Census estimate— 20,876 in county

Charlevoix County's population count in the 1980 census is expected to show an increase from 1970 of approximately 26 percent to 20,876. Of that, 33 percent or almost 1,000 of those who live in the county will be over 65 years old.

While the older population is expected to increase drastically, school-aged children's population is not expected to increase as rapidly as it had the past decade.

Children between five and nine years old will show an increase of seven percent over 1970 population figures. Children between 10 and 14 years old are expected to show an increase of approximately 20 percent since 1970.

The official head count of the United States begins at the end of next week when residents in the county will receive questionnaires in the mail. Figures collected in this massive survey may hint at answers to several local problems experienced the past year.

Inflationary costs coupled with declining enrollment have led to numerous problems in our schools. Projections for the 1980 census predict the decline in school-aged children will continue.

The 1980 census predictions also show a declining growth in automobile-oriented industries in the county.

The following figures were compiled by the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) in its annual planning report for the fiscal year 1980, unless otherwise stated.

Charlevoix County is one of 10 counties included in the northwestern region of the state's lower peninsula.

The region is described as one of the state's fastest growing areas and is best known as a year-round vacation spot that has developed its economic foundation with a fairly broad base of industries and services.

The counties which make up the northwestern region are: Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

POPULATION CHANGES

Charlevoix County has seen a steady population increase since the 1970 census. The county's population is forecasted to have increased approximately 26 percent since 1970 to 20,876 people. That's a 4,335 increase over the 1970 population of 16,541.

Overall, Michigan's population is expected to increase 3.7 percent from 8,881,826 in 1970 to 9,213,884 in 1980.

MESC attributes a low birth rate and a general movement of people from the industrialized northeastern and midwestern regions of the state to the southwestern portion of the United States for the small statewide increase in population.

For northwest Michigan, in-migration is the primary source of new population. The combined effect of population shifts and migration is to add about 4,000 new persons to the 10-county region working age population annually.

The county which is expected to almost double in population from 1970 to 1980 is Kalkaska County with a 99.9 percent population increase in those years. The next highest population change is expected in Missaukee County with a 43.7 percent increase from 7,126 to 10,237 residents. Antrim County is next followed by Benzie and Emmet Counties.

The 20-24 year old age group makes up 42 percent of the population increase for the northwestern region.

A second age group which has shown a drastic increase the past 10 years is between 65-69. The total population of this age group is expected to show an increase of approximately 33 percent from 1970 to 1980.

Comparatively, the increase of school-age children ranges from seven percent for children between five and nine years old to approximately 20 percent for 10 to 14 year olds over the past 10 years.

Approximately 1,200 school age children between five and nine years old were added to the northwestern region over the past decade. This age group showed the lowest increase over the decade of any other age group between percent, of any county in its region.

EMPLOYMENT

Unemployment levels in Charlevoix County, as well as in the nine other counties in the northwest region, are expected to show an increase in 1980.

Charlevoix County in 1980 will have the highest unemployment rate, 16.8 percent of any county in its region. Other neighboring counties will show a slight increase in unemployment.

Manufacturing industries, especially those related to the automotive industry, are expected to encounter the most severe economic problems.

The 1980 projections for Charlevoix County are expected to show almost 1,650 of the total work force of approximately 10,000 people unemployed. In 1970, approximately 10 percent of the total work force of 6,696 people were unemployed.

It's OK with former opponents

Relocate Front St.?

BY DIANNE MURRAY

Two of the major opponents to Lake Associates' 1979 lakefront development plans do not foresee any problems in the newly submitted preliminary plans.

In the preliminary plans for the Tannery property, Rick and Dave Smith propose a minor change for Front Street—to have it approximately 150 feet south of where it currently is located.

Last year the Smiths attempted to close Front Street for condominium development but were defeated in a vote by city residents who opposed closing the road.

Rick and Dave Smith presented three preliminary site plans to the planning commission and an audience of about 25 interested citizens Monday night. The Smiths met no initial opposition at the meeting, but as one audience member put it, the air was filled with "cautious optimism."

Violet Manglos and Carol Judkins, two members of the Save Front Street Committee, which petitioned against the road closing last summer, say they don't expect opposition to the Smiths' development plan "as long as Front Street and the view of the lake is left open."

One preliminary plan, which the Smiths said they prefer over two other alternatives, calls for part of Front Street to be relocated approximately 150 ft.

south, away from Lake Charlevoix.

The major advantage, Rick Smith pointed out, "is to have a sufficient space where all the housing would be in one area and still provide open space to see the lake."

The Smiths plan to build 100 housing units within five years, one and two-stories high (approximately 35' high) between Lake Charlevoix and Front St., on approximately 14 acres.

Other development plans in the next five years, pending city approval, include a marina with about 150 slips and a gas station for marina users.

On the south side of Lake Street the developers plan to develop a three-hole golf course and possibly tennis courts.

The marina would include both public and private slips. The golf course and the tennis courts would be for the condominium residents only.

The Smiths speculate that the total construction cost of 100 units, the marina and moving the road would cost in excess of $10 million. The Smiths would like to begin construction this summer.

By relocating the road, the Smiths said all 100 units could be located west of the marina, avoiding any construction east of Second Street which may block the view of the lake from existing homes.

Mrs. Manglos said she too favors the plan which calls for relocating the road, but she said she will still "keep an eye on the planning and city commission to make sure all ordinances are followed."

"Any plan that keeps Front Street and the view of the lake is okay with me," she said. "Save Front Street" was not a case of trying to stop progress. We just wanted to make sure the road and the view were left open," Mrs. Manglos said.

Mrs. Judkins said she wants to make sure the city has control over the town's future and especially lakefront development.

"I think they (Rick and Dave Smith) learned a lesson in that they now know that Boyne City people are not so laid-back. We're interested in what happens to our roads, property and lake view. We saved the street and the plan they propose now is only to relocate the street, not close it and I'm not opposed" to relocating Front Street, she said.

An alternative plan, which would leave the street in its present location, shows that approximately 40 units would be built on the east side of the marina between Pleasant and Maple Streets. The remaining 60 units would be constructed to the west of the marina.

The Smiths say without the additional land from relocating the road, the units would have to be built in a "wall" and there would be less of a view of the lake. Existing homes would have their view of the lake blocked by the "wall" of condominiums, Rick Smith said.

A third plan would have all 100

Census count will be door-to-door here

Collecting all the census questionnaires in Charlevoix County is a task which will require a work force of about 35 people.

According to the census district manager for the northern region, hiring census takers, called enumerators, is going very well.

Charlevoix County is one of 19 Michigan counties which will receive special attention by having door-to-door pick-up service on the questionnaire. The majority of the questionnaires in other areas of the nation will be sent back through the mail.

The reason Charlevoix County was selected for the personal attention is because it is rural, census district manager Sue Crampton said.

One field operator, three crew leaders and 33 enumerators are responsible for collecting the census data for the county. Crampton did not know how many census takers had been hired so far, but she said all positions have to be filled by March 28. Some positions as census takers are still available, she said.

Census questionnaires will be mailed out to homes around March 28. Most people should receive the census questions by April 1 or shortly after. Census takers will be going to individual homes beginning April 1 and are expected to pick up all the surveys by the middle of the month, Crampton said. If problems are encountered, such as homes being missed or information being lost, return visits will be made. "We're not expecting any problems," she said.

Two different questionnaires are being used—a long and a short form. Every third door will receive a long form, which should take about 35 minutes to complete. The short form should take 15 minutes.

Two major changes were made in the questions asked in the census this year, she said. The first deals with asking who the "husband of the household" is. The question has been reworded to read "head of the household."

"Since 1970, there have been a lot of changes in society because of the women's movement and that question had to be changed to gear it toward modern times," she said.

A new section was added on transportation, she said. Questions asking types of transportation used, how many cars a household owns as well as how many miles are driven in a month by members of the household will show changes in Americans' transportation habits during the past decade.

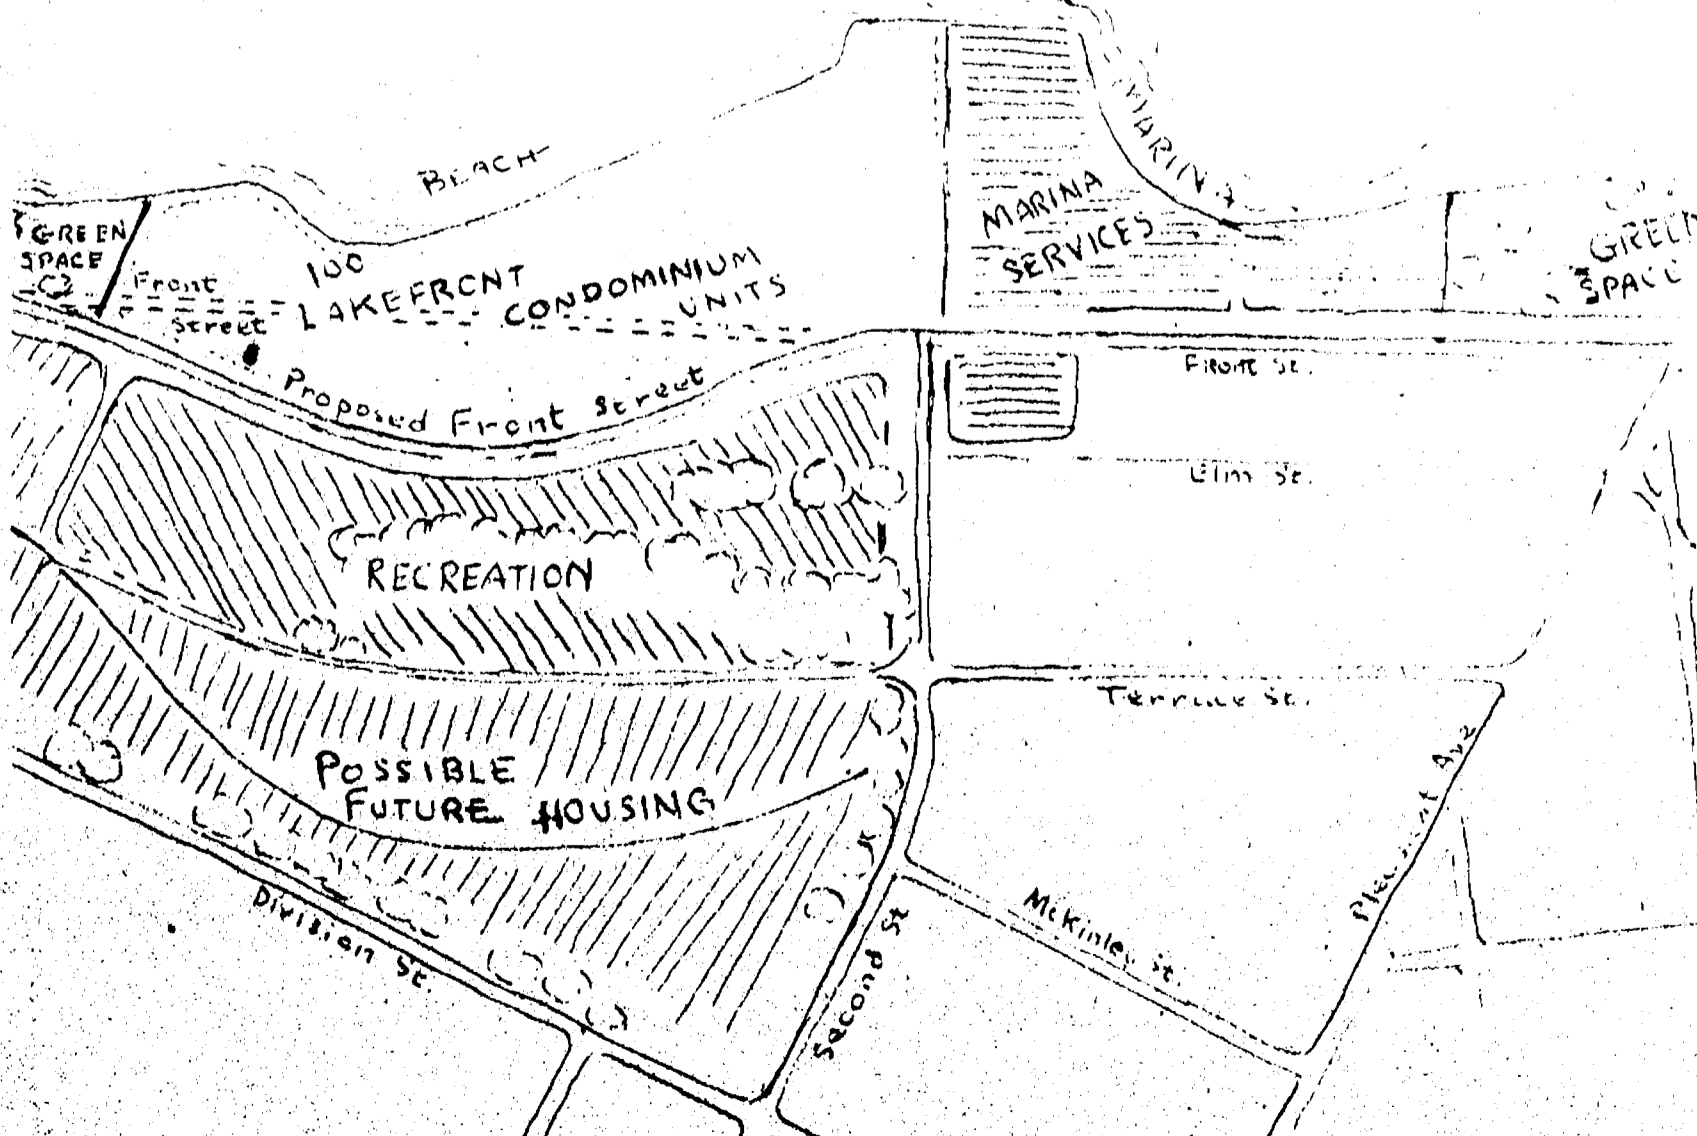

"Cities which are contemplating public mass transportation or where to put in a city parking lot will benefit from the results of these questions," she said.

More personal questions asking about the number of entrances to the home and the type of plumbing facilities are to show where sub-standard housing is located.

The confidentiality of the census information is one thing many people do not trust, Crampton said, but that confidentiality has never been broken in the 190 years since the census began.

"Even the President of the United States cannot receive any of the confidential information," she said. "Census takers take pride in the confidentiality," she said.

The computer used to collect and cipher through the massive amount of data collected only accepts figures and does not register names, Crampton said.

Out of the three preliminary plans submitted to the Boyne City Planning Commission, this is the plan which Lake Associates would like to see implemented. In order to go ahead with development of 100 units, Rick and Dave Smith have proposed to move approximately 1,500 feet of Front Street 150 feet away from Lake Charlevoix.

EJ may cut 8 teachers

EAST JORDAN-Drastic budget cuts, including eight teaching positions, may be necessary to make the school budget balance next fall.

School Supt. Mel Rullman outlined a number of cuts for the board of education to consider during a special meeting Tuesday night.

The tone of the 2½ hour meeting was quite gloomy as the board and a handful of teachers and administrators discussed their options for the June millage election and the following school year.

No decisions were made, but another special meeting was scheduled for April 2. Proposed cuts are expected to be finalized at that time.

Rullman is proposing that a two-mill tax rate increase be requested in the June election—and even with that increase, at least $150,000 in cuts would be necessary.

Here are the tentative cuts, totalling $180,800, as proposed to the board:

-Cut six elementary school teaching positions, including art, music, physical education, second grade, combined third and fourth grade, and a retiring teacher, $94,000.

-Cut a full-time reading teacher and a part-time reading teacher in the middle school, $17,200.

-Cut one high school teacher, $15,000.

-Eliminate all seven teacher aides who are not paid through federal funds, $27,000.

-Eliminate the Community Education program, $2,000.

-Eliminate a variety of sports programs including freshmen basketball, skiing, girls volleyball, middle school sports, towel service, and cutbacks on travel and number of games in all sports, $15,600.

-Eliminate one bus run, $5,000.

-Eliminate substitute custodians, $5,000.

Airport decision soon?

EAST JORDAN-More details on the city airport paving proposal were given at Tuesday night's city council meeting.

Alan E. Kallis of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission attended the meeting to explain financial assistance the city could receive.

Kallis pointed out the costs have risen about 50 percent since the airport project was proposed four years ago, but the state's original matching fund cannot be increased. This means the state's $72,500 grant will be subtracted from the new estimated costs of $182,800.

A low-interest $50,000 loan would also be available from the state.

Some savings, possibly up to $30,000, could be managed with cuts and by using city labor.

The council will continue to study the proposal, but time is running out, because the 1980-81 city budget is in its final stages of preparation.

The council set a meeting for 1 p.m. Saturday when they hope to finalize the budget proposal for publication and a public hearing.

CAN WE TOUR YOUR FUNERAL HOME?

As professionals dealing with death and bereavement, we funeral directors feel a close kinship with the clergy. We work closely with them before, during and after the funeral service.

It is for this reason we extend an invitation to members of the clergy in the area to visit with us, view our facilities, and become better acquainted with our funeral home, our staff and directors. It also becomes an opportunity to discuss how we can serve more appropriately your congregations from a religious viewpoint.

This invitation is also extended without reservation to all others whose professional or personal interests would be served or benefitted by our "open house" visit. Please phone in advance so we can personally spend this time with you.

To further indicate our desire to share our common concern with the clergy, we offer the use of our library of professional reference books on death and dying. These are likewise available to other interested persons.

LAST WEEK, THE AVERAGE MICHIGAN FAMILY SPENT $80 ON FOOD.

AND ONLY $1.62 KEEPING IT COLD.

Of all the things you put into your refrigerator every week, electricity is probably the one that's least expensive. Running even a frost-free refrigerator only costs you an average of about $1.62 a week.

A movie ticket is more expensive. And so is even a short drive in your car.

The same amount of electricity that costs you $1.62 today would have cost you $.93 in 1950. And, while overall electric bills have gone up, part of the cost is simply due to the fact that we all use a lot more electricity than we did thirty years ago. That's why we continue to urge you to use electricity wisely.

Party politics at work

Redrawing the legislative lines

BY PAUL COX
Capital Correspondent

LANSING - In the 1978 elections, 45 percent of Michigan's residents voted for Republican state lawmakers, but only 35 percent of the seats in the Legislature were won by the Republicans.

This isn't particularly unusual, however, because the lines of the legislative districts are carefully drawn by the party in power in Lansing at the time of each census.

The results of the 1980 census are expected to show that the northern part of lower Michigan has grown more rapidly than any other part of the state in the last 10 years. Thus, under the "one-man, one vote" principle, should receive more representation in the state and federal legislative bodies.

The 1980 census figures should be certified by about Jan. 1, 1981, at which time the exact amount of area growth will be known. The state Legislature will then begin re-drawing U.S. congressional and state Senate House of Representatives district lines to reflect to new population figures.

Ideally these district lines will be drawn to provide equal representation in government to the people of Michigan. Obviously the districts will be geographically larger in the sparsely-populated north country and be smaller in the densely populated urban areas such as Detroit.

The fact that drawing these lines is primarily left to state lawmakers means the element of hardball politics is inserted into process. Republicans and Democrats are pitted against each other, with both sides trying to draw the new district lines that will provide the most advantage to their party in the next election.

The process of re-drawing state Senate and House lines is begun by a commission made up of four Republican lawmakers and four Democrat lawmakers, chosen by their respective state party chairmen. Since neither side has a numerical advantage, the commission inevitably cannot agree on a plan.

The decision then goes to the state Supreme Court. Although Supreme Court justices are chosen in a non-partisan election, Democratic party justices on the court now outnumber Republicans four to three, so the Democratic party's re-districting plan will likely be adopted.

When state re-districting was done following the 1970 census, the Democrats plan was critically acclaimed as an excellent job of gerrymandering the district lines in such a way to get a greater number of Democrats elected to the Legislature.

The process of re-drawing U.S. congressional lines also leaves room for political tinkering.

A re-districting plan is originated in both the House and Senate elections committees.

These plans go through the Legislature like a bill and must receive approval of both houses and the governor to go into effect. As with most pieces of legislation, there is a lot of behind the scenes deal-making and the Democratic majority in the Legislature usually exerts the most influence on the plan.

No matter what the final re-districting plans look like, all of northern Michigan's lawmakers should have the geographic size of their district reduced because of the population growth.

Sen. Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie; Rep. Steve Andrews, R-Wolverine; and Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, all said the reduction in the size of their districts will make it easier to keep up with the interests and concerns of their constituents.

Irwin may even gain politically from the re-districting. He predicts his district will be decreased in size by eliminating territory on the southern edge of the district in Isosco, Alcona, Oscoda or Crawford counties.

These are fairly strong Republican areas and their elimination would strengthen Irwin's chances if he decides to run for re-election in 1982.

It is harder to predict what changes will be made in Ostling's and Andrews' House districts, but neither are worried about the changes affecting their political futures.

Andrews' district covers the eastern half of Charlevoix County, including Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Wallon.

Ostling's district covers the western half of the county including East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Both men agree that this area of the state contains a fairly even mix of Democrats and Republicans.

The two lawmakers feel these people tend to cast their vote based on the candidates' individual stands and not along strict party lines.

U.S. Rep. Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, has mixed feelings about the possible outcome of the congressional re-districting plan. On the one hand, he is pleased that the geographic size of his district will be decreased.

Davis' district now covers the entire Upper Peninsula and much of northern lower Michigan, making it the second largest district east of the Mississippi River. Any reduction in size would make it easier for Davis to campaign and keep abreast of his constituents' concerns.

On the other hand, Davis realizes that his district will probably be cut along its southern edge in Isosco, Alcona, Oscoda or Crawford counties. This is a strong Republican area where Davis has the most political support.

There is even a possibility that Davis' hometown of Gaylord could be cut from the district.

"If they take Gaylord out of the district the boss will have to move," said Wendy Menard, Davis' press secretary.

County residents currently have little input into the re-districting process, except for talking to the present lawmakers and expressing concerns.

A proposal is now before the state Legislature to take the politics out of re-districting and give state residents direct input into the process. The plan faces little chance of adoption as the Democratic majority in the Legislature enjoys its control over re-districting and does not appear likely to give the power up.

Safety award

The employees of Gulf & Western Stamping Plant in East Jordan have received a commendation from the Michigan Department of Labor "for their outstanding safety record for 1979." The plant showed a 50 percent safety improvement in 1979 over the previous year. Accepting the award this week was Dennis Wolgamott, at left, who is the chairman of the plant safety committee. Divisional safety director, Frank Oleniacz, center, presented the award. Plant Superintendent James Barnett, at right, was also on hand to offer congratulations.

Finally...a contract for BC school staff?

BOYNE CITY - Boyne City non-instructional school staff members are a step closer to getting a contract, including pay raises, after almost 1 1/2 years of negotiating.

In a four to three vote, the school board Monday night accepted the recommendation of state mediator Tom Oakley to ratify the non-instructional workers' contract.

Those members voting in favor of ratification of the two-year contract were Tom Neumann, Mark Behling, Bill Chipman and Ray Towne. Those opposing ratification of the contract were George Shiotelis, Betty Johncheck and Shirley Crozier.

According to Kay Habitz, Michigan Education Association negotiator for approximately 20 cooks, custodians, bus drivers and secretaries in the school system, the non-instructional workers are expected to ratify the contract within a week.

No details of what the contract includes will be released until final ratification.

condominium units located on the west side of Second Street, but would be less desirable because the condominiums would be more crowded. The Smiths said that the construction of the condominiums in this manner would also block more of the view of Lake Charlevoix.

Dee Adgate, one member of the planning commission, thinks the plan which showed the road being relocated is "good land use as far as I am concerned."

Chairman Don Toffolo said that if the city doesn't allow the road to be relocated, "It doesn't look like we'd gain anything by having all the units clustered. I think we'd be losing out on the view of the lake by doing that," he said.

The Smiths said they have no concrete plans at this time for development of housing on the south side of Front Street above the recreation designated area. Rick Smith predicted that 270 condominium units could be placed there "but that's a long way off and may not even be probable," he said.

A joint meeting between the city commission and the planning commission has been scheduled for March 31 at 5 p.m. in the city commission chambers to review the proposed plans for the property as presented by Lake Associates.

The Smiths said they would like to work with members of both commissions in coming up with specific site plans which would show building height, front and back yard setbacks and other specifics to comply with the city condominium ordinance.

City OK's labor contract

BOYNE CITY - In a contract recently ratified by city workers and the city commission, workers will have a half hour shorter workday, a wage increase of about 55 cents per hour and two additional paid holidays.

The shortened workday—7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. rather than 4 p.m.—will be compensated for with a half hour lunch break rather than an hour.

Wages for the 15 full-time permanent employees and four CETA employees in the street, water, cemetery, public building and wastewater departments, will be adjusted twice annually each year according to the new contract agreement.

The contract between the city and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) became effective March 3 and continues through March 3, 1983.

Wage increases vary between 55 and 60 cents per hour for each year of the contract.

The day before Christmas and the day before New Year's Day are added to the contract resulting in a total of nine holidays annually, starting in 1981.

It's important to answer the census

Sometime early next month, a stranger will knock on your door and ask you a lot of personal questions. It happens once every 10 years, and it's called the census.

This time more than ever before the census is much more than just a head count. It provides a wide range of urgent information needs in both the public and private sectors. It is a way of finding out, every 10 years, where we've been, where we are, and where we might be going.

It is a way to discover where markets are, where jobs are—and where trends show they will be. It shows how many people need schools, jobs, new skills and new housing. The census is a way to create plans that meet the needs of our country's changing population. It is also used to rearrange our legislative districts to assure equal representation for growing areas such as Northern Michigan.

Like it or not, government is playing an ever-larger role in our lives. Billions of state and federal dollars are invested annually with the intention of helping different groups of people. The wise allocation of these funds for the next several years will depend on the data gathered from the 1980 census.

Editorial

So, even though it may be difficult to tell a stranger about your education, income, and the age and condition of your home, it could help our area qualify for certain government programs it might not otherwise benefit from. The answers are confidential. They are not available on an individual basis for use by any government agencies other than the Census Bureau.

You should be receiving a census questionnaire in the mail around March 28. You should answer the questions to the best of your ability, and hold the form until a census worker visits your home sometime in April. We urge you to cooperate in this national effort.

A wintertime version of fun around the campfire.

Letters to the editor Sportsmanship is important, too

Editor,

On Tuesday, March 10, we attended a basketball game at the Boyne City elementary school which our kids were playing in.

There are two high school girls who refereed at these games. Penny Grunow and Linda Sarasin.

We've always enjoyed these games. Not only are the kids good but, they also enjoy and are proud of what they are doing.

Anyway, on this particular night we were also blessed with one of our town's so-called leading citizens, who decided that the girls were not refereeing the game right.

With his mouth in high gear he not only made a spectacle of himself but succeeded in embarrassing the girls who were calling the game. I think the only thing he succeeded in was drawing attention to himself.

Coach Stephanie Moody should be commended for the way she handled the whole situation.

Mr. Big Mouth was handed the whistle and did not do much of a job calling the game the whole minute he was on the floor. He did do a beautiful job trying to save face with the two girls that he had raised H--- with.

I feel this incident should draw attention to the many programs young people are involved with, such as basketball, bowling, Little League and soccer. Many people, including young people, give their time and effort without pay but with a heck of a lot of criticism.

Anytime one of these "bleacher managers," refs or umps feel the job is not being done right, they should get off their duffs and spend their nights doing the same thing the people they criticize are doing.

The people who run these programs are trying to teach sportsmanship along with skills. It does not help when parents and spectators undermine their efforts.

The gift of education

Editor,

As a graduate of Boyne City High School, now attending the University of Arkansas, I would like to take this opportunity to thank a group of people in Boyne City who have helped me in my goal to further my education.

I'm talking about those involved with the Henry and Elizabeth Lee Scholarship program. The Lees and the current members of the committee know the importance of educating our young people and the benefits an education can provide to the individual and to society. To Rev. Walls, Rick Casper, Rod Place, and everyone involved and especially to the Lees, I would like to say "thank you" from all of us Lee scholarship recipients.

The last (and best) day of winter

We didn't know it at the time, but Saturday might have been the last—and best—day of winter.

Oh, sure, we'll get more snow and more cold weather. Last year we had a snowstorm on May 5. But it will be spotty from now on.

Saturday was great, an absolutely perfect winter day. There were blue skies and sunshine. It was just luck, though, because we had planned our cross-country ski outing about three weeks ahead of time.

A group of us from The Press brought our spouses, dogs, kids, hot dogs and wine out for a day of fun.

Our ski trail wandered around 80 acres of land owned by our ace typesetter Dee McCary and her husband Al. It's a beautiful spot between Boyne City and East Jordan with hills made to order for an interesting X-C ski trail.

We skied out about half a mile from the house and built a bonfire in a little valley. The hills shielded the wind and gave the kids a place to toboggan. Being in a valley with snow all around us magnified the sun's rays—it was very warm and we all went home with rosy cheeks.

Maybe the sun (and the wine) affected our brains, because by mid-afternoon we "grown-ups" were all playing around like a bunch of kids, rolling in the snow, sliding down hills on saucers, and ganging up on each other in a prolonged snowball fight.

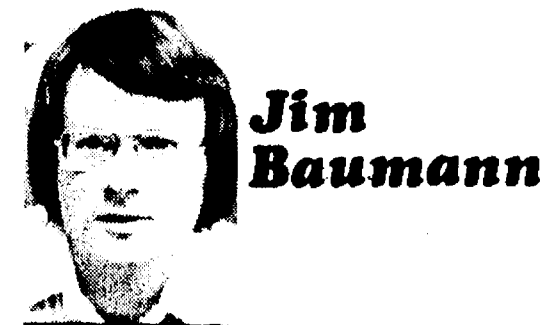

I think it had a lot to do with being out in the middle of nowhere with civilization in sight. For a few hours, we all left our inhibitions on the other side of the hill back at the houses and cars on Jaquay Road.

It was truly idyllic. Like that rare magical day of summer that comes once a year—just as unexpectedly—and then is gone just as quickly as it came.

You can't plan a day like that, but it sure is neat when it happens. It really doesn't sink in until it's over, and it leaves you wishing you could go do it again right away.

But, I guess we'll have to wait till next winter.

How about some English hoopla?

Things that distracted me while I was trying to write a column.

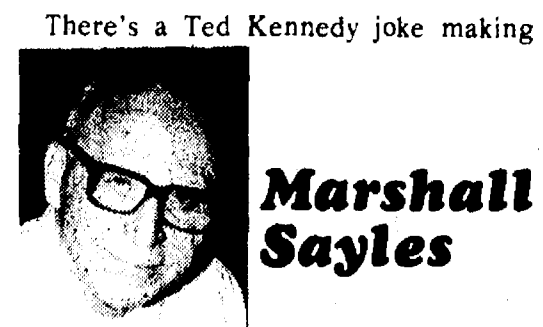

St. Patrick's Day with all of its Irish hoopla has come and gone. I don't know why we Englishmen can't have a lot of hoopla that comes and goes.

When I was a kid, many new metal inventions were coming onto the market bearing the name "Pat. Pending." He used to have his name on stoves, tools, farm equipment, etc. It's been a long time since I've seen his name on anything. I've often wondered what became of old Pat.

There's a Ted Kennedy joke making the rounds and I don't like it. It's wrong to josh a man running for president. It seems to me that we should wait until he's president before poking fun at him. I wouldn't think of repeating the one about Kennedy when he was asked what he would do about the hostage situation in Iran. Nor how he said that he would certainly cross that bridge when he came to it.

We were having a conversation with a bigamist in the restaurant the other day. (That's the bigamist, not bigot. There are no bigots in Boyne City and I can't stand a one of them.) When this two-wife character was told that most religions forbid a man having more than one better half, he shook his head. "It's not so much a sin as a bore," he said. Boy! Was I glad he warned me about that.

Many years ago the unions wanted their workers to be paid from the time they left home to the time they got back home again. Newspapers called it "portal to portal pay." Management refused, saying it would not pay an hourly wage to those who stopped off for a few beers on the way home. Even in these modern times management still refuses to pay a drinking wage.

I put on a necktie and went downtown the other day. Several people asked if I were going to a funeral. I have three ties. One for funerals and one for weddings. The other one gives me the look of a Republican. I don't understand those people who can't tell the difference between a funeral tie and a Republican tie.

I've decided to quit right here. Why? Because when I make a decision I'm sudden.

It's hard to be a nuclear expert

Being a news reporter sometimes makes people think you are an expert in all fields. This is very difficult to live up to. As a reporter I must try to make sure I understand a situation or event completely and then portray it in a simple way that readers can understand.

But in the field of nuclear power, it is very difficult to understand the whole concept, let alone try to convey what is happening at a nuclear power plant.

In the wake of the Three Mile Island incident, Consumers Power officials have been swamped with questions from reporters. Reporters were thrust into reporting a situation they knew little about. But the public's right to know and the new curiosity demanded that reporters be able to sift through information, ask questions and produce intelligent stories.

I went to an all-day briefing Friday given by Consumers Power officials in Lansing. The briefing—all about nuclear power—was for reporters. It was to give us an insight and understanding about such things as how nuclear power plants work, radiation (and how much of a dose a person can receive), plant design, plant security and safety, alternative energy and the future of nuclear power.

Understandably, the briefing was a public relations session for Consumers Power, which has invested hundreds of millions of dollars in nuclear power. But many reporters, like myself, attended to get a better understanding about nuclear power and how plants operate so we can ask more educated questions and write more meaningful stories.

Like this reporter, most of those attending the session were not assigned strictly to the "nuclear beat." They also report on the school board, the city council, wedding anniversaries and traffic accidents.

I didn't come away from the session as an expert on nuclear power or with a sensational story for the front page. But it was useful to get a lot of the background I will need to write future stories about nuclear power.

Many reporters will never have to deal with the topic, but with Big Rock Point nuclear power plant right in our county, reporters in this area are in the position of having to report on it.

Now, with the help of such a session, reporters won't be stumbling through information to get to a story about nuclear power. Consumers Power opened the door for reporters to understand nuclear power and in essence invited more questions, stories and investigation into nuclear power.

BRI wins men's league

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne River Inn surprised some people by beating Great Lakes Energy Systems in the championship playoff of the Tri-City Basketball League Sunday.

BRI, the first round champion, beat Great Lakes, the second round champion, 69-61.

Great Lakes was favored to win the game because the team had the momentum of a nine-game winning streak. After winning the first round title, BRI had slipped to a 5-4 record during the second round of games in the men's league.

BRI won Sunday because it had its two big men back after they had missed several games. Kevin Griffin had been injured and Chuck Stanek had missed some games because of a fire at his home.

That made the difference, as Griffin hit 16 points and Stanek had 15 to lead their team to victory. Keith Hausler added 11.

BRI pulled out to a 39-29 halftime lead and then extended their lead to 18 points early in the third quarter.

"We really hurt them with our fast break and we built up a big lead," said guard Kim Hocquard of the BRI. "Then they got back within three points with a minute and a half to go, but we held on somehow."

Great Lakes Coach Tiny Reinhardt said, "I thought we played a sub-par game. Jeff Belford sprained his ankle the day before the game, and that didn't help much. But BRI played a really good game, probably the best game they played in the second half of the season."

Belford led the scoring for Great Lakes with 16 points, while Dan Osmer added 14. Al Looze 13 and Tony Williams 10.

EJ youngsters earn medals

EAST JORDAN - Four more East Jordan youngsters have earned medals in the Bill Koch Sports Participation Program.

Angela Prebble, a fifth grader, won a gold medal. Winning bronze medals were fourth grader Connie Bennett, third grader Shannon Gee and second grader Sara Chase.

The program, named after 1976 Olympic medalist Bill Koch, encourages participation in 33 different sports such as skiing, bowling, hiking, ice skating, sledding, roller skating and basketball.

To earn a gold medal, participants must participate in 15 different sports at least five times each. To earn a bronze medal, the youngsters must participate in seven sports, five times each.

Earlier this year, East Jordan's David Gocha became the first in the nation to win a gold medal in the program.

Jr. high wrestlers win

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne City wrestling team won its first and only wrestling match against Charlevoix Saturday.

The match was set up as a tournament with the team winning two out of three matches getting first place. Boyne City evolved as the winner, outscoring Charlevoix Middle School 84-41.

Wrestling team first place winners were: Mitch Kruzel, Tom Hamlin, Nick Redman, Jeff Stokes, Don Courtright, Rick Gibbons, Joe Gregware and Dave Wandrie. Rick Fowler is the coach.

A Great Future

Why is investment in real estate such a good, long-term investment? As a "product," subject as all products are to the law of supply and demand, land is the greatest of them all because its supply is fixed and the demand is ever-growing.

Among the greatest land "gobblers" are our national and local governments, which require vast amounts for highways and other projects. Industrial expansion is also consuming huge parcels of usable land, and environmentalists are insisting - as they should - that more land be preserved in its natural state.

Although land is not expandable, population certainly is expandable and it has been expanding since the first duet of Adam and Eve. In fact, by the year 2000, the population of the United States is projected to be around 300 million. What this means is that every month from now to the turn of the century, we will be adding to the population enough people to fill a city the size of Toledo, Ohio. By the year 2000, half of the population will be living in dwellings that have not yet been built and on land that has never been used for dwellings.

Health comes easy with diet, exercise

Exercise is good for the mind as well as the heart, Dr. Reed Freidinger said. Jogging, done moderately, can eliminate stress on the heart which may lead to heart attacks, he said.

BY DIANNE MURRAY

Staying healthy is simple with the right combination of diet and exercise.

A sure-fire way of guaranteeing a long life is to choose one's parents carefully, but since that may be difficult to do, a second way is to choose a proper diet and exercise plan.

Dr. Reed K. Freidinger, a specialist in adult diseases, recently spoke to about 20 people at a class available through the East Jordan Community Education and the East Jordan Family Health Center. His discussion ranged from vitamins and eating properly to an exercise plan.

Although there are many Americans who die yearly of starvation, the United States is "the land of abundance." Americans have an abundance of vitamins and calories in their diet. The area which is lacking, is exercise, Dr. Freidinger said.

"The United States does not have deficiencies, it has abundances. The result is obesity, high blood pressure and other diseases," he said.

VITAMINS

If you have a proper diet and are healthy, vitamins are not necessary, said Freidinger, who has had a private practice in Charlevoix for over four years.

"Most of the foods we eat are vitamin enriched. Milk, bread, fudge mix, cereal, flour—you name it, almost everything is vitamin enriched," he said.

Although there is no "magic" to vitamins, Freidinger said they can do a lot of good. "Vitamins are necessary for pregnant women, or for people who are ill," but you can get the same daily requirements needed with a good diet, he said.

Dr. Reed Freidinger

A one-a-day-type vitamin is probably the best and most useful vitamin because it contains the balance of vitamins needed.

"One of the ways vitamins are useful is psychologically. If a patient thinks he is taking a vitamin for a certain ailment, it (the vitamin) can be shown to have dramatic results. But, more times than not it is all psychology," the Charlevoix doctor said.

For example, vitamin C was pushed by manufacturers in 1969 as being a remedy for the common cold. But, several tests taken in recent years show that vitamin C, which is found in citrus, is not a cure for the common cold, Freidinger said.

"If it helps you with a cold—that's fine—but it is probably because of psychological reasons rather than medical reasons," he said.

DIET

"Unfortunately prosperity in America has radically changed our diet. Obesity is in part responsible for the current epidemic of cardio-vascular disease. Our food manufacturers have refined our bran. We consume far too much salt, sugar, fat and cholesterol," he said.

Food is used in two ways. First it is taken by our body and used as fuel. Secondly it is used as a building block for tissue, cells and muscles.

Forty percent of our diet is fat, another forty percent is carbohydrates and the remaining 20 percent is protein.

"Food is not to enjoy. It is to keep us alive and healthy. But, the fact is that eating is an American pastime. It is something too many of us enjoy too much. We take advantage of our diet without thinking of what it is really doing to our body," Freidinger said.

Freidinger recommends the following changes in diet:

--Bulk should be added in the form of cereals containing bran and whole wheat bread. Supplemental bran in raw milled form is also available.

--Less animal fats (triglycerides) should be eaten. One should avoid whole milk, butter and other dairy products and red meats. Skimmed milk, margarine and fish or fowl should be substituted.

--To reduce cholesterol intake, only two eggs per week should be eaten.

--One should try to reduce salting food at the table. "A well set table does not include a salt shaker," he told the class. It sometimes takes a while to get used to not tasting salt on food, but after a short period of time, foods start to taste better and the true taste appears.

Freidinger believes that the aforementioned diet modifications could drastically reduce the number of heart attacks and strokes which account for 54 percent and 13 percent respectively of deaths yearly.

For example, Americans consume 105 pounds of sugar a year! Obviously, a small amount of sugar is good for the body for energy, but that high of an amount of sugar is detrimental to one's health, he said.

EXERCISE

Physical fitness is a form of emotional therapy which has many beneficial effects.

"It allows the heart to do work at a slower rate, it lowers blood pressure and it utilizes oxygen more efficiently. Similarly, other muscles in the body utilize oxygen more efficiently. The best part of (exercise) is that most participants experience an increased sense of well-being and exhilaration," Freidinger said.

Exercises should be rewarding, pleasant and enjoyable, he said.

To maintain a state of physical fitness, the exercises must be for at least 1/2 hour, it must be done three times a week and it must be kinetic—that is, some sort of motion or energy must be exerted.

"You don't have to do anything which is straining on your body like wrestling or isometrics. With walking, cross country skiing, jogging, playing basketball or a lot of other activities you get a lot of exercise," he said.

Variety is essential to a fitness program, too, he said. One day the exercise might be gardening, the next day bicycling and the next day swimming. "That way you don't get tired of the exercise program."

Where to go to exercise

The hardest part of exercising can be finding a place to do it.

East Jordan and Boyne City gymnasiums are open for public use. To reserve gym time, call the community education departments at 582-6567 for Boyne City or East Jordan at 536-3241. The open gym times vary from week to week so there's no set schedule.

Women's and men's recreation activities are also scheduled through the community education departments. Activities such as co-ed volleyball and several spring sports are now being scheduled.

Several exercise classes are available through community education. Slimnastics, aerobic dancing and karate are just a few of the classes. Call the community ed departments or see the spring schedules for more information.

Treat yourself this weekend and dine out at one of these fine area restaurants.

The Lakeside Players, a Boyne City based drama group, presented two evenings of one act plays and sketches Friday and Saturday. At left, Andy Robinson shows his anger at his wife, played by Kate Schafer, in the world premiere of the play "Who Loves Billie Nelson?" The play, which has its setting in Walloon Lake, was written by Lakeside Director Gary Peltier, a Petoskey resident. The play was especially written for the Lakeside Players. In the photo at the top right, Peltier at left, and Larry Willis act out a scene from "The Last To Go," a humorous sketch by Harold Pliner.
