No choice; Boyne plans 45% water rate hike

BOYNE CITY—City water rates will soon have to rise because the city charter and the bonds issued for water service improvement both require the city's water services pay for themselves.

At the city commission meeting Tuesday, City Manager Tim Clifton explained the city has been in violation of both requirements since 1976 when it started taking money from its general funds to cover the deficit in the cost of running the water service to city residents.

Every year the cost has increased, so that the borrowing for 1980 is up to $115,350, and this is not including such things as depreciation costs.

In previous years efforts were unsuccessful to raise water rates effectively and finance more sweeping repairs to the 70-year-old system of mains.

"Now we have to pay for that," noted Commissioner Catherine Jessup.

The price is high, the commissioners agree. An average increase of 45 percent in water bills will hurt enough to make lawn care a luxury. Water itself will be a luxury, according to those who attended the commission meeting.

While the actual water usage fee will remain at 75 cents per 1,000 gallons, the quarterly billing on service costs (like the basic monthly charge on a telephone bill) will need to jump from $10 on a typical bill to $15.50. The sewer base rate will also increase from $10 to $15.50.

Proposed sewage charges, which are figured on water use, also rise sharply—to $1.25 per 1,000 gallons. Connection charges are another place where the fees rise—from $200 to $300.

Water turn-off fee, which is now below the cost of doing it—$2.50—will go to $15 if the changes go into effect.

The whole proposed schedule will appear in The Charlevoix County Press.

The commission has struggled to find an alternative but everything else, as Commissioner Martin Paul pointed out, only postpones the day of reckoning.

According to City Attorney Harvey Varnum, delaying affects the city's standing in the bond market.

The increases in the schedule were figured by a professional agency, Clifton said, in a five-year projection of water service costs.

Included is a modest capital improvement fund, but Clifton said he couldn't predict how fast renovation of the badly leaking system could be made. As it stands, the 33 miles of water lines and 33 miles of sewer lines would cost $10.5 million to replace.

Some repairs could be made, Jessup noted, if the Small Cities Grant of about $500,000 were to come through from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Hearings have been scheduled on the proposed rates, the next one being Nov. 11.

Some help to the city's struggle with water mains will come from the first stages of the Harborage construction.

Dave Trout, Harborage architect, proposed to the city commission Tuesday a 15-inch sanitary sewer pipe down Front Street, stopping at Phase I of the project, and connecting to the present line at approximately Second Street.

Harborage only needs eight-inch pipe, but the city, by paying the cost of the additional seven inches, would benefit by new, adequate sewer, for only $10,000, according to Clifton.

The commission noted there will eventually have to be sewer lines around the whole lake, and the cost of even serving nearby growth would be much greater if the city had to put in the line.

In addition, Harborage will be putting in eight-inch water lines connecting to city lines in such a way as to create a water loop, thereby increasing pressure reserves.

Storm water will be handled by directing run-off into the lawns and permanent ponds.

More and more riders try new bus system

BY KATHY JOHNSON

Ask Kelly Stackus, dispatcher for the new Charlevoix County Transit system or George Kraft, daily supervisor, how they feel about the response to busing in the area and they'll tell you they are "very pleased."

Kraft said that overall they are pleased with the response to the system. "There are a lot of people that we can't get to, but a lot of people are satisfied with the system," Kraft said.

The county transit system got underway on July 21 and had a record day last week when there were a total of 321 riders on Oct. 8. During the month of September, 3,880 riders participated with an average of 280 riders per day.

There are several bus runs that are almost full, with places for just one or two more riders, but most other runs have space available on a regular basis, Stackus said.

Most of the regular runs are set up to take people to and from work. For example, one bus leaves East Jordan around 7:15 a.m. and arrives in Boyne City by 7:45.

Another run starts in Charlevoix around 6 a.m., with a stop in East Jordan, then at Grandvue by 6:50 a.m. and into Boyne City by 7:15 a.m. That same bus then returns to East Jordan with a load of riders by 8 a.m.

There is another run from Boyne City to East Jordan, arriving by 7 a.m. to go to the Iron Works, Gulf & Western, and East Jordan Tool and Die.

One of the problems with the system for many people is the lack of buses going where they want, exactly when they want them.

"We really need 24-hour notice in order to assure people a bus," said Stackus. Even then, because of limited buses and runs that are already scheduled, it depends on when a person needs a ride as to whether they can be scheduled.

One recent call to The Press came from a lady who was upset because she couldn't get a ride to the doctor's office. The problem was that at 3:30 p.m., she was requesting a ride (for 8:15 the next morning) during a peak ride time. Kraft indicated that at some time periods all buses are busy and that the system is operating almost to capacity.

Regular runs are made on Monday to Potoskey for doctor and hospital appointments. The bus leaves Charlevoix by 9:30 a.m. and then goes to East Jordan, Boyne City and on to Potoskey.

Asked about expansion, Kraft explained, "We're somewhat limited to what we can do. The program we are under provides us with seven buses. One of those is supposed to be on standby to cover breakdowns and emergencies, but we are actually operating all seven buses now."

Kraft went on to say that the state is trying to find another bus that is in usable condition to be a standby bus. "We'll be lucky if we can get another one... and we really need it," Kraft said.

"If I have a bus break down for any reason, then we are short because we are using all we have now. A standby could be pulled in to cover that vehicle until it could be repaired without loss of service to our customers."

Service is available Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 24-hour advance reservations will usually assure you of service. No smoking, eating or drinking are allowed on the buses.

Rates for the service are 40 cents a one-way trip within city limits and not to exceed two miles. Within the county and exceeding two miles the cost is 70 cents one-way.

Trips outside of the county, not exceeding 10 miles beyond the county line, cost $1.50. Children under 12 years of age, handicapped people, persons needed to assist handicappers and senior citizens pay half fare.

EJ schools make cuts...again

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN—It was a scene that had been acted out many times in the past six months.

The elementary school cafeteria was two-thirds full of people who had come to a school board meeting. Many of them were teachers who had come to talk about how they could cut school programs to save money.

The fact that voters had finally approved some operating millage last Thursday didn't brighten anyone's spirits.

Two extra proposals totaling 1.7 mills were defeated...and even if they had passed, the latest in a series of state budget cuts still would have left the district short of operating funds.

Before the election, $158,000 in cuts had been made. After the election, administrators chopped another $74,000 out of the budget.

But the big problem still facing the school system is that $150,000 in cuts still need to be made unless more millage is approved by voters.

Little was decided Tuesday night, other than the voters must be asked for the fourth time this year to approve millage. An election date of Dec. 8 was set.

The specific amount of millage to be requested on the ballot will be decided in a special school board meeting at 7 p.m. Monday.

Meanwhile, a steering committee of teachers, citizens and administrators will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday to make a recommendation on the millage amount—and programs to cut if the millage doesn't pass in December. That group will meet in the elementary school media center.

A rough list of possible cuts mentioned Tuesday include: custodians, high school building trades program, a half-time learning center teacher, half-time middle school counselor, half-time middle school reading specialist, full-time elementary school art and music teachers, athletics, band, giving administrators part-time teaching positions, and general curriculum cuts in high school and middle school.

When the final cut list is formulated next week, some of the cuts would probably be made immediately and others would be made only if the December millage did not pass.

Supt. Mel Rullman told the school board and audience that the school is in "an involved, complicated situation," because the State Legislature has not finalized a permanent state aid formula.

The $150,000 in budget cuts is using a conservative estimate provided by the state Department of Education, Rullman said.

Other Lansing officials—"most of them politicians"—think that the state aid cuts won't be as severe as now predicted. "If we use their formula, we would break even or come out ahead without making anymore cuts," Rullman said. "But he have no guarantee. We can't build a budget on hope."

City won't have to repay grant?

BOYNE CITY—The engineering firm that built the city's wastewater treatment plant assured city commissioners Tuesday they will not have to dig into empty pockets to pay back their $108,300 grant.

Williams and Works vice president, Zane Miller, told the city commission Tuesday, "We feel it was unfortunate you should receive such a letter from the EPA." He was referring to the Environmental Protection Agency's recent threat to require federal funds to be returned by the city.

The funds have been spent on the sewage treatment plant. EPA, not specifically, questioned the use of part of the money by W&W and asked to see their books.

Miller said the only letter his company got from EPA was a brief one asking for their position on auditing their books.

Miller told the commission the process "takes tremendous time" and the expense is not covered, but that they would provide answers to any specific questions the EPA might ask.

"What is at stake is the government's right to go into company books," Miller said.

"I would like to assure you we would do nothing at all to cause you embarrassment," he told the commission. He assured the commission they were not in jeopardy, adding the company had an attorney standing by.

City Manager Clifton said, "It's a legal question...it won't go away overnight." Then he added, "You can't get blood out of a turnip."

Press wins national award

The Charlevoix County Press editorial page has been recognized as one of the best in the nation for a newspaper of its size.

The National Newspaper Association announced this week that The Press had been awarded an Honorable Mention certificate in the editorial page division of its 1980 newspaper contest.

The Press was in competition with hundreds of other weekly newspapers in the "less than 5,000" circulation class.

The award was announced in conjunction with National Newspaper Week, Oct. 12-18.

The honorable mention award placed The Press editorial page among the top five in its class in the nation.

Beating out The Press were weekly newspapers from Plaquemine, La.; South Lyons, Mich. and Sidney, Neb. Sharing an honorable mention with The Press was a paper from Yellow Springs, Ohio.

The only other northern Michigan newspaper to win an award in the national contest was the Otsego County Herald Times of Gaylord, which won first place for a special edition published when a local team won the girls' Little League World Series.

BC Community Ed hard hit by state aid cuts

BY KATHY JOHNSON

BOYNE CITY - Recent state budget cuts have now moved Boyne City out of the state aid formula, and one of the hardest hit programs will be Community Education.

In a report to the school board Monday, Community Education Director, Judy Johnson, showed how state aid funding and other programs had enabled the school district to have a $58,000 program with a "local cost" of only $13,273.69 for the 1979-80 school year.

Funding included state aid of $23,275.38, class fees of $4,459.50, Johnson's salary reimbursement of $8,289.98, CETA funding of $8,975.75 and miscellaneous income of $372.08 for a total of $45,472.69.

With expenses for the program running at $58,746.38, the local school system paid only the $13,273.69 difference last year.

With the loss of state aid for the current year and loss of some of the salary reimbursement, the cost to the local school system could be closer to $40,000 for the coming year.

Asked on Tuesday about funding for the program, Superintendent Rich Kelly said, "We've tried to keep the Community Education program costs down to about the same as last year. I'm prepared to bring in a balanced budget."

Kelly also indicated that the latest word on salary reimbursement was "we are going to receive some money for Community Education. No one knows how much."

Kelly went on to explain that the actual figures would not be available until January. Estimated figures for the year are around $4,000, but loss of all aid could result in the program costing nearly $45,000 for the 1980-81 school year.

At the school board meeting Johnson reviewed last year's programs and discussed the programs for the current year. Community Ed. during the 1979-80 year had over 1,100 participants in enrichment, recreation or high school completion courses.

Thirty classes were offered last year for high school completion and 65 for enrichment or recreation. There were 93 school-related and community groups that used the school buildings and some 982 people participated in activities at the buildings each month.

The 982 monthly participants did not include the sporting events or those participating in Community Ed. programming. These figures would push the total well over 1,000 per month.

Some of the special services Community Ed. offers include being a G.E.D. Testing Center for the area, sponsoring Men's Independent Basketball League, the July 4th art show, and the co-ed volleyball league.

The board seemed pleased with the program and Johnson reported that Community Ed. had also established a Farmers' Market this past summer at Old City Park. More than 100 vendors participated during the course of the summer.

In the past three years 26 adults have received diplomas through high school completion courses and for the current year there are 51 students enrolled.

When asked how many of those were potential graduates for the coming spring, Johnson said it would be January before she could tell. "Many people will add classes and some will drop out. We'll have to wait to see how it looks in January."

Johnson also reported on the new recreation program in the elementary school. "There is an after-school recreation program with about 40 kids participating on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday," Johnson said.

"On Thursday we have an arts and crafts day for grades one through five and on Saturday we have about 25 kids who are participating in soccer," she said.

There are also currently 13 enrichment classes operating at the high school. Upcoming plans include an art show to be held Dec. 6, in the high school gymnasium.

Other items discussed at the Monday board meeting included an audit report from Hill, Woodcock and Distel for the 1979-80 school year, tuition rates, and discussion on the building usage policy.

Following the meeting a closed session was held to discuss non-instructional negotiations.

Kelly reported on Tuesday that the board had passed a resolution ratifying the contract with the Michigan Educational Support Personal Association. MESPA represents non-teaching employees, including bus drivers, cooks, secretaries and receptionists. MESPA must still vote to accept the contract.

Last year, best in the state. This year, top 5 in the nation.

Prosecuting Attorney Scott T. Beatty, second from left, congratulates Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, Boyne City police officer Donald Hawkins and sheriff's deputy Dale Boehm Jr., for meritorious service in handling a dangerous arrest. The awards were given by the Michigan Sheriff's Association. The three lawmen apprehended Paul Thackaberry on Dec. 8, 1979, on Ferry Road in Evelline Township. At the time of his arrest, Thackaberry was armed with a .45 caliber, semi-automatic gun and threatened Lasater with the loaded weapon. Says Beatty, "It was due to their professionalism and restraint that the arrest was effected without any injuries."

Boyne hires grant consultant

BOYNE CITY - It won't completely restore the city to perfect water and sewer-line health, but the city commission thinks $500,000 would help at least some of the most serious problems of the system.

At their Oct. 6 meeting, the commission members voted to have Gove Associates gather the data necessary for a pre-application to Housing and Urban Development's Detroit office for a grant in this amount.

HUD's grants and low-cost loans are competitively awarded to small cities in areas of low and middle income levels. Besides renovating water and sewer lines, the grant would include raising substandard housing to code level.

This last feature will be available to individual home owners by next summer if HUD approval is earned.

Because Boyne City stands such a good chance of fulfilling HUD requirements, the commission voted the approximately $2,500 to have Gove Associates meet the Nov. 17 application deadline.

The total possible amount of the grant is limited by the grant program to a figure reached by multiplying the population by $150, producing for Boyne City, approximately $500,000.

The opportunity for input is Monday's noon hearing scheduled for the city residents. They can put forward what projects they think would be appropriate in addition to what the city has outlined. At the same time, the purpose of the city's choices will be explained.

Zych earns Alabama degree

Ralph Thomas Zych of Boyne City was one of 380 graduating students honored at the August honors convocation of the University of Alabama in Birmingham's School of Community and Allied Health. The ceremony recognized those students who completed their degree requirements in the summer quarter of 1980.

Zych earned a certificate in the Surgeon Assistant program.

Leftover funds help Boyne buy computer

BOYNE CITY - Moving into the computer age, Boyne City will be in the company of most other cities and counties in the area.

It will happen because the bonding that put $500,000 in the bank to buy the new city hall stipulated the money had to be spent on city hall and not transferred to something else.

Of the $50,000 remaining from the purchase of the city hall building, some went for a gas furnace and some for firebarn doors.

The remaining $23,000 is going to buy a data processor, city commissioners decided Tuesday.

For at least the past three years the commission has explored the possibility of using data processing. Governmental advisors have recommended computer use, and the financing of a 5120 I.B.M. machine would, including the "soft ware" to run it, fit the remaining city hall money.

The present city hall staff would be trained in the use of the computer. And although computer use in figuring water bills, payroll, accounts payable and so on would save days of staff time, Clifton says no one would be dropped from the staff. Administrative duties would soak up the computer-saved time.

Bogema is participating in the Midwest premiere performance of this old Agatha Christie mystery-comedy.

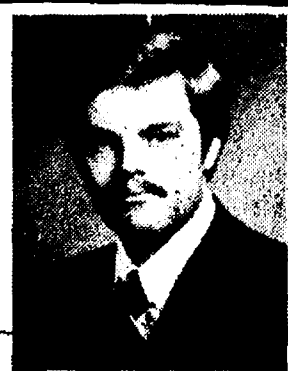

Bogema, a senior theatre arts major, starred in "My Fair Lady" and other productions at Boyne City High School. She also has appeared in productions by the Lakeside Players and Northwestern Michigan Players.

At Oakland University, Bogema has participated in the productions of "Celebration," "Turn of the Screw," and "The Good Doctor."

Her other interests besides theatre include playing the piano, singing, writing, traveling and skiing.

Do survivors of a sudden death feel the "Stages of Death"?

In her book, On Death and Dying, Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross indicated that the acceptance of any death usually goes through these stages: shock and denial; great anger and trying to place blame; a brief period of bargaining followed by a long and often deep depression; then, hopefully, ultimate acceptance of the facts of life - and death.

Dr. Kubler-Ross further states that the survivors of sudden-death victims must go through the same stages of grief as for survivors of those whose death comes slowly.

Reading about and becoming better acquainted with the stages of grief can provide insights for thoughtful contemplation. Reaching a point of understanding how others have had to cope with similar situations can provide strength and consolation at the time of death of a loved one.

We have quite a few books and lists of others which may assist you in coping with your loss of loved ones. We stand ready to help you as best we can. Remember, your needs are our concerns.

Ahhh, those great old newspaper stereotypes

Kathy Johnson

As Roarke and Tatro watch the arriving passengers all seeking joy on Fantasy Island, a young John-boy Walton type walks to them and explains that he's always wanted to work for a real newspaper. Always wanted to be a reporter....and it's off to Somewhere, U.S.A., where our young friend has the following adventure....

First he meets Charlie. Charlie runs the hot metal linotype machine in back and he's been there since just before World War I. He's good-hearted, gruff, and he can fix any hunk of junk and make it run. All the equipment is junk, but he is an all 'round good guy.

Then there is Gertrude. Gertrude can sell ads, send out the bills and develop photos in the closet just off the unisex potty. Gertrude is really sweet and the general salt of the earth. In her spare time she delivers the paper to all the subscribers.

Mac. Now Mac is your basic grouch and one terrific newsman. He's been on the streets since he was 15 and he knows the score. He drinks too much, smokes too much, his clothes all look slept in, and he always wears a hat he picked up in a bar in 1949. He likes women in their place.

This unlikely threesome and young

John-boy produce the weekly news. And then comes the day when Mac isn't there. The big story comes and suddenly John-boy has his big chance.

The story is a really big one. He writes it and yells "Stop the presses!" This is front page stuff...special edition time.

Mac arrives just in time to tell young John-boy that he did a great job and will make a reporter yet. A stranger arrives to hire John-boy for the Dallas Morning News and there is another successful trip on Fantasy Island.

Ahhh, to be on Fantasy Island. Here at The Charlevoix County Press, which is one of some 7,600 weekly newspapers published in the United States, there is no linotype machine. No two-fisted, hard-drinking, womanizing, hat-wearing editor. Well, he doesn't wear a hat, womanize, or fight. Three out of four isn't bad.

In the entire office there are only a couple of people who even smoke. Good hearted people, yes. Talented, I think so. Hard-working, definitely.

In the place of the old hot metal typesetting machine is a baby blue Compugraphic Jr. that not only sets the type quietly and electronically, but justifies the margins into the nice even edges that you see.

And no one ever yells "Stop the presses." There are no presses to stop. Our paper is printed in Traverse City.

There is no Charlie, although we do have a diminutive young lady who runs the production department with a small iron fist and she can fix most of the occasional illnesses that occur in our electronic gadgets.

We don't develop our film in a closet. We have separate parties and we don't deliver our papers, but with the help of a Pitney Bowes mailing machine it arrives in mailboxes by Thursday.

The one thing that isn't missing in Boyne City that you would see on the Fantasy Island version is the diversification of the operation and generally good times that you get while working for a small weekly paper. Many of the employees here do more than one job and even doing one job provides a myriad of experiences. A reporter here might write a people feature, sports story, social items and a school board report, all in the space of a day.

The production department is constantly busy producing not only a variety of ads for customers but putting news pages together to create the paper.

The office assistant not only answers the phone but sells classifieds, takes care of subscriptions, advertising billing and attempts to keep track of where everyone is for messages and phone calls.

Our office manager does some billing, some selling, bill collecting, financial reports and in general plays mother hen to our eccentricities and tries to keep peace in the office. She and the editor try very hard to keep us from hurting each other while attempting to accomplish their own very busy jobs.

It is one of the "most funniest" jobs I've had. Each week is a challenge and I'm delighted to be a part of this revised version of Fantasy Island.

I like 'Newspaper Week' best

Of all the "Weeks" in the year I like National Newspaper Week the best. It gives editor, writers and ad chasers a chance to whoop and holler and say, "Look at me!"

Through the years, however, "Look at me!" has raised less and less dust. There was a time when reporters rated right up there with policemen and school teachers. It was an exotic business with young folks envying those busy fellows with press signs stuck into their hats.

Reporters used to ride firetrucks and get into shows free. They were even trusted at restaurants until Saturday.

But through the years America woke up. Or went to sleep. I don't know which.

High regard for policemen, school teachers and newspapermen drizzled into something akin to apathy or perhaps contempt. Respect for those in the professions slumped, nearly failing.

Today a policeman is just another cop, teachers are babysitters and newsmen are people who change stories around to fit their own biased thinking. Things have gone so far that even bankers are talked to as ordinary people.

It could be that we brought this upon ourselves. I don't know. But I think we did have some help from those with just enough education to find us out. And if there's anything I hate, it's being found out.

Regardless of the terms scattered at our doorstep. I still think the press satisfies an important need, with the papers performing their greatest service when they report public truths that some people do not want to see in print.

So, even though we are no longer looked upon as the mysterious elite, I feel we in the profession have some right to honor ourselves with a National Newspaper Week.

It is not a crime to pat ourselves on the back when nobody else will. If we didn't, we would have newspapermen with no ego. And that's something I haven't seen in my 40 years of putting black marks on white paper.

My introduction to the new thinking about newspapermen came a few years ago. I was sitting in my office late one night when a man came in to ask, "What are you doing?"

"I am writing an editorial for tomorrow's paper," I said.

"Oh," he said, "I thought you were working."

English press puts ours in perspective

When James Burke of the British Broadcasting Corp. visited Charlevoix County recently, he was taking a day off from his quest for funding of a high-quality television series that will cost $5 million to produce before it is finished in 1983.

When this newspaper seeks financial help from local banks to purchase a piece of cost-saving equipment, for example, or some new type to make reading a bit easier for our subscribers, we're usually talking about $5,000 or less.

In a way, the difference in money has to do with the highly sophisticated color television equipment, and the fact that our newspaper serves a very small local audience in comparison to the national audience for a series like "Connections" that Burke wrote and hosted (now playing on Saturdays at 8 p.m. on Channel 6).

But in another way, we are talking about a major difference between the United States and England when it comes to "communicating" important information to the general public.

In England, there are two or three outstanding national newspapers, two non-commercial BBC television channels and one commercial television channel. There's no question in my mind about the high quality of these newspapers and the BBC public affairs and feature programming.

(The commercial channel, like our networks, rarely offers anything other than adventure stories, sit-coms, and soaps.)

Like Burke, most of England's communicators for these outlets are well-educated graduates of the country's three great universities. They like to communicate the "big picture," the philosophical underpinnings to a major issue, the historical relevance of an event, and so on.

And to my mind even the average "Brit" is far better "educated" than the average "Yank" because of the editorial "slant" of these newspapers and the BBC.

In the U.S., we're not really educated by TV and newspapers, but we are informed—far better informed than the British.

Thanks to British TV, we probably know more about British history than we know about American history. And you can look at "Connections" and get a whole different view of the history of science and technology than you got in school (where we studied the great inventors). That's because the people who run British TV see themselves as educators rather than entertainers and journalists.

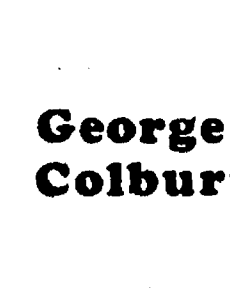

But when you go to the hinterlands of England, to Cornwall for example, what can you learn about the area from the national or local communications outlets? Very little, I learned recently.

ANOTHER NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Cornwall is to England what Northern Michigan is to the Midwest. It is a rugged peninsula where it never gets too warm, where the beaches are endless, where the locals never quite accept the urban holidaymakers, although they bring vital money into the area, where second homes for well-off professionals are commonplace, and where frantic relaxing is on everyone's minds at the end of summer.

No, the tourists don't eat fudge in Cornwall, but they do eat lots of Cornish clotted cream—on berries, in coffee, on puddings—and like our "Fudgies" they have to diet when vacation time is finished. But they do eat pasties, a local specialty, just like we do in Northern Michigan.

Many things therefore seemed terribly familiar in Cornwall and thus it was a great shock to see the local newspapers. Whenever I travel I buy the local newspapers, listen to local radio and watch local TV trying to get a "smell" for the new territory I'm in. (In Cornwall, you do not have local TV/radio.)

ENGLISH "NEWS"

The local press there, like our local press, is a reflection of the big-city press. In London, most newspapers are filled with gossip, sports, cinema and political celebrities, sex and violence. Even in idyllic Cornwall, this formula is duplicated successfully by the local press.

The week I visited there, the Cornwall Courier front page was dominated by the story of a middle-aged, unemployed laborer who had left his wife of 20 years to live with a 16-year-old girl who had recently left school. Several stories detailed all facets of the trio's lives—how the lovers existed, where the teenager had been in school, the sex life of the older couple before the split, and on and on.

The big story on the back page of the tabloid with "screaming" headlines similar to page one concerned a brawl where a young man was badly injured when someone jammed a stick down his throat.

In no way did that newspaper give me a "smell" for the beautiful countryside, the fishing ports, the history, the many tourist attractions (King Arthur's Castle, for example), or the rugged beauty of the area.

Now I am the first to admit that the newspapers of our own land have great failings, particularly in those areas where one newspaper, or single ownership, can give residents anything management pleases to give. In such places, coverage of local news is usually limited and poor (wire service copy is used to fill up the space around the ads), and concern about local issues is almost non-existent except when an issue might impact on newspaper profits.

Nevertheless, one just has to compare what we have in this country to what is evident in the country closest to us in culture and in democratic tradition to realize how fortunate we are.

Small weekly newspapers like this one—and there are more than 7,000 of them at last count—provide solid information week after week to their subscribers so that the activities of local government, of school boards, and local politicians are well known to those in the community.

The personal activities of individuals are usually considered private matters except when personal behavior affects the way a public official carries out his public duties.

When "lifestyle" warrants a story, it is usually because an individual desires it and almost always it is a "good news" or "warm" piece rather than sordid or sensational.

After spending half my life in the newspaper business, I am more critical of myself, of my newspaper, and my colleagues than most average citizens who merely "consume" the news we report.

I am not one who is prone to patting myself, or other journalism professionals, on the back regularly.

But every once in awhile, like during this current National Newspaper Week, I am provided with incentive to develop a little perspective. My recent visit to Cornwall helped me to develop that perspective for this issue.

As I am grateful to James Burke and his colleagues at the BBC for providing Americans with high-quality television, I am likewise grateful to the Cornwall Courier for reminding me that the local American press far surpasses in quality anything offered anywhere else in the world.

My hope, therefore, on this National Newspaper Week is that nothing in our economy, nothing in our tastes as a people, will cause a further weakening of the local press.

Television and radio have evolved in this country to primarily provide entertainment. Only the newspaper has as its major goal the providing of news.

In many ways, it is one of the lifelines that hold a community together.

To see the press corrupted, as it has been in England for reasons I do not understand, is to see a community come apart.

For our common good, we must not let that happen here.

That plain, common, but essential thing

Fragile as a page of newspaper is, it is still more durable than all the words flying to us over our TV sets and radios. And then, no one has yet said, "Hearing is believing."

Maybe it isn't entirely fair to compare the different media, because we need their differences—the speed of radio, the drama of TV, the thoroughness of newspaper.

A newspaper, however—a home town newspaper—has things to clip and mail to family and friends. Its columns are connections so a current of understanding can flow from town to household to committee to commerce, club, commission, school, industry.

It wraps up the bustle of a community of activity and lays it all on the lap of some solitary reader.

Lastly, a special credit goes to the home town paper. It provides, next to the vote, the simplest, most direct instrument of democracy there is. Anyone of least or greatest influence can bring an idea of community-wide concern to public attention through a letter to the editor. More than a few times such letters have been the acorns of oak-tree-sized events.

Barb Cruden

Back before the Revolutionary War, a man named Peter Zenger was arrested and jailed for printing unfavorable information about the British colonial government. His right to do so was defended and his vindication set the precedent for America's free press.

For the future of free press this Newspaper Week, we take a leaf from the oak tree—and also once more salute old Peter Zenger.

Careful...you are what you read!

A newspaper by any other name may be a press, chronicle, edition, crier, herald or record. Some newspapers even proclaim themselves to be suns, trails or barbs.

Their format may be broadsheet, which is exactly that, or a tabloid, which is a magazine type format. Tabloids are particularly popular on buses. There is less intrusion on the passenger sitting next to you if you are reading a paper that is half the size of the traditional broadsheet.

This digest of current local or national news is well worth the pocket change investment. What else can you buy for two bits that will inform you, wrap your fish, protect your carpet from paint cans or puppies and be rolled into the fireplace for a quick-start fire? I think it's one of the best buys around.

It's also a good thing to take with you when you go to the doctor. Too often the physician is behind schedule when you arrive for your appointment. If you are accompanied by a newspaper you can bury your nose between its pages. This protects you from rudely staring into the faces of the other waiting patients who may be staring back at you. So a newspaper is good therapy. It relieves tension.

One should carefully consider the paper he or she is seen with. As erroneous as this may be, the reader may be labeled by the paper he is perusing. The Berkeley Barb either characterizes you as a Bohemian or a campus crusader. The Wall Street Journal may indicate that you lack a sense of humor. And anyone who totes the hefty Sunday edition of the New York Times is either masochistic or independently wealthy. To read this giant text would take more time than coffee breaks or lunch hours would allow.

However, the small town weekly newspaper is safe. Its area of dominant influence is local. It can easily be stashed in a purse or briefcase. And the advertising and news stories are pertinent to either you or your neighbors.

Reading your hometown weekly at the doctor's office will label you as a concerned citizen with a sense of humor, who is polite enough not to stare.

Your Sun guide

320 ft. high

A nature hike that's elevating

Interpretive trail pamphlets are available year around at the entrance to the Charles A. Ransom nature trail.

Constitutional - n. [Colloq.], a walk or other exercise taken for one's health.

Grab a sweater, pack a lunch and head for the hills whether you need the exercise or not.

Fall brings out the best colors in the hills and they deserve your admiration. Your colorful constitutional may be in your own backyard or along a guided nature trail.

The Petoskey Audubon Society will hold a guided nature hike at the Charles Ransom Nature Preserve, Saturday, Oct. 18, at 10:15 a.m.

Kathy Bricker will be leading hikers through the 1.5 miles of nature trail that was opened to the public in July of 1980. The Ransom Preserve is located seven miles northeast of Charlevoix on Maple Grove Road.

From its highest elevation of 320 feet above Lake Michigan, visitors to the preserve can see Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, Beaver Island, North Manitou Island, the Leelanau Peninsula and the Fox Islands.

The trail winds through open meadows and woods inhabited by white tailed deer, red fox, cottontail rabbits, snowshoe hares and grey squirrels. The 50 wooded acres includes mature beech and maple hardwoods, ash, trembling aspen, hop-hornbeam and red oak.

A Japanese style caretaker's home marks the beginning of the trail that can be enjoyed by hikers at any time. Guideposts and interpretive pamphlets are available year around at the entrance to the trail.

Susan Dye, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy, says, "The Ransom Nature Preserve was donated to Little Traverse Conservancy by Woodbury and Christiana Ransom of Charlevoix in 1976."

The conservancy, incorporated in 1972, owns eight nature preserves in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties. Current membership counts 450 with 100 lifetime members.

Says Dye, "Our purpose is to help preserve natural lands for the general public benefit. We identify parcels or important natural areas that warrant protection."

There are four particular types of land that the conservancy attempts to acquire and preserve: natural lands with rare scenic qualities, environmentally sensitive areas (lakeside marshes and swamps), land that harbors endangered wildlife species and areas that provide open, undeveloped spaces.

"We look very carefully at parcels before they are donated or purchased," says Dye, "although we haven't purchased any yet."

Little Traverse Conservancy finances its regular operations by dues and donations. A donation of $1. secures annual membership. A donation of $100. or more qualifies the donor for lifetime membership.

Volunteers supervise conservancy lands. Dye explains the duties required of her when she was caretaker last year at the Ransom Preserve. "I looked after the trails and house that was provided for me and maintained and enforced the rules of the trail."

Dye, now a part-time worker for the conservancy, plans to study Environmental Law. "Gary and Jan Taporek are the current caretakers at the Ransom Preserve."

The Little Traverse Conservancy urges anyone who loves Northern Michigan and wishes to preserve its natural areas to join the conservancy. More information is available from North Central Michigan College in Petoskey or by calling its office at 347-0991.

The caretaker's house boasts unique oriental architecture and an energy efficient heating system.

Girl Scouts need uniforms

BOYNE CITY - Somewhere in the back of many closets hang unused or outgrown Brownie or Junior Girl Scout uniforms... each of which could be sold or given to a scout looking for a second-hand uniform.

Four Boyne City Brownie troops and three Junior troops are trying to get 100 percent of their membership in uniform.

If you have a uniform to sell, or if you wish to buy one, call the scout uniform exchange chairman, Mrs. Frank Enochs, 582-7246. Worlds to Explore handbooks may also be sold or purchased second-hand.

Metric System Coming

The real estate industry - and the country - is one step closer to metric measurements with a Senate bill passed in mid-December. The bill encourages voluntary conversion within the next two years on the part of industries and other groups. The Metric Board would serve as consultants to those industries undertaking conversion. The National Association of Realtors has established a Metric Conversion Committee, whose objective is to identify both problems and opportunities as they affect the real estate industry. What will it be like to sell real estate under the metric system? For one thing, inches, feet and yards will be replaced by meters, centimeters and decimeters. More relevant to Realtors, land measurements will be in square meters and hectares instead of feet and acres. Space in buildings will be rented by square meters instead of square feet. Listing information on for-sale homes will probably have to carry dual sets of measurements for a period of time.

Red Devils must avoid letdown after big win

EAST JORDAN - After squeaking past Gaylord St. Mary in a battle of league leaders last week, East Jordan coach, Frank Holes, hopes his team won't let up now that the worst part of the schedule is over.

The Devils host Central Lake for homecoming at 8 p.m. this Friday.

Although the Trojans are 0-4 in the Ski Valley League, Holes says, "We're a little concerned about a letdown."

"It doesn't matter who you're playing, because you've got to be ready. On any given day, there are upsets all over the place. When you're on top, every-one points to you."

So, Holes said, "We're not going to make it easy this week. We're going to go at Central Lake like they were Mancelona or St. Mary's."

Although the Trojans have a losing record, and there are only 18 players on their roster, they are good athletes, Holes said. Central Lake gave Mancelona a good battle before losing 28-12 last week.

Last Friday's 6-3 Red Devil victory at Gaylord was played in a downpour for the first half, and rain continued in the third quarter. The miserable conditions were to blame for a nearly unbelievable 12 fumbles by East Jordan—and five of those fumbles were lost.

"I think we fumbled every series we had the ball," Holes said.

Giving up that many fumbles meant that East Jordan played defense for the vast majority of the game.

"Our defense won the game for us," Holes said, matter-of-factly. "All the praise and credit for this one go to the defense and defensive coach, (Jim) Wodzinski. They were amazing. They were in terrible field position all night long, and they never gave up a touchdown."

St. Mary's only score came on a 15-yard field goal in the second quarter. The Snowbirds ran 12 plays inside the East Jordan 10-yard line in the second quarter, but failed to score a touchdown. One drive was stopped two inches from the goal.

Leading the defense was Steve Hilden with 12 tackles. "He was all over the field," Holes said.

Other leading tacklers were Bill Spence and Jerry Fuller with nine tackles and Mike Cihak with eight.

Steve Graham recovered two Gaylord fumbles. Del Ingalls intercepted two passes and Randy Morris had one interception.

East Jordan scored its only touchdown late in the third quarter on a two-yard run by Graham.

The foul weather worked to East Jordan's advantage for their touchdown. A bad hike allowed the Devils to tackle Gaylord's punter only 15 yards from the goal line.

Graham was the leading ground gainer for the Devils with 76 yards in 20 carries. Tom Peters picked up 59 yards on 12 carries.

The East Jordan victory put the Red Devils in excellent position to win the league championship for the third year in a row. The Devils are now 4-0 in the Ski Valley circuit and 5-1 overall.

For St. Mary, the loss was a bitter one, not only because the league title may be lost, but also because the team's chances for a state playoff berth are greatly diminished.

The Snowbirds had been ranked as high as third in the state in some Class D polls.

Boyne runners place 2nd, 4th

BY RUSSELL TISON
Student Reporter

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler cross-country team placed second in a triangular meet and fourth in the Petoskey Invitational last week.

In a tri-meet at Elk Rapids last Tuesday, Boyne beat Mancelona 15-50 with 15 being the lowest score possible.

However, Elk Rapids put up some tough competition. Tim Crumbaugh placed third and Jim Brabbs placed sixth, and Boyne lost 36-19.

In the Petoskey Invitational Saturday, Boyne placed fourth in the Class C junior-senior race. Tim Crumbaugh placed 10th, winning a medal. Brian Vroman placed 21st and Matt Irwin placed 22nd.

Although Boyne did not place in the freshman-sophomore race, Mike Huiett placed third and won a medal. Sophomore John Brabbs also ran well, placing 13th.

There were 14 Class C and D teams at the invitational. Over 60 runners competed. Rogers City won the invitational, Charlevoix took second, and St. Ignace was third, beating Boyne by only two points.

Boyne rolls to 5-1; Next 3 will be tough

BOYNE CITY - Already assured of a winning season, the Rambler grid team will be facing the toughest part of its schedule in the next three weeks.

Gaylord, Cheboygan and Charlevoix—probably the three best teams in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference—are next in line for Boyne City.

The Ramblers take a sparkling 5-1 record into this Friday's home field encounter with the Gaylord Blue Devils.

Boyne's latest victim was St. Ignace, one of two teams to whip Gaylord this year. Gaylord is coming off a 42-0 loss to conference leader Cheboygan.

"We know they're good," says Boyne City coach, Bob McCullough. "We have no easy games in this conference."

"They are pretty strong defensively, and they have a real good passing game," McCullough said.

Blue Devils quarterback Randy

Ogden is tied for the conference lead in touchdown passes with four. Running back Greg Gadowski is tied for third in league scoring with four touchdowns.

If Cheboygan continues to overpower all of its opponents, Friday's game could be an important one in the battle for second place. Boyne is 3-1 in the conference, and Gaylord is 2-2.

Last week, the Ramblers dealt St. Ignace its first conference loss, 32-14.

Boyne won the game in dramatic style, falling behind 14-0 in the first quarter and then dominating the remainder of the contest.

Halfback Kerry Kruzel scored twice in the second period on runs of six and 11 yards, and quarterback Todd Neville scored from the three. That put the halftime score at 20-14.

In the third quarter, Neville scored on a four yard sprint, and in the fourth quarter he hit Daryl Tims on a four yard touchdown pass.

"I was really proud and impressed," McCullough said after the game. "Sometimes when you get two touchdowns behind you want to go and hide, but these guys bounced right back."

Neville chalked up 195 yards in total offense, substituting for injured quarterback John Tompkins. It wasn't really a strange position for Neville, however, since he played quarterback for most of the 1979 season.

Neville completed nine of 15 passes for 101 yards, and he ran for 94 more on 18 attempts. Doug Christy, who hurt his knee and may not be able to play against Gaylord, ran for 69 yards. Kruzel added 54 yards, and Todd Rickard had 53.

Senior defensive back Dave Smith played an outstanding game, McCullough said.

Regional golf champ says he didn't play very well

BOYNE CITY - He says he didn't play very well, but junior Steve Kircher still walked off with the first place medal in the high school regional golf meet at Houghton Lake last Friday.

Kircher shot an 80 on the par 72 course, and that score tied him with Rick Brown of Kalkaska after 18 holes. Kircher won the sudden death playoff on the first hole, sinking a six-foot putt for a birdie four on a par five hole.

Taking medalist honors in the regional meet qualifies Kircher to compete in the state meet in Saginaw this weekend.

If he has a good day, does he have a chance at winning the state title? "Maybe," Kircher said.

Steve set the Boyne City High School record earlier this season with a 36 at Yc Nyne Olde Holles. That broke Lon Kowalske's long-standing mark of 37.

Petoskey golfer wins Parrish Open

BOYNE CITY - The Parrish Open Golf Tournament, held Oct. 4 at Yc Nyne Olde Holles was successful in spite of cold and windy weather.

Over $300 in cash prizes were awarded, including a 1981 club membership to the low net winner, Bog Gregory of Petoskey.

Other winners included Lon

Kowalske with a score of 70 in the championship flight. Following Kowalske were Mike Cummings with 75 and Bob Starback with 70. All are from Boyne City.

Bob Baker of East Jordan and Steve Moody of Boyne City tied for first in the first flight with scores of 75. Tom Kujawski also of Boyne City followed with a score of 76. Other winners included Jack Caverly of Boyne City with a 69 and Chris Bulow of East Jordan with 73.

Mike Cummings won the long drive contest that followed the tournament, with Lon Kowalske and Don Peck, Jr., all of Boyne City, finishing second and third respectively.

Loggers second victory

BOYNE FALLS - The Logger girls' basketball team won its second game of the season last Thursday, blasting Wolverine, 62-37.

Melody Wilson led the scoring with 16 points, and she also added four assists. Pat Frankowiak chipped in with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

The Loggers also won the junior varsity game, 32-5.

Soccer team takes 2nd

BOYNE CITY - The Boyne City Soccer Club begins tournament play this Sunday after finishing the regular season in second place in the Northern Lights Soccer League.

Boyne opens tournament play by hosting Traverse City Sunday at the field behind First National Bank. The starting time of 3 or 4 p.m. hadn't been finalized as of Monday.

Boyne clinched second place in the league by beating Alpena 5-1 Sunday in Gaylord. Jakob Gantner had two goals for Boyne City, and Chris Todter, Kevin Kretschmann and Rolf Bethke each scored one goal.

Northport won the league title with a 5-0 record, followed by Boyne City at 4-1, Alpena at 3-2, Charlevoix 2-3, Traverse City 1-4, and Forest Area, 0-5.

The East Jordan branch of Northwestern State Bank opens its doors to the public this week.

Banking is now twice as easy in EJ; Northwestern opens office on M-66

By TRISH WRIGHT

Banking in East Jordan is now twice as easy as it used to be.

That's because there are now two places where Northwestern State Bank customers can do their banking in East Jordan.

The bank this week opened a new branch office near Glen's Market on Highway M-66.

And although it's called a "branch," it will offer virtually every service that is available at its main office in downtown East Jordan.

"We built this branch to take care of our existing customers," says Chuck McDowell, chief executive officer of Northwestern State Bank.

"Many people prefer drive-in facilities and one stop shopping and banking. We will be well serviced at this location."

The branch office site was chosen because of its frontage on Highway M-66 near Glen's Market, where there is significant growth potential for East Jordan.

Before construction started, an archeological survey was conducted to assure that nothing of any archeological or historic significance would lie below the brick and mortar building. "This archeological survey was mandated last year by the federal government for all federally regulated businesses," explains McDowell.

Approval for the branch was granted by the Federal Institutions Bureau last December. Construction began in March. No protests were filed by any other banking institution in the area.

Rhea Parsons, branch manager, will be assisted by Ruth Sadlowski and Mabel Hudkins.

The full banking services available at the branch will include: acceptance of loan applications, banking by mail, night deposits, drive-in banking, checking accounts, savings accounts, foreign drafts, money orders, traveler's checks and Christmas Clubs. Safe deposit boxes are not available at the branch but are offered at the downtown Northwestern State Bank office.

Northwestern State Bank invites the public to tour the premises of its newest branch. Refreshments and complimentary gifts will be offered to the bank's customers and visitors during the opening week.

Lobby business hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fridays.

Drive-up service hours will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fridays and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

NWSB has expanded greatly since 1901

EAST JORDAN -- Northwestern State Bank was originally chartered in 1901 as the State Bank of East Jordan. It was the first bank in East Jordan and for 79 years remained the only bank in this city.

On Dec. 1, 1944, the East Jordan State Bank opened a Boyne City office, although deposits had been picked up from Boyne City businesses long before a Boyne City office was established.

Bank stockholders authorized changing the name of the bank from State Bank of East Jordan to Northwestern State Bank in 1969.

Two years later the bank expanded again. Boyne Falls was now in the service area, as an office was opened there.

In 1974 Northwestern opened a branch in the Country Star shopping center in Boyne City so that their customers could shop and bank at the same location.

An Atwood branch, south of Charlevoix on U.S. 31, and a Petoskey office on U.S. 131 continued the expansion program more recently.

The newest Northwestern State Bank branch is located in the bank's home town of East Jordan.

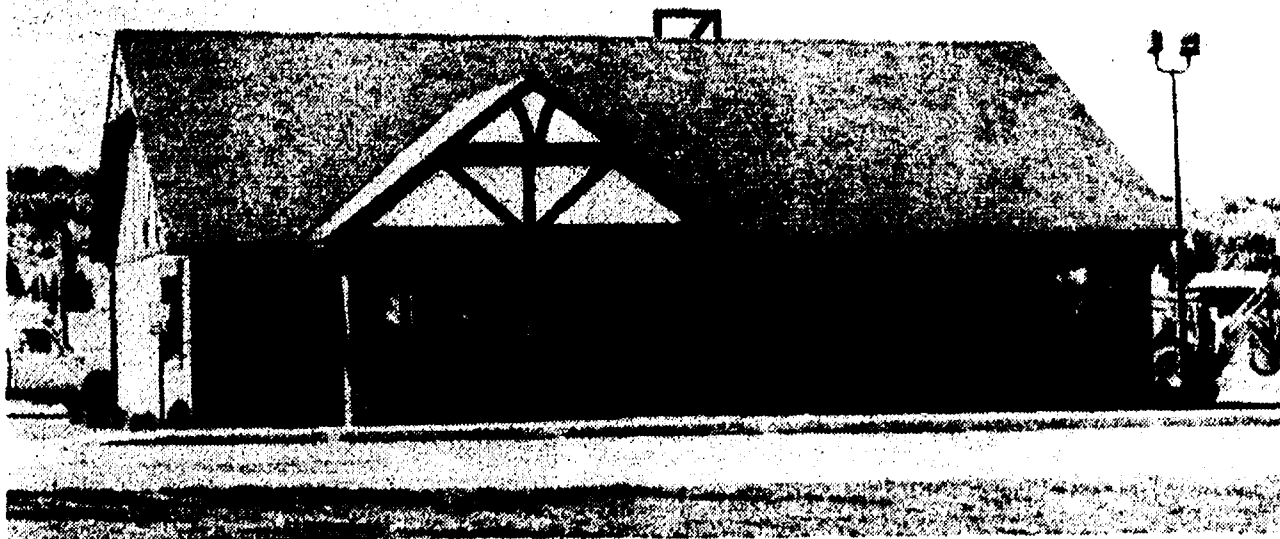

Says Chuck McDowell, chief executive officer, "We wanted a branch in East Jordan because of people's preference for one-stop shopping and banking. It's very likely that any significant growth in East Jordan will be along the M-66 highway."

Northwestern's East Jordan branch is conveniently located near the new Glen's Market, which opened less than a year ago. More stores are planned for future years to develop the supermarket into a shopping center.
