

Traditional Indian dances are evolving into free-form "fancy" dances as demonstrated by three of the dancers at last week's cultural assembly in East Jordan. Young Indians, like the three dancers shown, are getting more involved in their heritage, according to Gigi Antoine, director of East Jordan's Indian education program.

Indian understanding gets a boost from parents group

BY JON DENISON

EAST JORDAN - It's Thanksgiving and people are starting to think about Indians again.

The words coming from the slight woman dressed in colorful native American garb sounded slightly ironic.

The speaker was Arlene Naganashe, an Ottawa Indian from Harbor Springs. Naganashe was about to lead an assembly at the East Jordan Middle School demonstrating some traditional and "fancy" Indian dances.

The purpose of the assembly was to broaden the knowledge that many people have of Indians and erase the "if this is Thanksgiving then those must be Indians" mentality.

The cultural assembly at the middle school last Wednesday is just one event the East Jordan Indian Education Committee is sponsoring in an effort to increase knowledge of Indian heritage, among Indians as well as non-Indians.

The Indian Education Committee is a parental advisory group established to help the local Title IV Indian Education program meet its goals of improving the attendance of Indian students and making Indians more compatible with their non-Indian counterparts.

There are 74 students in the East Jordan Public Schools who have completed a form saying that they are of Indian heritage. There isn't a set percentage of Indian blood required for the local program. Parents identify what tribe the child is a member of and list an Indian number if they have one.

Indian students who can trace their heritage to show one-quarter or more Indian blood can qualify for free college tuition. That's one of the goals of the East Jordan Indian Education Committee -- to get their students to go to college.

"We're taking kids to college, showing them what college is like," Gigi Antoine, Title IV coordinator for East Jordan explained. "This spring we're going to take high school juniors and seniors to Michigan State University for a career day where we'll also have Indian representatives talking about the process for getting free tuition."

Indian students as a whole have a higher dropout rate nationally than any other ethnic group, Antoine claimed, adding that unfortunately the same is true locally.

"Indian culture is so different,"

Antoine said. "Home life is so different from school."

The cultural differences prevent Indian students from seeking help for problems from non-Indian counselors too, Antoine explained. She and a counselor from the Native American Recovery Center (NARC) in Charlevoix help Indian students with problems they can't talk to conventional counselors about.

The East Jordan Title IV grant is for just under $10,000 per year. The Indian Education Committee stretches the money by looking for assistance from other agencies with some of their work.

NARC, the Department of Social Services, the Tri-County Indian Center, Inc. and the Lions Club are a few of the organizations and agencies that the Indian Education Committee looks to for free services and help.

"We can't duplicate services," Antoine explained. "If services are available free we don't use our money."

The Title IV money is used to buy a great deal of media information for the libraries in the middle and elementary school and high school libraries.

"Authentic cultural material," Antoine emphasized. "I think the media material has made the biggest impact on the system."

The benefits of exploring Indian heritage extend beyond the school system's Indian community, Antoine said. The media information, for example, is to be used by all of the students, not just Indians.

The added attention to the youngsters lineage has resulted in the students developing a greater sense of pride about their background. That can be compared to a point not too long ago, according to Antoine, where some students may have been ashamed to admit that they were of Indian descent.

The cultural assembly featuring Naganashe and the other dancers showed that the Indian heritage is appreciated. One of the dancers, Fred Wiser, is an East Jordan middle school student and drew a loud round of applause when introduced.

The Indian Education Committee is planning more cultural programs this year, gearing them for the age group that will be viewing them. The community education program is offering an Ottawa language class and a totem pole class is planned for next semester.

The committee tries to get older Indians from the area involved in teaching the traditions and custom of their tribe, drawing on their wisdom gained through experience.

"The elders have been great," Antoine said. "Everyone's been great, they'll help when asked. The school has really been cooperative."

The result pleases Antoine. "It's the increased self-esteem of the kids in the system. They're proud to be Indian and they have the acceptance of their peers."

Arlene Naganashe, an Ottawa Indian from Harbor Springs, led a traditional and "fancy" dance group at a cultural assembly last Wednesday at the East Jordan Middle School.

EJ, BC dumps face violations; Cities will continue to use them

The Boyne City and East Jordan landfills are among a number of dumps facing possible closure by the state Department of Natural Resources for violations.

East Jordan City Superintendent Herm Rasch and Boyne City Manager Tim Clifton both say the alleged violations against the landfills are not justified. They will continue to keep in contact with the DNR to determine the fate of the city landfills.

Boyne City received a letter Nov. 16 from Arthur L. Caden, district engineer with the DNR regional Resource Recovery Division office in Gaylord. Caden said Boyne City is violating the state Solid Waste Management Statute by continuing operation of the landfill, located on Charlevoix Road outside the city limits.

East Jordan received a similar letter in October.

The Boyne City landfill violations cited by Caden are:

1. Solid waste has not been properly spread, compacted, or covered as required by statute on a daily basis.
2. No license has been issued.
3. No engineering plan or proper hydrogeologic data have been submitted to outline progression of the fill, type of trenches, operating procedures, and to define the depth and directional of flow or groundwater.
4. Improper disposal of building demolition and other salvage items.

"If there's evidence that we're polluting the water, then let's quit using the dump. But we haven't seen any."

--Herm Rasch

In response to the first violation, Clifton said that the six times Caden inspected the landfill in the past two years were prior to 4 p.m. when landfill operator Basil Moore arrives to cover the refuse dumped during that day.

Clifton said the city is attempting to get the landfill relicensed. It has been operating for the past year with no license. The city purchased the property in Evangeline Township in the late 1960s, and it has been licensed in the past.

In regard to the third violation, Clifton said the city would conduct studies to determine if the soil is suitable for refuse disposal and if runoff water from the dump is polluting adjacent property owners' wells.

But, Clifton said, he will request that the state pay for a portion of such studies. "The state Department of Health told the city that land was suitable for a landfill dump when the city first started operation there. And now the DNR is saying it's not safe to use that property and we'll get stuck paying for it," he said.

The last violation pertains to improper disposal of brush, lumber, metal goods and other debris which is not supposed to be stored on city landfills, Caden contends.

Clifton said a number of the violations mentioned are not located on the landfill site but on private property adjacent to the landfill. The city also has a permit to burn brush and lumber and therefore these items are not in violation of the statute, he said.

Violations cited at the East Jordan landfill include that the dump supposedly is causing some water pollution in nearby Brown's Creek.

The DNR also stated that the landfill wasn't properly maintained and that the soil mixture at the site was inappropriate.

Superintendent Rasch said he doesn't believe the landfill is causing water pollution.

"I think I'd be speaking for the residents of East Jordan in saying that if there's evidence that we're polluting the water, then let's quit using the dump," Rasch said. "But we haven't seen any."

The DNR said the landfill site was not suitable because it has a sandy soil base. Members of the East Jordan landfill committee looking into the alleged violations pointed out that the base of the city dump is "a dense clay layer," not sand.

Should either site have to be closed, the DNR suggested other licensed sites for disposal of refuse. The closest site for both cities is the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill off Sequonota Road near Ironton.

"The DNR's request to use the Ironton landfill is not economically or ecologically feasible," Clifton said.

Round trip to the Ironton dump from Boyne City is 15 miles and debris dropped along the route to the dump would be impossible to continually pick up, he said.

"It would probably be illegal for them (the DNR) to order us to do that (use the private Ironton facility) Rasch theorized. "That would be a monopoly situation. I don't think the legislators intended everyone to shut down their landfills."

Larry Thornton, regional supervisor with the DNR's Roscommon region Resource Recovery Division said in regard to using the Ironton landfill, he is "including in this plan a collective garbage service." The communities could maintain a small transfer garbage site and then collectively transfer the refuse to the Ironton landfill, he said.

Boyne City Manager Clifton said that a door-to-door collection or equipment for transferring the garbage to the Ironton landfill would cost between $50,000 and $80,000. That is "just not economically feasible for northern counties," he said.

Meetings between both cities and DNR officials will be scheduled to determine the fate of the landfills.

First try fails; New name, another try for Waldner's 51st state

BOYNE CITY - Area resident Karl Waldner says new plans for the 51st state will continue, despite failure in the first petition drive.

A petition drive for the separation of the Upper Peninsula and some lower Michigan counties from the southern portion of the state fell short of the signatures needed, Waldner said.

Members of the executive council for the 51st state decided at a meeting Saturday in Gaylord to change the proposed state's name from Independent State of Superior to North Michigan. Waldner said he did not want this drive to be confused with a previous drive by a Upper Peninsula resident.

Also considered at the meeting were alternative steps the group can take in their continued drive for the separate state.

Approximately 22,000 signatures were collected in the drive which started last spring, Waldner said. He attributed the shortage of signatures to lack of organization. Approximately 31,000 signatures were required to put the petition on a state ballot.

"The signatures (collected) served a purpose. They made state legislators and residents of northern Michigan aware of our cause. They also proved to us that we have to fall back, get better organized, and then try again," Waldner said.

The signatures collected can't be used in a new petition drive, but Waldner said that may not matter.

Beside changing the new state name, Waldner said the council may decide to go a different route with the next independent state drive. The last petition called for a statewide referendum and organizers of the 51st state would like to have only registered voters in the counties involved participate in the vote, he said.

One option available is to go to the 42 county commissions included in the North

Michigan state and ask each to put the petition on the 1980 general election ballot. He would have to get approval from the commissions two months prior to the November election.

Waldner's objective is to establish a state where control of the government would be at the local level. The amount of taxes collected and where the money is distributed would be decided by the local people, he said.

The state would be divided at the southern boundaries of Mason, Lake, Oscoda, Clare, Gladwin and Arenac Counties.

Waldner hopes to be better organized in this drive and he hopes to have more help. He and others working on the independent state plan will offer memberships "for those interested in helping with our purpose," he said. Better organization and additional help could make the second try for the independent state successful, Waldner boasted.

Final decisions will be made at a meeting Jan. 19 in Millersburg, he said.

"One thing is sure, we are continuing stronger than ever and will be back better organized and ready to go again," Waldner added.

Cause of death still unknown in Umlor case

EAST JORDAN - The cause of death was still unknown as of Tuesday in the case of James Michael Umlor, found by hunters in his car last Tuesday in a field on his father's farm off Pesek Road near the Antrim-Charlevoix County line in South Arm Township.

Umlor, 21, had been missing for about three months but hadn't been reported as missing to authorities, according to Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

Lasater said that foul play had been ruled out in the death, but that the cause of death wouldn't be known until an autopsy report was completed.

Umlor, an employee of ITT Electrical in East Jordan, was born in Charlevoix and lived in the East Jordan area his whole life with the exception of two years spent in school in Grand Rapids.

He is survived by his parents, Eugene and Reva (Addis) Umlor; five sisters, Mrs. Randy (Joyce) Sheppard of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Danny (Marilyn) Hubbard, stationed with the United States Navy at Norfolk, Va., and Barbara, Nancy and Christine, all at home; and one brother, Peter, also at home.

Funeral services for Mr. Umlor were held Nov. 24 at St. Joseph's Church in East Jordan. Rev. Joseph Lima was the celebrant at the mass. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. The Rosary was recited at the Oak Chapel of the Vanderwall Funeral Home Nov. 23.

Memorials may be directed to the St. Joseph's Bell Tower fund.

Membership sought for East Jordan VFW Post

EAST JORDAN - A group of East Jordan area veterans is currently organizing a Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) post in East Jordan.

More than 30 veterans signed up for membership in VFW Post 7580 during the initial membership drive. National VFW records indicate that as many as 90 veterans of foreign wars reside in the area.

To be eligible for membership a veteran must have been in a branch of the armed services for at least 90 days and part of that service must have been outside of the continental United States.

The new post will have its next meeting Dec. 4 in the basement of the American Legion Hall in East Jordan. The post will hold its meetings the first Tuesday of every month.

Officers were elected at the post's last meeting and will be installed in January. Anyone interested in more information about the post can call any of the following officers at the numbers listed:

Commander Clifford Green, 536-2003; senior vice-commander Archie Castle, 536-7520; junior vice-commander Warren Bennett, 536-2905; quartermaster Bill Bennett, 536-2678; advocate Don Smith; chaplain Dale Camm, 536-2042; surgeon Wilbur Lewis, 536-2140; one year trustee Bob Thomas; two year trustee Vern Stark, 536-7565; or three year trustee Carl Moore.

Ferry closes early, costs high

IRONTON - The Ironton Ferry's last trip of the season will be this Friday, Nov. 30, at 10 p.m., the Charlevoix County Road Commission has announced.

The ferry started operating in 1923 and travels 550 feet across Lake Charlevoix's South Arm one way. The ferry closes before ice covers over the lakes each year, Fred Welch, engineer-manager of the road commission said. But this year's closing is earlier than most years.

The ferry is closing earlier this year due to economic reasons, Welch said.

"The cost of operation far outweighs the return we make," he said. Heavy traffic slows down during this time of the year and it would be very costly to continue the ferry rides, Welch said.

In the past, the ferry has usually closed in mid to late December and reopened early in the spring.

Following is a table showing the opening and closing date and the number of cars that used the ferry for the past nine years.

	Opening date	Closing date	Number of cars

WHAT IS INVOLVED IN A FUNERAL COST?

There are generally five funeral expenses which can be incurred: 1) professional services of a funeral director and his funeral home, including facilities, staff-time, and motor equipment; 2) casket and burial vault; 3) the cemetery plot and opening of the grave; 4) monument or grave marker; and 5) miscellaneous expense such as flowers, obituaries and honorariums.

Some of these expenditures are optional. Most of them have a fairly wide range of costs, depending on the family's wishes. You will not find any undue influence exerted for exorbitant funeral costs by funeral directors in this service area. We -- and most funeral directors we know -- prefer that the funeral expenses be appropriate for each family served. We spend much time with each family to make sure that all arrangements and decisions will best serve their own interests.

We'd be glad to discuss this in complete detail, showing you the ranges in pricing available to you.

Says superintendent Rasch

Rusty water, low pressure choices

EAST JORDAN - If there's a water pressure problem in the southwest portion of town, residents will have to choose between low pressure or rusty water, according to city superintendent Herm Rasch.

City councilman Bud Kenny brought a complaint to the council last week about low water pressure in the Christensen's Ridge subdivision on the west side of Lake Charlevoix.

Rasch said it was the first complaint he'd heard about water pressure problems, though Kenny maintained that it has been a problem for quite a while.

Two wells could be turned on on the west side of the lake, Rasch said, but the whole city would then have rust in its water.

"The two wells would add pressure," Rasch said, "but will also increase the amount of iron in the water."

Currently the two city wells on the west side of the lake aren't used, the city superintendent explained. Since the west side of town is the farthest away from the wells used as the source for the city's water that part of town has the lowest water pressure.

An alternative to rust in the water, Rasch said, would be to install a second reservoir in the city water system, putting it on the west side of town.

Rasch said that her would check the water pressure with some of the residents of the area and report back to the council.

The council also:

- Decided to have five street lights put up in the Christensen's Ridge area.

- Heard a recommendation from city attorney John Rohe that the city's insurance policies be reviewed to make sure that they don't rely on governmental immunity provisions which may no longer apply.
- Heard from Rohe and fellow city attorney Roy Hayes that private citizens can no longer file complaints for offenses such as traffic offenses. The two attorneys said that this could be particularly significant in cities such as East Jordan, with small police forces, where citizen involvement has long been encouraged in such cases.
- Heard from Rasch that the ceiling on the community building is nearing completion.

Falls seniors to see New York, D.C.

BOYNE FALLS - The Boyne Falls senior class will be taking a trip to New York and Washington D.C. this spring after receiving the board of education's approval Nov. 19.

The trip will cost the class about $4,600. So far, the class has raised $3,005 for the trip.

Sue Goebel gave a report to the board on Boyne Falls' Title I program. The reading and math support program is funded by federal money and is subject to federal regulations, she explained.

Goebel told the board how she has structured the program and voiced satisfaction with the results of the Title I program to date. Principal Carl Moser and superintendent Bill Upton backed Goble's claims of success.

The board also:

- Hired Leonard Puroll as recreation director, a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funded position.
- Heard a report from Upton on the status of the school's new ballfield. Upton reported that the field will be ready for play this spring.
- Accepted Karen Madajski's resignation as bus driver and hired David Crego to replace her.

- Set aside $200 to buy supplies for the elementary Christmas program should the money be needed.
- Heard the results for Boyne Falls from the Michigan Educational Assessment Program 1979-80 tests for the fourth, seventh and tenth grades. The results were favorable for the fourth and seventh grades, Moser reported, but the tenth grade results were low. A change in the elementary curriculum seems to be working, Moser explained, adding that the tenth grade class was the last class to go through before the new curriculum was adopted.

Architect, businessmen to meet

BOYNE CITY - The architectural consultant who will be working on downtown storefront renovation will be meeting with business owners this week.

Tom Holleman, an engineer and historical architect with the Ann Arbor consulting firm of Johnson, Johnson and Roy, will be spending Wednesday through Saturday talking with business owners.

Holleman recently completed a plan for renovating the north side of the 100 block of Lake Street for the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber officials liked his work so well that they decided to hire him to do similar sketches for the rest of the downtown.

Total cost of the project will be about $5,700, which will be paid by the Chamber and by voluntary contributions from business on the streets being proposed for renovation.

Holleman will do sketches of six more blocks in addition to the one block already completed. He will finish about one block a month, and the Chamber will decide which blocks will be done first.

Holleman will suggest ways to restore downtown business places to a more authentic, old-time appearance.

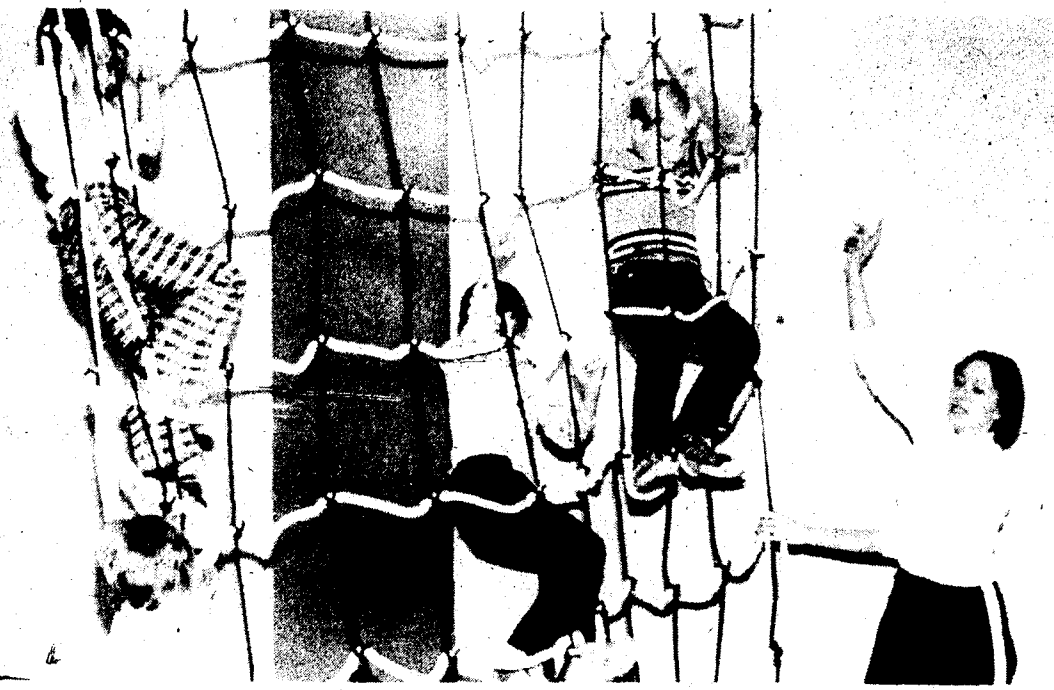

Burglars hit chamber

BOYNE CITY - Several items were taken when the Chamber of Commerce office was broken into over the weekend.

City Police Chief John Talboys said the thieves broke a window to gain entrance to the building, which is located at the corner of Water and Lake Streets.

A typewriter, telephone and phone recording message device were missing from the office when it was opened Monday morning. The office had been closed throughout the weekend.

Shelly Thayer, right, supervises three students getting in shape for the Nabisco-AAU Physical Fitness program in East Jordan. Approximately 600 youngsters are taking part in the program in East Jordan in grades kindergarten through sixth.

East Jordan fitness program pushes kids to their potential

EAST JORDAN - About 600 East Jordan elementary school students could be in better shape within a few months and a cookie manufacturer will be partially responsible.

The Nabisco-AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Physical Fitness program is a program designed to help youngsters find their physical capabilities and encourage them to try to achieve their maximum physical potential.

The program is being operated in the East Jordan elementary school as a supplement to regular physical fitness programs with about 600 students in grades kindergarten through sixth participating.

"The students aren't competing," Shelly Thayer, elementary gym teacher explained. "It's a self-improvement program."

Students take a pre-test then after participating in the program for two months take the test again to measure their accomplishments.

The standards for the test, which includes situps, pushups, pullups, long jumping, a walk-run and other activities, are adjusted for students' body size, giving overweight students the same chance for achievement as an underweight or normal sized participant.

"Every child receives a certificate saying that they participated," Thayer said. The only cost to the school to run the program was $3 for the shipping cost of the certificates.

The program can be offered by educational systems, YMCAs, or other recognized community groups, Thayer explained.

"Every school has its own physical fitness program," Thayer said. "With dollars being tight now schools need to show the validity of their programs."

The Nabisco-AAU program will help do just that, Thayer feels.

Factors evaluated by the test include muscular endurance, circulo-respiratory endurance, speed, agility and power/coordination.

Points are awarded for meeting various performance standards. Participants who meet performance standards for four mandatory events and one optional event receive a second certificate, one of attainment.

A special point system challenges high achievers. Those meeting the more stringent requirements receive a certificate of outstanding achievement.

Crossing our fingers for a Boyne beach

The knotty problem of finding a beach within the city limits of Boyne City has popped up again, and as usual there are no easy answers.

The city commission decided earlier this month on a 3-2 vote to accept a grant to study the possibility of putting in a beach behind the new City Hall.

The vote was close because two commissioners felt it would be a waste of time and money to go ahead with the study. Their feelings are understandable, because a beach was actually built on the same site 15 years ago, and the sand was washed away by high winds and waves.

But we tend to side with the three commissioners who voted to proceed with the study, if for no other reason than finally putting the issue to rest.

The study will cost $15,000, most of which will be provided by the Michigan Coastal Zone Management Program. The city will contribute $3,800 in the form of staff time spent on the project.

Editorial

We're not too optimistic about the chances of being able to build a lasting beach at the site, but it seems a relatively small amount to pay to get an opinion from experts.

It's a long shot, but the experts might suggest something that the beach builders of 15 years ago did not know about. More grant money is available now -- perhaps to build a small breakwater to protect the beach from the force of the waves.

If the experts determine that the site is not good for a beach, so be it. Even if they say a beach could be built there, the city commission does not have to develop it if it is too expensive.

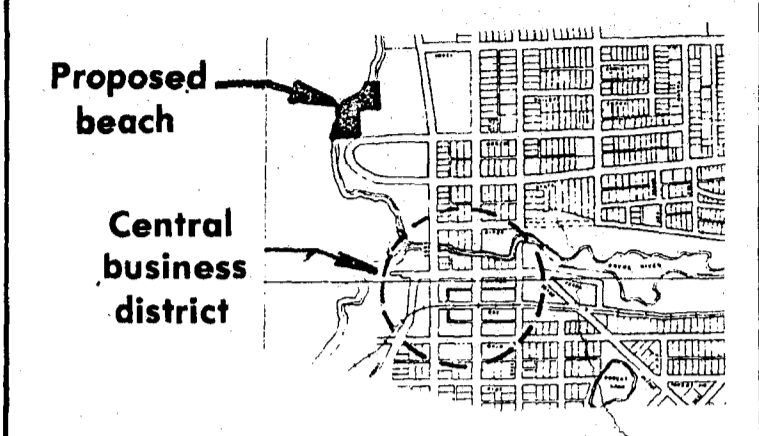

If a beach could be developed behind City Hall, it would be an ideal site. It is in the center of town and is next to Veterans Memorial Park with its shelter, marina, baseball field, tennis courts, bandshell and picnic area.

A beach site was offered to the city on the land proposed for the Turner condominium development, as an exchange for the closing of Front Street.

Voters decided they wanted the street left open, and by the time the election was held in August, serious doubts were raised about the feasibility of building a beach on the Tannery property anyway.

It seems that the City Hall-Veterans Park site may be Boyne City's last chance to get a beach within safe walking distance for children who live in the city.

Let's cross our fingers and hope the coastal management experts can find a way to make it happen.

Can't cope with Horror-scope?

The Charlevoix County Press does not run a Horoscope. And perhaps that's wise. Lots of people cannot cope with their daily horror.

However, I studied the stars and have come up with some dos and don'ts. Just like those smart people do in the big daily papers. Those who do not want their Horoscope in the paper may bring it to me, along with a pair of scissors, and I'll oblige by cutting it out for them.

ARIES [Mar. 21-Apr. 19] It will be substantially helpful to you if you can make arrangements to hold your tongue today. Otherwise you may get into more trouble than a city clerk handing out absentee ballots.

TAURUS [Apr. 20-May 20] This is the day to hang your head in shame. You do not want to feed our government cow, but you insist upon being around for the milking.

GEMINI [May 21-June 20] If you live in East Jordan, mind your P's and Q's today. Otherwise there's strong indication you may be exiled to Boyne City where you will be taken hostage until East Jordan quits beating us in football anytime they want to.

CANCER [June 21-July 22] If you insist upon being a thoroughly honest and churchy person, this is no time for you to start up a new business. The IRS and government regulations will be a big disadvantage to you.

LEO [July 23-Aug. 22] Today is the day you should demand that Howard Cosell be penalized for illegal use of the mouth, VIRGO [Aug. 23-Sept. 22] This is the day that male Virgos should get rid of that idea about joining a bank to handle stocks and blonds.

Marshall Sayles

LIBRA [Sept. 23-Oct. 22] Start that strict diet today. Too many people are saying you look as though you ate the whole pie.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23-Nov. 21] Give some thought to running for Congress, or the presidency. Even Richard Nixon made a success at being stupid.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 22-Dec. 21] If you live in a township, pay no city taxes and cannot vote in the city, stop lambasting the city council -- even though it is quite thrilling to be brave from a safe distance.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22-Jan. 19] Try not to act foolish today. You may be greatly upset at the ease with which it is accomplished.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 20-Feb. 18] Today is the day to stop getting any older. Take a tip from glamorous movie stars. Hire a plastic surgeon.

PISCES [Feb. 19-Mar. 20] Do everything within your power to stop from becoming a genius. History shows that all great earth shakers die young. Even I must guard against the night air myself.

My favorite time of year

The end of November and the beginning of December is a time of the year when the weather can be pretty blah, and everything seems to be "between seasons". It's always the worst time of the year for me.

I've been walking cautiously lately. Almost every bad thing that's happened to me has occurred during this time of year.

Who knows why this time of the year would be a bad one for me? I was born in December (many people would argue that that was the first bad thing that happened to me), and possibly my problems are astrologically explainable.

The next year in early December broke my thumb. I was playing junior varsity basketball (five inches growth over the year made me an acceptable size I guess) and somehow I managed to bend my thumb back to my wrist. Scrape my hoop-hopes for six weeks.

Nothing major happened the next two years and I was beginning to think that maybe my bad luck was going in strings of three.

My freshman year in college showed me that those hopes were groundless.

Mononucleosis hit me hard. The doctor told me that I'd had it for about two months before I came to see him. "One of the worst cases I've seen," he told me.

The following November a friend and I had a trip planned to Kentucky to visit a former co-worker. Things went famously until the Michigan-Ohio border.

My 1969 clunker began to clunk, then to expell black smoke, then it stopped.

Both of us having no talents in the automotive arts didn't help. We did the only thing we could -- we wrote HELP in the snow collecting on the back window -- and then we waited.

A friendly woman stopped and gave my friend a ride to a gas station for help. I waited in the car, not real sure that he wouldn't continue with her in a car that ran as it was supposed to.

The breakdown was the last of my unpleasant late November, early December mishaps.

My stars have moved, it seems, to a more favorable alignment for me.

No broken bones, no breakdowns on the road, no mononucleosis and I didn't get cut from my basketball team this fall.

I'm not ready to say that my jinx is over though. It's like Allen Funt of Candid Camera says, "Some day, when you least expect it..."

Government has big technology role

By A. HUNTER DUPREE

Last year the U.S. government spent more than $25 billion on scientific research and technological development.

Slightly less than half this amount was spent on defense research, generally recognized as a legitimate function of all governments. But what about the rest?

Why should the government of a nation that has traditionally been committed to the concept of free enterprise be pouring billions of dollars annually into research and development?

Until the 19th century, government involvement with technology grew very slowly. It then became apparent that modern science through technology could effect rapid -- and, it was hoped, beneficial -- social change.

The crises of the 20th century, particularly World War II, stimulated an even closer relationship and an even greater interaction between government and technology.

Critics now charge that government is controlling the direction of scientific research and the course of technological development and that this influence is corrupting both.

Proponents, however, argue that even more government involvement is necessary to support the research and development required to maintain our standard of living and to help the poorer nations of the world.

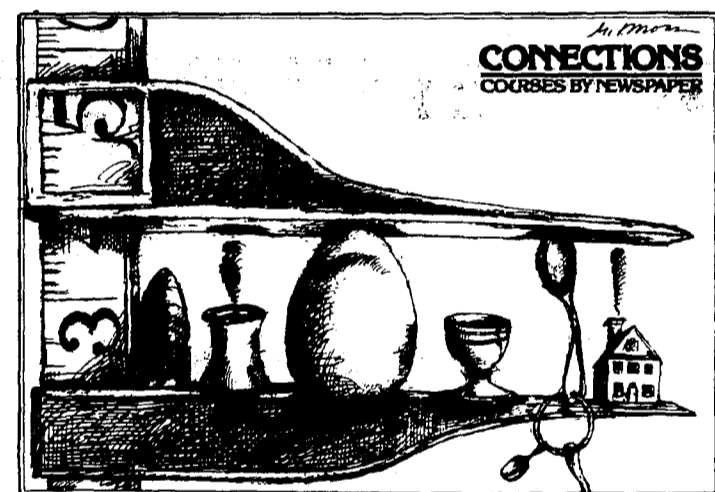

EARLY INVOLVEMENT

The connection between government and technology is not necessarily close. Throughout much of history, government has been the special concern of the powerful. Technology, on the other hand, very early became the special concern of craftspeople -- often of humble origins but with skills that made possible weaving, pottery, metalworking, building of shelter, and all the other processes necessary to provide for human needs.

Since people specialized in certain crafts and then exchanged their products for those of others, questions of the value of weights and measures arose. Thus, more than 2,500 years ago governments became referees in setting the standards of weights and measures.

Also, since money came to be measured by the weight of gold or silver, governments not only made coins but insured their value by imprinting them with official seals and by milling the edges to prevent clipping.

In the same way governments established standard measures of volume for grain and liquids, standard weights, and standard rulers of length. The power of government guaranteed the integrity of these measures used in technology. Governments still perform these functions through their mints and their national bureaus of standards.

THE NATION STATE AND TECHNOLOGY

In western Europe in the later Middle Ages, technologies arose capable not only of building Gothic cathedrals but also of sustaining cities and of trading with Asia. At the same time, the national governments of France, Spain, Portugal, and England came into existence.

By the end of the 15th century, this combination of technology and nation states made possible the extension of trade and colonization to the Western Hemisphere.

The governments of these nations did not create the technology of the sailing ship that made this expansion possible. But they were called upon to provide support to shipmasters and sailors of a kind beyond the resources of private individuals.

This support included the development of mapmaking and the astronomical observations necessary for reliable worldwide navigation system. By the 17th century, for example, such great institutions as the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, had been founded to develop astronomical charts for navigators. Governments continue to provide such services as mapmaking today.

Since traders and colonizers rarely had the time and energy to explore unknown territory, governments gradually took on the function. By the 18th century these expeditions, for example, those sent to the Pacific by the British Admiralty under Captain James Cook, had penetrated to most parts of the globe. Today, governments continue to send out exploring expeditions -- to Antarctica and even to the moon.

GOVERNMENT RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY

During the 19th century, as natural science took on its modern form, the governments of western Europe and the United States realized that they could help their people develop more powerful technology if they provided scientific research which was beyond the means of universities and other private institutions.

Despite some opposition to "impractical" research, governments increasingly concluded that the best way to attack the human scourges of scarcity and disease was to support laboratories for the production of seemingly "useless" knowledge. Hence, through agencies such as the U. S. Department of Agriculture, governments began to shift from a passive to an active attack on human problems by supporting basic scientific research.

WORLD WAR II AND AFTER

The most important shift in the government's relation to science came at the outbreak of World War II. Wartime leaders saw the need to mobilize all the nation's scientific resources that were applicable to weapons and medicine.

Instead of just strengthening government laboratories, they turned to the universities, industry, and private foundations to find the laboratory facilities and the scientists, especially in medicine, electronics, and atomic energy, whose research might mean the difference between victory and defeat.

The network of contracts that they set up carried government money out to the scientists and laboratories, resulting in such discoveries as penicillin, the atomic bomb, and radar.

At the end of World War II, government and science leaders agreed that the system of contracts tying together the universities, industry, and the foundations with government support should become permanent. The government made a definite commitment to maintain America's role as the world's leader in science and technology.

By the mid-1960s some $16 billion of government money was flowing into research and development. Every branch of technology was affected in some way. The National Science Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and much-expanded National Institutes of Health became the dominant research agencies of the U.S. Government.

This new trend stimulated controversy. Opponents claimed that university scientists, in order to receive government grants, were forced to pursue research in specified areas. Others charged that some programs were wasteful; the manned lunar landing program, for example, was criticized as being political and not justifiable on any scientific grounds.

Such criticisms resulted in a new emphasis on research concerned with pressing national needs, that is, projects that would visibly benefit the general public, such as cancer research.

THE NEED FOR REASSESSMENT

In the past 15 years, a whole new series of issues developed that increased government involvement with technology.

The very success of modern chemistry and physics in industry produced pollutants that themselves became a threat. Scientific, machine-based agriculture triggered large migrations of people and transformed the inner districts of large cities. Atomic energy eased the pressure on scarce fossil fuels, but created new safety and waste-disposal problems.

Although government regulation of technology to combat the worst abuses of environment dates back to the late 19th century, active research on an unprecedented scale was clearly needed. Congress responded by setting up an Environmental Protection Agency, by changing the Atomic Energy Commission into a Department of Energy and a Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and by creating an Office of Technology Assessment.

But these actions did not silence critics of the burgeoning relation between government and technology. The federal government's encouragement of nuclear power, for example, was seen as a threat to the health and safety of people, and the accident at the nuclear plant at Three Mile Island confirmed these fears. Government policies relating to the environment, consumer products, and worker safety have also been challenged as unresponsive to public needs and wishes.

Such controversies will undoubtedly continue as long as the majority of our citizens are committed to a society characterized by high technology, which only the government can support.

Jon Denison

I was cut from my freshman basketball team in late November one year. "Sorry, you're too short," the coach told me, thus ending my hopes for a college scholarship and an NBA career.

As if being cut from the team wasn't enough bad luck for awhile, I had plaster from hip to toe before Christmas.

A ski trip to Vermont was taking some of the sting out of not playing basketball. The third day of the trip I came gracefully over the lip of a mogul while skiing at Stratton and hit a good-size patch of sand.

My skis stopped, but my body didn't. A boot-top fracture of both bones in my lower leg and some garbled tendons and ligaments in my ankle and knee were the result and my string of good luck continued.

Good year for Christmas trees

Consumers can expect to find very high quality Christmas trees this holiday season, predicts Mel Koelling, Michigan State University forestry specialist.

An ample supply of moisture during the growing season, last year's mild winter and this year's warm autumn weather have helped to make this year's crop better than average. In addition, there have been no major problems with insects or diseases.

"Many people do not realize the care and planning that goes into the production of Christmas trees," Koelling says. "They are a crop, not unlike corn or soybeans. The major difference is the longer growing season required for trees."

The average growing time for Christmas trees is 7 to 10 years, though some species, such as Douglas fir and Colorado blue spruce, can take up to 12 years to reach marketable size.

"The average tree grown in Michigan is the result of rather intensive care," Koelling explains. "Trees are pampered products from the time they are planted until they are in the hands of the consumer."

In late November, growers began shipping trees to all parts of the United States except the Northwest and parts of New England.

Michigan is recognized as the leading state in the production of plantation-grown Christmas trees, with an annual harvest of approximately 3.5 million trees.

There are between 750 and 900 growers in Michigan, with the average size plantation being about 40 acres. This would mean there are approximately 40 million to 45 million trees planted on about 50,000 acres of land in the state.

Of all trees planted, nearly 80 percent are Scotch pine, a species which is popular because of its rapid growth rate and good response to plantation culture. Blue and white spruce account for another 10 percent of the crop. The remaining 10 percent are fir and various other pines.

Direct dial in Walloon

WALLOON LAKE - Michigan Bell customers in Walloon Lake will be able to dial their long distance person-to-person, collect, credit card and bill-to-third-number calls beginning 8 a.m. next Wednesday, Dec. 5.

E. W. (Mike) Reid, Michigan Bell local manager, said the company is gradually phasing out its Petoskey long distance operator service operations to give customers greater cost and efficiency benefits.

When making one of the new time-saving calls, customers dial "0" (Operator), immediately followed by the area code and then the telephone number in the distant city, Reid said.

An operator at the company's electronic long distance center in Saginaw will come on the line long enough to get acceptance of a collect call, obtain credit card or bill-to-third-numbers, or to get the right person on the line for a person-to-person call.

SURVEY QUESTION

Is the price of gasoline going to affect your holiday travel?

No. I never go anywhere. I stay home for the holidays.

Yes. We usually go to Florida in our motor home for Christmas vacation but now we just go to the Upper Peninsula.

No. We fly. It's about as much. Then when we get to where we are going we use the relatives car and gas.

Yes. Who can afford to travel when it takes half of your paycheck to just get back and forth to work?

Yes. I'd rather save the money we would spend for gas to go anywhere and have a decent Christmas.

No. I'm used to budgeting out 25 bucks a week for gas now.

No. Not this year anyway. I'd rather travel now. Then next year when gas will probably be $5 a gallon, I'll be lucky to drive across town.

Yes. It's not just the price holding us back from traveling. It will be whether there is gas available or not.

No. I sold my car a while back. I refuse to pay anything more than 50 cents a gallon.

Yes. I'm lucky to afford enough gas to go to Traverse City for Christmas shopping.

Nurses personalize care

Last week an elderly widow, living alone in rural East Jordan, received a postcard:

"Please call or come by the Charlevoix Area Hospital to let us know how you are doing."

She had been a patient earlier this fall. Members of the nursing staff became concerned about her recuperation and progress after she returned home, but discovered her phone had been disconnected. So the postcard was sent.

The woman dropped by the hospital and chatted with her friends among nurses and aides, assuring them she was faring well. The nurses were relieved and the former patient promised to stay in touch.

Last year a nursing staff member faced a personal emergency that took her away from work for more time than her vacation and sick days would permit.

With the hospital administration's blessing, other nurses and aides donated their personal vacation time to her until she returned to work.

Two Christmases ago, a father of five was stricken by a heart attack. His family faced a sad and bleak Christmas with no money for gifts.

With no fanfare, the nursing staff saw that each member of the family received something special Christmas morning.

Asked about these and other similar incidents, Kathy Boss, Director of Nursing Services, replied, "Those are things we do. They are part of our job."

"We don't go out and tell the world about it," Mrs. Boss said, almost annoyed by the persistent questioning.

Being small gives Charlevoix Area Hospital a unique atmosphere, but it is not taken for granted by the staff.

The nursing staff and administration work to maintain the personal relationships - between patients and staff and staff and administration - that characterize the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Recently the method of keeping patient charts was changed to give nurses and aides more time to be at patients' bedsides.

"When you come in here you are not just a foot or gall bladder number," Isabel Seidel, RB, Assistant to the Director of Nursing Services, said, laughing.

"Our aides deserve a lot of credit," the nurse added. "They work closely with patients, helping them wash their hair, get dressed, walk around."

Mary Ann Cox, RN, whose job as In-Service Coordinator includes orienting new nurses, said, coming to a small hospital is often an adjustment for nurses from specialty hospitals.

"Here everyone works together. When the Intensive Care Unit nurses, for example, are not busy, they help in other areas, and vice versa."

Speaking of her staff's philosophy,

Mrs. Boss said, "We treat patients as a whole."

"If a nurse is willing to sit down, talk and listen, patients will unload their problems."

"We all contribute what we know about a patient to help in his care. If someone is hard of hearing, we make a note for the next nurse."

"If someone needs help when they are discharged, we work with social services to find what they need - supplies, babysitters, help with meals," Mrs. Boss explained as she stopped to talk with a patient waiting to enter X-ray.

The personalized concern of the hospital's 35 RNs, six LPNs, 20 aides, and orderlies, technicians and clerk is carefully nurtured by the administration.

"Open communication between staff and administration is important," Mrs. Boss said.

"We encourage everyone to discuss problems, share suggestions," the nursing director explained as she seated herself in her office, the door to which is rarely closed.

Another observer said, "Employees are treated as individuals, personally, not as a group."

"Everyone works together for the hospital," Diane Novotny, Secretary to the Administrator commented.

3 tablespoons all purpose flour
1 1/2 cups milk
salt and freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
cayenne pepper

Your fun guide

Charlevoix School of Gymnastics instructor Jim Mitchell assists Amy Bartlette, 13, of East Jordan, as she attempts a backwards somersault on the balance beam. Amy has been in the program for less than a year and has the "works of a good gymnast," Mitchell said.

'Space age sport' growing in popularity

BY DIANNE MURRAY

CHARLEVOIX - Gymnastics is a "space age" sport which has grown in popularity tremendously, according to Jim Mitchell.

Mitchell is instructor for the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics which boasts enrollment of 150 students, most of which are young girls.

Whether your concept of gymnastics is people rolling around on mats doing cartwheels and somersaults or if it is people defying gravity with body twisting stunts, the Charlevoix School of Gymnastics teaches both.

Mitchell started the school one year ago with 100 students enrolled. Because it is such a fast growing sport, he has taken on an assistant to help teach classes.

Students from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and as far away as Ellsworth come to Charlevoix for gymnastic classes. In order to help parents with transporting their children to and from Charlevoix and also for parents to work closer with their child's gymnastic growth, Mitchell has helped form a parents club called GYM B.A.G. (Boosters Association for Gymnastics). Parents wanting to organize carpools can get a hold of other student's parents through this organization, Mitchell said.

Classes are taught in the old Assembly of God Church on East Upright Street in Charlevoix six days a week. Hopeful gymnasts from the age of three to 18 learn to use the gym equipment, including the horse vault, uneven bars, floor mats and balancing beam.

Gymnastics is a "space age sport" which requires dedication, practice and a love for the sport, Mitchell said.

"To be good you have to think, breathe and dream gymnastics. You should get a chill when you walk into a gym and see the equipment. Your personality should change too. If the mind, determination and drive is not there to push you to the limits of your body's ability -- you'll never be a good gymnast."

Mitchell, 25, a three-time high school champion gymnast sets high goals for his students and himself.

Words of encouragement are mixed with critiques of how a certain tumble looked or what can be done to perfect a stunt.

"That looked good" and "keep your toes pointed" or "bounce higher" are words frequently passed from instructor to student.

Students are taught not only how to do stunts on the equipment but also how to fall, which is "a very important safety factor in gymnastics," he added.

Mitchell's own dream is to produce a champion. However he can, he'll push, coach and encourage a girl to go on to be a member of the United States Olympic gymnastic team, he said.

Being young, agile and having a personality to handle the stress and hard practice which goes into the sport are key factors for the successful gymnast, he said.

To demonstrate a stunt, Mitchell draws it step-by-step on a blackboard. "It's hard to verbally tell someone where their hands should be or when they should twist their body to gracefully finish a stunt," he explained.

A typical lesson might start with 20 minutes of warm-up conditioning including tumblers, jumps and other floor mat exercises. After warm ups, depending on the course level, students receive instruction on each piece of equipment.

They might spend 10 to 15 minutes each on the uneven bars, balance beam and vault. The students, dressed in leotards and T-shirts, perform twists and tricks called out by Mitchell.

He and his assistant, Rusty Hart of East Jordan, spot and instruct the girls, while music softly plays in the background to set the pace of the exercises.

The look of determination and concentration can be seen on Carla Henry's face as she executes the straddle L, a difficult stunt, on the balance beam. Carla, 9, is from Charlevoix.

Classes for those who wish to compete in the sport are also offered. These classes are called artistic gymnastics.

Tuition for these classes range from $15 a month to $17.50 a month, depending on the course level.

Adult slimnastics is designed for students 18 years and older who want to get into a program of conditioning and toning up their body through gymnastics. Tuition is $15 a month.

All classes met once a week for three months, except in the summer term which is for two months. For more information, contact Mitchell at 547-5181.

Feet slapping hard on the floor and legs dotted with bruises are the result of many runs through exercises.

Classes range from pre-schoolers to adults.

Pre-schoolers, from three to five years old are divided into beginning, advance beginning (intermediate) and advance levels. They are taught exercises in coordination, flexibility, and equipment instruction and safety. Pre-school classes range from $7.50 to $15 a month and from half an hour to an hour depending on the course level.

Students from six to 15 can enroll in classes according to age and ability.

Gymnastic demonstration

The Charlevoix School of Gymnastics will be hosting a demonstration by gymnasts and dancers Saturday at 4 p.m. The demonstration will be in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Some of the best students from the school will be performing "in an effort to educate the public about what gymnastics is," instructor for the school, Jim Mitchell said.

"Tickets" to the show are Dial soap, shampoo or deodorant wrappers. Dial donated more than a million dollars last year toward encouragement and advancement of gymnastics. Mitchell wants to show his support of Dial by "charging a Dial wrapper" for entrance fee.

An open house with refreshments will be held after the demonstration. Everyone is invited to attend.

Area residents are ready for cross-country ski season to begin. A season opening party is planned at Windmill Farms, and planning for the Avalanche Ski Classic is underway. Now all that's needed is some snow!

At Windmill Farms Night ski party to start season

CHARLEVOIX - Windmill Farms Cross Country Ski Area, seven miles east of Charlevoix, on the Boyne City Road, will inaugurate the season, Saturday, Dec. 1, with an evening ski party.

The cross country ski season will officially begin at 10 a.m. Saturday morning, when the more than 20 kilometers of groomed trails will be opened to the public.

Opening day's evening gathering will include a wine and cheese party which skiers may join for $6 per person.

Windmill Farms' trails are "groomed" by a track setter, eliminating the need to break your own trail. The groomed trails meander in a series of loops around the 500 acre farm's woods, valleys, hills, and fields. Each trail is marked and maps explain how they are color coded for difficulty.

The Charlevoix Area Cross Country Ski Club will begin its season meeting Thursday evenings at Windmill Farms. Anyone may join the club by calling Silent Sports North in Charlevoix, which has agreed to help with registration and a newsletter.

Two major events are planned for Windmill Farms.

The Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival

Cross Country Ski Races will be held Sunday, Feb. 17. Officially sanctioned by the United States Ski Association, these races will attract top competitors from around the midwest.

The winter cup will include events for the less competitive skiers, "citizen tourists" who would like to ski the course, be timed, but not against the racers. Children will also race in timed events, over shorter courses.

The First Annual Great Wooden Ski Rally will be held later this winter, on a date to be announced.

"Skiers will be urged to wear old fashioned ski costumes while skiing an easy two mile course," manager Nellie Hiehle said.

Free waxing clinics, conducted by Nellie, will continue to be held every Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Market Mall, in Charlevoix through Dec. 11.

The rental office at Windmill Farms will have skis, boots, and poles in all sizes, children through adult, for rent, for $7 per day. Reduced rates are available for longer periods. Clinics will be taught by reservation at Windmill Farms. The cost of a lesson is $7 per person for a two hour group session.

Trail fees are $2 per day for adults, $1.50 for children. Season tickets are $20.

Avalanche ski race scheduled for Jan. 26

BOYNE CITY - A group of local residents are now finalizing plans for the third annual Avalanche Ski Classic, which has been scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 26.

The race will again be held at the Avalanche Mountain Preserve, a park in the city of Boyne City.

The 10-kilometer (6.2 mile) race course will be the same as last year, but a 5-kilometer course has also been added for recreational skiers.

The race is sponsored by the city of Boyne City, The Charlevoix County Press, Schafer's Store and The Dilworth Hotel.

Working on the race committee are chairman Tim Clifton, Gary Schafer, Mark Guitar, Rick Vogel, and Jim Baumann.

Anyone else interested in working on the committee or helping on the race is encouraged to contact any committee member or attend meetings which are held at the Dilworth at 4 p.m. every Thursday.

There will be 20 racing classes for all ages and abilities, with 60 Olympic style medals to be awarded to the top finishers in each class. T-shirts will be given to every participant.

Race details and entry blanks will soon be available in The Charlevoix County Press and at a number of locations throughout the area.

Despite high interest rate

It's a 'buyer's market' for real estate

BY DIANNE MURRAY

Even with record high mortgage rates, it's not a bad time to buy a house. As a matter of fact, investing money in real estate is ideal now because it's a "buyer's market," realtors and bankers say.

A buyer's market is when a homeowner will often sell for considerably less than the asking price or will take a land contract for his home.

Bill Carey, president of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors, believes that sellers are willing to drop their asking price and go with land contracts in order to sell. These are ideal opportunities for home buyers, he said.

Realtors and bankers contacted by The Press said that although mortgage money is available, the number of applicants for mortgage loans has decreased. The number of people looking for homes has decreased too, realtors add.

"There's no question that the demand for mortgage loans is substantially off," said Bob Blayaert, assistant vice president for First National Bank and Trust of Petoskey, which also has an office in Boyne City.

People are not willing to sign for a loan at a 15 percent interest rate, he said. Fifteen percent is the current mortgage interest rate at First National. A year ago, the rate was between 10 and 11 percent, Blayaert said.

Carey, an associate broker at the Charlevoix office of Colwell and Company Realtors, believes the mortgage interest rate has reached its peak and will remain stable for another year and a half. Carey, other realtors and bankers watching the interest rates could not predict how much or exactly when the rate will drop.

Mark Kowalske of Ski and Shore Properties of Boyne, is optimistic that mortgage rates will drop.

Kowalske said he is looking for mortgage interest rates to fall starting around May of next year. The real estate market has changed because of the high interest rate, he said, but sales have dropped only slightly.

"Land contracts are the way to go. If the seller can afford it and needs to sell his home for one reason or another, he should sell on a land contract," Kowalske said.

Chuck McDowell, chairman of the board for Northwestern State Bank, which serves in East Jordan, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Petoskey and Atwood, agreed that there is a decline in the number of people seeking mortgage loans.

Mortgage applications at Northwestern, where the interest rate ranges between 13 1/2 and 14 1/2 percent, have dropped 25 percent from last year, McDowell said.

"Inflation has taken a big bite out of the consumer's disposable income and the high monthly payments are more than what the consumer can afford," he said.

When bank lending money is tight, home sellers are urged to use land contracts, McDowell said, allowing people who do want to buy homes an option they can afford.

Blayaert of First National said even with the high interest rate, it may be to the buyer's advantage to buy now.

If you can buy an average size home for $4,000 less than what you would have paid last year, it would be to your advantage to buy now, even at a high interest rate, and then refinance the house three to five years from now, he said.

For example, a seller may ask $28,000 for a home, but sell for $24,000. The buyer agrees to a 14 percent mortgage interest rate over a 20 year period for a total interest of $21,600 in interest. His monthly payment is $268. After two years the purchaser will have paid off $5,989 in interest and have a balance of $21,143 in principal.

Last year, for example, when the interest rate was 10 percent, the outlook for homes was more of a seller's market. The same home with an asking price of $28,000 might have sold for $27,000 last year.

With a 10 percent mortgage interest rate, financed over a 20 year period, the total interest cost would be $24,400. The monthly payment would be $234. After two years the purchaser will have paid $4,781 and have a balance of $23,154 in principal remaining.

Even after five years of paying for the home, the balance for the home purchaser with 14 percent interest would be $20,169 compared to $21,821 for the purchaser with a 10 percent mortgage interest rate.

The homeowner can refinance his home and come out much better in the long run, Blayaert said. Also, he said, considered that the home would be worth $30,000 each year.

With the price paid right, the purchaser could pay today. Over a period of time, due to inflation, the home purchase will pay off. Also because northern Michigan is prime real estate territory, there's no way the price of a home is going to go anywhere but up," Carey said.

Give your home checkup to prepare it for winter

Each fall you take your car to a mechanic for a tune-up or some type of winterization to insure reliable and efficient operation for the coming cold weather. Unfortunately, your house doesn't knock or ping like a car to indicate that something might be wrong. It just sits there performing below par.

Why not give your house a winter checkup to prepare it for the coming heating season.

*Check the amount of insulation in the ceiling. The greatest heat loss in most houses is through the roof. If your house has less than 2 1/2 inches of insulation in the ceiling or attic, you should add a minimum of 6 inches of insulation. This is the easiest area in which to install insulation.

*Check cracks between window frames and between door frames and the wall. Every crack, both inside and outside the house, should be caulked. And, you can "caulk-it-yourself." It's easy!

*Check for drafts around doors. Outside doors or doors to unheated areas need to be properly weatherstripped. A 1/8 inch crack around a standard door frame is responsible for losing as much heat as a hole the size of a grapefruit.

*Check to see that there are no poorly fitting or broken windows.

*Check to see that all single-pane windows have some type of storm windows. If you decide to purchase storm windows, get several estimates from dealer/contractors. Also, there are less expensive do-it-yourself ways to stop heat loss through windows. Special kits are available to cover your windows with rigid clear plastic, or you can purchase even less-expensive clear plastic in rolls.

*Check room air conditioners in your windows. If you can't remove and store them for the winter, carefully weather-strip around them. Special plastic covers are also a good investment, or make your own covers with a roll of plastic film and masking tape.

*Check dampers on fireplaces, kitchen and bathroom exhaust fans and dryer vents to see that they close tightly when not in use. Clean away any debris that may be preventing proper closing.

*Last but not least, include the furnace in your winter checkup. Clean the blower fan and replace air filters on your furnace. Not only should these filters be replaced in the fall, but also whenever they become clogged - or at least twice a year. If your furnace is equipped with a humidifier, be sure it is clean and operating properly. Consider installing an automatic setback thermostat. To be sure your entire furnace system is operating efficiently, have your furnace cleaned and adjusted by a competent serviceman before the heating season starts.

Giving your house a winter checkup and winterizing now can mean saving both energy and money in the cold winter months to come!

East Jordan fourth graders will be calling on area residents selling "Dingles" to raise money for class projects. The safety reflectors are available in disc form, to hang from clothing or around pet's necks, or as flags for bicycles.

'Dingles' are safety & profit

EAST JORDAN - Girl Scouts and cookies, Little Leaguers and candy bars, and now the East Jordan fourth grade and "Dingles".

What, you may ask, is a Dingle? A unique fund-raising tool that East Jordan residents are now being asked to buy.

The fourth grade, under the supervision of Bruce Healy, is in the process of selling Dingles-reflector discs that protect walkers, joggers, bikers and pets from being hit by automobiles in the dark.

The discs come in a variety of forms. Super heroes, athletic figures, Disney characters, animals and many other characters are represented on the shiny vinyl Dingles.

Healy's class raised money using Glen's Market Save-Share Sales-slips and with it bought Dingles. The class is now selling the Dingles, thus learning about free-enterprise while raising money for class trips and projects.

Class members began selling the dingles Monday. The fourth graders are all selling Dingles and the reflectors are also available at the elementary school.

Money from the Dingle sales will help the fourth graders pay for a trip to Mackinaw City in June and a January trip to the Shrine Circus in Grand Rapids.

Healy pointed out that not only will the Dingle sales help pay for these class activities, they will also help combat one of America's biggest causes of death among children - pedestrian and cycle accidents.

VA LOAN LIBERALIZED

Thanks to the latest Veteran's Housing Law, the GI loan has become an even more useful and versatile source of home financing. One of the biggest breaks is that veterans can now renew their guarantee entitlement - in other words, buy another home with the VA's aid if the veteran paid up his first GI home and sold his home or sells to another GI who takes over the loan using his own entitlement.

Prior to 1975, the guarantee limit was either 60% of the loan or $12,500. This guarantee has now been raised to 60% of the veteran's loan or $25,000, whichever is less.

Other favorable terms are no minimum down payment at some banks, no top mortgage and the mortgage can run up to 30 years. For the vet, this adds up to low move-in cash and, thanks to the long pay-off, lower monthly payments.

EJ gridders honored at banquet

EAST JORDAN - The undefeated varsity and junior varsity football teams of East Jordan High School were honored at a banquet and award presentation last Tuesday night at the high school.

Pat Arsenault, Red Devil coach Frank Holes' coach during his Northern Michigan University (NMU) days, was the guest speaker for the program, impressing upon the athletes that "you have to work, there's no substitute for it."

"I hope you believe me," Arsenault said, "and don't have to learn the hard way."

The former NMU coach commented on similarities between Holes and former East Jordan coach Dan Devine, now with the University of Notre Dame.

"They both have won," Arsenault said. "They have both built programs and they both like to work with young men."

"Frank Holes is a good person," Arsenault told the players and their friends and relatives in attendance. "Respect and take care of him like he respects you and takes care of your son."

The two ingredients for a successful football team, Arsenault explained, are good men to make up the team and someone who can teach them.

Following Arsenault's address, letters and awards were given to the junior varsity and varsity players. The booster club gave an award to the junior varsity squad for going undefeated the last two seasons.

Tom Peters received the Most Valuable Player award for the junior varsity squad.

Holes followed junior varsity coaches Ted Jeffery and Steve Vanderhyde on the program and the varsity coach acknowledged a long list of people who helped make the Devils' perfect season possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Lemon received special thanks from Holes for their work in the concession stands at the home games. The varsity captains presented Mrs. Lemon with a bouquet of flowers and gave Mr. Lemon a football medal.

The varsity letters were then awarded with All-Conference award recipients being recognized at the same time.

Nine Red Devils were named to the Ski-Valley All-Conference first team. They were senior guard Tim Vermillion, junior tackle Jerry Fuller, senior end Duane Carpenter, junior quarterback Delbert Ingalls, senior back Duane Cutler, sophomore back Steve Graham, junior defensive linemen Mike Cihak and Steve Hilden and junior defensive back DuWayne Dougherty.

Named to the All-Conference honorable mention squad were Red Devils Bill Spence, Bob Thompson, Don Trojaneck, Tim Kraemer and Brian Stanek.

Cutler and Graham, the two leading scorers in the conference, were named co-recipients of the Most Valuable Back award while Vermillion won the designation of Most Valuable Lineman.

Holes also announced four winners of the Most Valuable Player on the Nut Squad award. The nut squad scrimmaged against the first team offense and defense all season.

The four honored were Bob Limban, Tom Zoulek, Eric Hansen and Dan Goble. Holes concluded his portion of the program with some observations on next year's team.

"We're looking for good success. It's going to be tougher," Holes claimed. "We'll be competitive. I'm not going to predict anything."

Ramblers close strong, beat two neighbors

BOYNE CITY - The varsity girls basketball team closed its regular season with a pair of wins, defeating county rivals Charlevoix and East Jordan.

In a game played in East Jordan last Monday the Ramblers used a balanced scoring attack and a good rebounding game to beat the Red Devils 73-39 in a non-conference game.

The next night, Charlevoix was the victim in a tight Michigan-Huron Shores Conference encounter that Boyne won 46-43.

District play slated for Wednesday.

Nov. 28 in East Jordan has East Jordan and Boyne City rematched in a 7 p.m. game in the East Jordan High School gym.

In last Monday's game against East Jordan, the Ramblers were led by Becky Aimesbury's 18 points. Linda Sarasin added 14 points. Lori Paquette had 12 points and Kim Wandrie scored 11. Wandrie and Paquette led the team's rebounding effort.

Against Charlevoix the Ramblers fell behind 10-0 in the first period. Boyne didn't score until two minutes remained on the clock in the first quarter.

A scoring burst to close the quarter left the Ramblers trailing 12-10.

Boyne remained hot in the second quarter and led by seven at the half. The see-saw nature of the game continued and at the end of three quarters Charlevoix had fought back to within one.

Leads changed hands throughout the fourth quarter before the final three point margin was established.

"We took the fewest number of shots we have all season," Rambler coach Steph Moody said about the Charlevoix game.

Aimesbury was again the top Rambler scorer, finishing with 16 points. Sarasin added 14 points while center Cindi Scott had eight points in addition to playing a strong rebounding game.

"Charlevoix had us worried," Moody said. "They're a lot taller than we are and we had to go into a slow-down offense for a few minutes near the end of the game. If we play them again (in the district tournament) we expect a tough game."

The two wins to close the regular season left the Ramblers with a 11-8 overall record and a 7-7 conference mark.

JVs finish 15-4

BOYNE CITY - Two one-sided wins closed the season for Boyne's junior varsity girls basketball team, leaving it with a 15-4 overall record, 11-4 in the conference.

With the substitutes playing most of the way, the Ramblers beat East Jordan 48-23 Monday night, and Charlevoix 53-22 last Tuesday.

In the East Jordan game the Ramblers could only manage an eight point first quarter lead. A 16-4 second quarter margin opened the game up and the Rambler reserves coasted to the final score.

Laurie Redmer was the leading scorer for the Ramblers with 12 points. Freshman forward Julie Paquette was the top rebounder in a game that saw the entire squad hitting the boards well, according to coach Pat Upton.

"Everyone was rebounding well," Upton said. "Everyone played well."

The Ramblers enjoyed earlier success against Charlevoix's junior varsity. Boyne jumped to a 20-0 first quarter lead, stretched it to 30-4 at the half and 42-14 at the end of three quarters. Freshman Terri Heiermann led the scoring with 10 points. Redmer and Judy Upton paced the rebounders with 10 and eight rebounds respectively.

Five of the junior varsity players were moved up to the varsity squad. Lori Paquette was moved up earlier in the season and Redmer, Upton, Sheila Smith and Michelle Russell were moved up for the district tournament.

"It was a great season," Upton said of her third year as junior varsity coach. "The whole team enjoyed every minute."

"They were very dedicated and loved to practice," Upton said. "I would like to say all of these girls are hard working and dedicated and love the game." Upton told The Press in a written summary of the first part of the season.

"They give up a lot for basketball. Seven of them went to camp last year and that says a lot for how much they want to improve," she continued.

There were five freshmen on the squad who'll return to give next season's junior varsity squad some experienced players.

Three local teams in East Jordan district; Boyne, Charlevoix sport best records

EAST JORDAN - Three Charlevoix County girls basketball teams are in the running for the district tournament crown in East Jordan this week.

Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City are the three local teams in the East Jordan district. The five team field is rounded out by Onaway and Rogers City.

Charlevoix and Boyne City are the only teams in the district with winning records. The Rayders are 9-8 entering tourney play while Boyne City carries a 11-8 mark into the tourney-opening game Wednesday against host East Jordan.

East Jordan's 3-14 record is the next best of the three other teams in the district. Rogers City and Onaway each are sporting 2-16 records.

Boyne City and East Jordan were the only two teams to not draw a bye in the first round of the tournament. The winner of their Wednesday game will meet Rogers City in a 8:30 p.m. game Friday. Charlevoix and Onaway will play in the first game Friday, facing off at 7 p.m. The tourney finals will be at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Charlevoix will enter the tournament with Lisa Pischner the team's leading scorer and rebounder. Mel Kerridge is the Rayder's floor leader while Teresa Noirt is the team's top free throw shooter.

Colleen Thompson has paced East Jordan's scoring attack all season. She is also the top offensive rebounder on the team while Yvonne Grant has been leading the Red Devils on the defensive boards. Grant's 63 percent leads East Jordan free throw shooters.

Claire Smart is leading Rogers City in scoring and in offensive rebounding while Kathy Furtaw is the team's top defensive rebounder and free throw shooter.

Sharon Bishop has led Onaway in scoring coming into the tournament. Her job will be made tougher by the loss of Shelley Freely, the team's leading rebounder.

Boyne City is paced by Becky Aimesbury, Linda Sarasin and Penny Grunow on offense. Center Cindi Scott supplies much of the rebounding on the short Rambler team with help from Nancy Lentz and Kim Wandrie.

The winner of the East Jordan district will advance to regional tournament play in Roscommon.

Leaders idle; Payton's, Great Lakes close gap

Country Star and the Boyne River Inn were both idle in men's league basketball last week. Both teams stand at 3-0 on the season, and remain tied for first place. Payton's Well Drilling and Great Lakes Energy both drew within a half-game of first place as they each upped their record to 3-1.

Payton's rallied from a nine point half time deficit to beat Schafer's 73-71 Sunday. Terry Erber and Tim Crego paced the win with 26 and 12 points respectively.

The losers were led by Tom Beyer with 18 points, Dean Hicks with 16 and Mark Case with 14.

Great Lakes moved into the second place tie with two wins last week. In a Wednesday, Nov. 21 game with Steven's Concrete, Great Lakes cruised to a 106-82 win.

Sunday Great Lakes jumped to a 14 point lead over East Jordan Patterns in the first quarter and expanded it to win 88-49. Tony Williams led the Great Lakes scoring with 25 points Sunday.

All Looze added 15 points. Howard Neal had 12, Dan Osmer 11 and Graham Fineout 10 for the winners. Ed Roberts had 13 points to lead EJ Patterns. Rick Roberts and Dave Burch each had 12 points.

In a battle of winless teams Sunday, Ski & Shore topped Steven's 88-75. Steven's led 20-16 at the end of the first quarter but Ski & Shore used a 22-13 second quarter scoring edge to get a lead at the half that they kept the rest of the way.

Jeff Kruzel scored 28 points to pace Ski & Shore. Tim Markam added 17, Lon Kowalske had 12 and Jack Wingo 11 for the winners. Steven's was paced by Jim Baumann with 25. Al Olsen and Jerry Carpenter chipped in with 12 and 10 points respectively.

In the other game played in East Jordan Wednesday Schafer's topped Steven's. The score was unavailable.

Games this week in Boyne City Sunday pit Country Star against Victorian AFC at 12:30 p.m., Great Lakes and BRI at 1:45 p.m., and Steven's vs. Schafer's at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 7:15 p.m. in East Jordan, EJ Patterns will play Payton's and at 8:30 p.m., the Gold Nugget Bar will play Ski & Shore.

[Editor's note--The following is an account of a recent Boyne City seventh grade girls basketball team's victory in a tournament in Mancelona. The perspective is an unusual one in that the story is told from a mother's angle. Shirley Crozier was kind enough to fill us in on the seventh graders' accomplishments.]

You could call it the 7th grade girls basketball season, you could call it middle school basketball at its best or you could call it the "Karla Harshman Show".

The finale of the 7th grade girls basketball season was played with a fight to the finish in razz-ma-tazz style Wednesday night at the Mancelona middle school. The "Mini-Ramblers" fought Gaylord St. Mary all the way to their trophy-topped 24-15 win.

The game was a scrappy, fast moving, run and gun type game with a quiet, serene Karla Harshman sitting on the sidelines watching her team shift gears like a sports car. Unperturbed by the battle on the court, she seldom smiled, but was a mountain of confidence to the little girls who were running the boards.

Karla came to Boyne City from Indiana and her last coaching job was in East Chicago where her team finished 12-0... something like she has started here.

The girls 7th grade team has been undefeated in regular league play, falling only to Charlevoix in a non-conference game, the first of the season.

Karla's 8th grade girls finished the season with an impressive 3rd place. She is doing a great job with the middle school program.

The 7th grade "Mini Ramblers" have outplayed their competitors this year with a style of basketball that is unique to junior high school basketball. It was a fast, action packed game Wednesday night with every girl out there playing not 100 percent, but 120 percent for their team.

Every player came off the bench in the finals of the Mancelona Invitational Tournament and we saw enthusiastic girls run, jump, smile, frown, cry, fall, roll and grin to a half time score of 18-7.

St. Mary finally got in double figures with 34 seconds to go in the third quarter.

The Ramblers had 15 girls to St. Mary's team of 28 members but had more depth, and confidence, and they play together in a very good team effort. The electrical-charged atmosphere lent itself to a hoard of screams when Gaylord made a basket for the Ramblers! Unfortunately, a traveling charge was called and Boyne didn't get the score -- however, a hard lesson was learned well.

One of the fathers at the game, Ken Oakes, was overheard to say, "If those girls are going to play ball like that, let's put some football equipment on 'em!"

Larry Peck's 599 and Betty Hubbard's 537 were the top scores turned in among area bowlers last week. Peck's series was in the Boyne City Businessmen's League while Hubbard's was in the Pin Twisters League.

Lack of free-throws beats EJ in finale

EAST JORDAN - A cold night from the foul line -- only five of 33 attempts made -- was the downfall of the East Jordan varsity girls basketball team against a young Ellsworth squad last Friday night. The Devils lost their final regular season game 42-37.

East Jordan and the host Ellsworth team each made 11 shots from the floor. The five point final margin was a result of Ellsworth canning 10 of 32 attempts from the free throw line while the Devils were shooting an uncharacteristically cold 15 percent from the free throw line.

"Our scoring was balanced though," Devils coach Mike Bos said, finding a bright spot in the regular season ending game.

Colleen Thompson scored seven points, Brenda Gee six and Yvonne Grant four in the loss.

Last Monday (Nov. 19) the Devils fell to cross-county rival Boyne City by a 73-39 score.

"The Boyne game was a good game for the first three quarters," Bos said. "They got a big jump and then we played them evenly for the rest of the first half."

Bos' team drew the Ramblers as its first round opponent in the district tournament being hosted by East Jordan this week. The 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 28, game will probably see defensive changes on the Devils' part.

Freshman guard Gayle Crick has been moved up to give Bos' team some help at that position in the tournament.

Jaycees flounder but bingo goes on

BY DIANNE MURRAY
BOYNE CITY - The Boyne Area Jaycees, who said they were disbanding a month ago, now aren't sure what their future holds - but they are continuing their only project, a weekly bingo game.

That bingo game is holding what's left of the group together - but it is also the root of some criticism now being leveled at the group.

A month ago, the Jaycees were down to less than five active members and were ready to disband. The bingo was going to be discontinued.

Gary Schafer, a board member of the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, heard about those plans and approached several members of the Jaycees. He told them the Chamber might be interested in taking over the bingo as a fund-raising activity.

The Jaycees were interested in selling about $3,000 worth of chairs, tables and bingo equipment to the Chamber. Schafer said. Schafer wanted the Jaycees to keep the bingo running for a short time, however, so that the Sunday night game would retain its regular players.

When jackpots were large, players came from as far away as Traverse City and Cheboygan. To help keep the bingo running, Schafer and a few other Chamber members volunteered their time one Sunday to run the game. The Chamber also spent $100 to get a state bingo license.

But the next week, the Jaycees told Schafer and the Chamber that they wanted to start running the bingo again.

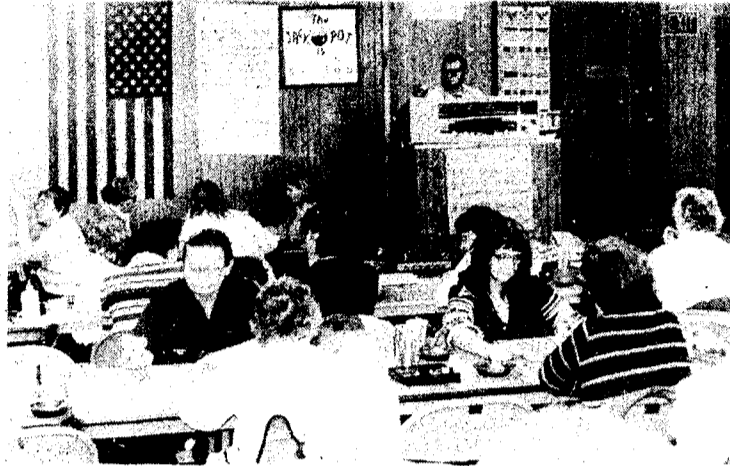

According to Jaycee member Brad Knipe, the group will "most likely" sell the bingo equipment to the Chamber or some other group. Some members of the Jaycees are reluctant to do that, however, because bingo is "the project keeping us together." It is the Jaycee's only "money making project," according to Knipe.

Gary Schafer, a chamber board member, said he has been "getting the run around," from Jaycee members on whether the chamber could take over bingo or not.

"I received vague responses to every question I asked about the bingo," Schafer said referring to talks he had with Knipe and Ray Everett.

The decision will apparently be made soon, as the Jaycees plan to hold a meeting to decide their future in the next week or so.

Knipe said the members will decide either to continue the organization, discontinue it, and possibly let the Chamber take over bingo.

The Boyne Area Jaycees continue to run their bingo game every Sunday evening in the rear of the building at 210 S. Lake St. in Boyne City. Several ex-members claim the only activity the Jaycees have is the Bingo.

"It will be up to the members who show up at the meeting," Knipe said.

Schafer, ironically, is on the Jaycee membership list. He said he attended one meeting about two years ago and has never paid dues.

The Jaycees have 25 men on their membership list. The Press contacted some members. Several of them had moved from the area and no other listing was available. Some said they were Jaycees at one time but had quit, or were no longer active.

In order for the organization to be part of the Michigan Jaycees, it must have 20 members. Several of the people on the membership list told The Press they were unaware that they are still members.

Some had not attended meetings for months or years and did not pay membership dues. That is because the Jaycee organization can pay membership dues for its members.

Knipe said that out of the money collected through bingo, about half of the members' dues are paid.

State Jaycee director Mark Pankner, contacted by The Press in Lansing, said there are no state Jaycee rules which regulate the paying of dues. He said there is a "point system" set up in which the organization will pay a member's dues in return for his work on projects.

But many of the Jaycees on the membership list have not apparently worked on any recent projects but are still getting their dues paid.

The only projects the Jaycees have been active in the past two years is Sunday bingo, the July 4th beer tent, donations for the Community Christmas Basket project, and helping the Boyne City schools put out a pamphlet on Reyes Syndrome, according to Knipe.

The lack of community projects such as helping people with yard clean-ups or fixing their houses, has caused members to lose interest in the organization, he said.

"Many members were not interested in bingo," he said. "And they just never wanted to help."

Getting volunteers for the bingo games has been a chore, he said. It is always the same workers every Sunday night. Many wives of Jaycee members assist at the bingo games, Knipe said. "A lot of them (the women) are the ones who want to keep it (bingo) going," he said.

Bingo workers are paid $10 a night to assist at the game. This fee is set by the state bingo commission.

Other workers, usually one person each week, are paid an average of $30 to clean up the room after the game. Knipe said there are "three or four people who work at bingo - and most of them are wives of Jaycee members."

The bingo game brings in approximately $4,000 a year after expenses are paid, according to Brad Knipe. Knipe has been president three times in the past and has held other offices. There are no actual officers at the present time, because the officers are no longer active.

Center of Light -- 'where religions merge'

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

The voice is a nice mixture of calmness and warmth. "Come in," she says with a quick smile.

It's Kathleen Smith. Every Tuesday evening, people have been meeting in her living room for classes in religion. Their focus, she says, is in finding that area "where all religions merge."

In the office around the corner from the living room, Kathleen explains further. "One religion may be dramatically opposed to another, but the goal is still the same. . . We can find differences in anything! It's getting past our opinions and looking at the oneness of God."

The effort to chart that area where "religions merge" has been the function of an organization called Universal Center of Awareness, headquartered in California.

Kathleen and her husband George are part of that organization. Kathleen was ordained in 1978 after graduating from Center's School of Metaphysics. She is also a graduate of Morris Pratt Institute in Milwaukee. Her academic studies were completed at Solano Community College in California.

The Center came into existence in 1978 when it broke from the California Spiritualist Association. Most of its activity is still on the west coast, but Kathleen, George and their three children have come to Boyne where they own some land in the country.

They have since decided, however, the needs of their three children and their own activity in the center require they live in town.

George alternates between clerk-carriger work for the post office and custodial work for the school.

At home he shares in the center work with Kathleen. The two met in California - she from Chicago and he from Detroit and the Air Force.

Kathleen explains their activity. "We are not Spiritualists," she begins.

She says membership in the Tuesday evening classes is open to all spiritually-minded people, and that membership in another church, far from being a barrier, enhances participation.

"God is individually perceived," she notes. "Each has a different rate of growth because of a different perception." Then she adds quickly, "God Himself is changeless."

Discussion sessions cover basic center philosophy "so that we can get common terms. . . reconciling Eastern and Western terminology."

This is important because the search for commonality ranges through the Christian Bible, Vedantist writings, Buddha Scriptures, the Analects of Confucius, the Kabbalah, and studies of native American religion from such sources as "The Gospel of the Redman."

The last is close to pure religion, says Kathleen. "In matters of higher truth," she emphasizes, she finds no contradictions.

An hour of meditation follows class discussion. Kathleen explains it combines Eastern and Western techniques. "Depending on the individual, prayer and meditation are the same."

The class is completed in 10 to 12 weeks. People can continue taking studies. Kathleen points out they would go on for several years, if a person wished to become ordained.

The Smiths expect after enough people have become interested, the group will form a church. At present they conduct a children's lyceum, 10 a.m. Sundays. The children are taught from a Unity text.

Already active in Boyne City affairs, Kathleen and center friends sponsored the Informational and Educational Fair for the International Year of the Child. Community groups from a wide area took part - Youth Activities Program, Girl Scouts, Montessori, and so on.

"It was really fun," she says, adding the $45 proceeds went to Cross Village Youth Center.

In addition, she is president of the Boyne City Library Board and secretary of the Boyne Valley Natural Food Co-op she and friend Mrs. Patty Waun started.

But no dietary requirements apply to her philosophy, Kathleen explains. "Except to maintain balance."

Balance penetrates all aspects. Even physical balance. Students of Universal Awareness meditate sitting in a chair, with their feet flat on the floor. "So you can pay attention to God," she says in a tone of practicality.

How did she get into this activity?

When she was a teenager, she says.

Kathleen Smith

religion and the people practicing it seemed to have such a discrepancy. She notes how this bothers young people especially.

Rather than give up on religion, she embarked on a search for a less disillusioning focus. "I was searching for unity," she concludes.

In Universal Awareness, she points out, people try to learn from each situation. Learning often requires asking God what to do.

How does God answer? A feeling of harmony. . . bringing harmony. . . acting to heal disease. . . to find an answer. What is hardest to explain seems, as usual, the most convincing to the inner self.

There's much to talk about. Fortunately Kathleen stays close to the questions.

Is she an idealist? "Idealist and realist," she answers.

The idealist is into this because it "causes the individual to do no harm to anyone else." The realist is busy trying to share it with others.
