GROCERIES

Comparing prices at 9 stores

BY KATHY JOHNSON

Have you ever wondered whether you were getting the most for your dollars when you shop for groceries?

Ever wonder if it is cheaper to drive to Petoskey and shop at Kroger's for their wide selection or Giant or Oleson for their prices?

Will it cost you more by the time you buy gas at today's prices to shop in Petoskey or to shop several stores in your area for their specials?

Being a coupon clipper who loves a good bargain, I set out 10 days ago to visit the area supermarkets and compare prices on a varied selection of name brand products. Also included in the comparison were generic brands, store brands, or other less expensive brands of comparable merchandise.

Our grocery list included a variety of items that you might purchase some-time during the month including cleaner, toilet paper and soap, as well as a varied amount of meat, fresh vegetables, dairy items, canned goods and staples.

Ground Rules

In comparing the stores, we shopped each store on the weekend when they would normally have some shopper "specials" on. We used the same brand and size in nearly every case. If a store did not carry that particular brand, a similar brand was substituted. This happened in only a few cases.

In the case of Edwards' IGA in Charlevoix, there were seven items we were unable to locate in the store. In order to include them in the survey, the prices from the Boyne City Edwards store were substituted. Those items were Final Touch, Tampax, Northern toilet paper, Gala towels, Frito Lay Ruffles, Bluebonnet "lite & tasty" and Purina dog food.

The prices in the survey were taken from the tops of the cans, boxes or bags. In some cases we found two identical items with two different prices. In these cases we took the least expensive item, as any shopper would do. Some items were on sale at some stores...Premium crackers, Puff's tissue, Dole pineapple, Gold Medal flour, Budweiser, and Pepsi.

In all cases we attempted to be as honest and fair to each store as we could. In no case was the store manager aware ahead of time that we would be in, and many probably don't know now that we were "shopping" their store for prices. A customer in the Boyne City Country Star Market remarked to me, "It must be inventory time."

Results

The grocery bill total for the name brand products varied from $71.06 at Giant Supermarket in Petoskey to $82.66 at Edwards' in Charlevoix—more than a 16 per cent difference between the two stores. By substituting less expensive brands on those items where available, the prices varied from a low of $62.28 at Glen's in East Jordan to $79.59 at Edwards' in Charlevoix—an increase of nearly 28 per cent, or $17.31.

Some items were found to be noticeably different in price. Final Touch softener in the 64 ounce container varied in price from $1.59 to $2.29. In the produce department a bag of carrots weighing 16 ounces ranged in price from 20 to 50 cents. While Giant was the least expensive for the total name brand grocery bill, their produce ranged from high to highest.

Del Monte catsup ranged from 49 to 61 cents and Maxwell House coffee from $5.99 to $6.79. Dog food was a bargain at $2.09 and went up as high as $3.69.

At each store one question was asked of the grocery checker, "Will your store accept any other store coupons beside your own?" The answer in every case least expensive for the total name exception. Giant accepts all store coupons from our area. Should the coupon be on a "house" brand that Giant does not carry, they will substitute a similar brand product for that item.

While we did not use store or product coupons in our survey you can chop dollars from your budget by clipping coupons and planning your menu to include items that are on sale.

After "shopping" the Kroger store we did visit with the manager, Brian Sorby. Sorby indicated his unhappiness that we were shopping the store now. Hamady recently purchased it, but the changeover from Kroger products and pricing has not been completed. "Prices will be changing dramatically as Hamady takes over in the next week," Sorby said.

These price changes should appear when we repeat this survey in a couple of months.

Shopping Around

Meanwhile we asked if we could visit with some of the Kroger customers to find out if they regularly shopped there, why, and where they were from.

We talked with 10 different people, including both sexes. Two indicated they shopped the sale items only and did not usually shop there. Three others said they didn't usually shop there but it was on the way or convenient. Three people said they shopped Kroger "regularly," one said "quite a bit," and one "sometimes."

The customers indicated that the "prices were good," "most reasonable," "convenient," and they "liked the store and the employees." Of the 10 customers, one was from Harbor Springs, one from Brutus, six from Petoskey, one Boyne City, and one from between Boyne City and East Jordan.

Later, after completing the survey and comparison, I called Giant and talked to Tom Paulus, the assistant store manager. "We take price checks around," he said.

"I'm not really surprised that we're lowest. We try to take care of our customers." He felt that the store's high sales volume might help account for some of the price difference.

Shopping Options

If you're a Boyne City resident and your car gets reasonable gas mileage and you have the time—or you already make a trip to Petoskey once a week—then you may find that shopping Giant is a viable option. It's about 20 miles from Boyne City. Glen's in East Jordan was only $1.78 more expensive than Giant and it is about 12 miles away.

But there is yet another option open that doesn't even require changing your store. Almost every store has its own store brands and/or generic brands.

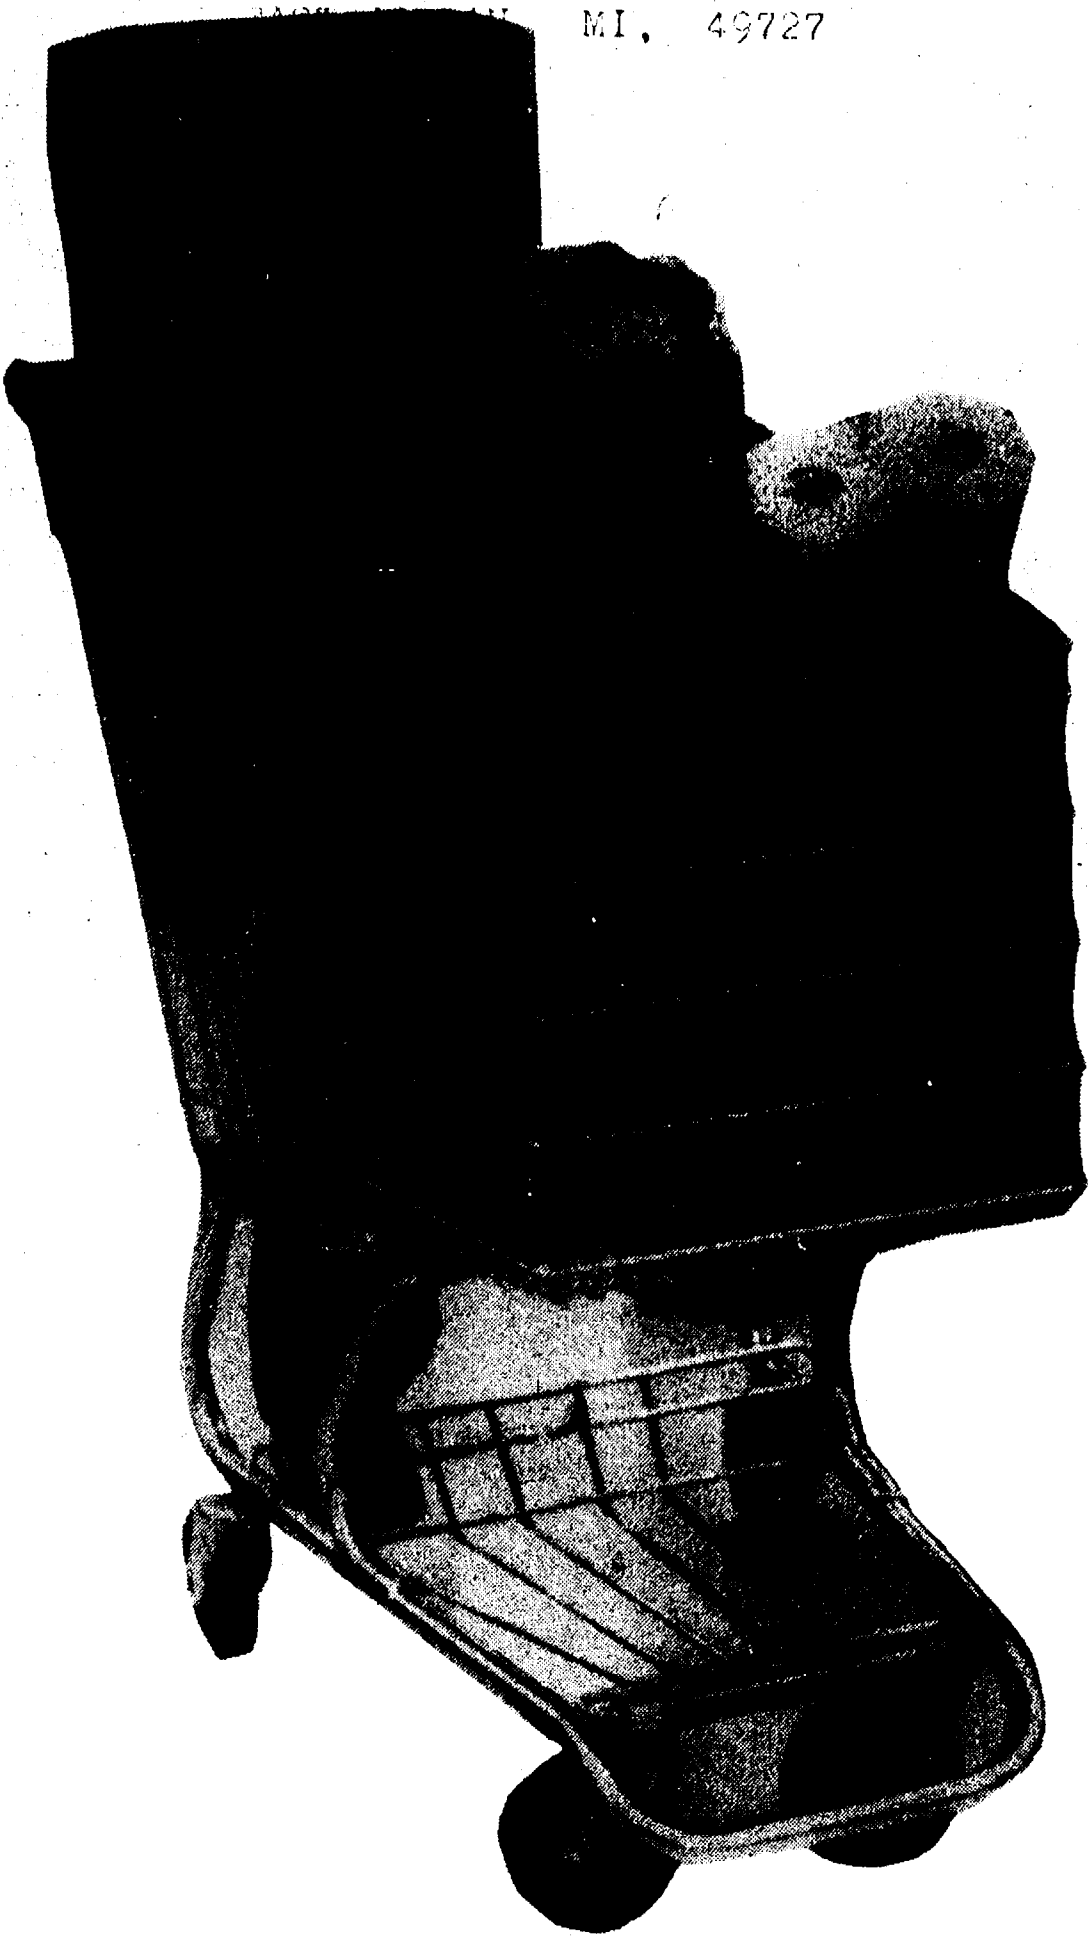

Also to be considered in choosing where you shop are the product selection and specialty items. Edwards' IGA is a little smaller than the other stores in our survey and has somewhat higher prices, but they have an excellent meat and fish department. They will cut your meat to order and you can buy fresh fish and other delicacies in season.

You may find that some of these brands will work just as well for your purposes. The difference between the name brands we selected for our shopping list and substituting generic or other brands would save you $10.14 at Country Star and $10.56 at Glen's in East Jordan. Those are substantial savings that won't add to your gas bill, although they may take a little more time in selection.

If you're willing to give the generic or other brands a try, be sure to check the ingredients and compare the amount of the product to be used. Fabric softener can be purchased for 99 cents for 128 ounces compared to as much as $2.39 for 64 ounces. Exercise caution here. If the cheaper product requires a cup and the more expensive only two ounces, then you may save more by spending more.

Aspirin is another good place to try the generic or store brands. If you use a lot of aspirin, you can purchase 100 tablets of the less expensive for 39 cents instead of $1.09 for only 50 of Bayer. Medically, aspirin is aspirin.

Country Star and Glen's place their generic items all in one place. This makes it difficult to compare the labels and ingredients with name brands. But, it may well be worth the effort on many items. Canned vegetables tend to be a little tougher sometimes, the Extension Office tells me, but if the beans are going into soup or goulash, it won't matter as much.

It wasn't easy for EJ teachers to end strike without a contract

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN - It wasn't an easy decision for East Jordan's teachers to return to work without a contract this week.

Several factors were involved in the decision, to end the 16-day strike, but the school board's offer of binding arbitration was the major reason.

Other factors include the fast-approaching Oct. 9 millage election, the success of recent negotiations, the possibility of teachers being fired, and an anticipated loss of community support as the strike dragged on.

"Binding arbitration was the big issue from the start," said Rodger Ransom, president of the East Jordan Education Association. "We don't have it yet, but at least the board has put it on the table."

Substantial compromises were made by both sides Thursday and Friday with the threat of a possible court hearing facing them if negotiations broke down.

The board offered the teachers binding arbitration—with a few exclusions—in a Friday afternoon bargaining session at the Emmet County Courthouse in Petoskey.

The teachers' negotiating team of Ransom, Bob Snyder, Larry Gee and Phil Goebel told their teacher colleagues of the offer late that afternoon.

There was no settlement, but progress was being made on all issues, including salary.

After two days of postponements, the court hearing was set for 9 a.m. Saturday. Everyone knew it wouldn't be postponed again because Judge Martin Breighner was starting a vacation on Monday.

TEACHERS CALL MEETING

The teachers scheduled a staff meeting for 7:30 a.m. Saturday to talk over their position.

"There was quite a bit of debate on what we should do and exactly how we should do it," Ransom said.

"We talked it over from the point of view of how it would affect the school board, the children, and our community support. It seemed like the best way to try to get things resolved would be to return to school without a contract."

"It's a tough position. We'd feel better if we had a contract, but we've been back to work before without a contract. The big issue was binding arbitration."

Bob Snyder said, "We kind of figured all along that when binding arbitration was on the table, we'd go back to work."

If that had been offered to us the first day of negotiations, I don't think there would have been a strike. We wouldn't have gone on strike for money. The way the economy is, we wouldn't have had any support."

"There were quite a few people who were reluctant to go back without a contract," Snyder said. "They had committed themselves, and they didn't feel like giving up."

The question of whether to return to work wasn't put to a vote, Snyder said, but there appeared to be considerable support for the idea. The negotiating team met and decided they would, indeed, return to work—regardless of the outcome of the 9 a.m. hearing.

"We looked at all the options," he said. "We figured that if we didn't return to work on Monday, the board would start the process of firing people. That would have been the only choice left."

The millage election was also a factor, Snyder said. "I don't think it had a chance with us off work. Now we figure we can take the next two weeks and work for the millage...which we couldn't have done if we were on strike."

COURT ORDER DENIED

As it turned out, the teachers returned to work of their own free will, because Judge Breighner denied the school board's request that he order the teachers back to work.

After hearing 2½ hours of testimony Saturday morning, Breighner dismissed the case. He ruled that the strike was "certainly inconvenient" and that "hardship may very well result."

But the board had to prove "irreparable harm" would be done to the students, and this had not been shown during the hearing, the judge said.

Breighner dismissed the case before the teachers and their attorney presented their own witnesses and testimony—thus avoiding what could have been a public airing of "dirty laundry."

The judge read a statement at the end of the hearing in which he noted that the parties had reached an impasse. "The irresistible force has collided with the immovable object," he said.

"Because the teachers are engaged in an illegal strike," Breighner said, "...they must be discharged by the school board and replaced."

"ONE OTHER APPROACH"

However, he added, "One other possible approach exists. Both parties could agree to submit the contract dispute to binding arbitration...I have suggested this to the school board and the teachers."

The teachers, as might be expected, quickly endorsed this means of settlement. But one teacher negotiator said privately that he doubted whether the board would accept the suggestion.

Meanwhile, no new negotiating sessions have been scheduled.

School Supt. Mel Rullman said Tuesday, "Right now, we're just catching our breath. I hope everyone relaxes a bit before we start negotiating again."

Numerous contract details remain to be worked out, although general agreement has been reached on most issues such as binding arbitration, layoff and recall procedures, and personal business days.

The board's latest salary offer was an average increase of 9.67 percent for each teacher, while the teachers have come down to 11.67 percent.

East Jordan teachers spent a lot of time in court last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. But most of the time, the teachers just waited around the Charlevoix and Emmet County Courthouses while negotiations continued elsewhere in the building. (Photo by Jim Baumann)

Strike affected many—on and off picket line

EAST JORDAN - Back in 3000 B.C. when children (boys, in those days) went to school and wrote on their damp clay tablets, teachers may have been discouraged with their lot, but strikes had not been invented.

School has been with us so long, that not having it is like not having breakfast.

People in East Jordan missed their school for a little over three weeks during the teachers' resolve to strike.

Like most of the students, elementary school girl Jane Fleming said she missed school—her friends and her teachers.

Jane, the daughter of Margaret and Jim Fleming, lives outside of East Jordan. Seeing friends is a big part of school when a person is too young to drive a car and friends are more than a walk away.

And she worried about not being busy learning something. Off and on she put down arithmetic problems and tried to solve them. "I think it's too bad," she said. "Have to start all over at the beginning."

Sheryl Kashmerick has three school-aged children. The youngest was all set to go to kindergarten—have his first day in school.

"They were all disappointed," she said. They continued to play in the neighborhood. And while Kashmerick worked to support them, the babysitter thought up projects for them.

One of the concerns of parents, voiced by Kashmerick is that holidays are "timed pretty much for when the children need them. This is throwing everything off."

With the rainy weather having added to the pressures of finding things to do, Kashmerick said she was glad her children liked to read.

A high school student said he and his friends thought it was "pretty boring" though they kept busy with football practice and additional chores thought up by parents. At least one was working on an old car.

The seniors, of course, were worried about whether they would be graduating.

Most of the bus drivers are retired people who managed to get along without their bus-driving wages.

But other non-instructional staff members were beginning to feel the pinch. Applications for unemployment payments were denied, even though they weren't the ones who were striking.

Some of the teachers, too, were doing without, trying to make their savings last while they stuck together on their strike decisions.

But they felt always that they had the sympathy of the community. On the picket line, "people stopped to encourage you," reported Kay Holley, teacher in the middle school.

Kris Weisler, who is mother of seven school children (and a grand total of 13) said she went over to the picketing teachers, walked with them and asked them questions.

"I learned a lot—things like binding arbitration. I'd never known about."

So Kris made herself a sign which said, "I'm here because my kids can't be," and joined the picketing. But as for that and the strike as a whole? "I hope I never have to do it again in my life. It wasn't fun."

Meantime back at the house, husbands whose wives are teachers had to hold down the domestic routines while meetings and picketing went on—and reported certain frustrations. "I do things differently..."

Husbands who were businessmen were at the receiving end of "a little pressure." Business, it seems, was "against the demands the teachers were making."

Middle School teacher Jim Everest said, nevertheless, he felt it had to be done. He said they didn't lose, but gained friends. Teachers also found new things about themselves like courage to a new degree and a new feeling of togetherness.

Kay Holley said, "Nobody liked it." They felt humiliated, she said, walking the picket line. It was hard to explain it to her own children, but they were "working for a common cause."

Longtime first grade teacher Betty Walker, who was featured in large newspaper ads supporting the strike, says she never thought she'd see the day she'd carry a picket sign. "But it came to the point that we had to," she said.

Now, she says, "I'm very thankful that it's over and I'm back in the classroom. After being away from it for awhile, it's more rewarding than ever."

For middle school teacher Bob Snyder, who is on the teachers' negotiating team, the strike has been a series of one meeting after another.

"I'm glad to be back in school, but I'd wish it were all settled," he said. "We spent so much time going to meetings. Last week, we went to school from 8 to 3 on Monday through Wednesday, and then we negotiated from 3 to 11 every night."

"I don't look forward to starting the negotiations again, but it's got to be done."

School board president Mary Jason said the strike has been hard on her and her family, also.

"It's been hardest on the kids, I guess," she said. "They were all ready to start school, but they couldn't. Then they didn't see much of me for the next three weeks. But I think it's brought us closer together as a family."

It's over now. Kris Weisler put it this way: "If we all work together as hard as some worked against, we will have a fantastic school system. I'm sure." Close to that, she adds she's "hopeful the millage will go through" in the Oct. 9 election.

Boyer City schools try again; Third millage vote is Monday

BY KATHY JOHNSON

BOYNE CITY - A third try at passing school operating millage will take place on Monday, Oct. 6. School board members and the Friends of the School, a local citizens group, stress that it is imperative for this millage to pass.

Voting will take place at the middle school from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

School superintendent Rich Kelly said Tuesday, "If this millage does not pass we will run out of money before we can have another election on the millage. The way it looks now we would be unable to meet all of the Nov. 28 payroll."

The school system is in serious trouble financially and due to state legislative action last week, they are getting less state aid than expected. Last year the school received state aid amounting to $422,000 but this year it will receive $107,000. "We are losing over $300,000 in state money," said Kelly.

Because of this loss in state aid, the school board is forced to ask for a millage increase while cutting a number of existing programs.

The millage request on the ballot will be for 21.4 mills, a 2.6 mill increase from last year.

The 2.6-mill increase represents a $2.60 property tax increase for every $1,000 of assessed valuation. This would amount to an increase of $26 per year for a home with a $10,000 assessed value ($20,000 market value).

When asked about the options, should the millage fail to pass, Kelly said there were three possibilities. Either the state will lend some money, school staff will have to work without pay, or the schools will have to close, said Kelly.

"The state has indicated they don't have any money to lend," said Kelly,

"which could leave us with only two options." Each of the millage elections has added that much more to the expenses of operating the schools.

Kelly indicated that each of the elections cost about $800, which, when this one is completed, will be a total of $2,400. "That same $2,400 could have gone for a teacher's salary or some other program already cut," said Kelly.

Gail Toffolo, of the Friends of the School group, said she was optimistic about the millage and said the group feels that the millage has to pass and "keep our schools functioning. We have a responsibility to the students to provide them with an education," Toffolo said.

Voters will have only one ballot this time. A proposal for construction of an elevator at the middle school was included in the previous ballots in June and August. The current proposal is for 21.4 operating mills. Voting will take place at the middle school.

Experts to explain proposals

Are you confused by the Tisch, Smith-Bullard and Executive-Legislative Coalition Proposals?

Those are just three of seven ballot proposals that will be facing Michigan voters on Nov. 4.

Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University will be coming to Charlevoix County in an attempt to shed some light on the complicated proposals Monday night, Oct. 6.

A discussion and question-answer session on the proposals is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Whiting Park Pavilion on Ferry Road.

Leading the discussion will be Lynn Harvey and Dean Rhoads, public affairs specialists from MSU. Material will be passed out to explain each proposal.

County extension director Ed Rebban says, "We are offering an objective review of each of the proposals, telling the intent of each proposal and as much as possible, explaining the consequences of each. This is strictly an educational meeting which will objectively analyze each issue."

By the way, Tisch, Smith-Bullard and The Executive-Legislative Coalition Proposals all deal with tax cuts or tax shifts. Other proposals deal with the drinking age, prison construction, legislative immunity and the office of lieutenant governor.

New BF supt. won't really be 'new'

BOYNE FALLS - The new superintendent in Boyne Falls comes with not only experience in other towns, but with experience gathered in Boyne Falls between 1968 and 1972 when he was the superintendent.

Raymond Mouch was selected from three candidates at a meeting of the Boyne Falls School Board Monday evening. The personnel committee had previously interviewed its top three candidates—Mouch, Thomas Rossler from Akron-Fairgrove School District and Tedd Morris of Springfield and brought its recommendation to the board. After reaching Mouch by phone the board received his verbal acceptance Monday night pending release from his current contract.

Mouch is currently a building principal of a K through 9 school building in Unionville-Sebewaing. Married, Mouch will be moving to Boyne Falls with his wife Delores. Carl Moser, school principal and acting superintendent said, "Hopefully he will be able to start in about 30 days."

Boyer City aims for HUD loans

BOYNE CITY - The opportunity for a grant of close to $500,000 was put forward at Boyne City Commission meeting Monday, by Todd Sorenson.

Sorenson, executive director of the Boyne City Housing Commission, told the city commissioners funding was available from Housing and Urban Development under a category called 1960-81 Community Development Block Grant—Small Cities Program.

The commissioners decided to ask for the state-awarded money to apply the funding on renovation of part of the city's water and sewer lines.

In addition, they would apply for grant money or low-cost loans for housing improvement. Owners could then get help in raising to standard, housing which is in violation of city code.

One of the requirements of the grant is that it must benefit low to moderate income people.

While the deadline is not far off—Nov. 13—City Manager Tim Clifton believes the application can be made in time.

The acceptance rate, Sorenson said, has been as high as one out of four, depending on the need, which is indicated by a point system included with the application.

Oct. 9 millage vote: another EJ crisis?

EAST JORDAN - Now that the teachers' strike has ended, local school officials are turning their attention to another crisis.

Their operating millage, which voters have turned down twice, is up for election again next Thursday, Oct. 9. Voting will be in the Civic Center, and polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

More than 60 percent of the voters cast their ballots against the millage proposals in June and August. A two-mill increase—23.2 mills in all—was being asked at that time.

Since it was defeated twice, board members decided to offer voters a choice this time. Three proposals will be on the ballot.

Proposal I is for 21.2 mills, a renewal of the same amount approved last year. That, school officials say, is about as low as they can cut their millage.

Proposal II is for 0.8 mills, and Proposal III is for 0.9 mills.

Approval of Proposal II would restore "first priority" program cuts such as counselors, a reading coordinator, a half-time nurse and two high school vocational programs.

Approving Proposal III would restore a librarian, a half-time secretary, a program for emotionally impaired students and a number of high school and middle school sports that have been cut.

On a house with a market value of $20,000 (assessed value of $10,000), the tax increase would be $8 per year for Proposal II and $9 per year for Proposal III.

Just like other school districts throughout Michigan, East Jordan's state aid will be severely cut back due to the state's depressed economic condition.

Because of that factor, school officials have already made more than $158,000 in cuts that probably won't be reinstated this year even if all three millage proposals are passed.

Those cuts include selling the administration office, 5.3 teaching positions, the nurse, 1.5 secretaries, one custodian, one bus run, teaching supplies, game workers and spectator buses.

We're glad you asked!

How can I make known my funeral preferences?

Usually your preferences can best be made known by your pre-planning some or all of the funeral service with a funeral director.

If you feel reluctant to give "instructions" to your family, you might make a list of preferences and suggestions covering your wishes. We have simple forms which will help guide you as you fill them out.

After completing the forms which entail no obligation on your part, then advise your family about your preferences and where you will keep the Pre-Plan Form.

We find people have a greater ease of mind once this is done, just as after filling a will or setting up an insurance program. It takes a load off the family later on and it makes sure your preferences will be respected.

There are many choices and options in pre-planning. You would be well-advised to discuss them with your funeral director. We will be glad to explain your options in detail. To help you reach an informed decision, we can also give you some reading material for your study. Stop by or phone for your free copy.

School millage approval crucial

Crucial school millage elections are facing voters in Boyne City and East Jordan next week.

Boyer voters go to the polls on Monday, Oct. 6, and East Jordan residents will vote on Thursday, Oct. 9.

Voters in both communities have defeated millage requests not once, but twice. If they were trying to tell the school boards to cut their budgets to the bare bone (or beyond), they have gotten their message across.

We strongly urge voters in both districts to vote yes and approve the requests that are being made.

Boyer City is asking for 21.4 mills, an increase of 2.6. This proposal nearly passed both times, and a third try is being attempted. Nearly $40,000 in budget cuts were made after the second defeat, but that was just to make up for state aid cuts.

It looks like even more state aid may be cut, and Supt. Rich Kelly estimates the district will have $300,000 less state assistance this year than last year. That's why a millage increase is needed even though services are being reduced. It's a tough pill to swallow, but we must deal with reality—and that's the way it is.

East Jordan is in a somewhat different situation, with more than 60 percent of the voters opposing the requested 23.2 mills in both elections.

After already making substantial program cuts, the board was forced to slash even more from the budget and give voters a choice of millage levels.

Proposal I will ask for a renewal (no increase) of 21.2 mills. Proposals II and III will ask for an additional 0.8 and 0.9 mills to restore program cuts.

Approval of Proposal I is an absolute necessity and will provide a bare bones operating budget.

With the local economy in such a sorry condition, perhaps this is the only proposal that can be expected to pass.

But voting for Proposals II and III would also restore valid educational programs and positions such as counselors, a reading coordinator, health occupations and commercial foods programs, a half-time school nurse, $15,000 worth of high school and middle school sports, a librarian for the elementary and middle schools, and a program for emotionally impaired students.

The above mentioned programs are hardly frills. And if they are removed this year, it will be terribly difficult to reinstate them in the future.

East Jordan has gone through enough turmoil with the recent teacher strike, and passing the millage would certainly be an appropriate way for citizens to tell the teachers, administration and school board that they, at least, are willing and eager to bury the hatchet and get on with the business of educating children. It will be hard enough to recover from the strike without having a financial crisis hanging over the school district.

As a footnote, if you're interested in learning about the possibilities for modifying the way schools are funded, there is a local meeting you might be interested in attending.

Public affairs specialists from Michigan State University will be explaining the seven state ballot proposals in a meeting at Whiting Park at 7 p.m. Monday. Three of the proposals deal with tax shifts or tax cuts that would ultimately affect the funding of education.

Letters to the editor

Unity is lacking in EJ schools

Editor,
It is obvious that there are serious problems in the East Jordan school system—the teachers' strike being only the latest symptom.

Though I am not a teacher, I am married to one, and so I have been exposed to their feelings on the issues as well as the views and comments of others in and around the community.

The situation raises many questions to be answered—questions about the methods of negotiation, the positions of both sides, and the general attitudes that have contributed to the present state of events. I find a disturbing lack of understanding between different factions regarding the issues involved, and general confusion amid the various rumors that inevitably characterize disputes of this type.

First of all, it is essential to realize the fact that a successful educational system requires the active cooperation of four participant groups: the students, community, administration and teachers.

Conditions between the teachers and the administration have deteriorated over the years to the point where each feels it necessary to approach the other from an adversary position. Teacher morale has plummeted while frustration grows with the way the administration has dealt (or failed to deal) with the many problems the system faces.

From various comments I've heard, it is my impression that many non-teachers have little or no understanding of teachers—what they do, how hard they work, or the difficulties their job presents. At its lowest, such misconceptions are expressed as accusations that teachers are "underworked and overpaid."

Dealing with all sorts of young people, face-to-face for six or seven hours a day is a highly intense type of interaction that demands constant attention and concentration.

Much in the nature of teaching cannot be left in the classroom at day's end—teachers' "homework" of sorts. Mentally reviewing the day's events, planning future lessons, grading papers, calling and dealing with parents, personal concerns for the problems of one or more particular students, administrative pressures—these, and many more concerns fill a teacher's day.

Teaching is a profession of involvement. Such intellectual and emotional exertion can be just as exhausting as any physical labor—and much more stressful.

Efforts to compare teachers' salaries to hourly workers' wages are meaningless. Like doctors, bank executives, or plant managers, teachers are paid for the services they perform, not the number of hours they work.

For these and other reasons, most teachers feel justifiably proud of their profession—that what they do is very difficult but rewarding and important, deserving of the respect and support of both the administration and the community.

The extent of their feelings was demonstrated by the fact of the teachers' strike itself.

Anyone who thinks the teacher would rather be on strike than in the classroom has never walked a picket line. It is degrading, boring, tiring and stressful to carry a picket sign for hours in all types of weather, day after day.

I know that many individuals agonized over the pros and cons of striking before the decision was made, and only the genuine feeling of desperation that there was no other acceptable alternative forced them into agreeing to a walkout.

The determining factor in the strike decision was the board's adamant refusal to conduct serious contract negotiations.

The major stumbling block to a contract settlement seems not to be the economic issues, but the procedural issue of binding arbitration for grievances. As it stands now, a teacher can take a grievance through four steps of review: principal, superintendent, board of education, and the court system.

In essence, all that binding arbitration does is provide a simpler, faster, and less expensive alternative to the courts. A neutral third party, an arbitrator, comes in, listens to both sides, and then issues a ruling. The decision is "binding"—both sides have to abide by it. Arbitration costs are split equally between both sides.

Binding arbitration is a simple, fair, well-tested procedure for resolving differences already found in every other northern Michigan school district, except Boyne Falls. It is also part of most labor contracts—including the contract of the Postal Workers' union, to which one of the board members belongs.

Statistics show that of the 11 northern Michigan cases settled by binding arbitration, six were won by school boards and five by teachers. Any fears of oneness appear to have no substance in fact.

An arbitrator does not make policy; he merely decides which party most clearly conforms to the contract's provisions. Finally, the binding arbitration being considered is only for grievances—not for salary negotiations.

For the teachers' standpoint binding arbitration offers the protection of a more readily accessible, ultimately fair hearing for their side of a grievance dispute.

Once the binding arbitration issue is resolved, the teachers have indicated their flexibility and willingness to compromise on any remaining issues, including salary.

Most teachers recognize that present economic realities make a large salary increase impossible, that whatever compromise figure finally emerges will be inadequate but something they will have to live with.

The teachers, then, are not demanding exotic concessions from the board—they are only asking for a fair and equitable contract comparable to what most area teachers already have.

The board of education members have been uncooperative in responding to community inquiries about their position—reports are that members can't, or won't be reached by phone.

A school administration—principals, superintendent and board—is the manager of a school system, not the owner of it. A major aspect of management responsibility is maintaining a good working relationship with employees and the public, based on mutual respect and dedicated effort to get the job done.

Good management doesn't have to resort to threats and intimidating tactics to impose its policies on workers. Authority, and respect for authority, are granted those who earn it through demonstrations of hard work, sound judgment, and conspicuous fairness in dealing with others.

It also appears that some elements of the administrative structure feel it their duty to "ride herd" on the teachers, to "keep them in line."

Through the use of teacher evaluation reports, class and schedule assignments, the degree of disciplinary support, and other procedural methods, the administration can wield a great deal of pressure against an individual teacher. Such tactics have been described too often by too many people to be easily dismissed as the wild imaginings of a few malcontents.

Whether out of envy, fear, or ignorance, such ill-advised attempts to gain more "control" over teachers have only created greater resentment and hostility.

The community, and even some families, have split into opposed factions, and the potential hard feelings and bitterness may endure long after the strike issues have been settled. The longer this impasse drags on, the more everybody loses. Time has been lost, money wasted, and a lot of effort expended—all with little to show for it.

Even after the contract issues are settled, enormous underlying problems will remain. If the school system is ever going to recover, a lot of changes will have to be made—in attitude or personnel.

Communication throughout the system will have to be greatly improved.

Positions will have to be explained, priorities re-examined, hard decisions made, and policies justified.

Above all, there must be cooperation between all factions instead of the enmity that divides what should be a common effort.

In the face of bleak economic conditions and general uncertainty about the school situation, the voters will be presented with another millage request.

Voters who may attempt to demonstrate their disapproval of recent events by rejecting the millage should realize that they will just be compounding the problems—like cutting off the nose to spite the face.

The most constructive, effective way to express displeasure with something is to try to change it—to get involved.

In the final analysis, when all the logic and rhetoric has been examined, what we are really talking about here is people—flesh and blood human beings filled with all the hopes, fears, needs, passions, and fallibilities that the species is heir to.

It is not going to be easy, but all parties are going to have to control their emotions, swallow their pride, and forget any wrongs—real or imagined—they may have suffered in the heat of controversy.

Only then can any progress toward the spirit of cooperation be made. People will be watching, and any petty actions of retaliation or revenge by either the administration or the teachers will not be tolerated. I would hope that both have too much professional integrity to engage in such small-minded, childish behavior.

The teachers have made a resolute stand in unity and the belief that they are in the right, and that better working conditions will help provide quality education. Upon their return to the classroom they will be expected to demonstrate their sincerity and dedication by contributing their best efforts. The community should demand and accept only excellence in behavior from all parties—students, teachers, administrators, and themselves.

Schuss no!

I'd rather snowplow

As I sit and type in this cozy little cubicle that's been assigned to me, I am protected from what's happening in the streets. It isn't even safe to go home now. The autumn days are dwindling and so is my courage.

The Down Coats are coming and they signal snow. Snow brings skiers and the thought of skiing brings me to my knees.

Last January my feet were attached to fiberglass and my knees were thrown off balance. After my eighth day of skiing, I paid homage to Burns Clinic. I've since then been swaddled in all types of casts and braces and cradled by crutches.

I'm no athlete, but I do share their injuries. Before I severed it, I had never heard of a cruciate ligament. Ignorance is bliss. Physical therapy is torture. And the arrival of the pro ski racer in our family this week has put an extra strain on me to strengthen my hamstrings and quadriceps. Two expert skiers in the family were enough.

Days are counted before the first day of ski season in our house, just as shopping days are counted before Christmas. I'm counting on a miracle. I have a total of 70 degrees to go before I reach my maximum leg extension. "No extension, no skiing," says the therapist as he kneads and stretches the mogul that was once a perfect knee. My husband was even invited to a therapy session so that he could learn to inflict the same pain on me at home.

I would never deny the importance of the ski industry to the Boyne City area. And I would never deny the beauty and grace of the sport itself. I will deny skiing on anything steeper than a bunny hill.

Let me write about the warmth and design of 1981's ski fashions. Let me delight in being a spectator at one of the Coor's American Pro Tour races in which our pro is racing. I can experience the thrill of flying down hill vicariously.

But because I promised I would strap my feet into bindings this winter (just like strapping your feet back into the stirrups of a horse that's bucked you), I must whistle a little tune and be back at the slopes again. Goodbye, Aurora—Hello Rams Head!

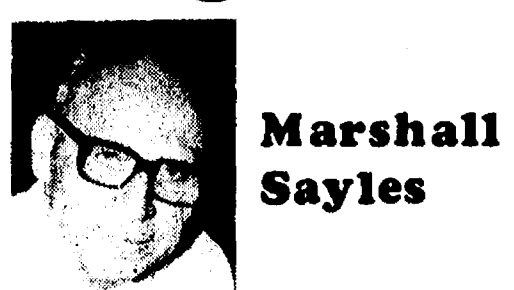

Ah...getting away from it all!

Did you ever wonder why so many people move up north? Ask them, I'll bet that 10 out of nine will tell you they came to get away from it all. Those are my figures.

But after a while they'll learn that Boyne City has just as much "all" as any other place.

We built our house up here on Marshall Road to get away from it all. It was peaceful. The only excitement was one squirrel chasing another at mating season.

Over the years Boyne City's "all" has moved out and taken over. At first there were only five or 10 cars passing our house each day. Now there is a daily parade of automobiles, service vans, trucks, motorcycles, joggers, school buses, sight-seers, huge beer trucks and signal flashing police cars.

We even have door-to-door salesmen, which is strange when there's only one door out here. It's our front door, which we never use. We use our back door like all sensible people do.

Huge airplanes along with helicopters fly over with people peering down upon us as though they were trying to spot the marijuana patch in our back yard. (Actually it's our septic tank drain field, but you know how inefficient government surveillance is these days.)

And at night. Would you believe that people come out here at night to out hoot the hoot owls? I did that sort of thing when I was a young man, but now that I'm older I don't see any sense to it. It ain't fair the way people have taken the fun out of getting away from it all.

So I got to thinking. If we ever move into Boyne City proper, I'd like to live on the north side of town, maybe up near Loton Willson. But one of the commissioners told me that he didn't think the city would want all of its intelligence bunched together like that.

Every Monday night I allow myself to go through three agonizing hours with Howard Cosell. At halftime I always go to the kitchen and fix my "night breakfast". It consists of a bowl of 40% Bran Flakes. One night I wondered: If there's only 40% bran in this, what's the other 60%? So I read the list of ingredients printed on the box, heavens! My stomach was full of stuff I couldn't even pronounce.

I asked the doctor to diagnose these sudden fits of foolishness. What in the world was causing them? He said they were due to heredity, a family thing, handed down and accepted. They were caused by the things that happened in my genes. I was mad as the dickens until he spelled that word for me.

Visiting 'Brit' is really a good ole boy

In town this past weekend for a little rest and relaxation was a gentleman and a scholar, and as they say in Texas, a "good ole boy."

James Burke, British writer and narrator for the television series "Connections" (which will be repeating on PBS starting this Saturday at 8 p.m.) had a nearby speaking engagement and decided to come on up for a visit. Delightfully so, at any rate, for those of us who got to R&R with him.

Kathy Johnson

Burke is currently in this country to finish raising funds for his next series which is tentatively titled "The Day the Universe Changed." He was a professor and taught medieval English at Oxford, Bologna, and in Rome. He covered all the Apollo moon flights, produced and narrated a one-man science show, is married to an independent lady named Madeline and is the author of the book "Connections."

A gentleman and a scholar. But let me tell you he is also a delightful, fun, good ole boy. How can you not like a man that says, when wishing you a happy day, "keep your pecker up" (That's your nose). Or "I'll knock you up in the morning and see if you want to play tennis." That means I'll give you a call.

But truthfully, what so endeared him to my heart was the evening he was here. The Press staff all attended a little party for him and then we decided to take him on a tour of our local nightlife. I invited him to "ride" with me. He'd love to ride in a pink jeep. Ten feet down the road he asked, "You don't suppose I could drive do you?"

"My heart took a quick leap. My jeep. My hot pink jeep. Trying to be polite to a visiting dignitary, I said sure. "You don't mind?" he asked. "Not at all," I replied, knowing full well that in the 12 years that I have owned it only four other people have ever driven it.

So off we rode followed in "regular" cars by the rest of The Press staff. To Duff's, Ryan's, the Granary, and the BRI. It was a terrific evening and he even had a great time driving the jeep.

The next morning we all reconvened to bid our visitor goodbye. Trying to give him a chance to see as much of Northern Michigan as possible it was decided that we would go to the Racquetball Restaurant in East Jordan for lunch. "Could I ride with you?" he said. "Come on. Would you like to drive?" I asked.

"No, I know you don't like to let other people drive your car." I assured him it was quite all right.

In for a penny in for a pound, I thought. And we were off again. The trip to East Jordan was filled with punctuation and exclamations on his part as he whipped around curves and up and down the hills. "I love this car!" he cried. Then he'd try something he calls a double D clutch again and depending on the outcome, it was either, "There I've done it," or "Oh my...sorry!"

James Burke. A really good ole boy. And Burke, wherever you are, the keys to my jeep are at your disposal. It is great fun to ride in my car with someone who enjoys it as much as I do and I look forward to your next visit!

Karate school

George Minitch has opened a Karate Kung-Fu School at 108 Groveland, Boyne City in the Minitch-Gibbard Building. The school, which has classes for men, women, and children offers an opportunity for young and old to learn a system of self-defense.

Randy Lightfoot, at phone 582-6715, can enroll you in a class. "Karate can help you keep in good physical fitness," explained owner Minitch. "Randy is very good and will be teaching the men. I'll be working with the advanced classes."

Minitch is a black belt with 21 years' experience. Other instructors for the classes will be Ed Gibbard, teaching the children ages five to 12, and Judy Minitch will be teaching the women. Cost for the classes is $25 per month and includes two sessions per week. Couples are $40 per month.

The school is not affiliated with any other Boyne City karate school.

Minitch and Gibbard will also be opening a gun shop, Minitch and Gibbard Firearms Company, in a few weeks. The gun shop will also be located in the Minitch-Gibbard Building.

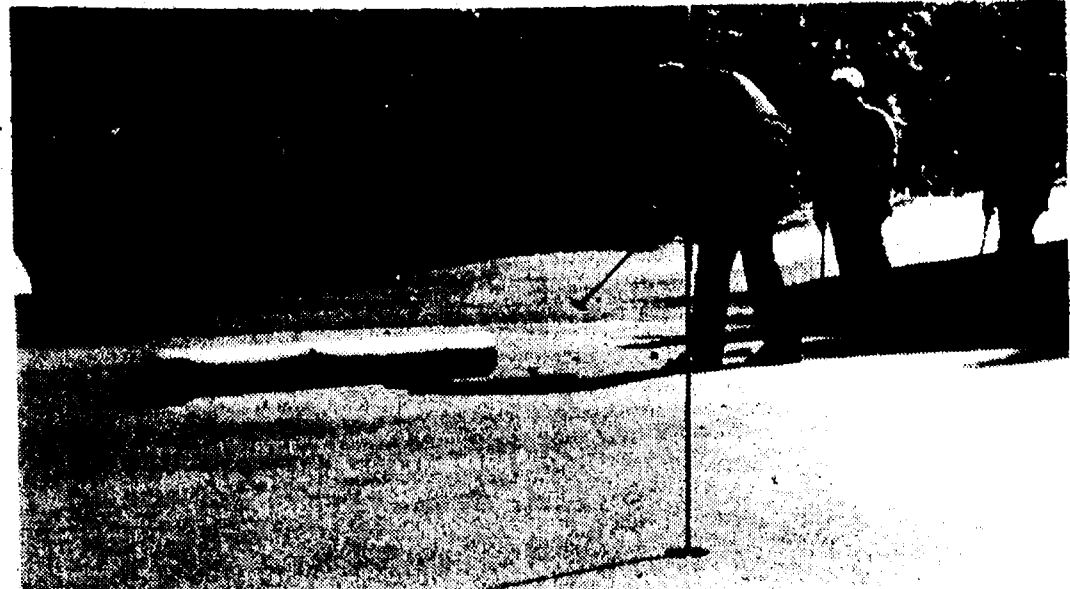

First Tuesday

Guest speaker for the Oct. 7 First Tuesday meeting sponsored by the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce will be John Scott, CPA, of Hill Woodcock & Distel.

Scott, who will be appearing through the courtesy of the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, will be speaking of "Money Management for Businesses and Individuals."

This topic includes general management advice for small businesses, taxation, record-keeping, and retirement plans.

The meeting is open to all interested individuals and will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. at Boyne City Hall on Lake Street. Coffee and rolls will be served.

Notice of Public Hearing Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals

An application for a variance in the provisions of the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance has been filed with the Zoning Board of Appeals by Mr. Mark Kowalske, agent for the owners Dennis Caughey and Dale Asbury. The property is situated in the R-2 Residential District and is located at 108 Groveland Street.

The request, if approved, would authorize the change of occupancy from one non-conforming use to another pursuant to Article IV, Paragraph D.7, in the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance.

A public hearing will be held on Monday, Oct. 13, 1980, at 7:00 p.m. in the City Commission Chambers at City Hall, 319 North Lake Street, at which time interested citizens may present their views on the matter in person, by writing, or by representative.

If you know of interested property owners who do not receive notification from the city, it will be appreciated if you will inform them of the time and place of the hearing.

Further information may be obtained from City Hall or call 582-6597.

Pioneer spirit found in local artists

BY KATHY JOHNSON

Like the pioneers moving west in the 1800's, many talented artists have moved, and are moving, to the Charlevoix County area. They come via Paris, Texas, Detroit, Ohio, Battle Creek and Chicago.

They come from large cities and smaller towns, all with a desire to carve a place for themselves in Northern Michigan.

No color tour of Northern Michigan would be complete without a trip to visit some of these pioneer craftsmen—potters, painters, photographers, jewelers, wood carvers and weavers. The area abounds in fine artists.

Starting in the city of Charlevoix, a visit to Barbara Godwin to see some of her functional porcelain and stoneware will help set the mood. The shop, which is located at 230 Antrim, carries a sign reading "It Used to be Art Cleaners."

In 1926 the building, which was then a grocery store, changed and became a cleaners. Until just this year, when Barbara moved her shop to this location, it was still a cleaners...thus the name "It Used to be Art Cleaners."

Open by appointment during the color tours, Barbara blends the experience of Paris, Lansing and an apprenticeship with potter Bonnie Staffel to provide functional and lovely pottery. For appointment, call 547-6804.

From Charlevoix you can visit to Russ and Sue Bolt's Grange Hall Shop, located 3 miles south of town on C-65, Marion Center Road. Although the hours are from 10 to 6 daily, it's a good idea to call for an appointment.

Russ and Sue are some of that pioneer stock. Like several artists in the area they moved up in stages. Their shop (and home), which sells pottery and paintings, was once a farmer's Grange hall. Sue moved up first, six years ago, and then Russ joined her about four years ago.

"When we moved up here and bought this place, most of our friends thought we were crazy. They still do. We still don't have all the things done that we want, but it's coming," explains Russ.

Located in the basement of this fine old building is their studio. Here Russ and Sue both create their characteristic pottery creations and work on their painting. Sue does excellent paintings and graphics and they both show her unique style. Russ creates watercolors and many show the fine old buildings like the Grange Hall and the Jordan Inn.

The Bolt creations are each unique and a trip to this shop will not only allow you fine sampling of Northern Michigan craftsmanship, but a beautiful look at some of the nicer color in the area as the nearby orchards and the many trees turn their brilliant shades for fall.

For the color tour lover with a little extra time, a trip to Elk Rapids down U.S. 31 will provide not only outstanding color but an opportunity to view the historic "Old Town Hall" in Elk Rapids.

The Old Town Hall has been restored and painted with old-time advertisements. Located on River Street, opposite the bay, the hall features ceramics by Phyllis Young and figure drawings and watercolors by Victor C. Hayes.

On Sunday, Oct. 12, from noon to 5 p.m., there will be a special color tour art exhibit. Refreshments will be served. A trip to Elk Rapids, especially for the Old Town Hall exhibit, would be well worth the gas.

Phyllis Young also has her own shop in Elk Rapids, just two blocks off U.S. 31. Turn east at the Elk Rapids Packing Co. corner, cross the railroad and turn right to 830 Miller Park Road. She's open 10 to 5, all year long.

Victor Hayes' shop is one-half mile off U.S. 31 on Ames Street, located in two red cabins. You may want to phone to be sure he's open. 264-9733.

Another popular stop for color tourists is The Crockery, located between Ironton and East Jordan on M-66. Nancy Riggs Koucky and Chuck Koucky are the artisans here and their products are fine weavings by Nancy and pottery by Chuck.

Chuck, who is originally from Saginaw, moved up to their "old house" first. "I came up with a friend and when we pulled in the drive we sank our four-wheel vehicle in the mud and stopped. We got out and went up to the house. The windows were out and the door was open. It was cold."

"My friend was horrified. He'd just bought a nice little house on a nice little plot and couldn't believe I'd bought this house and the acreage," explained Chuck of his first night there.

"We slept on the floor and it was cold. He wanted to go get a motel." Chuck and Nancy both grin when they talk about their friends, many of whom thought they were somewhat deranged for this venture. Four and a half years later, they've got a nice new studio next to the house, but Nancy explains, "There is still a lot to do. I want the kitchen finished this year before winter." Chuck grins.

Nancy Riggs-Koucky begins preparation for a new weaving by threading her loom. Nancy and husband, Chuck, have their own shop in Ironton called The Crockery.

Throughout the month of October their shop and studio will be open every weekend featuring not only their own pottery and weavings, but photography by East Jordan resident Nancy Carey. If you can't make it on the weekends, you might give them a call at 536-7289 to see if they're open.

When you leave The Crockery you are in for a beautiful drive down M-66 to East Jordan and on out to Alba Road to the Jordan Valley Studios. After you leave East Jordan just watch for the rainbow signs that will lead you to the green building which is the studio.

Handcrafted jewelry, belt buckles, area wildlife photography and hand-made woodstoves are some of the items created by the talented twosome of Jerry Aydrott and Linda Beers-Aydrott.

Originally from down state, Jerry and Linda are a back-to-nature couple who moved to the area about six years ago and purchased an old five-acre homestead.

Linda creates exquisite jewelry which displays her deep feelings of peace and love for nature. Jerry is a metal worker of the first order and can create a thing of beauty and a utilitarian stove with the same fine craftsmanship he puts into his wildlife photos.

Jordan Valley Studios is one of the most versatile on your tour.

Completing your tour is a visit with area artist Marion MacKay. Marion and 'Bas' MacKay make their home just off M-32 at Cracker Barrel Hill, south of East Jordan, where Marion spends her time painting and writing.

Some fifteen years ago when they purchased Cracker Barrel Hill, it consisted of a log cabin, leaning heavily to one side, and several other buildings and sheds, all leaning in one direction or another.

"Our friends and family thought we were crazy, but we were to enthusiastic to see all that was ahead," said Marion.

Marion then told me of her experiences with snakes in the kitchen, hornets everywhere and their years spent in a trailer trying to fix up their "new" home to a liveable condition. Marion's home and her studio, which is just behind the house, demonstrate the uniqueness which is Marion.

Marion specializes in large painting done in oil, but she does do some work in watercolor. Some of Marion's work includes the use of crayola. Her huge paintings dwarf her elfish size and bring to life the experiences and visions of the day. When I visited with Marion she was deeply involved with a work comprised of scarecrows. Delightful.

The studio where Marion does her painting and displays her work, including some handmade jewelry she created from bright colored beads and stones, is a delight in itself. With a fine pot-bellied stove to warm her, Marion's personality lights the room as she works on paintings, stained glass for her own use and other media.

Marion's studio will be open by appointment during the color tour season. "I've just got to get out and get some of that beautiful color on canvas, but I'd love to have visitors. They just need to give me a call and be sure I'm not off sketching," she said.

Complete your tour with a visit to Marion's (by appointment, phone 582-7662) and then a quick trip down to Deadman's Hill for the spectacular color of the season.

Pixypainter, Marion MacKay, talks about some of her paintings which are seen behind her. MacKay, like many Northern Michigan artists, moved up to reclaim a homestead and create a place for her artistry.

HOMEBUYER TAX BREAK

If a taxpayer sells his principal residence and buys another one for use as a principal residence from 18 months before to 18 months after the date of sale, the gain on the sale will not be currently taxed. This holds as long as the cost of the new residence equals or exceeds the selling price of the old.

If the cost of the new residence is less than the selling price of the old, the gain is taxed only to the extent of the difference.

Where the taxpayer builds, rather than buys, construction must be started from 18 months before to 18 months after the date of the sale and the new home occupied by two years after the sale. This new rule extends both periods by six months.

School aides Report cards may not list them, but...

What are all these aides in school for? What do they do?

Parents who have never had their child helped by an aid—and, indeed, some that have and don't know it—might ask what the school has in mind in hiring these people.

Certainly when the parents were in school, there were no such things as aides.

Many things have happened since those days, however. One is that governments and people are more insistent that the needs of every child, not just the average child, be met.

Another thing is that people and their children seem to have more emotional stress these days. And that makes more needs to be met.

Whether the problem is emotions or short attention-span or plain perplexity, aides have been "a very important part of the total curriculum," according to Ed Snyder, principal of Boyne City's elementary school.

In kindergarten and junior primary classes in Boyne City, an aide will work in the classroom, helping a small group or just one child—a half-hour here, a half-hour there, sometimes giving even a few minutes of special attention.

In first through fifth grades, the child

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

who is below grade level in math or reading leaves the classroom for a period to meet with an aide in a room set apart for this purpose.

In the elementary school 11 Title I aides, some part time, come daily to help the children. All are mothers at this time, and have been given in-service training. They work under the direction of Sherry Sheldon, Title I director. Some have been on the job for eight or more years.

Tests, teacher referral, and parents' requests are used in determining who gets this extra help.

Snyder says the program is evaluated every year for the state. "Some children show growth—and some don't," he says, adding he has seen great differences in some.

Besides the Title I aides, five part-time aides come in to supervise the playground, and these, plus two special ed aides, are paid for out of the general fund.

Over at the middle school, Principal Jack Cyr has had aides for the past three years helping students in any class they were failing. Sometimes they come out part of the period, sometimes for the whole class time.

Students have requested the help for themselves, but referral is usually by teacher and parent request.

This year, however, budget has reduced the amount of help that can be given. Only two aides—and they work six instead of eight hours.

Cyr says if they could dig up $6,900, they could get the two hours back, and that, in the mysteries of bureaucracy, would qualify the school for an additional four CETA aides—a tremendous increase in much-needed help.

Students will readily tell you that an aide made it possible for them to pass.

The high school has three aides, funded by the state to help out in vocation classes. A special ed aide completes the roster there.

In this age of long school bus rides, staying after school for help has its problems. Not passing to the next grade has its problems. Special help in class has its limits. The aides meet many needs.

An aide is a sort of in-school aunt or uncle—with extra know-how. One wonders—who was the first aide...

Gideons hold annual banquet

The annual Pastor's Appreciation Banquet given by the Charlevoix County Gideons was held at the Dilworth Hotel on Saturday night, in commemoration of Gideon Week. About 77 Charlevoix and Emmet County Gideons and friends enjoyed the dinner, followed by a program of singing. Guest speaker Marlin Adams told of his experiences as a Gideon volunteer worker, and of other workers, in reaching people through Bibles placed in motels and hotels across the country. A Dignitary Bible was presented to Dr. Jerrian VanDellon of Ellsworth.

About 20 members of the Boyne Valley Federated Garden Club were guests at Gwen Fostic Studios in Benzonia on Wednesday. The group enjoyed a tour of the studio led by Mrs. Fostic, who was humorous in telling of her experiences of her work. Various items of design such as placemats, wrapping paper and wall hangings were on display. She also gave the group a rare tour of her personally designed living quarters. Objects of special interest were creative unique translucent fluorescent screen lamps.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bowers spent the weekend in Wawa, Ontario. Ed Hunt attended a housewarming in Muskegon over the weekend for his granddaughter Linda and husband David Beattie.

Eight ladies from the Boyne City Free Methodist Church attended the Women's Missionary Fellowship International of North Michigan Annual Retreat held at the Maranatha Bible Conference Grounds in Muskegon. About 206 people were there for the various seminars. Guest speaker was Grace Evoy of Flint.

Mrs. Myra Lewis and boys of Clarkston and her nephew Jeremy Morey of Ferndale were here for a long weekend visiting her mother, Ann Jenkins.

Beth Hoaglund and Pat Anzell, both students at Central Michigan University, were home over the weekend to visit their parents and to attend the BCHS homecoming game.

The Boyne City Area Women met at Country Star this past week for lunch, followed by their monthly meeting which covered plans for their fall and winter projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson and daughter Janet of Grand Rapids were

Boyne Area

NANCY NORTHUP
582-9174

recent guests of Lelia Voelker.

Mr. and Mrs. Norvin Woolsey of Grass Lake visited the Charles Phillips home over the weekend.

The Oral Sutliffs held an end of summer family picnic on Sunday. Those present were Thurman Sutliff, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCarry, Mr. and Mrs. Steve McCarry, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Eaton and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Nichols.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Madore of Greenbush were weekend guests of Mrs. Ruth VanHoesen.

The Rebekah Circle of the Methodist Church met at the home of Louis Harmon on Wednesday with the program "Jesus makes me laugh with him" presented by Mildred Burns of Walloon Lake.

Eileen and Mike Belleau of Gladstone are spending the week here with her parents, the James McCarrys.

The Andy Andericks spent a week in Tennessee and visited the Elvis Presley estate, Graceland.

Ann and Walt Ward and son Todd attended the Lions football game at the Silverdome in Pontiac over the weekend.

The Laff-a-Lot Club met at Naomi Davis' home on Friday for their noon luncheon. They spent the afternoon playing Bunco. High prize winner was Nan Kritcher, low prize was Irene Kelts and Bunco was Laura Eggers. Next meeting will be on Oct. 10 at Dorothy Nowland's.

The Past Noble Grands met at Lorna Holland's home in East Jordan. After lunch they played games of whoopie. Maude Hammond, Maude Towne and Dora Wicker won prizes. Their next meeting will be held on Oct. 22 at Jenny Brooks' home.

Paul Varnum and Keith McGeorge went to the Detroit Lions' football game held at the Superdome over the weekend.

The Boyne City Friendship club held their September meeting in the City Hall Auditorium with 52 members present. A delicious potluck was enjoyed. Guest speaker was Rich Kelly, Superintendent of Boyne City schools. Due to the color tour this month there will be no other meeting held in October.

Thirty-three seniors played bingo on Thursday. Winners were Susan Wells, Dorothy Nowland, Maurice Stebbins, Pansey Savage. Cover all, Goldie Harrelson; door prize, Mable Hansen.

Manning and Irene Sayles of Boyne Falls celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary on Sept. 26. Sayles and the former Irene Szarewicz were married in Detroit, where they both worked in a U.S. Rubber Co. plant. Sayles was born and raised in Boyne City, moved to find work in Detroit, and returned to live in Boyne Falls about 20 years ago.

Students again save "Labels for Education"

The Boyne City Middle School is again participating in the "Labels for Education" program this school year. They would like to appeal once more to parents, relatives, friends, and neighbors of the school and students to give their assistance.

The label program consists of collecting labels from 118 Campbell product varieties packed in 26 different sizes, which includes V-8 juices, Franco-American foods, and Swanson canned foods in addition to all the soup varieties.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grades have a contest to see who can collect the most labels and the winning grade gets a reward. If you have a favorite student or grade, drop your labels off at the Middle School office, 311 S. Park St., Boyne City, or mail them third class and designate the grade preferred.

The contest does not start until later this fall, but you may start saving your labels now and you will have a large collection to contribute for the kick-off.

"We will gratefully accept your cooperation again this year," said Flossie Brinley, the middle school librarian who is organizing the project. "Everyone was very cooperative last year, and we more than made our goal, so we were able to get extra equipment."

Screening clinic to be held Wednesday

Developmental Screening Clinics will be held for children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1982. These clinics are sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The clinics are scheduled to be in Boyne City and Boyne Falls on Wednesday, Oct. 8. The purpose of these clinics is to provide parents information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three year old children, and to have your child informally screened in order to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years. Clinics are free with appointments made on a first come, first served basis. For information or an appointment, contact Joan Smith at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, 547-9947.

Boyne Falls couple wed in afternoon ceremony

Rhonda L. Marchinkewicz and Mark A. Crego, both of Boyne Falls, were wed in an afternoon ceremony on Sept. 27 at the Trinity Pentecostal Church in Boyne City with Rev. John Spohn officiating.

Given in marriage by her mother, Carol A. Crouterfield of Boyne City, the bride wore a gown designed by her cousin Roxanne Moyer of Petoskey. The gown was floor length empire style with a chapel train. The flower arrangements carried by the bride and her maids of honor were made by Jenny Lawson of Boyne City.

The maid of honor was sister of the bride, Rene Marchinkewicz, and the brother of the groom, Timothy Crego, was the best man. Bridesmaids were Paula Crouterfield, sister of the bride, and Kim Foster of Boyne Falls. The flower girl was Claudine Crego, sister of the groom.

Ushers were Tom Mons of Boyne Falls; Todd Vallad, cousin of the bride; Bill Cole of Ionia, cousin of the bride; Ron Crego, cousin of the groom and Randy Reynolds of Boyne Falls. The ringbearer was Wayne Crouterfield, brother of the bride. The reception was held at the Hudson Township Hall in Elmira and was hosted by the bride's mother, Mrs. Crouterfield, and the groom's father, Sharon Crego of Boyne Falls.

Mark and Rhonda Crego

The couple will honeymoon in the Upper Peninsula and will make their home in Boyne Falls. They are both 1980 graduates of Boyne Falls High School. Rhonda is a secretary for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Mark is the Assistant Athletic Director at Boyne Falls Schools.

Boyne couple have outdoor wedding

Sandra D. Sloop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sloop, and Michael E. Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Simmons, all of Boyne City, were married on Saturday, Sept. 6.

An outdoor wedding was held at the home of the bride with the Rev. Gil Fox, of East Jordan, performing the double ring ceremony. The bride's gown was empress style and was made by the groom's mother. Her arm bouquet was of red gladiolus, white daisies and roses. All of the flowers were arranged by the bride.

Bridesmaids were Sheila Sloop, sister of the bride, and Gail Tompkins. Both were wearing peach colored gowns.

Best man was Russell Yardley and the usher was Vic Kowalski. Flower girl was Melissa Krupa, niece of the groom, and ringbearer was Casey Mayhew, nephew of the bride.

Sandra and Michael Simmons

A reception was held following the wedding for about 200 friends and relatives. The bride and groom are both seniors at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Leah Green

New 4-H Programing Assistant

Leah Green, Charlevoix resident, has brought her talents to the County Extension office in Boyne City as the new 4-H Programing Assistant for Charlevoix County.

When asked about her new position Green said, "4-H is getting away from just being horses and cows and cooking. There are a lot of other options open for youth interested in 4-H and I'm hoping to have the opportunity to visit with young people and prospective adult volunteers."

"We're getting more into crafts and other areas. If there is an interest in something, 4-H is probably getting into it. Volunteer adults don't have to be an expert at some skill or craft. 4-H can be a learning experience for everyone."

Interested youth or adult volunteers may contact Green at 582-6232 between the hours of 8:30 and 4:30. The extension office is located at 319 N. Lake in Boyne City.

Most recently Green has been employed as a substitute teacher in Charlevoix where her husband is also a teacher. Prior to this she was a full time teacher for four years.

Ramblers stand 4-0

BOYNE CITY - The Ramblers take their perfect 4-0 record to Petoskey Friday night, where the Northmen will be hungry for a homecoming victory.

Petoskey has won only once in four starts, but "records don't mean anything when Boyne City, Petoskey and Charlevoix play each other," said Boyne coach Bob McCullough.

"They are a normal Petoskey team," McCullough said. "They do everything pretty well. They're well coached."

The Northmen lost a 6-0 battle at St. Ignace last week, and they also lost their quarterback, sophomore Tom Nelson. Nelson broke his foot in the game and will be out for the season.

Petoskey's running backs are Paul Fruge, Eric Simard and Dave Schuch. Schuch ran back a kickoff last year to beat the Ramblers.

The Ramblers, meanwhile, are off to their best start in 12 years with four wins in a row.

Last week's victim was Rogers City, but Boyne only won by a 20-14 margin. It turned the homecoming dance after the game into a victory celebration, however.

Coach McCullough is obviously pleased with his team's good start this fall—but it isn't a total surprise.

"I knew we had a good group of guys when we started," he said.

"We do have some depth, and that really helps. When you get a guy hurt and you put another one in and you don't lose anything, that's a big plus. Sometimes we've had to fold our tent and die when the starters were out."

"These kids have worked real hard, and they have a pretty good attitude right now," McCullough said. "The only thing I regret is that we've had some tight games and we haven't been able to get everybody in to play."

Friday's homecoming victory was tight to the end. Boyne had opened a 20-6 lead in the fourth quarter, but the Hurons picked up 53 yards on the classic faked-pass "flea-flicker" play to set up a touchdown. That brought them to within six points at 20-14.

After the score, Boyne failed to pick up a first down and punted to Rogers City with less than two minutes left in the game. But the Rambler defense held to preserve the victory.

Junior quarterback John Tompkins played a big part in all three of Boyne's touchdowns. He scored on a 23 yard run in the first quarter and a short sneak in the fourth. In the third period, Tompkins hit Kerry Kruzal with a short pass that Kruzal turned into an 80 yard gainer. Kruzal didn't quite score on the play, but three plays later he ran it across the goal line for six points.

Boyne picked up 149 yards rushing and 80 passing for a total of 229. The Hurons gained 183 total yards. Boyne had 13 first downs to Rogers City's seven.

Red Devils mix it up to win over Harbor Springs, 52-6.

Arch-rival Mancy next for EJ

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devils' perennial arch-rivalry with Mancelona is coming up Friday night. Whenever these two Ski Valley League powers meet, it promises to be a good battle.

The Ironmen looked like they might be in for a long season after losing their first two games this fall, but East Jordan coach Frank Holes says Mancy looked much better last weekend.

After losing to Elk Rapids and Gaylord St. Mary, Mancelona bounced back to whip Inland Lakes 36-0 last week.

"They played those first two games with some big guys at running backs," Holes said. "But their coach moved them onto the line and brought in some small, fast kids to run the ball. It worked a lot better."

The Ironmen, like the Devils, are primarily a running team, Holes said. "They'll run right, run left, and then run it up the middle—just like we do," he laughed.

Well, why not? East Jordan rolled up 507 yards on the ground last Saturday in beating Harbor Springs, 52-6.

Actually the Devils were pretty hospitable to their hosts, because all of the scoring was done in the first half. Second and third string players played the last three minutes of the first half and the entire second half for EJHS.

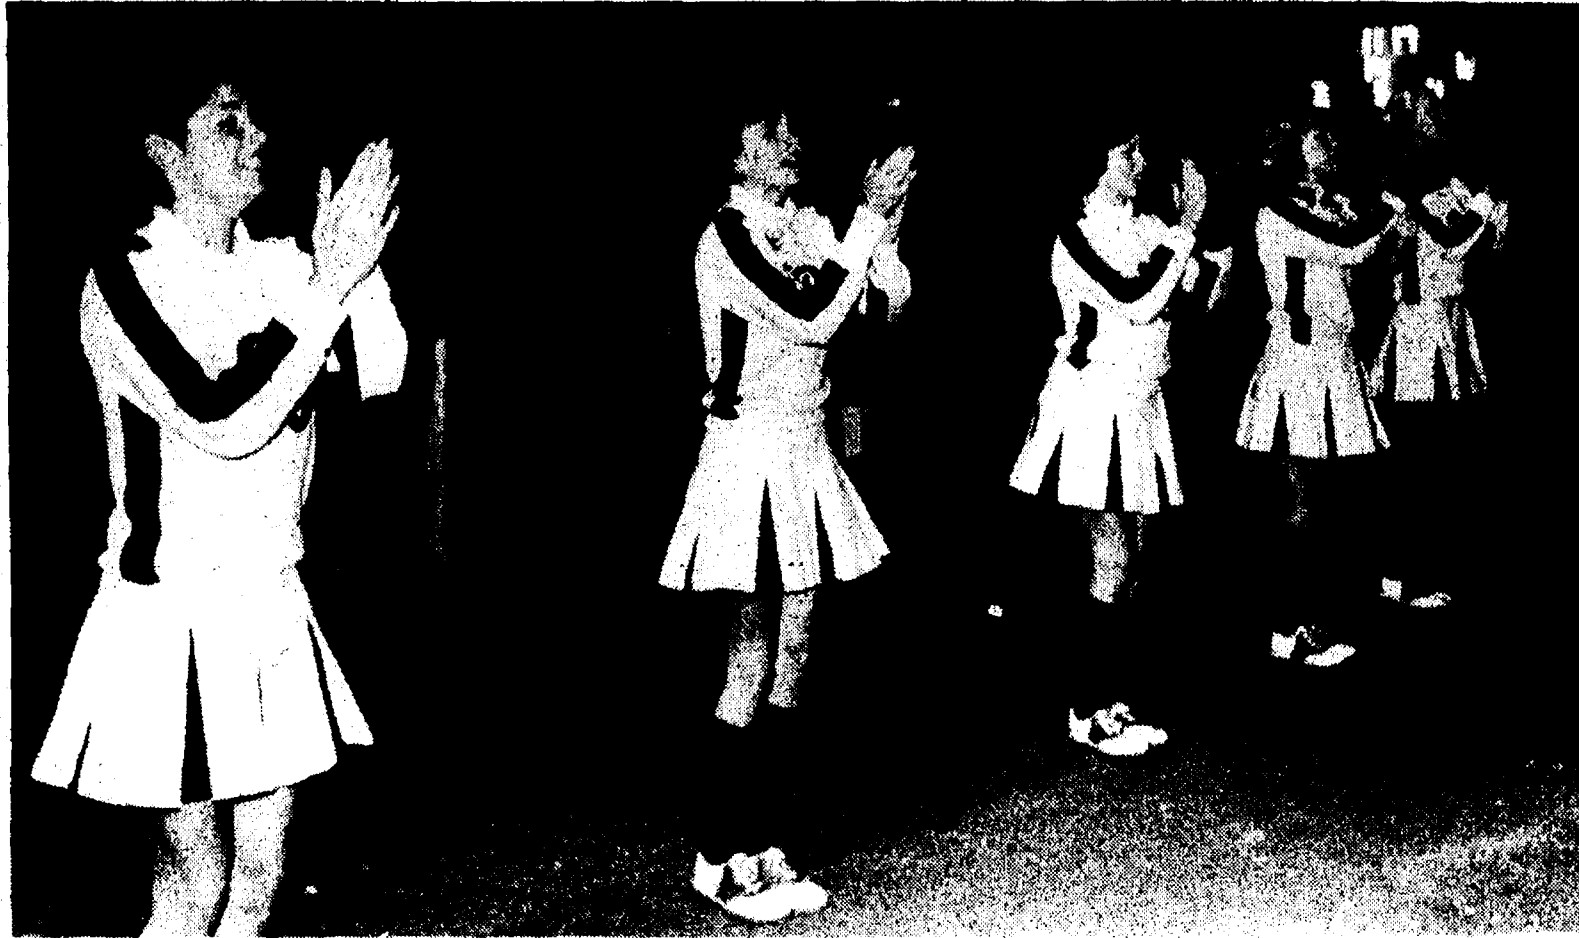

Even so, the Devils' dynamite trio of junior runners gained a total of 360 yards in the half-game they played.

Steve Graham ran for three touchdowns and 150 yards, while Bill Spence had two touchdowns and 140 yards, and Tom Peters picked up two extra point conversions and 70 yards.

Senior DuWayne Dougherty also added a TD on a 14 yard run, and junior reserve Mike Sheridan had a five yard touchdown run.

"We just put it all together there in the first half," Holes said. "Everything was really clicking—the blocking and the running."

The win raised East Jordan's record to 3-1 overall and 2-0 in the league. The Devils' only loss was to Houghton Lake, which is ranked by the Detroit Free Press as the fifth best Class C team in the state.

Rambler cheerleaders have a lot to shout about! The Ramblers won their homecoming game 20-14 last Friday.

Cross-country makes annual run

BOYNE CITY - The cross-country team had its annual 20 mile run last Saturday.

Tim Crumbaugh had an excellent time of two hours, 29 minutes and 40 seconds, breaking the old school record set by Brian McGeorge.

Crumbaugh broke the record by 3:13 and Matt Irwin broke the old record by 12 seconds. The rest of the team also had Bob Wollenberg and Bob Taylor to go with them. Both coaches finished the run and donated their pledges to the team.

The 20 mile run is held to help raise money for sweatshirts and a trip to Central Michigan University for the state finals later in the year.

Last Thursday in a meet at Rogers City, Boyne placed third out of four teams. Charlevoix took first place, Rogers City second and St. Ignace fourth.

Crumbaugh took fifth place and Jim Brabbs took 14th. Brian McGeorge finished 12th place for the J.V.

Coach Wollenberg is looking forward to ending the year right by winning third place or better at the regionals to qualify for the state finals.

Sports Briefs

No bear roast

Sorry, there will not be a bear roast at Whiting Park after all.

It seems someone played a practical joke on three Boyne City residents who went bear hunting last month. They called in a real "fish story" to The Press.

The story, printed on Sept. 18, said Dana Shaler and Max Houck went bear hunting in the Upper Peninsula and landed a seven-foot tall, 400-pound bear.

In reality, Shaler and Houck were accompanied by Larry Hutchinson on the trip. Houck and Hutchinson each shot a bear—but they were closer to five feet tall, and the two weighed about 400 pounds combined. Shaler didn't get a bear, but he did shoot a coyote.

The story also incorrectly stated that the hunters were tracking the bear with dogs.

And—also incorrectly—the prankster who called in the story said the hunters planned "to have a bear roast at Whiting Park within a few weeks, which will be open to the public."

Free passes

A new policy approved by the East Jordan school board has made free passes available to all senior citizens in the school district. The season passes are good for all home athletic events.

To get a pass, stop at the school administration office in the middle school. Anyone age 60 and over is eligible.

Boyne City has had a similar policy in effect for several years. To get a season pass for BCHS sports events, contact the athletic director's office in the high school.

Sports boosters

Boyne City Sports Boosters will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 6 at the high school cafeteria. Anyone interested in sports and school spirit is invited to join the group.
