Exclusive interview with...

BY BARB CRUDEN

The scene is the front office at The Press. Late afternoon. Wind kicking up snow puffs outside.

Inside, a ruddy-faced gentleman smiles. "It's a change, being asked questions," he says. "Usually I ask them." He tilts his white whiskers a bit as though interviewing a small person on his knee.

The twinkle in his eyes, however, is obviously not just reserved for children.

"Do I believe all children are good?" He pauses. "If I say yes, you'll put me down as a sentimental old gent."

His eyes turn unseeingly down to his worn, black boots as he continues. "It's the children's expectancy of good. The way they hold to the notion that there has to be love. Sure, they're good."

Is that the difference between children and adults? "Far as I can see," he says, "there are no adults. Grown-ups are children, too...though it gets hidden."

"Playing's still their most important thing. And that's right! Work is only an imitation of play."

Across the office, the receptionist is putting on her coat and gathering bags of what doesn't look like groceries.

"Bye," she says brightly, as though to an old acquaintance. "We'll...uh...we'll be seeing you!"

He chuckles as the wind sweeps her out the door. Not ho-ho-ho. Just chuckles.

"Christmas is a good time to see the child in grown-ups," he continues.

"You remember, of course, it began with a child. Maybe that means loving starts with loving children. And then you go on to love the child in the grown-up. That's Christmas."

He does not respond to questions on details of his long career, laughing off the conflicting legends. And he passes over the unusual location of his office as a joke on tax collectors.

"What I do," he emphasizes, "revolves around imagination. You know, one way or another, the world hunts down imagination. Tries to kill it. Says, 'be practical! Stick to the facts!'"

"Look, one way or another, you can't even mention fairies any more!"

"I remember," he goes on, "when Isaac Newton began pushing the scientific approach. Only believe what you can count, he said. It just started to snowball and hasn't stopped yet!"

He shakes his head regretfully. "Shouldn't have given the kid that chemistry set."

It appears he would be against telling children there isn't a Santa Claus. Right?

"Is...isn't! That's not the question! Where does love live? In a red suit? A toy truck?" He stops, smiles.

"I don't want to get over-wrought!"

He takes a sip of hot chocolate and then goes on.

"People got so taken with sermons...and being busy...Well, years ago I figured I would do something. So that they would cherish their children. Play with them, you know."

He pauses in the growing twilight, adds gently, "It was a ridiculous sort of thing to do, wasn't it. But it worked."

"I feel bad, of course, about the folks who get all wrapped up in their expensive gift-giving. Worse about children who receive no gifts. Sad that it's taking so long for the well-off to love the children of the poor." Another sip of hot chocolate.

"That 'is-isn't' question...that's important because what you need to love is imagination."

His voice takes on a far-away sound. "Imagination...with love...so beautiful."

The wind blows through the moment of silence, then he says, "Imagination itself is...like flight. You know, like the time in the evening when the sky is pale green, and snow is something come from the moon, and you don't want to go indoors. Then you feel that beckoning to flight; then you aren't an adult who has to say, let's pretend..."

He sighs lightly. "You just fly."

Evening has faded away into night during the interview. The office is dark.

Suddenly the editor opens the door from the composing room, letting in a burst of light. For a stunning moment, the interviewer looks at the chair by the desk. No one at all is there.

Down the cold street outside, the wind is making snow ghosts.

The editor leans over the desk. Shakes his head. After a moment he recites in a more subdued voice than usual:

"And I heard him exclaim ere he rode out of sight,"

"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"

"You remember, of course, it began with a child. Maybe that means loving starts with loving children. And then you go on to love the child in the grown-up. That's Christmas."

Clinics help parents understand child development

BY DIANNE MURRAY

All parents are concerned with their children's development. Parents can easily become over-anxious and compare their child's physical and emotional growth with other children to see if their child is developing normally.

A child development screening clinic, under the direction of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, is helping parents understand their children's development during crucial stages - between the age of two and three.

Children are tested by a five-member pre-school team in language, movement, interaction with others and learning ability. The instructors try to detect physical or mental problems which might handicap a child's normal development, before he enters kindergarten when sometimes it's too late for help.

Ten children are scheduled for each clinic. They are brought into a classroom filled with toys which look more like a child's play room than a testing room. The idea of the screening clinic is to let the child play while testing is taking place. Instructors use puzzles, blocks or a pen and paper to test the children.

The screening team is made up of Pat Miller, pre-school consultant; Kathy Rathford, school psychologist; Bill Mayhew, speech and language consultant; and Jackie Wood, occupational therapist.

The instructors have a list of tasks they try to get each child to perform. After a task is completed the instructor checks it on an evaluation form. But, just because a task is not checked off, it doesn't mean the child can not do that task, Miller explains.

Pat Miller, preschool consultant for the child development screening clinic, works with one child at a recent clinic in Boyne City. The free clinics test two and three year old's development skills prior to entering kindergarten.

"It may mean that your child just did not do the task while he or she was at the clinic - not that they're not capable of doing it," Miller said.

At the same time of the testing, parents are taken into a separate room and parent coordinator Ron Svatora explains the screening process.

"I provide parents with an explanation of what is happening to their child at this point of their growth," Svatora said.

"We talk about where children within that age are in their development stage and then answer specific questions a parent may have about the child."

The input from parents is just as important as what is found out by testing the children, he said. Parents are given a book with information compiled by the pre-school team telling them about their child's coordination, use of words, and suggestions about disciplining and teaching children.

Svatora's advice to parents is not to be overly concerned with how well their child performs a task. "Children will do well at a task only when they're ready. It doesn't do any good to try to teach your children something before they're ready to learn."

Not all children are at the same development stage at the same age. Because your child may not perform the same as another is no reason to push the panic button, he said.

"Relax and enjoy your child," he tells parents. "Do not teach your child, work with him." For example, Svatora tells parents to draw a Christmas tree and have the child put the ornaments on it or to draw a face and have the child fill in the eyes, ears, nose and mouth.

The pre-school team does just that - works with the children rather than tell them what to do.

Mayhew, a speech and language consultant, tests a child's listening, vocabulary and articulation skills by using a building block with two smaller balls that fit inside each other in the block.

Mayhew uses this toy to ask a child a number of questions.

"What's inside? What's outside? Take the green ball and put it in the box." These are a few of the skills Mayhew asks a child to perform.

Rathford, the pre-school psychologist, tests children's learning capabilities.

When she asks a child to put together a puzzle she is testing development, coordination and ability to learn.

"I'll watch a child look at the shape of a puzzle piece and see if he or she knows exactly where the piece goes - or whether he or she knows enough to turn it around to fit it in," Rathford said.

Other objects used by the instructors are a telephone, hair dryer, ball, and building blocks. As the screening clinic goes on, the instructors make sure they've spent some time with each child.

After the instructors have completed their testing, they present each parent with the evaluation sheet for their child and explain it.

If a therapist feels a child needs further testing he will ask the parents to more closely observe the child at home. Many times a child's behavior at home will be different than at the screening clinic, special education supervisor Pat Taylor said, because they are more used to the home environment.

Approximately 10 percent of the children screened require further testing at home, she said.

After the parent observes the child at home, the therapist may suggest ways to correct the problem or suggest the child be enrolled in a special program.

"Many times just by having the child around other children like in a nursery school, pre-school or Head Start program, the child's problem will vanish," Taylor said.

Taylor said, for example, if a child has speech and language problems which are not severe enough for special education, the therapist will show parents how to work with the child.

"The therapist would show a parent how to model speech for their child. A parent shouldn't tell the child what they're saying is wrong, but correctly rephrase how the child should say the sentence," Taylor said. "We suggest a parent read a simple book to the child and have the child work on its words."

If a child is physically handicapped a special education program is offered through the Charlevoix-Emmet school district.

The screening clinics are offered during the school year to over 300 children in Charlevoix, Emmet and parts of Antrim Counties. This year's clinics are working with children who were born between Dec. 1, 1975, and Dec. 1, 1976. A school census helps locate parents of youngsters between that age who may be interested in the free screening clinic.

Screening clinics will be offered in Boyne City on Jan. 9; in Charlevoix on Jan. 23, Feb. 13 and 27; in Ellsworth on March 12; in Petoskey on April 9, 23 and 30; and in East Jordan on May 14, and 28.

The clinics have already been conducted in Pellston, Harbor Springs, Central Lake, Alanson, and once in Boyne City.

If you'd like to schedule your child for a clinic, or if you've missed the clinic in your district, contact Joan Smith at the Char-Em Intermediate School District at 547-9947.

Beal pleads no contest

BY JON DENISON

BELLAIRE - Karl Beal, 19, of East Jordan, registered a plea of "no contest" in Circuit Court in Bellaire Monday to charges of negligent homicide in connection with the Aug. 19 death of William Hilden in an automobile accident.

The no contest plea has the same effect as a guilty plea as far as determining the punishment for the crime. But the admission of guilt from Beal can't be used in any civil suits resulting from the accident.

A pre-sentencing investigation by probation officer Robert Lapisto will determine which of four possible sentences will be given Beal.

The four possible sentences are: --Beal could be placed on probation as a first time offender. If he successfully completes the probationary period, typically a year, the charges would be erased from his record;

--He could be placed on straight probation. After the probationary period the charges would remain on his record. Fines and costs could also be assessed with this sentence;

--Beal could be sentenced to time in the Antrim County Jail;

--The most severe punishment Beal faces is commitment to a state institution.

Antrim County prosecuting attorney James Young explained to The Press Tuesday that the severity of the punishment will be determined after Lapisto investigates Beal's background.

Educational background and past criminal background are two factors considered by the probation officer in his investigation and general recommendation to the sentencing judge.

Letters had been written to the Circuit Court judge on Beal's behalf by Hilden's parents and by the parents of the other passenger in the car, Dale Bayster. Young said that the characterization of Beal reflected by the letters could be taken into consideration by the judge when the sentence is determined.

"They're certainly relevant to making sentencing," Young said. The prosecutor added that the feelings of the parents involved in the case didn't have a bearing on whether a crime was committed, however.

"My decision (to prosecute) was not based on their sympathy," Young explained.

"The policy of my office when there's an accident involving drinking and driving is to prosecute when the evidence merits it."

Young said that a two month investigation of the accident showed that Beal's judgement and ability to drive were affected by alcohol. A blood test

Cause of fatal fire under investigation

EAST JORDAN - An East Jordan family of five died early Monday morning when fire destroyed their home north of town on M-66. The cause of the blaze is still unknown.

Kathy Thompson, 31, and her children Michael, 14, John, 10, Mark, 8, and Mary, 5, were apparently asleep when the fire broke out.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater said the cause of the fire is being investigated by his department, the East Jordan Fire Department and the Michigan State Police fire marshal's office.

Firemen were called to the scene at 1:30 a.m. Monday after a sheriff's deputy spotted the fire while on patrol. East Jordan's fire department was assisted by the City of Charlevoix Fire Department.

The Thompsons moved to East Jordan four years ago from Columbus, Ohio.

Their home was formerly a caretaker's home for Elm Point Estate, which is located across the highway.

Mrs. Thompson's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Vern Jones, were once caretakers for the estate. The home was owned by Mrs. Thompson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Columbus.

Visitation and a scripture service for the five was held Tuesday at the Vanderwall Funeral Home in East Jordan. The bodies of Michael, John and Mark will be flown to Columbus for funeral services and burial.

Visitation for Mrs. Thompson and Mary were scheduled from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Vanderwall Funeral Home. Funeral services for Mrs. Thompson and Mary will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday at the Vanderwall Funeral Home with burial in the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

taken after the accident showed there was a sufficient amount of alcohol in Beal's blood to have affected him, Young said.

"We must have a deterrent for people who drink and drive," Young said. "This tragic accident shows the effects of drinking and driving."

"No matter how fine a person someone is," Young continued, "a car becomes a dangerous weapon when the driver has been drinking."

Dawn Bayster, Dale's mother, doesn't think the accident was necessarily alcohol related. Rumors following the accident said that the three boys had gotten in the accident after being at a party. Mrs. Bayster disputes those claims.

Dale Bayster and Karl Beal "left the party at 8 p.m.," Mrs. Bayster said. "They had been playing cards at my son's apartment and had gone to meet Dale's girlfriend at a campground."

Hilden joined the two to go to the campground where Beal's girlfriend was staying just 20 minutes before the accident, Mrs. Bayster explained.

"They were coming back from the campground, driving at a normal speed on a blacktop road," Mrs. Bayster said. "All of a sudden they hit a patch of thick fog, didn't see the curve and went off the road."

"Neighbors said it was a terrible area for fog, a swampy area," Mrs. Bayster continued.

"There was no center double yellow or white line, no curve sign," Mrs. Bayster said. "Why wasn't it marked?"

The boys were unfamiliar with the road, Mrs. Bayster said, and just missed the curve, going off the road and hitting a tree.

Mrs. Bayster thinks that previous traffic offenses by Beal had an influence on the decision to prosecute.

"It's like Karl had been speeding before and so he was speeding then," Mrs. Bayster said. "It just wasn't that way."

"I don't think he should be judged as harshly because they were good friends and so young," Mrs. Bayster said. "Karl is a very kind and thoughtful person."

Grief from the accident is punishment enough, Mrs. Bayster feels.

"Karl has his life to live. He has to live in this town," Mrs. Bayster said. "He deserves some compassion." Her son carries emotional scars from the accident, she explained.

"Three weeks after the accident Dale and some friends were driving and hit a patch of fog," Mrs. Bayster said. "Dale started hyper-ventilating, screamed and passed out."

When her son goes places that he had gone with Hilden, Mrs. Bayster said, tears come to his eyes.

"It's heartbreaking," Mrs. Bayster said.

Opening date for Lakewood Savings and Loan has been delayed until April due to another protest by Family Federal Savings and Loan. Randy Lightfoot, operation's officer, and Arch Wright, president of the locally owned savings and loan will move into their new office by the end of the month.

The First National Bank and Trust building on M-75 South, will be completed in mid-February. Assistant cashier Steve Woodcock said the larger facilities will be completed "none too soon because the volume and growth of business has been extremely good" and the additional room is needed. The building will have four inside teller stations and two drive-in lanes.

Protest delays S&L opening until April...

BOYNE CITY - Another protest filed by Family Federal Savings and Loan of Saginaw has delayed opening of the locally owned Lakewood Savings and Loan Association.

Lakewood's new building, at the corner of North Lake and State Streets, is near completion and organizers Arch Wright and Randy Lightfoot say they plan to move in by the end of the month. But the office won't open for business until about April.

Family Federal has protested Lakewood's application for savings account insurance through the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC).

"We consider the protest to be spurious," said Wright. "We have no doubt that we'll prevail in this contest as we have in the two previous efforts on the part of Family Federal and Northwestern Savings and Loan to delay our application," he said.

The two neighboring savings and loans, which have offices in Charlevoix and Petoskey, jointly protested Lakewood's application in hearings held last May and June before the state Financial Institutions Bureau in Lansing.

After studying the protests and visiting the area, an administrative law judge for the bureau recommended last March that the application for Lakewood be approved.

Northwestern appealed the judge's opinion but Lakewood's approval was upheld.

Wright said he did not know how long the FSLIC protest would delay their opening - possibly until April.

Wright, president, and Lightfoot, operation's officer, are presently selling stock for the new savings and loan. Lightfoot was formerly the branch manager of Family Federal in Petoskey for two years.

A savings and loan by law must invest most of its money in residential mortgage loans. Thus, S&L's traditionally finance more home mortgages than banks. Home improvement loans will also be made.

Other services Lightfoot said he hopes to offer sometime in the future include checking accounts, money orders and a "prestige card."

Federal legislation which would enable savings and loan associations to offer checking accounts is being considered by the U.S. Congress.

A prestige card enables a customer to make a withdrawal at any savings and loan which participates in the prestige card program, he said.

Wright added that savings and loans can offer interest rates for savings deposit accounts at approximately 1/4 percent higher than banks.

Wright thinks Lakewood Savings and Loan will have an advantage over competing savings and loans in that it is locally owned and is more interested in development in the area.

"Boyne City is an area with great growth potential that we think is not being met. Other savings and loans are not servicing what we consider our central area - Boyne City, Walloon Lake, East Jordan and Boyne Falls," he said.

Wright said he plans to branch out to other areas as the business grows profitable.

Other than Lightfoot and Wright, one teller, Kathy Price, will be hired to work at the savings and loan.

Price will be in charge of the savings department. She previously worked at Capital Savings and Loan in Lansing and several other banks.

Incorporators of the new savings and loan include: Dorian Adgate, Dr. Arnold Bauer, Andrew Bogema, John DiMartino, Hal Hill, Gertrude Neymark, Arthur Poineau, Donald Toffolo, James White, Richard Wulff and Wright.

...but bank construction almost completed

The addition to the Boyne Falls branch of the Northwestern State Bank will be completed sometime in January. Chairman of the board Chuck McDowell reports that work on the addition hasn't interfered with operations at the office.

EJ school back on track after rough year

We're glad to see, as our recent story reported, that old wounds are healing in the controversy which was raging in the East Jordan school system a year ago.

It was not without its consequences - and victims - however. Problems started when the new high school opened before it was totally finished. It culminated with the resignation of Principal John Winter two months later.

Editorial

Winter, certainly, was a victim. But there were others. The resultant airing of dirty laundry, concerning both the faculty and the administration, left some scars which will take quite some time to heal.

In retrospect, it seems clear that the complaints about teachers were, for the most part, concerning a relatively small number of staff members. And the complaints about Superintendent Mel Rullman were, for the most part, explained by his devoting most of his time the previous year to building the new school rather than keeping his staff happy.

The general feeling that emerged from the controversy was that more discipline was needed from the principal and teachers, and that more communication and support was needed from Rullman.

Now things seem to be running much more smoothly at the high school, which is heartening. Even though feelings were hurt and education suffered temporarily, at least something was learned from the episode.

One thing disturbs us somewhat, however. In talking to school staff and administration about the story, we encountered considerable hesitancy to talk about whether the situation had improved. Most people thought it had improved, but they were unwilling to talk about it.

We realize the natural tendency might be to try to forget such a tumultuous period. But the very fact that it was so volatile makes it important that the situation be evaluated after an adequate period of time has passed.

Is the new school building finished to everyone's satisfaction? Are teachers conducting their classes in a more professional manner? Are students behaving more like adults? Has the new principal sometimes gone overboard in trying to be a strict disciplinarian? Is the superintendent communicating better with the faculty and the principals?

We hope the school board is asking these types of questions. We also hope the board will continue to remember the controversy when it reviews the performance of its administrators and when future problems of lesser magnitude arise.

Large family means memorable holidays

At times I'd curse the fact that I was from such a large family. I always had to share a room, and hand-me-downs were as natural as a day of sunshine.

But each holiday and especially at Christmas it makes me happy to have so many in my family to share the fun with. The younger ones make Christmas especially gleeful.

We have a joke in our family that there are more people in our immediate family (eight) than we have other relatives throughout the United States (four). It's true. There are six Murray children, two Once John is awake it's on to bigger and better things - my sister Pam and I. We have lived through enough Christmases together to know the startling sounds of the three younger ones slipping into our room to disturb our sleep. We've grown accustomed to cold water splashed on our faces to wake us.

Their famous trick to get us awake was: bang open the bedroom door, turn on the clock radio, then the stereo - both on full blast of course - open the shades, pull down the blankets and command the dogs to give us kisses. This is a guaranteed-to-wake-them-trick.

The most difficult person to wake in our household is my older brother Jim. There have been Christmases when he would have stayed sleeping if not for insistence from Mom and Dad.

Jim, in his prime days, was the biggest partier of all. He was also the heaviest sleeper and the hardest puncher.

The guaranteed-to-wake-them-trick did not work on him and neither did "If you're not going to get up we'll return all your presents." His answer would be, "So what. Do it. Just leave me alone."

With Jim we'd use the "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again" program. Every time he'd kick you out of his room you'd go back in there and try again. Jim hated having water thrown on his face but that usually got him up.

After my parents were assured that everyone - in one shape or form - was awake and at the top of the stairs, they'd get up. Mom and Dad were easy to get up because they'd been listening to screams and threats of violence for the past hour.

From the top of the stairs the full troops would caravan to the stockings hung on the mantle - then onward to the tree and goodies.

Christmas Day at our house is a time of sharing with the family. The fun we have waking each other lasts well into the day. Sharing the gift-giving and sharing each other's experiences makes Christmas with the family most enjoyable.

Editor, We want to take this opportunity to commend the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce for the lovely Christmas decorations they have purchased to beautify our community.

They certainly add that "special touch" to our streets.

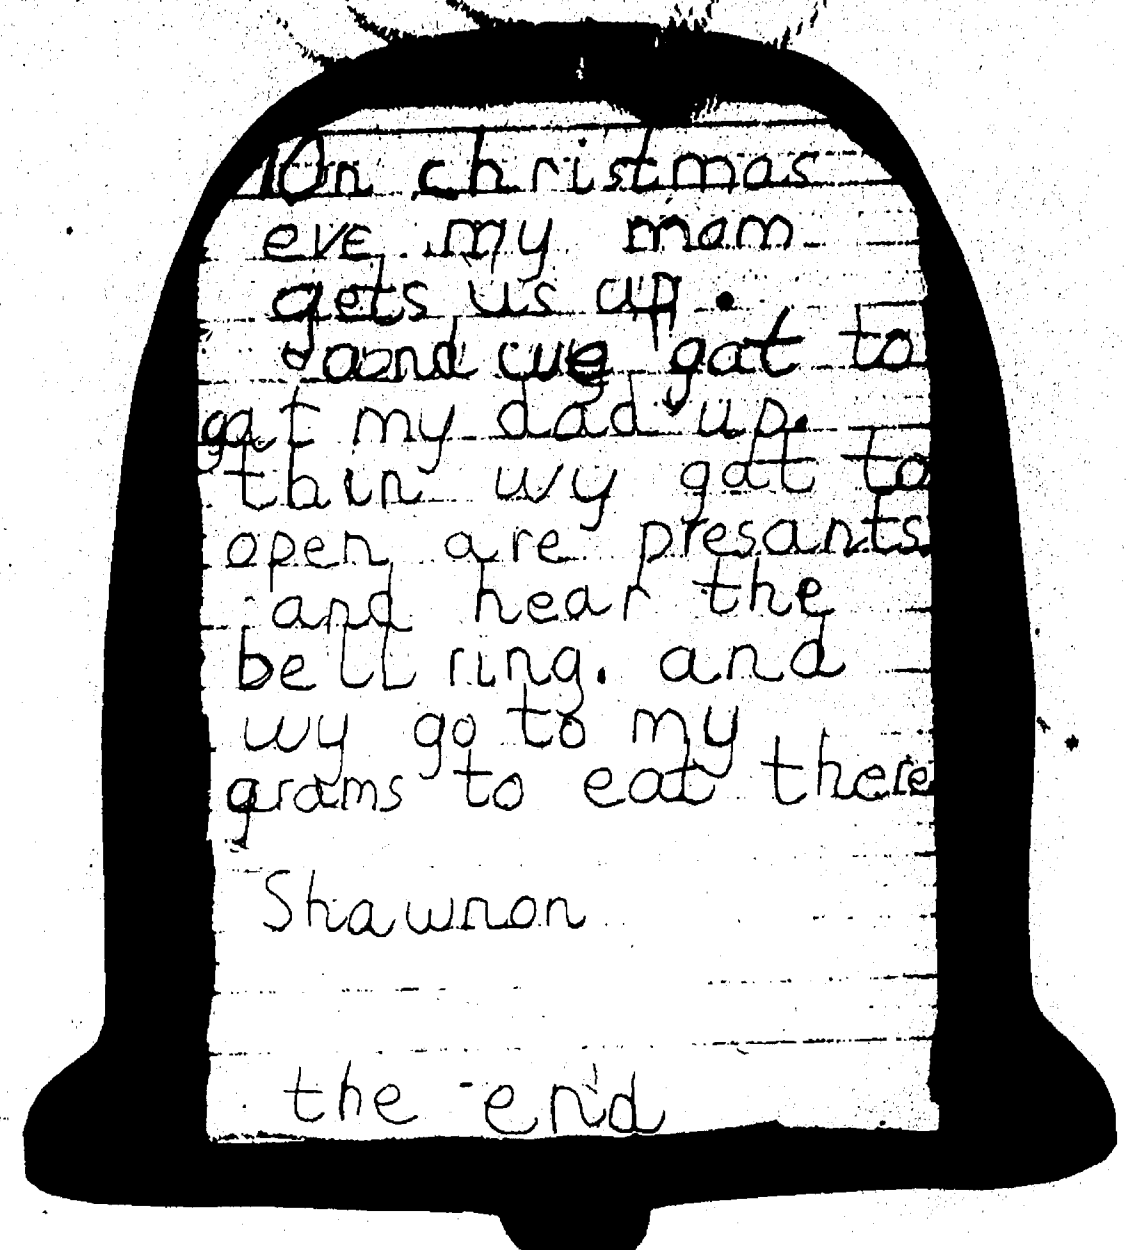

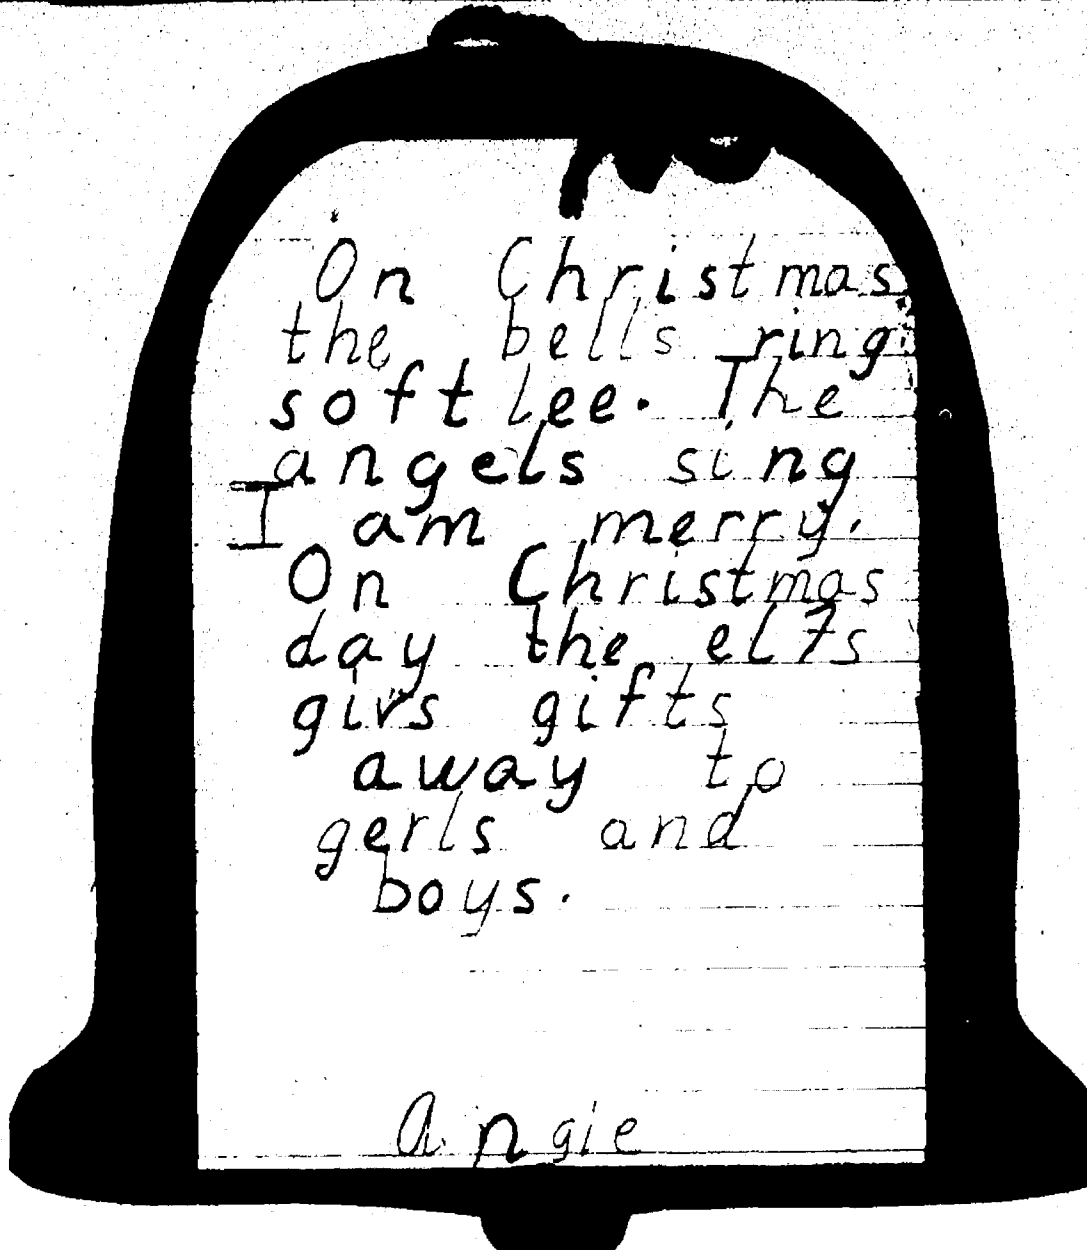

Thanks, too, to the city crew for their good job in placing the decorations so nicely. Everyone working together makes for a better East Jordan! Happy Holidays!

Correction

According to Violet Mangios of Boyne City The Press incorrectly reported in last week's paper that she and her husband Louis campaigned for candidates Thelma Behling and Martin Paul while bringing absentee ballots to elderly residents at

Highly intellectual ripsnorting

This week's column was supposed to have been a ripsnorting Christmas tear-jerker that would have increased the sale of handkerchiefs around town. Something that would have shamed the chosen few into helping the old and the struggling poor at yuletide.

But, as a staunch member of the floundering pooped, I have learned to fear the wrath of the chosen few. Once you've stirred them up it ain't easy to back off.

The last time I flailed away at the chosen few, one of them saw me on the street and yelled, "After him men, it's Marshall Sayles!"

That's why I've stuck to my highly serious intellectual stuff like this:

Because Christmas falls on Tuesday, the folks putting this paper out will be real busy. There will probably be early deadlines for all the news. So you had better get your obituary in as early as possible.

When I was eight years old I discovered there was no Santa Claus. And I am still upset.

Marshall Sayles

It was the first year of our marriage and my wife was out looking for a Christmas present. "May I help you?" the clerk asked. "I don't know," she said. "It's so hard to find something for a man who doesn't have anything."

There's some talk of translating these columns into English and sewing them into a pamphlet. If that ever happens you may have a copy for the small price of one dollar, wrapped around a 10 dollar bill to give it bulk. When it comes to money, I have a great hankering for bulk.

We keep our heat turned down as often as possible due to the high price of oil. The other day the temperature slid from 50 degrees to nine above within a few hours--a 41 degree drop. When I looked again it had risen to 12 degrees. Boy, was I glad of that.

Back in my ice age I sat in Louie's popular restaurant talking to Guy Baker, publisher of the old Boyne Citizen. I told him that I wanted to be a reporter and he said I should stop around and see him sometime. The next morning I was at his door promptly at eight o'clock. "Look," he growled, "I said 'sometime'."

It always happens. Just as the city gets rid of one side show another starts up. Perhaps the council should add an amusement fee to the tax bills.

The static appearing in this column is not the fault of your newspaper. Please bear with me. I am using all 10 fingers to make technical adjustments as rapidly as possible. Don't go away.

Christmas calamities...Ho, ho, ho!

Christmas is approaching and as it nears thoughts turn to past Christmases and their activities.

My family's Christmas celebrations have been varied, but never boring. When all the loonies gather under one roof for the holidays something always happens.

That's what makes Christmas something to look forward to. As a child the thrill of Christmas may have been Santa and the delights he'd leave under the towering tree, but as I grew older the real meaning of Christmas became sharing the time with family and friends.

One snowy Christmas Eve in Big Rapids I was sitting near the aforementioned large tree watching my two brothers play with a football. Playing with a football in the house was on the top of the list of things to definitely not do and I was soon to see a demonstration of why it was forbidden.

Both brothers and the football approached a large picture window in the front of the house. One brother stopped but the other one and the football didn't. Crash, cancel one picture window.

Unbelievably he wasn't cut at all. The wind and snow were wafting in through the jagged glass left in the frame though, and mom was due home soon.

No place was open that sold glass at that hour and cardboard had to be pressed into service. Needless to say some questions were asked that night.

Not too many years later my brothers were again involved in some Christmas folly. Dad was in town and agreed to let Laurel and Hardy use his company car to go see some friends.

It was a new car and much wider than my mother's compact wagon. The night was snowy and vision was probably blurred.

All the policeman said when he showed at the door was, "Your sons have been in an accident." An accident it was! They hit a parked car, totaling it and doing a pretty good job on my dad's car as well. Neither brother was injured but a young lady riding with them hit her head on the dashboard and her hair started to fall out. Dad wasn't too thrilled.

Other Christmases were mild compared to those two but not without some incident to mark them.

We always had a big tree. Ten feet was about par until we had our living room ceiling lowered. The floor wasn't really level and invariably the tree had to be anchored with wire to the walls.

Just when we thought we had it firmly in place it would sway and then topple, shedding ornaments and tinsel as it fell.

Some of my family's Christmas memories are hazy to me since I'm the youngest in the clan. My mother told me recently of brother Tim felling a Christmas surprise when he looked through a register in the floor and spotted a shiny red wagon that had been hidden in the basement.

One of my mother's favorite memories is the Christmas Eve she came home from the hospital with me, just 12 days old.

My sister, who at the time was a precocious 14 months, went around the neighborhood telling everyone that she had the baby Jesus at her house. Needless to say her opinion of me has never again reached those heights.

Those Christmas memories, ho, ho, ho.

BY MELVIN KRANZBERG

Can technology be controlled? If so, how should it be done and, in a democratic society, who is to do it? And towards what ends should it be directed? These questions involve value judgments as well as technical judgments.

In the past dozen years, the search for answers to these questions has led to Technology Assessment -- the attempt by experts, the public, and the government to forecast and evaluate the possible social, environmental, and human consequences of technological developments before they are applied.

Until recently, technology was judged primarily in terms of its immediate -- or "first-order" -- effects. For example, the immediate effects of the automobile are transportation for its driver and sales for the manufacturer.

However, technology also has many broader impacts -- on the environment, on social structure and institutions, on human values and people's lives. These are known as "second- and third-order" effects.

Thus the automobile has led to freeways, suburbs, and a high accident toll. It has affected leisure activities, value systems (America's "love affair" with the automobile), the environment (pollution), and even international politics (reliance upon imported oil).

Along with the benefits of increased mobility, the automobile has had some undesirable consequences. Technology Assessment evaluates the social benefits and compares them with the social costs ("dis-benefits") by a process called risk analysis, or social cost-benefits while minimizing the possibility of socially harmful results.

The possible negative consequences of technological advances were of little concern throughout much of history because technological and social changes occurred at a snail's pace.

ACCELERATED CHANGE

The Industrial Revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries, however, speeded up technological developments and accelerated social change. As the new machines poured out goods, the old "economy of scarcity" began giving way to the "mass-consumption" society.

Most people approved of these benefits of advancing technology. Nevertheless, legislation to control some unanticipated, undesirable impacts of technical advance became necessary. The U.S. government's intervention in the 1830s to end a series of disasters caused by bursting boilers on river steamboats was only the first of many occasions when the government exercised its regulatory power on technical matters.

For, while technology was changing the face of America, American democracy was demanding an increasing role for government in protecting the public. Thus, today's Technology Assessment can be viewed as another step in governmental action for the public welfare.

QUESTIONING TECHNOLOGY

Although technology's impact had been a social, political and economic issue in Britain and Europe for more than a century, not until the mid-1960s was technological advance seriously questioned in the United States. Why?

The combined impact of Vietnam, the civil rights movement, and the social and cultural aftermath of World War II led to a value crisis and some disenchantment with the "American Dream." Technology inevitably was questioned along with other values and institutions.

At almost the same time, some highly publicized accounts of harmful by-products of technical developments led to mounting public concern: Rachel Carson, in "Silent Spring" (1963), described the danger of DDT; in "Unsafe At Any Speed" (1965), Ralph Nader alleged that car manufacturers ignored safety factors, and in the same period the media publicized the birth deformities from thalidomide, a drug that had been administered to help expectant mothers.

The ensuing public outcry forced governmental action: Thalidomide and DDT were banned; and the government mandated safety belts in automobiles. Almost overnight the environmentalist and consumerist movements came to maturity and "Technology Assessment" was born.

The term was first used in 1966 in a public document by Congressman Emilio Daddario (Connecticut) who asked if it would be possible to anticipate undesirable side effects of new technologies before they were actually employed.

Congress eventually established (1972) the Office of Technology Assessment (OTA), which joined other agencies in evaluating and regulating the second- and third-order effects of technological changes: Environmental Protection Agency, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and Consumer Products Safety Commission.

PROBLEMS OF ASSESSMENT

The American people, finally aware of the importance of technology in their lives, were demanding government protection from its possible negative side effects. But there were -- and are -- problems in Technology Assessment.

First, there is fear that assessing social impacts might delay, and thereby impede, technological advance. Technology Assessment might become "Technology Arrestment."

Second, assessing a given technology's effects is particularly difficult when some impacts are long delayed or are dependent upon scale of use. For example, only when employed on a large scale, over a long period of time, was DDT seen to threaten the food chain of birds, fishes, and eventually humans.

Even more difficult to evaluate are the consequences of a combination of technical developments interacting with other social forces. For example, farm mechanization did away with backbreaking labor but also deprived unskilled farmhands of their livelihood. Leaving the farms, they migrated to the urban centers, where they created a serious urban problem because they lacked the skills necessary for employment.

We have finally come to realize that technological changes can have both positive and negative effects. But how can one decide if the benefits of a new technology outweigh its risks? Some people demand that no new technology be introduced if it poses a possible risk to anyone at all, but is it possible -- or desirable -- to create a risk-free society?

Besides, how do we compare risks with benefits when the dangers might be limited to a small group, such as miners, while the gains might accrue to a larger public, such as producers and users of electrical power from coal?

Furthermore, how do we decide what constitutes a social benefit? How do we measure "the quality of life"? To this end social scientists are developing "social indicators" to measure social impacts.

But is it possible to measure items which really depend on subjective judgments? What are the tradeoffs between, say, driving our cars to work or keeping the thermostats in our homes at 65 degrees? (Or should it be 68 degrees or 70 degrees?)

VALUES AND ACTIONS

These are questions of values. Do we value the speed, comfort, and power that modern technology gives us over our desire to preserve the environment and conserve our raw materials and energy supplies for future generations? Technology Assessment thus confronts us with a basic question: How can we bring our technology into line with our values?

Even if we can agree on values such as liberty and justice for all, there is little consensus on how to translate these values into specific actions. We know, for example, that we must conserve petroleum supplies and control pollution, but most of us continue to drive our cars; it is the other fellow who should walk or take public transportation.

Yet the difficulties of assessing technology should not blind us to its potentially positive role in controlling technology. Technology Assessment conforms to one law of common sense: Think about what you are doing before you do it. Technology Assessment means looking ahead -- not just letting the future happen to us.

Technology Assessment also represents a democratic means for dealing with technological change. It insists that technology be used for the good of the whole, not just for a few; it would leave decisions on technologies having major social impacts to the political process -- which is exactly where they belong in a democratic society.

The problem, then, becomes one of educating the citizenry and its elected representatives to understand the potentialities and limitations of scientific-technical advances.

Finally, Technology Assessment asserts that we can control our own technology and that we are not the creatures of a mindless technology which could crush us underfoot.

Based upon the premise that we can use our own technology to help bring about the kind of life and society we want, Technology Assessment clearly asks: If ours is a man-made world, why can't man remake it?

Boyer City election challenge fizzling?

BOYNE CITY - Everett K. Sayles, the Boyne City resident who planned to contest two recent city elections, has been turned down by a Charlevoix attorney he asked to present his case.

Sayles, 68, was referred to the Charlevoix attorney after a Boyne City attorney would not handle the case for personal reasons, Sayles said. He said he may or may not contact another attorney and that he'd wait until after the holidays to decide.

Sayles said he is "disappointed but not particularly amazed" that he was turned down by the two private lawyers he contacted. "Apparently the elections have become something that everyone would rather see a shade pulled over," the retired building contractor said.

The Charlevoix attorney told Sayles he did not have a strong enough case to warrant holding a new election.

Even if all the absentee ballots were thrown out, it would not change the election results.

Sayles also contacted County Prosecutor Scott Beatty about the mishandling of absentee ballots during the Aug. 7 Front Street election and the Nov. 7 city election.

Beatty told Sayles he does not have an investigator to look into matters like this and he would have to rely on state election board officials to further investigate the alleged election violations.

Beatty also said the information presented to him did not warrant a criminal case. An election board official said the handling of the ballots may have been improper, not illegal, Beatty said.

Sayles wanted to contest the elections because of the way the city administration and city residents Louie and Violet Manglos handled absentee ballots.

Questions arose about the legality of the Nov. 7 election to elect two people to city commission seats, when City Clerk Tom Garlock allowed Mr. and Mrs. Manglos to deliver absentee ballots to elderly voters. State election law states that the clerk should either deliver the ballots himself or mail the ballots to the voter.

Ramblers meet favored Gaylord

BOYNE CITY - The onslaught of Michigan-Huron Shores Conference foes continues for the Rambler basketball team Friday with pre-season league favorite Gaylord hosting Boyne.

The Blue Devils have had some rough going despite their predicted top finish. Friday Gaylord suffered a three point loss to Grayling while St. Ignace and Cheboygan each gave the Blue Devils a scare before falling.

"Gaylord is tall, big," Rambler coach Russ Harvey described his team's Friday opponent. "They have a lot of personnel."

"After their loss to Grayling their coach said they had been reading the papers too much," Harvey added.

Harvey said his team was in a good frame of mind Monday following a one point loss to Petoskey in Boyne City.

The Ramblers rallied from an 11 point halftime deficit but the comeback effort fell short.

Petoskey jumped to a 22-14 first period lead and upped the margin to 41-30 at the half. In the second half the host Boyne team outscored the Northmen 24-16 but the effort wasn't enough to give Boyne its first win.

Petoskey upped its mark in the league to 2-0 to trail Grayling by a half game, while Boyne dropped to 0-3, all conference losses.

"We couldn't get anything generated," Harvey said about his team's slow start in Friday's game. "From the mid-point in the second quarter things started going better, both offensively and more evidently defensively."

"We created more turnovers in the second half," Harvey added.

The Ramblers tightened their defensive stance one-half step in the second half which resulted, Harvey explained, in Petoskey not making the outside shots they had in the first half.

Boyne's shooting percentage, although improved from the first two games, was still a point of concern for Harvey. The Ramblers hit 24 or 73 attempts for a 33 percent average.

A bright spot in the loss was a 39-36 rebounded advantage over Petoskey.

Junior center Mark Harris pulled down 14 rebounds to lead the rebounding effort and added nine points in his first starting assignment.

Junior Daryl Tims led Boyne's scoring with 14 points followed by junior Larry Jarema with 12. The other Boyne starters, junior Kerry Kruzel and senior Scott Hausler, added nine and eight points respectively.

The Rambler junior varsity remained unbeaten with a 60-30 win Friday. Ken Wilson led the scoring attack with 17 points and Shawn Aimesbury added 13.

Balanced Devils host Mancelona

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil basketball team upped its mark to 2-0 using a balanced offense and pressing defense to beat Gaylord St. Mary 73-56 Friday. The Devils host Ski Valley Conference foe Mancelona this Friday.

Mancelona, a 61-57 winner over Peliston Friday, brings an offense featuring Mike Knudstrup as its main performer into Friday's game. Knudstrup racked up 27 points in the Friday win.

"I saw Mancelona a week ago," Devil coach Steve VanderHyde said. "They have a couple of other kids who can shoot if they're open."

VanderHyde doesn't have the problem of a one or two man offense, as Friday's game showed. Jerry Fuller led the Devils in scoring with 18 points. Duane Carpenter added 16, Duane Cutler had 13 and Del Ingalls 10.

St. Mary on the other hand relied mainly on its 6-9 center Kurt David who threw in 26 points, despite what VanderHyde called a tough defensive performance from East Jordan's Carpenter.

"Their 6-9 kid is a very good shooter,"

VanderHyde said. "Carpenter was right on him."

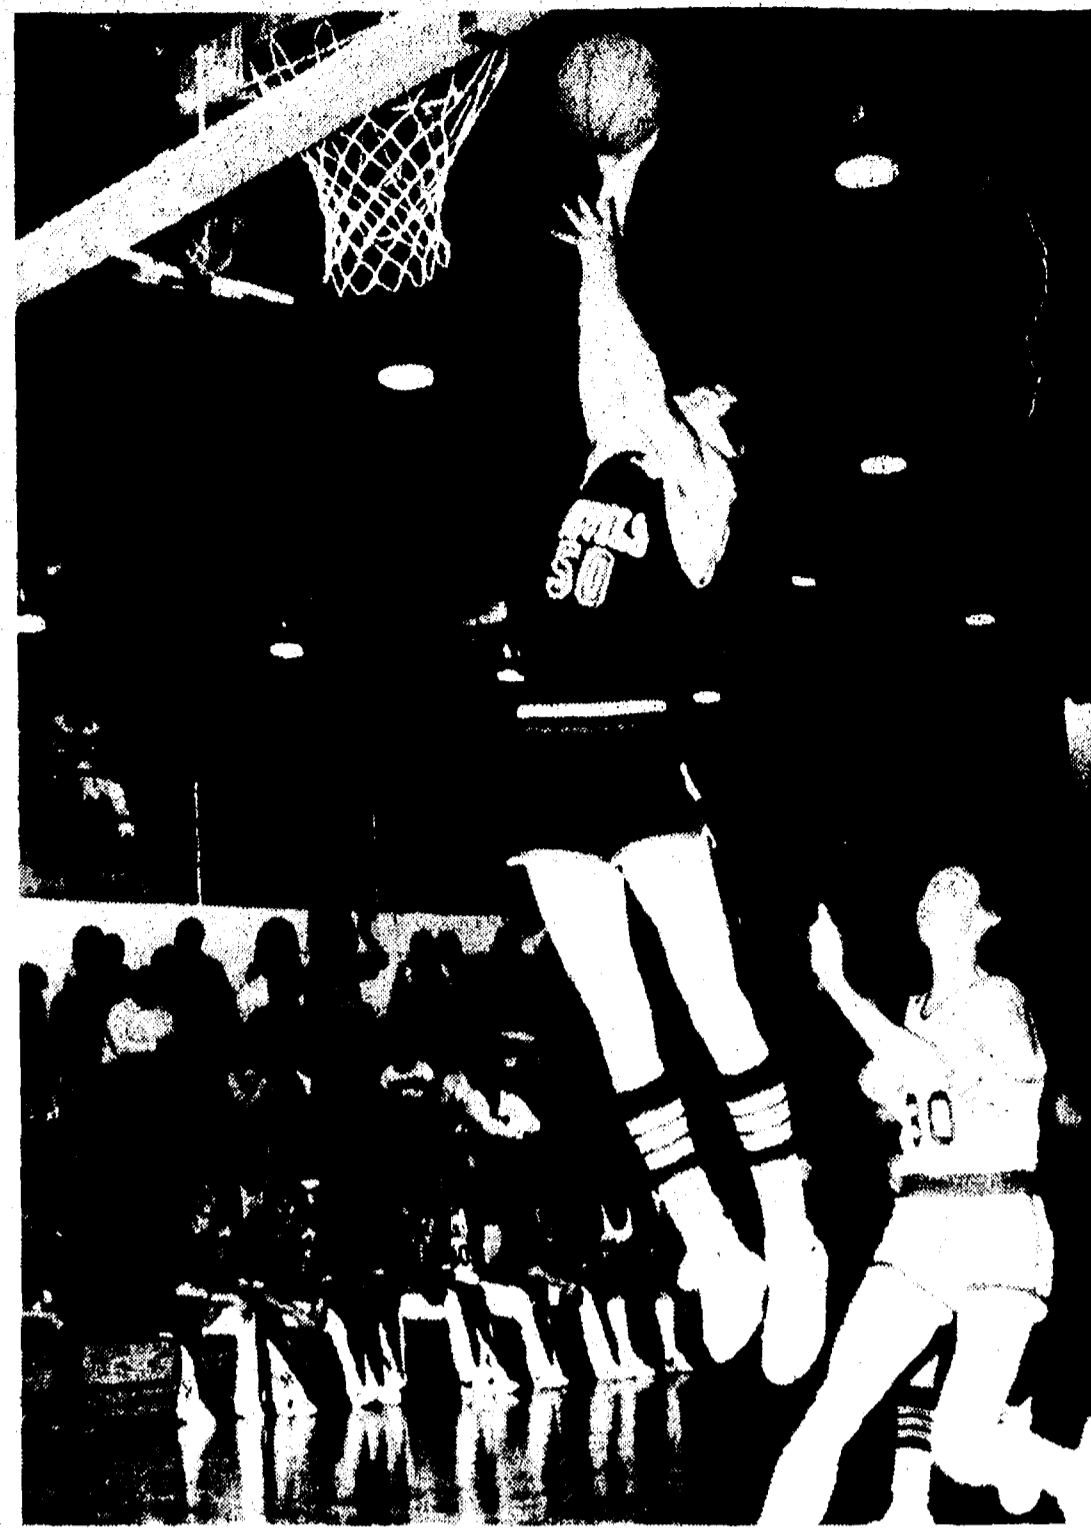

"They're a scrappy ball club," VanderHyde said of St. Mary. "They're going to win some games and finish in the top half of the league."

East Jordan's pressing defense wore the visiting St. Mary club down. VanderHyde said.

"We stayed fresh and wore them down. They made some costly turnovers," the second year basketball coach said. "We had one play - a five point play - in the third quarter. We made the shot, got fouled and made the free throw. Then we stole the ball and scored. It was a turning point."

The Devils had a four point lead at the end of the first period and were unable to expand it in the second quarter. Some adjustments at the half worked, and the host squad outscored the Snowbirds by eight points in the third quarter and by five points in the final period.

The East Jordan junior varsity squad evened its record at 1-1 with a 30 point, 75-45 win. Mike Sheridan scored 19 points for the junior varsity while Kevin Russell came off the bench to score 18.

Duane Carpenter soars toward two of his 16 points against Gaylord St. Mary last Friday night. The Red Devil senior center and his teammates expanded a narrow half time lead to win 73-56. Friday the East Jordan squad travels to Mancelona for another Ski Valley contest.

Wrestlers face defending champs

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler wrestling squad, 0-3 on the year following losses to Kalkaska, Grayling and Rogers City, squares-off against defending Michigan-Huron Shores Conference champion Petoskey Thursday, Dec. 20, in a 6:30 p.m. home match.

Boyne City coach Rick Fowler has had some trouble fielding a full team in the squad's first three matches, but is grooming some junior varsity wrestlers to fill open weight classes on the varsity team.

"Our biggest problem so far has been with forfeits," Fowler said. "Against Rogers City we won four matches, they won four and we forfeited five."

The second year coach is expecting a tough match Thursday.

"I see the match as being awful tough," Fowler said. "We should hold our own in the upper weight classes."

"We probably won't win a lot of dual meets, maybe two or three if we keep people in their weight classes," Fowler said. "Our first four league matches are against the toughest teams in the league."

Fowler expects his squad to fare better in the district and regional meets at the end of the season.

Ramblers wrestling on the varsity squad and their weight classes are Doug Kenyon at 98 lbs., Jim Raber at 105 lbs., Paul Sobleski at 112 lbs., Dave Fair at 119 lbs., Chris Fair at 126 lbs., Kevin Moore at 132 lbs., Don Kleinschrodt at 145 lbs., Ken Kruzel at 167 lbs., Roger Korhase at 185 lbs., Don Marshall at 198 lbs. and Jon Sims at the heavyweight spot.

Mike Ellis, Tom Stolt, Racil Mapes, Jeff Froats, Chip Witte and Alan Alama have been wrestling on the junior varsity squad.

Kruzel and Sims each registered pins in the Rambler's first match against Kalkaska while Kleinschrodt earned a decision and Chris Fair a draw. Kalkaska won the meet 51-29.

Kruzel and Sims also scored pins in the Rambler's second match against Grayling. Marshall was awarded a forfeit making Grayling the winner by the score 60-18.

Sims had another pin against Rogers City while Kruzel and Chris Fair won decisions and Marshall won on a forfeit. Rogers City won the meet 54-19.

Four way tie for 2nd in men's cage league

Four teams are tied for second place in the Tri-City Men's Basketball League following this week's play. Schafer's won twice to improve its record to 5-2. Great Lakes Energy won once to post a 5-2 record and Payton's Well Drilling and Country Star Market each lost to fall to 5-2.

The Boyne River Inn remains alone in first place at 7-0 following two wins this week.

Wednesday, Dec. 12, in East Jordan, the BRI easily beat Steven's Concrete while Schafer's more than doubled EJ Patterns' score.

Sunday in Boyne City the BRI was pitted against Payton's in a battle for first place. Payton's held a three point first quarter lead but the BRI came back to lead by eight at the half. The BRI then increased its lead to nine at the end of three periods and held that margin for the final 90-81 score.

The winners were paced by Kevin Griffin with 22 points, Kim Hocquard and Rob Spencer each with 21 points, and Chuck Stanek with 11 points. Payton's was led by Tim Crego and John Skop each with 20 points, Terry Erber with 16 points and Greg Groboski with 14 points.

In somewhat of an upset, Schafer's came back from a three point deficit at the end of the third quarter to beat Country Star Market, 87-76.

The two teams were tied at 18 all at the end of the first period and Country Star was up by four points at the half.

Dean Hicks had 27 points for Schafer's while Mark Case added 16, Tom Beyer 12 and Tim Hartwig 10. Ken Gahn paced Country Star with 19 points. Dave Peck scored 13 and Tim Hardy 10 for the losers.

In Sunday's final game Great Lakes created the four-way second place tie with a 107-86 win over Ski & Shore. Great Lakes was up by nine at the end of the first period but had the lead cut to four at the half. Ski & Shore came back to within one point at the end of the third period but a 31-11 fourth quarter margin put the game away for Great Lakes.

Al Looze and Dan Osmer each scored 23 for the winners. Jeff Belford added 22 and Howard Neal chipped in with 18. Ski & Shore had five players in double figures led by Jeff Kruzel's 31 points. Fred DiMartino added 17, Lon Kowalske 14, Tim Markham 11 and Ken Doty 10 for the losers.

Games Wednesday, Dec. 19, in East Jordan have Stevens playing EJ Patterns at 7:15 p.m. and the Gold Nugget Bar playing Victorian AFC at 8:30 p.m. The next games will be Sunday, Dec. 30, in Boyne City with Great Lakes playing Country Star at 12:30 p.m.; Schafer's playing the BRI at 1:45 p.m.; and Payton's playing Ski & Shore at 3 p.m.

Merry Christmas, Erv!

The building remains virtually unchanged from my days as a youth. The pinball machine is gone, as are many of the faces, yet somehow Father Kupinski, Alec Heller, Doc Silverstein, Frank and Harold Saffran... still exist within these portals, for Erv Worthing remains. Another year older, yet still caring and still sharing, a constant reminder of both what was and what is.

Along with my grandfather and John Seamon, he gave me the opportunity to develop responsibility as a youth, and for that I owe him much. I have not been there in a year, using the familiar excuses of family and business pressures, but I have never forgotten nor have I ever stopped caring.

As you stroll the streets of Boyne City's business district, only a handful of familiar faces remain from the Depression years... Don and Mrs. Fox, Ralph Moore, Florida Kaden, Mrs. Coon, and my father, Keith Waggoner, all of whom have given so much of their lives to this community... but none more so than has Erv Worthing.

This then must be my humble way of wishing you a Merry Christmas, my friend, and to tell you that you still epitomize so much of what is good about Boyne City.

Gas-Saving Gadget Sold Locally

A fuel saving device that shows more promise in stretching a tank of gas a few more miles per gallon than many others offered on the market is attracting attention locally and across the U.S.

The patented device is called "Scotsman Fuel Energizer," currently marketed through NAPA at BOYNE AUTO SUPPLY.

A claim of improved fuel economy in the range of 8 to 15 percent is made for the energizer.

The energizer employs a stainless steel wire mesh with a brass ringed center port.

Fuel particles are borne on the air stream entering the manifold and propelled against the screen.

Impact on the screen breaks the particles into smaller units. This provides, the company says, more equal distribution to the combustion chambers. If screen capacity is exceeded because of a fuel surge required for sudden additional power, the excess is forced through the central port.

This results in the fuel air mixture being emulsified by quick expansion as the pressure is released in the vacuum-like area below.

Three cars operated by the Indiana General Service Division showed increases in fuel efficiency of 13.62 percent for a 1978 Pontiac Catalina with a 400-cubic-inch four-barrel carburetor, 13.57 percent for a 1979 Plymouth Volare with a 225-cubic-inch two-barrel carburetor and 14.39 percent for a Ford LTD II with a 351-cubic-inch two-barrel carburetor.

A Christmas poem

Charlevoix poet Clarence Way, age 80, thought our readers would enjoy this Christmas poem.

EMMANUEL

He was born a babe two thousand years ago
Yet made the Heavens and all this world below
He's the God of all creation, He's the Author of Salvation
Beware the man who says it isn't so.

He made the meadow green where grew the hay
Upon the which His infant body lay
He made those hills that rang as the Heavenly angels sang
The story of His blessed birth that day.

He made the myrrh, the frankincense and gold
Those wise men, to Him brought in days of old
He made that shining star, that guided them from 'far
They knew He was the King so long foretold.

He fed the multitude beside the sea
He stilled the raging waves of Galilee
He healed the sick who came, the halt, the blind, the lame
To the laden ones He said "come unto me"

To order and establish David's throne
He came and was rejected by his own
"Away, away" they cried, "Let Him be crucified"
And so He trod the winepress all alone.

He made the woods where grew that rugged tree
Upon the which He died on Calvary
The tomb where He was laid was hewn from rocks He made
Oh! He's the God of all eternity

He was with old Daniel in the lion's den
He delivered Jonah from the whale and then
He sent old Ahab that shower, He's the one who gave the power
To old Samson when he slew a thousand men.

Think not that Christ in Bethlehem began
That's only where He took the form of man
He suffered in our stead, of the church He is the head
And we're not in unless we're born again.

He's the everlasting father, Prince of peace
The mighty God whose reign shall never cease
His power is still the same, believe upon his name
If from the curse of sin you'd gain release.

Clarence S. Way

Edwards buys Ron's Market

BOYNE CITY - Dick Edwards, owner of Edwards' IGA in Charlevoix, is the new owner of Ron's Family Market. Edwards signed the final papers for ownership Tuesday with Ron Erkfitz, owner of Ron's Family Market. The store will now be called Edwards' IGA of Boyne City.

Edwards' son-in-law, Gary Kanoff, will be supervisor of the Boyne store's overall operations. Present manager Bill Ormsby will be retained, Edwards said. Edwards said there will be several improvements in departments and food selection at the store, starting in January. Additions include a gourmet food section with ethnic foods and cheeses and a larger domestic and imported wine selection, he said.

A health food and diet food section have already been added. Other changes include improvements in the meat and frozen food departments. Edwards said he plans to have a delicatessen and a part-time butcher to help customers select meat.

The frozen food department will get a boost with new freezers, he added. Edwards said all employees currently working at the store will be retained. Last January Ron's Market became affiliated with IGA, Independent Grocers' Alliance. The store previously sold Scot Lad products.

Ray Kitts of Alpena Wholesale Groceries, a division of IGA, purchased an option on the store and looked for a buyer to run it as an IGA store.

Edwards, a native of Charlevoix, built the IGA store in his hometown 32 years ago. The Boyne City IGA is one of over 5,000 IGA's across the country.

Welcome mat out for downhill skiers as busy week nears

BY DIANNE MURRAY

With ski season approaching its biggest week of the year, managers at area slopes are quite excited to greet the thousands of skiers expected to hit the slopes between Christmas and New Year's Day.

Although Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands and Nub's Nob have been open for the past week, the skiing has not been at its peak due to the unpredictable weather.

Skiers and ski resort owners alike are hoping that ideal ski conditions are on the way. Ideal ski conditions were described as 35 degrees, sunshine and 10 inches of new snow glistening the slopes.

There are no changes in ski lift prices from last year at Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands and Thunder Mountain, all owned by Everett Kircher's Boyne USA.

Nub's Nob, owned by Walter Fisher and A.J. Fisher, has not changed its lift prices either. Nub's Nob has both day and night skiing. (Check "Out & About" listings for lift ticket prices).

Nub's Nob has added five new trails to make a total of 21 runs, said Jim Dilworth, manager of the ski resort in Harbor Springs.

The new trails, fed by three three-place lifts, make Nub's Nob more like Eastern skiing, Dilworth said. The long winding trails are good for beginners and intermediates, he said.

Ramble Wood, one of the new runs, is three-quarters of a mile long and good for skiers who want to learn control on an intermediate hill, he said.

Two established runs, Scarface and Chute, were described by Dilworth as "the toughest hills at Nub's Nob. They're ugly and mean."

Boyne Mountain off U.S. 131 in Boyne Falls has 14 ski runs fed by five two-place lifts, three four-place lifts and two rope tows. The slopes have a capacity of 14,400 skiers per hour.

Chuck Moll, manager of Boyne USA, said he is quite excited about the starting of ski season.

Boyne Mountain does not have night skiing because night skiing is not profitable at resorts away from population centers, Boyne's new ski director Alex Haidbauer said.

Snow making capacity at Boyne Mountain was upgraded last year and Haidbauer and Moll agree that the Mountain has excellent snow making facilities. The skiing has been good even though there hasn't been much natural snow, because it has been cold enough to make snow.

Snow making techniques have also been upgraded at Boyne Highlands, according to manager Art Tebo. "The snow machines have increased the efficiency of making snow and they are also more energy efficient," Tebo said.

Work has been done on some of the 165 rooms at the main lodge, he said. Wallpaper and new beds and dressers have been added to some of the rooms. The dining room has been remodeled and the lobby area has been expanded.

The Highlands, located off M-119, between Harbor Springs and Petoskey, has 17 ski runs with four three-place lifts, two four-place lifts, one T-bar and one rope tow. The Highlands can accommodate 13,650 skiers per hour.

Thunder Mountain, located off Thumb Lake Road in Boyne Falls, is open on weekends. There is no snow-making equipment at Thunder Mountain so it hasn't opened yet. The slopes are expected to open soon - probably around Christmas.

All three managers urged skiers to "come on out and try our slopes." They're ready for the ski season and by the looks of the bright ski jackets and out-of-state license plates around the area, skiers are just waiting for a big snowfall and they'll be off for the slopes.

Youngsters are learning to ski at a faster pace than adults, a ski instructor said as he watched this youngster weave his way down an intermediate-advanced hill. Children are more agile and are willing to accept the challenge of skiing better than most adults.

Bundling up is essential for a full day of skiing. It gets awfully cold racing down the ski hills - and the temperatures have been mild compared to skiing later in the season.

"Anything that can be done on a trampoline can be done on snow," ski school director Alex Haidbauer said. At Boyne Mountain one skier reached quite a height off a jump on Hemlock run.

Skiers reported ski conditions as being "pretty good." At Boyne Mountain there is a base of six to 10 inches. This accounted for small crowds on the slopes over the weekend. Resort owners hope for a bundle of snow before one of their busiest weeks of the season between Christmas and New Year's Eve.

Ski school director is native of Austria

Alex Haidbauer's English may not be perfect, but one thing he does do perfectly is ski. Haidbauer is the new ski school director at Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls.

Haidbauer, 30, a native of Austria, has been at Boyne Mountain for only three weeks, but spent the last two years as a ski instructor at Big Sky, Montana. Big Sky is also owned by Boyne USA.

Haidbauer started skiing at the age of three. Between the ages of seven and 16 he downhill raced. During the height of his skiing career he was invited by the Australian government to introduce skiing to the Australian people.

When Haidbauer isn't teaching people to ski in the United States, he's directing a ski school in Australia. Eleven months out of the year, Haidbauer is skiing - either in Australia or the United States. Since Australia is in the Southern Hemisphere, it is winter there when it's summer here.

Skiing is a very exciting sport and the better you get the more fun you have doing it, he said.

"The only winter sports around here are outdoor sports. Skiing is a healthy sport and the better you get at it the more fun you have. That is why so many people continue after their first season of skiing," Haidbauer said.

Skiing is a constant challenge - it's you against the mountain. If the steepness of a hill does not challenge you, then try moguls, he added. Moguls are dips and bumps in the terrain of the hill caused by skiers turning at the same spot.

If a skier does not find moguls challenging, Haidbauer suggests racing. The average speed for a racer is between 30 and 35 miles per hour. An Olympic racer's speed on the same course might exceed 60 miles per hour, he said.

Skiing does not take a lot of coordination or skill to learn, it just takes practice and a love for the sport to continue until you're good, Haidbauer said. Anyone, no matter what age or shape, can learn to ski, he added.

Haidbauer's instructors teach four categories of skiers: beginners, advanced beginners, intermediate and advanced.

As a beginner, a skier learns to walk, slide and snow plow turn on skis. An intermediate learns control on skis and to do more advanced turns such as starting to parallel. At this point, Haidbauer said the skier is graded and will advance and be put into classes with other people of the same skill.

After advanced skiing, in which a skier learns control on harder terrain such as moguls or challenging hills, he could advance to free-style skiing.

Free-style skiing includes skiing on one ski to somersaults on skis. "Anything that can be done on a trampoline can be done on skis," Haidbauer said.

Haidbauer directs a staff of 30 international ski instructors at Boyne Mountain. From 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, skiers can take lessons.

The Mountain offers special children's lessons. Parents can leave their children with an instructor from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. During that time the child learns to ski, eats two meals, and plays games. The cost of the lessons depend if you are staying at the lodge or not.

Group lessons for two hours are $10, or $6 for one hour. Private lessons are priced according to what level the skier is at.

The average class size is seven.

Ski school director Alex Haidbauer, from Austria, skis 11 months out of the year. When he's not teaching people to ski at Boyne Mountain, he's directing a ski school in Australia.

Salad with holiday colors wins contest

Faced with the mouth-watering responsibility of judging The Charlevoix County Press Holiday Recipe Contest were Rosalind Stump, Clarence Weaver and Dennis Crissman.

It was appropriate that a red, green and white entry won The Charlevoix County Press Holiday Recipe Contest.

But it was the taste, not the color, that convinced the judges that Anne LaCross' sauerkraut salad was tops.

Mrs. LaCross, who lives on Alba Road south of East Jordan, says: "I like this particular salad because it can be made ahead, and it keeps very well."

The contest winners were named Friday in judging by Dennis Crissman, chef at The Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City; Clarence Weaver, owner and cook at Fat Clarence's Calorie Factory in East Jordan; and Rosalind Stump, office manager at The Charlevoix County Press.

Mrs. LaCross wins a subscription to The Press and dinner for four at an area restaurant for taking first place.

Joyce Hamlin of Walloon Lake wins a subscription and dinner for two for her second place hot punch entry. Winning subscriptions and bottles of wine for Christmas dinner were the third, fourth and fifth place winners - Susanne Winter of Boyne City for her cabbage mornay, Kathy Leist of Boyne City for German date nut roll, and Marie Stolt of Boyne City for her peanut butter cups.

Rated as honorable mentions by the judges, and receiving subscriptions to The Press, were entries from Eleanor Sutliff, Thurlen Eaton and Linda Mathers of Boyne City; Janice Vanderwall of East Jordan and Lara Thomas of Charlevoix.

More than 30 area cooks entered recipes in the second annual Holiday Recipe Contest.

Printed on this page are the top five entries. The honorable mentions are printed on page 9.

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne City Public Library has received an enlargement of a historical photograph for hanging in the library.

The picture of the Charles S. Nef boat unloading pig iron (iron cast in blocks) is believed to be dated around 1905 to 1920 and the boat was harbored around the Courter's area.

The photograph was donated by Mrs. Dale Liscum, Marian Harper and Lois Dexter in memory of Dale Liscum, who was born and raised in this area. Assistant librarian Nancy Fulkerson is the granddaughter of Dale Liscum.

The library board and the librarians were pleased to accept the enlargement because it is a step toward their plan to decorate the library with Boyne City historical photographs.

The cost of enlargement can be deducted from your income tax as can any donation to the library. The library has a book of old photographs if anyone is interested in browsing through it to pick out a picture they'd like enlarged.

Don't let wood stove savings go up in smoke

With energy prices soaring many homeowners are turning to wood burning stoves as a money saver, but those savings could go up in smoke if the stove has been poorly maintained or improperly installed, warns the Insurance Information Institute.

The institute cites some typical examples from a number of states to illustrate the potential danger to life and property as a result of faulty wood burning stoves.

*New Hampshire fire marshal Raymond Dewhurst said that of 752 accidental fires involving damages of $5,000 or more investigated by his department in 1978, 98 or nearly 15 percent were caused by improper installation, maintenance or use of wood burning stoves.

*In Oregon, nearly 1,300 home fires during 1978 involved wood burning units, making this the third most frequent cause of fires during the year.

*In Massachusetts, wood stoves caused 228 house fires since record-keeping started during the winter of 1977-78.

*Montana's fire marshal reports that 20 percent of all fires in family dwelling units during 1978 were found to have been related to the use of wood stoves.

Fire prevention officials, stove manufacturers, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the insurance industry agree that improperly installed and maintained wood burning stoves are an increasingly serious hazard to life and property. They also agree that most fires could be prevented if just a few simple rules are followed.

The Institute suggests a number of do's and don't's:

DO - place the stove on a fireproof base.

DO - make sure there is proper clearance between the stove and any combustible material (wall, ceiling, furniture, newspapers, or other flammable objects).

DO - consult a detailed safety manual to be sure the stove pipe and flue meet safety requirements.

DO - make sure your stove is made of sturdy, suitable material, such as cast iron or steel. Look for stoves listed by Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) or other recognized testing laboratories.

DO - remember, if you purchase a used stove, to check it carefully for cracks or other defects. The legs, hinges, grates and draft louvers also should be checked carefully.

DON'T - ever burn anything but seasoned, dry hardwood in the stove.

DON'T - ever use gasoline, kerosene or any flammable liquid (including lighter fluid) to start a fire. Start a fire by using small strips of paper and twigs.

DON'T - treat the stove as a garbage unit.

DON'T - let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight.

DON'T - light this year's first fire without first cleaning smokepipe elbows, joints and flues, as well as the chimney.

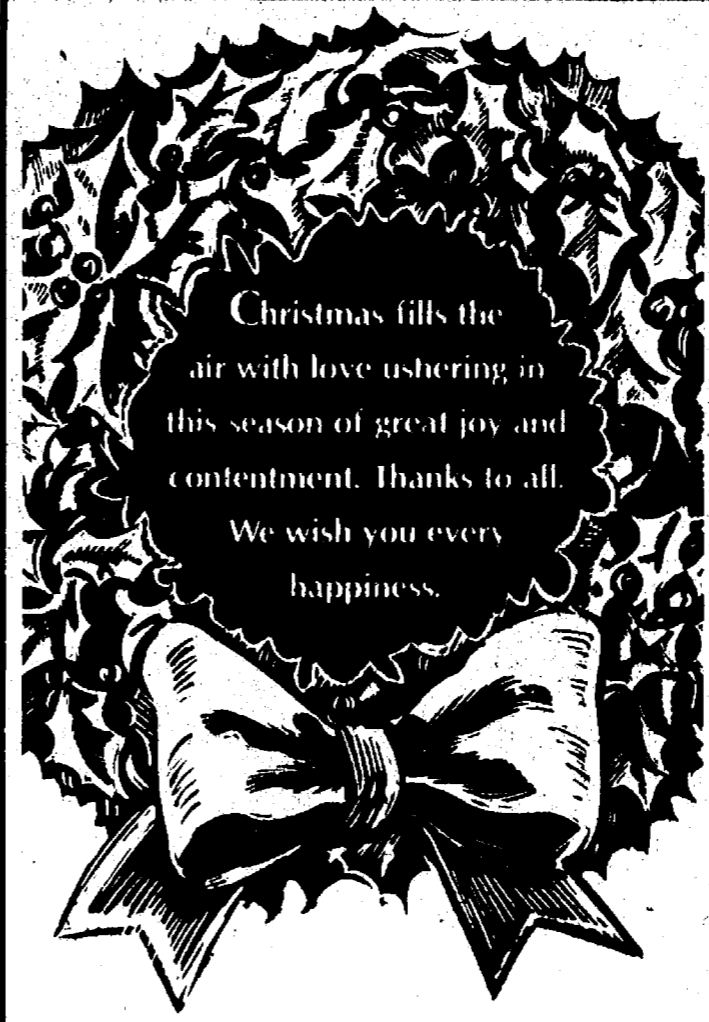

A pamphlet outlining wood stove safety requirements can be obtained from the Insurance Information Institute, 110 William Street, New York, N.Y. 10038, at no cost. Please include a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

OVERESTIMATING FLAWS

There isn't a REALTOR who has not seen prospects instantly turned off toward purchasing a home by a peeling paint on the outside; a lawn overgrown with weeds or littered with debris; a dirty kitchen, worn carpeting or shabby wallpaper.

On occasion, overestimating these flaws can be a mistake. Don't automatically let surface shortcomings cause you to reject the house. You may be passing up an excellent purchase. If the location is good and other properties in the neighborhood are valued at a higher amount, it may be worth your taking a longer look. Many of the clean-up, fix-up and paint-up jobs can be done at little cost. In an older house, apparently serious defects may not be so serious after all. Often they can be corrected for a few hundred dollars. Of course, check on the cost of repairs before you buy. Armed with fix-up costs you may be able to negotiate an excellent buy.

Big Brothers, Sisters launch drive for volunteers

Charlevoix County Big Brothers and Big Sisters has launched a major campaign to enlist volunteers as Big Brothers and Big Sisters to needy children.

The campaign theme is "Give a Gift of Friendship for Christmas" and it is focused on the week before Christmas, hoping that people will respond to the many youngsters who seek adult friendship and companionship.

There are currently 47 active pairs of Big and Little Brothers and Sisters in Charlevoix County. But more than 30 children are on the waiting list.

Most Little Brothers or Sisters come from single parent homes where the remaining parent works full time, leaving little time for attention to the children.

Big Brothers and Sisters are people who volunteer time - a minimum of one hour a week is asked - to be with a young boy or girl.

"The emphasis is on fun in this organization," Jim McGary, Big Brothers/Big Sisters president says.

People who volunteer to spend some time with youngsters are not expected to spend money on their young friends. The time Big and Little Brothers and Sisters spend together can be used to talk, play games, go places, and enjoy mutual interests.

The emphasis of the organization is to provide an adult friend for youngsters who need adult companionship.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters are not expected to be counselors to the children, just concerned and caring friends who set a positive example.

Social worker Nancy Wood of Charlevoix oversees the organization, matching Big and Little Brothers, Big and Little Sisters, and providing moral support. She works closely with other agencies making referrals to counseling agencies whenever necessary.

To keep the focus on friendship and fun, Big Brothers and Big Sisters takes all its members and prospective members on five outings each year. Last year special trips included Beaver Island, Mackinac Island, skiing and sledding at Shanty Creek, and horse back riding.

Funds for Big Brothers and Big Sisters come from the United Way and the Juvenile Justice Fund, supplemented by the annual Christmas Tree sales (currently at Glen's Market in Charlevoix).

Children who become Little Brothers or Sisters are referred to the organization by family and friends, law enforcement agencies, schools and other organizations.

The low key but positive approach of Big Brothers and Sisters has received national recognition for its effectiveness in providing positive alternatives to children who might otherwise be left to aimlessly wander the street, finding sources of amusement that could lead to trouble.

It is hoped that this drive for volunteers will result in many adults (over 18) stepping forward to become the friend to a Charlevoix County youngster.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters in Charlevoix County come from all walks of life.

Experienced Big Brothers and Sisters have one sentiment in common - they agree the friendship they have received from their youngsters makes them feel they receive more than they give.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Charlevoix County hopes others will make this same discovery.

Tying up a bountiful pack of Christmas wishes just meant for you... our good friends.
