

MESC office to open Oct. 6 in Boyne City

BOYNE CITY - Starting Oct. 6, residents of this area won't have to drive to Petoskey to get their unemployment checks.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission this week announced that a temporary payment office will be opening in Boyne City.

Location of the Boyne City MESC office will be 210 S. Lake St., between Gil Coon's Furniture and the Boyne Cinema.

City and Chamber of Commerce officials have been working to get a payment office in Boyne City for several months.

Besides time, convenience and gas saving factors, local officials hope that the local MESC office will keep area residents spending more of their money in Boyne City.

Service from the Boyne City office will be by appointment only, according to DeWayne Cox, MESC branch manager for Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

People from the Boyne area will automatically be given appointments at the Boyne City office, he said.

But anyone who is applying for unemployment benefits for the first time—or who is reapplying after not receiving benefits—must file for compensation at the Petoskey office.

Cox noted that the temporary office was approved because 40 percent of the people using the Petoskey MESC office are from the Boyne City, Boyne Falls and East Jordan area.

Teacher talks still at impasse

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN—On Friday, it looked like a breakthrough had finally been reached in the three-week long teachers' strike.

But the collective high hopes of the community were dampened by Tuesday night after two more long negotiating sessions failed to bring about a settlement.

The high hopes were brought about because the teachers agreed late Friday afternoon to return to work on Monday.

This apparent breakthrough was a result of a meeting between Circuit Court Judge Martin Breighner and teacher and school board attorneys and representatives.

To head off a court hearing scheduled for Monday, Breighner called both sides together in an attempt to promote a compromise.

Breighner said Monday he did not want to comment on what transpired at the Friday meeting because "The situation is too delicate."

"We're holding our breath," he said.

If a settlement isn't reached on Wednesday night, the teachers say they will return to the picket lines on Thursday. If that happens, a court hearing will probably be held on Thursday.

Breighner would hear evidence from both the teachers and the school board before making a decision on whether to grant an injunction ordering the teachers back to work.

Teacher Association President Rodger Ransom said he was disappointed that the school board did not make any significant change in its negotiating position after last week's meeting with Judge Breighner.

Standing firm "has been their pattern all along," Ransom said. "But we thought that after talking to the judge the ball might start rolling again."

"The indication from the judge and the school board attorney was that there would be significant movement if we would voluntarily return to classes. That was part of the reason we agreed to go back."

"I thought this was an opportunity for this thing to get settled," Ransom said. "But I'm not overly optimistic after (Monday) night."

But school board President Mary Jason said the judge did not force either side to change its positions on the issues.

"He didn't ask anyone to do anything they didn't want to do," Jason said. "There were no demands. It was a request on his part, and he left it up to the two sides."

"He asked the teachers to go back to work and the board was to meet over the weekend to reassess their position. Then we were to negotiate after school on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. If there was movement to be made, he hoped it would be made then," Jason said.

The board met for 2 1/2 hours on Sunday, reviewed its positions on all issues, and re-prioritized some of the issues, Jason said. But little change in position was evident.

She said the teachers' union is just as hesitant to change its positions. "Their position on what they must have is essentially the same as it was in June," Jason said.

After a three-week teachers' strike, East Jordan students were in school for the first time Monday—but the strike could start again if a settlement isn't reached soon.

Boyne Falls board may pick supt. Monday

BOYNE FALLS - The school board will be visiting the three candidates this week who have been selected out of 52 applicants for the Boyne Falls superintendent post.

It may take both Wednesday and Thursday to see candidates Thomas Rossler in Akron-Fairgrove School District, Ray Mouch in Unionville-Sebewaing, and Tedd Morris in Springfield.

Following the visits, the board will have a special meeting, possibly Monday night, for a decision. Definite date and hour for this meeting will be posted by Thursday.

School principal and acting superintendent, Carl Moser said negotiations continue between the school board and teachers. Everything is "still open for negotiation," he said, but added that definite progress was made at the last meeting on Sept. 16.

The next meeting will be Thursday.

New owners have old ties to Depot

BY KATHY JOHNSON

Tony Williams, sister Lyssa Williams-Truitt and her husband Glenn Truitt are planning to celebrate on Oct. 2. That's because, all things working out, on Oct. 1, they will open their "new" restaurant, The Depot.

Back some 15 years ago Tony worked for his dad, Charles "Chuck" Williams at the depot building, loading freight. Williams was employed, at that time, by the Boyne City, Gaylord, and Alpena Railroad and the depot was strictly a freight building.

In 1970 when Hollis Baker purchased the railway and changed the name to the Boyne City Railway Company, Williams was named vice-president of that line. The new railway was a tourist train and after it began running Williams suggested that the depot become a gift and coffee shop for the tourists.

Plans and remodeling were done to make this change but because of fuel shortages, the tourist line closed and the gift and coffee shop never opened.

In 1976 the railroad was bought by a group of Boyne City residents and the depot was also sold to Dennis Caughey. The depot was eventually opened as a restaurant but closed earlier this summer following the Arttrain exhibit.

At that time Tony, Lyssa and Glenn made arrangements to purchase The Depot, but with one delay and another the opening dates were pushed along all summer.

Prior to moving back to the area, Lyssa and her husband Glenn, who is from Colorado Springs, were residents of Concord, Calif. The Truitts were both employed by the Magic Pan Crepery where Lyssa was manager and Glenn a bartender and waiter.

A 1965 graduate of Boyne City High, Lyssa said, "I'm really happy to be here. It's just so nice here." She and Glenn both indicated it was great to be away from the rush of the city and back (for Lyssa) to Northern Michigan.

Plans for the restaurant are to open on Oct. 1 with their breakfast and luncheon menu. Hours will be from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday. Tony and Glenn will be waiting tables and Lyssa will be in the back cooking up homemade soups and pies, sandwiches, and some special brunch items.

The restaurant will be decorated in a railroad motif. "We've got a lot of old railroad pictures and memorabilia from the 28 years that our dad spent with the railroad," said Lyssa, "and we're going to be looking for a lot more."

Future plans for the restaurant include opening evenings and a "hoped for" liquor license.

New owners of The Depot, Glenn Truitt, Lyssa Williams-Truitt, and Tony Williams, admire the "new" stove which will be placed in the restaurant in time for their grand opening scheduled for Oct. 1.

Ballet group to visit EJ, Charlevoix

A chance to see ballet first hand and to ask the dancers themselves what it's all about is coming to the East Jordan and Charlevoix schools the morning of Oct. 1.

The dancers will be parts of the Dayton Ballet Company, performing in Petoskey that evening and also on Oct. 2, both nights at 8 p.m.

Crooked Tree Art Council is sponsoring the visit of the ballet, and while tickets must be purchased for the evening performances, the demonstrations at both Charlevoix and East Jordan schools are free.

Although originally scheduled for the East Jordan high school, the morning demonstration is now planned for the Civic Center at 10:30 a.m. for students and teachers and the public, as well.

Dancers from the troop of professionals will do excerpts from their concert performance, discuss ballet, and answer questions in an informal give-and-take program suitable to a wide range of interests.

Their concert program includes five acts, the first, "Concertina" is done in the manner of "old court dances but with contemporary movement." One number is a lively comment on the dance form, called "Ballet a la Carte." Others tell a story or are expressive of moods.

Originating centuries ago in sword play demonstrations in the royal courts of France, ballet demands such unusual control of the body that it has been used by basketball coaches for training the players.

Following their Petoskey performances the 16 young dancers will continue their tour which takes them to cities and colleges all over the United States.

BC has a beach...on paper

Boyne City has its new beach—on paper, at least, following final approval of plans by the city commission at its noon meeting, Monday.

"Endorsement of the plan does not imply we have the money to do it," Commissioner Catherine Jessup said immediately following the vote.

"It's something we can do by stages," noted Commissioner Martin Paul.

The design for the beach includes new designing of Veteran's Memorial Park as well. The various agencies represented on the advisory committee reached a final plan after review of the three plans from Johnson, Johnson, and Roy, required by the Coastal Zone Management grant, and three more based on revisions suggested by the committee.

Viewing the lake from one's car will be best from the circular drive planned for Sunset Park, across the river. With the beach on the lakefront, cars at Memorial Park will be confined to a parking area, and walkways and play areas will be the focus.

Alma College gridders

Two Boyne City High School graduates will be suited up for Alma College in football action Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome. Junior defensive tackle Dan Schmittlidel and freshman defensive back Mitch Moore will take on Michigan Tech at 12:30 p.m. In the opener of the first Michl-Dome Football Classic, Schmittlidel will be a starter for Alma for the third consecutive year. The second game of the doubleheader starts at 4:30 p.m. with Northern Michigan University facing Wayne State University.

Emotionally impaired still get help

On Aug. 21 when the ax fell for the second time on East Jordan's school budget, Project LEAP was one of the items that fell to the ground.

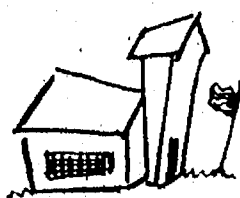

But that doesn't mean further consideration is not being given to children in school whose emotion problems keep them from progressing.

Tom Caldwell, who is director of special education at Char-Em Intermediate Schools, said during the two years East Jordan had classes for the needs of these students, the school was repaid by the state and federal governments, but not till the end of the year. The problem for the budget was fetching up the money at the start.

On short notice Caldwell said "Let's try one other option"—that of hiring someone to help the students, one at a time, with their assignments—someone who would also help them simply get along in the school with teachers and other students.

Project LEAP, which would have been in its third year under teacher Michael Distlerath, was a "center program," that is, students from Central Lake, Ellsworth, and Boyne City, were gathered into the program at East Jordan. Last year there were 10 students.

Now, those from other schools will return to their own districts, and for the

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

year, at least, East Jordan students will go to regular classes, with time given for the one-on-one assistance planned for them.

"If it doesn't work, it will be the responsibility of the local district to find a solution," Caldwell said.

Boyne City elementary school is beginning something quite similar with what they call a home-school coordinator. East Jordan, however, is staying with the original concentration on middle school students, following a "needs survey" which showed ages 12 to 14 at the top of the list. They do hope someday to be able to expand to the elementary level.

The idea is to help the youngsters who, regardless of teacher concern, disrupt classes and themselves, too, because of emotional outbursts, irrepressible activity, or it's opposite, continuous withdrawal.

Caldwell spoke reassuringly about them. "There's not an abandonment at all."

Tom Vanderwall

WHAT IS AN EPITAPH?

Generally, an epitaph is a phrase or verse inscribed upon a monument or marker. It frequently is indicative of the deceased's wit, character, philosophy, occupation or personality. Fifty famous literary and theatrical persons of the day were asked to write their own epitaphs by a popular magazine in the mid-twenties, "Vanity Fair." Among the responses were these examples of epitaphs with a humorous twist:

Here lies

W. C. FIELDS

"I would rather be living in Philadelphia"

JASCHA HEIFETZ

"Killed in action by a flying staccato"

"Age 23 years, 7 months, 30 days.

So, here are lying his remains;

No more concerts, no more trains."

"Here lies the body of

HARRY HIRSHFIELD

If not -- notify Ginsberg

undertakers, at once."

Epitaphs can be serious, sad or perfectly factual, by giving dates and family relationships, such as this example: "GEORGE STONE

1910 - 1978

Loving father, devoted grandfather, loved by all who knew him."

Garden club wins state award

BY TRISH WRIGHT

For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of birds is come,
and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.

SONG OF SOLOMON, CHAPTER 1
VERSES 11, 12

Many of the flowers that appeared in Boyne City this past summer were a result of the Boyne Valley Garden Club's commitments to make Boyne City a more attractive place to live or visit.

The Boyne Valley Garden Club has learned that it will be honored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan for their conservation and beautification efforts in Boyne City. They were chosen to be winners of the "Keep Michigan Beautiful Award" by the Federation.

Allis McClain, president of the club, will receive the "Keep Michigan Beautiful" plaque at the official presentation at the Hilton Inn in Lansing, Oct. 28. "What is so unique about our club winning the award is that we have been chartered for only one year," says McClain.

The Boyne Valley Garden Club was founded by Violet Mangios, a Boyne City resident who was also instrumental in chartering the club with the state federated garden clubs in 1979.

Membership in the club has grown. The first organizational meeting was held at the McClain home and attended by only seven people. There are approximately 36 members now. McClain describes the club members as alive and enthusiastic. "No one holds back. We all know what a beautiful location we live in and we all work together to improve it."

Although the Michigan Federation of Garden Clubs advises its chartered members not to have a flower show in their first year; the Boyne Valley Garden Club ignored the suggestion and hosted a successful show in July of 1979 at the Boyne City Presbyterian Church. "It was an ideal setting," says McClain, the stained glass windows in the church provided a beautiful backdrop for our arrangements. Connie Van Hoesen set up the ideal breakfast table and Nellie Flodquist made a beautiful water fountain. A professional judge from the Federation came and we had over 100 people sign the guest book."

The Boyne Valley Garden Club works with the Planning Commission on special projects. "Our special projects committee meets with the planning board on areas that we think need improvement."

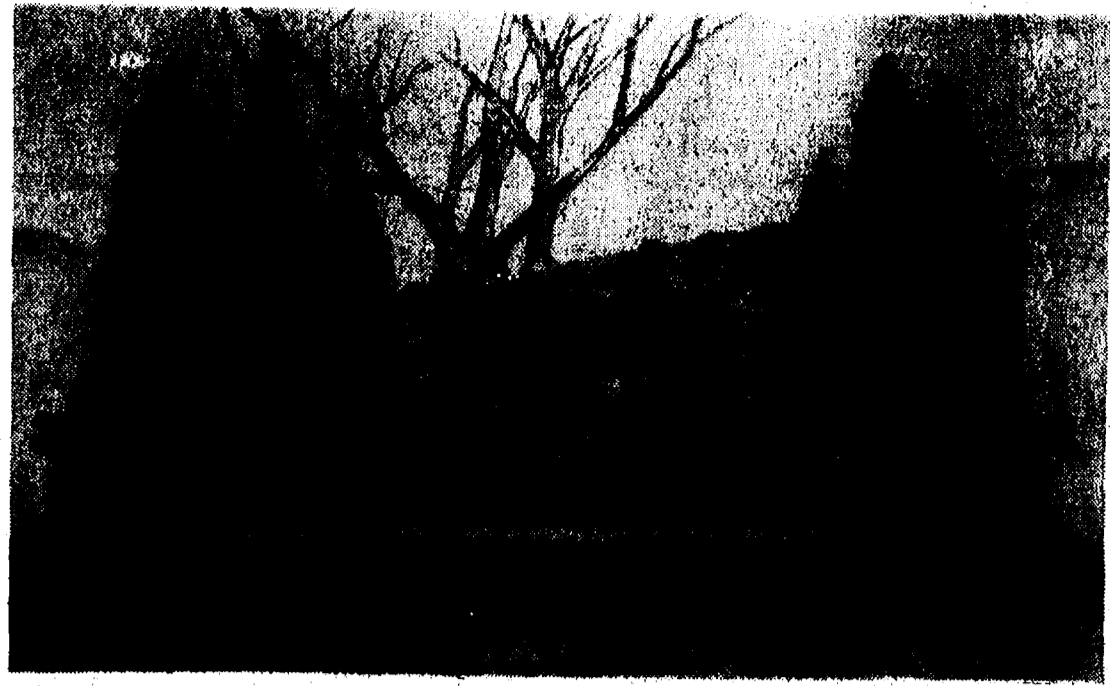

Allis McClain, once a professor of art, has completed the prospects for several Garden Club projects. Her paintings of the Lake Street Bridge with the trees and flowers planted by the club will be framed and hung in one of the city buildings. Other true-to-scale prospectuses have been completed for the fountain in Old City Park and the Chamber of Commerce.

"We are indebted to the bank, Rotary Club and the citizens of Boyne City who have helped us with our fund raising efforts. We had a successful bake sale over the Fourth of July weekend and our Christmas green sale made some of our projects possible."

Objectives and activities of the Boyne Valley Garden Club are: conservation, flower arranging, horticulture, civic beautification, landscape design, garden therapy, and garden centers.

The club meets on the fourth Wednesday of every month in the Boyne City Public Library. Anyone interested in joining the Boyne Valley Garden Club is urged to attend the Wednesday meeting.

The Garden Club's plans for the Lake Street Bridge.

The fountain in Old City Park will become a large flowerbed when the garden club plans are realized.

Club president was an art professor

BY TRISH WRIGHT

"A picture is like a stage. Everything is in harmony but there must be a central character, a prima donna," says Allis McClain, former art teacher and professor of art at the University of Chicago.

Allis McClain stands in her well appointed living room like a prima donna on stage, surrounded by beautiful props and settings. But the props in the McClain home are real.

Allis re-designed the house when she and her husband John bought it in 1963. Treasures from far away, exotic lands grace the niches and shelves that store classic books and objets d'art.

This gracious lady with the soft-spoken intelligent voice commands your attention while she recounts the history of an African mask or Indian balls of ivory.

It is easy to understand why this woman is so invaluable to the Boyne Valley Garden Club over which she presides. "To have been elected president of this club is such a privilege. I love the people here and we have such a beautiful spot on the lake."

Allis has proven her enthusiasm for Boyne City by sketching the prospectus for several civic beautification projects. Plans for the renovation of the Chamber of Commerce, the water fountain in Old City Park and the Lake Street bridge have been drawn and detailed by Allis.

At the age of six, Allis was sent to study art at the Chicago Art Institute. She earned a master's degree in art from the University of Chicago and the Chicago Art Institute.

While still a student of art, Allis was chosen to apply her artistic talent to the Chicago Opera under the tutelage of Julian Dove. "I have a certificate for critic teaching," says Allis, "and enough credits for a doctor's degree, but I never bothered to get it."

Allis taught the principles of art to students of all ages. "When I taught, my classroom was full of all the materials that the students could use." She believes—"when the curiosity of a child is met, then that child is free to think of other things, to become inspired, to create."

Glancing around the canvas covered walls of the McClain home, it's easy to see where Allis drew much of her inspiration. "My husband and I traveled around the world four times and we went on fifteen cruises." After a moment's reflection, she adds, "I have so many memories."

And then she draws your attention to the painting of a little boy taking a siesta. "I painted that on one of our trips to Mexico. This little boy was asleep. He didn't even know I was painting him..."

There is a touch of an anthropologist about Allis. She speaks of her experiences in foreign lands and the history of the art in those various cultures as Margaret Mead might lecture on the Samoans.

"Perhaps the first art geniuses were the people who had to pick up a stone to ward off wild animals. If they threw the stone skillfully enough, or drew a picture of the beast expertly, they believed that the god in the stone would be pleased and would help to protect them."

She points out the similarities of a Peruvian, stone bird to Rodin's "The Thinker," and then shows you a bird from the Easter Islands that resembles the Peruvian sculpture.

She maintains that "the art from different cultures may have similarities, but somehow each culture remains individual."

The conversation drifts to more modern artists. "Rembrandt is marvelous and Picasso I understand now. He slights the real anatomy of a person. He gets beyond the physical and into the emotional. There is power and feeling in his art."

There is also power and feeling in the art of Allis McClain. She can capture the richness of Rembrandt in her painting of a pouting Mexican girl as well as the experiencing of a moment in her painting of a swan taking wing.

Not only does Allis paint for herself but she shares her artistic ability with the organizations with which she is involved. She paints the posters, ribbons and signs for the Boyne Valley Garden Club and she has won prizes for seven years for the floats she has created for the East Jordan Garden Club.

"I do something artistic everyday. I feel compelled to paint. When you look beyond the physical to the emotional, you have captured something beautiful."

Breastfeeding talks to start

Mothers who wish to breastfeed their babies will find encouragement and information at the Charlevoix La Leche League.

The group announces the beginning of a new series of four discussion meetings. The first meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday Oct. 8, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The name La Leche is Spanish and means "the milk." A non-profit, non-sectarian organization, the League's purpose is to help encourage "good mothering through breastfeeding."

The group will meet the second Wednesday of each month at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. During a series of four meetings, the group informally discusses different phases of breastfeeding. Topic for the first meeting will be advantages of breastfeeding to mother and child.

All women who are interested in nursing their babies are invited, as are their babies. You need not be pregnant or even have a family to attend.

Several area women hold service positions within the group. Treasurer is Faye Miller; refreshment chairperson, Debbie Parlor; librarian, Sue Dewitt; reprint librarian, Dwan Hard; communicator, Jan Vandervail.

Other services the league offers include a lending library of books on childbirth, child care, and breastfeeding. Phone counseling is also available.

La Leche League believes breastfeeding gives the best possible start in good mothering and helps to develop and deepen the close relationship between a mother and her child. For more information call Jenny Bellairs at 547-6255.

Boyne looking for new treasurer

BOYNE CITY - City Treasurer Herb Herriman has left his post because of a "career advancement."

He will become the new director of management and budget in Bay County.

City Manager Tim Clifton said he is already advertising in professional journals to find a replacement for Herriman. He is looking for someone, preferably with government experience, who is a certified public accountant or someone who has a college degree in accounting.

Resumes are to be submitted by Oct. 15, and interviews will be conducted after that.

Evaluating the resumes will be a committee composed of Clifton, City Clerk Tom Garlock, local banker Steve Woodcock and Rocky Freed, a representative of the city's auditing firm.

Herriman, treasurer here for about two years, said he will miss the Boyne area.

He labeled the natural beauty of the area as some of the best in Michigan and also lauded its inhabitants.

"The people here are terrific. They're very honest with themselves. The small community setting gave me the opportunity to really meet them," he said.

The Midland native also praised his fellow workers, especially City Manager Tim Clifton. "The growth of the city is being managed in a sophisticated way. The comprehensive plan is an example. He (Clifton) leads the city, motivates the community."

Herriman said other highlights have been the downtown redevelopment, the addition of two banks in the past two years, the senior citizens push to pass a bond issue to help relocate city hall and the new Harborage condominium project.

Herriman said the new treasurer will need "an all-out effort" in the job. "There is no fat in our city government."

Coach controversy has lasted long enough

The Boyne City basketball coach controversy is apparently over.... finally.

It didn't exactly come to a mercifully swift ending.

It was more like a tempest that raged for awhile and eventually faded out, just as the school board knew it would.

At the risk of being accused of prolonging the coach controversy, we do hope the school board has learned a few things from the incident.

The board's biggest mistake was not telling Russ Harvey (or anyone else) exactly why he was dismissed. We hope the board will be more candid and open about such matters in the future.

If the board had said, "We don't think the coach is doing his job and here's why..." there would not have been as much prolonged criticism. Not giving reasons made the board look as if it had little basis for its action. That, more than anything, is what angered the public.

It also angered other coaches and teachers who wondered if they, too, might sometime be relieved of their extra-curricular jobs with no explanation. (This could come back to haunt the board when the teacher contract is up for renewal.)

We suspect that the whole matter became blown out of proportion when school board members listened to a few vocal "sideline quarterbacks," concluded that Harvey was incompetent and unpopular, dismissed him and then were truly surprised at the ensuing outcry.

Their Lansing lawyer told them they weren't required to give a reason for the dismissal, so they didn't—not understanding that this would further enrage those who supported the martyred coach.

Although we (and 800 people who signed petitions) didn't like the way the firing of Coach Russ Harvey was handled, a new coach is now on the job. We urge everyone in the community and on the school staff to support the new coach, Bob Taylor.

Five of seven board members were convinced—for reasons still not known—that Harvey should not be retained. Even the two board members who supported Harvey realized there was no point in extending the controversy, and they joined the other five in voting unanimously to hire Taylor.

We hope the rest of the community will follow their lead and give the new coach a chance to be his own man, to coach in his own style and to make his own mistakes.

Above all, let's remember that basketball and other school sports are games—nothing more and nothing less. Games can be taken seriously, but they need not cause year-long controversies for school boards that have much more important matters which deserve their consideration.

On the high horse...50 years ago

Since my unpleasantness of several years ago, I now fear I shall die of the stuff I'm pouring down my throat to prevent any further illness.

The gray-haired of Boyne City may recall some 50 years ago when school board members refused to do what residents thought they should. Getting upon their high horse, the residents forced a new election, recalling the school board. Taking a close look at that historic uproar, folks in East Jordan have said: "Ah, that's the way to do it." While others would be pleased if high horses were outlawed in East Jordan.

When the Social Security set yackety-yacks around the coffee table one might think there was no life before or after the Great Depression.

If you find yourself downtown at three o'clock in the morning with no money to pay for the things you do at three o'clock in the morning, do not despair. You may now go to the bank, insert a card into a slot and receive money to pay for the things you want to do at three o'clock in the morning. When I was floundering around on the fiddle-faddle side of life I used to do things at three o'clock in the morning and it didn't cost hardly anything. But when the price went up I was forced to quit and behave myself.

I read that paragraph to my wife and she raised her voice. Almost as loud as the time I was caught red-handed putting peanut butter on my pancakes.

Here's another one of those 50 year ago things: People were having their shoes half-soled, patching their pants, plugging the hole in the bottom of the tea kettle and doing other things to save money. Times were tough and classes were held to instruct folks on how to mend and fix-up.

Guy Baker, publisher of the old Boyne Citizen, was forced to make a grave decision. One of his country correspondents had written this in her weekly report of rural doings:

"The Charlevoix County agricultural agent and the home economics agent came out Saturday to give us a mattress demonstration at the Peninsula Grange Hall." In her professional reporting, she had mentioned the man and the woman's name.

Publisher Baker read it and said, "Oh, hell, let's print it."

After reading it in the paper, the Boyne City and East Jordan sewing circles chewed on that thing for the better part of the winter.

Many months ago I was exposed to the evils of condominiums along Front Street. Now as I drive by the construction work, I see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil. I can't wait to see the beautiful new buildings and lovely landscaping along the shore. I feel better now that I've driven the Devil from me. Not entirely, though. It pains me to see how quickly he moved to East Jordan.

Fond memories of a 'fowl' place

I enjoyed Kathy Johnson's column on her hometown of Dallas. It brought back some fond memories.

I spent a part of my school days in the Lone Star State some 50-odd years ago. I have criss-crossed it many times from Brownsville to Amarillo, El Paso to Beaumont and Dallas to Laredo.

I don't think the years have been too kind to Texas. Sure, Houston has its Gilley's, Dallas its in-spots and every one with over 100 people in its Yellow Rose Saloon.

But not a one of them could hold a candle to that grand old Chicken Ranch. That was a real Texas landmark for many, many years, and every man in the state was proud of it. It did more for the manhood of the Texas male than John Wayne and the Alamo put together.

I asked a friend what happened to it. It seems some do-gooders got together and made the state close it. He said they must have felt that free was better. They even called it a "fowl" place. It was a sad time—real sad.

One time, I had a job skinning mules up in the Panhandle when a new girl came up from Beaumont and got a job slinging hash at the local beanyery. She was a real beauty—even by Texas standards—and had a Texas drawl that stretched from way over yonder to the Pecos.

Now there was a young Yank fellow who took his meals at this place and hung around a little. He latched onto the thing of beauty pronto, and human nature being what it is, it wasn't long before... well, anyway everyone knows that young Yankee fellows are somewhat impetuous at times.

This prompted the girl to explain to him that she just wasn't that kind of a girl. But before she could get it said that she wasn't, she was. Boy. Howdy!

Then there was the time in Abilene... but that's another story.

Everett K. Sayles
Boyne City

Editor's note: For readers who haven't figured it out, "the old Chicken Ranch" is a house of "fowl" repute. In fact, the current Broadway hit play "The Greatest Little Whore House in Texas" (soon to be made into a movie) is based on the old Chicken Ranch.

My jeep may be messy but I'm not going to the dump

Last week I had one of those experiences that makes life interesting (and funny).

I parked my hot pink jeep in the parking lot and went into Edwards IGA in Boyne City. A few minutes later I returned to find that someone, who had purchased two sacks of crushed ice, had removed the ice and placed both empty plastic bags and the wadded up grocery sack in the front seat of my jeep.

Using my Slock Homes Detective Kit there are a couple of things I can deduce about you, whoever you are.

A. You've got a lot of nerve. I'm always hesitant to open someone's car door to turn off their lights or roll up their window in the rain. You removed the ice and emptied it into a cooler of some type and then placed both bags and the sack in my car. Now that takes nerve.

B. You can read and are a public spirited citizen. This is obvious. As a good citizen you've seen the signs "Don't be a litterbug" and you were following instructions. Commendable, but...?

C. You are either lazy or in ill health.

Well, whoever you are, here's one point for you to consider. My car may look like a pink trash can on wheels, BUT, I'm real fond of it.

Just because I had 60 pounds of old newspapers, a jacket, a dozen or so empty Diet Pepsi cans, two old coffee cans, and the remains of lunch in my car was no reason to think I was on the way to the dump.

As I've said before those Texans (and I'm one) are car crazy. While I applaud your desire to keep the area clean, let me suggest that should the opportunity present itself again, next time put the trash in your own car.

You can keep the environment clean, save opening my car door and not have to walk either.

And just imagine the look on your face if someone catches you trashing their car.

Kathy Johnson

Keep standing up to teachers' union

To the people of East Jordan: Congratulations to the school board, the judge, and the people who dared to stand up to the teachers union.

With such poor economic conditions an 8.65 percent increase ($1,500) is a fair salary package.

Please put the binding arbitration issue on the ballot. The people of East Jordan deserve the right to vote on the issue.

Congratulations again, board! After the N.M.E.A. moved in with their ultimatums of double digit salary increases and saber rattling regarding binding arbitration, we are glad there are those of you with the necessary grit to withstand intimidation.

Put binding arbitration to a vote

To the People of East Jordan: Congratulations to the school board and to people who dared to take on the mighty M.E.A.

The teachers should not be denied a fair wage but they should be denied the control of the schools. Maintain your control, East Jordan board and please put the matter of binding arbitration to a vote of the people.

Give everyone a few months to cool off and then a few months to discuss the relevant aspects of the issue and then let everyone vote on the matter—that's the democratic way. That's fair.

Nurses need (and deserve) respect

Rodney Dangerfield's famous line is, "I get no respect."

Nurses across the country have lately diagnosed that phrase as an understatement.

Because of this lack of respect, there has been a shortage of nurses entering the field and an alarming number of nurses who have recently dropped out of the profession.

The seriousness of this problem affects every person who comes in contact with a nurse, which includes just about everyone at some time.

According to a recent article in Newsweek (Sept. 22), the reasons for this "burnout" are stress because of sophisticated technology, long hours, low pay and dissatisfaction with the current roles of a nurse.

All of these reasons have made 25 percent of all registered nurses leave the field and opened up 90,000-100,000 nursing vacancies in hospitals.

This, of course, is bad news for the patient.

Nursing is the type of work people often associate with the Florence Nightingale image and say, "They must love what they're doing."

However, nurses rightfully don't love it when they get paid. The average annual salary for an R.N. is only about $13,000. Think about the workers who put a screw in a carburetor and get paid much more.

But a louder complaint of the nurses has been the reduction of one-on-one care with the patient caused by the increasing entanglement of the bureaucracy in the hospitals.

Tom Propotnik, former president of the California Nurses' Association says, "You fight with dietary to get a bowl of cornflakes. You fight with the laundry to get sheets. You fight with housekeeping to sweep up broken glass. The hospitals would do better if nurses were allowed to nurse."

Sure, just like in any profession, there are unqualified personnel. There are some nurses who fit this description, a small minority.

But I have to admit, I have a personal bias towards nurses.

After having perfect attendance in all four years of high school, I gradually became seriously ill during my sophomore year in college.

In December of 1972, I went to Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit where my illness was diagnosed as colitis, an inflammation of the intestine.

I am 6-foot, 2-inches tall. I remember barely walking to a scale in the hospital and seeing that I weighted only 114 pounds. I was near death.

I spent a month at Ford's, hardly aware of Christmas and New Year's during my stay.

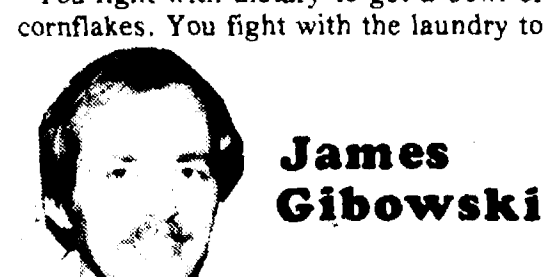

How... it seems like I was always aware of the nurses. Not only was their one-on-one care important, their conversation and encouragement were often simply enough to keep me hanging on.

I felt myself gaining strength and I was then able to leave in mid-January. Since that time I have felt better every succeeding year. Last year during a check-up with Dr. Leonard Warbasse, the doctor responsible with those nurses for my recovery, he told me my illness was nearly in complete remission.

I am convinced that the problems the nurses face today will hurt those people who find themselves in the same situation I was in eight years ago, along with the hundreds of other types of reasons for being hospitalized.

A raise in pay, shorter hours, bringing back the one-to-one contact with patients and public awareness will help the plight of the nursing profession and thus help the millions who need their services.

This will only occur if there is first "respect."

Orchards 'irresist-apple' for color

BY KATHY JOHNSON

An orgy of the five senses awaits you on a color tour of area orchards.

With the absence of rainfall this summer many of the leaves are changing color earlier and a tour of the orchards can be an entertaining and eye satisfying way of spending an afternoon.

With a look to the visually pleasing let us suggest a tour that will take you some 50 miles around the area and to four different orchards for your choice of apples, plums and cider.

Those from Boyne City, Walloon Lake and Boyne Falls may start at Advance and proceed out Ferry Road where the sumac and bittersweet vines are filled with fall reds and oranges. Take the Ironton Ferry across where those touring from Charlevoix may join us and then up the hill and back on to Ferry Road.

Wild chicory with its blue flowers covers the sides of the roads and the goldenrod is out in full blossom, take heed, you may have fever sufferers. Take a right on Pops Road and left on Novotny and then another left onto Loeb.

When you reach the flood zone turn right and then left on Black Road until you reach Ferry. Take a right on Ferry and another right on Barnard and you've reached the first stop on our orchard tour, Rosenthal's.

Rosy and David Rosenthal are open six days a week from 8 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. and offer you a variety of 30 different apples. You'll also find plums, pears and fresh cider.

The Rosenthals raise their own bees and you'll have the opportunity here to satisfy that sweet tooth with a jar or two of fresh bee-made honey. Here at Rosenthal's your sense of smell will be intoxicated with the pungent fresh aroma of apples.

After a few munches and making your selections, it's back to the car for some more countryside beauty as you take a left on Barnard to US 31, where you will take another left.

The drive to US 31 has some of the nicest color and the farmland is filled with tasseled corn and wheat. Once on US 31 you'll quickly approach Elzinga Orchards and Farm Market.

John and Phyllis Elzinga have a variety of home-grown apples and other fresh items. Here's your opportunity for a little lunch if you've taken an early trip... or a mid-afternoon snack, if not.

Sweet-smelling homemade pies, cookies, bread and doughnuts full the air with their tempting fragrances and they also serve sandwiches and ice cream. You may even want to take a pie home for later in the evening.

There's also maple syrup, dried fruits, low calorie preserves and a no-sugar apple spread. For those interested in fall decorations there is a large supply of gourds and Indian corn to select from.

Then it's on to Friske's Orchard. Down US 31 and left on to C-48 with a left onto Peebles will take you to Friske's in a quick time.

Richard and Olga Friske and son Neil have been operating this family business for 19 years. Their orchard is lovely to view and once again the smell of fresh apples is pleasantly overpowering.

The Friskes carry eight varieties of apples and seven of those go into their delicious apple cider. Cider making is big business at the Friskes', who have a new cider press and bottler which can process 280 gallons an hour. Here's where just a taste won't do.

Asked about his cider, Friske said, "In about two weeks our cider will be really good because we'll be able to have six or seven varieties of apples in it. So many people have been asking, we're already making it, but the later cider will be better."

With refrigerator storage the Friskes are able to have apples for sale all winter long. "into May of next year," said Friske. The Friskes are open six days a week from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The last leg of the tour has some of the Orchard owner, Richard Friske, is ready for the fall color tours with plenty of tree ripened apples. Friske is just one of the many orchard owners in the area.

prettiest scenery... horses grazing, gold and orange trees and fields in preparation for winter. Continue back on C-48 until you reach Ranney Road. Here Ranney is a dirt road for just a ways, but the views are worth the ride.

Riding along here with a fresh tree ripened apple to shine (just before you bite into the tight red skin) and the beauty of all around, you know why you live in northern Michigan.

When you reach Phelps Road make a right and you're at the orchards of Aron and Rita Williams. Williams' Orchard is new just this year but there is plenty of sweet fresh fruit here too. This year's offerings include apples and plums, and future years will include cherries and pears which they planted this year.

Aron and Rita moved here from Missouri where they met in school. Aron is originally from Missouri, and Rita is the daughter of local orchard owners David and Rosy Rosenthal. The Williams are open six days a week from 8 a.m. until dark.

From Williams it's just down the road to the Ferry and we've come full circle.

There is nothing like the sound of a fresh ripe apple when your sink your teeth into it. It's a special crunch. And the taste and the smell and the feel of a firm fresh apple is one of the feelings of fall.

It isn't necessary to visit all of the orchards, but this trip is a visually nice one and the fruit looks good and fresh.

The cider and the pies are all tempting. The entire trip, depending on munching and purchase time, takes about three hours. It's a great way to spend a sunny autumn afternoon.

The Beaver Islander allows spectators to enjoy brilliant autumn colors of the Lake Charlevoix Shoreline.

Charlevoix offers 19th annual cruise

Be a spectator this fall on the 19th annual Lake Charlevoix color cruise. Five color tours are being sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The Beaver Islander will depart from the Beaver Island boat dock, downtown Charlevoix, on Sept. 27, Oct. 4 and 5, and Oct. 11 and 12. All cruises will leave the dock at 1 p.m., rain or shine.

Spectators will have two hours to enjoy the brilliant autumn colors of Lake Charlevoix's shoreline. Each cruise will include a trip past the Ironton Ferry to Holy Island in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Jackie Merta, chamber director, says, "The cruises have been very successful in the past and we already have had large groups express interest in the tours. People should get their tickets now."

Tickets are $7 for adults and will be sold on a non-refundable basis. Tickets are available from the Chamber and will be sold at the boat dock before each cruise if they are not sold out.

Beverages will be available on board. For more information, contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce 547-2101.

Charlevoix retailers are planning an autumn celebration to coincide with the Lake Charlevoix color cruises on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 11 and 12. Stores and restaurants will be participating in the weekend event.

Friendly (?) discussion gets new cook

Mom's spaghetti gourmet meal

A couple of years ago my daughter Shirley and her husband Joe got into a friendly (?) discussion about who worked the hardest at their house.

They both have full-time jobs so there is lots to keep them busy. Shirley said that she worked twice as hard as Joe.

So Joe said, "O.K. we will trade jobs at home for the rest of the winter. I will do the laundry, cooking, shopping and you keep the driveway cleaned out with the snow blower, keep the sidewalks and porches shoveled, clean the basement and shovel the snow and ice off the roof."

So they wrote up their little contract. The first one to give up before two months time was to pay the other one $500. So of course they both were about to honor their contract. I have their permission to write this. They said that all their friends knew about it anyway.

Shirley had it made. It quit snowing for the rest of the winter; I believe she had to do the driveway once or twice at the most. When it rained and the snow melted she had to sweep the basement when the floor got wet.

There was about two feet of snow on the porch roofs on the front and back of their house when they drew up the contract which really hardened and turned to ice. Joe invited all his friends to come over to see Shirley up on the roof, wearing Joe's big hunting suit chopping and shoveling. But she did it and her jobs were finished for the duration.

But Joe's duties were just starting and he too came through with flying colors. He roasted a beautiful turkey for Easter, cooked food the kids loved, became famous for his omelets, but his real gourmet meal was spaghetti and meatballs from his mother's recipe.

- 2 tablespoons parsley
- 4 medium onions, chopped
- 2 cloves of garlic
- 2 small cans tomato puree
- 4 small cans tomato paste
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 small can mushrooms stems & pieces

Fry first four ingredients until onions are soft, then add the next three. Bring to a boil and let simmer while you make the meatballs.

- Meatballs
- 1 1/2 lbs. ground round
- 1/2 cups bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup grated cheese (optional)
- 1 small onion chopped
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon sage or poultry seasoning.

Mix all ingredients, make into balls (20), roll lightly in flour and add to sauce, then simmer at least 2 hours. When Joe put the meatballs into the sauce it was quite thick so he phoned his mother in California to see if he should add water. Yes, he was to add water occasionally to keep it from getting too thick and sticking to the bottom of the pan. The longer these meatballs simmer, the better they taste.

Joe used the big electric fry pan for this and set it for about 220 degrees. Then he could relax the rest of the afternoon watching his favorite sports show, just checking on the sauce occasionally, giving it a little stir and tasting to see if it was seasoned right.

Cook 2 lbs. spaghetti according to package directions. Joe served bread sticks and tossed salad with this. Serves 6 with leftovers.

Host families needed for exchange students

If you can't travel, this may be the next best thing! Hosting a foreign student can give your family the opportunity to learn about a foreign language and customs, build lasting friendships, and foster good international relations and understanding.

Mrs. Barbara Martin, counselor for Boyne City Schools, announces that host families are being sought in the Charlevoix County area for exchange students through the International Fellowship program. These students are between the ages of 14 and 18, and would be primarily from South America, Mexico, Japan, or Scandinavia.

Families may host a student for three, six, or nine months. All students have some familiarity with English and all are required to attend school during their stay.

International Fellowship is responsible for the selection and placement of the visiting students, providing accident and insurance coverage, and providing tickets and arrangements for air travel.

Host families would be responsible for providing a separate bed (but not necessarily a separate bedroom), daily meals, study space, and laundry. Clothing, spending money and personal articles are the visiting student's own responsibility.

Any area family desiring more information about this program is urged to contact Mrs. Martin at 582-6587 or 582-9981.

Sprinklers Cut Home Fires

Anti-fire ceiling sprinklers may be appearing in the home within a few years, following the lead of the widely-accepted smoke detectors. Work has been progressing for two years in the development of a low-cost effective residential sprinkler system. Federal officials, now setting standards for a model residential system, estimate home sprinklers could reduce home fire deaths by up to 80% and cut residential property losses by 90%.

Research has shown that most home fires can be contained in the room of origin—and often extinguished—with the sprinkler system using about 6 gallons of water per minute. Sprinklers may not be able to put out all fires, but they can usually control a fire for 15 to 20 minutes so the occupants can get out and the fire service can get in. When the fire service does get there the fire has been kept to one room so they normally would have very little trouble dousing it. Sprinklers would not be used to replace smoke detectors or fire departments. Residential sprinklers would be used with smoke detectors to save lives and help fire fighters by containing the flames.

The following change of zoning will be considered:

Case Number 101, Jerome V. Matts, Applicant, has requested rezoning of property located at 3218 Jefferson Street, Evangeline Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described as:

"The Southerly 100 feet and the Easterly 330 feet of the South Half (S½) of the South Half (S½) of the Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of the Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section 26, Township 33 North, Range 6 West, Evangeline Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan,"

In addition, Applicant, Jerome V. ## Best team ever, says Rambler runners' coach

BOYNE CITY - "This is the best team we've ever had," says Coach Bob Wollenberg of this year's cross-country team.

"We're stronger overall than ever before. We have more depth," he explained. "We've always had one or two individual standouts, but we've never had this much depth before."

Senior Tim Crumbaugh is the top runner on the squad this year. "He has more desire than any runner I've ever coached," Wollenberg said. "He's a super kid to work with. He goes all out in every workout."

A pleasant—almost astonishing—surprise for the team this year is the performance of Mike Hulett, who is only a freshman. He is already beating everyone else on the team except Crumbaugh.

In the 14-team Ludington Invitational

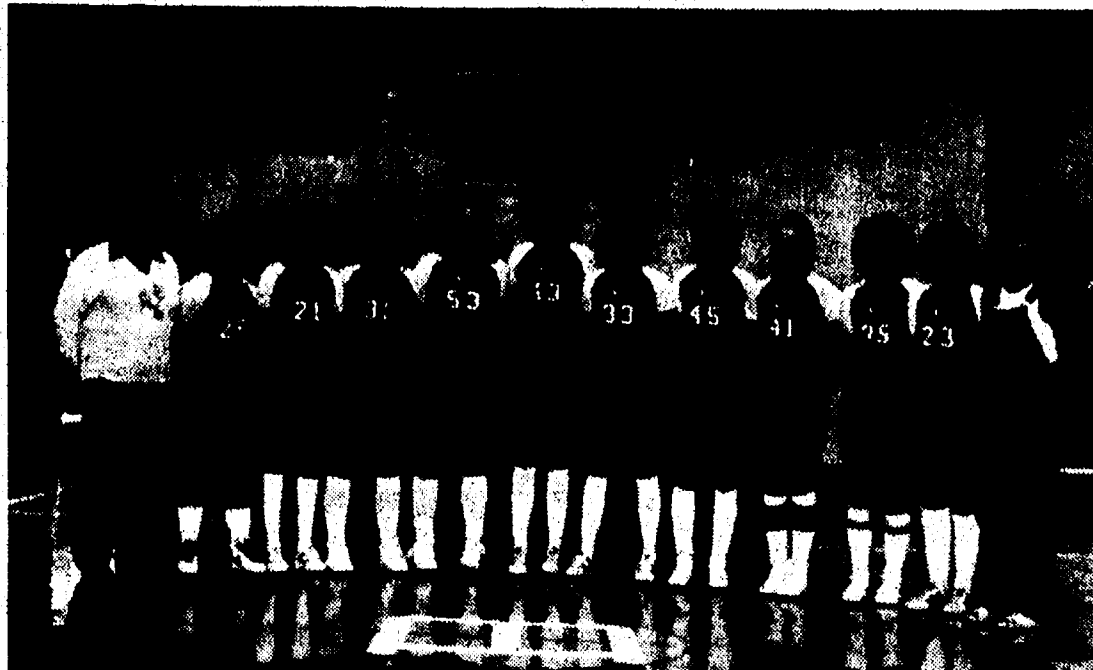

Saturday, Crumbaugh finished eighth and Hulett placed 20th among 100 runners. Junior Jim Brabbs also did well, placing 34th, and the Ramblers placed sixth as a team.

Last Thursday, in the seven-team Kingsley Invitational, there were separate races for freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. Hulett won the freshman race by 38 seconds.

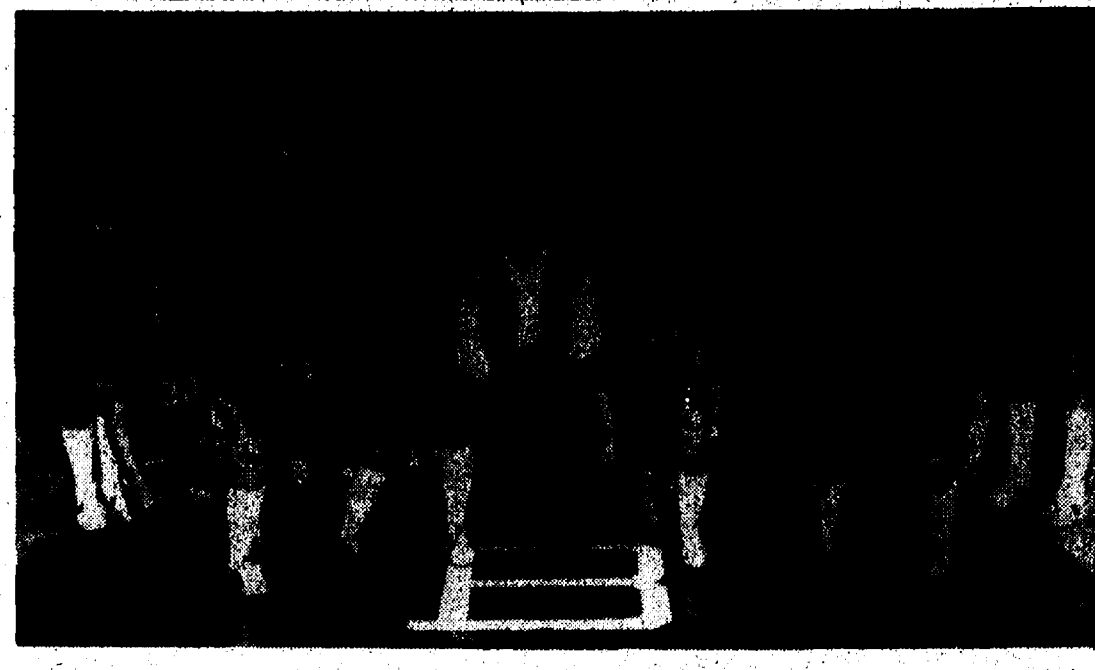

Jim Brabbs took second in the junior race, while Brian Vroman ran fourth and Matt Irwin took fifth, all winning medals.

Crumbaugh won a medal by taking fourth in the senior race, and overall the team took third.

A trophy already

Boyne girls clicking already

BOYNE CITY - In its first week of action this season, the Boyne City girls' basketball team already captured a trophy.

The Ramblers took first place in a four-team tournament at Central Lake when they stopped Bellaire, 52-44, and then edged Ellsworth, 35-33.

The Ramblers lost their season opener against Elk Rapids, 43-36, before tournament play, despite Beck Aimesbury's 16 points.

Boyne City last won the tournament two years ago.

Rambler coach Steph Moody liked what she saw in the tournament games compared to the opener. She said the entire team was together for the first time during the tournaments. "We were really clicking," said Moody.

"The team is coming along favorably. They have a lot of hustle and want to win. They proved that in the tournament," said Moody, now in her fifth year as head coach.

In the first game of the tournament against Bellaire, Aimesbury, a 5-2 all-conference guard, pumped in 24 points while 5-11 junior center Lori Paquette scored 13 and grabbed 14 rebounds. Senior forward Cindi Scott led the Ramblers in rebounds with 21.

In the tournament final against Ellsworth, Aimesbury was double-teamed and had to only 6 points. However, Scott took up the slack by scoring 16 points and Lori Paquette netted 7 and pulled down 12 rebounds.

Moody lost six players from last year's squad but she is still optimistic. "It's gonna hurt. We lost several starters. But we'll overcome it. These kids have a lot of hustle," she said.

Another reason for Moody's bright outlook are the several players who have come up to the varsity from last season's successful junior varsity. The JV team, coached by Pat Upton, was 15-4 in 1979.

Moody said a little extra height this year has added a new dimension to the team. "Last year we didn't have a tall center like we do this year. This season we have a good combination of height and speed. We'll continue to fast break."

Last year the Rambler varsity finished 14-9 overall and 7-7 in the tough Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

Moody sees Charlevoix, with potential all-stater Melinda Klooster as being the team to beat this season. She also said defending champion St. Ignace will be tough, and Cheboygan brings back a good, young team from last year.

At the end of the season, the Ramblers will be defending their district tournament championship, a district which will again most likely include East Jordan, Charlevoix and Onaway.

Ramblers want No. 4 for homecoming

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler football team doesn't have a theme song like the Detroit Lions' adaption of Queen's "Another One Bites the Dust," but it seems to be playing the same tune.

Last year the Lions were 2-14 and the Ramblers were 0-9. This season both squads are now 3-0.

Boyne City picked up its latest victory on the road last Friday night when it got past Grayling, 14-0.

This Friday the Ramblers return to Boyne City for their 7:30 p.m. homecoming game against Rogers City. Rogers City, 1-2, was blasted by Cheboygan last week, 71-14.

But McCullough is not underestimating his next opponent. "They've got some great athletes in Rogers City and they're always competitive," he said. "After last week's defeat, they most likely will come back snarling than whimpering."

McCullough said his Ramblers will especially have to watch out for Rogers City's Jac Getzinger, an honorable mention all-conference player last season. Getzinger has been playing tight end but he might step into the fullback slot as he did against the Ramblers last year.

McCullough is looking forward to having his team play in front of a hometown crowd Friday. "Playing at home is a great advantage when you're winning," he said.

Boyne City's band might not be playing "Another One Bites the Dust" during halftime, but the Ramblers hope Rogers City will be hearing it after the game.

At Grayling last week, after failing to complete their first five passes of the game, the Ramblers made their first completion count in the second quarter. Junior quarterback John Tompkins hit junior halfback Bob Christie for a 26-yard touchdown. Tompkins ran in the PAT for an 8-0 lead.

The next Rambler score was called back late in the third quarter. Senior Kerry Kruzel intercepted a pass and ran 78 yards for an apparent touchdown. However, a late flag was thrown, for a clipping penalty, after Kruzel had dashed into the endzone.

But the Ramblers did come back to "officially" score when junior halfback Benjie Williams scored from 11 yards out in the fourth quarter.

Once again the Rambler defense, which has only given up one touchdown this season, played outstandingly.

The closest Grayling came to scoring was with about a minute left to go in the contest. Todd Newville ended that threat when he intercepted a pass near the endzone.

The Rambler defensive secondary was busy all night but it stood firm. Grayling passed 28 times but only completed six for 69 yards. In comparison, Boyne only passed eight times but picked up 51 yards.

The Rambler running attack plowed through for 279 yards while Grayling ran for only 69.

Kruzel rushed 101 yards for his second straight game over the century mark. Teammates Todd Rickard and Williams ran for 42 and 40 yards, respectively.

The Ramblers had 90 yards in penalties compared to Grayling's 55. Coach Bob McCullough said the flags thrown by the referees were a main factor in stopping his offense from scoring more often. "We had many penalties in crucial spots," he said.

Devils play at Harbor Saturday

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil gridders will be going for their third victory in four games Saturday afternoon at Harbor Springs. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

The Rams are winless in three games this season, which should make them hungry, East Jordan coach Frank Holes says.

"They're going to be trying to knock us off. They'll be sky high, and if they beat us, that will make their season," Holes said. "We're going to have to play well to beat them."

Harbor lost by a 22-14 score to a tough Inland Lakes squad last week, and they almost evened the score after falling behind, 22-0.

Fullback Rich Kowalski and quarterback Pete McGonnigal made the touchdowns for the Rams last week and they will be the ones East Jordan will have to focus on.

The Red Devils, meanwhile, are coming off a fine defensive showing in their 46-6 victory at Pellston last Friday.

Pellston's only touchdown was scored late in the game, when the Hornets recovered a fumble in the end zone while East Jordan's reserves were in the game.

"We played a good complete game," Holes said. "The defense gave us good field position and scored a touchdown for us. It was a great defensive game. One of the best we've played since I've been here."

Scoring that touchdown for the defense was senior guard Jim Spence, who recovered a fumble in the end zone. Spence also shared the lead for the most tackles in the game with Mike Chihak. Both were in on nine tackles. Bill Spence, DuWayne Dougherty and Steve Hilden all had seven tackles apiece.

Leading the offensive unit were senior quarterback Delbert Ingalls and three junior running backs.

Ingalls kept Pellston's defense honest by connecting on six of nine passes for 95 yards. One of those passes was a 22 yd. touchdown strike to Randy Morris.

Top rusher was Steve Graham, who had touchdown runs of two and six yards on his way to a total of 90 yards in 14 carries. Tom Peters scored a touchdown and gained 70 yards, and Bill Spence scored another TD while gaining 55 yards.

The Red Devils are now 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the Ski Valley League.

Kerry Kruzel
 Halfback Kerry Kruzel intercepted a pass and gained 101 yards last Friday to earn Player of the Week honors for Boyne City High School. A 5-9, 140-pound senior, Kerry is the son of Mike and Sandy Kruzel. He would have had two interceptions in last week's win over Grayling, but one interception and a 78-yard touchdown run were called back because of a penalty.

East Jordan Iron Works salutes the East Jordan "Player of the Week"

Del Ingalls
 Quarterback Delbert Ingalls is the East Jordan Player of the Week. Del, a 6-1, 180-pound senior, completed six out of nine passes for 95 yards, including one touchdown and two extra points, in last week's victory over Pellston. His passing performance was an important factor in the victory, because Pellston was concentrating on stopping the Red Devil running game. Del is the son of Al and Colleen Ingalls. He is also a starter on East Jordan's basketball team.
