Running for sheriff can be expensive

It costs a lot of money to run a county-wide election campaign—but spending a lot of money doesn't guarantee a candidate will get a lot of votes.

In fact, sheriff candidate Wayne Chapman finished last in the five-man race during the August primary election, even though he spent twice as much as any other candidate.

According to campaign financial statements filed with the Charlevoix County Clerk, Chapman spent $4,591.84 on his campaign. That comes to more than $30 per vote, since only 149 people voted for Chapman.

On the other end of the scale was former undersheriff James McCallum, who spent less than $500 and was not required to file a financial report. McCallum finished fourth in the election with 286 votes.

Winner George Lasater spent $2,107.43, only about $1.25 per vote.

That was enough to get the incumbent sheriff 55.9 percent of the primary votes, which virtually reassures his re-election on Nov. 4.

Second place finisher Wally Brown spent $1,419.80 to get 557 votes. Leonard Fuller finished third by spending $1,628.25, which got him 342 votes.

While Chapman listed no campaign contributions from supporters, Lasater had the largest number of individual contributors with 42. The biggest individual donor to the sheriff was $270, while six people donated $100, and rest came in smaller contributions.

Brown and Fuller also financed their campaigns mainly on contributions of $200 or less. Fuller had the only fundraising event listed, as he raised $533 at a campaign picnic.

Despite finishing last in the August primary, Chapman is waging a write-in campaign against Lasater in the general election on Nov. 4.

Next week: Election Guide

Wondering who to vote for in the Nov. 4 election? The Charlevoix County Press will be publishing an Election Guide section next week to help you decide. Interviews with candidates for county clerk, county commissioners, county sheriff, East Jordan City Council, state representative and U.S. Congressman will be included, as well as stories about the seven state ballot proposals.

East Jordan school board to try again

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - The continuing struggle for education in East Jordan turned another page Monday night. The school board at a special meeting decided to ask voters for 2.8 mills at their Dec. 8 millage election.

Although East Jordan passed 21.2 mills in October, the state has made another change in the school aid formula and the district is now losing an additional $150,000. A citizens' steering committee recommended the 2.8 mill figure to the board because it would nearly make up the $150,000. The committee had been instrumental in finding budget cuts before the October millage vote.

Their effort now is to identify with the help of the school principals what parts of the programs would be saved by passage in December of the 2.8 mills.

Problems like the two new school busses contracted for last school year and now ready for delivery weigh on the steering committee's choices. The schools are bus-short because last year's bus money went for the school boiler emergency.

If the millage should fail, a great deal more would have to be pared away from the already severely trimmed-down budget.

The administrators, in response to questions from the floor, reported different preferences for the amount of millage to be asked.

Principal Don Peters and Superintendent Mel Rullman supported lower figures, but the board's vote was unanimous. The board stressed the money was not needed for salary raises.

Another school board meeting was set to specify what the 2.8 mills would affect. The meeting will be next Monday, Oct. 27, giving the steering committee time to complete their study.

Representatives of Hill, Woodcock, and Distel reported to the district their audit of the school's use of the $2,300,000 revenue and recommended that several times through the year the school make a progress check on expenses.

EJ parents still working on school board recall

EAST JORDAN - A petition drive to recall members of the East Jordan school board slowed down as parents attempt to get the remaining signatures needed.

Jan Hammond, one of those working on the drive, said that the citizens' group has about 320 signatures of 391 which are needed to force a recall election. Hammond and other members of the group feel that the 391 figure might be too high and they are awaiting word on whether or not that figure is correct. The figure is supposed to represent 25 percent of the school district residents who voted in the last election for governor.

The group working on the petition drive has until mid-December to get all the necessary signatures. By law, they are allowed 90 days to reach the needed total.

'It will take a lot' to pass school millage

"I think it's going to take a lot of hard effort on everyone's part," Cal Gotts is describing what lies before not only his steering committee, but all voters in East Jordan. The school board had just passed the steering committee's recommendation to ask voters for 2.8 mills.

"If certain things fall in place," he added, "we have a very good chance."

One of the things needed, he said, is a solution to the teacher contract negotiations.

The whole idea, according to Paul Michaels, a parent and one of the steering committee members, is to get parents, teachers, and administration to work together.

He said student council members asked if they could help out. The steering committee, mainly volunteers from throughout the community, is being subdivided into finance, curriculum, communication, and millage committees.

Gotts said the hope is that they will continue serving even after the December millage vote.

The finance committee, for example, could meet with the financial supervisor of the school, Ruby Dipzinski. They could then help in communicating the involved problems—and solutions—of her office to the community.

The newly-formed Parent-Teacher Association is involved in the committee work, Gotts said.

The committee work includes reviewing specifically what parts of the school budget can be saved by the passage of the 2.8 mills.

EJ airport paving

It took six weeks to move earth and gravel and prepare the way for paving the east-west runway at East Jordan's airport—but the actual paving was completed in less than two days last week. Hodgins and Desma Construction did the paving, and as soon as the state Aeronautics Commission paints the runway markings, the new airstrip will be ready for use. The project cost about $170,000 with $72,500 coming from an Aeronautics Commission grant.

City grant could include senior center

BOYNE CITY - Input from senior citizens at a hearing Monday brought forward the possibility of building a senior citizens' center with federal grant money.

The hearing was held by the city commission on its plan to apply to Housing and Urban Development for funds under the Small Cities Program.

The commission proposes to use the funds for improvements or extensions in water and sewer lines, and also, as they explained at the meeting, to offer aid to homeowners who want to bring housing up to code standards.

As stated in the application, the purpose of the 100 percent federal funding is "to improve the community development housing situation, particularly for low and moderate income persons." City Manager Tim Clifton said that HUD does bracket senior citizen projects in the low to moderate income range. He also explained the application requires the funds be used for construction and that the commitment to maintenance must be financed by the applicant.

Clifton said in an interview with The Press the $500,000 figure the city hopes to qualify for could not productively be divided three ways, but that a possibility exists of combining a senior center and one other, probably the water line improvements.

Budget barely changes; BC school plans hearing

BOYNE CITY - The board of education will hold its annual budget hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the high school.

Copies of the budget are available at the school administration office.

Superintendent Rich Kelly notes that the school will be operating on a budget that is almost exactly what it was a year ago.

"I think it's significant that we can do that in these inflated times," Kelly said.

Total school revenues are down 1.04 percent over last year, from $2,623-million to $2,595-million.

Total expenses are up 0.83 percent from $2,568-million to $2,590-million.

After the budget hearing, a special board meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. Building use policies and several coaching positions are slated for discussion and possible action.

Experts to discuss estate planning

A two-day Estate Planning Workshop is being sponsored by the Charlevoix County Extension Office and Michigan State University. It will be held at Whiting Park on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 29 and 30.

County Extension Director Ed Rebman commented: "Many people are becoming more concerned about their estates and the methods of transfers to their heirs. There have also been several changes in the inheritance taxes and rates."

Speakers include Rebman, three MSU Extension specialists, Probate Judge John Murphy, a bank trust officer and an insurance agent.

These meetings will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. The cost for coffee, doughnuts and all materials will be $10 for singles and $12 for couples. Lunch can be either brown bag or drive to Boyne City. Reservations should be made by calling the County Extension Office, 582-6232, as soon as possible.

EJ business women plan Oct. 30 seminar

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan Business and Professional Women will present a decision-making seminar on Thursday, Oct. 30, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Dr. Irene LaForest, R.N., Ph.D., will present the seminar. Objectives of the seminar include relating decision-making to the management of stress, identifying steps in problem solving, and reviewing principles related to decision-making.

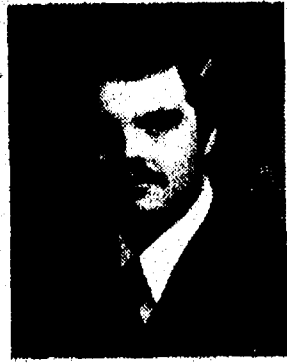

The seminar will be limited to 50 participants and enrollees will be accepted as they are received. Cost of the seminar will be $15 per person, which includes lunch. The seminar will begin at 8 a.m. with registration and will end at 3:30.

Dr. LaForest has conducted numerous seminars in the past including seminars on assertiveness training, stress and burnout, decision-making for women managers, and conflict management. She is the author of numerous articles appearing in The Michigan Nurse, American Journal of Nursing, and privately published research.

IS THERE HELP FOR PARENTS WHOSE CHILD IS TERMINALLY ILL?

The imminent death of a child due to a terminal illness is an agonizing situation for parents. It was out of a similar life-experience that an organization called "Carelighters" was founded.

Lore & Paul Prager founded Carelighters after their youngest son, Kevin, suffered for two years with terminal cancer. The purpose of the organization is to help other parents who have heard the sentence of death pronounced for a child.

Carelighters currently operates out of Ingalls Memorial Hospital in Harvey, Illinois. The parents operate a 24-hour hotline (312-798-1020) for parents to call for any kind of help. They also meet monthly to share feelings and offer each other support.

If you have any such concerns, we invite your inquiry in person or by phone.

Nursery schools experiencing increased enrollment locally

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Three years ago the Boyne City Nursery Center's enrollment was in the forties. This year there are 58 students at the center and more on the waiting list. Says Krista Crosby, Boyne nursery school teacher, "I think we are noticing an increase in enrollment in this area because mothers are working. But, these women want more than just a babysitter to care for their children."

The socialization learning that is stressed in nursery schools to varying degrees may be responsible for the increasing enrollment. Crosby explains that there is more awareness now concerning the developmental age of children. "Development starts at an early age. It's beneficial for children to begin learning the things that may help in later years."

BOYNE CITY

"We try to teach children how to share and get along in their own world. So many pre-school age children don't have the chance to be with other children their own age. We attempt to create experiences for the child here and expose him to different things," says Crosby.

The nursery school is located next to the Boyne City Middle School gymnasium. It's a portable classroom full of excitement and color.

Pre-schoolers age four and five meet there on Monday, Wednesday and Friday for three hours in the morning or afternoon. Two and three year olds gather on Tuesday and Thursday for their three hour session. Says Crosby: "We have a total of 56 students this year."

Crosby believes the Boyne Nursery Center's rates to be among the lowest in the area. She explains that the importance of low tuition is to encourage low income families to send their children. Tuition per student for a weekly session is $3.65.

The school is funded primarily from student tuition. "We receive a state food allowance for nutritional snacks and we have the use of the portable building from the school but we pay all the utilities."

The nursery center has been in existence for three years. Last year the school was financially able to set up a scholarship fund. "The Jennifer Crane Scholarship is available for students who need financial assistance. We have seven students on a partial scholarship this year," explains Crosby.

A psychologist, occupational therapist from the Charlevoix Intermediate School District work with the nursery center to test motor development and to help detect and diagnose child abuse, health and psychological problems.

"We work with the school so that we don't duplicate anything that may be taught in kindergarten. We've received a lot of favorable feedback from the school on the children that have attended the nursery and gone on to kindergarten."

A typical session would include a circle time for self expression and listening skills. The middle school playground and gym are available for the pre-schoolers use and they frequently take walks.

Twice a week the children have a music program led by Karen Holcomb Dunsmore. Arts and crafts and cooking classes are also part of the sessions. "The children have cooked pizza, pumpkin pie, pancakes and popcorn. It's a good way of teaching them measurements," says Crosby.

Pauline Archambault assists Crosby during the sessions. Crosby, originally from Clio, is a graduate of Central Michigan University. She is currently working on a master's degree. She has taught in the Lansing and Flint public schools.

EAST JORDAN CO-OP NURSERY

The East Jordan Co-op Nursery is a co-operative school staffed by one teacher, Barb Wolf, and one parent for every five of its students.

According to Anne Johnson, a certified teacher who is closely related to the school, parents take turns helping the teacher with snacks and programs.

Tuition fees for parents who are able to assist the teacher on a rotating basis are $50 every 32 week semester. Private tuition for parents who are not able to participate in the program is $115 per semester. The school is located in the East Jordan Presbyterian Church.

Present enrollment for the nursery totals 21 students. But, an afternoon session which is scheduled to start within the next month will boost the enrollment. Says Johnson, "We have students on a waiting list now for the two hour afternoon session. Presently we have two sessions a week, 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., every Tuesday and Thursday."

"We accept children whose parents qualify for Social Services. Tuition is paid by the state. Anyone wishing more information can contact Anne Johnson at 536-2490."

CHARLEVOIX MONTESSORI CHILDREN'S HOUSE

Charlevoix's Montessori school is up to maximum enrollment. Katie Donovan, the director, says, "We have an eager and co-operative group of 33 students. They range in age from 2 1/2 to 6 years. Nine children are currently on the extended session which allows them to stay at the Montessori school for their kindergarten year."

Three assistants aid Donovan in the full day program which runs Monday through Friday. Donovan states that the environment of the school is specifically prepared for children.

"Children have a sensitive period when they are drawn to particular skills. By observing the children, I can prepare the environment to meet their particular needs." She adds, "Children have choices but the choices here are limited to their knowledge."

The Montessori approach differs from the traditional nursery school method of teaching by allowing the child to function independently of others. It is believed that as a child teaches himself he gains the independence which helps to build self-control.

Children are in control of their education at the school although the director and assistants direct the attention toward math concepts and reading and writing.

Says Donovan, "The real socialization comes in when a child has to defer to 32 other children in the group. They learn courtesy and how to deal with confrontations in a positive manner."

Tuition for the school year or nine month program is $850. The Montessori Children's House is located in the lower level of the Charlevoix Congregational Church on the corner of Park and State Streets.

CHARLEVOIX CO-OP NURSERY

The Charlevoix Co-op Nursery is contracted by the Charlevoix school system for Title 1 pre-school children. This nursery organized in 1970, presently has 68 three to five year olds. Teachers Dorothy Miller and Nancy Taylor are aided by two parent helpers every day.

Classes are held Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons and Tuesday and Thursday mornings. A two-day class costs $55 per four month semester. Tuition fees for three day classes are $85 for four months. Each session lasts two hours and 15 minutes.

Says Miller, "We are state funded for nutritional snacks and we have scholarships available for those who can not afford the tuition." She adds that the school is managed by a board of directors which consists of parents.

The nursery is located in a classroom at the Charlevoix elementary school. Pre-schoolers have the use of the elementary school gym and enjoy cooking experiments, music programs and arts and crafts.

Kickoff in BC for United Way

BOYNE CITY - The United Way campaign kicks off this week with a goal of $16,200 to be met before Nov. 1.

According to Ralph Gillette, drive chairman, "The goal this year is less than the previous year's goal of $18,750 because of our current economic conditions. And, some organizations are not requesting as much United Way money because of their ability to raise the funds themselves."

Non-profit organizations from the area that have requested money from the United Way fund are the Boyne City nurse, Thelma Behling, Camp Daggett, Boyne City Swim School, Little League, Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Scenic Trail Boy Scouts and the Crooked Tree Girl Scouts.

Other non-profit organizations that have requested funds are the Boyne City Nursery Center, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Northern Michigan Health Center, Public Health drug abuse department and the Michigan Children's Aid and Family Service. Gillette adds that the Michigan United Fund has requested $3,300 but will probably receive only half of that amount because the board wishes the money to stay in the community.

President of the Boyne City United Way Fund is Jim White, Ralph Gillette serves as chairman. Rev. Milton Walls, Norma Eineder, Jean Talboys, Carol McTaggart and Renata Smith also serve as volunteer board members.

According to Gillette, contributions in outlying areas of Boyne City will probably be solicited by mail. Door to door fund raisers may be used in town. Some Boyne City companies and industries have already agreed to a payroll withholding plan for their employees contributions.

A sign will be posted near the Chamber of Commerce building to chart the success of the drive. Drop-off donations will be accepted at Northwestern State Bank and the Chamber of Commerce. Mailed contributions can be sent to United Fund, P.O. Box 10, Boyne City, MI. 49712.

Rambler fans charter bus

BOYNE CITY - A group of avid Rambler football fans are chartering a bus to Friday's game at Cheboygan.

The bus will leave the high school at 5:30 p.m. Friday for the 7:30 game.

Anyone interested must reserve seats ahead of time by calling Vicki Williamson at 582-2609 or Gen Varnum at 582-7138. Bus tickets are $7 per seat.

ON THE ROOF
If you are inclined to purchase an old home, one of your prime considerations should be the condition of the roof. You can get a quick idea of the condition by a good look from the ground. For instance, are there any loose or missing shingles? Are some areas of different shades or texture indicating roof repairs? Is the metal flashing at junctions (where roof meets walls or chimneys) in good shape?
Are gutters and downspouts clean, rust-free and in good repair? Downspouts should discharge onto splash blocks directed away from the house, into drains or into an underground dry well.
How old is the roofing and what is it made of? Some types last longer than others. Asphalt shingle roofing is very common and usually lasts 15 to 20 years. It sometimes equals wood and asbestos cement in durability, though these generally average 30 years or so. Slate and clay tile normally have even longer lifespans and can remain in good condition 40 years or more.

Airport on back burner —for awhile at least

The future of Boyne City's airport is apparently on the back burner—at least for a little while.

The city is in the difficult position of having very little land left that is suitable for industrial development, which may be wanted or needed as the city grows over the next 20 years.

Recognizing this fact, the city's recently completed master plan, drawn up by a professional planning firm, recommends that the city commission consider the possibility of removing its airport in favor of an industrial park. The location near highway M-75 at the city limits would be ideal, the planners point out.

That of course would be a radical change that deserves considerable study and discussion. Even though the airport does not directly serve a great number of city residents, businesses and tourists, it is nonetheless an asset to the area.

And the city commission will undoubtedly want some convincing evidence that an industrial park would indeed be more of an asset than an airport...and that there is no other suitable place to have an industrial park.

Editorial

These are, indeed, complicated questions. Alternate sites for industrial property are smaller in size and are not in ideal locations. The city, of course, would like to have any new industrial property located within the city limits for the obvious tax benefits.

If no good locations are available, an industrial park just outside the city limits would be better than none at all. The employment benefits would still help the city and the entire area.

For the time being, a satisfactory "holding pattern" has been established for the airport. Criticism of the operating costs of the airport has been heeded, and these costs have been cut in a number of ways to make it self-supporting.

The airport can remain as it is for one year or 10 or 20 years...and if something happens to make city officials decide they need the land for industrial expansion they can make a change at that time.

The decision may be made—or future deferred—in the next six months when the city planning commission will be updating and revising their zoning ordinance. This revision is the first step toward implementing some of the many recommendations in the city master plan.

City Commissioner Catherine Jessup says: "That land is still in the bank as far as I'm concerned. I think the question is still open and the future use of the property needs to be determined."

Stop! Save! Order me around!

From my readings I am beginning to feel that President Carter may be re-elected. All in favor say "Ugh."

I'm getting awfully tired of being told what to do. Everywhere it's the same, do this, do that.

I drive downtown and there's a sign. "Stop." You go into a bank and there it is. "Use other window." Walk by a store and it says, "Come in, we're open." In the window it tells you to "Save 30 percent." I bought a package in the store. It said, "Open other end." At the grocery there's a sign telling you to try their fresh meat. At the gift shop it says, "Don't touch anything." There's a sign in Petoskey telling me to "Eat here."

No. You can't get away from people telling you what to do. I've been told to vote for Reagan, vote for Carter, vote for Anderson. Even the newspaper gets into the act. It says, "Subscribe today!" When I saw that "Keep off grass" I had a sudden urge to walk all over it.

After a full day of being told what to do, I went home to get away from it all.

Marshall Sayles

As I walked into the house my wife said, "Take out the garbage." I don't think I can stand it.

A friend told me that he finds it rather disturbing that his wife sometimes agrees with the Pope.

Do you realize that all laws are written to protect us from our fellow man? If every last one of us were kind, upright, noble and completely honest with each other, Harvey Varnum and Bob Klever would be hard put. But lots of people are not going to be Bible-thumping pure, and lawyers are not going to be put hardly at all. So you can see right there how your cussedness is making some people wealthy.

Personal: Readers ask why I do not write an entire column on just one thing instead of several things. There's an answer to that and it's this. When I was young, healthy and eager, my mind was all cluttered up with just one thing. But as I grew older I somehow began to think of many other things. This answer may be confusing to you, but it's quite clear to me.

The federal government will not give you a doggone thing unless you can prove that you do not have anything. While most banks will not give you any money unless you already have some. It's stuff like this that has helped the average American to become as crazy as a bat.

I'm sometimes asked why I retired from business. The answer is simple. I'm smarter than most. I quit while I was behind.

Letters to the editor

Poor turnout for free clinic

Editor, On Oct. 6 and 7 the Boyne Valley Lionesses had a free sugar diabetes clinic at the Boyne Valley Medical Center.

We were all hepped up about helping the great people of our community in finding if they were one of the thousands with diabetes, if they were they could then get immediate treatment. This was our whole purpose.

You would think with an opportunity such as this, especially with our economy so bad, that everyone would jump at the chance of having a free diabetes test. But I guess apathy has once again taken over our community. We had a total of 78 people for the two days.

We had a number of Lionesses working both nights contributing their time and gas to serve the community. We had four very special nurses who contributed their time and medical knowledge—Thelma Behling, Pat Greene, Judy Mittig and Charlotte Hiner. A very special thanks to these girls.

Thanks should also be given for their support and contributions to Country Star Market, Robert's Restaurant, Barb Syfert, Behling's Little Cub, Dr. Richard Mansfield for the use of his office, and Advance Medical and Research Center for donating all supplies needed to do the test.

We hope that when and if we have the diabetes testing again we will be able to help more of the people in our community.

Many problems, few solutions

Editor, As President Lyndon Johnson once commented, "Our problems are many, our solutions few." As an American citizen and resident of Michigan I would also like to comment.

Living in this dense forest where there is only darkness and we cannot see the light, what is the use of sitting around smoking cornsilk and complaining about the big trees that are blocking our light? We can do something about the situation, since the men and women before us have left us the tools to clear this forest.

Many of us have come to the realization that something has gone very wrong with our system. We feel the crunch of too high taxes, the struggle to keep up with inflation, terror of unemployment, stifling effect of ever-increasing do's and don't's.

The alarming realization is that government is running our lives very much and more. We are becoming a society of collectivists, to be ruled rather than served.

American government cannot clothe us with authority without our consent. We as free individuals give our permission to a group of men to help us with our country's problems and affairs. We may also withdraw from this government.

America was founded on a dream, a dream of freedom and individualism. This dream and country, this life, is our heritage.

Although we are living in the freest and greatest country, it was once far better. Should we be grateful for this? Or is the whole issue, do we love our country, dreams and self enough to preserve, regain and restore what we have lost and what is rightfully ours?

As time goes on, I'm not really sure I get any smarter or wiser...just dumber and older. The only real advantage, as I see it, is that I've had more opportunities to make mistakes and repeat them.

Over the years I've collected a few little sayings that express how I feel about certain things. Graham Greene is one of my favorite novelists and I frequently have found little things in his books that express the way I feel about something.

For years I've carried in my purse this comment from Greene... "If I'm a bitch and a fake, is there nobody who will love a bitch and a fake?" I've always liked that one.

Another Greene statement that I particularly like is "I despise no one. I regret your own actions, if you like that kind of wallowing in self-pity, but never, never despise. Never presume your is a better morality."

Last spring I read in The Press that a local graduating class had chosen this as their motto: "The hardest thing in life to learn is which bridge to cross and which to burn."

When I read that one, I thought it was really good. The longer I look at it the better it gets, like a fine wine.

There is another one that I really like and as I get older it gets truer. "Fool me once, shame on you. Fool me twice, shame on me."

That one really hits home from time to time and I get very angry with myself when I allow it to happen.

One last statement I find to be truer as time goes on and I experience more things: "It isn't the truth that counts, it is what people believe is true that matters."

If you've ever found yourself in the position of having someone believe you have committed some act or said something that you know was never said or done, with no way of proving it, you can appreciate the statement.

It is difficult enough to live with the mistakes I make...much less the ones I didn't do.

Help your kids; anyone can learn to spell!

How many times has it been said, "I guess I am the world's worst speller"? Adults shrug off their own bad spelling because they realize good thinkers are often poor spellers. And there's truth in the reverse, also.

Still, schools plug away at spelling. Twenty words a week in middle school, where English teachers really bear down. Add to that the lists of words required in other classes—Herbaceous! Parliamentary! Mesomorphic!

Some students think—and they have a point—you learn spelling in order to be able to look up a word to see how it's spelled.

Adults realize if they're caught with a misspelling, they will be judged to be incompetent in other matters as well. Until, that is, they get past a certain economic level and can have someone else correct their spelling. Except that I recently talked to a lawyer who has to correct his secretary's spelling.

Before 1760—before dictionaries were made—Thomas Jefferson spelled words one way one time and another way a few paragraphs down, although for the most part he spelled as he recollected from his reading. (He wasn't the only one.)

So why 20 words a week? If people read a great deal, like Jefferson, won't that make them good enough spellers?

Unfortunately, not necessarily. Probably because they read so fast, they don't really look at the words.

What it simmers down to—for sure, it has been simmering since 1760—is that anybody can learn to spell, because the main thing is to look at the words as intently as a girl studies a rival's hairdo or volleyball serve, as thoroughly as a man reviews a bank statement.

One of the first school books was a spelling book. The other, in those Puritan days, was the Bible. "A" is for "Adam." Since then, and still today, teachers have cast about for successful methods, including changing the spelling and changing the alphabet. One method was to have children study their spelling out loud to themselves. These very noisy schools of the pioneer days were dubbed "blab schools."

Today grades, rewards, and spell-downs proclaim the value of the achievement. The last one—spell-downs—is, however, only for the already proficient. Spelling being a matter of looking, an oral spell-down is certainly a difficult step away from seeing the word as one does in writing it.

To earn that good grade, the child needs to know, "you really can learn to spell." This involves picking up where the child's list leaves off. Not several books ahead. In school this is one place where aides are so helpful.

Can parents help their children spell better?

It has to be a cheerful sort of arrangement. Not spelling well has much to do with emotions.

I once saw a boy spend an afternoon trying to learn ten words. He was so jumpy that at the end of the time he was doing worse than when he started.

Parents help when they praise progress—or even just effort! They help when they play simple games on long car trips like "ghost" or "alphabet hunt."

Card games can be made that require matching the word on one card to the same word on another. (For small children, matching a symbol or picture will teach them to look.) The old card game, Concentration, is a good one for this, substituting printed word cards for the ace of spades and so on.

A game can be made of collecting words that spring from a particular root word; for example—grateful, gratitude, gratuity, and so on. Changing one's spelling reputation is possible! The unsurpassed method is to keep a page in the notebook with a personal list of words missed. As the student writes any assignment, the

Caught in a trap—a cruel trap

In a recent letter to a concerned citizen, Michigan Senator Cal Levin reported that there is a bill pending legislation in the U.S. Senate that would restrict the use of steel-jaw leghold traps and other painful devices used for trapping.

Senator Williams has re-introduced the bill (S. 425) and U.S. Representative Long has introduced its companion bill (H.R. 1297) in the House of Representatives.

Several states have already passed legislation that restricts or bans the use of steel-jaw leghold traps. Michigan has not passed such legislation. However, Michigan Senators Levin and Donald Riegle have announced that they favor outlawing the use of this trap.

The steel-jaw leghold is a description too nice for this piece of brutality. Trappers cannot target their catch with this kind of device. Children, birds and domestic animals have been found in the traps' mutilating hold.

Yet, the trapping industry can lure recruits for hobby-trapping by their suggestion that it is the painless, easy way to trap and manage wildlife at the same time. I believe they are wrong on both counts.

Any one picture of an animal caught in this trap proves that to come into contact with its steel clutch could not be anything but painful. It is necessary for many animals that have been caught in the trap accidentally to have amputations.

Victims of the trap have been found frozen to the ground, starving to death or dragging the trap from a mangled paw. Some have tried to chew off their own entrapped legs.

Sen. Riegle states that in Florida, where the trap has been banned, "No new control measures for wildlife had to be implemented after the ban on the use of steel-jaw leghold traps were imposed."

Wildlife deserves a second thought. It takes between 50 and 80 muskrat pelts trapped this way to make one fur coat. It takes only a few minutes to write to your senator or congressman urging that alternative methods of trapping be developed and that the use of the steel-jaw leghold trap be stopped.

Our senators, Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, may be reached by writing: Federal Building 231 Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, MI. 48226.

You can write Congressman Bob Davis at Box 189, 5056 Wah Wah Soo Drive, Gaylord, MI. 49735.

There is considerable lobbying pressure for the continued use of this type of trapping. Legislation has been stalled long enough. Wildlife can't speak for itself. It's time Congress heard about the inhumanity of steel-jaw leghold traps from concerned individuals.

Bananas served with Costa Rican dinner

When my sister, Margaret, visited me recently she cooked us a Costa Rican dinner. Her daughter and family live in Costa Rica and Margaret has visited her there a few times. It is a very beautiful land and much of the country is still quite primitive. I asked Margaret if it was extremely hot there and she said that up in the mountains where her daughter lives it was very comfortable and there was nearly always a breeze off the Pacific.

Their main food is beans and rice. They serve both at the same meal as their source of protein.

BEANS, RICE AND FRUIT

Beans: Use navy, pinto, black eyed

Cooking Yesterday & Today

with Bea Smith

add onions, green peppers, carrots and garlic. For one package of beans, add 2 medium onions, a small green pepper and three or four carrots cut up fine.

Rice: Use white or brown rice, cook according to directions. In a large fry pan saute onions, green pepper, carrots and garlic. Margaret says to be generous with the vegetables, 2 good onions, one green pepper, and four or five carrots sliced paper thin and a couple slivers of fresh garlic.

Add rice to the sauted vegetables and serve the rice and beans separately and use salsa sauce for flavor as desired. If you like your food really hot serve a hot pepper sauce also. These sauces should be served on the side so your guests can do their own thing when it comes to flavor.

Costa Rica grows pineapple and bananas, so serve a fruit compote for dessert. She says they sell wedges of fresh pineapple on the streets and people eat them as we eat ice cream cones.

This is a lot of food and you will probably have left overs. The rice and beans both taste better warmed up the second day than they do the first. The flavors seem to have blended. They can also be frozen for a later time.

I asked about meat. She said that it was very expensive and not served often there. They raise a good grade of beef but most of it is exported. However, there is an abundance of fruit and vegetables.

4-H awards banquet set for Monday

Charlevoix County 4-H members and leaders will hold their annual 4-H Fall Awards banquet at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 27, at the Whiting Park Community Building.

Following a potluck dinner, pin awards earned by the 4-H members during the 1980 program year will be presented. In addition several leaders will be honored for five or more years of volunteer service to Charlevoix County 4-H.

Individuals and businesses who have made contributions to the 4-H program will also be recognized. Trophies and blankets will be awarded to members of 4-H horse clubs reaching state level competition.

"Many individuals, both young people and adults, work very hard to make the Charlevoix County 4-H program a success," said Leah Green, the county 4-H program assistant. "There is a wide range of projects from which members may choose in order to learn about things ranging from animals to energy to self."

"4-H is a program from which all may learn and anyone interested in knowing more about it is cordially welcome to attend the awards banquet or to call me at 582-6232," she said.

Each family is asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service for the meal. Milk and coffee will be provided.

Elections for the board of directors of the county 4-H Council will be held as well as a door prize drawing.

Halloween is a children's holiday. Members of Mrs. Left's third grade class in Boyne City celebrate the occasion by making a Halloween mural.

What's brewing?

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Plump pumpkins rise from the patch and assume a ghoulish grin. Children treat themselves to a make-believe world that would challenge the ponderings of Poe.

What's brewing? Well, before the swish of a witch's skirt, Halloween will be here. And, children are preparing for it by masking their classroom walls with black cats and pumpkin faces.

Skeletons suspended from corridors indicate that area schools are stirring up something that will transform innocent young students into ghosts, goblins and alien creatures. Here is a list of parades and parties that will get you into spirit.

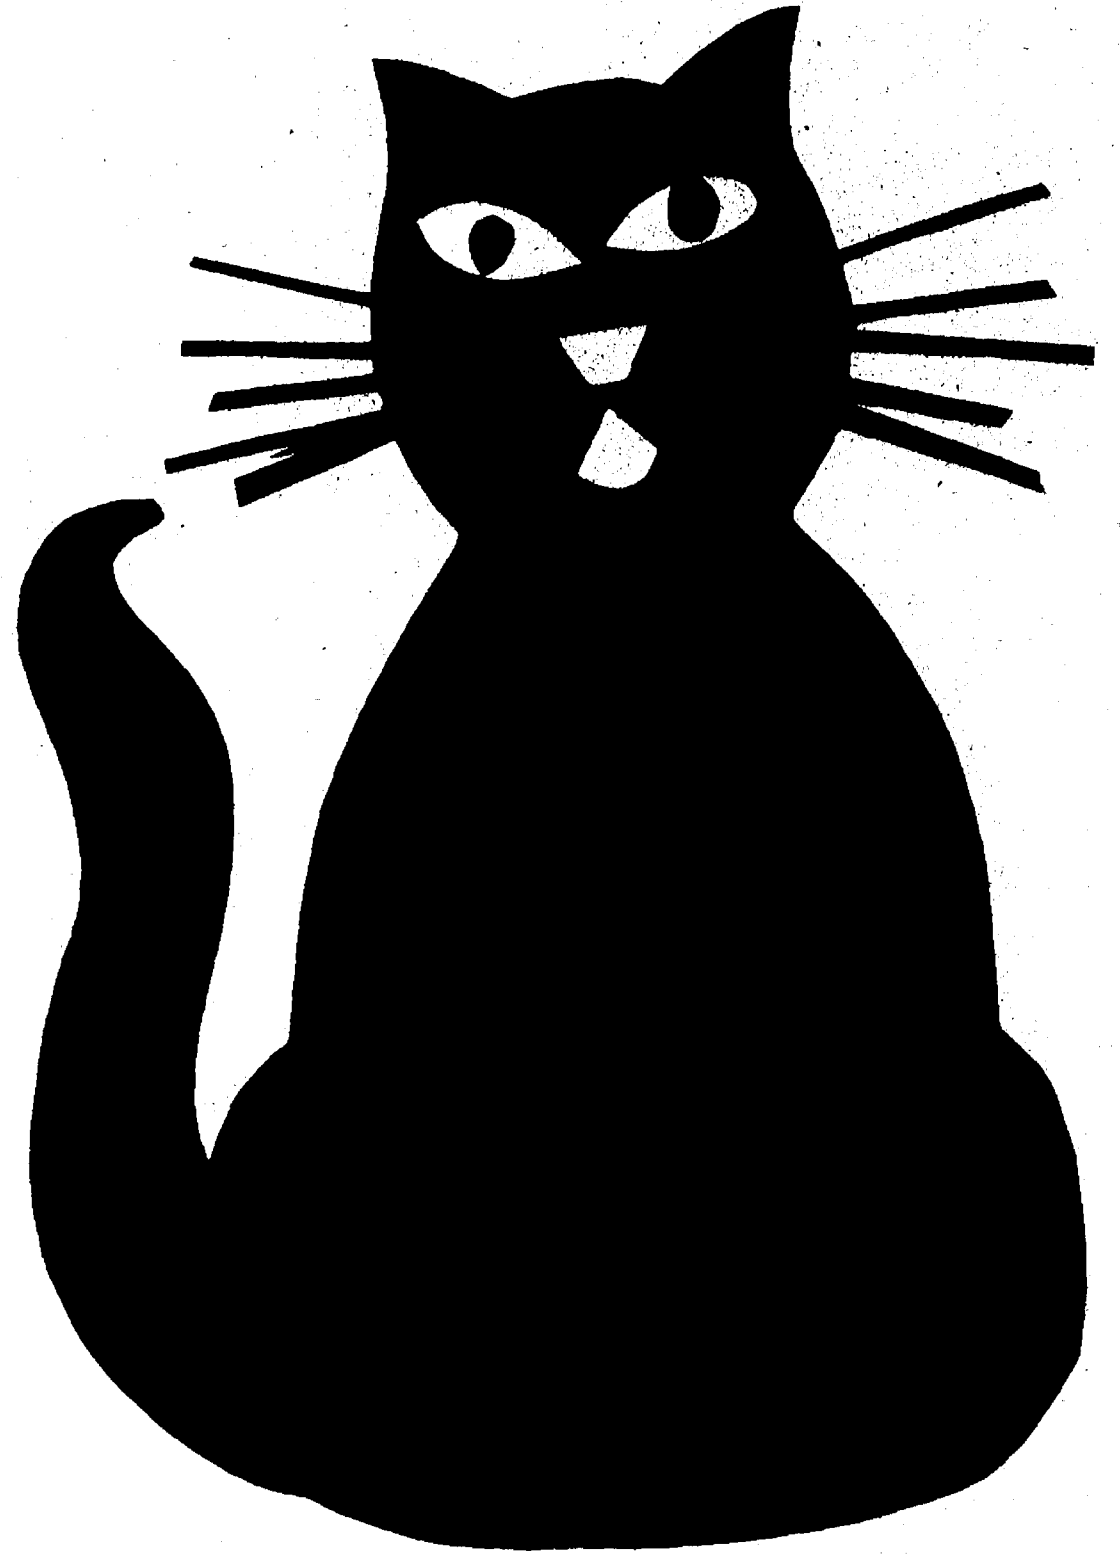

The Boyne City elementary grades K-5, will be parading their costumes at the high school football field on Friday, Oct. 31. The parade begins at 1:15 p.m. Parents are asked to sit in the bleachers.

Kindergartners through fifth graders in the East Jordan elementary school will participate in a parade that will wind through streets near the school building. East Jordan fifth graders will visit Grandvue Medical Facility in their Halloween costumes at 11 a.m. According to Don Peters, elementary school principal, this is an excursion that the patients and children have enjoyed for years.

The Boyne Falls student council will host a Halloween carnival on Friday, Oct. 24, from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. There will be a costume judging at 7:30. The public is invited to attend in costume and enjoy the games and refreshments.

If your heart can stand it, you're invited to a haunted house. The Petoskey area Jaycees and Auxiliary are sponsoring a haunted house at the Emmet County Fair Grounds. A 4 p.m. matinee is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 26. The haunted house will be open from Monday, Oct. 27 to Thursday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. Admission is 75 cents.

Black cat - compliments of Mrs. Ekstrom's third grade class at the Boyne City Elementary School.

Hallowe'en

Tonight is the night
When dead leaves fly
Like witches on switches
Across the sky.
When elf and sprite
Flit through the night
On a moony sheen.

Tonight is the night
When leaves make a sound
Like a gnome in his home
Under the ground.
When spooks and trolls
Creep out of holes
Mossy and green.

Tonight is the night
When pumpkins stare
Through sheaves and leaves Everywhere.
When ghouls and ghosts
And goblin host
Dance round their queen.
It's Hallowe'en.

One third grader proudly shows off the black cat he created from construction paper and glue.

Inland Lakes next foe for EJ; Two games from another title

EAST JORDAN - A good-sized Inland Lakes team will be hosting the conference-leading Red Devils this Saturday afternoon in Indian River.

EJHS Coach Frank Holes says the Bulldogs are big—"probably as big as we are...but they're young."

"I'm surprised they haven't done better this year," Holes said. Inland Lakes is 3-3-1 this year, 2-3 in the Ski Valley League where East Jordan is 5-0.

The Bulldogs lost to second place Gaylord St. Mary 35-8 last week.

Holes said Inland Lakes has a 225-pound sophomore tackle who played well as a freshman. Another standout is running back Ernie Millstead. "They're always a real physical team," he said.

Last week the Devils breezed to a 74-0 victory over Central Lake. The only problem the Devils had was dealing with criticism from Central Lake players and coaches about running up the score.

But, Holes points out, his second string reserves played most of the second half—as they have in four other lopsided victories this year.

"I hate to run up the score like that," he said, "but it's hard to call 'em off. In basketball if you get way ahead maybe you can stand around and dribble the ball, but in football you're always heading for the goal line."

"We have the largest squad in the Ski Valley," he said, noting that he has 32 players on his team. Central Lake had only 16 dressed for last Friday's game. Our second team practices all week against our first stringers, and they get pounded. They like to get in the games and see what they can do."

"I don't know what some people expect us to do...punt on first down?"

Since the Devils have their toughest games under their belts on the way to a third consecutive league title, Holes said he is worried that his troops will suffer a letdown. "So we coach, every game like it's a big one, because we don't want a letdown."

EJHS ran up 375 yards on the ground with Steve Graham getting 130 yards on 11 carries. Graham also added two touchdowns to bring his league-leading scoring total to 70 points. Bill Spence and Tom Peters also added touchdown runs.

Quarterback Del Ingalls hit on five of 10 passes for 85 yards. Three of the passes went for touchdowns to Randy Morris, Tom Peters and Mike Cihak.

Sophomore fullback Tim Russell led the reserves with touchdown runs of two and four yards, junior halfback Mike Sheridan also added a touchdown on a six-yard run.

Steve Hilden again paced the defensive unit with 11 tackles. Other leading defenders were Bill Spence, Cihak, Jerry Fuller, Todd Root, Graham and Jim Spence. Del Ingalls had two interceptions, and Morris had one.

This time he plays well, wins state golf meet

BOYNE CITY - On Oct. 10, Steve Kircher won the Class C Regional golf meet, and he said he didn't even play very well.

We asked him if he thought he had a chance to win the State Meet. "Maybe...if I play well," Kircher said.

As it turns out, he did play well in the state meet last weekend—and he did win it.

"It was the best I ever played—except for one hole," Kircher said.

The high school junior was playing at even par through the first 15 holes, but the "one hole" that almost did him in was a 600-yard par five on the Green Acres course in Bridgeport.

Kircher took a nine on the hole, but even that score wasn't so bad considering that it was cold and rainy, and the golfers were playing into the wind on the monster hole. The average score on the hole was eight during the tournament.

Kircher finished his round with a five-over-par 77, but just like in the Regional Meet the week before, it took a sudden death playoff to decide the winner.

And—also like the Regional Meet—Kircher won the playoff on the first hole. He parred the hole with a four, while opponent Chip Seltzer of Goodrich had a five.

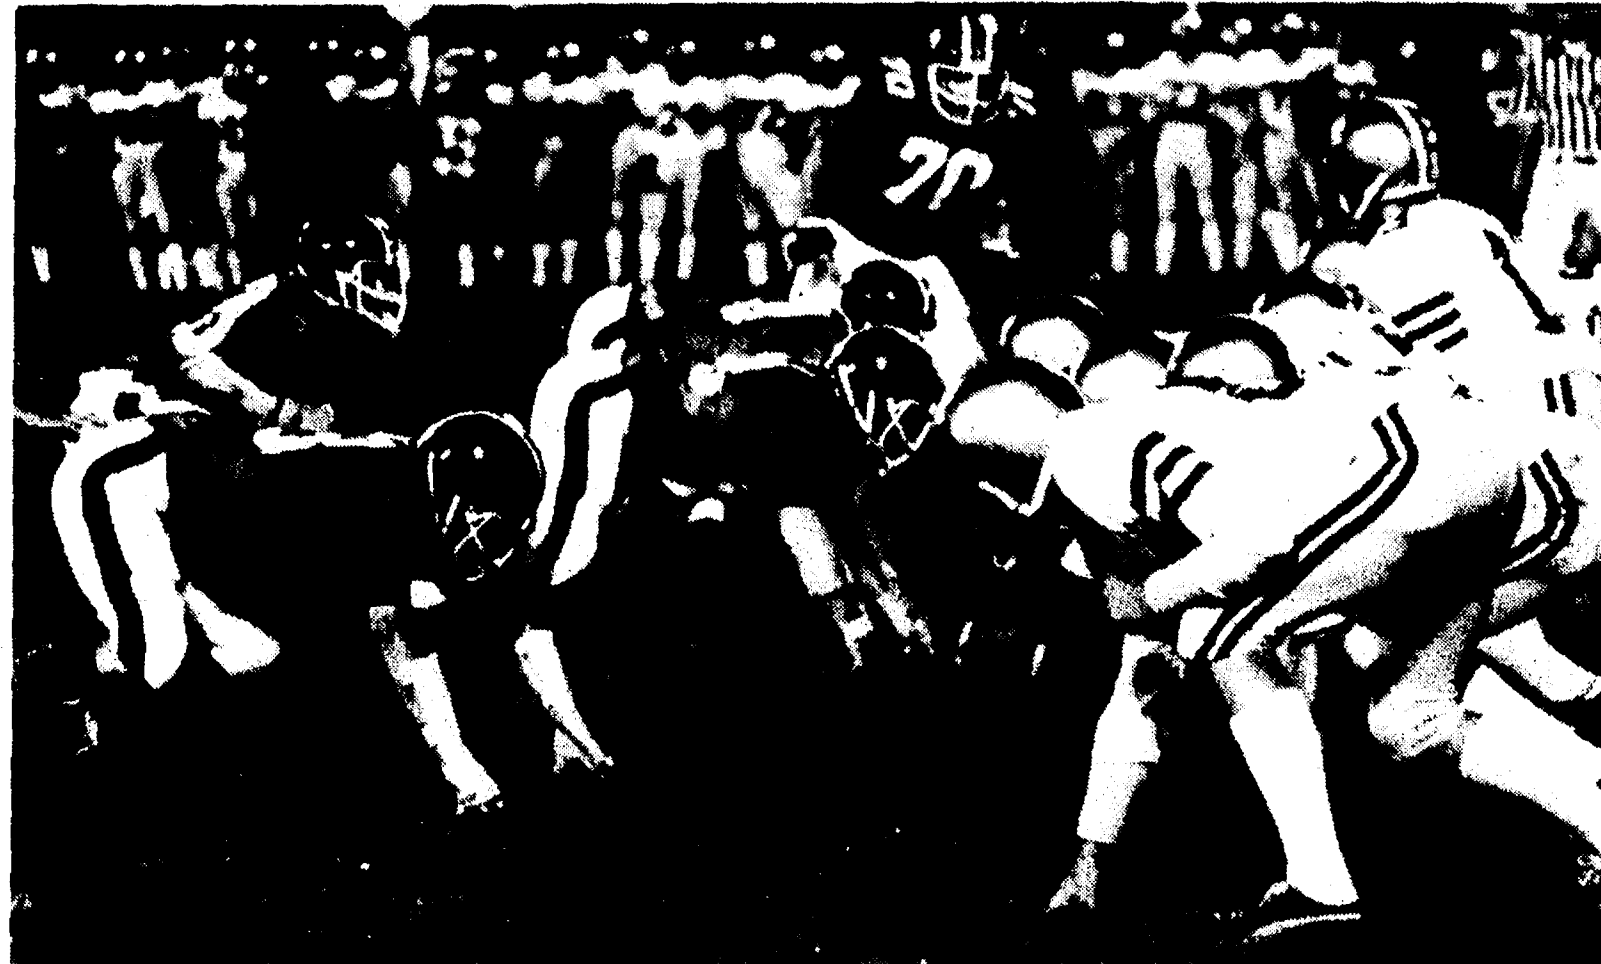

Kircher beat 85 other golfers in taking the medalist honors in the meet.

He said his putting and chipping were the key to his victory. He only needed 26 putts on the 18 holes. Most of his approach chip shots were getting him within five or six feet of the hole, and all of those medium range putts were dropping for him.

He also said fellow golf team member Chris Kuhn was a big help to him as his caddy for the meet. "He helped me a lot," Kircher said.

BC optimistic about Cheboygan

BOYNE CITY - "Maybe I'm crazy, but I think we can beat 'em," says Rambler Coach Bob McCullough about this Friday's opponent, Cheboygan.

The Chiefs are described by those who have seen them as "awesome." Ranked second in the state in Class B by the Detroit Free Press, the Chiefs have won 26 games in a row—the longest winning streak in the state.

That, says Coach McCullough, is enough to make most teams shake in their boots.

"I think some teams have panicked. They try to get tricky. Maybe if we go up there and just play good solid ball, we can knock their socks off," he said, noting that Charlevoix came closer to Cheboygan than anyone this year by playing good fundamental football.

"I think we're going to win. Maybe I'm nuts, but I don't see how one high school kid can dominate another one if both are reasonably well coached. They've got 51 guys on their squad, but they can only play 11 at a time."

The Chiefs are a "very, very sound team," McCullough said. "They don't make mistakes. Their whole attack is the running game and ball control. They don't throw much, although they can if they have to."

"If you make a mistake, they jam it back at you. And once they get the gate open, they just pour through."

Running back Chris Elliott is the leading scorer in the conference with 69 points. Teammates John Fisher and John Lafrinere each have five touchdowns for 30 points.

The long-shot victory McCullough thinks is possible...if one allows himself to dream...could conceivably put the Ramblers in the state playoffs.

Boyne is 6-1 going into the contest, and a victory over the Chiefs would give them a pile of points in the state playoff system.

A more realistic goal for the Ramblers might be to take second place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference—behind Cheboygan.

Boyne is 4-1 in the league tied for second with St. Ignace, a team they have already beaten. Charlevoix is next at 3-2, and the Rayders face off against the Saints this Friday. Then Boyne hosts Charlevoix in the season final on Oct. 31.

Boyne beat Gaylord for the first time in several years last Friday, 14-12, on a touchdown by Kerry Krusel with only three minutes left in the game.

Krusel ran the ball 27 times during the evening and gained 146 yards. In the game-winning 70-yard drive, the 160-pound halfback carried the ball 14 times. He was also the leading defensive player with 11 tackles.

Gaylord scored first in the contest after a first quarter Boyne City fumble.

The Ramblers recovered to score on the next series as quarterback Todd Newville sneaked over from the one yard line. A 19 yard pass from Newville to junior end Ed Boyer set up the score. Krusel added the crucial extra point for an 8-6 lead.

The visiting Blue Devils went ahead late in the third quarter as an 80 yard run set up a touchdown. Gaylord missed the extra point, however, leaving the door open for Boyne's winning touchdown in the fourth quarter.
