Sheriff candidate cites 'low morale'

BY JIM BAUMANN

Citing low morale at the sheriff's department, South Arm Township resident Leonard Fuller has become the third man to enter the race for county sheriff.

Fuller thinks his prospective candidacy may have cost him his position on the sheriff's posse, a volunteer auxiliary unit which assists the department.

He was a member of the posse for 2½ years until last Monday when, Fuller said, "I got a letter from the sheriff saying I was no longer needed and that I should turn in my equipment."

"I thought it was kind of a cheap blow after I spent more than two years trying to better the county by organizing a strong reserve unit."

Lasater denies that he removed Fuller from the posse for political reasons. "This is the first I've heard of it," the sheriff said Tuesday when The Press told him Fuller was challenging him for his job.

Asked why Fuller was removed from the posse, Lasater said "For his sake, I'd rather not comment."

Fuller said he is sure that his decision to run for sheriff is the reason he was relieved of his position as posse commander. "The sheriff thought I was getting the reserves too strong and he thought I was trying to take away his authority."

"I was probably a liability to him because I got to ride with the deputies and that gave me an inside look at what is going on."

Fuller said he voted for Lasater when he ran for his first term in 1976 because Lasater had a number of good ideas and seemed to be well-qualified.

"But I honestly feel the job went to his head. We don't need a super cop who goes around writing traffic tickets. We need an administrator. Morale is at an all-time low in the department."

"I'm an outspoken person," Fuller said, "but I don't want my campaign to be a slander campaign. I have my ideas, and I'm putting them down on paper. I'm going in as an administrator, because I think that's what the county needs."

Fuller now works as the produce manager for Olson Food Store in Charlevoix, and he said he has had experience managing a restaurant and a large country club in California.

He has lived in the area for nine years. He lives on Bailey Road with his wife and three children.

Fuller joins Lasater and former detective Wally Brown in the race for sheriff. Brown and Lasater will run as Republicans in the August primary election. Fuller said he has not decided which political party he will be affiliated with.

Brown, a resident of Hayes Township, announced his candidacy in January, and Lasater said at that time he was running for reelection.

In the meantime, however, several sources have told The Press Lasater might reconsider and not run, because of the demands of public office and the criticism of low morale in his department.

But Lasater told The Press this week that he was definitely still in the race.

Boyne coach's job on the line Monday

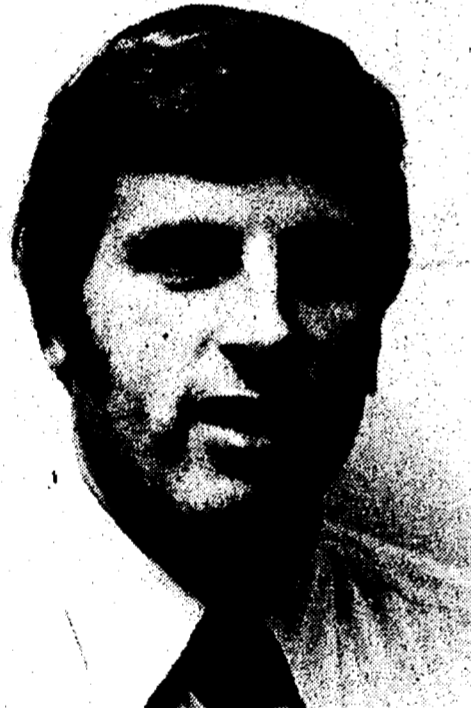

BOYNE CITY - The question of whether or not to rehire high school basketball coach Russ Harvey may, once again, be brought before the school board Monday night.

The Press has learned that the school athletic committee has decided to recommend the nine-year varsity boys' basketball coach not be rehired for the 1980-81 school year.

The school board is expected to vote on the issue of whether Harvey will be rehired or not at Monday's 7:15 p.m. meeting at the high school.

Harvey said he has heard a lot of speculation about whether he will be rehired as coach next year, but does not know what the outcome of the Monday meeting may be.

"I'm not going to open that can of worms until I find out what's going to happen to me on April 28," Harvey said. "It sounds like it may be a railroad job to me."

Russ Harvey

Harvey's supporters point out that Boyne City is the smallest school in its conference, and all teams have good years and bad years.

The pressure on the Rambler coach has mounted, however, after two straight losing seasons. Harvey's team finished the 1978-79 season with a 4-14 record, and logged a 6-13 mark in the recently completed 1979-80 season.

Three years ago, however, Harvey took the Ramblers to District and Regional championships before finally losing in the state semi-finals. And four years ago, his squad tied for first place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

Harvey was rehired with the stipulation that the entire district's sports program would be looked into further by the athletic committee.

Current board members on the athletic committee included Crozier, Johncheck and Behling.

County buses by July?

BOYNE CITY - The dispatch office of the new county-wide public transportation system is now open in Boyne City City Hall, and bus service should begin around the second week of July.

Director Art Saworski said the office has yet to receive the radio dispatch unit and is waiting for arrival of seven buses. The office is located behind the senior citizen center in City Hall.

The new bus system is for any person in the county wanting bus transportation. The county will be divided into three service zones centered around Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix. Vehicles will be radio dispatched through the Boyne City office to people's homes.

Buses will be dispatched to people calling in for a ride or reservations can be made for special trips. Emphasis will be put on work trips.

The bus service hours will be Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Sunday, bus runs will only be made if advance reservations are made.

Tentative fares for a one-way trip within the county are: age 12 to 59, 60 cents; all other ages and handicapped people, 30 cents; and infants, free.

For out of county rides, the rate for age 12 to 59 is $1; all other ages, 50 cents; and handicapped, 50 cents.

Most area industries suffer but Courter expands offices

BOYNE CITY - While some factories around the county are closing their doors or laying off employees, the Bendix-Courter company is "expanding optimistically," according to plant manager Warren Totder.

Courter, Inc., was acquired by Bendix in October, 1978 to manufacture aeronautic, missile, tank and various other vehicle guidance equipment.

Since that time it has not grown substantially but as Totder said, "We've been holding our own. Our sales are inflating at the rate of inflation. We're constantly searching the market for new business opportunities, and getting them, but our manufacturing is only to order," he said.

In mid-February Bendix leased a 7,500 sq. ft. building across the street from the plant. The front part of the building is used for office space at the present time. Totder said the back of the building may sometime be used for light manufacturing purposes, although he would not speculate when such a move might take place.

"The facility would be used as the need comes up," he said. "The front end (of the building)—about 20 percent of the total area—is being used for expanding office space," Totder said.

"We're getting close to our capacity in this facility so when the property became available we leased it to provide an opportunity for additional growth. But we have no firm plans to move any production into the area at this time," he said.

Approximately 450 people are currently employed at Courter and Totder said that number has been stable for Construction this summer?

'Reasonable' condo plan moves ahead

BY DIANNE MURRAY

BOYNE CITY - City officials and Lake Associates developers have come up with what has been termed by all sides as "reasonable" recommendations for the Tannery lakefront condominiums.

Rick and Dave Smith of Lake Associates will submit detailed site plans for the planning commission to review at its May 19 meeting. The site plans will include plans for the proposed marina, three 36-unit condominium clusters and a golf course.

Members of a special committee which drew up 11 recommendations said they thought the lakefront development project could proceed this summer.

"I think the recommendations are very good for both the city and the developers," planning commissioner Richard Shaler said. "This is going to be a great chance for Boyne City and everybody."

"We're taking all these (recommendations) under serious consideration and generally speaking the recommendations are very acceptable," Rick Smith said.

Carol Judkins, a member of the Save Front Street Committee which petitioned against the road closing last summer, said she agrees with the recommendations. But she said she's concerned that the city does not have in writing a limitation on what could be built on nine lots the Smiths own between the wastewater treatment plants and the coal docks.

"The Smiths offered in the first presentation to the planning commission (March 10) to keep that area open as a green space in exchange for letting them move Front Street. Now we've gone from that being a greenbelt to possible parking and restaurant facilities, and who knows in five years there may be condominiums there," she said.

The recommendation in this area is that the city has no right to interfere with the property owner's right to develop but would like to limit the height of any construction so it would not block the view of the lake. No retail establishment could be constructed in that area, although a facility such as a restaurant would be allowed.

"I think it should be spelled out now that the Smiths agree to only a restaurant and parking and not let them do any more. The Smiths offered this and the city hasn't followed through with getting this agreement in writing," Judkins said.

Rick Smith said he thinks there is an alternative location for a restaurant, but he would like to leave the option of putting a restaurant on that parcel if the need should arise. He said there are no plans now to put condominiums on the nine lot parcel.

Recommendations regarding moving Front Street back from the lake include: --The detailed site plans must show a necessity to move the road the distance the Smiths are asking for it to be moved.

They have said the road may have to be moved 290 ft. from its present location.

--Front Street will remain a major artery in terms of road quality.

--A 60 ft. right-of-way must be deeded to the city the entire length of the property from Second Street to Division Street; and

--The cost of paving a 23 ft. road (the same width as Front Street is presently) for the realigned portion of Front Street will be born by Lake Associates.

Other recommendations include:

--Any building on the lot at the corner of Front and Second Streets must retain the residential character of the neighborhood so as not to infringe on residences immediately surrounding the home. It could serve as a caretaker or harbor-master's home or a storage building could possibly be built if it does not block the lakefront view of homes on Elm Street.

--The developers would pay the expenses of extending water and sewer lines to the site including fire hydrant and a sewer lift installation. Certified engineering plans for these items must be included in the details site plan.

City Manager Tim Clifton noted that Front Street would not have to be moved until construction on 24 units bordering the street begins in 1982. All recommendations would take place at no cost to the city," Clifton said.

The developers hope the marina would be built in the spring of 1981.

White Cane Week

White Cane week begins Friday throughout the state, and Lions Club members in East Jordan will be hoisting a flag to promote it at Northwestern State Bank. From left are White Cane Week Chairman Warren Frank, bank President Bill Grand, Mayor Jim Meredith and Lions President Jerry Hawkins. Lions in East Jordan and other communities will be passing out white canes to people who donate to help the Lions' projects for the blind during the coming week. A special "Bowl for the Blind" night will be held at Gemini Lanes in East Jordan Friday night to raise money, also. Local teams representing the city, bank, churches, businesses and schools will be bowling blindfolded.

WHAT SHOULD I LOOK FOR IN A NURSING HOME?

People often tell us about their experiences with nursing homes. We have several very fine ones in our area and these are just some of the things to look for in choosing a nursing home.

1. Consult first with your doctor as to the particular type and amount of care required.
 2. Visit the facility yourself, alone.
 3. Does the home provide all the services your doctor requires?
 4. If the patient is dependent on Medicare or Medicaid, does the nursing home participate in both programs?
 5. Obtain and read the "patient's Bill of Rights." This is posted conspicuously and it gives the regulations necessary to be certified for Medicare and Medicaid.
 6. Who is the "house" doctor? Is he available on staff or on-call 24 hours? How many registered nurses?
 7. Are emergency patient transfers to a hospital provided for? How far away is it?
 8. What is the exact total monthly covered and what is and is NOT covered? Is a written basic service agreement available?
- Be sure to discuss with the patient's doctor other special services he may require - special diet, exercise, personal attention, etc.

Snizbee closing means another EJ vacancy?

EAST JORDAN - Snizbee's clothing and variety store is going out of business, and its owners hope to lease the building to another retail outlet.

The store started a going out of business sale last week, and the sale will continue for four to six weeks until all merchandise is sold, according to co-owner Jim Mabee of Charlevoix.

Mabee said he has no definite tenants yet for the Main Street store. "We'd like to split it up and lease the building as two stores," he said. "We've had a few people who are interested in leasing."

If the store is not leased immediately, it will be the second downtown business to leave a major vacancy in the downtown area in the past six months.

Glen's Market closed its Mill Street store in November to move to the west side of the city and has yet to find a tenant or buyer for its old store.

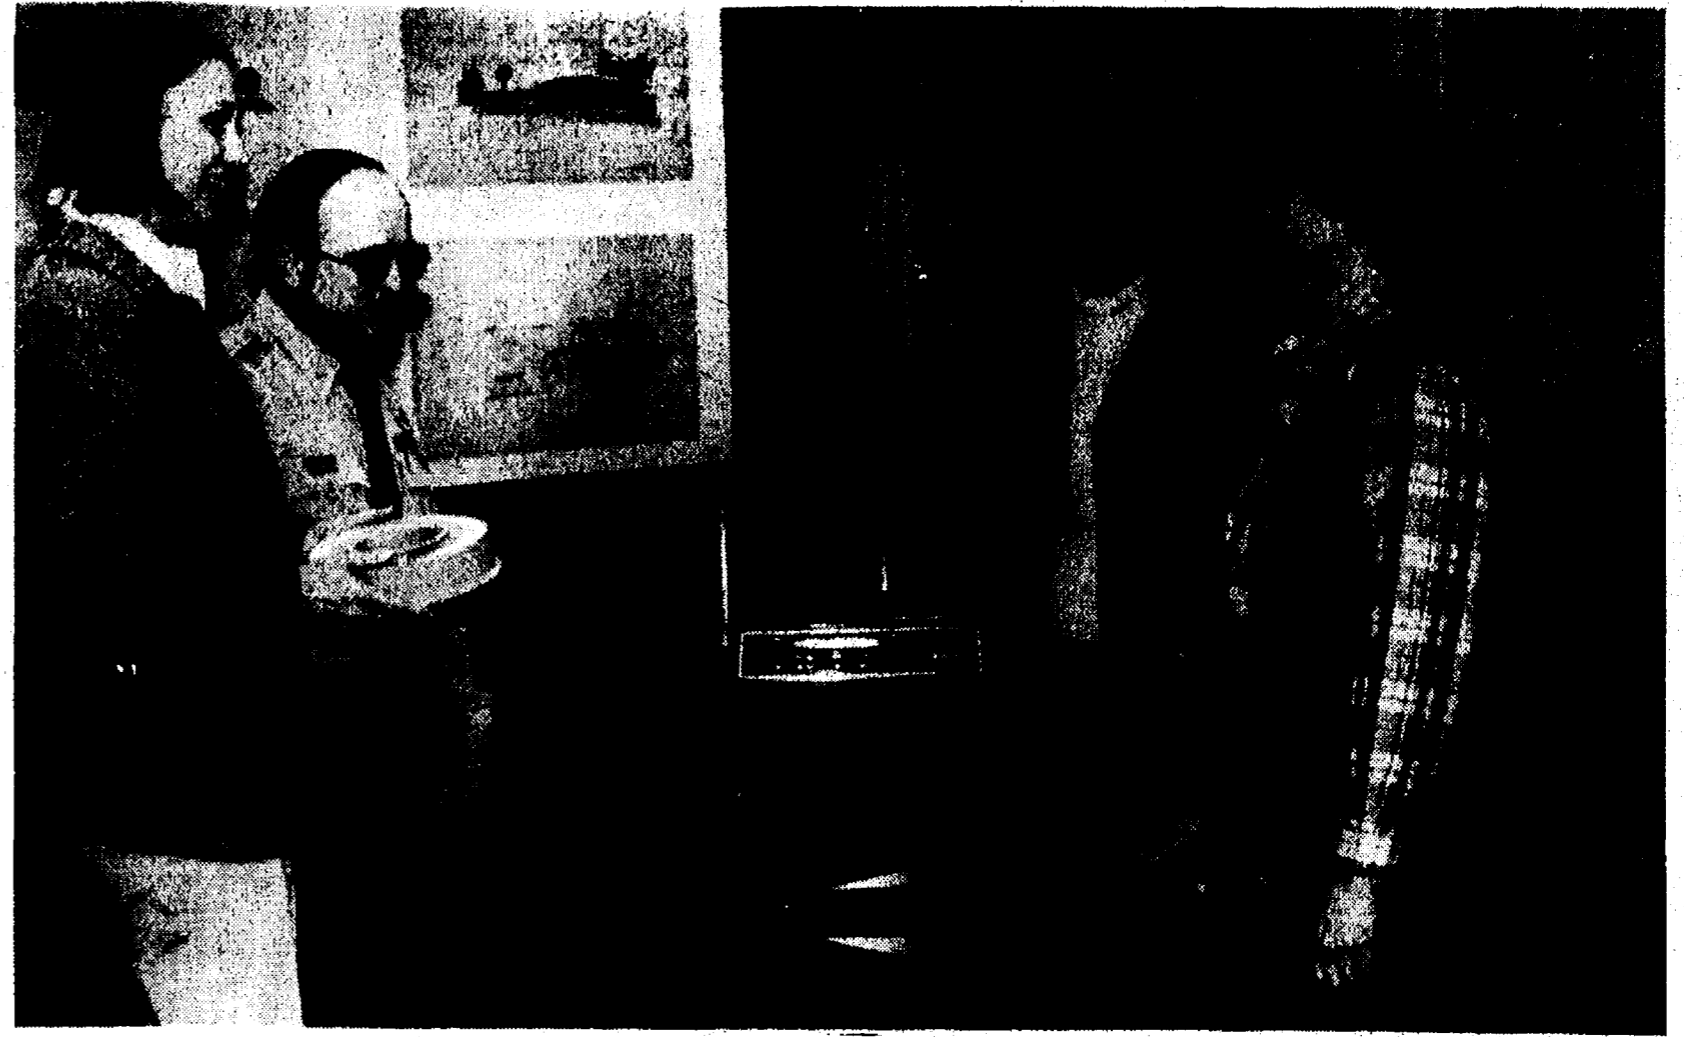

Mabee and Don Snizik, also of Charlevoix, started Snizbee's in 1977 when they bought 12 former Dahlquist stores throughout northern Michigan.

They sold some of the stores immediately in 1977, started the Snizbee's chain, and eventually sold off most of those stores, too. A Kalkaska Snizbee's store was the most recent to close, and merchandise from that store has been moved to East Jordan for the going out of business sale.

When the East Jordan store closes, the only remaining Snizbee store will be in Mancelona. Mabee said he will be taking over sole ownership of that store, which was remodeled two years ago. Mabee also owns the Clothing Company in Charlevoix.

He said a clothing and variety store could do well in East Jordan. "What is really takes today," he said, "is a mail operated business where you don't have to pay a lot of extra help when you're not busy. But for us to hire someone to operate it just didn't work."

Visual donation The Eta Nu Sorority donated $500 to Boyne City to purchase an audio-visual machine. Police Chief John Talboys recently accepted the gift along with city commissioner Catherine Jessup from sorority members Eleanor Stackus, Vicki Williamson and Marty McLeod. Talboys said he'll use the machine to give his officers taped training programs.

Courter expands Boyne offices

about two years. Courter is not hiring presently but he said if the company moves into the building across the street, both new equipment and employees would be added.

Courter has been assigned to manufacture three products for new Boeing 767 and 757 airplanes. The government is also planning to step up its defense spending within the next year by approximately three percent. Todter said most of the contracts from that additional spending would fall to "more sophisticated companies." But Courter would see some smaller work contracts as a result "possibly in a year or two," he said.

When asked about the Bendix company possibly relocating somewhere else for larger facilities, Todter said such a possibility is slim.

"As far as moving, the company would really like to be in an area with more space where all of the facility could be expanded under one roof but the cost of re-establishing such a facility would be prohibitive. It would be nice, but it's not in our plans to move anywhere else right now," Todter said.

Boyne City has become a more attractive town since Courter first located on Lake Street in 1960, he said. "We have been very careful in trying to make our facility as attractive as possible so that everyone in town can benefit from us being here," he said. "and we will continue to keep that attitude."

Big Brothers, Sisters open BC office

A field office for Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Charlevoix County opened Monday in Boyne City City Hall.

Headed by Charlotte McKay, 22, who has worked out of the Charlevoix office of the organization since January, 1979, the branch office will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The office phone is 582-2608.

McKay, a graduate of Olivet College, has a bachelors degree in sociology.

Her goal, she said, is to be a "matchmaker for big and little brothers and sisters. At least 20 little brothers need adult companions in the Boyne City area alone."

She hopes through advertising and personal contact to encourage adults to volunteer for the program.

Families who want to become companions to boys or girls are welcome, she said.

To decide school millage request

BOYNE CITY - A special school board meeting set for 7:15 p.m. Monday at the high school will set the 1980-81 millage and determine curriculum or staff cuts included in the budget.

Possible cuts in extra-curricular activities such as sports may be discussed at the meeting also.

School Superintendent Rich Kelly said as much as five additional mills may be needed to maintain current programs. Voter approval of the millage request will be sought in the June 9 election. The school is currently operating with 27.65 mills.

Other items on the agenda include: Consideration of accepting an offer on the Morgan-Shaw School, punch card voting and naming a negotiator to the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Railroad stockholders deserve better answers

We all know that tourist business in the area was not booming last summer, and with gas prices what they are, business might not be better this year or ever again.

Even so, it comes as quite a shock that the Boyne Valley Railroad board of directors is considering the possibility of ending its tourist rides.

Railroad directors hope that the train will at least be able to continue its tourist runs on weekends and for special charters. If that is the most efficient way to run the railroad, we won't quibble. It would still be serving its basic purpose.

But we cannot, however, swallow the idea of having the BVRR operate only as a freight or charter railroad. That—or the possibility that it won't run at all this summer—is apparently an option now being considered by the board of directors.

It is infuriating that the board would allow the railroad to reach this state of affairs without even notifying its stockholders of problems. The railroad did not even hold its legally required stockholders' annual meeting in 1979. It has done a poor job of communicating the problems which became apparent after the 1979 season ended.

And now—perhaps—there may be an annual meeting at the end of May.

The community will apparently be kept in the dark about its railroad until then. It is ridiculous to decide at the end of May whether such an important tourist attraction will run in June. Decisions like that should be made during the winter.

Does the board expect the community to come up with some sort of "miracle" to keep the railroad alive for the summer at such short notice?

Board members complain the community is not involved enough with the railroad—but that's the board's own fault! What has the board done to educate the public of the railroad's financial status?

Editorial

Perhaps if the board had held a stockholders' meeting last fall or winter and asked for suggestions to help ease some of the problems the railroad company is now faced with, the stockholders could have contributed suggestions.

We're not suggesting that local businesses be run by democracy, but the railroad is unique. More than 300 local residents and visitors invested more than $200,000 to save the railroad from being split up in an auction in 1976—and then to give it adequate working capital in its first year.

Therefore, whether the railroad runs this summer or not should be a decision shared by the public because it is their money that has been keeping the railroad going year by year.

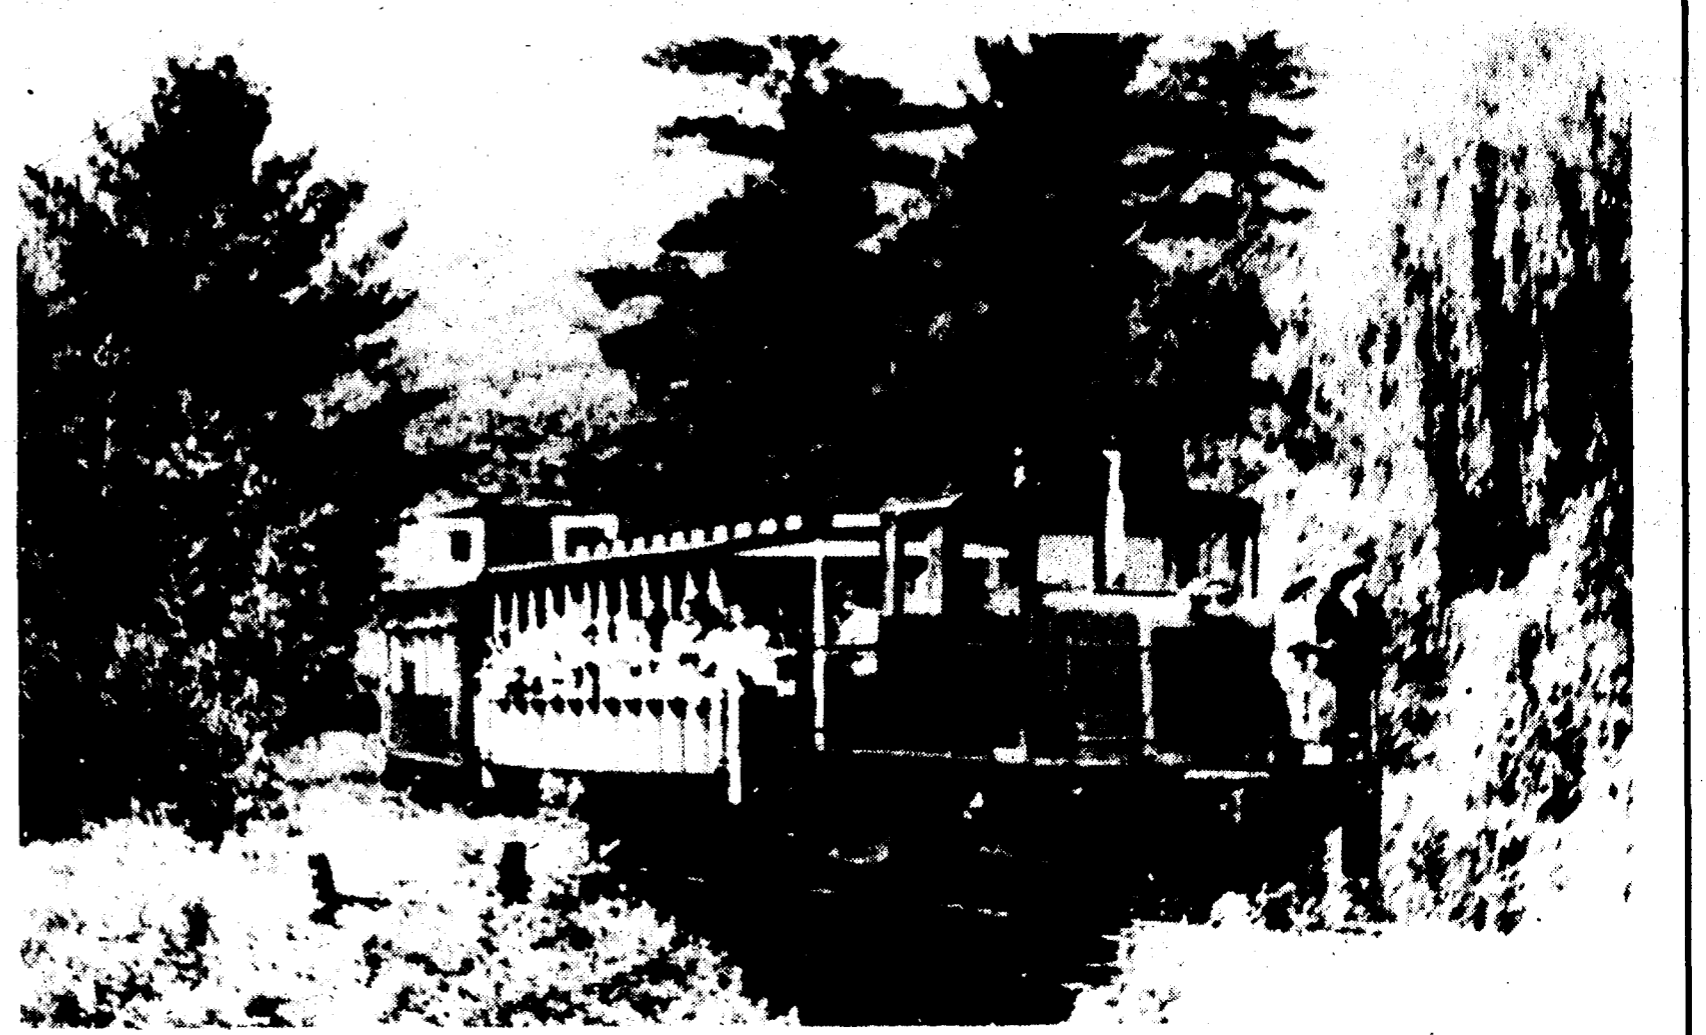

One board member suggested that even if the railroad were to fold, the people who own stock shouldn't be worried about losing money. Inflation has increased the value of the railroad and the equipment associated with it.

But most of the people who bought stock in the railroad didn't do it as a financial investment, hoping to reap big profits in a few years. They did it to support an important community asset, one that makes the Boyne City area totally unique in Northern Michigan. It is a living, breathing, moving symbol of the city.

And it is undoubtedly an economic benefit to the Boyne City area. Even in an off year, it hauled 16,000 passengers last summer and fall.

The community rallied behind the railroad when support was needed in its first year. Now they deserve the right to some respect for doing that.

They deserve a candid report on the financial condition of "their" railroad, and if it is truly in jeopardy, they deserve the chance to save it again, whether it be with ideas, dollars or volunteer help.

The Boyne Valley Railroad hauls a load of passengers across the trestle in Boyne Falls. Some board members say the train's future as a tourist attraction may be in jeopardy.

Letter to the editor

Do taxes have to go up? Have a good retirement, Prez!

Editor,
Your April 3 editorial on "Necities of the North are driving taxes up" strikes me as pretty much true except for two things.

First, you say "if property value goes up 12 percent, that means taxes go up 12 percent." But why do they have to?

Why in the world don't the residents and local government officials (and editors) press for lower millage so that when the assessments go up, the taxes could be kept level or at least to a much lower rate of increase?

It isn't comforting to us second home owners to know we are "helping to carry the burden..." as you say, when all we've done in most cases is watch what we bought years ago go up, up, and up in a steep spiral of higher assessments and higher taxes.

Sure, I know it's partly our fault because of the outlandish prices we have been willing to pay for good lake property, but again, why can't the millage go down to compensate for the higher assessments?

Then second, in addition to the fine list of necities you mention, and which we enjoy, we can add good schools and roads, but the other more intrinsic necities such as water, gas, sewers, garbage and trash removal, and fully adequate fire and police protection are just not available. At least we don't get them in Eveline Township, where we live on Lake Charlevoix.

As I see it, we have two options: (1) We can continue to own our property and pay the taxes. We do enjoy the beautiful country and enjoy knowing and living with the many fine permanent citizens.

Or (2) we can sell our property. If we choose to sell, it may become increasingly difficult to find a buyer who will assume the burden of annually increased taxes! In this case we are all losers.

R. W. Simon
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear President Carter,
We are sorry to hear that you will be unable to visit Charlevoix County during the election campaign.

This comes as a blow. Hardest hit are Democrats and Republicans. They wanted to shake your hand and extend to you personally their appreciation for making it possible for so many workers to have more time at home.

They needed this, especially the married ones. It's hard for a man or woman to work full-time while keeping a house. In addition, children should see more of their parents. The children are very happy since you have made this possible.

Newspapers and television say that you did not accomplish this by yourself, that others were involved. We in Charlevoix County feel, however, that whenever great successes are accomplished the head man is always the guiding light.

And we wanted to give credit where credit is due. (I myself have been in business more than half of my life. I know that in the final analysis the boss is responsible for guiding the organization.)

We wanted you to come so we could show you first-hand how successful your endeavors have been here. The efficiency with which you have closed some of our factories and forced others to operate fewer hours is amazing.

It is not easy to create a recession. But you have accomplished this with much more rapidly than most presidents. We agree that a recession will perhaps reduce inflation and lower interest rates. Already you are succeeding.

Interest rates have fallen from 20 percent to 19.75 percent. Those out of work swell up with patriotism when they realize how much they are contributing to this reduction.

One of your predecessors, I believe it was Harry Truman, was credited with saying that those employed call it a recession and those out of work call it a depression. But under the politics of the day no one pays any attention to that old fashioned way of thinking.

In Charlevoix County popular prejudice runs in favor of working full time. However, those of us who are tightening our belts, biting the bullet and doing without are heartened to know that under your guidance things will get better after they have gone to pieces.

Some foolish people in our area wish to buy a house or perhaps build a new one. This is unpatriotic if we are to have a decent recession to straighten things out.

You have asked us not to spend so much money and you have done a wonderful job of making it impossible for us to do so. Some of us do feel, however, that a house creates many worries and we are happy that you have spared us the anguish.

Living and training for common goals with one another, and competing for the "prizes" with one another, is what life is all about. The better we prepare for it in our youth the better we as individuals can meet the challenges of building a society we are all proud of, one that is tough, but fair, competitive, but harmonious.

THE CHANGING SCENE
As I look over the sporting scene this spring, I see more women engaged in team sports than ever before—basketball, softball, and volleyball, for example—and more young men "doing their own thing" than ever before. I wonder what this change will mean in the years ahead?

Still having a bit of the young boy in me, I sometimes remember the silly day-dreams of boyhood. Such dreams included pitching in the major leagues, although I never was outstanding among my peers as a young man. My playing days are long past. Baseball ended in my mid-20s, and fastpitch softball ended a few years ago.

Yet, spring brings back the old feelings. So, there I was a few days ago cranking up to throw my "famous"

We also wish to thank you for encouraging higher gasoline prices. Sunday spins in the country were very popular here. But since you discouraged this, a lot of folks are staying home Sundays and more of us are walking to church. We needed to get back to the old fashioned way of living. Your foresight in these matters is appreciated.

The majority of us in Charlevoix County were over-eating. Hundreds were on a diet, hoping to lose a few pounds. The price of food is perhaps the highest in history. This has prevented our folks from eating too much and eliminated the need to go on a diet. We appreciate your interest in our health.

Too much sugar is not good for our children or adults. Since five cent candy bars are now 25 or 30 cents our consumption of sugar has dropped measurably. The high prices have cured my long standing case of the "sweets." No other president ever took that much interest in my welfare.

Yes, we are put out that you are unable to visit Charlevoix County. You would be happy to see how we still laugh, swear, drink and somehow eke out a tolerable existence, even though we are much broke.

There is one thing, however, with which we do not seem to agree. You were quoted as saying that you once lusted in your heart for a woman. When we in Charlevoix County lust, our hearts have nothing to do with it.

The best to you in your coming retirement.

Yours, etc.

Sports joy and stress--good preparation for life

Ah, yes, there's no denying it's spring, the terrible weather now and then notwithstanding. And in spring, "they" said, a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of... baseball.

Well, at least they said that when I was a young man. And it was true for all the boys in my neighborhood and at my school.

It doesn't seem to be that way any more.

Baseball is a team sport, like basketball and football—sports that I played with all my friends day-after-day as a boy and young man.

Today, in the era of the so-called "me generation," more and more young people find pleasure in individualized sports such as tennis, racquet ball, roller skating, skiing, skateboarding, hang-gliding, and surfing. The fastest-growing team sport in the U.S. today is soccer where players are spread over a football-sized field and do not talk or strategize with one another during the course of the non-stop game.

All of today's newly-popular sports, I am sure, are physically demanding and personally enjoyable. But, they do not appear to me as important in the development of skills that will serve a person well in the coming battles of adulthood.

In football, there are defensive and offensive huddles on every play to discuss team strategy, in baseball, the team can talk over strategy in the dugout after every three outs; in basketball there is a intimacy of play on a small court, regular time-outs and frequent pauses caused by fouls. All of this fosters interdependence, an awareness of one's errors or inattention, and a resolve to improve in the time remaining. It is not "me," it is "us," the team, that is working toward an important goal. How the individual contributes to the goal is usually decided by the team, or the coach on behalf of the team, not by the individual.

As a boy, I was always told by my coaches that teams playing like a bunch of individuals were racked by dissension and notable for failing to be regular winners. The coaches were usually right, I saw.

And I came to realize that the games I played as a young man had prepared me in an important way for the more serious "games" of adulthood. Team sports had given me an understanding of the various kinds of strengths and weaknesses of my fellow man, as well as my own. I knew back-stabbing, and I knew loyalty. I knew the personal pleasure of making a small, but important contribution to a team win, and I knew the personal agonies of making small, but critical errors that spelled defeat. I came to understand the importance of authority of discipline and to realize that taking personal risks meant being a bum-about as often as you were a hero.

Everything was a learning experience—even if I didn't realize it then—that was far more important than the games I played, or the final scores (now long forgotten).

WOMEN MISSED OUT

As I grew older, and noticed that few women held important positions at the university, in state government, and in big business, I began to think that one key reason for their absence was that they "hadn't learned to play the game." The rules of adult "games" were learned by men when they were boys on teams while girls watched and cheered from the sidelines, or prepared for "the social events" afterwards.

I'm not a management expert, or a psychologist, but that is what I started thinking about the situation years ago when women began their "consciousness-raising" demonstrations. Nothing I've seen in the ensuing years has made me change my mind.

Women had not fought for a position on the American Legion baseball team and then had to come home one day and tell parents, brothers and neighborhood buddies that they hadn't made the final cut. They hadn't missed a free throw with no time left on the clock and the score tied and then been forced to live with that failure for the rest of the year. They hadn't made a stupid remark to a referee and been embarrassed in front of classmates, relatives and friends. They did not have to live for months with the insults of an insensitive coach.

In short, as youngsters, women hadn't faced the type of adversity that would be so much a part of life in the "real world." Team sports, if nothing else, are great training for the rigors of adulthood and women had missed out on years of conditioning.

The competition that exists in the workaday world was simulated 12 months a year from the time I was 10 years old until I had finished college. Sure, it was labeled recreation and everyone played by certain rules, but it was an environment that prepared you for toil and trouble ahead when your skills and mental attitudes really count.

And, of course, the joys of companionship in competitive events helped ease the strain of constant competition. You came to recognize the people of quality and character, and to identify the idiots. You came to appreciate friends, and to reward them, and to rely on them. This "locker-room mentality; if you will, was not duplicated in activities of young women.

You learned to be kind, and to be tough, and to understand as you grew older that human society necessitated you to have a certain amount of both qualities. You learned how unfair some things were in life—a coach who played favorites, or an injury that prevented you from doing your best at critical times. And you learned in time to live with such injustice, even if you felt cheated by a fellow human, or by fate.

Living and training for common goals with one another, and competing for the "prizes" with one another, is what life is all about. The better we prepare for it in our youth the better we as individuals can meet the challenges of building a society we are all proud of, one that is tough, but fair, competitive, but harmonious.

THE CHANGING SCENE
As I look over the sporting scene this spring, I see more women engaged in team sports than ever before—basketball, softball, and volleyball, for example—and more young men "doing their own thing" than ever before. I wonder what this change will mean in the years ahead?

Still having a bit of the young boy in me, I sometimes remember the silly day-dreams of boyhood. Such dreams included pitching in the major leagues, although I never was outstanding among my peers as a young man. My playing days are long past. Baseball ended in my mid-20s, and fastpitch softball ended a few years ago.

Yet, spring brings back the old feelings. So, there I was a few days ago cranking up to throw my "famous" round-house curve ball to a friend (as I would have for the Tigers if only I had been "discovered"). But as I snapped my wrist in releasing the ball, the pain in my shoulder was so intense that I yelled out loud, startling everyone in the area.

The curve ball that I formerly got over the plate pitch-after-pitch (unfortunately, not with a lot of speed) will never be thrown again. It's gone the way of the touch football pass and the hook shot in pick-up basketball games. But I don't think it matters any more. In the past few years I've learned why the games were important, and that's all I really need now. As big-time sports become more and more complicated by economics and politics, and I become less and less of a fan.

But for the youth of the country, I think team sports remain critical in their development as citizens in a complex society. And I'm not talking about the elite athletes who play Big Ten football, or Olympic hockey. I'm talking about games played with rules, officials, scoreboards, teammates, and opponents. And a person might be a good or bad athlete, and there might be crowds, or just a handful of friends watching. The important thing is to play and to learn from the experience.

And every spring, as we all are renewed by the warming weather, I will remember just how much I miss the games played as part of a team and how well they prepared me for the stresses and the joys of adulthood.

200 people attend retirement party for hospital worker

On April 10 Little Traverse Hospital honored Peg Spencer with a retirement party after 24 years of service. Approximately 200 people attended the party held from 2-4 p.m. in the hospital dining room, enjoying refreshments of punch and tea and two beautifully decorated cakes. Peg received many lovely gifts from friends. The hospital presented her with a framed picture of a train, one from a collection of those depicting the Petoskey area in the early 1900s. This particular picture was especially meaningful to Peg because her father was with the Pennsylvania Railroad at that time.

Walloon Lake drive captain Chris Robinson, Esther Simpson, Ida Mae Sarasin, Dorothy Goodwin, Carol Hudson and Leona Griffin made a double-bed comforter which will be donated to benefit the Charlevoix County Cancer Society drive.

Quilt donated to cancer drive

When Charlevoix County kicks off its 1980 American Cancer Society fund drive April 30, the Walloon Lake unit will be prepared. A number of local women have been busy piecing and tying a double-bed size comforter which will be donated to the benefit of the Cancer Society.

The quilt will be given away May 17, in conjunction with a bake sale to be held at the Village General Store from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Door to door canvassing will begin May 1 and, according to Mrs. Robinson, Charlevoix County has set a $16,000 goal for the year. The funds support a loan closet for equipment needed by cancer patients in the home and also provide financial assistance for expense not covered by insurance.

As a new service this year, canvassers will be prepared to tell about seven safeguards against cancer. This program supplements the already existing education campaign dealing with seven danger signals, says Mrs. Robinson, who also serves as vice-president of the Charlevoix County board of the American Cancer Society.

Cancer kickoff slated for Wednesday

The Charlevoix County unit of the American Cancer Society will hold its annual Cancer Crusade Kickoff get-together, Wednesday, April 30, at 1 p.m., at Boyne Mountain's Deer Lake Beach House.

All cancer crusade volunteers and anyone interested in participating in the crusade are urged to attend.

Dr. Mitchell Carey of East Jordan will be the featured speaker and two films, "You Make a Difference" and "Special Days" will also be shown.

"The purpose of our crusade is two-fold. We want to help save people's lives by teaching them about cancer, and we hope these same people will play a part in saving the lives of others through their support of American Cancer Society programs with contributions," said Vivian Woodcock of Boyne City. Mrs. Woodcock is this year's crusade chairperson.

Crusade volunteers will distribute pamphlets which emphasize cancer's seven warning signals, during the crusade which will take place during the month of May in Charlevoix County.

"Nearly one-third of all cancer patients survive the disease," Mrs. Woodcock said. "But through early detection and treatment, the American Cancer Society estimates 50 percent could be saved. That's why we consider our crusade a vital service to residents in Charlevoix County."

Anyone desiring further information about the crusade may call Mrs. Woodcock at 582-2604.

In small offices, secretaries are much more than typists

In the battleground of an office, the secretary is on the front line. She's the one to send a client to the right person in an office and she's in charge of handling business affairs other than typing and answering the phone.

When the boss is away, many times she's in charge. And not too many office affairs are missed under the watchful, efficient, eagle eye of the office secretary.

The secretary is the public relations person for an office. She (The Press found no male secretaries in the area) is the first person people deal with when they walk in the office or call on the phone.

So aside from clerical skills, a secretary has to be personable.

Here's what some secretaries say about their job duties, bosses and qualifications:

Janet Koontz, secretary in the executive offices of the East Jordan Iron Works, thinks her boss would probably say she nags him.

"Nag, nag, nag. That's what I have to do to make sure he gets bills and letters out on time. A lot of my time is spent making sure things keep moving and get done."

Koontz works for four members of the board of directors in the executive office. She also does clerical work for foremen, an accounting office and all of the Iron Works' internal memos. "You work wherever you're needed around here," she said.

When asked about the stereotype of a secretary sitting at her desk reading a magazine and filing her nails, Koontz said, "I don't even have a nail file. My job keeps me very busy. There's a lot of deadline work which has to be met and things sometimes get hectic."

Ruth V. Wilber of the Charlevoix Properties Real Estate office of Boyne City, said tact is an important aspect of being a good secretary.

"A secretary is the public's first contact—and it's so important to make the public feel comfortable. They see me before they get to the sales people," she said.

Personal contact on the telephone is one big part of Wilber's job in the Real Estate office, she said. Wilber said she's from the "old school" of pleasing her boss, Gary Winter.

"I've learned to take as much work load off him as possible. Plus I've learned to listen first and ask questions second—that way I get things done the way he wants them done and I do them quicker."

Beside clerical duties and answering the phone, typing and taking dictation, Wilber waters the plants in the office, vacuums the floor and makes sure coffee is made before the others arrive at the office.

"In a small office you have to do a lot more than just your niche of work, but I don't mind," she said.

As both secretary and wife of the boss,

Loretta Parrish of Parrish Chevrolet in Boyne City sees enough of her husband Don.

"We get along better as a couple since I work with him than when I didn't—but I'm not sure why that's so. I know a lot of people tell me they could never work with their husband, but it works out fine for us," she said.

Parrish's duties entail answering the telephone, handling the office banking, doing payroll and directing customers to the proper salesperson or service representative. "I really enjoy working here and I can't think of anywhere else I'd rather work," she said.

She admitted that being the wife of the boss does have its advantages. "If I want to take an afternoon off, I can usually manage to get off without any trouble," she said.

Another secretary and wife of the boss, Shirley Mathers of Bob Mathers Ford, Boyne City, said it's different being an employee and having a hand in the business too. "I get involved in a lot more decisions than if I weren't the boss' wife," she said.

Corrine Fisher of Ben Schenck and Associates Real Estate of East Jordan, said here job keeps her quite independent of other people working in the office.

"I keep the office going," she said. "Mr. (Ben) Schenck is gone from the office a lot because of his job and I run the office while he's gone. But when he's here I also have to remind him of his appointments and keep the office running smoothly," she said.

One secretary who has the responsibility of making sure city government functions run smoothly is Von Seamon at Boyne City City Hall.

Her title is "administrative secretary" and her three-page job description boils down to her being the liaison between the public and the city administration. Seamon has to know how all of the city departments are run. She's an assistant when it comes time for the city treasurer to send out property tax notices, she sends out the water bills, takes care of the marina docking fees and manages the gasoline supply for the city airport.

These and other duties are added to her clerical work of typing, answering the phone and dealing with the public.

One interesting phone call Seamon had was when a man whose last name is Boyne, call City Hall wanting to know the history of Boyne City. He manages a Playboy Club and thought it would be interesting to find out if somehow he and the city were related. "I don't know if he ever found the answer," she said.

People also call wanting to know what the weather is like "up north," or what activities are planned here, she said.

She also has to deal with an occasional irate citizen questioning a bill or why a city department handled a situation the way it did.

"My role when someone comes in to complain is to try to get them to understand the city's side of it, even if they still go away mad," she said.

"Being a secretary, whether it's here or anywhere else, is mind-boggling.

People wouldn't believe all the situations we have to handle and all the little things which go into being a good secretary."

But just ask any boss, he knows.

Step back into the past--hear barbershoppers May 3

BY DIANNE MURRAY

Want to step back into the past and listen to some good, old-time barbershop music? Then don't miss the Bush League Barbershop contest Saturday, May 3, at Boyne City High School.

This year's program, which includes afternoon quartet contests and singing at night by the top quartets and the Boyne City Snow Belt Chorus, is a tribute to chorus member Loton Willson.

Willson was an original member of the Boyne City barbershop chapter, when it began in 1944. In 1945 the chapter was named the Boyne City Snow Belt chorus and that same year Willson started the Bush League Contest.

Approximately 12 novice quartets from Michigan and Canada will compete against other quartets, starting at 2 p.m.

The big variety show will start at 8 p.m. and will feature the top quartet and runner-up quartet from the afternoon program and songs written or arranged by Willson will be sung by the 33-member Snow Belt Chorus.

Also featured will be the Black Velvet quartet (last year's quartet champs) and the Crosstown Exchange barbershop quartet.

There will be an after-glow with quartet singing and hors d'oeuvres at The Dilworth Hotel following the evening program.

The all-events ticket is $10; afternoon contest ticket price is $2.50 and tickets for the evening show are $2.50 in advance or $3 at the door.

Some of the songs in tribute to Willson include "That Old Home Town of Mine," and "Old Mill Stream."

There are 33 men in the Snow Belt Chorus and they travel to Boyne City for weekly practices from Mackinaw City, Indian River, Wolverine, East Jordan, Charlevoix and Petoskey to sing in the chorus.

"Barbershop singing is a school of music all on its own. It gets in your blood and you can't get rid of it," said chorus director Bob Tracy of Mackinaw City.

Either you like barbershop singing, or you don't, he said, and it takes a lot of work and hard practice to sing a song to Tracy's perfection.

"You can't fool my ear," Tracy told members at a recent practice. "I have to sing all four parts and I know what each part is supposed to sound like."

A pitch pipe is used to keep the tenors, leads, baritones and basses in tune. The pitch pipe is a round harmonica-type instrument that has all the notes on the scale, including half-notes.

As director of the Boyne City chorus for two years, and director of other choruses for 34 years, Tracy said: "My job is to teach the men to sing. Over the years I've learned hundreds of techniques to teach people to sing the 'perfect' chord. My reward is when that chorus is up on the stage and they hit a difficult note just right, you can see the beam on each man's face from the back of the room. It's great!"

Willson agreed that barbershop singing is difficult, yet rewarding. "I wouldn't have stayed in it so long," he said, "if it wasn't so fun."

Singing in a barbershop quartet or chorus is difficult, he said, because of the wide range of notes in most barbershop songs.

To help judge the afternoon quartet contest certified judges from international competition will be on hand.

Tickets are available from any local barbershop chorus member. For more information, call chairman Dick Wheeler at 536-2289 or Loton Willson at 582-7172.

Bob Tracy, director of the Boyne City Snow Belt Chorus, uses a pitch pipe to get chorus members in tune for the next song. The Bush League program, including songs sung by the Snow Belt Chorus and several guest quartets, will be held May 3 at Boyne City High School.

Ryan's Public House opening soon in BC

BOYNE CITY - Ryan's Public House, a bar featuring entertainment by folksinger Sean Ryan, will be opening soon.

Ryan and partner Nolan Roe bought what was formerly known as the Homestead Inn on old state road east of the city limits in February. They have been remodeling the bar since that time.

They are unsure of the exact opening date because several inspections must be made by building officials and state Liquor Control Commission officials. If those inspections are made soon, the bar could be open by this weekend, Ryan said.

When it opens, the bar will have hours from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. until summer, when it will also be open for lunches.

Ryan, who was born in Ireland, has remodeled the bar to look like an old Irish pub.

Boyne festival featured

BOYNE CITY's Mushroom Festival is featured in the April issue of Michigan Living - AAA Motor News.

Boyne's 21st annual event is one of three festivals highlighted in an article titled "Michigan Mushroom Festivals," written by former Boyne City resident Kay Severinsen. Mushroom hunters will invade the city May 10 and 11 in search of the elusive morels.

Auto Club's magazine is mailed monthly to the 800,000 homes of Michigan AAA members.

Play production to debut May 1

"See How They Run," a funny English farce by the British playwright Phillip King, is the final production for the season by the Little Traverse Civic Theatre.

The play is scheduled for May 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, and 10 at the Petoskey High School Auditorium. Call the high school for ticket information.

Bass chorus members Bob Martin, Karl Mueller and Ed Lotsepelch give it all they've got at a recent practice. The barbershoppers will present the 34th Bush League contest May 3 with a tribute to Loton Willson. Several other area quartets will also be featured.

May 1 is bike day

May 1 has been declared National Bicycle Day, and what better way to take advantage of northern Michigan's beautiful spring than aboard a quiet, smooth-rolling bicycle.

Thanks to the efforts of Sen. Richard Allen of Lansing, the Michigan 4-H Youth Program and a joint resolution from the Michigan legislature, May 1-8, has been officially declared Michigan Bicycle Week.

According to Dr. Bonita Dostal Neff, Michigan 4-H Youth Program bicycle specialist, cycling has become a popular sport and mode of transportation. "Today, more bicycles are purchased every year than automobiles," she said.

But with more cyclists on the road, there's a greater need for bicycle safety and training, in order to help motorist and cyclist peacefully co-exist on roadways.

"The secret to getting the most use and enjoyment out of your bicycle safely is to learn the rules of the road and safety precautions and maneuvers," she said.

Neff recommends anyone interested in learning more about bicycle safety should contact the sheriff's department or the city police department.

4-H horse club needs funds for arena

The Charlevoix County 4-H Range Riders are seeking donations to help pay for the horse arena located at the Bieganowski farm on the Boyne City-East Jordan Road.

Other long range plans include electricity, water and restroom facilities for the arena. 4-H members will be collecting donations starting next week in East Jordan, Boyne Falls, Boyne City and Charlevoix.

A goal of $1,000 has been set by the 4-H members, and organizer Shirley Crozier said "Any donation, small or large, will be appreciated. It is my hope that this horse arena project is so near a reality that the residents of the area will be supportive."

4-H members, their leaders and parents raised money from a booth at the Boyne City Community Education art fair. The 4-H Range Riders will host a benefit horse show June 1 at 9 a.m. at the Bieganowski farm to help raise money.

Anyone who has contributed to the arena will be admitted free of charge to the show.

If funds are not collected by June 1, another benefit show will be held June 8.

To donate money, call Shirley Crozier at 582-7654, Bob or Sue Sherman at 536-7915 or Patricia Howard at 582-7485.

Mortgage Is Not A Loan

Contrary to what most people think, a mortgage is not a loan. It is the pledging of property to a creditor as security for the payment of a debt. This simply means that, if you don't repay the loan as required, the lender can foreclose the loan and take over the property in satisfaction of the debt.

This is nothing to be frightened of. People make mortgage loans every day. Few people can avoid it if they want to own a home. It is just important to fully understand what a mortgage is, and the obligation it entails.

Financing is a specialized subject, therefore it's important for you to be candid with your Realtor about your family requirements, particularly your finances. He is not there to pry. He is there to help. And the more he knows, the more helpful he can be.
