Economic update

Employment increasing but many are still out of work

BY KATHY JOHNSON

There is some bad news and some good news in the employment picture for Charlevoix County.

The bad news is that there are still companies with employees on layoff and companies who expect to experience new layoffs.

The good news is that employment is up over the last six months for many of these companies and that some layoffs are the usual seasonal type and not caused by the economic situation.

The Press contacted various personnel directors and corporate officers throughout the county, and several reported a stable year coming up and at least one company reported expansion and new employees.

United Technology Automotive Group (Essex) in Boyne City reported overtime in some of their departments. Plant accountant Keith Fitzpatrick said, "We had 57 people laid off but we've hired back all of those that wanted to come back and hired some new people besides."

"It looks like (business) will continue to be very good, at least for a while," was Fitzpatrick's assessment of the future.

At Courter, Inc., director of industrial relations Ken Gilbert said, "We're down a touch in employment, with 80 employees laid off, but I see a fairly stable year coming up. Employment has been varying more to availability of material than the economy."

Boyer Falls Log Homes treasurer Bob Kinney wasn't quite as optimistic. Kinney indicated that he still had about 30 people laid off and "I expect it to get worse in January, February and March, with the interest rates where they are," Kinney said.

In East Jordan the employment picture is also experiencing some fluctuation with the Iron Works indicating "not much of a change" and Gulf and Western "cautiously optimistic."

Bill Christenson, personnel director at the East Jordan Iron Works, said "We're running a shift and a half right now. A year ago we were running two shifts, but then we got down to a single shift. Now we have managed to get back to one and a half."

"Employment has been looking up the last three months."

Christenson indicated that he would like to get everyone back to work but, "It doesn't look like that will happen anytime soon. There's just not much change."

"Very pleased," is the comment from Craig Reimers, industrial relations manager from Gulf and Western. "Employment has been looking up the last three months," he said.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," Reimers said, "depending on what happens with the auto industry. In June we had 130 people laid off in East Jordan, now there are just 43. In Mancelona it was about the same and we've got all back except 16."

In Charlevoix the good news-bad news story is repeated as Lexalite indicates expansion and Weather Shield Sports indicates seasonal layoffs "a little earlier" this year.

Hazel Matson, vice-president of Weather Shield said, "Business seems to be pretty good. We're getting into our down time now but the new season will start soon. We've had to lay off some a little earlier than usual, but it is a seasonal layoff."

"We'll call back some of our people in January to start up and then we'll have to see. By April 30 we should be in full swing. Usually we rehire about the same amount," she continued.

At Will-Flow Corporation, Elaine McDonald, the personnel manager's secretary, said, "We've had some laid off and we still have one not called back. I don't see any additional hiring."

McDonald concluded by saying, "We've had a steady rate of business. I could have had better if the economy were better."

Gil Peterson, manager of Medusa Cement, indicated that his plant would be closing down this winter for a while, but that mostly it was a maintenance shutdown. He said, "Some people will be on layoff, but most will still be working doing maintenance."

Earlier reports on the Medusa shutdown indicated that the shutdown would occur in mid-November but Peterson said he thought now it would probably be about December. The plant could be shut for as long as two months, as earlier reported, but could be down for less time, depending on business.

"We usually shutdown about this time each year to maintain the equipment," said Peterson. He explained that if business was such that they had to continue work then the maintenance would still have to be done as equipment went down.

"Projections for next year are about the same as this year—total production at about 70 percent. It depends on business conditions as they develop," Peterson said.

Lexalite International Corporation President John Barnes had the most positive outlook on employment for Charlevoix. Barnes indicated that they had a full staff currently of 120 people.

"We're very busy. We've expanded and added to the new building in Charlevoix. We're not involved in the automotive business and the states we deal with like Texas and California are doing well. Our business is up about 20 percent."

Ask any two businessmen what kind of a year they had and you'll get two different answers. Ask a dozen and you'll get a dozen different answers.

But the overall consensus, if there is one, seems to have been that basically business was good, better than before, and the outlook for the Christmas and winter ski season are good.

Crown Drug Center manager Leah Erban of Charlevoix, indicated that business was "better than last year."

"We've been pleased so far and we're expecting Christmas to be better. We feel the downswing in the economy has meant tighter inventory and better management," said Erban. She also said she was looking forward to a better economy in the future.

At Ace Hardware in Boyne City, owner Jim White said that business had been pretty steady and that "We have had a pretty good year. We sell enough things that people need year around. Our contractors' sales have been down, but the do-it-yourselfers have been more active."

Dee Adgate, owner of Adgate Realty of Boyne City, said "Sales have been fairly strong the last two or three months since fall started. We're expecting a slowdown now, but after the first of the year we're hoping for a better resort market."

In East Jordan Bob Romback at Healey Hardware indicated that business there had been a little slow.

"Sales are up but we're not making money."

He said he has seen "lots of people, but they aren't buying like in years gone by."

When asked about the starting of deer season and related sales he said, "The three or four days before the opening would tell the tale. Lack of snow and weather hurt the trades-people last year." Romback is hoping for a better season this year.

At Reusch Jewelry in Charlevoix, store manager Coleen Titsworth said, "It's been a good year. No complaints. It seems to be a little slow right now, but I suspect the year will end pretty good."

Several area businessmen seemed to feel that while sales were up, their profits were down. Gary Schafer of Schafer's in Boyne City said, "Basically it has not been a good year. Sales are up but we're not making money. I'm not happy with the way things are."

Schafer indicated that the change in the economic situation had caused a change in the way they do business. "We go get the business instead of waiting on people to come in," he said. "Our in-store business is down about 50 percent."

In East Jordan, Carol Tighe of the EJ Shop seemed to agree. "Our sales are just great, but my problem has been inflation. Trying to meet this year's cost with last year's profits," she said.

Duane Chappuies of the Jordan Valley Drug in East Jordan also said, "Sales are up but considerably less than what they could have been if the economy had been better. We're selling very little jewelry and perfumes. People are sticking to basics."

"It's gradually pulling out, but it will be sometime before it is back to normal," Chappuies concluded.

At Glen's Market in East Jordan, manager Mark Weisler said, "Business is much improved. Looking to the future with more people going back to work, it is looking better. My projection is down, but I can see a steady increase in business."

Weisler finished by saying that while, "It may be next fall before it's back to normal, I'm more optimistic than six months ago."

Jim Wandrie of the Country Star Market in Boyne City, said, "Sales for food are about the same as last year, but non-food items are down a little bit." Wandrie went on to say that three or four men come in every day looking for work. "Not just from the Boyne City area, these men are coming from Petoskey, East Jordan and all over."

Bob Mathers of Bob Mathers Ford in Boyne City, said he could "see an improvement, but things aren't going to break loose though until interest rates go down."

Boyer City Realtor Martin Bieganski indicated that things were looking better. "We believe the pendulum is on the upswing, but how far up I couldn't say. Activity is not real bad. There are positive signs out there," he said.

At Kaden's, Chuck Rivard said, "This is a very conservative time. However, there are some positive signs that things are going to change. People are optimistic about the coming year."

Rivard, who is president of the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, also said that local businessmen are hoping for a good snow season.

Steve Woodcock, of First National Bank in Boyne City, said that the indications had been bad but were improving. "One of the most obvious things we see is the decrease in loan demands when the economy is bad. Demand goes down as the rate goes up. But it is not as low as last year, now," Woodcock said.

"Locally things are sluggish, but improved over last winter," he said. Woodcock finished on a positive note by saying, "I'm optimistic that 1981 will be better than 1980."

Superintendent returns after 8 years

Educator sees proud community

BY TRISH WRIGHT

BOYNE FALLS - "I think this is a proud community and one which everyone has worked hard to support," says Ray Mouch, the new Boyne Falls school superintendent.

Mouch, 54, is embarking on his 27th year in education. All but two of those years he has devoted to education administration. Mouch's career has followed a circuitous route. Most recently, he was the principal at the Unionville-Sebewaing High School in Michigan's Thumb area. From 1968-72 he was school superintendent at Boyne Falls School.

After he left the Boyne Falls school system, he returned to the Unionville area to become a junior high school principal. And now, Mouch has returned to the place where he plans to finish out his career. "My wife and I wanted to return to Boyne Falls to once again become part of the community. Everyone has been so accommodating here."

'The quality of education at Boyne Falls School is comparable if not better than larger schools'

Both Mouch and his wife, Dolores, are native to the Detroit area. Dolores is presently teaching at the Unionville-Sebewaing school. Says Mouch, "She will join me in Boyne Falls soon. She is going to retire here after 15 years of teaching in elementary and high school."

Mouch holds a master's and bachelor's degree from Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. He has also attended Michigan State University for post-graduate work.

"The quality of education at the Boyne Falls school is comparable if not better than larger schools," notes

Mouch. "The small school has the advantage of closer teacher, principal and student relationships. We have a wonderful working arrangement."

Enrollment at the school counts 279 students for grades kindergarten through 12. "Based on what I've observed in my first week here, I would say that we have an excellent student body. They have warmth and they care about their school," said Mouch.

The Boyne Falls school system receives no state aid other than a subsidy to help defray the school's transportation costs. The hot lunch program is federally funded. But the bulk of the education costs are covered by local property taxes.

Mouch explains that though the curriculum is in the hands of Principal Carl Moser, the two work closely together. "I am very satisfied with the quality of our programs," he said.

Mouch says the primary responsibilities of the superintendent's office are to keep abreast of current legislation that may affect schools, be apprised of the school's financial status and to adopt and implement the policies prescribed by the school board. He says his office is a liaison between the community and the board.

"In a smaller school such as this, no formal meetings are necessary to communicate with the faculty and the administration. We see each other often in the halls and can get much accomplished by our informal discussions," said Mouch.

Besides developing public relations for the school, the superintendent is required to attend the monthly Intermediate School District meetings and the Region II Superintendents' meetings.

Mouch believes that education is better now than it was 20 years ago. "Without education we wouldn't have progress. Our society reflects that. I chose this profession because I wanted to be of service to mankind. Teaching and the administration of schools have been the avenues that have led me to fulfil that goal."

'The parent is the most important teacher...'

Some children have less going for them in school than others do. They fail to respond to teaching, and even with extra help, the gap between them and the other students grows and grows. Some of these children are shy, some are restless. They are unprepared for the process of learning. Some were hit by illness in babyhood; some, affected by family misfortune.

In East Jordan such children have been readied for school by PREP—Parent Readiness Education Project—now in its fourth year. Much more than a good pre-school, the project is unique because it meets needs in not one, but three directions.

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Arline Rullman who directs the program notes, "A parent is the most important teacher a child will ever have." So not only the children, but parents also attend classes, the children with teacher Toni Jeffery three mornings a week and the parents with Arline Rullman for one 2½-hour session a week.

The parents learn ways to help the children practice what they are learning in school. To be part of the program, the parent must agree to spend a minimum of 15 minutes a day with the child on whatever the child is learning. Parents are able to observe the class and see how the teaching is done.

Rullman said parents have found it difficult at first to get on with their children in a teaching-learning relationship. But in time they wind up saying, "I didn't know how much fun I can have with my child!"

The parents, as they meet with Rullman for class, also come to appreciate each other—to the point, Rullman said, of asking if classes can't run on through summer. They hate to stop their weekly confabs.

Besides the lessons with parents and with children, the spring semester adds a third ingredient—lessons with high school students.

These young men and women, soon to enter adulthood and parenthood, earn regular course credit as they work three times a week with the children. Each high schooler is matched for the whole semester with a particular four-year-old. The high schooler prepares lesson plans and teaches them to his or her assigned child three days a week.

The students and "their" children inevitably become close friends.

The other two class periods a week, the high schoolers meet with the teacher to discuss their difficulties—and successes—and to learn more about parenthood and child development.

Rullman says, "Probably the biggest thing they learn is that a child is a tremendous responsibility."

And what do the four-year-olds learn? Toni Jeffery, their teacher, helps them through stories, games, walks, snack preparation, and so on to learn to focus on what they're doing—a prominent skill for success in school. Also, children at that age often have the vaguest idea of what a word like "under" means. "Look under the desk" leaves such a child mystified.

Thus language development, as well as progress in social and physical skills occupy Jeffery and her aide in the fall. In the spring, of course, she has the high school students working with her.

The whole thing was established with $5,000 from the Michigan Education Department. Since then, the federal government's Title I has paid the salaries.

Half of this year's 32 children meet in the morning and the other half in the afternoon. This is about one half of the four-year-olds in the area.

They make dramatic progress, according to the tests, Rullman says. "Most operate well above average by the end of the year, if home participation has kept up."

She emphasizes that it's the work of the parents—or grandparent—that makes the thing work. Rullman says, sometimes, when both parents have jobs, it's the baby sitter who comes to classes in the place of the parent.

There are PREP programs all over the United States, but East Jordan's is the only one in this or nearby counties.

"Probably one of the most rewarding things I have ever done," says Rullman. She adds, "I wish I could have had the opportunity 20 years ago to do this...I have learned from the parents who have been in the classes."

IS A TRADITIONAL SERVICE NEEDED?

It is - if we are to retain the dignity and pride as set by our national character.

It was Gladstone, the noted English statesman, who put it so well when he said, "Show me the manner in which a nation or community cares for its dead and I will measure with mathematical exactness the tender sympathies of its people, their respect for the law of the land, and their loyalty to high ideals."

Whole nations are saddened and go into mourning when their leaders die. Recently, the United States mourned one of its favorite senators, Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey - whose traditional and full-service funeral was of national significance.

On Memorial Day and Veterans Day and to render tribute to national leaders who have died, we fly our American flags at half-staff. We observe these traditions with patriotic and religious ceremonies. They, are, in effect, national funeral ceremonies, indicates Dr. Arthur Freese (Help for your grief" 1977). He feels these national rituals periodically help our country deal with death, and we agree.

We will be glad to discuss this in detail with you.

Slump didn't hurt restaurants

BY TRISH WRIGHT

On Aug. 29 of this year, The Kiplinger Washington Letter reported that restaurant business was off. This newsletter which has been circulated weekly to business clients nationwide, has made predictions and comments on the current economy since 1923.

Kiplinger has a reputation for accuracy, however, a recent survey of restaurants in East Jordan, Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey showed that restaurant business is as good or better than last year at this time.

Traffic in restaurants that feature gourmet menus parallel the fast food and family restaurants.

"When the economy is down, people may limit their purchases but they always celebrate. Most of us were blessed with a good summer and a fair fall. I see the picture of the economy looking up," says Dave Phillips, owner of the Grey Gables in Charlevoix.

Art Gibbs, proprietor of the Dairy Queen in Boyne City, says, "Business is up." Although the Dairy Queen has expanded its facility to include indoor dining, the establishment has had to add three extra people to its staff at a time when business is normally slow.

Ironton Ferry Landing has also hired extra staff. "Business has increased this year over last year, but so have operation costs," says Marge Kimball, owner and manager of The Landing. "This summer we had extra student help. Right now we have three more employees than in '79."

The Holiday Inn and The Flap Jack Shack, both located on the heavily trafficked U.S. 131 in Petoskey, have not lost business but according to their managers, neither have they experienced any significant gain in business. And yet, a restaurant in the Gaslight section of Petoskey has doubled its September and October business.

Economic update

"We've had a great increase," says Chris Spohr of Petoskey's J.D. and Company. August couldn't have been better. I think one of the reasons for the phenomenal growth we've had is that merchants are supporting us. And, even though we have advertised, we're getting customers just by word of mouth."

Highly visible restaurants that draw customers from the highways may be the first to notice a downward trend in tourism. However, some smaller restaurants and bars are having a profitable fall because of the patronage of fishermen and color tour motorists.

According to Mary McNicol, of the Boyne River Inn in Boyne City, trade is at last year's level because of the color and fishing seasons.

T J's Tannery Saloon in Boyne reports that business is better than last year but not as good as their 1978 record year. And, Mr. J's in Boyne reports that traffic is about the same as the previous year, but certainly no better.

Kim Jeffery, manager of The Racquetball Restaurant in East Jordan, says "We had a good summer but there was a slack period that followed. We're up again now and its mostly local people that are coming here. I'm really surprised with the state of the economy that we're doing so well."

Another East Jordan restaurant, the Dairy Corner, is experiencing the same upswing. According to manager Jim Tomlinson, business is excellent. "We expanded our facility in June and the response has been very favorable."

Fat Clarence's Calorie Factory, which has been closed for a few weeks, has been sold and is expected to reopen soon—possibly this Saturday. The new owners are Jack and Judy Newton, formerly of Dearborn Heights. They are renaming the restaurant the Anchorage, its former name.

Higher priced menu items and last year's slow ski season may be influencing some restaurants to cut their hours or even close during the slack season.

The Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City has been closed for the full season. Owner Latimer Spinney says, "We may not reopen until Christmas. It will depend on the weather. If it snows, we may open the day after Thanksgiving. The town itself cannot support a restaurant like the Dilworth" when tourists aren't around in great numbers, he said.

"The Dilworth, a long-time ski resort bar, may have been hurt because of the poor ski season at Boyne Mountain last year," says Jack Mason, owner of Duffy's in Harbor Springs.

Mason adds that Boyne Highlands, in the Harbor Springs area, had a better season than Boyne Mountain and the Harbor Springs restaurants reflect that.

"The Pier had one of its finest years and Duffy's is up 18 percent from last year. Of all the resort areas in the state, Harbor Springs and Petoskey have probably been the least affected by the economy," he said.

Some BC residents don't like $15 water turnoff charge

BOYNE CITY - The proposed schedule of water and sewer rate increases has been one particular item that is being most often singled out for complaints—the charge for turning on or turning off water service.

While agreeing that the present charge of $2.50 is too low to cover costs of the service, complainants say the proposed rate of $15 is a hardship.

At their Tuesday night meeting, city commissioners note this is only one item and not typical of the overall rate increase which would be about 45 percent. They say also the customer's share of water and sewer maintenance goes on regardless of the customer use of the service.

The city proposed water rate increases to halt the trend of "borrowing" from city tax revenues to pay for the shortfall in water bills. The utility, according to the city charter, is supposed to be self-supporting.

The new rates will do that, and will also protect the bonding which requires observance of the charter.

The entire water rate proposal will be published in the newspaper, and a final hearing has been set for Thursday, Dec. 11.

As for city residents who must run a faucet all winter to prevent a freeze-up of some of the old mains, City Manager Tim Clifton said their water bills, under whatever rates that are finally approved, will not include the amount used to prevent freezing during the period of deep frost.

Chase named EJHS basketball coach

EAST JORDAN - The school board hired Bill Chase to coach the varsity basketball team this winter.

Chase, a 1966 graduate of EJHS, has been a fifth grade teacher and junior varsity basketball coach here for five years.

He replaces Steve VanderHyde, who left East Jordan after two years to take an assistant coaching job at Alma College.

Chase was hired with the provision that there might not be a complete basketball season if a millage request is not approved by voters on Dec. 8.

But Chase said school sports boosters have told him they would try to raise money to insure that there would be a basketball season even if the millage fails.

Chase, 32, was born in Munising and his family moved to East Jordan when he was in the third grade. He played varsity basketball for three years while in high school.

He attended college at Ferris State for two years and Northern Michigan University for two years, earning a bachelor's degree in elementary education.

He and his wife Linda have two daughters, Angela, 6, and Sara, 8. They live on Peninsula Road.

OVER-IMPROVING

How much money should you put into improving your home? As much as you can afford IF you are doing it for your own enjoyment and don't plan to move for a long time. However, if you plan to make major improvements in order to get a better price when you sell - it is economically unwise. Seldom do such improvements bring more than fifty cents on the dollar spent to make them. And all bets are off if you overvalue your house in relation to other houses in the neighborhood. An old real estate axiom says, in effect, that nobody will spend $40,000 for a house in a $30,000 neighborhood. That's virtually true regardless of how large or good a house it may be.

The addition of an extra bedroom, in-ground swimming pool or central air conditioning, will increase the value of your home. But only at a fraction of the cost. About the only money you should spend on a house to sell it at a higher price is for repairs that are obviously needed to put your best foot forward.

Slow state bureaucracy could leave poor out in the cold

We were dismayed to find, as we reported last week, that some state programs to provide emergency assistance to people who can't pay their heating bills are still in varying states of confusion.

The snow is already starting to fall, yet these programs are not yet finalized.

With the track record of our state bureaucracy, maybe we shouldn't be surprised.

After all, we are well into the state's fiscal year, and the Legislature has not been able to adopt anything more than a 90-day interim budget. This is the same bureaucracy that regularly waits until October—long after school starts—to come up with a state aid formula for local school districts. With the dramatic increases in fuel prices, emergency assistance was provided last year for people who are poor or on fixed incomes.

Editorial

Obviously, there were problems to iron out from those first year programs, but we'd have thought that could have been accomplished by now.

But when a Press reporter called to inquire about heating assistance programs, there were many referrals from one agency to another and from one individual to another.

Some of last year's programs had been changed from one state department to another. Others had guidelines and payment methods changed. Local social service agencies aren't sure what to tell people who ask for help.

We urge our local social service agencies and state legislators to exert any pressure they can to convince the appropriate state officials that this year's heating assistance programs could be crucial to low or fixed income families.

Poor people are, after all, less able to put up the front money necessary to convert their older, more expensive heating systems to newer, economical systems which use cheaper fuel.

Letters to the editor

Getting answers on issues

Editor,

In less than a month folks in the East Jordan school system will be voting on additional millage for operational purposes.

I find there is a lot of confusion on several issues or terms used in education nowadays. Some of them sound downright foreign to a lot of us old folks.

So I attended a meeting the other evening and asked questions about some of them. May I pass the information on?

I think the question I hear most often is, "What the heck do they need teacher's aides for? They never had them when I went to school."

Have you forgotten the times that the teacher had you pronounce words for the lower grades while she was teaching a class? And weren't you darned awful proud to be asked?

In those days the teacher took the test papers and the day's arithmetic paper-home with her to correct. Or sometimes she would let you do some of it if you had a little spare time.

Well, times have changed. How much work should teachers take home to do in the evening? Kids don't want to work for nothing either.

After all, back in those days do you remember getting overtime if the job wasn't done at 6 o'clock and the boss told you to stay for a half hour or so? How many people would work overtime today if they didn't get at least time and a half for over eight hours?

Why not drop sports, you ask? Well, isn't that also part of one's education? The net cost of sports is about one percent of the total school budget.

Not being sports oriented—let's be blunt about it—where football is concerned, I was not about to get into a line-up where some big brute was facing me with the idea of flattening me. As to basketball, well, I just had too many feet. I couldn't handle them both at that speed!

However, I do think that Physical Education should come ahead of sports because it gives everyone a chance at it. Another thing, when we were young most kids had a heck of a lot of work to do at home in the evenings. Were it not for sports those kids would find something to do and probably not as constructive!

Another question that is often asked: "My children are all grown up, why should I have to pay taxes to educate other's kids?" May I ask, "Did you get your education just from taxpayers who had children?" I think it is something that is passed on from one generation to another.

Another thing we constantly hear is that "It costs too much to educate our children!" Maybe so, but East Jordan's cost per pupil is $1,700. Neighboring schools costs run from $1,722 to a high of $2,238 per pupil!

And of course there is the perennial question, "Isn't there some other way?" Well, yes, there is. Cadillac adopted another way when requests for a few extra mills were turned down. They put the school buses in storage and told the folks to get their kids to school any way they could.

Now that is the way a lot of us old-timers got to school. I rode horseback six miles one way in my sophomore year and rode log trucks in my junior year. A few times when it turned rainy during the day I had a long walk—as much as eight miles. Frankly the idea doesn't appeal to me.

There are two sides to everything, they say. Well this issue has three sides. The school board and administration, the teachers and we taxpayers. The first two seem to be at great odds with each other. And if you listen in on conversations, the taxpayers are getting ready to throw bricks at both the other two.

It can only end in chaos at the present trend of things and the only losers will be the children, which everyone says "is our only interest!"

Frankly it looks to me like everyone is saying to H--- with everybody else. I want my way!

Must it continue?
Maurice L. Hartung

Not much election whooping

Everyone talked about Ronald Reagan winning on election night but nobody seemed to do anything about it. I drove around Boyne City looking for someone who had tapped a keg of beer. No beer.

So I went back home. It was 10 o'clock and Walter was still telling us that Reagan had won. He kept it up until 2:30 in the morning.

Election night watching began at our house with the 6:30 news. On the coffee table next to the sofa there were two bottles. One contained castor oil. The other was chloroform. The election results would dictate which one I would take.

But something happened that made me forget it. While I was in the bedroom changing into an old pair of pants so I would not inadvertently ruin my good pair at some disturbing point in the election, there was a yell that Reagan had won.

The house rang with a cheer that rose nine feet into the air. My wife told me to stop it, reminding me that our ceilings were only eight feet high.

And then an announcer guessed that if Carter could take all of the rest of the states, he'd probably win. I don't remember it, but my wife said later that I had given a 48-cent shriek and buried my face in my hands.

Within minutes, however, Walter reported that Reagan had nailed it down and no matter how he struggled, Carter could not get out of the box. It was final. The Republicans had won. After 25 years of ranting and raving I had worn down 40 million people and skillfully tricked them into agreeing with me.

The room seemed to whirl as I let out a sigh of relief that cracked a thermopane window, killing a spider crawling on the ceiling.

Just think of it! Reagan would eliminate the minimum wage and do away with the 55 mile speed limit. Which meant that I could not only find a job, but I could also get there quicker.

That's when I went out to see if any of the vast, silent majority were tapping a keg of beer.

To my dismay there wasn't a wet whistle around.

The trouble with these modern times is that whenever all hell breaks loose, most older folks greet the turmoil with a couple of weak whoops and then sink back into their chairs.

That's one of Boyne City's greatest drawbacks. The residents have lost the fine art of whipping up a good, old-fashioned riot—even when they are supposed to. How discouraging.

Chainsaws can also bite back

On this week's classified page, there is a sincere thanks from Lewis Prebble to those who administered to him at the time of a near fatal accident.

Prebble, 67, says that he was cutting wood alone when the accident occurred last week. "I was cutting a limb off a tree. I didn't realize the limb was broken underneath. When I had sawed half way through it, the limb snapped and threw the chainsaw up."

"My jugular vein was cut as well as other veins, muscles and nerves. I knew that I had to stop the bleeding before I could go anywhere so I wrapped my shirt sleeve around my neck and then my whole shirt," explains Prebble.

Prebble says that he heard his neighbor cutting wood not too far away from him. "I drove my truck in the direction of his chainsaw buzz and found him. Prebble's neighbor, Jerry McKenny drove him to the East Jordan Family Health Center. Prebble was then taken to the Charlevoix Hospital to have a surgeon attend the wound.

"I've been cutting wood all my life," says Prebble. "In the last two years I've cut between 600 or 700 cords of wood. This is the first serious accident that I've had."

Another man, from Boyne City, was seriously hurt by his chainsaw recently. He too is no novice to woodcutting. His chainsaw hit a log underneath the one he was cutting and kicked back to his forehead.

He explained that he was tired and not taking the necessary precautions, which include keeping the log close to yourself, and keeping the bar free. He adds that there is wisdom in knowing when to quit cutting.

The firewood demand is booming along with the sales of wood-burning stoves and furnaces. People are using wood to lessen their dependence on oil. Some industries are even using wood as an energy source. Many companies involved with forest product lines are using their own materials, especially wood chips and pellets.

The widespread use of wood for industrial or residential purposes is skyrocketing cord prices in some areas to as much as $140 a cord. Fortunately Michigan does not share the wood shortage problems that exist in some eastern and mid-west states.

Northern Michigan has an abundance of wood. And people with or without experience are cutting it to use as an alternative heating source. However, one cord of wood doesn't make the lumberjack. Even an expert like Lewis Prebble, who has been cutting all his life, can get hurt.

New safety regulations may soon be enforced by the federal government. The government's concern is the increasing number of accidents as a result of the chainsaw's kickback. Guards on the blade nose may be required to prevent it.

Library's not just for books

Whether you want to settle a bet, read some microfilm, borrow a 16mm movie projector or just read a good book, chances are your public library can be the best free bargain in town. FREE!

That's right. There is no charge for a library card and projectors may be borrowed from several area libraries for no charge. Microfilm readers are available and the Boyne City Library has mixed copies of the Boyne Citizen back into the 1800's on microfilm.

One of the greatest advantages of your public library is the ability to answer those nagging questions you may know the answer to, but can't remember...just to settle a bet. Janet Waldner at the Boyne City Library says she received a call last year from a couple at Boyne Mountain who had a $100 bet on how to spell a particular word.

Last night while reading a mystery book I came across the quote "My name is Death: the last best friend am I." The writer was Robert Southey. Who, I wondered, was Southey and what was that quote from a poem, a play, or what?

In less than one hour Tuesday morning, I had the answer from the library. Southey was a poet, born in Bristol, England, on Aug. 12, 1774. He died on March 21, 1843 and in between wrote several poems. All grisley and macabre.

One of his poems dealt with a bishop who thought his parishioners ate too much. He locked them all up and prayed that God would have the rats eat them. They did and the bishop along with them. And you thought Stephen King was gruesome.

Your public library can help provide you with films on loan. FREE! You just pay the postage.

It also presents special programs, like the "America" series. The Boyne library will have a children's Christmas program on Dec. 6.

Several local groups, including the historical society, the genealogy group and the garden club, use the library for meetings.

As many up-to-date restaurant menus are kept at the library as possible. Waldner explained that when the library is open during the evenings there are frequent requests from travelers about places to stay or eat.

Your library is not just a place for books and magazines. It is a busy, active part of the community. Drop by there on your next trip into town, you may be surprised at what is available.

The Boyne library is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. They are closed on Fridays and open on Saturdays from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m.

For information on the other area libraries you may contact them individually. The number of the Walloon Lake branch of the Crooked Tree District Library is 535-2111. In Boyne Falls call 549-2277. The East Jordan Public Library number is 536-7131 and in Charlevoix, the number is 547-2651.

Remember box socials?

Recently I had to explain to my grandchildren what a box social was.

Our school in the country always had one sometime between Halloween and Thanksgiving. Everyone in the community went to the box socials.

It was a money-making scheme to buy something for the school such as books, playground equipment, or maybe even a furnace. It was also a method to bring couples together and to enjoy a real sociable evening with an interesting program.

I am not sure that our programs were too enlightening. I remember one year a quartet I was in brought down the house. We had women's black stockings pulled down over our faces with holes cut out for eyes, nose and mouth, and sang "Dixieland" with gusto!

Every girl in school and all the women of the neighborhood prepared beautiful boxes of food to be auctioned off. Each girl decorated her box with fancy paper, ribbons and flowers.

The boxes were brought in plain wrappings so that no one would know which box belonged to whom. In order for a man to eat supper with the girl of his choice he had to bid for her box.

Sometimes the bidding would get pretty exciting when some pretty girl let a couple of young men know which box was hers. It might even go as high as $5.

Cooking Yesterday & Today

with Bea Smith

sweet pickles, and marble cake.

Now these things are much easier to prepare with Shake and Bake for the chicken, very good pie crust mix for the tarts and delicious marble cake from a mix. For what it's worth here is my favorite recipe for oven baked chicken.

FRIED CHICKEN IN THE OVEN

Select a pan that is just large enough to accommodate the chicken without overlapping any of the pieces. In the pan melt three tablespoons butter.

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees, then mix together ¼ cup flour, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 1 teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon black pepper and 1½ teaspoons salt.

Put this into a paper bag, mix, and toss the chicken pieces in it one at a time. Lay without overlapping and turn in the melted butter. Dot with small pieces of butter (using plenty) over the chicken.

Bake 35 minutes for a small chicken or 45 minutes for a large one. Turn the chicken once during this time. Then turn the oven to very hot, 450 degrees, and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer or until golden brown and bubbly.

Charlevoix Hospital to hold free diabetes clinic

A free diagnostic testing clinic for diabetes—the third leading cause of death in the United States—will be held at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Wednesday, Nov. 19, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The clinic at Charlevoix Area Hospital is part of Diabetes Detection Week, a national effort to identify people with previously undiagnosed diabetes. The clinic is not for people who already know they are diabetic.

Charlevoix Area Hospital laboratory technicians will draw small blood samples so the glucose (sugar) level may be tested. The blood tests will be sent to the Michigan Chapter of the American Diabetes Association in Detroit, where they will be analyzed.

If blood sugar is found to be at diabetic levels, individuals will be notified by the Diabetes Association and urged to see their physicians.

To take full advantage of the free tests people should eat a full meal, rich in carbohydrates, starches and sugar two hours before coming to the hospital.

The meal should be eaten within a 15 minute period.

Social Services Dept. honors volunteers

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services held its fourth annual Volunteer Recognition Luncheon recently at the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix. The buffet luncheon was attended by 21 volunteers, 17 Social Services employees and one Michigan Employment Security Commission employee.

Each volunteer received a certificate of merit signed by Governor William G. Milliken and Dr. John T. Dempsey, Michigan Director of Social Services. In addition, six volunteers received special "Awards for Hours" pins with a raised outline of Michigan inside a "V" for Volunteer.

Silver pins for volunteer participation in excess of 200 hours were presented to Judy Cockfield, Charlotte Kline, and Jane Sooy. Gold pins for participation in excess of 500 hours were presented to Virginia Daniels and Rolland Putman.

A gold pin with an inset pearl was presented to Lucile McKown for participation in excess of 1,000 hours.

During the past year, 49 county volunteers traveled 34,595 miles and donated 3,945 hours in carrying out their assignments in 18 programs aimed at providing needed services to Social Services clients.

"Their time, effort, and caring attitude is greatly appreciated by the Department of Social Services and by the needy people they have assisted," said Doug McCombs, director of the county DSS.

Woods will be crowded with hunters, not deer

BY KATHY JOHNSON

With deer season opening on a Saturday this year, there should be a record number of hunters out trying to bring home the bacon, while there will be about a 10 percent decrease in the number of deer taken.

Deer season opens on Nov. 15 and runs through Nov. 30. Some 80,000 bucks are estimated to be taken this year, with the total nearing 118,000 including antlerless deer.

The expected decrease in deer to be taken this fall is caused by the harsh winters of 1977 and 1978, with fewer year-and-a-half-old bucks available. Bill Mittig, forester with the Boyne City office of the Department of Natural Resources, said "There should be lots of deer, but few horns."

He explained that because of the mild winter last year, there should be lots of young deer in the woods. The high survival rate last year should make for a good season next year.

If you're one of the lucky 16 to 20 percent who will get a deer, you may want some tips on what to do with your venison cuts and some different ways to cook them.

"Venison—Upper Peninsula Style," Extension Bulletin E-657 is available from the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service office at 319 N. Lake in Boyne City or write to: Bulletin Office, P.O. Box 231, MSU, East Lansing, MI 48824. Single copies are free to Michigan residents.

If these two bucks will just hold that position some avid hunter will get them in his sights and let fire. Some 80,000 bucks are expected to be available for this year's hunters.

Devil girls host league leader

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil girls will be hosting league co-leader Gaylord St. Mary for Parents' Night in their last home game of the season Thursday, Nov. 13.

The junior varsity game starts at 6:30 p.m., with the varsity contest getting underway around 7:45.

It should be a good game, says Red Devil coach Mike Bos. His squad is out of the running for the league title with a 9-3 record (11-5 overall), but East Jordan could play the role of spoiler.

"Gaylord beat us 64-55 the last time we played," Bos said. "We were only behind by two points at halftime, but they outscored us 27-11 in the third quarter."

The Snowbirds are a balanced team with four players among the top 15 in league scoring. Kris and Karrie David are the leaders with 12.3 and 10.8 scoring averages.

East Jordan has the league's top scorer in senior Coleen Thompson, who is averaging 17.0 points per game.

Sophomore forward Joelyn Ingalls is next in scoring for the Devils. Her 10.9 average is seventh in the league.

Senior Yvonne Grant, the team's leading rebounder and third highest scorer, will miss the Gaylord St. Mary game with an ankle injury suffered last Thursday at Central Lake.

"It's going to be hard beating Gaylord without Yvonne," Bos said.

"She's 5-11 and she plays like she's even taller than that. She's our center and our floor leader. She's a real sharp girl. She's always thinking, and that's her value to the team."

Connie Peebles and sophomore DeEtte Looze will be called upon to fill in for Grant at center this week. Bos said he hopes Yvonne will be back in action by Nov. 21 when the district tournament starts in Onaway.

The Devils got double figure scoring from Thompson, Ingalls and Lynda Detlaff when they trounced Central Lake 61-31 last week.

Ingalls had 18 points and 14 rebounds, Thompson had 16 points and 17 rebounds, and Detlaff scored 16 points.

East Jordan ends its regular season at Kalkaska next Tuesday, Nov. 18, in a non-conference game.

Last home game: Ramblers host Rayders

BOYNE CITY - The Rambler girls' basketball team will play its last home game of the season this Friday night against powerful rival Charlevoix.

Game time is 6:30 p.m. for junior varsity and 7:45 for varsity.

The visiting Rayders were tied for the lead of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference going into a Tuesday night showdown with co-leader St. Ignace.

The Rayders' leading scorer is Melinda Klooster, who is hitting an average of 22.5 points per game. Averaging about 13 points a game for Charlevoix are Theresa Noiro and Mel Kerridge.

Leading the Boyne City squad is 5-1 guard Becky Aimesbury, who scored her 1000th career point Nov. 4. From now on every basket she makes adds to her school scoring record.

Other top performers for the Ramblers have been sophomore Julie Paquette, juniors Lori Paquette and Michelle Russell, and senior Cindi Scott.

Scott just had her best game of the season as she poured in 22 points at Gaylord last Friday. She also added 10 rebounds to help Boyne to a 75-64 victory.

Aimesbury had 20 points in the contest, while Lori Paquette had 13 points and 20 rebounds, and Julie Paquette had 10 points.

The victory improved Boyne's record to 8-7 overall and 6-6 in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. Boyne is tied with Petoskey for fourth place in the league.

A 29-point outburst in the fourth quarter provided the Ramblers with the momentum they needed for victory. They rallied after seeing a 10-point halftime lead dwindle to four by the end of the third quarter.

"It was a pretty wide open ballgame," said Coach Steph Moody. The Ramblers, who have had foul problems at times earlier in the season, only committed 10 fouls Friday and won the game at the free throw line. Boyne outscored Gaylord 21-6 on charity tosses.

After Friday's conference and home-court finale, Boyne travels to Central Lake next Monday, Nov. 19, for the last game of the regular season.
