WHAT IS THE VALUE OF A FULL-SERVICE FUNERAL?

Since the beginning of time, man has publicly viewed and buried his dead with dignity and ceremony. Although rituals differ, the funeral service meets the needs of the survivors, the living, as well as providing for the deceased. What are some of these needs and how does a full-service funeral fulfill them?

Realization: First, it declares that death has occurred and it offers testimonial to a life well-lived. Denial of a death is common. The very fact of a funeral and the viewing of the body (or casket) facilitates the realization of that death.

Emotional expression: The full-service funeral is of deep psychological significance to the living. Sorrow-shared is sorrow-diminished. The full-service and the facing-of-facts is the first step toward emotional adjustment after bereavement. For more information about the full-service

The new savings and loan association in Boyne City will look like this when construction is completed later this year. The owners of the locally owned savings and loan held a groundbreaking ceremony Tuesday to celebrate construction starting on their new building. Work commenced immediately after the ceremony. Present at the ceremony were incorporators Dorian Adgate, Dr. Arnold Bauer, Andrew Bogema, John DiMartino, Hal Hill, Gertrude Neymark, Arthur Poineau, Donald Toffolo, James White, Arch Wright Jr., Richard Wulff, Randy Lightfoot and Robert Blanchard. The building will be located on the site of the old City Hall at the corner of Lake and State Streets. Completion is tentatively set for Dec. 1. The savings and loan association, formerly called Charlevoix County Savings and Loan, has applied for a name change to the Lakewood Savings and Loan Association.

Barden progress

Construction on the F.O. Barden and Son building will be completed in November with expanded facilities for the office and showroom. Aldwyn Barden, in the middle, his son Edward and workman Barry Riddle survey the progress. The lumber company was destroyed by a fire May 12 but never shut down operation.

More class offerings at Boyne Falls school

BOYNE FALLS - Increased workloads for four teachers has resulted in expanded course offerings at Boyne Falls schools this year.

No new teachers were added to the staff but three staffers who were working part-time last year have been given additional responsibilities and a fourth returning teacher will be teaching a new English class.

James Crowell, who taught three hours of science last year, will be counseling students two hours a day in addition to teaching three hours.

Diane Kelly taught two hours of music last year, and this year she'll teach three classes - beginning and senior band and elementary music.

Jane Millar, a Spanish teacher for one hour per day and teacher aide for the special needs class last year, is also teaching elementary art and a junior high exploratory program this year.

In the exploratory program, students will rotate classes every six weeks taking spanish, art, home economics, arts and crafts, physical education and beginning band.

Bernard Corpe, a physical education and science teacher last year, is teaching an English class that includes debate, speech, forensics, broadcasting and discussion and conference. The classes will be mini-courses each lasting nine weeks.

Bike-a-thon to aid children's hospital

EAST JORDAN - Riders are being sought to participate in a bike-a-thon to benefit St. Jude Children's Hospital. The bike-a-thon is planned for Sept. 15 in East Jordan.

Riders enlist sponsors to donate a sum of money for each mile ridden. Prizes will be donated to riders reaching certain dollar levels of donations.

St. Jude Hospital is a research center specializing in childhood cancer and other diseases of the young. It is supported primarily through public contribution.

Entertainer Danny Thomas helped found the hospital and is one of its chief fundraisers.

Sponsor forms for the East Jordan bike-a-thon are available at several local stores, churches and schools. Bev Joseph is chairman of the local bike-a-thon and can supply additional information. Her phone number is 536-2630.

RR color tours go to Petoskey

Consider impact of new schools

East Jordan and Boyne City school officials probably breathed a sigh of relief this week when they learned that two new Christian schools fell short of projected enrollments.

It's not that the public school officials are opposed to Christian education. They just don't want the quality of education at their own schools to suffer. That could happen, since every lost student means about $1,500 in lost state aid.

As it is, there will be about 33 students attending the two new schools, 15 at Jordan Valley Christian Academy in East Jordan and 18 at Boyne Valley Christian Academy in Boyne City. Since some of the students came from other school districts, the financial effect on Boyne and East Jordan will be apparently minimal this year.

The East Jordan Christian school was hoping for an enrollment of 40. That would have meant the loss of $30,000 to $50,000 in state aid for the public school, and certainly would have resulted in staff reductions.

Although the state aid cuts were relatively mild for the public schools this year, they could be much more pronounced next year.

Christian school organizers were hurt by the recent downturn in the economy and local factory layoffs. With tuition ranging from $450 to $550 a year, the schools undoubtedly would have attracted more students in prosperous times.

Also working against the Christian schools is the very fact that they are new to this area. Parents of some prospective students are apparently taking a "wait and see" attitude. If the schools do a good job of educating their students this year, and if the economy improves, enrollment could increase dramatically next fall.

There's nothing wrong with that, of course. If some people in Boyne City and East Jordan feel strongly that their children attend Christian schools, it is good that they are available.

And the element of competition might help make both schools try harder -- just as it makes competing newspapers, banks and hardware stores try harder. Introducing competition into the educational system was a major argument used by those who supported the "voucher system" of state aid payments in the 1978 state elections. (That proposal was defeated by voters, or we surely would have seen more students enrolling in the Christian schools here this year.)

There may be positive and negative results of the establishment of the Christian schools in our area. What is important at this point is that the public schools pay attention to the movement that is afoot and plan for it as much as possible.

Will a decrease in state aid affect the overall quality of education? This question and others must be considered. School officials can't just cross their fingers and hope. They and their school boards should be getting very interested in seeing how the new schools evolve.

Work together

Message to Castle Farms, Marion Township

Through my years of growing up and going to school, I was always told to "work together."

I was told that by working together problems could be solved easier and quicker; holding things in could never do you any good.

This is my suggestion to Pyramid Productions and the Marion Township board on their problems regarding concerts at Castle Farms Music Theatre: work together and talk things out.

Marion Township has filed suit against Castle Farms for failure to comply with an ordinance which requires 60 days notice of any gathering over 500 people. Castle Farms officials claim they apply for their permits within reasonable time but that the township changed provisions in the ordinance and a "discrepancy between us and them has occurred."

Both sides have valid reasons for concern. The Marion Township board has to protect its citizens' health, safety and welfare. When people complain about the concert-goers causing property damage or people trespassing on their land, Marion Township is supposed to have the solutions. And with as many as 17,000 people attending some concerts, it's not easy to control them all.

For Castle Farms and Pyramid Productions, the complaint is that in the concert promotion 60 days advance notice might as well be 700 days, because it is usually impossible to know that much ahead of time. They also say the concerts are good for area businesses and there's no where else in the area for concert entertainment.

Recently in an interview Marion Township Supervisor Bob Potter said he sees no reason why he should talk with Castle Farms officials.

"I do not try to communicate with them and they do not try to communicate with me. As far as we are concerned they are in violation of the ordinance, and until it is settled we have nothing to talk about," Potter said.

Obviously, the biggest problem between these two groups is lack of communication. Here are two groups fighting each other in the courtroom, yet they cannot sit down and discuss some of the problems which might be simply solved by talking.

Some complaints could be bargained outside the courtroom arena. Castle Farms has made attempts to improve past problems, namely traffic congestion and restroom facilities. Both the law enforcement agencies and the health department say that compared to past years, the health and traffic problems are much improved. One police officer described Castle Farms as "calm."

For as few concerts as Castle Farms schedules the benefits to the community far outweigh the problems.

Castle Farms hopes to continue to make improvements. Next summer, facilities will be added, and earth-mounds 20 feet high will improve visibility for people inside the fence and act as noise barriers for property owners around the music theatre.

I don't have any easy answers for Castle Farms and Marion Township officials. But Castle Farms Music Theatre is apparently going to be around for a while and why waste time, money and effort fighting a battle in the courtroom?

Why doesn't everybody read?

Back to school. Labor Day is gone and children across the country are returning to classrooms. Many of them unwillingly.

I'm sure that time has embellished the memory, but I don't remember ever really being unhappy about returning to school. But then I never found school to be too hard.

Millions of children aren't as fortunate as I was though, and they do find school difficult, even impossible. Why?

From talking to teachers and counselors over the years (my mother is both) so I've known several of them, I get the impression that the bulk of learning problems faced by youth today are caused by an inability to read.

A single factor could never be pointed to as THE reason for a child not being able to read. Some of the causes are biological. Early education specialists are finding more and more learning disabilities to be caused by impaired hearing, faulty eyesight and many more previously unknown factors.

Many of the causes aren't biological, however. They are outgrowths of a changing society.

A friend of mine, the director of a journalism program in New York, did a series of guest columns for a local newspaper citing television as one of the chief degenerative factors in modern society.

He conceded that the medium had many good attributes and that potential existed for TV to be the greatest learning tool of all time.

The problem, he theorized, was that kids are now watching TV for their chief source of entertainment and as a result they aren't reading.

The absence of reading as a popular pastime among our young isn't a problem that will reverse itself. If anything, it will worsen as a generation of non-readers bear children of their own. Ignorance, as they say, begets ignorance.

What is the answer? The state of New York has tests, given to all public school students, to determine whether a pupil has enough grasp of rudimentary learning skills to proceed to the next grade and, presumably, a higher level of learning.

The Regents, as the tests are called, are one step that one state has tried. Reversing the trend of multi-course offerings is another possible remedy some systems have started in an effort to improve the basic skills of their students.

A broad-based curriculum is nice in many ways, but not when "Appreciation of Egyptian Art" takes the place of "Reading 101."

Reading has to be fun. If a child finds that he can get the same amount of enjoyment, or more, from reading that he gets from watching TV, the war is won.

Indoctrination is a possible answer. Children need heavy exposure to the printed word if they're ever to find that wonders of the world are theirs to discover with books.

Rev. Dale Turner, of the East Jordan Missionary Church, put it in an interesting way when he described the one room school concept planned at his church's new school. Said Rev. Turner, "We'll have two rooms, one a 'learning to read' room, the other a 'reading to learn' room". Amen, Rev. Turner.

All bloat, no column

(Dear Editor: It will probably come as a great blow when I say there will be no column this week. And, as you are recovering from the shock, others may dance a jig, thinking I have passed away or perhaps died.)

(It troubles me much that I am not able to offer my usual highly intelligent and sobering in-depth analysis of the daily activities hatched around town. It also disturbs me that the Pulitzer Prize people will have nothing to judge this week.)

(If some should ask, you might say that due to Labor Day you had an early deadline and that I missed it; or that in the process of moving your office from Lake to Main Street the column, through human error, was dropped and washed down the drain before you could snatch it back. Editors are noted for being poor snatch backers.)

(These are good, sound believable lies that will be accepted if a serious face is kept during the telling.)

(Since I always put my heart and soul and poor schooling into each column for which you compensate with coffee money, I must tell you the truth. Let it go no further or I shall suffer shame. I am a poor shame sufferer.)

(During the week we had a party. One of those things where everyone brings a dish to pass. Someone brought sweet corn and someone brought baked beans. Being a sweet corn and baked bean person I ate long after the affair had broken up.)

(This was a mistake. Within an hour

Marshall Sayles

I began to bloat. The same as a cow does when he eats sour grass or something.)

(It is very difficult to write anything about Boyne City upon a bloated stomach. Especially with the sweet corn fighting the baked beans and with the beans dead set upon defending themselves.)

(Years ago I wrote a column about East Jordan while under the influence of a bloated stomach. The shame lingers.)

(Come to think of it, it was not baked beans. It was sweet corn and pork chops, eaten at a Rotary Club picnic. It was something of a first. I became the only Rotary Club member ever to be bloated.)

(If my stomach had not been demanding my full attention this week I would have written something on the rise and fall of Front Street, or why Boyne City has so many banks while nobody seems to have any money.)

(My regular column will be back next week, I assure you. For I shall never again eat sweet corn and baked beans in any month that does not have a K.)

CONNECTIONS
COURSES BY NEWSPAPER

Charlevoix County Press

Connections is being offered in conjunction with North Central Michigan College and East Jordan Community Education. It starts Sept. 20 in Your Community Newspaper.

Tom Vanderwall, wife Janice and five-month old son Adam will be meeting the community during an open house at their funeral home this Sunday.

Funeral home remodeling done; Vanderwall plans open house

EAST JORDAN - After five months of remodeling and adding on, the Vanderwall-Watson Funeral Home is finally finished.

Now new owner Tom Vanderwall wants the entire community to see it, so he is holding an open house this Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

"I hope everyone comes so we can meet people, they can meet us and we can show them what we've done," Vanderwall said.

Vanderwall bought the former Watson Funeral Home, located at 621 Main St., from Harry Watson on April 15. After 59 years of family ownership, Watson is no longer involved with managing of the facility.

Assisting Vanderwall in running the funeral home are his wife Janice and his parents, Elmer and Donna Vanderwall.

The most striking change in the funeral home is the addition of the Oak Chapel to the rear of the building. The chapel seats 175 people for funeral services.

The interior of the home has been totally remodeled with new paint, wallpaper, furnishings, draperies and carpeting. On the main level of the home are the parlor, where visitations are held; the arrangement office; and the casket selection room, which was moved from upstairs.

The entryway for the funeral home has been moved to the south side of the building. A covered walkway leads from the street to the entry.

Upstairs is a new coffee and smoking lounge, an operating room, and a new business office.

Throughout the building are speakers for a music system called Musical Presence, which plays a variety of background and chapel music.

Even the outside of the home, as well as the Vanderwalls' residence next door, have been re-sided.

Vanderwall was born and raised in Muskegon, attended Muskegon Community College and served an apprenticeship at Clock Funeral Home in Muskegon from 1970-73.

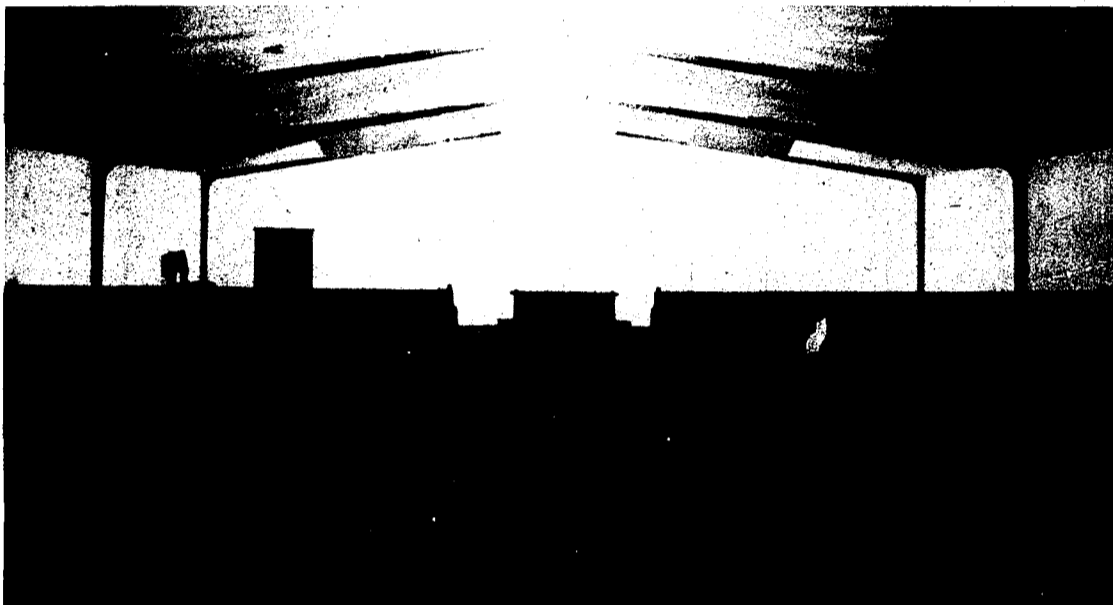

He then attended the Indiana College of Mortuary Science in Indianapolis, earning his certification as a mortician in 1974.

Since that time, he served as director of the Martinson Funeral Home in Suttons Bay.

Since moving to East Jordan, the funeral director has become quite active in community affairs. He is a board member on the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Rotary Club, the city housing commission and the ambulance service. He and his wife are members of the Bell Tower Reformed Church in Ellsworth.

His father Elmer is retired from Sears in Muskegon and is building a home in East Jordan while assisting with the operation of the funeral home.

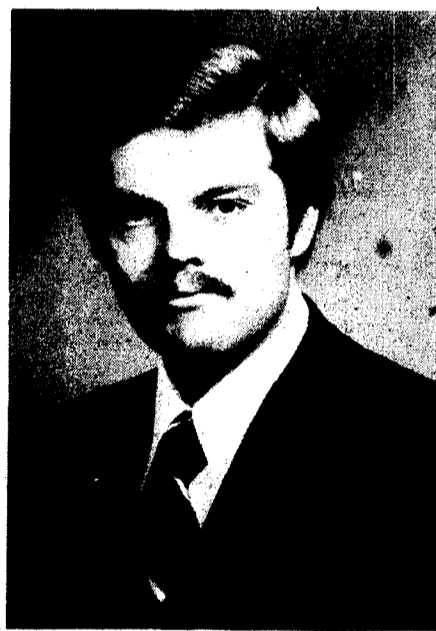

Now that his remodeling project is complete, Vanderwall says, "I want to be very much available to schools, community and church groups to show films and talk about death, grief, what funerals are all about, and telling children about death." He will also be establishing a library of books to loan which deal with these subjects.

The Oak Chapel has been built onto the rear of the funeral home. It seats up to 175 people for funeral services.

Swedish student arrives for year

The Richard McKinnon family now has an exchange student living with them. Thomas Rosendahl, 17, from Stockholm, Sweden, will be living here for the school year.

Dorothy Bishaw of Chicago visited her father Francis Bishaw last Sunday. Kim Barnett and Lori Hillaker were home for Labor Day weekend from Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

Mary Psaff from Midwest City, Okla., Margaret Wray from Remus, and Michele Beers and daughter Kara from Maryland were all recent visitors of Mrs. Ruth Jarvis.

Christina Register is visiting her grandmother in Lansing for awhile. Nancy Lacroix called and asked me if I would write this message for her in my column. I think we should all think about how we could better our community for handicapped people: "I think it would serve the community in many ways if they would support the handicapped", Nancy said. "This could be done partly by providing us with public transportation, better sidewalks, and plowing needed roads in the winter and by forming groups that we can get to. It would be nice if things would change in our community for we who are handicapped, not because we are handicapped, but because we are people. Just like all, other people we want to live, not just exist."

Neta Gerard recently returned from Little Traverse Hospital where she had surgery.

Fat Clarence's Calorie Factory

Fat Clarence's Calorie Factory is located at the bridge on highway M-32 in downtown East Jordan. The restaurant was purchased by Clarence and Gail Weaver last year, and their new menu, featuring "garishly garnished" creations of all kinds, has been a big hit with the folks in the East Jordan area.

"Assembly line" lunches are popular with the luncheon crowd. Different specials -- from beef stew to barbecued ribs -- are featured every day from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The varied lunch menu also includes such offerings as a club sandwich, The Fabulous Frank, and The Hulk -- two garishly garnished quarter-pound hamburger patties. The Calorie Factory is open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week, serving a breakfast, lunch and dinner. Stop and say hello to Fat Clarence!

Precut home open for viewing

A new home being self-built by Roy Bruneel will be open for public inspection this Sunday.

The home is located at 1447 Tompkins Road, Boyne City. Hours will be from noon to 5 p.m.

It is a 1 1/2 story home, one of many designs available through Miles Homes, a pre-cut, do-it-yourself home marketer.

The home is being shown before actual completion so that visitors may examine the quality of materials which go into the home.

In addition to inspecting the home, visitors will be able to gain first hand information from the owner-builder, Roy Bruneel, who will be present to answer questions.

The Miles Homes Company pre-cuts and bundles many of the difficult parts of the home to speed up construction and reduce on-the-job material waste. Blueprints and step-by-step instructions are also provided.

In order to reach the site of the open house, visitors should take Deer Lake Road south from Boyne City to Tompkins Road, the first road on the right, and proceed right. Go one mile west. The home is on the right just prior to Pleasant Valley Road.

Insulation hazards book available free from state

A free booklet on home insulation is being offered by the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation.

The booklet was prepared by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. It describes the hazards of different types of insulation, explains how to figure the amount you need to use, offers insulation and safety tips for the do-it-yourselfer, and suggests precautions for people buying insulation.

William Ballenger, department director and Michigan coordinator for product safety information, arranged to have the booklets distributed free in Michigan because many citizens are now considering insulating their homes to cut winter fuel costs and conserve energy resources.

"The Consumer Product Safety Commission has found that some home insulation can be a fire hazard, a skin irritant, or even cause respiratory problems from formaldehyde odors which can persist for months after installation," Ballenger said.

Copies of "Questions and Answers on Home Insulation" are available by writing to: Insulation Booklet, Department of Licensing and Regulation, P.O. Box 30018, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

REAL ESTATE SEASONAL

There is more activity in real estate in the summer than the winter and a seasonal downturn begins with the start of the school year in every region of the country.

A recent study shows that, nationally, sales typically jump nearly 30 percent in March over the January and February levels. Activity then continues to expand, although at a more modest pace, throughout the spring, reaching a peak in June and July.

Sales then continue slightly below that peak until the beginning of the school year when they decline, typically 15 percent in September. This starts a seasonal downturn which continues until a low is reached in December. The decline from the summer peak to the December low averages 43 percent. Each section of the country generally reflects the pattern of the whole U.S. but some regions differ in timing and magnitude of the seasonal moves. For example, the winter sales slump is more severe in the Northeast which is made up for by a high summer peak.

This year's club championship Saturday at Ye Nyne Olde Holles golf course will feature some added attractions -- a long ball driving contest and an association with Parrish Chevrolet.

The first annual Parrish Chevrolet Open will be played in conjunction with the club championship and the use of a 1979 Chevrolet for 30 days will be the grand prize.

The Parrish championship will be determined by low-net score (with handicap), and the club championship will be decided by low actual score.

After the conclusion of the tournament, a long drive contest will be held. Contestants will have the opportunity to hit five drives for $5.

Three contestants will be given trophies for the driving tournament. The club championship tournament will feature trophies and prizes in three flights -- championship flight, first flight and second flight.

Parrish Chevrolet plans on continuing its association with the tournament on an annual basis.

Approximately 50 golfers are expected for the 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. tee-off period.

Banquet concludes year

BOYNE CITY - A banquet at the Depot Restaurant in Boyne City concluded the year for the Boyne City Women's Slow-Pitch League last Wednesday night.

Officers for the 1980 season were elected and awards were given honoring this season's accomplishments.

Umpire John Yell served as master of ceremonies for the banquet and District Slow-Pitch Commissioner Bob Keck was the guest speaker.

Sandy Vansteenkiste, Linda Caverly, Gerri Weber and Debbie Erber were voted president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer respectively for next season.

Outgoing president Debbie Erber awarded the league championship trophy to Kaden's, owners of an 11-1 record and league champs for the past three years.

Ski and Shore received the runner-up trophy for finishing second with an 8-4 won-loss record.

The Northern Michigan Umpire's Association voted the Foxy Ladies the Team Sportsmanship award, the second time in the last three years that the Foxy Ladies have claimed that title.

Ski and Shore pitcher Sue Peters was chosen as the league's most valuable player by the managers and umpires. Kaden's shortstop Becky Aimesbury won the best infielder award while Ski and Shore left fielder Martha Kowalski took the best outfielder honors.

Teresa Warren of Ski and Shore won the batting crown for the second straight year with her .619 average. Becky Aimesbury was runnerup with a .608 average.

The Umpires' Award, given to the team spotlighting ability and sportsmanship by the Northern Michigan Umpire's Association, was awarded to Ski and Shore.

Boyne City news

Old map raises Front St. questions

BY DIANNE MURRAY

BOYNE CITY - A 70-year-old city map found in an attic recently has raised new questions about the feasibility of building condominiums between Front Street and Lake Charlevoix.

According to several people who have seen the pre-1910 map, it shows a 66 ft. right-of-way for Front Street from the city limits to Ron's Market. That's nearly three times wider than the current blacktop width of about 24 ft.

But City Attorney Harvey Varnum said he is dubious about the current validity of the map.

He said old plat maps show all streets to be 66 ft. wide, but later court decisions have held that the legal width of any street is what is currently being used.

"What the plat map shows does not mean anything because even though it might say (Front Street is) 66 ft., the only thing that matters to the court is the current width - what part of the road is used now," he said.

City resident William Benser found the plat map in his attic. It was left from the days when his father was a city surveyor. Benser did not want to reveal details of the map until it is verified by county officials. Benser brought the map to the attention of Save Front Street Committee members and Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick.

Carol Judkins, one member of the committee, said the true width of the street may have to be settled in court.

Attorney John Michael of Charlevoix, formerly employed by the Save Front Street Committee, said he has not seen any proof to show that Front Street is less than 66 ft. in width.

The significance of the street width is that city zoning requirements require a minimum distance between the street and the condominiums. This could affect the number of proposed condominium units to be built between Front Street and Lake Charlevoix.

According to zoning requirements, the condominiums must be a minimum of 10 ft. from the road right-of-way. Between the lake and the condominiums there must be at least 25 ft.

City Manager Tim Clifton said the city would not take any action to look into the road width matter until Lake Associates, developers who say they want to build 108 condominiums, submit preliminary plans for their complex.

Dave Smith of Lake Associates said he had not heard of the road width discrepancy and could not comment on the matter until he investigates its validity.

Dave Smith said they plan to "start serious planning this month" in regard to the Front Street condominium complex.

New staff, programs greet BC students

BOYNE CITY - Changes in staff, programs and facilities greeted Boyne City students when they returned to school this week.

Boyne City High School is expected to reach a student enrollment of 550, about the same as last year. Principal Rick Casper said two new teachers have been added to this year's teaching staff.

Dixie Ashton is hired for a one year contract to teach reading. She will replace Kathleen Rozycki. Mrs. Ashton and her husband Bud live in East Jordan, where Bud is the high school principal. She is a 1971 graduate of Western Michigan University where she received her bachelor's degree in education. Mrs. Ashton earned her master's in reading at Grand Valley State in 1976.

A Boyne City woman has been hired as the part-time special education instructor. Peggy Suedhoff graduated from Indiana University in special education and also received her master's in education there.

No new teachers have been added to the middle school faculty but a new program for seventh and eighth graders will be starting this year.

Principal Jack Cyr said enrichment classes for seventh and eighth graders will be combined in order to offer more class selections.

Each student takes two hours of enrichment classes such as gym, shop or home economics. By combining the grades students will still go to their normal five hours of classes and then have two hours of enrichment classes.

Sam Sharp has been hired as a Title I reading and math aide and as a noon aide. Sharp, a resident of Boyne City previously was an aide at Charlevoix Elementary School.

No new facilities have been added but several rooms are completed and will be in full operation this year.

"This year the home economics and science rooms will be completed," Cyr said. "Cooking and sewing will take place in fact rather than on paper."

Enrollment at the Middle School is expected to be around 300.

First graders will have a new teacher,

Katie Bourdon. She was a student teacher last year at Charlevoix Elementary School. Katie and her husband Craig, who is a music teacher at Vanderbilt, live in Petoskey.

Gordon Howe transferred from teaching seventh and eighth grade social studies to teaching fourth grade at the elementary school.

Other staff changes were made. Chris Skornia is teaching the morning section of kindergarten. She taught first grade last year. Nancy Anthony, an aide last year, is now the Title I math teacher.

No new programs have been added but the first grade reading program has been improved, Principal Ed Snyder said. He said revisions to the original program have been added because of suggestions from several teachers.

Two elementary school teachers are new and two have moved to the building from elsewhere in the Boyne system. Enrollment is 560 at the elementary school this year.

Kathy Kopeland, a 1963 graduate of Michigan State University, is the new art teacher. Kathy and her husband Richard are moving to Boyne City from Mount Clemens. Kathy has six years of teaching experience at Clarenceville, East China and Clintondale Junior High Schools.

4-H day

Whiting Park was crowded with goats, pigs, cows, chickens and rabbits Monday as 4-H Club members celebrated their Fall Achievement Day. One hundred and fifty entries were judged in categories ranging from animals to crafts to vegetables. In the picture above, Rikki Greek, 9, from Charlevoix, proudly carries her ribbon winning rabbit.

Teachers agree to contract

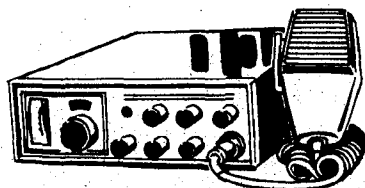

BOYNE CITY - While teachers in Petoskey and Traverse City are striking, Boyne City teachers reached a tentative agreement with the school board late Friday afternoon and school started on schedule Wednesday.

Details of the agreement which included teacher's salaries, fringe benefits, length of school day, and other issues, could not be released until ratified by the Northern Michigan Education Association, representing region teachers, and the school board.

Both the NMEA and the school board are expected to approve the contract in about two weeks, said School Superintendent Rich Kelly.

Boyne at East Jordan

First game is a big one

Even though it is a non-conference game, the Boyne City - East Jordan football season opener Friday night will be an emotional one for the fans and players of both towns.

When the Red Devils and Ramblers square off at 8 p.m. on Boswell field in East Jordan, it will be the second game between the two schools since they renewed their old rivalry last year.

The neighboring schools didn't play for 10 years from 1968 to 1977 when they were both in the Twin Valley School District.

Last year, on Boyne's field, East Jordan edged the Ramblers 12-7 in an exciting game that saw Boyne fumble four times -- once on the 11 yard line in the last minute of the contest.

Both coaches, Bob McCullough of Boyne City and Frank Holes of East Jordan, expect an exciting game Friday.

"Boyne is a well-coached team," said Holes, whose Red Devils will be playing without 18 graduated members of last year's Ski-Valley conference co-champions. "Bob McCullough and Paul Pfahler do a good job. I expect they'll have some tricks up their sleeves."

"I saw Boyne City scrimmage and they didn't throw one pass," Holes said. "So I'm kind of looking for them to come out winging it Friday."

Holes will be counting on a lot of young players to fill the vacancies caused by graduation. The outlook is brightened by the fact that the junior varsity squad last year outscored its opponents 375 to 6 enroute to an undefeated season.

Boyne's Ramblers will have nine lettermen on the roster Friday but only two of them were starters last season -- Mitch Moore and Ken Kruzel.

Most of the rest of the squad is from last year's junior varsity which posted a 3-4 record.

"East Jordan looked like a real good team," said McCullough after viewing the Red Devils scrimmage last Friday. "They have good strong backs and a good defense."

"When they threw they looked good," McCullough continued. "They're a solid team."

McCullough expects an emotional game Friday and feels that "it's a good rivalry."

Boswell Field is located on highway M-32, one half mile south of Deer Lake Rd. The cost for admission is $1.50 for all ages.

May be able to platoon

Ramblers blessed with depth

BOYNE CITY - "We've had a couple of large classes with kids of equal ability," that's how Rambler coach Bob McCullough explains the unusual depth on the 1979 edition of Boyne City High's football squad.

"We'll have 20 kids who will play considerable football," McCullough said, "compared to 12 to 14 in past years."

At this early point in the year McCullough can't be sure if he's blessed with an unusual amount of talent or if he just has a lot of mediocre players with the same amount of ability. He does know though that the team won't run out of gas near the end of games, as was the case in a few games last year.

The Ramblers traveled to Mancelona last Thursday to scrimmage Mancy, Roscommon and Frankfort, three teams that have been in the playoffs or just missed them in the last two years. McCullough had a favorable impression of the Ramblers' performance.

"We held our own pretty well," McCullough said. "I saw a lot of good things, things are encouraging."

"We made some mistakes too," conceded the head coach. "The scrimmage was a good opportunity for two hours to look at some situations. There was a heck of a lot of football going on."

The scrimmage showed McCullough that his squad is fairly well balanced. A look at the tentative starting lineup for the Ramblers shows that a lot of people are going to be sharing time in both the offensive and defensive backfields.

McCullough has tabbed Mitch Moore, one of two starters returning from last year's squad, as a starter at one backfield spot and given Jerry Grice the nod as starting quarterback.

Outside of those two though, the backfield spots are wide-open.

The scrimmage gave McCullough an opportunity to try out several different people on the line as well and he was pleased with what he saw.

"We don't lack that much with Bob Mathers at center, Bob Prebble and Marty Moody at guard, and Paul Barden and Bruce McGeorge at tackle," said McCullough. "They're all pretty much of equal ability. We haven't had that situation lately. We've got some pretty good kids."

"We had hoped to go with two platoons (different players on the offensive and defensive squads)," said McCullough, "with three or four players going both ways. We still feel that maybe we can go with three to five."

"Two platoons would help us a lot," McCullough explained, "we wouldn't wear out some people."

Like any coach, McCullough isn't making any claims to greatness this early in the season.

"If they keep working we'll be pretty good," he cautiously admitted. "We won't get blown out of any games."

"I think this team is probably better than last year's," McCullough said.

The week before the first game was going to be spent on the fine points of the game, said McCullough - kicking, pass defense and all of the other intangibles reserved until the basics are smoothed out.

McCullough sees a lot of tough games on the schedule this fall. The opener against East Jordan he terms "a very emotional game".

Gaylord, McCullough predicts, will be tough and has almost everyone back from last year's team. Cheboygan has almost everyone back and Tawas, coming off of an 8-1 season "will be tough" says McCullough.

Bigger, more powerful Devils young but talented

EAST JORDAN - Inexperienced players will be filling a number of important positions in the Red Devil lineup this fall, and the team's success will depend on how quickly the youngsters adapt to varsity play.

Last year, the Devils were 7-1 overall in Frank Holes' first year as coach. Their 4-1 Ski Valley Conference mark was good for a share of the title with Mancelona and Gaylord St. Mary.

Gone from last year's team are 18 seniors, including two all-starters and three of the four members of the offensive backfield.

When you lose players like that, it's easier to be optimistic when you've got an outstanding group of underclassmen. And that's exactly what Coach Holes has. Last year's junior varsity won all seven of its games and gave up only one touchdown while averaging more than 50 points a game.

"It's just a matter of whether our younger kids can make the transition to varsity ball," Holes said. "If they come out and respond well in a game situation, we'll be all right."

"If they don't, we're not going to be up there among the leaders. But if they do, we could be really tough. Right now, I'm guessing we'll be about .500 for the season," Holes said.

Where last year's team was small and quick, Holes said this year's squad will be "a bigger, more powerful team."

He said the Devils will again rely mainly on their running game. "But I think we'll be throwing more than we did last year, he said. "Our quarterback is throwing well and our ends are catching the ball better."

"We're going to have to throw the ball," he said, joking. "Otherwise, people are going to jam us with an 11-man front line."

The quarterback this year will be junior Delbert Ingalls, who started the last two games of the 1978 season so Duane Cutler could try his hand at being a runner.

Cutler did well as a halfback, catching a touchdown pass in one game and gaining 130 yards in the other, and that's the position he'll play this year.

Starting at another halfback spot will be Bob Thompson, a speedy runner who would have been a starter last year if an injury hadn't slowed him down.

Alternating at fullback will be Bill Spence and Steve Graham, two good-sized sophomores to score 33 touchdowns for the junior varsity last year.

The offense won't have to work quite as hard if the defense is as good as it was last year. The defense gave up only seven touchdowns in eight games in 1978. And in a scrimmage game with Elk Rapids last week, Holes said the defense looked better than the offense.

YOUR COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER

Vol. 13, No. 45

Thursday, Sept. 6 1979

25 cents

The East Jordan Chamber of Commerce's renovation committee has tentative architectural drawings of various improvements that could be made in the downtown area. One of the proposals is a kiosk, or sign-notice display area, that could be placed in the downtown area. The Chamber's hopes are for community service organizations to sponsor the different improvements.

One possible improvement to East Jordan's downtown area being studied by the Chamber of Commerce's renovation committee is the installation of combination benches-planters-street lights. The committee recently had an architect make drawings of different additions to beautify the downtown area.

Pastor council appointee

EAST JORDAN - Kenneth Hagen, 37, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church will be filling Harry Watson's Third Ward seat on East Jordan's city council.

Mayor Jim Meredith recommended Hagen to serve until a November election can decide Watson's replacement and the council approved that recommendation at Tuesday night's regular meeting.

Hagen, who moved to East Jordan in June of 1978, said he volunteered to fill the position at the urging of town-people.

"I was contacted by several people in the community," explained Hagen, whose appointment becomes official when he takes the oath of office. "They seemed to have trust in the way I think."

Hagen, who's married and father of three, is going to play it by ear as far as running for the seat this November.

In other action, the council approved a motion to amend the budgets of the police and fire departments. $1200 for the police department and $1115 for the fire department, to purchase repeater units for radios in a police car and in the ambulance.

The units allow communication through the car radios using a mobile walkie-talkie unit. This allows the user of the vehicle to utilize the range of the car unit rather than be limited to the short-distance capabilities of their alternative, two or five watt walkie-talkies.

The repeaters are effective with up to a two mile distance between a hand-held walkie-talkie and the car radio.

Council also heard suggested amendments to city codes. One concerned the city's inoperative motor vehicle code, shortening the length of time needed before a vehicle can be declared inoperative. A provision of the amendment would allow cars to be registered as historical vehicles.

Another suggested code revision concerned dangerous structures and the steps the city would take concerning elimination of the safety hazard posed by any structures deemed to be dangerous by city superintendent Herm Rasch or other designated city officials.

The suggested revisions were tabled for further study until the next council meeting.

The council discussed whose responsibility it was to clean the entrance road to Sportsman's Park on Water Street and later Rasch suggested that the council check into making the entrance to the Park an official road since currently the plat doesn't show it as such. Councilman Bud Kenny will try to arrange a meeting with officers of the Sportsman Club.

Renovation committee has tentative sketches

EAST JORDAN - Plans for the renovation of downtown East Jordan are still in the preliminary stages, but with the completion of architectural drawings of some possible improvements, efforts are moving forward.

Sketches by Petoskey architect Nicholas White, made possible by a $1,000 Chamber of Commerce donation, will be shown to residents and to representatives of community service organizations in hopes of stimulating local interest in the business district renovation.

White's drawings show a kiosk, a European style announcement board; a gazebo; a bench-planter and street light unit; and walkways that could connect Main Street with Spring and the Memorial Park lakefront.

Duane Chappuis, a member of the Chamber of Commerce renovation committee - the group spearheading the movement for downtown improvements - emphasized that the sketches are all still tentative.

"These are all examples of what could be done utilizing street-scapes," Chappuis said. "It's all tied into the building remodeling and restoration" which a number of city businesses are planning. An old fashioned theme is being followed.

White's drawings don't deal with specific buildings, they're strictly overall street and park improvements. The renovation committee isn't trying to meet any timetable for downtown improvements.

"We're trying to accomplish as much as we can this year," Chappuis said. "What we don't, we'll continue next year."

The improvements to the downtown area, said Chappuis, are expected to be funded without state or federal monies. The sponsorship of individual projects, such as planters and the gazebo, by service organizations and maintenance by city crews would make that possible.

The next step in the improvement campaign will be to try to interest service organizations in becoming involved in the project, Chappuis said.

The drawings will soon be displayed in public places around the city.

New voc-ed programs offered

EAST JORDAN - Additional course offerings and some new faces greeted students when they returned to school Wednesday morning.

Three new vocational programs at the high school and a new activity period at the middle school are the additional courses offered, while each of the three school buildings has two new or reassigned teachers.

Juniors and seniors have the opportunity to take a course in health occupations taught at Grandvue Medical Care Facility under the direction of Marian Sutliff. Geriatric care is the basis of the program and the course also gives a general survey of all hospital operations.

The head cook of East Jordan's schools, Mrs. Arlene Hammond, will teach a commercial foods course emphasizing bulk food preparation, kitchen operations and management.

The third new vocational offering is a clerk-typist program. Clerical office skills are the point of emphasis for this course. Use of office machines, typing, filing, accounting and general office management will all be covered.

Gerald Hawes, one of two new teachers at the high school, will teach the clerk-typist program. Hawes, an Air Force veteran, comes to East Jordan from the Benzie Central school system, where he taught vocational courses.

Pamela Schoen, first year teacher, is the other new high school teacher, she will be directing the learning center.

Twice weekly, at the end of the day, middle school students will have an opportunity to pursue an activity of their choice. Photography, enrichment reading, and sports are just a few of the many choices students will be able to pick from during the activity periods.

Eleanor Sadowski returns to her sixth grade teaching responsibilities after a year's leave of absence from the middle school. Bonnie Brunett will be in charge of the reading program for the sixth, seventh and eighth grades for the first semester of school, taking Pam Allen's spot while she is on maternity leave.

The middle school will be having a new boiler installed sometime within the next three weeks. After studying the possibility of repairing the old boiler, the school board decided to buy a new unit. A hole will have to be cut in the roof of the middle school so the boiler can be lowered into place.

Donna Tison, a middle school teacher last year, will be the teacher for the elementary school's junior primary room. This special class is a preparatory room, for students not quite ready to enter the first grade.

Mary Louise Johnson, a part-time teacher and tutor last year, will be a kindergarten teacher for one-half day this year.

Enrollment figures won't be official until the fourth-Friday of the month, the day enrollment is used to determine state-aid. But last week's projection was that enrollment would be about the same as last year.

Roughly 540 students were expected to enroll for classes in the elementary school, approximately 300 middle school students were anticipated while between 400 and 415 high school students were awaited Wednesday morning.

Enrollment less than expected at new Christian schools

The slumping economy and competition from other similar schools has kept enrollment lower than originally expected at the two new Christian schools in Boyne City and East Jordan.

Probably the biggest surprise was the low enrollment at Jordan Valley Christian Academy, which is being started by the East Jordan Missionary Church.

As of last Friday, 15 students were enrolled - well below the 40 students which Rev. Dale Turner estimated the school would attract a month ago.

The Christian school enrollment is especially significant to public school officials, because the public schools lose about $1,500 in state aid for every student they lose.

The Jordan Valley school falling 25 students short of its projection means more than $87,000 in state aid will go to public schools - although all of the students may not have come from East Jordan.

The school, which is non-denominational, is still accepting applications. Tuition is $550 a year with the cost reduced by $50 for each additional family member enrolled.

Rev. Turner said there are a number of reasons the enrollment is less than expected.

"Things are snug at the plants," he said, "We had some people say they weren't able to handle tuition right now. Others said they wanted to wait and see how it went."

Rev. Turner also credited the new Boyne Valley Christian Academy in Boyne City and a Christian school in Kalkaska for taking some of the students away. He said his school might pick up additional students during the year.

The school will have two rooms - a "learning to read" room for younger children and a "reading to learn" room for older children.

Teachers are Glen and Mary Ellen Parker and Rose Boring, all East Jordan residents. The school will teach the Accelerated Christian Education curriculum, developed by Dr. Donald Howard of Dallas.

The Boyne Valley Christian Academy, under the direction of Rev. John Beard is sponsored and operated by the First Baptist Church at 875 State St., Boyne City.

As a first year school, Rev. Beard did not expect enrollment to be much higher than the 18 students now enrolled.

"We have room for 25 but 18 is what we expected for our first year. We may have another five students coming during the year - we're not sure," he said.

Beard speculated that enrollment is lower because it is a new school. He said the cost of tuition, which is $550 per year for kindergartners and $700 for grades one through seven, did not seem to deter parents from enrolling their children.

The fee is $50 more than the Christian School in Traverse City, but Rev. Beard said parents who are used to driving to Traverse City will save money on gas.

One teacher, Hope Stewart, from Gaylord, and two aides, Dyan Conaway and Nancy Matthews, both from Boyne City, will teach "basic Christian philosophies and responsibilities." Rev. Beard described the school as "like any public school but we'll have Bible and chapel every day."

Boyne City School Superintendent Rich Kelly said the Christian school enrollment will certainly affect Boyne City schools.

"We had estimated enrollment to be 1,400 and budgeted accordingly. So we'll lose $1,513 for each student under the enrollment of 1,400 and gain $1,513 for any enrollment above that."

A trend toward the basic Christian education seems to be evident from the fact that two new Christian schools have opened in the area. Kelly said if the schools are opening because of disciplinary purposes, he believes public schools "are doing a good job in these areas."

"We are always striving to improve our (disciplinary) program but we feel we have a good basic program as is. Discipline and control in public schools is improving," he said.

Yet another Christian school in the area is down from projected enrollment. Faith Evangelical Lutheran School, which has been operating for about seven years, has nine students enrolled. That is three less than last year.

Faith Evangelical is located halfway between Boyne City and East Jordan near the corner of Wilson and Behling Roads.

Julie Forenson, who is teaching kindergarten through eighth grades, said enrollment is down because of a vacancy in the church pastor's position. The current pastor is Pastor Vetter, who also has a parish in Suttons Bay.

Tuition for the year is $250 for the first child enrolled in a family, $150 for the second child in the same family and $100 for other children from the same family.

Classes offered are Bible history, math, English, social studies, science and spelling. Every school morning will be started with a prayer, Forenson said.

Keeping a tight hold on his pig is Aaron Brock, 8, from East Jordan. His five week old swine won first place in its category at the 4-H Fall Achievement Day in Whiting Park.
