room in the courthouse. All witnesses must be sworn in before testifying. This includes the plaintiff and defendant.

The plaintiff presents his case first. He is entitled to an opening statement, then he presents his evidence. After the defendant has made his opening statement and presents his evidence, each side is allowed closing statements.

After all evidence is presented the judge summarizes the evidence, asks each side any questions he may have, and then passes judgment.

WHAT IS A JUDGMENT?

A judgment is the court's decision upon the rights and claims of the parties to the suit which they argued and submitted for determination.

The judge may request the payment be paid in a lump sum or in installments.

The plaintiff should realize that when he starts a lawsuit he may not win. Even if he does, he may not be able to collect anything from the defendant.

As the saying goes, Judge Fershee says, "One cannot get blood out of a turnip, and if someone can not afford the judgment fee or court costs it is impossible to make them pay."

HOW TO COLLECT

A judgment does not mean automatic payment. It is only a statement by the court that one of the parties has certain rights and now there is a piece of paper in the court's file saying what those rights are.

The most common way of forcing a defendant to pay is to garnish or withhold some part of the person's wages. To go about this, the party holding the judgment must apply to the court for a "writ of garnishment."

A bank account is the next source of money or property which some third party may owe. The same affidavit is filed and the writ is issued and served on a bank.

"This is one disappointing part about being a judge. People think just because you serve the judgment in their favor they will automatically collect. I have nothing to do with getting any money collected," Judge Fershee said.

Though the process may seem complicated, any assistance you may need can be obtained by asking a lawyer for guidance.

Judge Fershee said he tries to help people during the trial but there's only so much he can do with out actually representing someone in a case.

"There's a fine line between giving guidance and representation by the court. We are supposed to be unbiased and impartial, so if I give too much help people think I'm prejudiced for or against a certain party."

Gas prices change shoppers' habits

BY DIANNE MURRAY

The high cost of gasoline is actually helping some businesses in Boyne City and East Jordan, because more people seem to be shopping locally.

Some stores in Boyne City and East Jordan, those which do not heavily depend on tourists, are enjoying a surprising increase in business.

Why? Because people from their own towns are staying close to home to do their shopping, rather than driving to Petoskey or Traverse City.

There are some indications from Petoskey and Traverse City merchants that the high cost of gasoline has hurt their business from surrounding towns.

"There has definitely been a change in buying habits," one Petoskey store owner said.

Carol Tighe, owner of the EJ Shop, a family sportswear store in East Jordan, thinks the increased gas prices are giving a big boost to her business.

She said her sales this June were nearly double that of June, 1978. Mrs. Tighe said the big increase in business came mostly from local residents who are finding it is getting expensive to drive nearly 30 miles to Petoskey or 50 miles to Traverse City one-way.

Mrs. Tighe thinks her prices are competitive with those in bigger cities, but East Jordan residents like to drive to such places "just to get out of town for a while," she said. With gas prices nearing a dollar a gallon, people seem to be cutting down on the number of long trips, she added.

Glen's Market in East Jordan keeps strict tabs on the number of people passing through its cash register lines. Assistant manager Rob Westfall said, "Our customer count is up 100 people per week in our store. That's about 5,000 additional customers per year. Due to this, our sales are up about eight percent this year," he said.

The residents of East Jordan are getting more and more offered to them at their doorstep so they won't need to travel any distance to get what they're looking for, Westfall said.

Jim White of Ace Hardware in Boyne City said he has learned that in order to keep local people from traveling to Petoskey or Traverse City to do their shopping, he has to stock his inventory to what the community needs are.

"One reason people are going to Petoskey for shopping is to find what they are not getting in Boyne City," White said. "So as business goes up for merchants, they will carry more of an inventory to help keep local people shopping locally."

White expanded his store last fall by adding additional floor space for displays. Because of this he said his business has increased by "more than 30 percent."

Marion Meyer of Boyne Sportswear

in Boyne City said she thinks her store can compete competitively with the metropolitan shopping areas.

"Because of the diversity in people up here, the locals are even more fashion-conscious than the people who live south of us."

She agreed that local people are staying around more and shopping rather than spending the additional money for gas to travel to a farther shopping store.

"Especially with the sidewalk sales, local residents know these are especially for them and merchants try to appeal specifically to locals to come out and do their shopping. Locals know when they (the sidewalk sales) will be happening and stick around for them."

Charlevoix is a community which depends on tourism more than Boyne City or East Jordan. Most of the merchants were unhappy about the lack of tourism in their city and did not feel they could be supported "in a fashion we're accustomed to," one merchant said, if by just local shoppers.

Jim Williams, owner of Dockside Pharmacy in Charlevoix, said he has not noticed any difference in his business fluctuating either for the better or the worse.

"It has always been to (a customer's) disadvantage to drive to Petoskey to Health center plans open house, annual meeting

EAST JORDAN - The Family Health Center will be holding an open house and its annual meeting within a few days of each other in the coming week.

The public is invited to meet Mitch Carey, the center's new doctor, during the open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday. Carey began working at the center July 1.

Tours of the center, located at 601 Bridge St., will also be given at the open house and refreshments will be served.

On Wednesday, Aug. 1, the health center annual meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the elementary school cafeteria.

All members of the health center are encouraged to attend. Members will elect five of the 15 board members. Meetings will be available at the meeting -- $5 for families or $3 for individuals.

A nominating committee is preparing a slate of candidates for the board. Anyone interested in serving may contact the health center or come to the annual meeting.

The annual report of the center will also be given at the meeting.

The board's regular monthly business meeting will be held after the annual meeting, and the public may also stay to attend that meeting.

In another health center-related news, Charlevoix Area Hospital announced this week that Dr. Carey has joined its medical staff.

As a member of the medical staff of the hospital, he will be able to admit and treat patients requiring hospitalization, perform emergency room surgery, practice pediatrics and deliver babies at the hospital, and will have virtually the same staff privileges as any member of the staff.

He will also cover the hospital emergency room on a rotating basis with other staff members.

Assessor is Polish Festival Honored Citizen

Eva Gillespie

A lot of things have changed since Eva Gillespie's girlhood in Boyne Falls. When this year's 1979 Boyne Falls Polish Festival Honored Citizen first lived in the Falls, Boyne Mountain wasn't even a vision in anyone's mind. The town was smaller, there wasn't a trailer park and Eva's trips to town were few and far between -- after all, that was a major trip. She can't figure for the life of her why she'd be chosen to be the Honored Citizen. "I have some cousins involved with the festival, it's probably their doing," she guessed. Thirty-eight years in the same house and a life of community involvement probably had a lot more to do with it than the wishes of some cousins, but Eva is too modest to admit that. She was born in Boyne Falls, schooled in Boyne City and after a stint of city life in Grand Rapids, Eva returned to Boyne Falls to raise her family. Two of her children, Earl Gillespie and Joyce Spencer, live in the Boyne Falls area, while Donna Bester lives in Pickford and son Robert Gillespie is in Arizona. A 14 year veteran of work with the State, the Honored Citizen retired from work with the mental health agency in Gaylord in 1967. She's currently the assessor for the town though she claims that the job doesn't entail much since the county equalization boards have taken over taxing duties. To keep busy Eva crochets and travels. She's been to Arizona, Colorado, Texas and Florida. The eldest of nine children, Eva has much of her family still in the area. Of the eight surviving children, seven are still in Northern Michigan. Bill Sparks and Olive Skubak both live in Boyne Falls, Venetta Ecker and Arlene Fredricks both live in Walloon Lake, Elaine Richardson in Petoskey and Thomas Sparks in Boyne City. The eighth sibling Opal Henderson lives in St. Louis, Mo. Her duties as Honored Citizen have been pleasant so far -- a couple of parades -- with the future tasks of the position somewhat unknown. "They've got something planned for the tent," she said warily, "I'm not sure what." Whether she thinks she should be the Honored Citizen or not doesn't matter. Others do, and she'll be there, waving and smiling, even though she's not even Polish.

Myrtle and Floyd Hausler

Festival will give them early start celebrating 50th anniversary

August 27, 1929, near the beginning of the Depression. A young girl from Boyne City and a young man from Boyne Falls were tying the knot in East Jordan headed for a long productive life together. Fifty years, six children, 23 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren later, the life still continues, productive as ever. "I've retired a couple of times," said Floyd Hausler, who with his wife Myrtle will serve as Grand Marshal of the Boyne Falls Polish Festival parade. "It gets too monotonous though." He could be retired for good now, although the last time he thought he was done working, he ended up with another job for 11 years. Both Floyd and Myrtle worked in the Boyne area testing cream for butterfat content and serving as buyers for such companies as Beatrice Foods. Floyd worked for Petoskey Manufacturing Co. until 1966 when he retired. That was shortlived though, and he worked for the Boyne Falls School for 11 years. Work around the house and yard keeps him busy these days -- too busy in fact. He and Myrtle haven't even been able to partake of their first love, country music. "We've been to Nashville and watched them record television shows," Hausler recalled. The Polish Festival will give them an early start on celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. The whole family will be gathering for the annual festival to watch Floyd and Myrtle in the parade. Their six kids won't have to come far. Floyd, Norman and Mrs. Alan (Mildred) Follette all live in Boyne Falls, Cathy in Boyne City, Mrs. Dan (Marjorie) Goldsmith in Petoskey and Mrs. Merle (Phyllis) Case in Kingsley.

SHOULD THE CASKET BE OPEN OR CLOSED?

This question can only be answered by the family, never by the funeral director. There are several options available to the family. The casket can be open during the hours of visitation and closed during the final rites or it can remain open during the final rites. It can also remain closed at all times. The customs of the family's faith and the influence of their clergyman's thoughts may help determine what is to be done. Modern psychologists tell us viewing the body helps the family to accept the fact of death, especially when it may have been sudden or unexpected. If, however, the appearance of the body cannot be made acceptable, viewing may possibly be harmful. The family's own wishes on the desired procedure will always be the guideline for the funeral director at our firm. We respect the family's wishes on all particulars of the funeral service as we try our very best to provide a truly personal and meaningful service.

The Cosier family is back in Northern Michigan this summer visiting friends and relatives. Tom and his wife Lore are missionaries in Africa. Here they are with their children, from left, Susanna, Ruth, Elizabeth and Deborah.

Cosiers love missionary work--13 years in Africa

BY BARB CRUDEN

Dry -- absolutely dry for eight months of the year. Average temperature, 90 degrees. That's Gambia, the un-Michiganlike place where Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cosier have lived and worked since 1967.

Except this year. They and their four little daughters are visiting Tom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cosier, near East Jordan.

And nearly everyone has to ask them, "Where is Gambia?"

"On the west coast of Africa," answers Tom. "It's a little country, 40 miles wide and 250 miles long. It follows the Gambia River."

But actually it is another river the Cosiers are following -- described in the Bible as "a river the streams where of shall make glad the city of God." Tom and Lore Cosier are part of the Worldwide Evangelization Crusade. They are in Gambia "to help people physically, mentally, and spiritually," Lore says.

Lore went as a nurse and midwife, and Tom as an agriculture advisor. But for Cosiers that alone would be an incomplete kind of effort. They want also to share their religion.

Gambia was a British protectorate up to 1965. It is now a quiet republic with three political parties. The main occupation is raising peanuts. Average income -- a meager $150 dollars a year. The Crusade has five stations in Gambia, but where the Cosiers work, they are the only white people in a village of about 1500 Gambians.

The Cosiers say the Gambians have taught them many things. "Patience," they say smiling. "Patience, most of all."

How do they go about helping Gambians "physically, mentally, spiritually?" Tom does much of it informally. Teaching and working out agricultural methods "hand in hand with them," he finds it is natural to speak of what it means to trust in God.

Although God and Jesus Christ are familiar enough terms to Gambians, Tom and Lore's conviction is that people need something more than a gradual spiritual awakening. Instead they need a complete switch from trusting in religious forms to trusting in God. "We have to have a new thing," Tom says, again with that smile that wants you to understand. Then he recounts how a Gambian friend put it in a sort of African parable: "It is like two pools. A dirty pool. A clean pool. A fisherman catches a fish... but leaves it on a bank between the pools. The fish becomes hot... which pool will he jump into?"

Gambians who become Christians find themselves cut off from their families, but even so, the Cosiers say their lives improve -- better jobs, and they can save all the money they had been spending on witch doctors.

There is a religious side also to the clinic work, Lore explains. Those that want to can attend the religious service held first thing in the morning.

Tom and Lore met each other in Africa in the course of their work. Lore's career had started with Evangelical Christians. She was a German school girl at the time with no particular religion. Her interest grew as she realized, she says, "their life was different from mine."

One special day she continues, she accepted Jesus Christ for herself. Her serious dark eyes brightening, she adds, "And the Lord blessed me and blessed me, and led me on" -- a journey that took her through nursing school and to Africa.

Tom's route went from Michigan State to the Navy where one day, he too decided on a different life. Then while waiting to get into a Bible study program, he saw a Peace Corps poster. In a few weeks he was trained and sent to Africa, and as his two-year stint drew to an end, he found himself more and more involved with the Crusade, which, as the Cosiers describe it, is an interdenominational faith mission, trusting in the Lord for its needs.

During this year in the States they will be helping at headquarters in Pennsylvania and will be talking to whatever groups are interested.

Then they will return to the Gambia home they and their friends built -- a home with corrugated metal ceilings to discourage termites -- with grass strewn on top to keep things cool.

Their children will resume their studies no longer under Lore's tutelage, but now in mission school some distance away. They will miss their Gambian playmates.

They will return to a culture that is family-centered, each fenced-in compound containing all immediate relatives, and as many children as they can manage to have. Children, says Tom, add to the work force and share in every activity.

Also Tom adds, it is interesting that Gambians don't own their land, but only conceive of it as something one uses. Thus the more children one has, the more land one uses, and thus having children begets influence.

The Cosiers feel that among these compounds back in Africa they have their small, Christian "family," a family which is slowly growing through their physical, mental, and spiritual work. They look forward to returning.

Smiths anxious for Aug. 7 vote

[Editor's note: Last week, The Press profiled the leaders of the groups opposing the closing of Front Street. This week, we take a look at Rick and Dave Smith, the men who have asked that the street be closed so they can build a condominium project.]

BY JOE McELROY

BOYNE CITY - They called it the silver dollar area.

In the mid-1960's, Dave Smith was working in Cleveland in the data processing industry, while his brother Rick was in Detroit, working for the Arthritis Foundation.

The two agreed that they wanted to move to Northwest Michigan, where they had vacationed since they were children growing up in Royal Oak, a Detroit suburb.

But where would they go? Not having any more scientific method, the Smiths put a silver dollar on a Michigan map. One edge of the coin touched Boyne Falls, and the other touched what is now Boyne Highlands.

Rick Smith was an avid skier and was convinced the sport was going to grow. When he saw that the coin's area encompassed Boyne Highlands and Boyne Mountain, the two brothers decided to make their new home within that area.

"We drew a circle around the coin and started shopping for property within that area," Rick Smith says. "We called it the silver dollar area."

Nobody would have dreamed how much impact that chance decision would have on the Boyne area years later.

In 1967 the Smiths bought the 250 acre Valhalla Resort on Walloon Lake. They moved to Northern Michigan, putting Rick close to his ski slopes and Dave close to the lakes that attracted him as a youngster.

But the Smiths soon decided the resort wasn't profitable enough to support them, so they began planning Wildwood on Walloon, which today is a financially successful 32-unit condominium project on 40 acres of land.

That success did not come easy because, as Dave Smith said, "We got our permits to build the same week in 1973 that the Arabs turned off the oil."

The subsequent recession doomed many housing projects. "Things went more slowly than we anticipated," Dave Smith says, "but we were able to hang in there."

Wildwood has been widely cited as a fine example of land use. It is an example of "cluster housing," in which the living units are built in a small area, leaving the surrounding areas open.

The 32 units are built on just four acres. "We could have cut it up into 32 one acre lots," Dave Smith says. "We think this looks much better."

"It leaves 36 acres left for everybody to enjoy," Smith said. "It's open and it's pretty. Everyone looks out their window and they don't see another house and a fence, they see green space. Houses in the center of small lots eat up all of the open space."

Wildwood residents also share recreation facilities such as picnic areas, a basketball court, tennis courts and a golf course.

The Smiths, with the help of Ann Arbor planner Carl Johnson, designed Wildwood to take advantage of the shape of the land.

"We try to retain the character and beauty of the land rather than tearing everything down as some people do before they start to build," Dave says.

With Wildwood a success, the Smiths and business partner Jon Gerster started investigating the Boyne City tannery property, vacant since Howe's Tannery was knocked down.

The Smiths announced their proposal to the Boyne City Commission in early 1978 and made their plans for 270 condos public that March. The Smiths said they didn't want to build the project if they faced serious opposition from residents, and at first there was no opposition.

But that changed last summer as the city commission moved closer to a vote on closing Front Street. Since then, the Smiths have been controversial, often-criticized public figures.

So they are looking forward to the Aug. 7 public vote on closing Front Street so they can see if the opposition is widespread or if it is coming from a vocal minority. They still say they don't want to proceed with their plans if most people oppose them.

"We feel just as strongly about that statement as when we made it 18 months ago," Rick Smith said. But he admits that back then, "It was totally inconceivable" that serious opposition would arise.

"We just feel the project would do so much for the town," Rick Smith says. But both brothers agree the condominium project isn't worth going through more years like the past one.

As Rick said, "Life is too short."

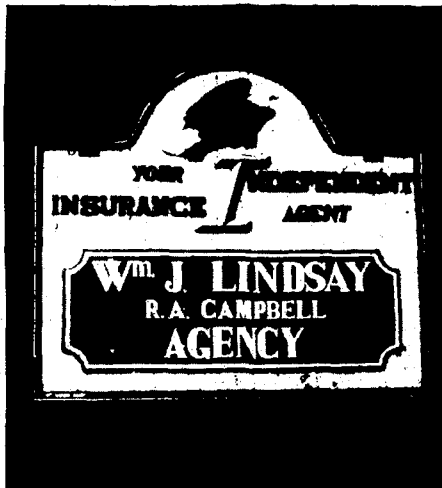

EJ teens save man from drowning

EAST JORDAN - Quick action on the part of six East Jordan teenagers saved a drowning man and entitled them to an award from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The six boys were swimming together on Saturday, July 14, at approximately 7:30 p.m. when one of the boys noticed a male subject yelling for help. Willy Castle was quick to respond to the victims cry and quickly summoned his older friends to assist.

John Gagnon, Herschell Sutton and Robert Castle rushed into eight feet of water where the victim was seen going under for the fourth time. The three boys managed to retrieve the collapsed body and Ivan Castle along with Tim Hoffman carried him to the safety of the beach, where the man was revived.

"Suppose you were sued for $500,000--and lost! Could you stay out of bankruptcy and still meet the financial obligations to your business and family? You could survive a financial crisis if you had an Auto-Owners Executive Liability Insurance policy. It provides up to $5,000,000 of protection. And costs a lot less than you think. We'll be glad to discuss it with you. Just give us a call."

Auto-Owners Insurance is for executive liability insurance, too.

It's taking time, but downtown renovation makes headway in EJ

We're glad to see East Jordan's downtown renovation effort is still making headway.

The town doesn't look much different than when the renovation idea was proposed just a few months ago, but that is to be expected. These things take time. In fact, taking ample time will assure that the project is done thoughtfully.

A renovation committee composed of business people first had to decide on a central focus for the renovation, and it has made a wise choice by keeping it old-fashioned. It's more authentic and will require less expense. The committee even ran a contest and came up with the catchy slogan "Today's pride in yesterday's past."

A good core group of about 10 businesses appear to be committed to following the renovation theme in the near future. That's about as good as can be expected. It would be nice if every business in town adopted the theme next summer, but that's unrealistic.

What is important is agreeing on a theme and getting started. When businesses need remodeling in a few years, hopefully the owners will follow the theme.

The Chamber of Commerce has helped the project along by donating $1,000 for the services of an architect. He is designing planters, benches, landscaping, street lamps and other ideas—mainly for public places like sidewalks and parks.

Hopefully, community groups will take on a part of the architect's plan as their own project. Low interest bank loans similar to those being proposed in Boyne City would also be a helpful boost.

We hope the city council gets involved, too. It has helped already by approving a commercial redevelopment program which can give tax breaks to businesses which remodel.

The council did not feel it would be right to help pay for an architect to design storefronts, but perhaps the city can contribute financially in other ways in the future. The city could try to buy more park areas on Main Street, as the city master plan suggests.

We also hope the city council goes along with the business community in doing what it can to renovate the outside City Hall and the Community Center to fit in with the theme. Help might also be needed in passing a sign ordinance which would limit the size and lighting on downtown signs.

But the brunt of the pressure is on the business community. Renovation efforts have failed in the past, and so some business owners and city officials may be skeptical. We hope the skeptics soon become believers.

Swingin' single bites the dust

Great Moments In Male-Female Relationships, Part 1:

The young man was sitting in a casually fashionable Florida bar. He was alone. His girlfriend was 1,000 miles away, in college.

They had left things "flexible" when he left for Florida, so he didn't have any guilt feelings, consciously at least, about being in the bar and being, uh, available. But he didn't really expect too much to happen because he never had the heart to wear those unbuttoned silk shirts like all the other guys in the bar.

He was sitting at the piano. Whoever had sat there before him had left a cigarette lighter, a Bic. He didn't notice it until an attractive young woman nudged up next to him and smiled, "Do you have a light?"

Wow. Just like in the movies, he thought. Sure honey, he thought, picking up the lighter. But when he flicked the Bic, nothing lit.

He flicked and flicked and flicked, but couldn't get anything but sparks. Looking disgusted, the girl took the lighter herself, lit her cigarette with one flick, and sauntered away. About five minutes later she left with some muscular beach bum type.

The young man at the piano bar got up and went home and thought about his girlfriend, figuring that she was probably out on a date with some fraternity house.

Great Moments in Male-Female Relationships, Part II:

She was sitting by herself at the party, listening to the two amateur guitar players who were entertaining the crowd. One of them could play; the other was a musical butcher.

A young man who was also alone at the party sat down next to her and said, by way of breaking the ice, "That guy on the left can sure play, huh?"

The girl turned to him and said, "The guy on the right is my boyfriend," which put a definite damper on the conversation.

Joe McElroy

Ha, ha, ha. Everyone laughs when I tell those stories. Now I can laugh along with them, since I don't have to play those dumb boy-meets-girl games anymore. That's because my dating career officially ended last Saturday when I officially got married.

Actually, my single life unofficially ended a long time ago. It's just that after six years with each other, Kay Severinsen and I have decided that it must be serious. No sense rushing into things.

In my late teens and early twenties, my idea was to be a "swinging single." Airline stewardesses, secretaries, nurses. You get the idea. It's an idea that our popular culture shoves down our throats every day.

Falling in love and getting married might make boring copy, because that's the way life goes for most people, but I'm glad it happened to me. Besides, single life was too complicated for me. For those of you who are still trying to meet Mr., Miss, or Ms. Right, I will leave with one more story of my dating career; the story of one line that must have worked:

The relatively mature college senior was inviting an innocent sophomore to a party at his house. There was to be a keg of beer to enliven the festivities, and the senior asked the sophomore if she liked to drink beer.

"Not really," she replied. "but I'll drink it in a pinch."

"Where do you have to be pinched?" he slyly answered.

Ah, success. Six years later, Kay still laughs at those same type of dumb jokes. It must be love.

Of bosoms, Gregg Smith and lost hope for Boyne

Since time began man has found the answer to life's problems by climbing mountains and sitting down to think. Sometimes he will summon people to the mountain to think along with him. Then he comes down to spread his accumulated wisdom throughout the land.

Mountains are scarce in northern Michigan.

I discovered this when I decided to gather a large amount of wisdom. Without it I would be unable to obtain my goal of straightening out the people of Boyne City.

It's a sad thing when people go through life without once having been straightened out. Normally, a man should be straightened out every ten years or so - otherwise he takes to squawking, trading in Petoskey and voting Democrat. Some become all tangled up in politics and are surprised to find themselves on the school board.

The situation has long begged for a man to come down from the mountain. But alas, I find it quite tragic that our forefathers failed to provide us with a mountain to come down from.

Mt. Bliss is just outside of East Jordan and Mt. McSauba is handy for Charlevoix folks. It irks me that Boyne City is missing a decent peak.

You might say we have Boyne Mountain and brag about it. But that is not the kind of mountain that inspires a person to stand up and deliver a sermon after succeeding in getting to the bottom.

But I did find a place that might bring wisdom to a man. It's that piece of bunched up ground on the Boyne Falls road called "Round Top." Gregg Smith, when he was publisher of the Boyne Citizen, referred to it in one of his columns as "The Old Maid's Nipple". And he was right. For the last half century that has been the correct name for it, if you whispered. He's the only man since Boyne City was founded who had the courage to bring Round Top out of the closet.

After spending four days on Round Top I found the necessary wisdom with which to straighten out the people of Boyne City. As an added benefit you can see for miles around. I saw someone in the East Jordan City Hall raising the taxes on my building there; and I saw Bob Prebble fussing with the money at the bank's Petoskey branch. To the west I saw Robert Klevorn hurrying into the county court house to defend a client who was accused of slander right after he had run for the city council on the horse sense ticket.

Coming down from Round Top, I was full of vim and vigor, sufficiently perked to wade in and correct the ills and errors of our tight little complex society. And that's when it hit me. I was shocked and deeply saddened to find the people so ignorant they were in no condition to accept the great wisdom I had soaked up.

As one mixed up old codger put it: "Any man who spends four days on an old hag's bosom ain't fit to straighten out nothing."

Personally, I see no hope for Boyne City at all.

Percolating

About 25 Boyne area business people attended the first meeting of the Percolator Club last week. They drank coffee (from a percolator of course) and talked with representatives of Johnson, Johnson and Roy, the firm which is putting together a master plan for the city. Strengths and weaknesses of the downtown were discussed. The informal get-togethers will be held at 8 a.m. on the first Friday of every month at City Hall. State Rep. Steve Andrews will be the guest speaker on Aug. 3.

Marine Deputy should buckle up for safety

Dear Editor,

The picture of Deputy Dan Moore patrolling the waters of Lake Charlevoix for safety's sake is wonderful. However, I think it would be a good idea if Deputy Moore would secure his own life vest by tying it on himself. I doubt if an unclipped vest would remain on a person thrown into the water.

If the most common violation is lack of life vests, let our deputy set a good example and wear his vest as it was intended to be worn.

Gas changes shopping habits get a prescription filled because if they want it refilled then they have to drive back to Petoskey. That's a lot of additional money spent on gas," he said.

One Charlevoix merchant who requested not to be identified, said he does not think anyone can stop people from going to Petoskey or Traverse City to shop.

"People go there because they feel like getting out of Charlevoix and traveling a little. Transient tourism is down and it has hurt my business. But also people from this city are leaving Charlevoix for reasons I don't know, and shopping in Traverse and Petoskey," he said.

J.C. Penny manager Jack Phillips said his Petoskey business is down from last year but did not know if he could attribute it to fewer tourists or fewer people driving in from surrounding towns.

"Because of gas prices, people are being more conservative with their driving. General shopping habits are changing somewhat," Phillips said.

He said retail shopping is generally off from last year, but Penneys still has a good number of local people shop-

Gary Nicola, manager of Petoskey K-Mart, said business is doing better -- but not by much -- than last year.

"We are still getting a lot of people from surrounding areas but with the price of gasoline, people are watching where they are going and thinking twice before traveling a long distance to buy the same thing they could get in their own town," he said.

RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOYNE CITY COMMISSION DULY CALLED AND HELD AT THE LITZENBURGER PLACE, 829 S. PARK STREET, ON FRIDAY, JULY 13, 1979 AT 7:00 P.M. (original meeting date of July 10, 1979 was re-scheduled to July 13, 1979, because of a lack of a quorum.)

Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Joseph Gierlach, Catherine Jessup and Steven Moody. Absent: Commissioner Thelma Behling. Also Present: City Manager Timothy J. Clifton and City Clerk Tom Garlock.

The Minutes of the regular meeting of June 12, 1979 were approved as received in the Commissioner's Packet.

Commissioner Jessup suggested that any corrections of minutes should appear in the minutes as noted at the previous meeting, so that the Commissioners can be aware of the corrections being made.

The Clerk read a letter from the American Water Works Association regarding a commendation the Boyne City Water Department received for a perfect safety record over the last year.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to sign the necessary papers granting a permit to Michigan Bell Telephone Co., to place a buried cable across Pleasant Street at Trent Street, using the bore method for 30 feet, with minimum depth of 30 inches. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Moody to authorize the Mayor and Clerk to sign the necessary papers to allow Consumers Power Company to make a voltage correction to the Standard Pumping Contract between the City of Boyne City and Consumers Power Company, under Supplemental Agreement No. 2. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave the first of his recommendations on implementation of the Capital Improvement Program for Boyne City. The city commission approved a $100,000 C.I.P. which is intended to improve the physical plant of the City, i.e. water and sewer mains, streets and sidewalks. As designed, the FY 79/80 C.I.P. allocates the funds evenly between water and sewer repairs and street and sidewalk repairs. Projects were selected based upon their severity and/or necessity as well as strategically selected to insure that each area of the City witnessed some improvement.

The first of the projects to be engineered and advertised for bid is the sewer replacement which consists of Park Street sewer repair; Park Street sewer replacement and East Street sewer replacement.

Bids were received as follows: M & M Excavating, Inc., $30,778.00; Manthei Development, Inc., $35,147.97; W. A. Porter, Inc., $40,407.00; Delta Construction, Inc., $63,615.25; and Bowers-Vaughn Construction, $71,470.00.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Gierlach to award the bid to M. & M. Excavating, Inc. for sewer repair and replacement in the amount of $30,778.00, as recommended by the City Manager with the City Manager being authorized to sign on behalf of the City. Construction is required to commence within 20 days of notification to proceed, with the work to be completed within 60 calendar days. Funds were budgeted and are available in Account Code 101-958-979 - Water/Sewer Main Installation. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The City Manager gave a report on the awarding of a water main construction bid, for approximately 350 feet of 8 inch water main on Vogel Street between Lake and Park streets. The water main extension will result in higher water pressure for users along North Lake Street. A problem has existed at this location for a number of years. The extension will provide a "looping" of the water system, thereby eliminating the "dead-end" which previously existed and caused the low water pressure during periods of high usage. Bids were received as follows: Delta Construction, Inc., $9,819.00; Bowers-Vaughn Construction, $11,850.00; and W. A. Porter, Inc., $12,821.25.

The low bidder, Delta Construction, Inc., could not guarantee this bid unless it received both the sewer and water projects. Consequently, the next low bid was recommended for approval.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Jessup to award the bid to Bowers-Vaughn Construction for water main replacement in the amount of $11,850.00, as recommended by the City Manager with the City Manager being authorized to sign on behalf of the City. Construction is to commence within 20 days of notification to proceed, and the work completed within 30 calendar days. Funds are budgeted and are available in Account Code 101-958-979 - Water/Sewer Main Installation. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Gierlach, seconded by Jessup to adopt the following Resolution: That the City of Boyne City establish an emergency preparedness policy, organization and plan in coordination with Charlevoix County and State of Michigan plans to deal with the City's response to enemy attack, natural or man-made disaster, nuclear incidents and other emergency situations; and to appoint Timothy J. Clifton as Deputy Emergency Preparedness Coordinator for the purpose of compiling such policy, organization and plan. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Donated 4-H arena unveiled at horse show

Two horse shows held over the weekend in Wilson Township had the pleasure of new arenas and facilities donated by Chuck Stevens.

The Sierra Madre Ranch, as it is now called, will be the facility for all future 4-H Horse Shows.

Sunday's 10th Annual 4-H and Open Show to select the regional champions for the state horse show in Lansing was detoured because the judges did not select the three winners. The riders who will go to Lansing in August will be announced later.

Several Charlevoix County riders placed first in their classes Sunday. They are: Lennie Fuller from East Jordan, Cinda Crozier from Boyne City, Laurie Sherman from East Jordan, and Keisha Crozier from Boyne City.

At Saturday's Charlevoix County 4-H Horse Achievement Day Show, the high point winner in each age group was: Pony (14 and under) Shiela Michael of East Jordan with 40 points, Youth (12 and under) Keisha Crozier of Boyne City with 39 points, Junior (13 and 14) Jenny Michael of East Jordan with 47 points, and Senior (15 to 18) Sherry Puroll of East Jordan with 46 points.

The classes at Saturday's show were: Showmanship, in which the rider is judged on his ability to show his horse and the cleanliness, neatness and condition of the horse; Western and English Equitation in which the judge judges the rider's ability to ride; and Western and English Pleasure in which the horse and rider are judged on their style together as a team.

Shirley Crozier, the organizer for Sunday's show, said she would like to especially thank Chuck Stevens for donating his land and all the sponsors who without them the show could not have gone on, she said.

Joins John Buick

Shirley Tims is the newest member of the staff at John Buick Real Estate, Boyne City and Walloon Lake.

Mrs. Tims has been active in real estate for eight years and recently completed real estate courses at the University of Michigan.

She and her husband, Jim, live in the Boyne City area with their five children.

Public, planners eye Boyne future

"A guide that can be used to make decisions about the future of your city," said project manager Kim Woodrow, defining Boyne City's master plan.

Woodrow spoke Thursday night at the first of three hearings on the master plan. With him was Dave Tyler, the project planner. The two represent Johnson, Johnson, and Roy, the Ann Arbor firm hired by the city to put together the master plan.

"Putting it together" describes the effort which involves finding out what Boyne City people want for their community. The hearing not only was to explain the purpose of the plan, but also to open inquiry on Boyne City's future.

The first stage, which has been going on for the past two weeks, is "to examine existing conditions," said Woodrow, as he showed his slides of the city -- downtown, waterfront, side streets, and so on. He pointed out the city has an unusual number of things going for it -- the Boyne River, the waterfront, tree-lined streets, interesting older buildings.

"The Depot Restaurant is a marvelous example of rehabilitation and reuse," he said. "How do we stimulate a community to take advantage of other such resources?"

The slides also showed up problems. Downtown and the park are the first things to get the attention of the newcomer. Both, Woodrow noted, look "car-oriented." People at the hearing contributed their concern that downtown did not attract casual strolling. They also mentioned the treatment of storefronts is making for a haphazard look.

Other problems were listed: the need for re-routing truck through-traffic; the increasing decentralization of professional offices on streets leading out of town; lack of bike routes; and others.

The purpose of looking at problems and possibilities, Woodrow reminded the group, was to give coherent direction when decisions are implemented and money allocated.

"Housing is far and away the important thing," he said. He noted "the mixture here is a good base." However, he said, 30 percent of the housing needs structural repair. There is considerable evidence of trash accumulation. He went on to show many roads are unpaved or narrow, without sufficient protection from deterioration of the edges. Upkeep of these is eventually more expensive, Woodrow noted, than making improvements.

He suggested that questions be asked on how appropriate some of the zoning may be. For example, is commercial zoning good for the mobile home park? Will zoning be affected by fuel problems?

With 800 people per square mile, Boyne City has a way of life to protect. This was the response from the audience at the hearing. They were concerned about land speculation, tourism, industry (which they felt should be encouraged), home improvement loans, and deterioration of homes with absentee landlords.

They said they wanted the shoppers' boat dock changed to its previous location. And more community activities in the parks -- a bandstand, for one thing. They spoke about setting aside areas for off-street parking -- but not on the lakefront. "No more ugliness on the lakefront," one person said. A long lakefront walkway was suggested.

Dave Tyler discussed the need for an expanded capital improvement program to provide for long-range planning rather than have a pattern of successive reactions to pressing needs.

He said, however, the general trend of declining school enrollment and the amount of land and classroom space already allotted Boyne City schools combine to make a good situation for the schools. No worries there.

Solid waste, on the other hand, is going to be a problem with new restrictions coming. And, of course, the aged water system will affect growth, health, and fire-fighting. In response to a question, Woodrow estimated it could take five million dollars over a period of a few years to fix the water system alone.

There were many ideas expressed when Woodrow brought up the subject of Avalanche Mountain Preserve.

On the airport, the planners' information showed that its use has not grown. They favored looking at other possibilities for the land, considering that use of Boyne Mountain's airstrip is far heavier.

The next hearing -- perhaps late in August -- will focus on land use alternatives and will finalize goals based on community needs.

The last hearing will cover implementation of the plan. Johnson, Johnson, and Roy's staff of experts will be contributing then, as well as all along the way, information that will include eligibilities to state and federal grants and loans, ways of improving tax base, environmental impact, city planning, population projections, and so on.

City Manager Tim Clifton will act as the planners' agent for comments, suggestions, and questions from the public on the master plan.

The City Manager gave a report on a storm sewer at the intersection of Jersey and Vogel streets, which creates serious problems during the spring thaw. Because of the high water table each spring, the capacity of the storm sewer is not sufficient to handle the increased flow. The City wisely delays this type of construction until the dry season after the water table lowers. This measure drastically reduces the cost to the City since it would be necessary to contract the work out or double the amount of staff hours required to complete the job.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Fitzpatrick to authorize the emergency repair of a storm sewer on Jersey and Vogel streets to correct washouts of driveways and roadways, as well as minor flooding. Repair consists of approximately 300 feet of replace 12" drain tile, to be done by the water and street departments, with repair work not to exceed $1,700.00. Funds are available in Account Code 592-593-730.96 - Storm Sewer Construction. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Margarete Sorenson, Housing Director, gave a report and read a letter from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, regarding a request for additional Senior Citizen Housing units for Boyne City. As part of the application the Boyne City Housing Commission and the Boyne City Commission must file a Cooperation Agreement with HUD.

Moved by Moody, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager and Mayor to sign a Cooperation Agreement with HUD in order to pursue additional monies for additional Senior Citizen Housing units. The City Attorney was also instructed to study the agreement before forwarding it to HUD. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Moody to accept the resignation of Margarete Sorenson as Boyne City Housing Director and to authorize the City Manager to write a letter of thanks for the many accomplishments attained by Mrs. Sorenson. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The monthly budget report was given by the City Manager and approved by the City Commission. Accounts Payable for the month of June in the amount of $36,070.60 were approved.

Moved by Jessup, seconded by Moody to authorize the City Clerk to write a letter to the County Clerk indicating that the City of Boyne City intends to convert to the punch card voting system in 1980, with their share being $3,783.00. This amount will be budgeted in the 1980/81 fiscal year budget. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

Moved by Fitzpatrick, seconded by Jessup to authorize the City Manager to sign a construction agreement with Michigan Bell Telephone Co., to place a new manhole and conduit on Division Street, south of Park Street with work to be completed by the end of August, 1979. Roll call all yeas. Motion carried.

The Clerk read the schedules of meetings for the month and stated that all minutes of the various boards and commissions were available for public review at the City Hall or the Library. The public is invited to attend the following meetings of Boards and Commissions:

Thursday, July 12, 1979, at 7:30 p.m. - Boyne City Library Board, at Boyne City Public Library, 201 East Main Street.

Monday, July 16, 1979, at 5:00 p.m. - Planning Commission, City Commission Chambers, City Hall, 319 North Lake Street.

Thursday, July 19, 1979, at 5:00 p.m. - Parks and Recreation Commission, City Commission Chambers, City Hall, 319 North Lake Street.

Thursday, July 19, 1979, at 7:00 p.m. - Public Workshop for Receiving Citizen Input on the Comprehensive Plan for Boyne City, City Commission, Chambers, City Hall, 319 North Lake Street.

Tuesday, August 7, 1979, at 7:30 p.m. - Boyne City Housing Commission, Litzbenburger Place, 829 South Park Street.

Thursday, August 9, 1979, at 7:30 p.m. - Boyne City Library Board, at Boyne City Public Library, 201 E. Main Street.

Tuesday, August 14, 1979, at 7:00 p.m. - Regular City Commission meeting at the old site of the First Baptist Church on the corner of Groveland and West Michigan Streets. (Misty Morning Trading Company also was located here.)

Every Tuesday, at 12:00 noon - City Commission Meeting at the office of the City Manager, City Hall, 319 North Lake Street.

Commissioner Jessup suggested to the commission that the minutes of the Board of Appeals concerning Courter, Inc., and its approved variance to operate out of the warehouse located on N. Lake Street be revised, so that it can be interpreted more precisely for the record. She also suggested that all minutes be more detailed in their recording, so that vague areas can be eliminated.

The City Manager was authorized to write a letter to the various boards instructing them to keep more precise minutes of their meetings and record them with more explanation.

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne City 1979 Little League came to an end Saturday with a big awards picnic at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

The ball players, coaches and their families were on hand to eat hot dogs, potato chips and cake, and drink lemonade all supplied by Country Star Market of Boyne City. Trophies, baseballs and ribbons were given to the teammates of the first and second place major and minor league teams.

The Boyne City Little League is made up of eight to 12-year old boys and girls. Eight and nine-year olds play in minor league teams and those from ten to 12-years old play in the major leagues.

The seven minor leagues are the: Bears, Rangers, Eagles, Tigers, Patriots, and from Boyne Falls, the Blue Loggers and the Red Loggers.

The six major league teams are the: Yankees, Tigers, Dodgers, Orioles, Giants and from Boyne Falls, the Red Loggers.

First place this year for the major league was taken by the Yankees, managed by Richard "Rocky" Rickard and coached by Merle Carson. Their record was 13 wins and one loss.

Second place went to the Dodgers with a 11 and three record. The Dodgers was managed by "Boot" Boutillier and coached by Stan Follette.

First place in the minor league was taken by the Boyne Falls Blue Loggers with an eight and two record. They were managed by Roger Hausler and coached by Bruce Murray.

Dave Williamson, president of the league, said the year has been very special and fun for him. He presented a plaque to last year's president, Dr. Thomas Neuman, for his superior years of service and time devoted to the Little League.

Williamson also thanked several officers of the Little League club for their time and devotion to the club. They are: Ted Penny, vice-president; "Rocky" Rickard, player, agent; Lyle Green, secretary-treasurer; and many others. "The people who helped are too numerous to mention. The parents did a nice job coming and watching their sons and daughters playing and showing support at all the games," he said.

A special thanks from all team members and their parents went out to the Country Star Market which supplied everything for the picnic from the hot dogs down to the napkins. The food was great and much appreciated, Williamson said.

"Everybody came out to be a winner," Williamson said, "Everybody had a good time. Winning is something for sure, but getting out and having fun is what is more important. And that's what Little League is all about."

What's your favorite restaurant?

Everybody has a favorite restaurant, whether it's a fast food spot with great fried mushrooms or an elegant place with fine cuisine.

We asked a number of local residents to name their favorite and here is what they told us:

Rick Vogel, Boyne City. As operator of the Dilworth restaurant in Boyne City, Vogel is naturally a little biased about his favorite spot. He managed, however, to graciously submerge his first preference. "The place I eat most often is Little Lena's Pizza (Boyne City). I eat their pizza probably five times a week. I get off work at 4 in the morning and I don't feel like cooking. So I keep a pizza in the freezer and when I get home, I throw it in the microwave. But for (sitdown) restaurants, the Jordan Inn wins for all around quality. You pay for what you get. I also like the Arboretum (Harbor Springs)."

dinner theater, the Dilworth, it has very good entertainment and food. The Pier (Harbor Springs) - I've sent a lot of people there. Every meal is superb. I tell friends to just close their eyes and pick anything. But I think they fall short on desserts. For desserts, I'd take the fruit for two special with chocolate sauce at the Dilworth.

"For the real pinnacle of cuisine, it's either the Jordan Inn or the Rowe Inn. They both put more time and effort into food preparation than most places. The best hamburger is at the Landing (Ironton) and the best sandwich is at Dapper Dick's Deli, in Charlevoix. It's a little expensive but they use a lot of meat and have good homemade soups and rolls."

Catherine Jessup, Boyne City. "The Rowe Inn (Ellsworth) has been my favorite for some time. I always come away feeling I've been treated very specially. I really like the strawberry soup, the quiche and their vegetarian entrees. When we went to Paris our favorite restaurant was the Aux Anysetiers du Roi and the Rowe Inn is very similar. It always reminds me of being in France."

Andy Allen, Advance. A veteran diner, Allen could whittle his list of favorite places only a little. In fact, until recently, he ate out so often, he says you could set your clock by which restaurant he was in.

His choices: "For the best meal for your money, it's brunch at The Granary. For a gourmet lunch with a great view, I'd have to pick the Leutheuser's (Charlevoix). It has a really good sandwich, too, called the Charlevoixan. And they usually have music all summer long.

Also for lunch, I like the Monte Cristo at the Depot (Boyne City). And for Hazel Colburn, East Jordan. "For lunch I like best The Depot (Boyne City). It has a neat atmosphere and it's real friendly. I always know a lot of people in there. And the food is good and reasonably priced. My favorite place is the Jordan Inn, I mean, where else can you eat like that? Except the Rowe Inn, of course. The best things at the Jordan Inn are the plum cheesecake and the veal sobeski, or anything really."

Harlan Peterson and Arlene Westhoven concoct a pork tenderloin at the Rowe Inn.

Dining at the Rowe Inn

'It's an event, not just a meal'

There are people around here who will wait four weeks for a meal - if it's at the Rowe Inn in Ellsworth, a restaurant that has earned a region-wide reputation for excellence.

Hundreds of visitors from down below make a point to visit the Rowe Inn during their vacations, and hundreds of local residents who save their money for a special occasion to celebrate there. Of course, you can say that about a lot of restaurants, so what makes the Rowe Inn special?

Two things, says Arlene Westhoven, who owns the restaurant with her husband, Wes. Everything is made from scratch with fresh ingredients. And the menu changes every day. "We probably serve 300 or 400 different entrees in a year."

Instead of hand-held menus, diners are pointed towards a blackboard listing the evening's dishes, often with names so foreign-sounding that the waitress must translate.

There might be Russian Coulbiac, or salmon, mushrooms and rice baked in pastry; Swedish Glasblower's pickled fish, chilled strawberry soups, or Charlotta, a Charlotte Russe with homemade lady fingers.

Guests have a choice of two appetizers, two salads, two soups, four or five entrees, including a vegetarian dish, and several desserts. All five-course meals are pris fixe: $16.50.

The Westhovens and their chef, Harlan "Pete" Peterson, are quick to defend the price, probably the highest in this area.

"You get what you pay for," says Peterson. "You get a lot of value for your money here. And people who come here probably spend two or two and a half hours here. It's an event, not just a meal."

Because the tiny dining room seats only 40 persons, guests must not only make reservations hours or even weeks ahead, but are given carefully scheduled seating times. That way, everyone doesn't arrive at 8 p.m. and overload the small kitchen.

Timing is very important to a good restaurant, says Arlene. "Knowing how to handle that and scheduling everything is part of being good," she says. "A lot of restaurants don't know how to do that well."

The trio acquired their skills in different ways. Both the Westhovens were high school teachers in Ohio and working as cooks, dishwashers and waiters for a restaurant owned by Wes' mother. They dreamed of owning their own restaurant and running it their way, but could not find anything for sale in that area. Then, seven years ago, they heard the Rowe Inn, then a family restaurant, was for sale.

"We always wanted a little European inn and they are in the country," says Arlene. "At that time, there was nothing like that up here."

Four years later however, two of the Rowe Inn's good customers, the Dobrowolskis of Detroit, who also happened to be friends of the Westhovens, moved to nearby East Jordan and bought the Jordan Inn, which now rivals the Rowe in every way.

"I suppose they are our competitors to some degree," says Wes. "But we send people there and they send people here. We have the same customers. When we eat out somewhere, we go to the Jordan Inn."

Most of the time, however, they eat at home, cooking "interesting food" but not gourmet delicacies every night. Unlike the stereotypic chefs, they aren't fat, although Wes takes a tug at his stomach and laughs. "We aren't skinny, either!"

In fact, Peterson became interested in the restaurant business while teaching himself to cook at home. For 10 years, he was an industrial designer for Ford Motor Company in Detroit, designing pickup trucks, taillights and hubcaps.

"I can't figure it out myself," says Peterson, of his career switch. "I have always liked to eat. I had decided to study cooking in France, but after I was there a short time, I called Wes to see if I could work here over vacation. I came back and never left."

He and Arlene supervise and do most of the cooking, while Wes handles the front desk and the wine cellar.

"We have over 80 wines," he says with some pride. "I've drank a lot of wine, only out of dedication to the business, however." Wine prices range from $6.50 for a Californian French Colombard to $90 for a half bottle of Durbacher Schloss Staufenberg, Trockenberreren auslese.

"We sell a $30 or $40 bottle fairly often," Wes says. "That's because this is usually a special occasion for them and when they come here they want a special wine."

He also sells wine carryout at prices he says are competitive with other wine stores.

The inn has sponsored a couple of wine tastings, and will, beginning this fall, sponsor a series of cooking classes in Eastern European foods, Scandinavian pastries, classic French cooking and cooking with morel mushrooms as well as other cooking techniques.

Restaurant guide

The Depot Restaurant

First of all, let's make one thing clear: Yes, The Depot Restaurant really IS a former depot. It was a freight depot for the old Boyne City Railroad. Now it is one of Boyne City's most popular restaurants. In addition to providing an atmosphere that gives you a taste of the city's railroading heritage, The Depot provides lots of good food, cooked by manager Betty Kelts and her assistants. Specialities include Monte Cristos, an unusual lunch dish, and mouth-watering desserts. Speaking of mouth-watering, try the pancakes. The Depot is open from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday through Thursday, from 8 a.m.-9 p.m. on Fridays and from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. on Saturdays. Call 582-2230 for more information.

Here are a few homey places to feed the family

Little mouths can get pretty noisy when they're hungry and as most families know, it can be expensive to get them quieted down.

Where can you feed a family of four or more without spending a fortune? We've tried to list several places where four people can eat for $20 or less. They are homey rather than elegant and rely on simple, for the most part unsurprising fare.

• The Landing, on the dock in Ironton next to the ferry landing. Worth coming just for the view of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Uniquely, diners can arrive by boat and dock right outside the restaurant.

Thursdays feature a spaghetti special, with salad and a glass of chianti. Other items include fried shrimp, half-pound cheeseburgers and fried chicken. Quantities are ample and prices range from $1.35 for five chicken wings to $5.50 for steak and hashbrowns. House wines are unusually good. Also serves breakfast.

Late night visitors may catch "Uncle Louie" playing rinky tink on the piano. He's not a paid performer, the bartender says, but just drops by a lot to entertain the folks.

• The Boyne River Inn, 229 E. Water, Boyne City. Overlooking the Boyne River. Fridays the aroma of fried fish lures the biggest crowds for the BRI's now famous fish and chips.

That dish includes about five large chunks of batter-fried fish, fries, cole slaw and French bread for $3.25. Fish is not always, but can be, great. Other choices include barbecue sandwiches, steaks and chef salads, ranging from $1.75 to $6.75. After dark, the BRI becomes a disco.

• Little Lena's Pizza, 118 S. Lake St., Boyne City. Good pizza with lots of sauce and cheese, ranging from $3.95 for a small plain cheese pizza to $5.35 for a large. Also serves Italian sandwiches. Mostly carryout, but has tables and offers paper plates and napkins. Our favorite: Take the pizza and drinks to Old Memorial Park and watch the sun set over Lake Charlevoix.

• Robert's Restaurant, 216 N. Lake, Boyne City. The quintessential small town restaurant. This is where the long time residents of Boyne City gather for breakfast or lunch. Friendly waitresses and the usual fare: shrimp baskets, hot beef sandwiches, reubens for lunch, pork chops, fish and chips or steak for dinner, at wallet sparing prices: cheeseburgers, $1.35, fried chicken dinner, $3.75. Breakfasts range from pancakes at $1.10, oatmeal, 75 cents, to two eggs, sausage, American fries and coffee for $2.75. Good coffee.

• Mr. J's, Water Street, Boyne City. For breakfast, try their omelets. At lunch you can make your own sandwich and the buffet is a popular spot for dinner.

• Fat Clarence's Calorie Factory in downtown East Jordan takes pride in offering "garishly garnished" dishes. Among the best are the Fabulous Frank, a huge frankfurter on a good thick bun, topped with sauerkraut and other garnishes. Daily specials are offered over lunch hour.

This is only a partial list. Those wanting to drive to Petoskey will find numerous family-style restaurants and still others are listed in the Fun & Sun's Restaurant Guide.

The Ironton Ferry Landing features a good view, specials and Uncle Louie on the piano.

You can build your own sandwich at Mr. J's of Boyne City.

The Jordan Inn is a family operation. Preparing gourmet meals in the kitchen are Tad and Christine Dobrowolski at right, with their son Teddy.

The Dilworth in Boyne City has steaks, seafood, a buffet and dinner theatre.

North has its share of fine dining places

Because of its resort status, Northern Michigan has more than its share of fine restaurants, including some that rival the best eating spots in any major city.

Here's a sampling Fun & Sun recommends:

The Pier, 102 Bay St., Harbor Springs, gets top notch reviews from nearly every patron. Those who get there early enough may get a table by the window, the better to view Little Travers Bay and the immense yachts docked nearby. Has a wide-ranging wine list and quite possibly, the best salad bar in Northern Michigan, featuring, besides the usual host of salads, some truly unusual dishes, such as a raw sweet pea and cashew salad.

Continental entrees include a variety of seafoods, which waitresses are honest to admit are sometimes frozen, and a fairly imaginative selection of chicken, veal, pork and beef dishes all with impeccable service. Prices range from $9.50 on up. Recently, our dinner for three, including wine and tip, was $48. Because of the restaurant's popularity, be prepared to wait for a table on weekends, even if you have made reservations.

The Dilworth, 300 E. Water St., Boyne City. Dine in a restored, turn-of-the-century hotel with lots of shiny dark woodwork and brass chandeliers. Locals say it can't be beat for steaks, also has a new $6.95 buffet. Try a frozen strawberry daquiri or a fresh fruit and chocolate fondue or a huge hot fudge sundae for dessert. Dinner theater in the Blue Room is a bargain.

The Jordan Inn, 228 Main Street, East Jordan. Fine cuisine, all made from scratch by husband and wife team will satisfy the most exacting palates. Entrees, from game hens to veal in garlic sauce range from $12 to $15. Since acquiring a liquor license last year, the wine list has been growing. Great dinner rolls and desserts, too. Call days, or even weeks ahead for weekend reservations.

The Lamplight Inn, Central Lake. A vintage hotel with wide veranda and sweeping lawn. North Country Buffet is a bargain for hearty eaters at $6.95, but diners should arrive early in the evening for freshest choices. Good barbecued spare ribs and country style chicken. Roast beef and vegetables were unimpressive. Beef and seafood combination dinners feature an unusual all-you-can-eat option, for instance, steak and lobster is $9.95, or all you can eat for $14.95. While you're waiting for service, crackers and cheese come gratis. Adequate wine list, but cellar was out of our first two choices.

The Granary, 6 W. Main, Boyne City. If you're looking for a Sunday brunch, this is the place, and at $4.50 per person, it could be the best deal in town. An inexhaustible all-you-can-eat buffet table yields attractively prepared fresh fruit salad, juices, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, pancakes, french toast, apple crepes, fresh breads and rolls, bagels and lots more. On request, waitress will bring delicious eggs benedict at no extra cost. Chances are you've seen better and fresher dessert tables, but you'll be too stuffed to notice. Served 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays.

WHERE THE GOOD TIMES JUST KEEP ROLLING ALONG

Here are some recipes

Nothing says summer like a barbeque

Nothing says summer like the sizzling scent of meat on an outdoor grill. But if you seldom barbecue, it can be less tantalizing and more frustrating as you run from house to grill in search of the matches, the salt or whatever you've forgotten in your efforts to commune with your caveman ancestors. But a barbeque can be easy, says one local chef who barbeques year-round and at least five times a week in the summer. "It's a lot easier than cooking inside," he insists, "because you don't have the mess - fewer pots and pans." He is the chef in the family, conjuring up a secret barbecue sauce to spread thickly over pork chops, kelbasa, ham, chicken or spareribs; all served with grilled corn on the cob and his favorite charcoaled au gratin potatoes.

burns," he says. "And you can use it to slow-cook a large roast if you want. The longer you cook it, the better the charcoal flavor." Webers, as well as other types of closed barbecue grills, have adjustable vents to vary cooking temperatures. But whatever type of grill you use, you can speed up the initial charcoaling time with our secret chef's charcoal starting method: cut both ends from a large coffee can, place in the center of the grill bottom and fill with charcoal. Soak the briquets with lighter fluid and let set five minutes. Resoak and light immediately. The can will concentrate the flames and coals will be ready in 15 minutes. Remove the can with pliers tongs. From then on, you're on your own, but there's a lot more you can do on a grill than just hamburgers and hotdogs. Skilled barbecuers can get fancy with such gourmet dinners as prime rib in salt crust, grilled bass or whitefish, or even bread or pizza. Cooking time varies with each food; it's best for beginners to consult a barbecue cookbook when attempting pork or beef roasts or fish. But beginners and gourmets alike may enjoy trying these barbecue recipes:

SECRET BARBECUE SAUCE
1 jar original flavor Open Pit barbecue sauce garlic salt, to taste
Worcestershire sauce, to taste
lemon juice, to taste
one onion, finely diced

This may seem rather vague, but that's so you can vary the spiciness. For stronger sauce, add more garlic salt, W. sauce and or lemon juice. For best results, marinate meat in sauce before cooking and baste frequently during cooking.

COMPANY POTATOES
Boil 8 medium potatoes in skins for 20 minutes. Cool, peel and slice. Spread one-third potatoes on a large piece of heavy duty aluminum foil. Fry several strips of bacon together with 2 diced onions. Sprinkle one third onion/bacon mixture over potatoes. Dot with butter and cover with a handful of grated Velveta cheese. Layer another third of potatoes and repeat with more onions and more cheese. Repeat. Wrap up foil and cook in Weber 30 minutes.

And, just for fun, here's a recipe recommended by Cuisine magazine in an article on gourmet barbecuing:
ROAST PRIME RIB OF BEEF IN SALT CRUST
4 c. flour
3/4 c. kosher salt
1 T. Worcestershire sauce
1 t. pepper
1/2 medium onion, grated
1 to 1 1/4 c. cold water

1 7-rib standing rib roast, 18 to 20 pounds
1/4 c. flour

Heat coals; bank around a heavy-gauge drip pan. Combine 4 c. flour, salt, W. sauce and pepper in a large bowl, add onion. Stir in enough water until dough almost cleans side of bowl. Knead until stiff but pliable; let rest covered 15 minutes. Sprinkle meat with 1/4 c. flour. Roll salt dough on lightly floured surface into a 20 x 15 inch rectangle. Press dough over back and sides of meat. Place meat rib side down on rack over drip pan; cover grill. Roast until instant-registering meat thermometer inserted in center back of roast away from bone registers 125 degrees, about 12 minutes per pound. Remove from grill; let stand covered loosely with foil 30 to 40 minutes. Remove and discard salt crust.

Ford Motor Company is making "new" 1928 Model A Roadsters.

'New' old cars can almost bring back the good old days

BOYNE CITY - No one can bring back the good old days, but Bob Mathers is bringing back some of the cars.

Mathers, an antique car collector who owns Bob Mathers Ford, is selling specially built, limited edition recreations of Ford's 1928 Model A Roadster.

An affiliate of the company, The Model A & Model T Motor Car Reproduction Corporation, is manufacturing 9,999 of the classic cars. There are 7,000 Ford dealers, so the original plan was for each dealer to get one car.

But Mathers got a head start on his colleagues because he reads antique car club publications and got an early line on the modern day Model A's. So he has reserved four, which are scheduled for delivery late this summer.

Mathers and his mechanic, Bud Sabin, have both bought one of the cars for themselves. But Mathers still has two more to sell. They will cost approximately $6,500 apiece. Mathers said that in 1928 the originals cost under $1,000.

"It's not an antique, but it's a special interest automobile," says Mathers. Unlike the original metal bodied cars, the reproduced Model A's will have fiberglass bodies, which makes them good on gas. The four-cylinder engine helps, too.

Mathers, Sabin, Harvey Varnum and Bob Hooper of Charlevoix started a local antique car club in the early 1960's and are still active in the hobby. A local show is planned for Aug. 10-11.

Why the interest in old cars? "Why the interest in anything that's old?" asks Mathers, who also owns a player piano. "It's just a way of trying to hang onto a little bit of our heritage."

"Most people who collect cars like to get the models that they drove in high school, cars that were old then and could be picked up for about $150."

One of Mathers' first cars was a 1930 Model A convertible, which he'd love to have back today. He paid $150 for it when he was in high school, and guesses that it would be worth $5,000 unrestored.

Charlevoix plans Venetian Festival

CHARLEVOIX - It's Venetian Festival time!

For the 49th year, on July 26-29, Charlevoix will host its biggest celebration of the year, the Venetian Festival.

The name comes because Charlevoix, situated on Lake Charlevoix, Lake Michigan and the Pine River, has an aquatic orientation, just like Venice, the Italian city of canals.

Opening this year's festivities will be the Venetian Queen Pageant at 8 p.m. July 26, in the high school gymnasium. At that time six local girls will appear in a program to select the successor to reigning queen, Pam Boss.

A new event this year will be the appearance of the Bellamy Brothers in concert at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 27. This will take place at the high school gymnasium also. This concert is a benefit to raise money for the East Park Stage in downtown Charlevoix.

Saturday's activities will shift to Bridge Street, where the Venetian Street Parade will be staged. Bill Supernaw, Chairman of the Venetian Festival, and narrator of the parade, promises that this will be one of the finest parades in recent years.

There will be a Venetian Foot Race and a Dress-up and Doll Parade on Saturday morning, before the parade begins.

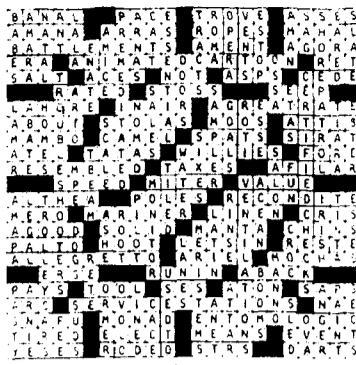

Following the parade, there will be a full day of entertainment in East Park including the following: Epsilon Jazz Band, The Young Americans, Sault Ste. Marie Pipe Band, National Summer Palaestrum, Charlevoix School of Gymnastics, Greased Pole Climb, Canoe Race, Shelter Band, Kindred Spirit Trio, Musical Moods of Fashion, City Band.

At 10 p.m. the Venetian Yacht Parade will feature decorated pleasure craft parading Round Lake. A massive fireworks display will follow, topping off the evening.

Sunday's activities will feature a Pancake Breakfast at the American Legion and Open House aboard the U.S.C.G. Cutter Sundew from 1-4 p.m. Sunday will also feature finals of Open Venetian Tennis Tournament and finals of the 4th Annual Fastpitch Tournament, both of which are sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

From 1 until 5 p.m. there will be a Fly-In put on by Charlevoix Area B.U.F.F.S. All day will be the 3rd Annual Horse Show at Lake Charlevoix Farm.

All weekend there will be a carnival and booths selling all kinds of festival delights in downtown Charlevoix.

Walloon Lake

Should funnel development be limited on crowded lakes?

WALLOON LAKE - What is this "funnel development," and why are so many people talking about it?

For years, Walloon Lake has been populated by the owners of single family homes, who build on lots 100 feet or more wide. If a man buys 100 feet of lakefront property, he gets 100 feet of beach. It's always been very simple.

But with the coming of condominiums to the lake, the question has grown more complicated. Condominium developers buy big pieces of property that are shaped like funnels, that is, wide at the top and narrow at the bottom. The bottom is the lakefront.

Established lake residents are objecting to this practice, saying it's an unfair way of over-crowding the lake. Condominium developers say their form of cluster housing allows more open green areas for everyone to enjoy.

The Walloon Lake Association opposes funnel development and is encouraging townships bordering the lake to adopt zoning ordinances prohibiting the practice.

The association had a lawyer draft a suggested model ordinance and Resort Township, in Emmet County, recently passed a similar measure. Melrose and Bay Townships have also been asked to consider similar measures.

The association has taken a stance that funnel developments are unfair to other lakefront owners. "Funneling really should be regarded as an illegal practice," says Vice President Edgar Lotspeich.

He says funneling is a violation of the "riparian rights" of waterfront property owners, which state that the residents own the submerged land in front of their homes.

Although Charlevoix County, unlike Emmett, does not have countywide zoning, Lotspeich spoke to the county planning commission recently about funnel development.

He told the commission condominium developers shouldn't give their residents "unlimited access to the lake. Boat traffic on Walloon is a serious problem and funnel development, with a boat slip for every owner, will aggravate it," he said.

"We don't think people on the back lot should have access to the lake," he said.

Since Charlevoix County doesn't have county zoning, the County Commission can't pass a law outlawing funnel development. Township governments have that power. But the planning commission can encourage or discourage townships from such action.

Planning commission members had mixed reactions to Lotspeich's proposal. "With a common lakefront, you have no homes lining the lake," said Larry Leavengood. "And the fact of the matter is that most of the lake is surrounded with homes on 100 foot lots."

Walloon Lake already has one condominium project, Wildwood on Walloon. Wildwood developers Rick and Dave Smith last summer signed an agreement limiting the project to 15 boat slips for its units.

County Planner John Hess said, "I think funnel developments in some cases have turned out quite nicely." Lotspeich said he wasn't disputing that, calling Wildwood "lovely," but saying condo owners shouldn't have unlimited lake access.

There are presently approximately 700 homes along the lake. The association is negotiating with developers of Hills of Walloon.

Lotspeich was asked if the lake association would favor less a more moderate ordinance against funnel development. "I'm quite aware that the position I've announced is quite adamant," he said.

"But the reason we have a strong position is the principle involved. But we're quite used to negotiating."

The question is one that promises to be around for a while. "This is an opening to something we'll be discussing here for the next year," Hess said, "the regulating of our inland lakes."

Nude Bathing?

No, Walloon Lake Beach hasn't gone to nude sun bathing, but this boy couldn't help but take it off on this warm sunny day.

WALLOON LAKE VILLAGE

Harbor Springs

The village of Harbor Springs sits upon the harbor formed by Harbor Point, a peninsula one mile in length. The small bay gave the place its Indian name, We-Que-Ton-Sing. Several writers and poets have tried to recapture the beauty of the picturesque village through art and writing, in an effort to explain the scenic landscape. Needless to say, their efforts were in vain.

According to Ottawa Indian traditions, the Mush-quah-tas, a western Indian tribe, were the first inhabitants of the Little Traverse. The Ottawa and Chippewa Indians were also numerous at the time, and for many years the axes were busy for these groups.

The first Indian school was founded in 1827 by Father Pierre Desjardins, the first resident priest. The first one was a log structure, and 12 years later the present church was constructed.

Today, the authentic and legendary history of the area still endures. Research Courtesy of Debbie Melotti Jr.

SURVEY QUESTION

What are you doing to save energy? I don't drive as much. I do a lot more walking and use my own energy. It doesn't cost as much.

Not a darn thing. Why should we suffer when the White House staff and all the richy's are probably not dialing down nothing.

I now cook on a wood burning stove and it provides heat also. It is conserving energy and helping out my money situation.

We have cut down on watching so much TV and a lot of the unnecessary appliances we are going without.

I know what I'd do if I had the money to do it: I'd get a solar house, a diesel fuel vehicle, get land with oil on it and have a refinery and make my own gas and oil.

We dial down all winter and freeze but feel if everyone would cooperate we could get over this energy crisis.

Staying home a lot and going to bed early.

We are cutting down on our family trips and camping closer to East Jordan.

If Americans would cut down on all our luxuries then their would be enough energy for us all. Such as only having one TV in the home and only one vehicle per family. That right there would save tremendously. We have cut down 50 percent in our home.

We bought a smaller house and we save on everything and we bought a Volkswagen.

I sure don't dial down in the winter. It's too darn cold up here in northern Michigan. But I have cut back on the amount of electricity I've used in the past.

We had fireplaces put in our home so we won't have to pay such high gas bills next winter.

I've parked my car till the gas prices go down for one thing, and I don't watch a lot of TV.

We bought a grill this summer and we cook on it a lot and we use 60 watt bulbs in all our lighting in our home.

Making every trip count when I go somewhere. I do all my shopping and errands at once.

We put more insulation in our home so this winter we won't freeze too much if we are limited to our use of gas.

Have turned down the air conditioner to 78 and am suffering the heat more.

Nothing. I do a lot of traveling so I go by bus. It's a lot cheaper and more economical.
