The Mideners have added a studio to the rear of their home. There's room for Walter to work on his sculptures and for Peggy to work on her paintings.

For artist couple

Retirement means freedom to create

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Stepping into the home of a sculptor and an artist who are husband and wife is, as one would expect, a different experience.

On the floor, on tables and chests are life-sized figures, groups of smaller figures, carved in wood or stone. They exude a sense of calm.

On the walls, paintings intrigue the eye and mind.

This is the home of Walter and Peggy Midener, a mile north of East Jordan on highway M-66.

Peggy, the artist, leads the way to their new studio addition to the home. She and Walter have just recently moved to East Jordan to stay although, as Peggy says, half her life has been spent in East Jordan -- the summer half. Her great grandparents, years ago, built their home -- The Elms -- in East Jordan.

"And I've been coming here too, ever since we were married," says Walter.

The two met, not surprisingly, in an art school in Detroit when Peggy was a student and Walter, a sculpture instructor.

"But he was too tough a teacher," Peggy says. "I took painting."

In the years since, Peggy has continued to paint and also to teach painting. Walter became director and then president of the school -- the Detroit School of Arts and Crafts.

During his nine year tenure as president, the school moved into a brand new building and became the Center for Creative Studies College of Art and Design. He has seen the institution with a staff of six instructors grow till it now is staffed with 36. It is a degree-granting college.

The Mideners' simultaneous retirement this past year has brought them and their dog named Jordan to live here.

Retirement, they say, means freedom to sculpt and paint. A look around the studio reassures one there is energy and imagination enough for endless productivity.

Walter has a portrait head sculpture under way.

Some of his elongated figures populate the studio. Outside, through floor to ceiling windows, one sees his large hammered-metal pieces surrounding their patio. They ignite imagination, and one sees -- a king? -- a prophet? -- and there, a goddess, surely.

Though large, they effect a lightness, with convex surfaces cut off along the curve of arm or leg to let space continue the concept.

It is clear Walter Midener, besides being sensitive to the visible, is also affected by the invisible. Full of reined-in feeling, his art focusses on the human.

Peggy's focus may be imagination, though as a teacher she depended for success on a very human understanding of students -- some of whom were children. She says their daughter Wendy helped in this. According to Peggy, as Wendy grew, she led Peggy along in understanding the interests of each age of her pupils.

Wendy's education included three years at Interlochen for music, then drama, which evolved into design studies. Now she is full-time designer for The Muppets on television.

Some of Peggy's work hanging on the walls was prompted by what she was having her students do. Ask her a question about those classes and her blue eyes spark up.

"I always started out with free feelings" she says. "In fact, we did things with eyes closed."

She goes on to explain how she made up stories so the children would have to visualize what to paint. Her effort, she says, was "not to inflict my imagination on their imagination."

Talking to Peggy is practically to hear ideas being generated. Her pictures evolve from all directions -- from outlines of a foot, from a collection of rubber stamps, or from a "story feeling" about war.

Regardless of their variety, there is always an indefinable good feeling in the work of both the Mideners.

The work of each is in private collections, and Walter's sculpture is in museums in major cities in the United States.

Do they give each other helpful criticism? "In 30 years," they smile, "we've learned when to ask and when to be quiet."

Walter thinks artists have to be philosophical but not philosophers. "Not all intuition!" Peggy supplies. "Particularly these days. We have all the awareness of what was done in the past. . . Very serious problem deciding where we are going artistically."

Viewers of art will be happy to watch where the Mideners go artistically.

Council lacks quorum; retirement announced

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan City Council lacked a quorum at its scheduled meeting Tuesday night and when they meet for the makeup session Thursday at 7 p.m. Harry Watson will no longer be a member of the council.

After postponing the meeting until Thursday, Mayor Jim Meredith announced that Watson had resigned from the council effective Aug. 15 because of a conflict of interest.

Watson has accepted a seat on the County Board of Social Services and state law bars involvement with two political bodies at the same time.

Watson, the senior member of the council and had been a fixture in East Jordan city politics for years, both as a councilman and as a mayor.

The lack of councilmen for the meeting Tuesday night was caused by several things, one member had to work, another was ill, another was attending a funeral and Watson had already resigned.

Mayor Meredith said that it was the first time since he'd been involved with the council that they had lacked a quorum.

City superintendent Herman Rasch took members of the press through a brief tour of the community center following the meeting's rescheduling.

City workers have installed iron railings around the bleacher areas and extensive cement patching has been done. Rasch hope to have plumbing done around Labor Day.

Once the plumbing is in, the main floor will be able to be poured. At that point construction should speed-up since scaffolding will then be able to be moved around.

Rasch says the floor will have to cure for about two months then the final surface can be put down. He's hoping for completion shortly after the Christmas-New Year's holidays.

Seniors won't accept center's budget cut

EAST JORDAN - Senior citizens aren't going to take proposed budget cuts lying down.

Approximately 50 East Jordan seniors went to a Department of Social Services meeting at Grandvue Medical Care Facility last Wednesday to voice their displeasure at the planned $9,000 cut in funding for the Senior Center in downtown East Jordan.

DSS officials told the seniors they would give the matter "another look". The efforts of the people to be afected by the cut, the senior citizens, haven't been limited to a local scope, according to senior center director Dorothy Pelton.

"We're starting to get some letters back," said Pelton. "People have written to Congressman Bob Davis, State Representative Ralph Ostling and State Senator Mitch Irwin."

"When the senior citizens can't do anything about it at the local level," said Pelton, "They're going to the top and working their way down."

Accident claims life of EJ man

EAST JORDAN - William Scott Hilden, 18, a 1979 graduate of East Jordan High School, died early Sunday morning when the car he was riding in ran off the road, hit several trees and rolled over.

Two other East Jordan men were injured in the accident.

Dale Bayster, 18, a senior at East Jordan high, is listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Little Traverse division of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Karl Beal, 19, also a 1979 EJ graduate, was released Monday from Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Hilden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hilden of Ellsworth Rd., was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. J.

William Hilden

Arnold, Antrim County Medical Examiner.

The accident took place on Mt. Bliss Road near Webster Bridge Road in Antrim County and is still under investigation.

Funeral services for Hilden were held Wednesday morning at the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church, the Rev. Edward Powell officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan. Vanderwall-Watson Funeral Home in East Jordan handled the arrangements.

Hilden was born Jan. 14, 1961, in Charlevoix and was a life-long resident of the area. He's survived by his parents, a sister, Gail of Boyne City; a brother, Steven, at home; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John James of Ellsworth; and his paternal grandparents, Mr. Lloyd Hilden of Duluth, Minn. and Mrs. Beth Mallers of Ludington. He is also survived by his fiancée Diane Sweet of East Jordan.

Memorials may be contributed to the Wesleyan Church in Ellsworth in his name.

Charlevoix council won't protest

More nuclear waste at Big Rock?

CHARLEVOIX - The city council has decided not to protest a proposal to expand the nuclear waste storage at Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

But city resident Marcie Brown said a group of area residents will act on their own to send a protest letter to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

City council member Shirley Roloff asked her fellow council members to send a letter to the NRC saying: "The city does not favor any expanded spent fuel storage at Big Rock Point because we are concerned about the safety and environment of our community."

The motion to send the letter failed on a 3-2 vote Monday. Roloff and Ivan Whitley voted to send the letter, while Jeff Potter, Ray Woods and Robert Timms voted against sending it. Earl Muma abstained.

Mrs. Roloff felt the city's backing of the protest would lend more credibility. It would also allow city officials to participate in upcoming hearings about the Big Rock request.

The council would have been able to sit in on hearings between Consumers Power, owner of the plant, and NRC officials. The hearings are expected to take place within 30 days.

The council would have had the right to present evidence concerning Consumers' request to expand its storage capacity. City officials also would have been able to cross-examine witnesses Consumers might present.

Roloff said "It's time for cities to start thinking about the people of their community and not just about the six people sitting on the council. This is our community and we have to start thinking about the future of it."

The Big Rock nuclear plant, which is located on U.S. 31 just north of the city, is asking for NRC permission to more than double its current spent fuel capacity. The expansion would not increase electrical output.

Big Rock, which is currently closed down for repairs until at least mid-September, can produce power until 1981 before it runs out of storage space for the spent fuel rods.

Consumers Power submitted its proposal to the NRC on April 23. According to NRC regulations, anyone wishing to file a petition against the proposal must do so by Wednesday.

Marcie Brown said her group had not sent a letter to the NRC as of Monday night because she was hoping that the council would take action. She has now called the NRC office in Washington, D.C., to let them know a letter is coming.

At a meeting last week, 75 citizens, most from Charlevoix, listened to a panel debate between Consumers Power officials and concerned Charlevoix citizens.

Dr. Gerald Drake, of Petoskey, an anti-nuclear activist, said he is concerned about the health of area residents. He said the increase of lymphatic disease and cancer around nuclear power plants should be of utmost concern to Charlevoix and its residents.

David Bixel a representative of Consumers said Consumers has been "a good and proud neighbor of Charlevoix County."

Our bird contest ending

Hurry up, Birdlovers. Time is running out for entries for our Name That Bird contest.

The Charlevoix County Press recently redesigned the bird that dots the "i" on the front page of the newspaper. But we want an appropriate name for our new bird.

That's where you come in. Think up a name for the bird and explain your reasons in 25 words or less. Whoever comes up with the winning name gets two free meals, not including drinks, at any area restaurant.

Send your entry to "Name That Bird," care of The Charlevoix County Press, Box 218, 210 Lake Street, Boyne City, Michigan, 49712. Good luck!

Deadline for the contest is this Friday, Aug. 24.

Back to school '79

Boyer City alumni take varied paths

What's ahead for '79 graduates?

BY DIANNE MURRAY

BOYNE CITY - What does the future hold for the graduates of Boyne City High School's class of 1979? Where will they go, what will they do? Are they prepared to face the "outside world" after their education at Boyne City?

Those were some questions The Press asked four 1979 graduates. Their responses led to these conclusions:

--Of the 107 graduates, less than one-third will go on to college.

--Of those going on to college, most picked a small college.

--The majority of the graduates will stay in Boyne City.

--Marriage is in the minds of most students.

--Sex education should be taught in school.

--Half-days were a "disaster."

--Most students feel they are prepared to go into the working world or the "real world," as some students termed it.

--The general consensus among the students The Press interviewed is that "Boyne City High School was fun!"

Glen Irwin, the high school counselor for 10th, 11th and 12th grades, said it is normal for students to either stay in Boyne City or return after their college education.

"Most of the youngsters are terrified of going down below Traverse City," the 14-year veteran counselor said. "They are terrified of metropolitan areas. Many of them have never been to big cities."

Irwin said students' outlook on life and school have changed drastically since he first started counseling.

"Discipline is harder to achieve. So many kids have the attitude 'nobody can tell me what to do.' This is a big change from past years," Irwin said.

Irwin said drugs, especially marijuana, have caused a decline in student success and achievement.

Irwin said he's not sure if students are prepared to go out into the working world.

"They are given exposure to all kinds of things (in high school). I think the high school is here to give students the most experience it can and at some point the student has to be responsible for the learning and acting out of what they've been taught here," he said.

Most of the high school students he sees come to the counseling office with questions about college choices and applications for financial aid.

Irwin said he tries to talk with every student about what they are going to do once they're out of high school.

"When I get to them, they are at all different levels of decision-making. Some do not even think about it and others have thought ahead for years about what they are going to do with their life," Irwin said.

To help students decide the right occupation for them, the counseling center, starting with the ninth grade, has two tests for students. The Vocational Inventory test measures the student's interests in several different areas.

The second test, the Vocational Aptitude Test checks students' manual dexterity, physical dexterity and hand reflexes which are essential for some types of jobs.

Students in their sophomore year are given value surveys which examine the kinds of things which are important to students and helps them order their values.

Also available at the counseling center is a microfilm which covers 95 percent of job openings available, listed by region, pay, and nature of occupation, Irwin said.

Despite all the available help, students The Press interviewed believe the counseling at Boyne City High School is inadequate.

DAWN TIMS, 18, daughter of James and Shirley Tims of Advance, had good things to say about her years at Boyne City High School.

But, she said, counseling is "lacking." Dawn sought additional counseling from Barb Martin, the counselor for middle school students. Mrs. Martin also assists Irwin mornings with high school students.

Dawn thought another counselor to assist Irwin on a full-time basis would help.

"The high school is lacking in personnel," Dawn said. "Students don't get bad advice but something is lacking. Irwin is bogged down with so much that a student seeking counseling seems to go nowhere."

Dawn has worked at Dr. Arnold Bauer's office for three years as a dental assistant. She will be studying dental hygiene at Ferris State College in September.

Dawn chose Ferris not only for its three-year dental program but also because she will have a chance to play college basketball. If she makes the team she'll be the first girl from Boyne

City ever to play a collegiate sport.

Dawn carried a B average in high school.

While still in high school, Dawn took two classes at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

She took the junior college classes in English and political science. "I could get more out of going ahead and taking college classes," she said.

Dawn now has a little experience of what college life will be like and she said her math and government classes prepared her especially well.

Dawn, whose family moved to Boyne City from Wynadotte five years ago, said she plans to come back to Boyne City after graduating from Ferris State.

Dawn said some classes she would like to see added to the curriculum include metrics, more foreign languages and sex education.

Her goal in life is to "first graduate from college. Then I would really like to go to Europe and work for a year over there. After that I'd come back to Boyne City, settle down and get married, have kids and enjoy life."

GEORGE SHIOTELLIS, 18, is like many other graduates of Boyne City High School. He is still undecided about his future.

Currently working at the East Jordan Iron Works, George said he is going to save money to go to college, possibly this winter.

George's favorite subject in school was electronics. He would like to continue that area in college.

He is the son of George and Judy Shiotelis of 635 W. Michigan Ave. His father is a school board member.

George said he "did not get too much out of the counseling center. I just learned what not to go into" when deciding on a career.

With a "B" average, George said his main interests other than electronics, are wrestling, football and chemistry. He criticized the chemistry equipment saying it should be more modern.

Fourth row: Walter Jensen, James Sutliff, and Carlton Hutton.

New records in cross-lake swim

BOYNE CITY - The winner and loser of the Aug. 20 end-of-the-year Swim School lake swim both set record times.

The mile and one-third swim across Lake Charlevoix from Young State Park to Whiting Park had 17 participating swimmers, ages 15 to 17.

Shawn Amesbury, with a time of 50 minutes, beat last year's record of 55 minutes. The last swimmer in took 90 minutes to swim across Lake Charlevoix, beating last year's record of two hours.

All swimmers participating in the lake swim received a certificate. Other activities of the day included races for all skill levels.

Carol Goodenough, director, said the final swim of the year went very well. She was "extremely pleased" with the records set.

The Community Chest sponsored program offers instruction on the beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate, swimmers basic rescue and water safety, advanced swimmers and advanced lifesaving.

Goodenough said water safety and lifesaving methods are emphasized to all levels of classes.

"With so many of these kids living around the lake, I want to emphasize water safety," she said.

Other instructors for the program are Jodelle Aimesbury and Patty Bauer.

Governor coming for GOP outing

Governor William Milliken is expected to attend a one-day golf tournament and family outing at Boyne Mountain organized by area Republicans for Sept. 15.

The first annual GOP Callithump, jointly hosted by the Emmet and Charlevoix County Republican Parties, will feature a golf tournament with a shotgun start at 8 a.m. The shotgun start means that all of the golfers start from different tees at the same time.

What, you may ask, is a Callithump? Webster's unabridged dictionary edition, defines it "a boisterous parade, with blowing of tin horns and other discordant noises."

Cocktails and a buffet dinner will start at 5:30 p.m. at the Deer Lake pavilion. Organizers welcome families to come and play tennis during the tournament.

Many other Republican officials will be invited, including former President Gerald Ford.

Feds: Do as I say...

We've all heard the saying about the right hand not knowing what the left hand is doing.

For some reason, it seems like the saying is usually being applied to our government.

We have a perfect example right in our own back yard. Earlier this month, a public hearing on the need for more sewers stirred up considerable interest in the East Jordan area. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was encouraging local governments to study sewer needs, and the agency was providing most of the money for the study.

Quite predictably, the study showed that sewers are needed. If the sewers are built, the EPA will again provide most of the $5-million funding (although local governments and taxpayers will still have to pay an estimated one million dollars).

The sewers are needed because septic tanks don't do a good job of stopping polluted water from entering our lakes. In our area, that means Lake Charlevoix and Six Mile Lake.

So the federal government is spending millions of dollars to encourage us to keep our lakes clean.

That's what is so ironic.

Less than two weeks after the public hearing on the sewers, a water quality expert spoke to the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association. He charged that a fish hatchery on the Jordan River was the major source of pollution in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Who owns the fish hatchery?

You guessed it -- the federal government, the same outfit that is encouraging us to spend $5-million to keep the lake clean!

Our apologies

The Press wishes to apologize to any readers who may have felt insulted by an advertisement which was run in last week's edition.

In retrospect we feel the ad, which appeared on page 11, was meant as an insult to the people who worked to keep Boyne City's Front Street open.

The ad was given to someone in our office who does not ordinarily handle advertising, or we surely would have given it more thought before the ad appeared in print. But that's not a good excuse. We saw it before it appeared, and didn't really understand the message until it was too late.

The ad was in poor taste. We never should have printed it, and we are sorry that we did. It's time to "bury the hatchet" on Front Street, not open old wounds by calling people names.

Try a car pool

We would like to draw our readers' attention to our recent offer to print free car pool ads in The Press.

Gov. William Milliken and the Michigan Press Association have issued a joint statement asking the state's newspapers to donate space for car pool ads in an all-out effort to reduce gasoline consumption.

The Press is happy to participate in this program, as we announced a couple of weeks ago. Now we hope our readers take advantage of the offer. So far it hasn't exactly been overwhelming.

Car pools are certainly more prevalent in large cities, but there's no reason for them not to work in Charlevoix County. Many of us work in one town and live in another, which presents a perfect opportunity to share a ride.

Besides saving energy, it will save you money. We live in an area dependent on auto industry jobs and dependent on tourists who drive here in cars. Let's do our part for energy conservation.

Try a car pool ad. Just call 582-6761 and we'll assist you.

data. Will The Press continue its former policy?

3. Will the Front Street Committee use the funds collected for a court battle (which was won instead by an election) now be used to legally establish the principle of public domain over that portion of Front Street in such and attitude in light of the people's mandate?

5. About Aug. 18, 1978, the city commission voted, against protests of the citizenry to finance an impact and engineering study of the tannery condo project by Williams and Works. This study, when presented, cost $8,350.22

I fear that if there is not continued vigilance and participation by an enlightened public that the "big freight train" coming up from the south will indeed run us over.

Consider human concerns too

Editor,

I attended the Wednesday night public hearing in Charlevoix concerning the Big Rock Point nuclear facility's application to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to increase their on-site waste storage. A couple of questions remain in my mind that I feel are essential to be answered.

The issue of allowing Big Rock to store additional fuel and spent fuel rods is the issue of Big Rock continuing as a power producing facility. There has been an intervention request of the NRC by the local concerned citizens, and should this be granted there will be a public hearing with the NRC.

My questions to the NRC are: Does the human concern, fear and dislike of nuclear power factor in at all in the decisions made by the commission? Does it matter that many do not want to accept the risk involved with this type of electricity, and that we are afraid for our children and future generations? Also, does the safety record of a facility, notorious for being one of the most dangerous, have any bearing on the decisions?

In February of this year there were many operational problems with the Big Rock reactor: there was excessive leakage in two containment isolation valves and other leaking valves, a condenser hotwell fill valve failed to open after a plant shutdown, there were unacceptable welds discovered, and seven of 32 control rod drive switches failed to operate satisfactorily during testing at shutdown. These incidents went unannounced to the public, and were found in the plant's status report of March 31.

The questions I have for Consumers Power Co. are: How can we trust that you will inform the public of future potential dangers when your reputation is consistently negligent in this respect?

Also, as controversial and truly dangerous as nuclear power is, why is Consumers Power adamant in continuing its development when there are so many viable alternatives for Michigan, especially in the Charlevoix area with the great expanse of forest land, the constant strong wind, and the powerful Lake Michigan.

When is Consumers going to really begin to develop these and other available technologies for Michigan? Already there are plans for a 25 megawatt cogeneration wood-fueled plant in Hersey. Why not move in this direction in Charlevoix, starting now?

I am writing on my behalf and on behalf of my friends on the Leelanau Peninsula who live just 20 miles across the bay from the Big Rock plant. They do not receive their power from the plant, but do face the same risks of their land, their animals and themselves being exposed to radiation in the event of an accident.

A "Class A" accident would involve evacuation of people within a 50 mi. radius of Big Rock including most of the peninsula. It is unfortunate and unfair that the people who do not want this perilous risk, and do not benefit from it in any way, cannot escape it and seem powerless in the fight against it.

It's good to be back

Three years ago, as a struggling young student journalist learning my trade at the helm of the Walloon Lake News, the last place I expected to be in 1979 was Boyne City.

After all, I was hot stuff, knew it all and was destined for the big time. Probably the New York Times or the Washington Post, maybe with a "hip" paper like the Los Angeles Times. Definitely not The Charlevoix County Press.

I wasn't even sure that I'd even waste my time in journalism. Public relations or advertising would net me more money, I reasoned, and after all, bucks were what counted.

Jim Baumann, at the time splitting the writing-editing duties with Mike Ready at The Press, commented when I told him I was thinking about PR work: "Another one copping out before you ever work for a living."

The inference, of course, was that one should really pay his dues and learn some of the basics before escaping to that glittering world of making someone or something a household name.

I returned to college that fall, and the fall following, and eventually earned an advertising degree. Uncertain about what career direction to take, I "hung out" for a while, working on Mackinac Island, bicycling through Canada and traveling to Colorado for a winter of skiing.

I became disillusioned in Colorado and began wondering if working in the kitchen of a roast beef restaurant and driving a bus was really the best use of four-plus years of college.

A friend from my college days had, in the time following my years in school, moved to New York as president of one of the State University of New York's 64 campuses. Worried that I was wasting what potential I had, he had offered me a job in the public relations department at his school.

From Colorado, in a downbeat mood, the offer sounded good. Off I went.

Academia seemed like an interesting sort of thing to promote. I was to publicize the sizeable, but here-to-fore unrecognized, accomplishments of a first rate athletic program -- and other noteworthy happenings at the school.

Something was missing, though. People were friendly enough but we really had very little in common. Michigan was a strange land to most of them.

Faculty and staff, for the most part, were 10 years or more older than me and married.

Friends from Michigan would come to visit and after they left a void was created that wouldn't ease for weeks. It was clearly time to return to home -- to Michigan and friends.

Public relations wasn't turning out to be such a good thing, either. I got very little feedback on pieces I'd write. Words that I had written were being attributed to others.

That's the name of the game in public relations though. You're not an individual, you're part of an entity. I could understand that, but my writer's ego couldn't accept it.

So, I needed to get back to Michigan and to writing, but where to go?

A professor of mine had a tip, "The Charlevoix County Press may need someone," he said.

The area looked different to me after three years, although I'm sure my perspective had changed more than the area. Where three years ago a summer seemed like quite-long enough to live here, now I could see merit in making it my home.

Two weeks certainly isn't basis for judgment on whether I made the right choice, but my initial feeling is that I did.

Old friends are close, new ones are being made and I'm finding each day to be more interesting than the last.

Feedback is immediate and people seem to be genuinely concerned with events within their community.

I'm sure that all of you won't always agree with me on everything I write, but that's what will make things interesting.

As Dorothy said in the Wizard of Oz, "There's no place like home."

Why I'm moving away

Editor,

Recently I was quoted in your paper to the effect that my family would move soon.

It felt good to know that a lot of people asked me to stay and to keep on fighting Consumers Power, and in particular the Big Rock nuclear plant.

I'd like to put my roots down in this community and most of all appreciate a wonderful school system for my children, but my concern for them and future generations will make it very dubious for me to settle here with a long term future as I had planned.

This all relates very much to the Consumer Power request for more nuclear waste storage for their facility. Until Big Rock is safely "retired," I will be very cautious about investing into real estate or any kind of long term financial securities in this area.

Few seem to care -- but I do, for it is against that value called "American Freedom." I object in the name of future generations that their lives still be ruled by something like Big Rock nuclear plant.

Hogs, lambs at fair

Editor,

This is concerning the article '4-Hers' to exhibit steers at Emmet Fair in last week's paper.

Yes, 4-H members of Charlevoix County are going to have steers at the fair. They will also be showing hogs and lambs which will be sold along with the steers Thursday, Aug. 23, at 2:30 p.m. in front of the grandstands.

This is the first year that hogs and lambs have been in our program. We are looking forward to the support of the community to make our sale a success. See you there!

Whispering will do it every time

Two women were whispering in the store. It seemed to be of great importance. In order not to distract them, I made as if I needed a tin of oysters on the shelf next to them. Reading the label, I cleverly arranged to hear. One was telling the other about a shortage of safety pins. Within a week the price would be out of sight.

I took the oysters to the nearest phone. "Go down to Fox's and buy some safety pins." I told my wife.

"Safety pins? Whatever for?"

"Never mind, just go and get some. Buy several dollars worth."

"I'm cleaning the house," she said. "If you want safety pins go buy them yourself."

Marshall Sayles

"Men don't buy safety pins," I said. "How would it look if I went in..." Women know exactly when to get angry. She hung up. Damn. Another hot tip down the drain.

Sound foolish? Not at all.

Rumors cannot be spread in a loud voice. Whispering is the best attention getter. If you want a person to believe you, whisper. Cupping your hand to your mouth adds authority.

I have also learned that what people whisper behind your back establishes your standing in the community. Even though it might be true.

Several years ago, to test the strength of whispering and rumor, a friend and I stood in front of an old empty building in East Jordan one Sunday morning. When church let out, I began making notes on a clip board while he pointed at the building and whispered to me.

The next morning a man came into my office asking how much I was going to pay for that old building.

Over the years I've learned not to pay any mind to people who whisper. More often than not they're gossiping about someone or telling a tainted joke, which I've heard or will as it makes its way around town.

Back home after that safety pin thing, I explained to my wife that I was just kidding over the phone. Making fun of people who spread pending calamities by whispering. It was all a joke.

"Oh, good," she said. "You've found some oysters. Did you know there's an oyster shortage? I haven't been able to find any for weeks."

Art Finch is home from Lockwood Hospital. He and his wife had Linda and Al Carter and family of Allendale as visitors last weekend.

SURVEY QUESTION
What would you do if you won the million dollar lottery?

Chart a trip around the world. My first stop would be Hawaii.

Go on a trip, buy a house -- I don't really know because I am poor. I wouldn't know what to do with all that money.

Quit my job and travel. Adopt about 20 children and give them a good life.

Give my friends some money and have a good time.

Go to Hollywood and buy my way into pictures.

Buy a business that would make me more money.

Retire and have fun, fun, fun!

Buy a Mercedes Benz and travel in style.

Buy a condominium in Charlevoix.

Go on a cruise around the world and invite my friends to go with me.

Get a facelift and start from there. Buy a new wardrobe from Sachs Fifth Avenue.

Put it in the bank and draw interest.

Buy a round for everyone at Jerry's Bar.

On Monday, a group of volunteer senior citizens went to Mancelona and Kalkaska to tour their senior citizen centers in hopes of bringing home new ideas.

A very large group enjoyed as well as appreciated Andrew Kipapa as he entertained the senior citizens at the Boyne City center Friday with music and an informative talk about Hawaii.

The seniors got right in the swing of it all and were garbed Hawaiian style, including handmade leis and flowers.

Andrew played the ukulele and demonstrated the hula with the help of some of the seniors. He had on display many beautiful, some rare, musical instruments used in Hawaii.

Judy and Don Kenyon and family have returned to their home on 1116 N. Lake here in Boyne City. The Kenyons have been stationed at Selfridge Air Force Base. Don is an Army Recruiter and will now be working in Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Louie Manglos attended the funeral of her brother-in-law Raynor Wellman in Muskegon this week. Mr. Wellman, a former Boyne City resident, was the son of the Tom Tyrells who formerly owned the old Princess Theatre here.

Chris McClees left this week for college. He will be a junior at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Phillips and sons Jerry and John of Dearborn spent a week here visiting his parents the Charles Phillips. While here, Lee and the Don Moores attended the Ham Fest at the middle school in Petoskey and banquet at the Holiday Inn.

The Jack Davis' of Durand and their two grandchildren Brenda and Greg spent a few days camping at Young State Park and visiting his sister, the Marshall Behlings.

Mrs. Ethel Miller and niece of Olivet spent last week visiting her sister, the Arden Hauslers.

Charlevoix County 4-H representatives Keisha and Cindy Crozier of Boyne City, Lisa Michael of Charlevoix and alternate delegate Kathy Kircher of Boyne Falls left this week for Michigan State University in East Lansing where they will be competing with many other 4-H'ers from every county in Michigan.

Guests of Mrs. Gepevie Sutton were her grandsons Brian, Jason, and Jared Sutton of Charlotte, Mrs. Sutton's brother D.K. Smith of Mesa, Ariz., granddaughter Cynthia Frank of Vassar, and Mrs. Helen Holwig, Lansing.

More frisbees, please

WALLOON LAKE Greg Williamson, 16, son of Dave and Vicki Williamson, Walloon Lake, will be attending school this year in Holbaek, Denmark under the Rotary International Exchange program.

Williamson, a junior at Boyne City High School, left July 11. His first two weeks were spent in language school, all of his classes will be taught in Danish.

His host father is a golf pro in Denmark.

He has requested frisbees and baseballs from his parents because of the popularity and scarcity of those items in Denmark.

Williamson is being sponsored by the Petoskey Rotary Club.

Golden anniversary open house Aug. 25

BOYNE FALLS - An open house honoring Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hausler on their 50th wedding anniversary will be held Saturday, Aug. 25, at the Petoskey Snowmobile Club, southeast of Petoskey on Evergreen Trail.

Family and friends of the Hauslers are invited to help them celebrate the occasion.

The Hauslers were married Aug. 27, 1929, in East Jordan and have lived in Boyne Falls since. They operated a cream buying business for 25 years and Mr. Hausler also worked for the Boyne Falls school for 11 years.

The Hauslers have six children, Floyd Jr. of Boyne Falls, Mrs. Dan (Marge) Goldsmith of Petoskey, Mrs. Alan (Midge) Follette of Boyne Falls, Mrs. Merle (Phyllis) Case of Kingsley, Norman of Boyne Falls and Kathy of Boyne City. 23 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren.

Buckholz-Lehto wed

The wedding was traditional enough but the ride through town following the ceremony was a bit unusual.

Paulette Buckholz and Fred Lehto, both of Boyne City, were wed Saturday, Aug. 11 at Christ Lutheran Church of Boyne City and then rode through the streets of town on an old Boyne City fire truck. Lehto is, after all, a Boyne City fireman.

Pastor Douglas Janetzke performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length empire waist gown with a veil made and designed by Bethel Lehto, mother of the groom.

Mrs. Joann Buckholz was matron of honor, Mable Buckholz and Kimberly Buckholz were bridesmaids.

Nord Schroeder was best man, Robert and Dennis Lehto were groomsmen, Mickey Hammtroee and Dennis Christensen were ushers.

A reception was held at the Mogul Inn for 250 guests. Bethel Lehto and her daughter Donna made and decorated a four tier wedding cake trimmed with rose buds and doves.

Jackie & Doug Raymond

Drenth-Raymond wed

Jackie Drenth and Doug Raymond, both of East Jordan, were married Aug. 11 at the United Methodist Church in East Jordan with the Rev. Dan Minor officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Drenth and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Raymond, all of East Jordan.

The bride was given away by her father and wore an ecru satin victorian style gown. Lynda Olstrom, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a rust gown.

Bob Rebec was best man, Vickie Drenth, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, Larry Drenth, brother of the bride was groomsmen. Ushers were Rick McKay, nephew of the groom, and Mitch Olstrom, nephew of the bride.

A reception held following the wedding at the American Legion Hall in East Jordan was hosted by Larry and Eleanor Chanda, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.

Tracie Drenth, niece of the bride, attended the guest book. Gail Batterbee, sister of the bride, served cake; Linda McKay, sister of the groom, served coffee and Dorothy Drenth, sister-in-law of the bride, served punch.

The altar was decorated with baskets of snap dragons and red-rover mums.

The bride's mother wore a coral gown, the groom's mother wore a turquoise gown; both mothers had corsages of coral roses.

Following a wedding trip to Nashville, Tenn., the couple is making their home at Christenson's Ridge, East Jordan.

The bride is employed at Glen's Market in East Jordan, the groom is employed by Petrie Construction of East Jordan.

Business briefs

New office

Dr. John Karkosak has a new office. He is now sharing office space with Dr. Fritz Jordan in Dr. Jordan's building at 337 State Street.

Store purchased

Judie Kostin of Boyne City and Pontiac has purchased the building at 116 E. Water, Boyne City. The building houses Boyne City Floral.

Mrs. Kostin and her husband Bob have vacated with friends in Horton Bay for several years and bought a condominium at the Landings last fall. She said that buying a building in Boyne City was something she'd thought about doing for sometime.

"I'm really enthused," she said. "I love the building. It has lots of potential with the high tin ceilings, hardwood floors and brick interior walls."

Insurance training

Two area residents recently completed a three week license and product training program in Rhode Island sponsored by Metropolitan Insurance Company. Sales representatives Warren Davis of Boyne City and Michael Burr of East Jordan received instruction on all types of property and casualty insurance contracts and coverages with emphasis on Metropolitan's new product line -- automobile and homeowners insurance.

Students of distinction

John Luginbill, 526 N. Lake St., Boyne City, was among the 1,846 graduates receiving degrees from Northern Illinois University in May. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Two Charlevoix County residents were among the 326 graduates receiving degrees during Northern Michigan University summer commencement ceremonies Aug. 4.

Jill Nowakowski, Boyne City Road, Boyne City, received a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration and Mark Hollow, Pa-Beshan Lane, Charlevoix earned a B. S. degree in Conservation.

We're glad you asked!

with Tom Vanderwall

HOW DO I MAKE A CONDOLENCE CALL?

To express your sympathies and console the bereaved, here are some logical "do's and don'ts" which may help you and the bereaved.

1. If you're not really sure whether you should make the call or not, then do it. The family is bound to appreciate it.
2. Remember, the purpose of the call is to express sympathy and offer assistance. Don't make it a long "social" event.
3. Make the visit short -- unless the family asks you to stay.
4. Dress neatly, tastefully.
5. If the family wishes to talk, fine. Be a good listener!
6. A simple "I'm sorry about (the deceased)" is appropriate along with a firm handclasp or brief embrace.
7. Leave after offering to help or doing what you've been asked to do.
8. Call back in a few days; the family will appreciate your thoughtfulness.

We welcome your questions and comments -- privately or publicly through this column.

Future different for each grad

yearbook and the equipment they used is the same as we have now," George said.

Marriage is at the back of George's mind now. He said he's too young to think about that and wants to "live it up" for a while.

"I want to leave Boyne City for a few years to find out what I want to do with myself. Then maybe later I'll come back and settle down."

George would like to work at or own an electronics shop and live in a house in the woods, away from "Boyne City city life," he said.

When asked if he thought his high school classes had prepared him for the outside world, George replied: "It is more of what you put into it while you are there than what you get out of it. I think that most of my friends and I turned out all right. I liked high school."

Theresa Looze, 18, voted "the class skipper" in a mock election during her senior year, said the one thing she would have changed about her high school education is that she would have spent more time in school.

Theresa, the daughter of Fred and Shirley Looze of 131 Court St., is not really sure what she is going to do now that she's out of school. She is now working as a maid at the Boyne Mountain beach house.

"In some ways school prepared me for the outside world with learning about life in general," said Theresa. "In a lot of classes I think I could have gotten more out of them in order to make my life easier now. Some teachers would really help you learn and others would just let you sit in their class room."

Theresa's favorite class was one she took outside of school at Boyne Avenue Greenhouse. She said from this class, she found out that she would really like to go into horticulture.

Theresa who had a "C" average in school, labeled herself as "not an outstanding student but one who did learn a lot from school."

Theresa wished she had asked for more vocational counseling. "I think school should have directed me more so that I would know what I want to do. But, I'm like a lot of other kids, not sure what I'm going to do."

Although fashion merchandising is not the only career RENAE BREIDENSTEIN, 18, has thought of, it is the career she will pursue in college.

Renae chose Northwood Institute in Midland to continue her education. She decided on a small school because she wants to be treated as an individual and because she is used to a small school.

She thinks she is prepared for college and outside life but she'll find out for sure when she goes to college. Like every other student leaving home for the first time, Renae plans to return to Boyne City after her college education. She doesn't think she could live in a metropolitan area. "I was brought up in Boyne City and love it too much not to want to make it my permanent home."

Renae would like to manage or own a clothing store in Boyne City but she is worried that her career choice might require her to live in a city. In that case she might live in Traverse City.

Renae, the daughter of Bob and Sue Breidenstein, 639 Glenwood Beach Road, is not sure if marriage is in her near future or not. "I'll just have to wait and see if I find someone."

Editor's note: Next week, The Press will interview students from some other area high schools.

Boyne Falls gets ready for start of school

BOYNE FALLS - Routine business associated with the opening of school was taken care of Monday night at the Boyne Falls school board's monthly meeting.

Bids for milk, bread and gas were accepted. William Schroeder of Hill, Woodcock and Distel presented the annual audit report and termed the financial condition satisfactory, the student, teacher and board policy handbooks were adopted and lunch prices and the tax levy for the year were adopted.

Lunch prices are unchanged from 1978-79 at 45 cents for grades K-6, 50 cents for grades 7-12 and $1 for adults. Milk prices will be 7 cents for students and 13 cents for adults.

One mill was set aside for debt retirement as the system enters its last year of debt retirement. The total county allocation after the Headlee tax limitation rollback was set at 30.20 mills.

In other action a request to use the school cafeteria for bingo was tabled by the board and superintendent Bill Upton gave a report on a Michigan Association of School Board conference he attended.

Fall is on the way, football starts soon

Leaves are turning orange and red, and football season is only two weeks away.

Boyer City and East Jordan high schools both have practice underway as they prepare for a Sept. 7 meeting at East Jordan, the season opener for both teams.

Each team suffered losses to graduation but both head coaches are optimistic about the season ahead.

"Good numbers are out for the team," said Boyer City coach Bob McCullough. "We had a good conditioning week, and there's good enthusiasm."

Two 1978 starters will be back in McCullough's lineup, halfback-safety Mitch Moore and guard-linebacker Ken Krusel.

Seven other players return from last year's 2-7 team -- Jerry Grice, Dan Kleinschrodt, Craig Erkfitz, Gary Newville, Scott Hausler, Mike Neumann and Blair Cronn.

The 1978 junior varsity team will contribute 16 players to this year's squad.

The Ramblers will open their home season Sept. 14 against Tawas. The Michigan-Huron Shores Conference season will open Sept. 21 at home against Grayling.

McCullough sees the schedule as a tough one. "Gaylord has everybody back, Cheboygan has almost everybody. Tawas was 8-1 last year, and they'll be tough," he predicted. "East Jordan will certainly be an emotional game."

Red Devil coach Frank Holes shares the feeling that the Sept. 7 clash between the cross-county rivals will be a tough game.

Holes lost 18 seniors, two of them all-stars, from his Ski Valley Conference co-champions of a year ago. The Red Devils posted a 4-1 conference record in 1978, and they were 7-1 overall.

The 1978 junior varsity team should ease some of the losses to graduation. The unbeaten, untied and almost unscored upon squad is being counted on to boost varsity.

Senior Duane Cutler, quarterback for most of last year, is the only starter to return in the backfield. Holes expects to switch Cutler to halfback and have junior Delbert Ingalls, starting QB for the last two games of 1978, calling signals this season.

Other top running backs at this early stage of the year are senior letterman Bob Thompson and junior fullback Steve Graham.

"We've worked them pretty hard and they've responded with a lot of desire," said Holes Monday. "But most early practices have been conditioning and we haven't had much chance to see too much."

Holes sees his toughest conference competition coming from Mancelona and Gaylord St. Mary's, last year's co-champions with EJ, and calls Bellaire and Harbor Springs conference "sleepers".

Prospective Boyer City varsity and junior varsity football players wait for coach Bob McCullough's signals as he tells them to wait until his second sound. The athletes put on pads for the first time this season Monday after spending the first week of practice conditioning.

==Sports briefs==

Football fence

EAST JORDAN - The athletic Boosters Club will be holding a work bee to finish building a fence around the football field next week.

Athletic Director Frank Holes asks anyone interested to come to the field during the afternoon or evening next Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon.

Middle school physicals

All Boyer City sixth, seventh and eighth grade students planning to participate in athletics must have a physical examination.

Dr. Richard Mansfield will give free physicals at the high school Tuesday, Aug. 28. Girl's physicals will be from 7 to 9 a.m. and boy's physicals from 9 to 11 a.m.

This will be the only time this year that middle school physicals will be given free. Any questions should be directed to Dave Bricker at 582-7430.

The Boyer City entry in the Northern Light soccer league had the best regular season record but finished second in the league tournament. Members of the team are: back row, left to right, Dave Guzniczak, Jack Gantner, Rolph Bethke, Bill Seases, Bruce Korthase and Jeff Waldner. Front row, left to right, Bob McGarva, Gary Tomkins, John Nagle and Dave LaBreque. Missing from the photo are Chris Todter, Denny Tomkins and George Smith.

Boyer edged in summer soccer

Playing with only 10 men, the Boyer City entry in the Northern Light soccer league dropped a 3-2 contest to Traverse City team in the finals of the league's summer tournament Sunday.

Boyer City had posted a 2-1 halftime lead but, lacking enough players to field a full team, let alone to enjoy substitutions, wore down during the course of the rough game. At one point, shortly before the half, play nearly erupted into fistfights.

Rolph Bethke put Boyer City in front 1-0 but Traverse City tied the game with a successful penalty shot following a hand-on-ball violation committed by a Boyer player in the penalty area.

Jeff Waldner provided Boyer with a one goal margin again when he punched home a ball before the end of the first half.

Fatigue set in in the second period and Traverse evened the score with a hard shot, then went ahead for good with a head shot to the corner of the Boyer City goal.

The loss was only the second for Boyer City. They had finished the league's regular season with the best record, 4-1.

The fall soccer season is scheduled to begin in a few weeks and, according to Boyer City team member John Nagle, the squad is always looking for more players. Anyone interested should contact Nagle at Ski & Shore Properties, 582-6554.

Eveline Township

The regular meeting of the Eveline Township Board was called to order by Supervisor, David Willson at 8:05 p.m. on August 14, 1979 at the township hall.

Present were: Supervisor, David Willson; Deputy Clerk, Marsha Beishlag; Treasurer, Linda Hilderbrant; and Trustees, Wayne Saunders and John Smith. Sixteen guests were also in attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read. Moved by Wayne Saunders to approve the minutes as read; seconded by John Smith; motion carried.

A Treasurer's report was given. Motion by John Smith; seconded by Wayne Saunders, to pay the bills on hand; motion carried.

The Supervisor reported on some updated sewer information from Engineers, McNamee, Porter and Seeley.

Andrew Sherwood, a spokesman for a group of Holy Island residents explained that the 8 ton bridge to Holy Island is inadequate to support gas trucks, fire trucks, etc. They have requested that the township board fund a construction job with the Charlevoix County Road Commission to increase the tonage to 12 ton. Fred Welch from the county road commission gave some cost estimates. John Smith made a motion, supported by Wayne Saunders to fund 1/3 of the project if the road commission will fund 1/3 and the residents the other third. Motion carried.

Fred Welch gave a small presentation to the board on road commission incoming and outgoing monies.

Discussion on a complaint by township residents who want their gravel roads brined entirely. Motion by Linda Hilderbrant to only spot brine by houses as previously done due to the cost that would otherwise be involved. John Smith supported the motion; motion carried.

Wayne Saunders made a motion to publish township proposed minutes in the Charlevoix County Press hereafter; seconded by Linda Hilderbrant. Motion carried. Four yeas votes and one nay vote.

The board gave David Willson authority to vote the township proxy card for the Top O'Michigan annual election.

Motion by Wayne Saunders to adjourn at 11:45 p.m.; supported by Linda Hilderbrant; motion carried.

Moonlight Madness means fun and bargains

BOYNE CITY - Twenty downtown businesses are offering bargains and special entertainment this Thursday, Aug. 23, as part of the community's first "Moonlight Madness" night.

The event is being organized by The Charlevoix County Press in cooperation with the Retail Board of the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce.

Most downtown stores, which ordinarily close between 5 and 6 p.m., will be re-opening from 7 to 10:30 for Moonlight Madness.

Each store will be offering special bargains, and store employees are being encouraged to dress up in their best flannel nightgowns and sleepwear to go along with the theme. Cash prizes will be awarded to the store employees with the best costumes. The awards will be given out at 11 p.m. at The Dilworth.

Adding to the festive atmosphere downtown will be the music of a popular local musical group which will play outside in the middle of the business district. Captain Fishhook and His All-Night Crawlers, a country-rock group, will be providing music from 7 to 9 p.m.

The participating merchants are making contributions to pay for the band and for costume contest prizes.

Part of Water Street will be blocked off between Lake and Park Streets to make room for the band. (The band will also be playing at the Boyne River Inn after the sun goes down.)

Another special event for the evening is a wine tasting party from 8 to 10 p.m. at The Dilworth. This activity is being co-sponsored by The Dilworth and The Press as a fund-raiser for next year's Moonlight Madness.

Stores, bars and restaurants which are participating in Moonlight Madness include The Depot Restaurant, Boyne City Floral, Jake's Shoe Shop, Gocha's Casuals, Schafer's, Bob Mathers Ford, Boyne Country Party Shop, Ace Hardware, Mister J's Restaurant, Emporium Fine Footwear, Great Lakes Energy Systems, Gil Coon's Furniture, The Boyne Theatre, the Granary, Dairy Queen, Sportsman Bar, Fineout's Twin Valley Carpet Center, Bogema Pharmacy and Kaden's Emporium.

If you're looking for bargains, check the ads from many of these businesses inside this issue of The Press.

Different than most

A home for retarded

BY DIANNE MURRAY

BOYNE CITY - The Spring Ridge home, 520 State St., is a group home for the developmentally disabled which offers its residents a unique living situation.

It is a home, not an institution where tenants have the freedom of experiencing a normal daily life including setting their bedtime hours, within reason, and which television show they want to watch.

Spring Ridge, and a similar home in Walloon Lake, Candlewood, are managed by the Summer Tree Residential Center Corporation. The homes are funded by the Alternative Intermediate Services for the mentally retarded. AIS is a state and federal funded program with annual supplemental security income of $135,000.

All residents of the homes must be 18 or older. They participate in both school activities and in-house programs, said Trista Hubbard, executive director and business manager of Summer Tree.

Residents 18 to 25 years old participate in intermediate school district programs at Melrose School. Residents over 25 participate in Community Mental Health workshops at the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix. The programs include pre-vocational skills such as sorting things, counting change and other basic skills.

In-house programs include speech and occupational therapy, social skills, independent living skills training and other self-help skills.

The residents, all from Michigan institutions, are referred to the Spring Ridge program based on where their family lives and the appropriateness of what therapy the program has to offer for the individual's needs.

The resident's family or legal guardian must live in Charlevoix, Emmet or Otsego Counties. Various therapists examine the referrals to see what their team of care workers could do to help each patient.

Spring Ridge houses eight people. There are six men and two women living at the home. One side of the house is barrier free and equipped to handle wheelchair patients.

The home offers a chance for residents to share a bedroom with one person instead of a ward with eight or ten persons. Either the radio or television is on most the time to entertain residents. Direct care workers, on duty 24-hours at the home, offer therapy, help and entertainment.

The emphasis of programs at Spring Ridge is on "normalization." The theme does not imply that all residents will be trained to walk, or that residents can be trained to complete complex paperwork. What it does imply is that a normal environment can serve as a major factor in encouraging and developing "normal" behavior.

By offering a "normal" home life, the staff hopes to encourage and teach acceptance in the community. Skills in socializing like the proper manners in a store and good table manners are taught.

Both the Spring Ridge home in Boyne City and Candlewood in Walloon are among the first in Michigan to be developed as part of the AIS program. They were developed by Alpine Regional Center for Developmental Disabilities.

Housing these people in a private home rather than an institution cuts the cost of supporting them in half, Hubbard said.

Hubbard estimates she can operate her two homes at a cost of about $38 a day per resident. That includes room, board, in-home training programs, and transportation expense.

Hubbard has some ambitious goals for her program. She would like to be able to take one or two residents into a store, for example, and have everyone feel comfortable with the situation -- the staff member, the residents and the clerks in the store.

"We can develop appropriate social skills," she said. "Given enough time and training, even severely retarded persons can learn appropriate behavior patterns."

Food co-op growing

The Boyne Valley Natural Foods Co-op, which began organizational meetings in October of 1978, has grown to include some 30 families in the Boyne City, Boyne Falls and East Jordan area.

The Co-op recently became affiliated with the Federation of Natural Food Co-ops, a non-profit organization based in Ann Arbor.

Kathleen Smith of the Boyne Valley Co-op explained recently that the membership in the Federation amounts to a stockholder-type association enabling members to share in price savings from larger orders.

The Boyne Valley Co-op operates out of members' homes with order meetings held monthly. Bulk orders for the Co-op are delivered to the Grain Train in Petoskey and Co-op members get together to bag individual orders.

The Co-op has a five member board of governors to take care of organizing meetings, bagging orders, placing orders, writing a newsletter and doing other correspondence.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the Co-op should call Smith at 582-2576 or Patty Waun at 582-6047.

Walloon group files lawsuit vs. 'funnelers'

WALLOON LAKE - The strong position of the Walloon Lake Association concerning funnel development, has prompted them to file a lawsuit.

The suit was filed last week in an attempt to halt 47 non-lakefront property owners from using a 150 ft. stretch as access to Walloon Lake.

The suit was filed in Charlevoix County Circuit Court against Hildee Company, John DeLuca, Orielda DeLuca, Hildegarde Schultz and the Walloon View Brae Property Club.

Hildee Co. is the current owner of the lakefront property proposed as a recreational area for owners of lots in Walloon View Brae subdivision in Bay Township on the West Arm of the lake. Hildee Co. had leased the land to the Walloon View Brae Property Club. According to lease agreements, the property would be conveyed to the club upon expiration of the lease.

The Walloon Lake Association filed the suit because they feel that such use of the land by members of the property club would be an infringement on the rights of lakefront property owners and the rights of the public at large. They're eager to preserve the beauty of the lake for everyone for generations to come.

The suit also claims that in developing the 150 ft. stretch for recreational use, the developers have violated Bay Township zoning ordinances.

Specifically, the suit claims, trees and shrubs were removed within 36 ft. of the normal high water mark, and fill was put in around remaining trees without grading. The fill allegedly is killing the trees and eroding into the lake.

The association wants the defendants to hire a professional nursery to attempt to repair and preserve remaining trees, remove fill from around the trees and replace sod, shrubs, and other growth to prevent erosion into the lake.

The suit also requests that the court have the defendants grade the fill away from the lake, remove fill that has eroded into the lake and remove fill that causes underlying muck to ooze into the lake.

The association also asks that the court find Walloon Lake to be a natural resource of the state and to find that the defendants, by their actions, are destroying or threatening to destroy the beauty, purity and clarity of the lake's water.

The complaint filed with the court by the association lists its general object as an injunction against the owners of the land from attempting to impose the 47 lot owners on the lake.

William Heisel, president of the association, commented in a press release to local media: "Previous Supreme Court decisions have prohibited 'funneling' from 'back lots' which have no waterfront property."

"The Michigan Courts have ruled that subdividers who sell an 'artificial' lake access to non-riparian back-lot owners are attempting to profit at the expense of the lake owners, and have condemned the practice," Heisel said.

Heisel said that due to Walloon's slow change of water -- once every four years -- the purity of the lake is in delicate balance.

Heavy powerboat use, Heisel said, could stir up nutrients in the lake and quickly fill the lake with weeds.

As of Tuesday, court officials said the defendants hadn't responded to the complaint filed against them. The Press was unable to reach the defendants for comment.

Fun & Sun

August 23, 1979 Supplement to the Charlevoix County Press

Something's fishy here

Fishermen are notorious storytellers. Everyone knows that. We are pulling a switch though -- stories about fishermen and fishing.

Chartering, hatchery fishing, license information and profiles of fishermen -- it's all in this week's Fun & Sun.

Nobody told us any "You should have seen the one that got away" stories but we did hear about the changing fish population.

Don't look here for anyone's favorite fishing hole either. If you know anything about fishing, you know that no one is going to let that kind of information be known.

As Mearle Scott of M. S. Charters in Ironton told us: "I like to fish around Horton Bay ... oh ... wait. If I tell you that everyone will be there!"

Fishing solitude

Mike Clees has fished all over northern Michigan while vacationing with his family, the Leroy Clees' of St. Clair Shores. Last week he and his father, with several cousins, were trout fishing on the Boyne River in Old City Park.

Perseverance is key to his fishing

Longtime Boyne City resident and fisherman Al Beebe with a few of his nine poles. He keeps them all lined up on a wall with different pound test line set up in each one. It saves time and eliminates the need to change reels or line depending on what his target for the day is, he explains.

BY JON DENISON

BOYNE CITY -- Al Beebe picked up his fishing talents as a boy on Lake St. Clair and over the years has refined them to a fine art.

He moved to Boyne City in 1953 and has been practicing his hobby on area lakes since.

His fishing companion for most of those 26 years has been Elwood Dunlop, who moved to Boyne in 1957. "We got together on a building job one time and have been fishing and hunting together ever since," Beebe recalled.

Although he's done almost every kind of fishing in his day, Beebe prefers to go after bass. "I like every kind of fishing," he explained, "but I haven't stream fished for two or three years. I can't stand the wading and tramping through the woods anymore."

"The bass fishing's been bad this year," he said. "they're all little ones. I went out the other night and only caught one little one."

"I enjoy fishing," Beebe said. "I only wish I could get a little more done." Dunlop is remodeling a house this summer and Beebe has been helping him with plumbing and wiring. The house and the fact that Dunlop has been on jury duty has cut into their fishing time. Beebe's optimistic about the fall though.

"September and October are the best months for bass," Beebe said. "The water's colder and they come out of the deeper water."

"They should be coming into the shallower water now," he said. "I can't seem to locate them though. A fellow should really have a thermometer to check the water temperature. It's pretty important."

"If it's too cold they won't bite. Too warm and they're lazy and won't bite either," he continued. "You have to get them in the right temperature so they're hungry."

"I've seen them down there with bait right in front of their noses and they won't move except to go around it."

Beebe will try his hand at rainbows, perch and catfish too.

"I like to go out catfishing sometimes," he said, "but I haven't had time. There are catfish by the tannery, at the mouth of the (Boyne) river and at the power plant. I hadn't heard of any channel cats in here (Lake Charlevoix) until three or four years ago."

Beebe doesn't limit himself to Lake Charlevoix or to summer.

"I ice fish," he said, "but I don't use a shanty. You just have to dress warm. I keep a few hand-warmers in my pocket."

"We hit a lot of the lakes around here. Porcupine Lake, a little lake the other side of Pellston, is full of bluegills," he said. "It's 90 ft. deep and not more than five or six acres. You set your bait down to about 15 feet and fish at night."

"I fish Paradise Lake for walleyes and pike," he said. "They try to plant walleyes in Lake Charlevoix but they don't seem to catch on."

Perseverance is the key to successful fishing, Beebe claims.

"You have to go out almost every day to find out when they're biting," he explained. "I've had fishing charts before, but either I didn't use them right or they weren't written right."

He prefers natural bait to artificial lures, especially for bass.

"I've never had too much luck with artificial bait. It's okay for trolling," he feels, "but for casting I like natural bait -- minnows, crabs, leeches, crawlers, frogs. Little frogs are real good for bass."

Muskies were Beebe's first catches in his days on Lake St. Clair. He used to use a shanty during the winter on Lake St. Clair and would spear during the months of January and February.

"I'd be on the lake whenever my farm chores were done," he recalled. "I'd go down to the lake in an old Model T truck. Used to take a lot of muskies. We'd take a pound and a half sucker and rig him in a harness. It was all natural movement and they'd really hit at him."

"When the muskies come up," he smiled, "you'd better be ready. I've seen some awfully big muskies. They wouldn't come up where you spear them though."

"I've seen some six to seven feet long," he said. "The biggest muskie he ever caught was 59 1/4 pounds. That was on Lake St. Clair."

"I've caught a lot of bass and pike up here, but nothing that would break a record," he said.

Since retiring from the Boyne City schools in 1972 Beebe has been fishing more. "I couldn't get off work at the right time to fish. I fished more when I was downstate before I got married."

"If I don't start up pretty soon I'll be too old to sit in the boat," he laughed.

Labor Day bridge walk

On Labor Day morning it will be Mackinac Bridge Walk time again.

As has been customary for the past nine years, Governor Milliken will lead the "world's greatest walking event" and be followed by an expected 30,000 persons.

The first bridge walk took place on June 25, 1958, sponsored by the International Walkers Association with 55 persons participating. The IWA still sponsors races for men and women and boys and girls just prior to the general bridge walk.

Bridge walkers stroll from north to south, or from the Fare Plaza near St. Ignace to Mackinaw City.

More than 60 busses are pressed into service to convey walkers from Mackinaw City to the starting point. The fare is 50 cents, children under 12 accompanied by adults, free.

It is important to note that a new location for boarding busses was selected last year. It will be the same site this year, an area just north of the Traverse Bay Woolen Company on Huron Street in Mackinaw City.

However, the Bridge Authority strongly recommends that bridge walkers not rely on bus transportation. Last year more than 19,000 persons used the bus service which begins at 6 a.m. Many of them arrived at the starting point too late for the 10 a.m. deadline for commencing the walk.

best bet

In order to prevent backing up of heavy southbound traffic, bridge walkers are squeezed into a single lane. Then two south lanes are open for automobile crossings and one lane is open for northbound traffic. The procedure has been carried out safely and efficiently during the past five years. It is necessary to prevent backups as long as 10 miles in the Upper Peninsula.

The only dogs permitted to participate in the bridge walk are seeing-eye dogs. This rule is strictly enforced for the convenience and safety of the majority of the bridge walkers.

Also, participants should bear in mind that there are no relief stations on the bridge. Porta-johns will be positioned at the north and south ends of the bridge.

The Michigan National Guard from Detroit will be assisting with traffic and crowd control. This is a demanding command post exercise in that north and southbound vehicular traffic is maintained during the bridge walk.

The National Guard persons are stationed all along the bridge to enforce rules and regulations governing the bridge walk such as: no running or jogging, no roller skating, no climbing on bridge railings, no bicycles or other vehicles, plus a number of other prohibitions.

Boy Scouts will be stationed at the south end of the bridge and passing out "bridge walk certificates."

Kids and fishing

Kids and fishing -- the two seem to go together wherever there's water to drop a line in.

Charlevoix County definitely isn't lacking for places to fish and kids can be found everywhere whiling away the days fishing.

Mark Raymond [left] got lucky in the Boyne River while fishing in Old City Park with his sisters, cousin and uncle, all from St. Clair Shores. No one else in his group had caught anything but he had a nice rainbow trout to show for his efforts.

This group [right] was faring slightly better in the catches department but so far hadn't had any keepers. From the bottom of the picture on the left are Lilly Bolling of Carleton, April and James Lucas of Escorse and [right] Lynn Bolling of Carleton.

The four are cousins staying at the family cottage on Lewis St.

These fish aren't dogs, they're brook trout

BY JON DENISON
ALANSON -- "I raise dogfish," laughed Chris Weston as he held up his yellow labrador retriever. The owner of the Alanson Trout Hatchery does have unusual stock, but dogfish they're not. Weston is trying to build up a brook trout population in a business dominated by rainbow trout. The rainbows are generally easier to raise, according to Weston, but being one of the few sources for brook trout is an enviable marketing position. Weston and his wife Daphne bought the hatchery three years ago. The business is 80 percent wholesale. Weston sells trout that he's raised to three or four inches to trout clubs, people with private ponds, parks and other fisheries. He sells to about everyone except state owned fisheries.

The other 20 percent of the business is from people fishing at the hatchery. Weston supplies poles and bait, and he and Daphne even clean fish for customers. A license isn't needed and success is guaranteed. The hatchery is deceptively large. Passing by on U.S. 31, the hatchery appears to be no more than a small white building. Behind that building, screened from view from the road, lie a network of ponds housing varying sizes of fish. Close to the building, Weston keeps his brood stock-rainbow in one pond and brooks in the other. These are his largest fish, six to seven pounds. Weston collects eggs from his brood stock from the first of September through December. The rainbow eggs take 45 days to hatch and the brook eggs take 60. The trout stay in indoor troughs until they're three to four inches long. The outdoor ponds don't freeze in the winter due to an average water temperature of 45 degrees and the steady movement of 300,000 gallons of water. Because the ponds don't freeze, Weston is able to keep his fish outdoors all winter. From the hatching stage to catching size -- about 12-14 inches usually -- 18 to 24 months elapse. Lots of care is needed to keep the fish healthy while they're growing. Especially in the case of the brook trout. "Brook trout are harder to raise," explained Weston. "They're more susceptible to disease. They're a better quality fish than rainbow."

Weston said, "they eat between 10 and 50 pounds of food a day." The old saying "You are what you eat" is true for fish, Weston said. His fish eat well -- fish meal, shrimp, soy meal, vitamins and minerals. "People get the misconception that hatcheries feed fish liver," Weston said. "It used to be that they did. Liver is good for the fish, it gives them good color. But they tasted like liver." The hatchery has been in operation since the 1920's and is comprised of a series of man-made ponds. Water from artesian wells flows through them. Weston has expansion planned -- a new building for hatching eggs and more fish to fill some of the less populated ponds. While wholesaling figures prominently in his plans, he's eager to cultivate the on-premise fishing side of the business too. "While I'm on the truck delivering," he said, "there hasn't been anyone here to run the fishing." Next year though, Daphne will handle the fishing business while he's delivering. The next time you spend a day vainly casting and reeling and get ready to go home disgusted, think about the hatchery in Alanson. After all, your friends don't have to know where you caught that good looking brookie.

Ginger the watchdog faithfully guards Chris Weston's bread and butter -- his brood fish -- at the Alanson Trout Hatchery. Weston raises both rainbow and brook trout but is shifting his emphasis to brook trout since there currently aren't many suppliers of them.

Fishing: you don't have to be a masochist

BY LEW CARLSON

Trout fishermen make good masochists. Whether it is their Puritanical backgrounds, questionable toilet training, or just abysmal stubbornness, most trout fishermen believe that without suffering there can be no success. Nonsense! And double nonsense!

Oh, I used to believe that pain and discomfort were givens for the real fisherman. I would insist that either one had to get up two hours before daybreak or, worse yet, stumble around after dark if one had any hope of catching the really big ones. You see, trout, and especially brown trout, are supposed to be night feeders. Of course, there are those daylight rainstorms that produce nice trout with garden hackle but certainly I am not going to admit in print that I would ever resort to worms.

More romantic are those midafternoon hatches when, with size 20 flies, the truly great fisherman can net a trophy or two. But the truth of the matter is that most mid-afternoon hatches I have witnessed have been in the pages of Field and Stream or Outdoor Life.

Leroy Clees and his nephew Mark Raymond (behind Clees) were fishing recently on the Boyne River in the Park. The St. Clair Shores resident hadn't had any luck but Mark brought in a nice rainbow trout moments after this photo was taken.

But I now catch big browns and brooks and I do so right in the middle of the day. Nothing gives me more satisfaction than rolling over for several more hours of sleep after my colleagues have stumbled out into the cold, dark morning. And I prefer to spend my evenings eating trout rather than catching them.

The secret of the gentlemanly art of mid-day fishing is a homemade copper spinner that rather closely resembles a number two Mepps. It is cast upstream and retrieved rather quickly back down. The trout hit it not only when they mistake it for a toothsome morsel but also because of a kind of protective reflex action. Sometimes a trout will pursue the spinner for 30 or 40 feet before he strikes it. And sometimes he just has a leisurely looksee before he drifts back into his hole. In either case, spinner fishing usually produces almost constant action on the stream.

There are several factors that influence one's success with spinners. If it is a crystal clear day with no humidity, the fish will be very spooky and not even the fact that you are wading upstream will prevent the little ones from scooting upstream and disturbing the keepers. However, if the humidity is high, it seems to matter very little how bright the day is. Bright but overcast days are ideal.

It also helps to find a stream that has not been fished too heavily with spinners. There are such streams, especially in the northern half of the lower peninsula. Most fishermen think that you need big water to fish spinners, but the smaller the stream, the better your luck will be if you proceed slowly and cautiously. Sometimes you even have to cast while on hands and knees. Modesty almost prevents me from telling you that 2 and 3 pound browns are not unusual in streams that look as if they could not possibly have anything larger than a seven incher. I once caught a four pounder from a stream that was four feet across and from a hole that was so protected by brush that I had to wiggle up to it like a snake.

Extremely light tackle is needed for this kind of fishing. A five-foot fiberglass rod, an ultra light, openreel, and a four or six-pound line are ideal. The cast is also important. It is impossible to cast overhead or even sidearm in small, brushy streams.

I am not sure what the proper name is for the cast I use, but it is done by holding the rod straight out in front of me, about two feet over the water. I then wiggle the tip of the rod upwards, and then sharply downwards. At that moment I release the line, using the tip of the rod to catapult the spinner in a straight trajectory only two or three feet above the surface of the water. It often is not necessary to cast far but accuracy is very important. With practice one only needs a two or three-foot opening in the brush to cast the spinner to spots that even the worm fisherman cannot reach.

Not even my homemade spinners always catch fish, but I do know that they are very effective and that they allow me to fish at a very leisurely pace and at a time of day that I consider most civilized.

Ernie's sister shies away from questions

BY DIANNE MURRAY

WALLOON LAKE -- Sunny Hemingway Miller usually shies away from news reporters and the public limelight, but she enjoys autographing her book about her famous brother Ernest.

On a recent Saturday, she was at Schafer's store in Boyne City for one of the autographing sessions. Her book "Ernie: Hemingway's Sister 'Sunny' Remembers" was available, and she happily autographed each copy sold and chatted with people who came to see her.

She described her afternoon in Schafer's as "Not a money maker for me but for the bookstore. I just like talking to the people who come in."

Store owner Gary Schafer was happy too. "When Sunny is here our business is always good," he said. This was the second year that Sunny has autographed her book at Schafer's.

At Schafer's Sunny talked with the visitors who came to buy her $7.95 book and have her autograph it. She spoke with them about her arthritis which has slowed her down a little, "but not enough to make me stop playing badminton," she said.

She said "1979 has been a good year because I've enjoyed meeting a lot of new people."

Sunny, whose real name is Madelaine, still spends her summers at the Hemingway cottage, Windemere, at Walloon Lake. During the winter months she lives at Deerfield Beach, Fla.

The book was published in 1975 and has since been bought and read by many Hemingway buffs -- as well as friends who remember the Hemingway children growing up at their cottage and spending summers at Walloon Lake.

Sunny describes herself as "the rough-necked sister who always tagged along with Ernie." She said Ernie was not only her big brother but also her best friend.

Sunny, one of six Hemingway children, was born Nov. 28, 1904, the fourth child of Grace and Clarence Edmonds Hemingway. Marcelline, Ernest and Ursula were the older children, and Carol and Leicester were younger than Sunny. The four older children were born at Oak Park, Ill., their home. Carol and Leicester were born at the Walloon Lake cottage.

Many of the Hemingways' weekends were spent in Horton Bay. The old Dilworth Inn and the general store in Horton Bay were some of the favorite spots the Hemingway children visited. Ernest was married in the Methodist Church there.

Because Sunny has been bothered by reporters and others interested in knowing details of "the life of the Hemingway family," she is reluctant to talk about her personal life.

Her book, "Ernie," spells out a lot about her life growing up in the Hemingway family. The book is filled with 130 family album photographs. Many of the pictures are family portraits showing the family at Walloon Lake.

Sunny said Walloon Lake, Horton Bay, Boyne City and surrounding communities have changed a lot since she grew up here, but she still "loves it just as much as I did when I was young."

Kitt Rodkey, of Lansing, poses with Sunny as she autographs her book, "Ernie: Hemingway's Sister 'Sunny' Remembers," at Schafer's bookstore last Saturday.

Area art show Aug. 25

As summer draws to a close area outdoor art shows will disappear from view. Area art-lovers need not worry for awhile though, Saturday, Aug. 25, the Walloon Lake Art Club will hold its annual show behind the Village Store in Walloon Village in the Walloon Landing storage building.

Members of the Art Club will exhibit and offer for sale work done this summer during club meetings. The show has been a summer event for more than 20 years.

Matthew, librarian, of Crooked Tree Township Library at Walloon, attended a District Library Advisory Council meeting at Alanson last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Anderson celebrated a quiet 42nd anniversary at the home of their daughter Judy, and Willis Planck and family. Dinner guests were their daughter Barbara of Lansing, Mrs. Anderson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kruse of Aurora, Illinois, and Glenda Planck and Norma Cramer both of Boyne City.

Jerry, Kay and sons, Ryan and Shawn of Gladwin visited his uncle, Ralph and Pat Taylor last Saturday night. They arrived at their home in Gladwin last Thursday after living in Salinas, Calif. for the past two years. Jerry at one time lived in Walloon.

Larry, Barb and daughters Shelly, Kathy and Chris Stark, of Cedar Springs, visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. Bob Yaich last week at their home on North Shore Drive. The Starks son, Todd, who backpacked in the U.P. with a church group returned to his grandparents home on Sunday in time to celebrate his birthday.

Arden and Delores Barnhart, of Warren, are vacationing in the area for two weeks. Delores is the sister of Willis Planck.

Pat Taylor

Have a veteran take you fishing

BY JON DENISON

Mearle Scott, owner of M. S. Charters in Ironton, sets up one of his electric downriggers on his boat Tica. Scott uses two of the downriggers and two to four outriggers to give him the capability to cover 150 to 200 ft. of water.

IRONTON -- Mearle and Barbara Scott were fishing in the Charlevoix area even before they bought Scott's Boat Livery next to the Ironton Ferry in 1959.

"We fished for perch in 1948," said Mrs. Scott. "They were still catching cisco here then."

The Scotts sold their boat livery in 1972 and 20 days later they bought a 23 ft. Penn-Yan for fishing. Chartering was going to be a sideline for Scott -- kind of a hobby. But sometimes it seems like a full-time job when the fish are biting.

The Penn-Yan can accommodate four fishermen, though three is ideal. Since Scott started chartering six years ago, a regular group of customers has developed.

"I have one group from Chicago who've been with me every year," Scott said.

Most of his customers come from downstate or out-of-state and are summer visitors to Northern Michigan. When they had the boat livery-restaurant (now named the Ironton Ferry Landing) they had a varied group of customers from spring through fall.

"We were busy as soon as the fishing started," recalled Scott. "Then we had mushroomers who would stay in our rental cabins. There would be a slight lull until school let out. Then we'd be busy until Labor Day."

"After Labor Day we'd have a little older crowd and be busy right until it was too cold."

During winters they rented shanties to ice fishermen and Scott did snowplowing. Fishing was always their chief interest, though.

Scott fishes in Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan. "It was terrific in Lake Charlevoix last year," claimed Scott. "It's kind of dead now, so we've been in Lake Michigan more this year."

"I haven't been skunked in Lake Michigan yet this year," Scott said. "But I've been skunked once in Lake Charlevoix."

His first charter this season was May 25 and he'll keep out until the weather gets nasty in the fall. "We had the boat in the water until the end of October last year," Scott said. "But if people get sick from rough water you don't get too much repeat business."

The storms and early darkness that time of the year, coupled with the fact that most people are busier working in the fall than in the summer slows the chartering down.

Scott and his charters fish for a variety of fish over the course of the summer. "We fish for lake trout earlier," he explained, "then I have a group that comes up for bass in July and another bass group in August."

This time of the year he tries for both lake trout and salmon.

"I set up for both this time of the year," Scott said. "I try to have one rig set up for salmon all the time later on."

The salmon, according to Scott, are real silvery in color this time of the year and are better eating now than later on. "They're the same as coho," he said. "They're better eating now before they get 'strong.'" Scott said that at times he uses the ripper catches for his garden rather than eat them.

Scott has already had some luck with salmon this year even though it's a few weeks earlier than usual for them. July 29 he got two salmon, one 18 pounds and the other 21 pounds. A friend of his caught a 25 pound salmon.

"I marked some (on radar) in the middle of June in Lake Charlevoix," he said. "Some salmon stay in the lake all year. One fellow caught one ice fishing."

Both Scott and his wife say the fishing isn't as good as it used to be. "I used to go out in about 100 ft. of water and the bottom 15 ft. would be solid fish," Scott recalled. "I've only run into one big school this summer."

"It used to be that we'd limit out every time we'd go out," said Mrs. Scott, "not any more."

Scott sees gill-netting as the chief cause for the decrease in salmon.

Less success hasn't dampened his enthusiasm any, though. He still fishes whenever he can. "I go out on Lake Michigan whenever it's not too rough," he said.

"I like to fish when the fish are suspended," he said, "you don't tear up your tackle."

He uses two kinds of rigs when he's out, fin-skis or floating outriggers, and downriggers. "I can cover 150 to 200 ft. wide with four outriggers and two downriggers," he said.

His equipment purchasing days may be over, though, unless the downturn in the salmon population is reversed. Scott says he has everything he needs to catch fish, and with the experience of a lifetime of fishing behind him his success is bound to continue.

Don't forget your license

So you want to go fishing?

Well, make sure you have a license. Most marinas and tackle shops sell both one-day and annual licenses and they're also available at Department of Natural Resources offices.

One day licenses cost $1.25 for the first day and $1 for each additional day. They're good for all species of fish and for both residents and non-residents.

If you want an annual license, good through Dec. 31, the cost is $10.25 for non-residents and $5.25 for residents. Trout stamps are an additional $5.25 for either residents or non-residents.

The one-day and annual licenses are good for both husband and wife. Kids under 17 don't need a license.

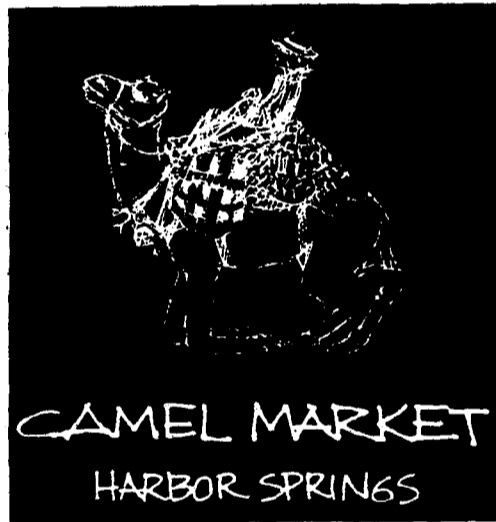

If you don't have a license you can ride in a boat with a fisherman, but you're not allowed to assist him in any way. You can't net fish for him, bait his hook or even row his boat unless you, too, are licensed.

Fishing digests are available wherever licenses are sold and are free. If a dealer doesn't have any copies left the DNR is always happy to supply them.

The digest has all the information concerning minimum size, season beginning and closing dates, and specific information about extended seasons or fish size requirements for certain streams and lakes.

DNR officials suggest looking over the digest carefully before hitting the water.

Harbor Springs

The village of Harbor Springs sits upon the harbor formed by Harbor Point, a peninsula one mile in length. The small bay gave the place its Indian name, We-Que-Ton-Sing.

Several writers and poets have tried to recapture the beauty of the picturesque village through art and writing, in an effort to explain the scenic landscape. Needless to say, their efforts were in vain.

According to Ottawa Indian traditions, the Mush-quah-tas, a western Indian tribe, were the first inhabitants of the Little Traverse area. Ottawa and Chippewa Indians were also numerous at the time, and for many years the area was home for these groups.

The first Indian school was founded in 1827 by Father Pierre Dejean, the first resident priest. The first one was a log-structure, and 12 or 15 years later the present church was constructed.

Today, the authentic and legendary history of the area still endures. Research Courtesy of Dante Melotti Jr.
