Job betterment, personal fulfillment and a thirst for knowledge are three reasons for returning to school for a high school diploma, according to night school students and teachers. Adults like school second time around

BY JON DENISON

There were 18 high school graduates in the Boyne City and East Jordan school systems last spring who didn't fit the typical image of a youngster finishing school.

Their reasons for graduating were different and the problems they faced in school went beyond typical teenage difficulties.

The 18 graduates were adults finishing school through high school completion programs offered by the community education departments of the two systems.

While the students shared the distinction of graduating after being out of school for a while and then returning, they represented a wide range of age groups and lifestyles.

That's what's unique about adult education," said Jamie Baumann, community education director for the East Jordan school system. "There are kids 17 and people in their 60s."

As to the motivation for adult completion students to return to school, both Baumann and Judy Johnson, her counterpart for the Boyne City schools, say it varies from individual to individual.

"It tends to be an individual thing," said Johnson.

"Some want a better job," said Baumann. "Some have a specific job goal. Some are kids who have reconsidered dropping out, and with some it's a personal thing where they want to prove to themselves that they can finish."

"A reason I hear a lot is that people have kids in the junior high or high school who are getting old enough to drop out," Baumann said. "The parents set an example of how hard it is to go back after dropping out."

Phyllis Legato quit school more than 30 years ago. On and off over the years she's taken a class here and there that's interested her and found recently that she would have enough credits to graduate this spring. Though graduating wasn't her goal in taking classes, she agrees that maybe her example will be an incentive for her three kids in school to stay there.

"I have a big family, 11 children. Maybe this will be more incentive for them to stay in school," said Legato.

Legato said that she's finding school much more enjoyable now than when she was in high school.

"English literature made me drop out," Legato said. "Shakespeare. I wasn't going to take it again."

"Classes have been more interesting. I hated school before. I enjoy it now," she continued. "I wish school had been this easy when I was in before."

Richard Fales, the only veteran taking classes through the East Jordan community ed program, agrees that school has been easier the second time around.

"It's easier now than when I was in school," he said. "I'm ready to study now. Being older, I'm more ready to study."

Fales had been out of school for 12 years before going back. He said it was just something he decided to do; that nothing in particular prompted him to get his diploma.

Barbara Cruden, an adult education instructor in East Jordan and elsewhere for about six years, feels that students' life experiences help them when they return to school.

"Comprehension is greatly increased by life experiences," Cruden said. "When they read something it makes more sense; it fits into their mind."

"They study harder than high school kids for the same kind of assignment," she added.

The added complication of raising a family while going to school can be a benefit and a detriment, Cruden explained.

"A plus is that mother or father is studying, so the kids might too," she said. "A minus is that families often won't make new room in their lives to allow the studying."

Leanna Hardy, a 1977 graduate of the adult completion program, said she used to study with her kids when they got out of school in the afternoon. She credits her children with encouraging her to go back to school.

"The kids made the final decision," she said. "They told me if I had the chance and didn't go, then why should they finish. That did it."

Hardy was working part-time in addition to raising a family and going to school, but said she found time for studying.

Finding 1st 1980 baby is baffling

BY DIANNE MURRAY

My assignment was to find the first baby of 1980 for Charlevoix County. It sounds easy enough. Just call the local hospitals and ask. But, throw in a few county lines and the assignment becomes almost unbearable.

Technically, the first baby who was actually born in Charlevoix County this year was Jeremy Lawrence Bester, born Jan. 2 at 12:40 a.m. at Charlevoix Area Hospital. But, it isn't that simple because Jeremy's parents, Jacquelin and Todd, are residents of Petoskey—which is in Emmet County.

As a result, it's back to the medical records at Charlevoix Area Hospital where Craig and Karen Looftborow's son, Justin Alan, was born Jan. 2 at 8:30 a.m.

However, it turns out that Justin, weighing eight pounds, nine ounces at birth, lives 3,000 feet across the county line in Antrim County.

"We have an East Jordan address and a Central Lake phone number. We're almost on the (county) line," reports Mrs. Looftborow of Six Mile Lake Road. "We're 3,000 feet inside Antrim county."

So, it's back to the hospital.

At Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey, Brienne Lyn Korthase was the first baby born in the new year, Jan. 3 at 2:30 p.m.

She is the daughter of Debbie and Bill Korthase of Boyne City.

Now we have a baby born out of the county but to parents who live in the county, I thought. I called Debbie to ask the usual questions—the baby's name and how much she weighed, and I find out that maybe the Korthases don't live in Charlevoix County either.

"We're right on the county line (Charlevoix and Antrim Counties)," said brother and weighed five pounds, seven ounces at birth at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey.

You can figure out for yourself who you think the first baby of the year really is. I'm just glad it happens only once a year.

Mrs. Korthase of 1180 Korthase Road.

By this time I have a big question as to who is really the first baby of the year in Charlevoix County. It wasn't supposed to be this complicated. I go to my editor (who should know all) and put the question to him. He just shrugs his shoulders and throws the assignment back in my lap.

On to the next runner-up in the first baby of the year search. This takes me to twins born to Dolores and John Jackson, of 115 Cooperage, East Jordan.

The boy twin, Matthew Frank was born Jan. 4 at 5:52 p.m. and weighed four pounds, 15 ounces at birth. Heather Marie was born a minute later than her

BCHS student 'board member' reflects on term

BY DIANNE MURRAY

He may not be asked to vote on ratification of teachers' contracts or on whether a certain coach should or should not be hired for a position, but the student council representative of the Boyne City School Board does have input into the school district's activities.

Paul Skornia, 17, a senior at the high school and student class president, has served as student representative at school board meetings for more than a year and a half.

The representative's term is usually only one school year but Skornia served longer due to delays in student council elections for a new representative. Skornia's term came to an end at Monday night's school board meeting.

Skornia is the second student representative to serve on the board. The first was Sue Sutter, during the 1977-78 school year.

Laurie Redmer, president of her sophomore class, has been elected to replace Skornia as student representative. Mark Phillip, a senior who is fund raising chairman of the student council, will be the alternate representative.

Skornia has sat through the majority of monthly school board meetings which are often lengthy and sometimes controversial. He is responsible for reporting to the board about high school activities or events being planned by the student council.

At Monday's school board meeting,

Skornia explained a typical student project to the board.

"The student council would like to construct a name-plate sign for the front yard of Boyne City High School," Skornia suggested. "The building trades class would work on the sign's construction. We estimate the project cost to be around $150 to $200."

Now, who says kids these days are inconsiderate? Here are some high school students proposing to spend time and money to help out on a worthwhile project. What's the catch you ask? That's exactly what the school board members asked.

"To pay for this project, we'd like to get a juke box installed in the cafeteria," Skornia told school board members.

Skornia proposed that students be allowed to play the juke box only during lunch periods and before and after school hours.

Although the school board did not take action on the matter, School Superintendent Rich Kelly said he would like to see students construct signs for the elementary, middle and high schools and possibly work with Bruce Janssen of The Wood Shop on the design and construction of signs.

School board members joked about Skornia's "salesmanship" in presenting ideas—and in the next breath the board commended him for his fine work in presenting the students' side of school issues.

Board vice president, Tom Neumann, noted that Skornia had an "excellent relationship with board members." Kelly thanked Skornia for all the time he had donated and for his efforts as student representative. "He has represented the students well," Kelly remarked.

Skornia, who plans to attend college and major in business administration, said his most memorable project as student representative was getting approval from the school board to paint a mural for the high school gymnasium. School board members dug into their own pockets to buy paint for Skornia's project. The mural took over 75 hours of hard work to complete.

Skornia himself designed and painted the Ramblers' school symbol of a wheel with two wings on it and the school and team names painted on it.

Other ideas he has brought before the board include a senior class trip which was scrapped due to findings by a committee of students, board members and administration that the project would be too expensive; a student petition requesting that students be allowed to leave school grounds during free periods (vetted by the school board); and rescheduling the homecoming parade to before the football game.

"Although a lot of things the school board does won't affect me or my classmates directly, I'm interested in what is happening at the school board meetings and that they do affect my school," Skornia said. He added that the experience of serving on the board has been extremely educational.

Paul Skornia stands in front of what he calls his "most memorable project" he worked on as student representative on the school board. Skornia, a senior at Boyne City High School, was the board student representative for one and a half years and was recently succeeded by two other classmates as student representative.

Maternity leaves discussed by EJ school board

EAST JORDAN - Teachers having babies and the amount of time that should be taken for maternity leave was discussed at the East Jordan Board of Education meeting Monday night. A maternity leave extension was granted and a request for a year and a half leave was countered by the board with a leave for the last five months of the school year. The board had asked middle school reading teacher Pam Allen for a physician's recommendation that her maternity leave be extended. She provided the board with the recommendation and her leave was extended for the second semester of the 1979-80 school year. Margaret Borowski, an elementary school teacher, requested maternity leave effective Feb. 4. She asked for a one year leave to February of next year--or, if the board was agreeable, to the end of the 1980-81 school year to avoid a mid-year change of a teacher. The board wasn't in favor of a year and a half maternity leave. A leave was approved from Feb. 4 until the end of the current school year. At that time, if necessary, granting an extension of the leave will be considered. School lunch prices were increased by the board, effective with the beginning of the second semester, Jan. 21. Elementary prices went up five cents to 50 cents; middle school and high school prices rose to 55 cents and adult prices increased to $1. In other action the board:

--Accepted from Doug Shields, middle school principal who was representing a group of family friends, a flag and a plaque in memory of the Thompson family, killed Dec. 17 when fire destroyed their home. --Heard from Business Manager Ruby Dipinski that a motorcycle safety class will be run for the second time this summer. The program will probably begin around June 18. --Established a policy of selling homes built by the building trades classes by taking bids when the houses are completed. --Encouraged the hiring of employees through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) even though the funding is only temporary.

Adults in school

"It wasn't all that hard," she recalled. "It was something I wanted to do. When you want something you find time." "The hard part was the studying," Hardy remembered. "The kids would help there. They were taking some of the same classes." "That's the biggest help," said Hardy. "If the family is behind you. Finishing school isn't for everyone. A person has to want it himself." "It was an accomplishment of something I wanted," she explained. Cruden has seen different motivations for students returning to school. "Moving into a different, more demanding position is a motivation," she said. "For women, a motivation is the possibility of getting work when their kids are grown." "A lot of people are interested in making a contribution in their organization," said Cruden. "A contribution in their union or civic organization." "Consciously or unconsciously, adults change their minds. Their view of themselves expands because of attending classes," Cruden said in pointing out a benefit of the classes. "This stays and grows. Even when the facts disappear." "It's a special kind of teaching," said Brad Campbell, a former teacher in the East Jordan program who is now the Charlevoix County juvenile officer. "I always enjoyed those people." "You have to give them a lot of credit for overcoming the fear of what caused them to quit in the first place," he said. "A lot of the people have a full-time job with a family." "I guess a lot of them found that they weren't working at jobs that they wanted to. A lot of them who were set in careers wanted to show their kids," Campbell offered as possible reasons for people going back to school. "And there are those who wanted to learn about something." Dorothy Pelton had been out of school for 50 years before returning through adult high school completion classes. A 1978 graduate, Pelton said she finished to show herself that she could. "As far as a change in life, no, I have a pretty good job here," said Pelton, director of the Charlevoix County Senior Citizens Center in East Jordan. "I wanted to do it primarily to see if I could do it." As a result of her finishing school, one of Pelton's sons went back to school and will graduate this year. Another son is planning to go back too. Her friends at the senior center have been proud of her achievement as well, Pelton said. "It didn't make for harder studying," Pelton said about returning to school after the long absence. "Children are forced to go to school; adults want to do it." "Maybe I'm just an education nut," said Pelton. She has continued taking classes since finishing high school, recently completing the Connections Courses by Newspaper series and participating in the Elder Hostel program at Lake Superior State College last summer. "I think we (older students) were a challenge to younger people in the class," Pelton said. "An incentive for the young people." Darlene Norton, scheduled to be a 1980 graduate through the program, said that the desire for a better job and wanting to prove to herself that she could do it brought her back to school. "It's like I keep telling my niece and nephew," said Norton, who dropped out of school in 1967. "You're not going to get anywhere without an education."

What should the deceased wear?

Clothing helps to express the unique characteristics of an individual. Even in death, clothing can convey the special personality of the deceased. In the planning of funeral details, the matter of clothing for the deceased should not be overlooked.

Has there been a request in the past from the deceased concerning his or her own feelings? Sometimes a uniform of office or volunteer leadership has been requested, because of the significance to the deceased. Medals and jewelry may be considered to complete the uniform or dress.

Is clothing worn by the deceased during lifetime appropriate? By all means. A suit or dress which was a particular favorite of the deceased -- or the survivor -- may be the prime consideration.

We invite your questions and will answer them privately or publicly through this column.

Sports 'batted' around at BC school board meeting

BOYNE CITY - It was a night for sports to be batted around.

The school board filled one spring coaching position Monday, but four others were postponed until the board's athletic committee could look into "all district athletic programs."

Also discussed at length was a petition previously received from 52 high school students requesting that a baseball team be formed.

Both projects were tabled until the Feb. 4 school board meeting. At that time the athletic committee will look into the complete district athletic program and try to find out why, as one school board member described it, the sports programs have "low morale and no local support."

Board member Betty Johnecheck said she has received comments from people that the athletic programs were not being supervised strictly enough.

"We have not been reviewing the coaching positions (applicants) before they are being hired. Quite a few people have commented on past coaching positions approved by the board and some (coaching positions) coming up," she said.

Coaching positions needed are only posted if the coach from the previous year does not request the position again, Kelly said.

Johnecheck and a member of the audience, Greg Kent Boutlier, said that unqualified people are often hired to fill the coaching positions just because the school board first seeks teachers within the district to fill the position before offering the job to non-school personnel.

Board member Tom Neumann said he was worried that "people may become discouraged and not respond to the posted positions if all they hear are complaints from the school board, press and public. And the same goes for the coaches presently hired."

High school principal, Rick Casper, mentioned that a lot of feelings are steaming between school board members and coaches and he "hopes the sport problems don't boil down to a win-loss record—and I smell that coming."

The athletic committee is comprised of Ray Towne, Shirley Crozier and Johnecheck. Johnecheck was appointed Monday night to fill George Shlotelis' seat on the committee. According to Johnecheck, the committee's purpose "is to get together with school athletic directors and work out any problems with the sport's departments before anything goes wrong."

The committee will also look into the student petition requesting that spring baseball be added to the sports roster during the 1980-81 school year.

School superintendent, Rich Kelly, said he is against the proposal for several reasons. Baseball and track would run simultaneously and Kelly thought that each sport might detract from the other.

"For a school our size, if both (sports) are offered at the same time, they might not do justice to either sport," he said.

Two years ago the Michigan Huron Shores Conference, which Boyne City belongs to, rescheduled baseball from a summer to spring sport.

Kelly also thought spring weather conditions were not favorable for playing baseball.

"There's also the problem that if you start a baseball team, according to Title IX, you also have to have a girls softball team. The financial condition of the school district may not be able to support one, let alone both projects," Kelly said.

In comparing the budgets for high school boys basketball and football to the gate receipts received, Kelly estimated that the school will lose approximately $3,000 total on these two sports alone.

Basketball was budgeted for $5,400 in gate receipts for the 1979-80 school year but he estimated that approximately only $4,000 will be received. Football was budgeted for $6,000 in gate receipts, but approximately only $4,400 was received.

Bob Wollenberg, a high school teacher, supports the petition for a spring baseball team.

"We have a brand new baseball diamond sitting out there (at the high school) and it's not being used," he said.

Wollenberg suggested that those students interested in playing baseball or softball could be responsible for some of the financial burden of supporting the teams and could raise money for uniforms and equipment.

Kelly estimated that approximately $4,000 would be needed to support both a baseball and softball team.

The matter was tabled until next month's school board meeting after the athletic committee has had time to study the athletic programs.

In other matters the board:
--Appointed Sara Bricker six grade girls basketball coach for the remainder of the school year.

--Hired Bonnie Thomas to replace Dixie Ashton as high school English and reading teacher. Ashton resigned to accept a full time teaching position at Bellaire High School.

--Granted maternity leave from March 31 to June 6 for Nancy Belford, middle school art and English teacher.

Belt-tightening state legislative priority

BY PAUL COX
Capitol Correspondent

LANSING - Tough economic times may soon be forcing state residents to cut back on expenditures, and state government is facing the same prospect.

As Michigan heads into a new decade, Charlevoix County legislators agree that fiscal belt-tightening will be a major priority. In year-opening addresses Gov. William G. Milliken, House Speaker Bobby D. Crim and Senate Majority Leader William Faust all stressed that there would have to be cuts in all state programs, and even elimination of some.

The economic slowdown will cause a decrease in the amount of tax the state collects, and thus gives it less money to support its programs.

Milliken was the most optimistic of the three, when he gave his 12th State of the State address last Thursday, pointing to a decade of achievement in Michigan. He singled out the creation of half a million new jobs, increased school aid and major steps in protecting our environment in the past 10 years.

He also pledged that state government would meet these tough economic times without a tax increase. After his address he boarded a plane for a Virgin Islands vacation.

Charlevoix County's two state representatives, Steve Andrews, R.-Wolverine, and Ralph Ostling, R.-Roscommon, said working on a pared-down state budget will be a major priority for them.

Ostling, as a member of the House Appropriations Committee, will play a major role in deciding which state agencies and programs to cut.

Andrews said the impending recession "may back the Legislature into a corner and force it to prioritize its programs, for the first time."

If this can be done without eliminating any essential services it might be good, Andrews said because he feels state government has grown to be too large and costly.

"Obviously many people around the state need help from government, but not from the time they get up in the morning to the time they go to bed at night," Andrews said.

Sen. Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie, said too many factions of state government are moaning about the sagging economy instead of looking for ways to cure it. He said the state should look at ways to stabilize present industry and diversify into other areas.

In this diversification, Irwin said, there must be careful planning to accommodate future constraints, such as the energy crisis and environmental limits.

He urges the expansion of more efficient transportation for both public and commercial purposes, such as the railroads and water travel on the Great Lakes.

"We have to get away from the 'highway, highway, highway mentality,'" Irwin said, because it's just not efficient anymore with the current price of gasoline.

In the north country, Irwin hopes there will be more expansion in the wood products industry, in addition to stabilizing the traditional ones such as tourism, mining and manufacturing.

In addition to trying to help the economy, Irwin said he will continue to put a great deal of time into helping the aged, both in his district and across the state. Some of the areas he hopes the Legislature will act to find alternatives to institutionalization, better public transportation and more activity and care facilities.

All three county legislators will be facing some major state-wide issues soon.

One is the reform of the state's Workers Compensation Act, which has been criticized as both costing employers too much and not providing adequate benefits to workers injured on the job.

Andrews said abuses within the system, court intervention and a poorly written law are the major problems. He said review of the problems and the proposal of solutions has been slow and it will take leadership by Milliken to work out a compromise.

Another major issue is a five-bill package legalizing strikes for all public employees, except police, fire and emergency medical personnel.

Irwin and Andrews feel these employees should have the right to strike, but want the law to have strong economic incentives to keep the strikes from happening.

Ostling opposes legalizing public employee strikes. He said public employees are being paid by tax dollars and should give up the right to strike.

He pointed out public service is not mandatory and these people could work for private industry.

All in all it should be an interesting year in Lansing.

County divorces rose considerably last year

The divorce rate rose dramatically in Charlevoix last year.

There were 66 percent more divorces in 1979 than 1978, according to figures released by the Charlevoix County Clerk's office.

In 1979, 176 divorces were granted as compared to 106 in 1978, 74 in 1977, 97 in 1976 and 103 in 1975.

On the other hand, county deaths hit their lowest point in the last five years with only 100 in 1979. There were 107 deaths in Charlevoix County in 1978, 127 in 1977, 116 in 1976 and 124 in 1975.

Twenty-seven less births were recorded in the county in 1979 compared to 1978. In 1979, 263 births were recorded as compared to 290 in 1978, 189 in 1977, 76 in 1976 and 112 in 1975.

Marriages took a slight drop with only 202 reported in the county during 1979. In 1978, 211 were reported, and the same number was reported in 1977, 187 were reported in 1976 and 181 in 1975.

ITT closing

Rudy Finderson, vice president for personnel for the ITT Automotive Electrical Products Division, told The Press last week that the decision to close the company's East Jordan plant was "a conscious management decision."

"We haven't been able to get the business that we have in past years," Finderson said in explaining the closing. "It's entirely dependant on the U.S. auto industry (as to the reopening date)."

"Conceivably the plant could be closed for a long period of time," he said. "The demand for it (the automotive wiring harness manufactured at the plant) disappeared."

Finderson said that to try to predict a reopening date for the plant, one of nine plants in ITT's Automotive Electrical Products Division, would be unfair to the laid off workers.

New doctor

Barring unforeseen complications, the East Jordan Family Health Center will add a second doctor to its staff in July.

Bruce Lindsay, currently doing his residency in internal medicine at University Hospital in Ann Arbor, has been matched with the East Jordan health center by the National Health Service Corps.

Lindsay received financial assistance for his education from the health corps program with the understanding that he work in an area judged to be under-manned by physicians.

The Kansas City, Mo. native is 28, married with one son. He graduated in the top fifth of his class from Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

Heating aid

Heating assistance money is now available under the Energy Crisis Assistance Program through the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency. Mass in-take sites, group sign-up times, are being planned now and will be announced shortly. In the meantime, those requiring emergency assistance can contact the human services agency at 347-9070 for more information on applying for heating assistance.

Two fires put out in EJ

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan Fire Department handled two wood stove related fires in one day last Tuesday, but since then haven't made any calls.

Last Tuesday morning (Jan. 8) the department was summoned to the Clark Washburn home on Boyne City-East Jordan Road. A fire caused by an overheated wood stove caused extensive damage to the home.

Tuesday evening a chimney fire at the Kenneth Kassuba home on Jaquay Road brought the department out again. No damage resulted from the fire.

Forming an EDC --a good first step

The Boyne City Commission will be holding a public hearing and deciding whether to approve an Economic Development Corporation next Tuesday noon.

While the establishment of an EDC will be no economic cure-all for the city, we think it is a good first step toward broadening Boyne City's economic base.

Older cities, both large and small, are finding themselves in financial problems throughout the country. Old roads, sewers, water lines and housing sorely need repair, yet taxpayers are already complaining they can bear no more.

Under the circumstances, just about the only way to keep solvent and to provide new jobs is to attract new taxing business, industry or other development.

An Economic Development Corporation could, potentially, help a great deal in recruiting industry to the area.

Most importantly, an EDC could borrow money and issue tax exempt notes to finance new development or expansion of existing development.

This can be a definite advantage when a business or industry is looking at different areas for possible expansion. K-Mart Corporation, for example, is now considering building a store in either Gaylord or Grayling. But Grayling is considered to have the edge, because Crawford County has a functioning EDC, while Otsego County does not.

Editorial

We have many other advantages to "sell" to potential industries. Probably the most important of these is the beauty of the area and its numerous outdoor recreational activities.

The Press carried a feature last week on Industrial Magnetics, Inc., a small firm which has recently located on highway M-75 just outside the city limits. Its owners said a major factor in deciding to locate here was the proximity to Boyne Mountain.

These advantages can and should be exploited. We would be the first to add, however, that we must not destroy the beautiful surroundings which are attracting people (and industries) here in the first place. Care must be exercised in the type of business and industry being recruited.

Other major decisions concerning industrial development in Boyne City are still being formulated.

The city master consultants and a local airport committee are studying whether the city airport should be abandoned in favor of an industrial park—because there is little other land available for industrial development.

This will be an extremely difficult choice to make, and it will be made

An Economic Development Corporation could attract small, non-polluting industries like Industrial Magnetics to locate in Boyne City.

soon. But regardless of the choice made, an Economic Development Corporation will help to give the city an advantage in trying to recruit new business and industry—and to help those already here.

'New is better' leaves a void for the elderly

I run into the same problem talking about people who are getting on in years that I did during civil rights days talking about people with an African heritage. What should you call old people?

Old people, senior citizens, the aged, gray panthers... none of the terms seem to be a good generic name. All of the monikers conjure images of bent-over folks hobbling with canes.

The problem of a good description for people who've inhabited the earth for the last six, seven, eight or more decades typifies to me major short-coming of the society in which we live.

The elderly as a whole don't get a lot of attention in America. In a world where a "new is better" philosophy gained quick favor, a void was left for citizens who reached the magic age of 65.

Jon Denison

Past that point in their lives people aren't supposed to work. The "Golden years" are supposed to be spent around a fireplace reminiscing or on shuffleboard courts in sunny Florida.

Such is not the case worldwide. Many countries, oriental ones especially, hold their older citizens in a high regard. The wisdom of many years of living is used as a reference source and elders' advice is given great weight.

In all too many places in the U.S. though, old folks are shut up in stuffy rooms, visited occasionally and thought of, in many instances, as being slightly senile.

This all was brought to mind last week when I met an amazing man named Don Church. Church is 79 years old and has two plastic hips.

He doesn't spend his days in a nursing home or playing solitaire in front of his living room window, though.

Weekdays are spent at the office. Church has an insurance agency in Akron, Ohio with a staff of 16. He's "active but not responsible" in the day to day workings of the business.

Running, racquetball and twice weekly workouts at the local YMCA keep Church in shape for his great love—downhill skiing.

Church could've told me story after story about his exploits, each one better than the one before. Fifteen trips to Europe skiing, baptism by fire in learning to ski on Sun Valley, Idaho's best run.

Church's face flowed and his chuckle interrupted as he recalled his adventures last week.

His 79 years have been full ones and he no doubt has many lessons to teach if provided a receptive audience. But probably so do the majority of older Americans.

There are among us a countless number of people who lived a large portion of their lives before the advent of television, jet planes and microwave ovens.

Many hours of story-telling are untapped in our population of retired neighbors. The only thing lacking is a listening ear.

I have to think how disappointed I'll be if there's no one who'll listen when I recount some of the more exciting and enlightening times of my life.

What good is learning, I have to wonder, if the knowledge is never passed along.

Too often we get caught up in the fast pace of the world in which we live and fail to remember the events that preceded us. Taking time out and talking to the older citizens among us is a worthwhile break.

When someone is gone, if no one has taken the time to listen to them, the experiences of their life are gone with them.

Dear Doc: This paper needs an advice column

The Charlevoix County Press does not publish a doctor's advice column. From my experience in the hospital, I have learned how to conduct myself so people will think I am a doctor. Thus, I now supply the paper with a column aiding those unfortunate folk who do not have $25 for being told to take two aspirin.

Dear Doctor: I am told that I have buck teeth. What can I do about it? - G.Y.

Dear G.Y.: Unless they are capped with gold, you do not have buck teeth. I have not had a case of buck teeth in my office since inflation set in several years ago.

Marshall Sayles

Dear Doctor: I have a huge wart between my big toe and the one next to it. My friend says I am growing a sixth toe. Can you tell me how to get rid of it? I do not need six toes on my left foot at this time. - B.J.B.

Dear B.J.B.: Your friend is all puffed up with a mistaken idea. Six toes on the left foot do not appear unless you are trying to avoid military draft. With the way things are going in the Middle East, though, I'd say let it grow, boy, let it grow.

Dear Doctor: We have a sick Irishman whom we've had to tell he will be buried in a Protestant cemetery. He just lies there yelling, "I'll die first!" How can we stop an Irishman from dying first? - B.P.O.

Dear B.P.O.: Strangely enough we had a similar case. We told him that everyone walks through the same gate in Heaven -

Englishmen, Jews, Chinese and used car dealers. It made him so mad he got out of bed and began writing a column for the newspaper. And, since he has never tried to write anything funny, everyone respects him.

Dear Doctor: I have tried several remedies you have advocated and my whole system is still sliding off toward Horton Bay. Now I must seek out a regular doctor and pay him. Please stop telling people what to do with themselves through the newspaper. This sliding off toward Horton Bay has got to stop. - J.K.

Dear J.K.: Since you do not care for my advice you may still get some benefit from this newspaper. You can roll it up and use it to emphasize a statement or kill a cockroach.

Editor's note: Due to the heavy volume of mail sent to this column, only the most vital questions will be answered.

Dear Doctor: Sometimes when I read about those eggs hatched by the city council I get a queasy feeling in the pit of my stomach. Do you have any advice on queasy stomachs caused by poor hatching? - J.F.

Dear J.F.: It is my advice that you get elected to the council. This act alone will make your sour stomach sweet again. It works nine times out of 10.

Dear Doctor: My neighbor's kids are brats. However, their father is very kind to them. He is so considerate of their feelings he always gives them chloroform before whipping them. I think he is doing them a great harm. What do you think I should tell him? - M.A.

Dear M.A.: If, as you say, the kids are brats, I would encourage him to omit the whippings.

Shunning the stigma of the hat

The Press publishers gave me a cowboy hat for Christmas and my co-workers have been bugging me about why I'm not wearing it.

I really haven't had a good excuse until this weekend. So listen here, co-workers. I don't wear my cowboy hat because everyone and his brother wears one.

At a local bar Friday night I counted over 20 people who were wearing cowboy hats. Men, women and children wear the assortment of 10-gallon to safari-looking cowboy hats. Some have feathers in them, others have bandanas tied around them, while others go for the plain look. My hat falls into this last category although I'm looking for a tan bandana.

I don't feel comfortable wearing a hat. I don't even like to wear a hat when I'm out in the cold. The gift I received seems to carry a certain stigma, which makes me leary of wearing it.

If I wear my hat faithfully like I should, people would first of all think I was a skier. I do ski a little, but a cowboy hat makes one look like an experienced skier—which I'm not. I'd make a fool of myself skiing with my cowboy hat on. It would be full of snow with me falling down so much.

Secondly, a cowboy hat says that you are from downstate. Many would argue that I am a downstater, since I haven't lived here long, but I think of myself as a resident of Boyne City. If someone asked where I was from and I replied "Boyne City," they'd look at the hat on my head and wouldn't believe me.

Thirdly, I don't have the boisterous voice which goes with wearing a cowboy hat in public (especially in bars).

So, if you don't mind, cohorts, I'll just go on silently pretending I'm a cowgirl and stick to wearing my boots. I just wish I could wear the hat without all the prejudices and implications which go along with it.

51st state is still gaining momentum

Editor, Had you consulted me, your piece on "that guy Waldner" might have contained the following valid information. Your readers, perhaps, may find it interesting.

Our 42 northernmost counties effort towards statehood continues to gain momentum. On Nov. 24, 1979, by executive transition council decision, the name of this emerging 51st state was changed to North Michigan. It was formerly the Independent State of Superior.

In 1980 we will incorporate as a non-profit organization, begin citizen/business membership and money raising drives, and establish several state of North Michigan information offices. Plus a lean-on-the-Lansing-officials lobbying push.

Our goal is to persuade those lawmakers and others to allow North Michigan voters the exercise of their rights on the question of becoming a separate state this November. Or give some reasonable official arguments for their refusal to do so.

The basic premise of the state of North Michigan is: that local voters will have final authority in all state and local matters regarding protection of their persons and property; beyond which governmental services become wasteful and interfering problems.

Karl Waldner
Boyne City

Don Church is a wild and crazy guy. Visiting Boyne Mountain for the 19th time in 20 years last week, Church, left in photo, and his granddaughter Andi Vidal fooled 200 friends from Akron, Ohio who were skiing with them when Church got dressed like a woman and pretended to be a friend of Andi's from Spain. Only his big knees betrayed him, Church said. The 79-year-old Church had fooled friends with the disguise on two previous ski trips, once in Switzerland and again in Germany. [Photo by Sun & Snow Photo, Inc.]

79-year old takes annual ski trip

He's not your average skier

BY JON DENISON

Don Church is not your average skier. It's not that he does wild freestyle tricks and he doesn't race through gates at breakneck speeds. The thing that makes Church stand out on a crowded ski slope is his age.

"My wife tells me not to tell anyone my age," Church laughed recently. "But I'll tell you that I was born in 1900."

The Akron, Ohio, insurance man has been coming north to Boyne Country for the last 19 years, bringing a bigger and bigger group of friends with him every year.

"The first year three of us came up to Petoskey and skied there," Church recalled as he prepared to return to Akron after this year's visit. "We heard it was good skiing at the Mountain and that's been it."

Church returned to Boyne Mountain the next winter with 17 people and has continued to come back each year with the exception of 1972.

"In 1972 I had new hips put in and missed that year," Church explained. "It improved my skiing. I couldn't turn as well before."

Not learning the sport until he was 60 didn't faze Church. After his initial boot with the slopes in northern Michigan he and two friends traveled to Sun Valley, Idaho, to polish their new-found skill.

"We thought we could learn in a couple of days," Church said. "We fell every 100 yards."

Fifteen trips to Europe, and his annual visit to Boyne, have since brought Church beyond the struggling stage. He gives most of the credit for his skiing prowess to Austrian instructors, both abroad and at Boyne.

"The Austrians are the best damn instructors in the world," Church claimed.

Skiing style and equipment has changed considerably from his early days, Church observed.

Don Church

"Everything used to be rotating," Church said, recalling early methods of teaching. And the equipment - "With the new skis, boots and (ski) breaks there's no reason for anyone to get hurt. Equipment has made a lot of difference."

One of Church's biggest changes in equipment was his 1972 addition of high density polyethylene hips.

"I had a surgeon tell me to wait a year (to ski)," Church said. "That would've put me into the following summer though, so I waited six months."

"You'd never know I had two total hips put in," he added.

The near-octogenarian doesn't see his career on the slopes ending soon.

"I'll keep at it as long as I can," Church said. "I don't think about how old I am."

Church stays in shape when he's off the slopes by playing racquetball, running and doing "tough exercises" at a YMCA in Akron twice a week.

"I try to ski other times during the winter," Church said. "Halfway between Akron and Cleveland there are two places." The slopes are short compared to Boyne's, though, and their proximity to metropolitan areas keeps them crowded.

"We're supposed to go to Big Sky (Montana)," Church said of his ski plans for the rest of the winter.

Church said there wasn't a logical explanation for the large crowd of Akronites making the Boyne trip each year.

"There's really no organization," Church said. "It's just a group of friends."

Some 250 from Akron had registered with Church's group for a week this year but about 50 cancelled due to unsure weather. The 200 who stayed on found enough snow and no one enjoyed himself more than Church.

At a celebration, on his last night here, Church and his granddaughter Adrea (Andi) Vidal of Midland collaborated on a ruse that Church had used twice before, once in Switzerland and once in Germany.

With his granddaughter directing the proceedings Church was transformed into "a woman friend of Andi's from Spain," Church explained.

As it had the previous two times, the disguise worked. Using Andi as an interpreter, Church kept the wool over his friends' eyes for most of the night.

Acknowledging that his "big knees" eventually gave him away, Church laughed and prepared to head back to Akron where he still reports to the Don Church Agency every day for work.

He has the enviable position of "being active but not responsible," he chuckled. "I plan on being back next year." Church assured as his 19th visit ended.

Avalanche ski race postponed

Unseasonably warm winter weather has once again taken its toll on outside recreational events. The lack of snow is causing cancellations and rescheduling of events, including Boyne City's Avalanche Ski Classic.

The ski classic, which was to be this Saturday, has been rescheduled for Saturday, Feb. 9. A five-kilometer race and a 10-kilometer race will be offered.

All registration entries or checks received before the day of the race will qualify for a savings on the registration fee. Early registrations are $6, while those on race day, Feb. 9, will be $10.

Registration forms are available at Schafer's, The Charlevoix County Press and other locations or by writing PO Box 232, Boyne City 49712.

The race will be held at Avalanche

Mountain Preserve, a 300-acre available and an awards ceremony will be held at race headquarters in The Dilworth Hotel.

Budweiser National Light beer and local organizers, The Charlevoix County Press, First National Bank, The Dilworth Hotel, the City of Boyne City and Schafer's are co-sponsoring the race.

The Great Wooden Ski Rally at Windmill Farms has been rescheduled from Jan. 19 to Feb. 2 due to lack of snow.

Beginning at 1 p.m. entrants to the rally will ski a simple one mile course. Entrance requirements are wooden skis and old-time ski clothes.

Contestants will be judged on "appearance and ability to do justice to the sport," according to Nelly Hiehle of Windmill Farms.

For more serious racers, Windmill Farms presents the Charlevoix Winter Cup Festival sanctioned cross country ski races Sunday, Feb. 17.

Racers from around the midwest will compete on 10 and 20-kilometer courses. Young racers will ski a shorter course and citizen tourers will be timed over the course after the serious competitors have started.

The organizers of the Boyne Nordic Cup race are still hoping for snow by this weekend. The race was originally to be held Jan. 5 and 6 at Boyne Mountain and was rescheduled for Jan. 19 and 20.

As of press time, a spokesman for the race said if there is no snow this weekend, the event probably will not be rescheduled.

The race marks the grand opening of Boyne Mountain's new cross-country ski center, Boyne Nordic and is being held in conjunction with the United States Ski Association Region III Championships.

USSA sanctioned points racers will take off from the starting line at 11 a.m. Saturday, with citizen racers competing on Sunday at 10 a.m. The Nordic Cup races will be conducted on 22-kilometers of double tracked racing trails.

Busch Winterfest to be held at Boyne Mountain

The Busch Winterfests, a weekend of skiing fun sponsored by Busch beer, begins Friday at Boyne Mountain ski area.

The weekend, complete with complimentary freestyle and ballet ski demonstrations and clinics by the Busch Ski Team, will be highlighted by the Busch Challenge—a giant slalom race open to anyone of legal drinking age or older.

Friday the excitement begins at 1 p.m. with the Busch Bartenders Race, a giant slalom race open to local residents and mountain personnel with trophies awarded to the top three racers following the event.

The Busch Ski Team is led by Bill O'Leary, said to be one of the best freestylers in the country today.

At 11 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday O'Leary and the Busch Team, aided by local stars, will be on the slopes to perform ballet maneuvers. Following each demonstration, O'Leary and his teammate, Joan Buzzetti, will be holding free clinics for all interested skiers.

At 1 p.m. again on both Saturday and Sunday, the highlight of the Winterfest takes place—the Busch Challenge. offering skiers of all abilities an equal chance to win, the Challenge champions will be determined by who comes closest (either faster or slower) to the pacesetter's time. Team captain O'Leary will set the time while doing tricks down the course. Busch Challenge trophies will be awarded to the winners.

In addition, all skiers who enter the Challenge will be eligible to win either a set of skis, poles, goggles or bindings through a special drawing following each of the races.

For more information about the Boyne Mountain Winterfest, contact Jerry Jensen at 549-2441.

Artists get together

Anyone interested in art or how a book is made from starting to write it to its publication should attend the Artists North meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Betty Beeby, of Eastport, an artist and book illustrator, will be the guest speaker at the meeting in the Charlevoix High School on East Garfield Street.

Beeby has illustrated and researched many books including "Just Josie," Whistle Up the Bay," "The Silver Trumpet" and "Potawatomi Indian Summer."

She also painted a 50 foot mural in the Orientation Center lobby at Fort Michilimackinac, Mackinaw City.

Artists North is a group of artists working together to promote their art and the art of other area artists.

More than 150 pathways and trails are described in the publication, "Michigan Hiking and Skiing Trails," which also includes detailed maps of many of the trails.

The guide is conveniently divided into three regions - Upper Peninsula, northern Lower Peninsula, and southern Lower Peninsula - so the reader can quickly locate information on the trails he or she is interested in.

Descriptions of the trails include location and length, type of terrain, availability of camping facilities and main attractions.

Copies of "Michigan Hiking and Skiing Trails" may be obtained for $2 apiece postpaid, by sending a check or money order to MUCC, Box 30235, Lansing, Mich. 48909. Proceeds from the sale of the guides will be used for MUCC's conservation and education programs.

SKI YOU CAN DO IT

ICE SKATE ON SKIS

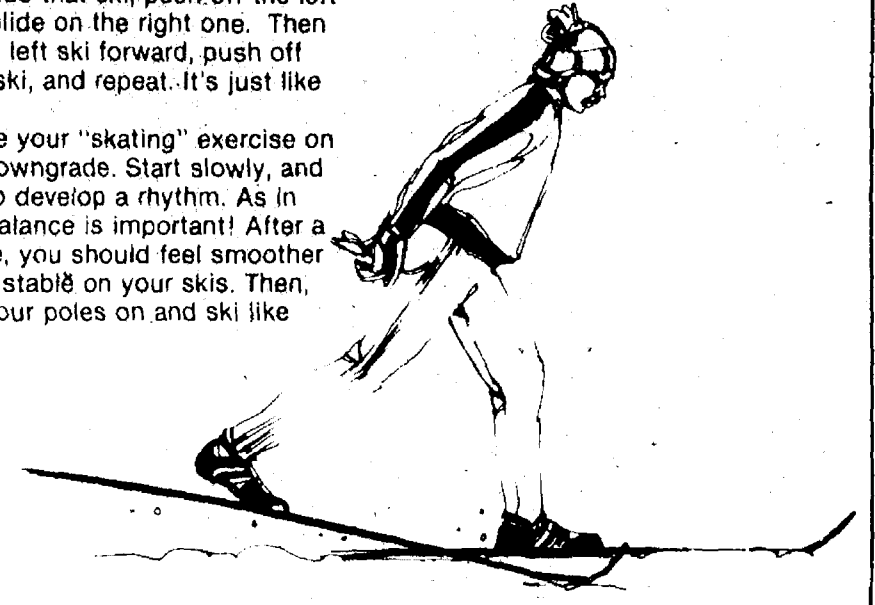

Do you feel awkward and clumsy on your cross country skis? If so, try this exercise.

So remember to try "skating" on your skis for a more relaxed and rhythmic ski stride.

Skating cross country is much like ice skating. To practice, take off your poles. Put your hands behind your back and slide your right ski forward. As you slide that ski, push off the left ski and glide on the right one. Then slide your left ski forward, push off the right ski, and repeat. It's just like skating!

Practice your "skating" exercise on a slight downgrade. Start slowly, and then try to develop a rhythm. As in skating, balance is important! After a short time, you should feel smoother and more stable on your skis. Then, just put your poles on and ski like new.

YOU KNOW YOUR MONEY'S SAFE AND SOUND.

If your feet are cold, put your hat on. If that doesn't work, look to your footgear.

"Your feet and your head are probably the two most important parts of the body to keep warm," says Paul Risk, Michigan State University Extension specialist in park and recreation resources. "Even at relatively high temperatures -- around 40 degrees -- the average person loses 50 percent of the heat his body produces if his head is uncovered. At 5 degrees F, you lose 75 percent. Oftentimes, covering your head to conserve that heat will enable you to warm your own feet."

"That's not to say that it doesn't matter what kind of footwear you choose for outdoor activities in cold weather, Risk notes. Selecting foogear appropriate to your activity is very important in keeping you comfortable.

The best type of boot for you depends largely on whether you'll be moving around a lot or staying relatively still. Risk says. Boots for hiking and snowshoeing, for instance, need not be so thickly insulated as boots for snowmobiling or icefishing. Hiking boots need gripper soles of some sort and better foot support.

"The ice fisherman needs a boot primarily for insulation," Risk points out. "All it has to do is keep his feet warm and dry while he's sitting or standing on the ice. A hiking boot, on the other hand, needs to support the foot and ankle and provide good traction and protection against briars. It should also be waterproof and well enough insulated to keep the feet dry and warm."

"Right now it's a status thing to wear ankle-high mountaineering boots," Risk observes. "They have cleated soles, which are good for clinging to narrow ledges, but their steel shank makes them too inflexible for comfortable hiking. They're also very heavy and not insulated well enough for cold weather use."

"Moisture transfers heat away from the body much faster than air at the same temperature," Risk explains. "It also fills up the pores in insulating material, replacing pockets of air in the material with pockets of water. The more a boot acts like a vapor barrier and prevents moisture from escaping, the more likely it is that your feet will get wet and cold."

When buying boots, as any other footwear, be sure to wear the socks you plan to use with them when you try them on. Two pair are usually recommended: a thin cotton sock with a thick wool one over it. Two socks help insulate the foot and minimize blistering -- they will move against each other so the boot doesn't rub against the foot. Because these fibers are absorbent, they also help to keep the foot dry.

Treat new leather boots with Bear Grease or some other waterproofer, Risk advises. Rub it into the leather by hand, concentrating on the seams and the junction between the upper and the sole. Then warm the boots near a heat register or in a very low oven so the grease will melt and soak in.

Realistic Selling Price

A realistic selling price is the most important consideration to the prospective buyer of your home. The worst mistake a seller can make is to unrealistically overprice his home.

The finest advertising and sales efforts can't sell a home unless the price is right. Many good prospects will shy away from a home that's out of their price range. When the price eventually comes down to a realistic figure, these best prospects will have been lost forever. The seller will be doubly inconvenienced by having to show the home to prospects over a lengthy period of time while at the same time paying for the mortgage, interest, taxes, insurance and maintenance.

Any home will sell at a realistic price (unless it's ready to fall off a cliff or is haunted). How do you set the right price from the start? Let your REALTOR help you set it. He's out to serve your best interests, knows the local market and can suggest a realistic price that will sell.

She and her husband Harry, now deceased, had five children. A son LaVerne is deceased. Another son, Al, lives near Boyne City. Norma's three daughters are Irene Gillespie of Boyne Falls, Virginia Bell of Grand Rapids and Dorothy Ward of Boyne City.

Business beat

New E&M building

BOYNE CITY - E&M Standard Station is the second city business to apply for a commercial tax exemption.

A public hearing to consider the tax exemption which would reduce owner Henry Erber's taxes on the gas station by 50 percent for 12 years, is scheduled for noon Tuesday in the city manager's office at City Hall.

F.O. Barden and Sons business was granted a similar tax exemption earlier.

The tax exemption is designed to help businesses in downtown expand and also to keep them in the downtown district rather than moving out of the city limits.

It took about seven weeks to rebuild the gas station. The new building is 30 x 50 feet by 14 feet high, and is smaller than the old building which had a vacant apartment on its second floor.

Erber said the new steel and brick building is constructed better for storage and makes better use of the space available.

New features in the building include two car hoists that are specially designed for exhaust work, wooden bay windows in the extended showroom, two larger bays for car repair work and barrier-free bathrooms.

Erber said he is very happy with the new facilities and has been operating out of the building for about a week.

S&L selling stock

BOYNE CITY - Area residents have shown a great interest in investing and buying stock in the Lakewood Savings and Loan Association, according to operation's manager Randy Lightfoot.

The S&L's goal is to sell $500,000 worth of stock. That is the state and federal government's limit on how much stock it can sell. The shares, which go on sale starting Thursday, sell for $12.50 each. Forty thousand shares are available, but the 11 incorporators have pledged to buy half of those.

The opening date of the locally owned savings and loan, which was delayed by protests filed by Family Federal Savings and Loan of Saginaw, is tentatively set for sometime in April.

For information, stop by at the S&L at the corner of Lake and State Streets or call either Arch Wright or Lightfoot at 582-6715.

BF bank drive-in

BOYNE FALLS. The drive-in window at the Boyne Falls branch of Northwestern State Bank is now open. The drive-in window will be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday.

Lobby hours at the bank will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday.

Another new feature at the Boyne Falls branch is safety deposit box service. There are 162 safety deposit boxes available at the bank.

Becky Katz, formerly at the Boyne City office of Northwestern State Bank, has joined the staff of the Boyne Falls branch.

New realty

BOYNE CITY - A new real estate office has opened in Boyne City, but the man running it has been involved in area real estate for quite some time.

Landmark Properties is the name of the new office, and Don Seamon will be the associate broker. Seamon has worked in real estate for more than 20 years—the last 12 in Boyne City.

The new office is occupying the same quarters Seamon has been working out of for the past year—B.J. Ellis and Associates at 207 S. Lake St.

Ellis will be continuing to sell real estate from his home near Walloon Lake, Seamon said. "We parted good friends, but BJ just decided he'd rather work out of his home," Seamon said.

Landmark Properties, based in Petoskey, is owned by Art Seaborne. "My joining Landmark will be a good opportunity for both myself and Landmark," Seamon said. He has a good knowledge of the Boyne area, while Landmark offers other possibilities such as condominium sales in Petoskey.

Seamon said Landmark hopes to expand to other communities in addition to Boyne City and Petoskey in the near future. He also said he is looking for experienced real estate people to become involved with the new office.

East Jordan loses second; faces Inland Lakes Friday

EAST JORDAN - The fall from the top was a fast one for the Red Devil cage squad. Going into last Tuesday's game with Harbor Springs, East Jordan was unbeaten and in first place in the Ski Valley Conference.

Consecutive losses to the Rams and Bellaire dropped the Devils to 5-2 overall, 4-2 in the league, and left them in a must win situation against Inland Lakes Friday and the rest of the way in conference play.

"We're really in a slump," Devil Coach Steve VanderHyde said after the Saturday 61-58 loss to Bellaire. "But we control our own destiny. If we win the rest of our league games we'll be in first place."

The Devils outscored the host Bellaire teams Saturday 50-44. An advantage from the free throw line and poor East Jordan ball handling gave Bellaire the win.

"We played terrible," VanderHyde said. "We had way too many turnovers." VanderHyde is looking for Inland Lakes to press his Red Devils, a defense that was effective for Bellaire.

"They're small and quick," VanderHyde described his team's Friday opponent. "We're going to have to be ready for a press."

Senior center Duane Carpenter paced the Devils in the loss Saturday with 13 points. Jerry Fuller, Duane Cutler and Brent Sweet all added 10 points. Sweet, called "one of the bright spots" in the loss by VanderHyde, also pulled down eight rebounds.

Tuesday the Devils face non-conference foe Ellsworth.

"They always have a good team," VanderHyde said of Ellsworth. "They only have eight players on the team but they can play with anybody. Tex Drenth (Ellsworth's center) is one of the best players in northern Michigan."

East Jordan's junior varsity team got back on the winning track against Bellaire Saturday. After losing to Harbor Springs 93-58 Tuesday, the junior Devils turned in a strong effort in beating Bellaire 67-62 in overtime Saturday.

Todd Ingalls was the top junior Devil scorer with 16 points. Mike Sheridan added 10, and Tim Hoffman, Bill Spence and Tom Peters all scored nine. Spence and Ingalls led the rebounding effort with 12 each while Hoffman added nine.

The junior varsity had a 2-4 record going into Tuesday's game with Boyne Falls.

League leader next for Boyne cagers

BOYNE CITY - A ten day layoff between games will give the Rambler varsity basketball squad time to savor their only win of the season. The break, caused by the postponement of last Friday's scheduled game with Charlevoix, also provided plenty of time for the Ramblers to prepare for a game with league-leading Grayling Friday.

The Ramblers were the first victim this year of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference surprise team of the season. Picked to be an also-ran in pre-season polls, the Vikings had won eight straight games going into Tuesday action.

Boyne, on the other hand, picked up its sole win just last Tuesday from non-league foe Onaway.

"It's going to be a lot different than when we saw them the last time," said Rambler Coach Russ Harvey about Friday's game. "Each game we've been playing more steady ball."

Harvey has missed the last two games due to stomach problems, but, health permitting, will be back on the bench Friday at Grayling.

"I missed not being there," Harvey said of his two game absence.

After the Friday game at Grayling the Ramblers travel to Mancelona for a Tuesday game with the Ski Valley Conference member. Harvey is in the dark as far as Tuesday's opponent is concerned.

"I don't know that much about them," Harvey said. "We'll probably scout them Tuesday or Friday."

Loggers face Ellsworth

BOYNE FALLS - They had to play tough Ski Valley Conference member East Jordan Tuesday and things aren't getting any easier for the winless Boyne Falls Loggers. Friday the Loggers travel to Ellsworth for a game with the rejuvenated Lancers.

Tex Drenth, Ellsworth's star center, missed two games with a knee injury earlier this season and the Lancers dropped both games. Drenth is back and Ellsworth is again "one of the top teams in the league," according to Boyne Falls Coach Joel Donaldson.

"I thought originally that Ellsworth would be the team to beat in the conference," Donaldson said. "I saw them play Saturday night and was impressed by their quickness."

"The game will be kind of a homecoming for me," said Donaldson, an Ellsworth graduate. "I'm hoping for an upset, it would be kind of a victory on a victory."

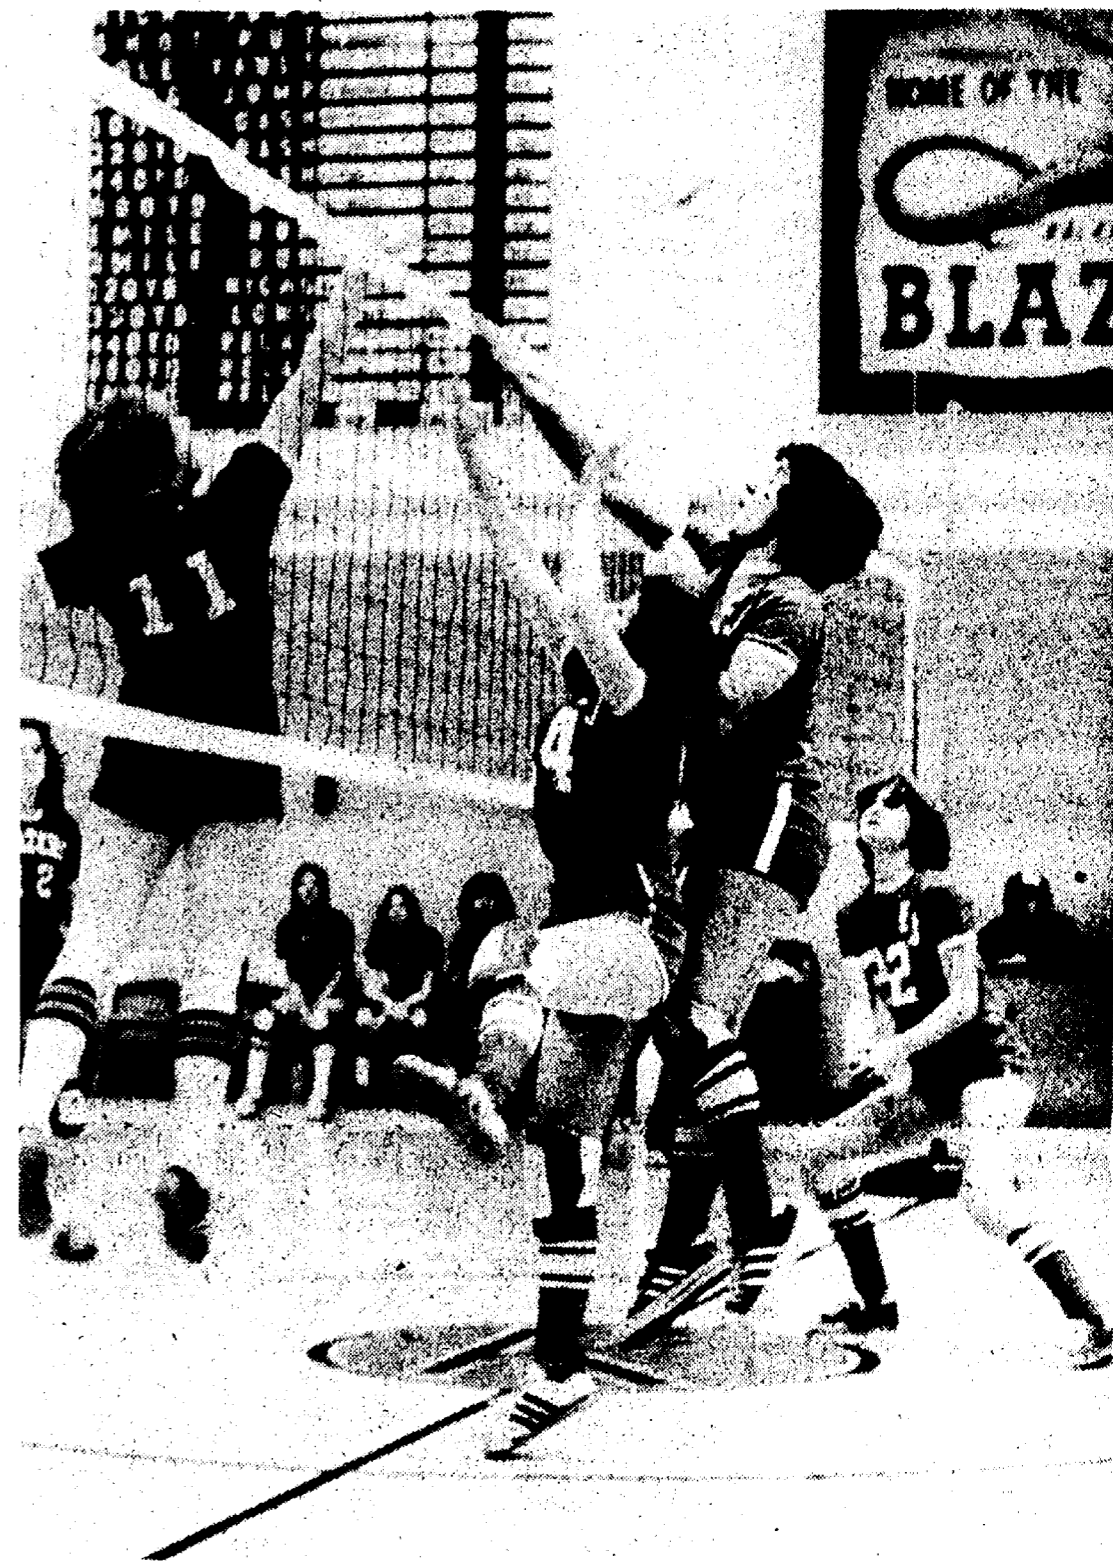

Ellsworth starts four shopmores with Drenth and because of their quickness Donaldson looks for the Lancers to throw a press at his team.

Tuesday the Loggers have another away game, traveling to Central Lake.

Ellsworth beat Central Lake with 16 Saturday, hurting Central Lake with a press.

"They (Central Lake) have been down since they played us the first time," Donaldson said. "I'm going to try a different game plan against them."

"We're going to pressure them. I've seen teams hurt them with pressure since they played us."

Devil net squad wins

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil volleyball teams, junior varsity and varsity, opened the 1980 season with wins last Wednesday against Kalkaska. Thursday the Devils will host Bellaire in a 7 p.m. contest.

The varsity netters won 15-7, 15-11 against Kalkaska, dropping a 16-14 game in between the wins. The junior varsity team won 15-8, 15-7 and lost 15-10.

"We had a real small turnout for the team," East Jordan Coach Nancy Helland said about her 1980 squad. "There are eight players on the varsity and seven on the junior varsity."

"I'd like to have more girls out," Helland said. "Volleyball in the area is improving quite rapidly. East Jordan is going to be able to keep up."

BC volleyball squad falls early in tourney

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler volleyball team dropped its first two matches in the Charlevoix Tournament last weekend, ending hopes of bettering last year's second place finish in the competition. Earlier in the week the Ramblers had defeated Grayling in conference action.

At Charlevoix the Ramblers ran first into Potoskey and lost two of three games. Playing with a 15 minute time limit for each game, the two Michigan-Huron Shores Conference squads didn't complete a game.

Potoskey won the first game 13-5, Boyne won the second game 10-9 and the Northmen won the third 12-6.

The Ramblers then played host Charlevoix, the eventual runnerup to defending champion Leeland for tournament honors. The Rayders handed Boyne two 15-6 losses.

"We just didn't play well," said Boyne Coach Pat Upton. "We'll have to do some work and play better."

The Ramblers were slated to travel to Rogers City for a league match Wednesday and face another road match Thursday at Gaylord St. Mary. Monday Boyne will play host to Belleaire.

Last Wednesday the Ramblers hosted Grayling and won, four games to two.

"We played sloppy but at least we won," said Upton.

In conference matches, Michigan-Huron Shores teams are playing two three game series. The Ramblers won both ends of the first three game set and then dropped the first game of the second set before winning the last two games.

Cindi Scott served for seven points in the Ramblers opening 15-10 win. Becky Aimesbury led a losing effort with three scoring serves in a 7-15 loss and Bardell Aimesbury served for six points in the Ramblers' 15-13 win in the third game.

In the second series of games Cindi Scott served four points in a 8-15 loss; Mary Jo McGeorge served for six points in a 15-2 win and Becky Aimesbury served for seven points in a 15-7 win to wrap up the varsity action.

"We still have to work on our strategy," said Upton after the match with Grayling. "We're working hard on good sets and spikes."

The junior varsity squad under the direction of Carla Harshman and Sarah Bricker fell to Grayling last week, losing two 16-14 games and winning a 15-13 game. Judy Upton had eight scoring serves in the first game; Becky Kimbler and Donna Manross each had five scoring serves in the second game; and Manross served for seven points in the final game.

Wrestlers win first

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler wrestling squad picked up its first win of the season last Tuesday over Elk Rapids, by a 51-29 score, then fell twice to fall to 1-7 on the season.

The team travels to Charlevoix for a meet Thursday with the Rayders.

"The kids are ready for Charlevoix," said Boyne Coach Rick Fowler. "They (Charlevoix) have lost a lot of people. I'm looking for a good showing."

In the win over Elk Rapids, Chris Fair at 128 lbs., Don Kleinschrodt at 157 lbs., Don Marshall at 200 lbs., and John Sims at heavyweight registered pins.

Dave Fair, wrestling at 121 lbs., won a 10-4 decision. Mike Ellis at 100 lbs., Jim Raber at 107 lbs., and Jeff Froats at 140 lbs., all won by forfeit.

When you are considering having a car rustproofed use this check list

- Whose product are you getting?
- Who warranties it? The applicator or the manufacturer?
- Does the warranty cover areas or "just what has been sprayed"? It is the latter they would not have to spray any of the car and could give you the warranty.
- Do you receive a written warranty? Will they let you read it first?
- Price is not a criterion for quality. Some prices are high just to give the impression of quality, others are low because that is what they are worth. Decide on reputation, name and recommendations of friends.
