Radio

1980 brought big changes

BY KATHY JOHNSON

"WCLX, FM Nine Four Country," "Rhythm of the Northwest, 106 KHQ," "News and Information," "The Music Station,"...these and more are the identifying phrases of northern Michigan's radio stations.

With a local variety of six stations—two in Charlevoix, one in Boyne City, and three in Petoskey—there is a wide spread of music and entertainment forms. For those not satisfied by the local offerings, there are stations in Gaylord, Traverse City, and Kalkaska that also reach this market.

The sounds of the airwaves now are vastly different from the days prior to 1947 when there wasn't a single local station on the air. The change started gradually with WMBN being the only local station from their sign-on in 1947 until 1965 when they were joined by WJML.

Gradually other stations began to broadcast in the market. But as recently as a year ago the wide selection was not here. "In the last nine months, we've, for all purposes, added four new stations," says Mike Harrington, president of the Harrington Group, an advertising and marketing agency in Petoskey and a former owner of WJML.

Harrington refers to the format changes of WVOY-AM and WMBN-FM and the addition in the market of WKHQ-FM in Charlevoix and WPZ-AM in Petoskey. The changes and additions of these stations have changed the overall music sound of northern Michigan.

Harrington went on to say that he sees the changes in the market being for the better. "The changes are very positive. There are far greater choices in radio formats and they are, for the most part, being done quite well," Harrington said.

"It is much easier to combine the demographic appeal of the format with the demographics of the audience you are interested in reaching," Harrington said when asked about the buying of radio time for advertisers. He also said that he hoped the stations would get together in getting a "believable radio survey" taken in this market.

So, for the listeners, there is a wider variety of music and entertainment formats and for the businesses there is a better reach of audience for advertising commercials. "Halloween radio" is gone from northern Michigan and has been replaced by "more programming offerings than before."

WCLX

The only 100 percent country and western music station in the area is WCLX, in Boyne City. "We serve the community and all of northern Michigan with country music," says Bill Rich, station manager of WCLX, which opened about three years ago. WCLX is owned by William Gipperich (Bill Rich) under the corporate name of Charlevoix Broadcasting Company.

WCLX has four disc jockeys, including Rich, and "we play real records," says Rich. "I think the listener can tell the difference between records and the taped music that some other stations play."

The station is located in an old ice house on State Street and the massive wooden doors and huge metal handles add to the charm of this small station.

WCLX typifies the thousands of small stations throughout the United States that are feeling the encroachment of the newer, slicker, more polished stations from the larger cities.

Rich indicated that he saw himself in competition with stations as far away as Traverse City and as near as Charlevoix. Most of the station's format is filled with local disc jockeys playing country music, with a few programs from Michigan State, the University of Michigan, and the syndicated Ralph Emory show from Nashville.

WCLX is located at 94 on the FM dial.

WJML

"The Music Station," WJML has been the number one station in the area for several years. Recently WJML has felt the pinch of more and better competition in the marketplace and according to the new station manager, Jim Scollin, "We are in a state of change. We are redefining our position—softening our sound."

Scollin comes from a Metro Media station in Detroit, WOMC, and joined this Petoskey station some three months ago. Also joining the station recently is Chris Hubbarth, the music director.

Hubbarth is also from Detroit and was in record promotion for CBS Records. Hubbarth and Scollin are both involved in the softening of the sound at WJML.

"We are shifting our position from the 18-year-olds to 24," said Scollin. "The last rating in the area was in the spring of 1978 and was done by Arbitron. At that time we were number one. We think we still are."

Scollin indicated that he expects Arbitron to be taking another survey in April and May of 1981. Arbitron's survey method is done by "diary." A certain number of families in a certain area will receive a diary and be asked to log into that diary every time they are listening to a radio station, indicating what station and for how long they listen. Certain demographic questions are asked, as well, to determine such things as age, place of residence and income level.

Asked about the changing market, Scollin said, "There are more stations now that we have to contend with. It keeps us on our toes and hopefully adds the kind of programming we can all be proud of."

Scollin indicated he is pleased with the response to their programming changes. "We are getting favorable responses. People find us more listenable," he said. Scollins also indicated that WJML is busy upgrading their news.

WJML is simulcast on AM and FM, which means that whether you listen on AM or FM you will be hearing the same broadcast. The FM frequency for WJML is 98.9 or AM is 1110.

WJML is owned by Petoskey Broadcasting Company. Two of the principals of the company are R. Bunker Rogoski, president and Tim Achterhoff, vice-president. Both men are from Muskegon.

WKHQ

Possibly the hottest sound in the area is "The rhythm of the northwest, 106 KHQ." WKHQ signed on the air on May 16 and appears to have taken over a big share of the local radio market in just six months. KHQ has not only come up with a sound area residents appear to like, but they have added promotions that have involved the listeners with the station in a positive way.

KHQ has been patterned after other highly successful stations like KVIL Dallas, WMJC Detroit, and KFRC San Francisco.

Station President and General Manager is Tim Moore, who was originally with KHQ's sister station, WVOY, several years ago. Following a stint at VOY, Moore moved to Dallas where he was named executive vice-president and general manager of TM Companies.

While in Dallas, Moore became friends with Bob Harper who was director of contemporary services for TM Programming. When Moore made the move to northern Michigan earlier this year Harper joined him and became station manager for WKHQ.

While employed by TM, Harper did the programming for a number of contemporary stations. In a somewhat unique situation, Harper is still on a retainer to TM as director of programming for contemporary services, and as such, he does the programming for 140 stations, including WKHQ, across the United States.

With an estimated audience of over ten million, Harper said he programs music for the largest single audience in America.

Harper and Moore are both quick to let you know that this programming format has for seven years been the most winning format in the country. Of the 140 stations involved, all have become either the number one or number two station in their market for the 18 to 49-year-old age group.

With this highly successful sound and the added promotions of "wine and cheese parties," the "staff meeting" program which is heard on Sundays, and the extremely popular "Moore in the Morning" show, KHQ has made definite inroads on the number one position in the market. "We've created a high comfort factor through our non-musical elements," says Harper, "so that anytime, whatever the mood of the listener, he or she can find 'their best friend' at KHQ."

Moore echoes that by saying, "We're very proud to have the facilities we have, but far more proud of our people." Moore thinks the people, the sound and the promotions, have created the ambiance of a great station.

Another part of the sound of KHQ has to be the song written about northwestern Michigan. While in Dallas, Moore arranged for songwriter Jim Kirk to write a full length song about the area. With lyrics adapted by Moore, the song was recorded at TM in Dallas. The music showcases the KHQ theme: "Rhythm of the Northwest."

Harper is not the only one to maintain his interest in Dallas. Moore is affiliated with First Communications Broadcast Services, a Jim Long and Charlie Pride company located in Dallas and he is also vice-president and director of marketing for Noble Broadcast Consultants in San Diego.

WKHQ is located at 106 on the FM dial with its office in Charlevoix. New Broadcasting Company, which owns both WKHQ and WVOY, is owned by Tim Moore, Jim Ives and Elmo Franklin. All are local people.

WMBN & WWPZ

WMBN was the first station in this part of northwestern Michigan. Signing on in 1947, and located in Petoskey, WMBN was the only station for nearly 20 years. Originally WMBN was on the AM dial and later added the FM simulcast.

On May 26 of this year, the station was sold to MacDonald Broadcasting, a Michigan based company that owns several other stations in the state. Vice-president and general manager is Trish MacDonald.

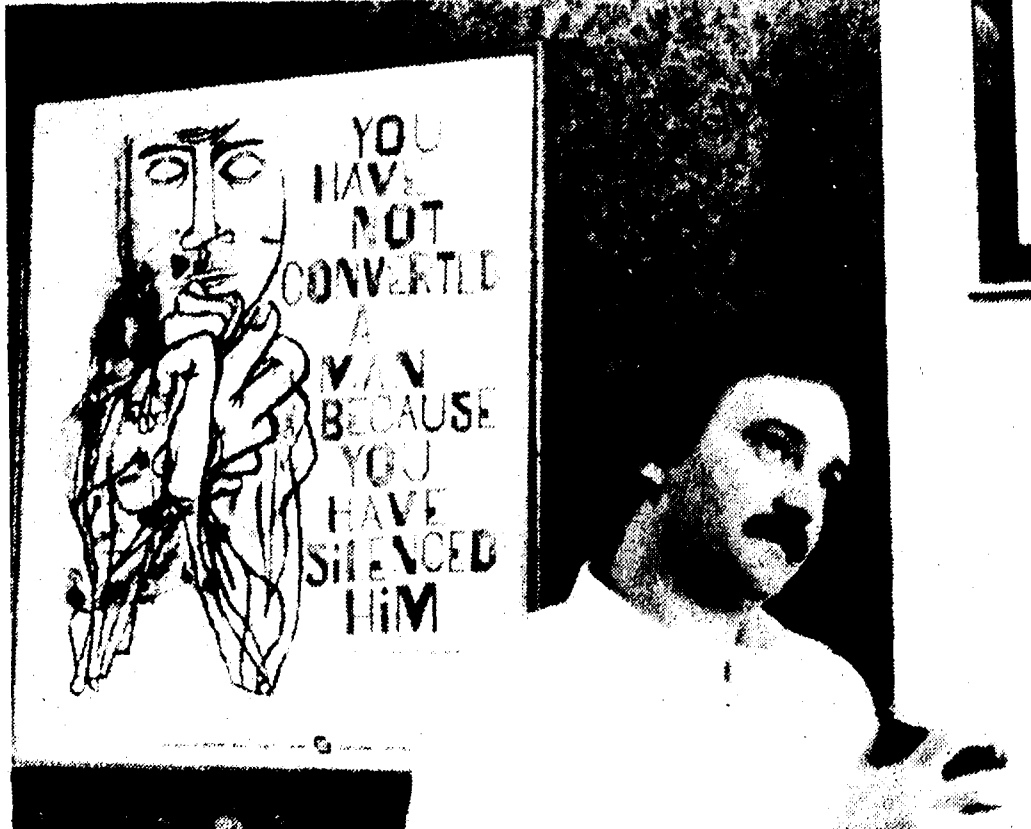

On July 1, WMBN-AM was changed to WWPZ-AM and the new sound of "News and Information" began. "We're contemporary music with a fair amount of oldies in our format," says MacDonald. She stressed they also place a heavy emphasis on sports, including football, basketball and baseball.

MacDonald says, in regard to the change in the AM format, "There was a void in the market and we feel that we've filled it." She indicated that the station had always been dedicated to the community and this news and information programming continues that dedication.

"We have a meteorologist and we broadcast weather four times every hour. That's strictly local, and as the winter comes on it will be more and more important," MacDonald said.

Their FM station, WMBN-FM, is

'KIDS' EJ group hopes 'square answers' will pass school millage

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - A door-to-door campaign will be bringing a student and adult team to homes in the school district in the next week or so. They will be answering questions about the school finances.

The idea originated in a sub-committee of the steering committee formed two months ago to study the school budget and recommend courses of action to the school board.

Back of the proposed campaign is the conviction of the committee members that the district needs to pass the 2.8 mills being asked of voters on Dec. 8.

"We know this is not the most popular cause we've ever gotten into," they say. But they think the school district has been so torn up by conflicting information and changing standpoints, that a clear presentation of the facts is needed.

They affirm they take no sides, a hard thing to do in a school year marked by three millage defeats, a teachers' strike and an attempt to recall the school board.

But they do admit they have become convinced of the necessity of the millage. Their side, they believe, is the kids.

They have campaign buttons printed with the word "kids." It stands for "Kids' Interests Deserve Support."

"We felt it needed a third party because all sides have become so controversial," they say.

Their conclusions were reached after a study of everything they could lay their hands on, according to Jamie Baumann, one of the committee members.

Other members are Jim Barnett, Bonnie Brunett, Chuck and Gerda Sherk, and Connie McKenney. They have assembled eight pages of answers to the questions they have heard asked and wanted to know themselves.

For example, question number 5: The board has approved a balanced budget. If we have a balanced budget, why do we need 2.8 mills?

The answer the committee gives is—"The state requires each school district to file a balanced budget. This board has built an optimistic state aid formula into our budget. It is unlikely that the state will announce its formula decision before March 1981. If a formula more conservative than ours is passed...this district will suffer a severe fund shortage and further cuts will be necessary. This board hopes to reinstate some of the programs cut earlier but will monitor the formula's progress through legislature to avoid overspending."

In spite of hopes for abundant state aid and the required budget, the committee states unequivocally that if the millage fails, cuts will be immediately necessary. Teaching staff cuts and extra-curricular activity cuts will be inevitable.

The committee's stand is that they have to go for millage to secure a minimum level of education. The 2.8 mills would basically continue the program, with the cuts it has already suffered, they say.

They note that a week before the last millage election Governor Milliken's announcement came through, putting the budget in the red, even with the millage renewal being approved. It has been at the same 21.2 level for the two previous years.

The committee has sought square answers to other nagging questions, as well—questions like: I don't have children in school. Why should I be positive toward increased millage?

Question number 14 is: Will East Jordan remain accredited?

The committee's information includes a list of cuts already made. These include, among others, over eight teaching positions cuts, sports cuts, and administration cuts. A chart shows how much the 2.8 mills would cost. A property owner with, say, $30,000 market value on his or her place, would have a total tax increase of $36.06 per year.

Another chart shows in East Jordan it cost $1,700 per pupil in 1978-79 to run the schools—below the state average of $1,782 and below the cost of any other schools in the county.

To preserve a non-partisan standpoint, the committee asked merchants for donations to print up the questions and answers.

The merchants came up with $500.

Committee members are looking for opportunities to talk to groups. "Informed people make better decisions," they believe.

"You can't lose sight of the fact the millage is needed," Baumann says, adding that past controversies and disagreements over single items should not stand in the way of the larger necessity. The group has concluded that the millage is not "unnecessary funding, regardless of state aid."

A dinner is planned for Dec. 4 with the high school students serving. People can bring their questions then, or have them clarified at their own coffee klatches.

Anyone concerned either way can get involved, the committee says. Following, phoning, asking questions—for any of these, they say, call Jim Barnett, after 5 p.m., 536-2582 or Jamie Baumann, after 1 p.m., 536-7917.

She just wanted her meter read...

Adventures with the gas company

BY TRISH WRIGHT

In March of 1979, Rosalind McClanaghan bought a home in Charlevoix. Because natural gas lines were to be installed in her neighborhood in the late spring or early summer of that year, she waited to buy a gas stove.

She thought it prudent to purchase a gas stove as opposed to an electric since the gas lines had been promised by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company.

See page 4 for a column about the gas company.

McClanaghan waited all summer for the gas lines and her stove. She received her first bill in November of 1979. The estimated bill showed that she owed $64.77 for gas used from Oct. 22 to Nov. 26. She knew that was too high since she had only a gas stove, dryer and hot water heater. McClanaghan was not heating with gas but with fuel oil.

She requested that the meter be read or cards be sent to her for meter readings. "I called the Petoskey office and the Grand Rapids office for cards, but I never received them," said McClanaghan, who works for The Charlevoix County Press.

After her second estimated billing, McClanaghan sought the advice of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. Michigan Consolidated Gas had enclosed flyers with her bill that suggested money needed to pay bills might be available from the Energy Assistance Program which is administered by the Department of Social Services.

In fact, Michigan Consolidated Gas mailed Energy Assistance booklets to their customers. The Energy Assistance Program is designed to help low-income households pay their heating bills or offer assistance when households are faced with a shut-off notice or have an emergency need for energy.

"I didn't know what to do," said McClanaghan. "I wanted to read the meter or have it read because all I had was the stove, dryer and hot water heater. I told the gas company that I couldn't have used that much gas because I wasn't heating with it." "Miss Kelly at the Department of Social Services told me to try getting the bill corrected by the gas company and if I couldn't to report back to them." At that time, McClanaghan qualified for aid from the Emergency Needs Program.

The third estimated bill appeared with a shut-off notice. Now she owed Michigan Consolidated Gas Company $209.21, the bill said. When McClanaghan went back to the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix, the gas bill was paid for her under the Emergency Needs Program. "I didn't want it to be shut off," says McClanaghan. "But, I certainly didn't expect them to pay the whole thing. I just wanted the meter to be read."

The gas company read the meter on the fourth billing period. According to the meter, McClanaghan had used only 147 units of gas from Oct. 22, 1979, to Feb. 5, 1980. Instead of owing $209.21, she owed only $58.45. The Department of Social Services had overpaid the gas company $150.76.

Michigan Consolidated Gas credited McClanaghan's account and nine months later she received a final credit in the form of a check for $16.80. Only three of the nine bills she received were based on actual meter readings.

McClanaghan requested cards for meter readings as recently as six months ago. She says that she has received no satisfaction from either the Petoskey or Grand Rapids Michigan Consolidated Gas Company offices.

According to Barb Daniel at the Michigan Consolidated office in Petoskey, the local gas office has no way of knowing who pays the bill. So instead of crediting the Emergency Needs Program or its parent, the Department of Social Services, for the $150.76 balance, McClanaghan was credited. Taxpayer's money was used to pay gas that McClanaghan was willing to buy for when the correct usage was recorded.

Apparently there is a code which identifies whether a building that uses gas has an inside or outside meter. But, the code is mysterious.

It was suggested by the Petoskey office that McClanaghan might have an indoor meter which would prevent meter readings or, if indeed she did have an outdoor meter, there might have been a dog tied to it which would prevent the meter from being read.

McClanaghan has an outdoor meter but no dog has ever been tied to it. The family has a dog but it was kept indoors most of the time during the winter. She pointed out that her next door neighbor's meter was also estimated, and the neighbor does not have a dog. "Even when our dog was in the yard it has never prevented the city from reading our electric meter," countered McClanaghan.

Meter card requests are serviced from the Grand Rapids location of Michigan Consolidated Gas. Mrs. Hill, a service representative at that office, suggested that cards were never delivered to the McClanaghan home because of a programming problem. "We've never failed to send cards to anyone that has requested them," Hill said. She added that until six months ago, the gas company had a problem in getting cards to customers with post office box addresses. However, McClanaghan does not have a post office address and has called the Grand Rapids office in the past six weeks to request meter cards.

Mrs. Hill responded to McClanaghan's plight by saying that all meter card requests were fulfilled. "I don't know why she never got them. We've never failed to send cards."

Factors considered when a bill is estimated include the number of appliances that depend on gas for power, the size of the furnace used for heating, the number of people in the household, the size of the house and the weather.

The service representative from the Detroit office of Michigan Consolidated Gas said that anyone who questions an estimated bill should call the Grand Rapids or Detroit office with a current meter reading. At that time it will be calculated to determine if the estimated figure is correct. If it is not, a new bill will be sent to the customer and the inaccurate bill will be cancelled.

If a customer does not receive satisfaction from the gas company, the Public Service Commission at 1-800-292-9555 may be able to answer questions or offer some assistance.

Complaints are common

Gas bills that have been estimated too high or inconsistently seem to be a problem that many Michigan Consolidated Gas Company customers share.

In the past two weeks, The Press has contacted over a dozen gas customers, and all of them had complaints. The gas company's budget plan was the biggest problem.

One Charlevoix household, which is on the budget plan, received credits for four consecutive months in 1978. On Jan. 4 of 1979, an estimated bill was sent to the residence showing a balance of $1,149.60. Even though the bill was disputed and there was communication between the homeowner and the Detroit office of the gas company, the bill was never rectified.

Monthly current charges were paid by the homeowner. However, the $1,149.60 amount was not paid. As a result that household is no longer allowed to be on the budget plan. This Michigan Consolidated customer plans to buy a wood stove and lessen his dependence on gas.

A church in Charlevoix which is on the budget plan, can't understand why one month they receive a bill with a zero balance and the next month they receive one for over $250.

Other complaints include meters not being read often enough and meter cards not being sent to homeowners for readings. The gas company has responded to these charges by saying that cards are always sent to those that request them and most meters are read every other month.

Some still oppose Front Street plan; Hearing is Dec. 9

BOYNE CITY - What could possibly be the last of many public hearings on the location of Front Street has been scheduled for Dec. 9.

But a proposal to move the street back from Lake Charlevoix still has some opposition.

Lake Associates, developers of the proposed $10-million Harborage condominium and marina project, are asking that the street be moved back from the lake.

A site plan for all of their project, except the exact location of Front Street, was approved earlier this year by the Boyne City Commission.

Monday night, the site plan for the street relocation was approved by the planning commission and forwarded to the city commission. If the city commission concurs, final approval must be granted in Circuit Court.

But the proposal didn't pass unanimously Monday. Planning Commissioners Marvin Loding and Nellie Flodquist were dissenters in a 5-2 vote.

Loding said Tuesday, "I have nothing against the project I'm only interested in the road."

He thinks the planning commission is trying to rush the street relocation through official channels. "Last night was the first time we had seen the scaled site plan, and within the hour, the planning board approved it. That is ridiculous. You just don't do things like that."

City manager Tim Clifton said, however, he didn't think the project was being unduly rushed. He pointed out that a notice of the proposed relocation and public hearing are being published for three consecutive weeks in The Press, and the public will then have the opportunity to express its views at the Dec. 9 hearing.

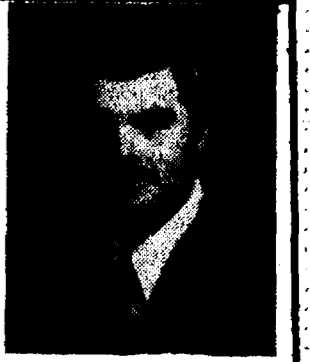

Loding said the city runs the risk of angering opponents of the street relocation, which could result in referendum vote on whether the road could be moved.

Loding said he personally does not favor forcing an election on the issue, however. He says he will be getting professional advice on the legality of the relocation request.

And, he said, those who don't want the street moved as far as has been proposed will make themselves heard at the public hearing.

We're glad you asked!

WHAT EFFECT DOES PRE-PLANNING HAVE ON SURVIVORS?

Generally, there are strong benefits to your survivors. Consider the impact of pre-planning on your survivors: will they understand you want your own wishes carried out and not theirs? That you may wish to economize in your choice of service, casket, etc., instead of putting the choice in their hands when they are under great stress and shock? Will they understand that you want a certain specific order of service? A particular portion of Scripture read? Your favorite music? Your designation of minister? And, of course, that you insist on paying for it yourself, sparing them the emotional and financial burdens?

Many of those for whom we have pre-planned funerals have solved these difficult considerations. They have involved their families in the decision-making process. You, too, may wish to invite members of your immediate family to discuss pre-planning with you and with one of our professional funeral counselors.

Once having made your funeral arrangements, your sense of security and accomplishment may be comforting and valuable to you and your loved ones.

BVRR hopes to have buyer by January

BOYNE CITY - "A decision will probably be made by the first of the year concerning the sale of the railroad," says Tom Workman, chairman of the board of the Boyne Valley Railroad.

At an auction held in Boyne City in May of 1976, the railroad, owned by Hollis Baker was sold. Some 300 shareholders now own the rails, right-of-way, two coaches, three open cars, a flat car and a caboose.

Boyne Valley Railroad operated four years after the auction and now may have to sell because of high operating costs. "We don't really have a viable company," says Workman. He suggests that the railroad may be profitable if it were properly promoted and entertainment at the Boyne Falls lay-over was offered.

"People love to ride trains, but you have to give them more than that. Staged train robberies and entertainment may create more interest," he adds.

The railroad board of directors is currently trying to find a buyer that would be interested in keeping the railroad a local attraction. "We don't want to salvage it. Our objective is to find someone who has the capital to operate and keep it in Boyne City. At this time, the railroad has at least one interested buyer." Workman adds that if a steam engine could be secured, there may be an even greater possibility of luring people to the area. There are directories that list railroads with steam engines and a lot of people include seeing them in their vacation plans. Boyne Valley Railroad has used diesel locomotives in the past.

The railroad owns its own coaches, which are now stored at a railroad yard in Cadillac.

HOT WATER FOR A SONG.

ABOUT 13 CENTS, IN FACT.

If you've got an electric water heater, a good 5-minute shower costs you about 13 cents.

And that's about 15 gallons of water.

Enough to give a body something to sing about...at least when you consider what inflation's doing to other current costs.

No, we're not saying electricity is cheap. But the fact of the matter is that electricity uses up less of the average family's spendable income now than it did 20 years ago.

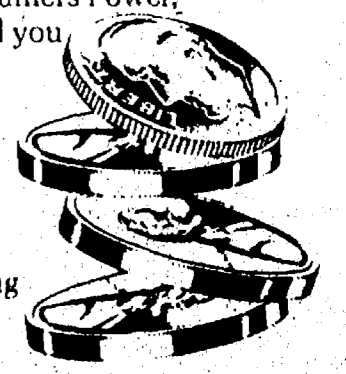

cooking meals, running small appliances, and warming the water for countless baths and showers. Electricity - especially when you use it wisely - is still a very good buy.

Baking a turkey for 5 hours in an electric oven today costs about 72 cents. Doing a load of clothes in an electric dryer runs you about 18 cents.

Yes, the cost of energy as a whole has increased in recent years. But there are still forms of energy that, in relation to all the other costs of living, serve us well and at reasonable expense.

At Consumers Power, we wanted you to know that electricity is one of them. And that we're trying to keep it that way.

ELECTRICITY. It's still a good buy. Consumers Power

Try to separate politics, school millage

Every year a community must decide again the value it places on education. No other taxation is voted on like this, year after year.

This year clouds of controversy about the East Jordan school system have risen almost as darkly as those fumes out of volcanic St. Helens. Questions of how to cut the budget, why the shortages, how long the teachers' strike, and what next in the diminishing monies from the state have upset everyone.

The politics and the wrangling have become as serious as the problems themselves.

Everyone agrees children need a good education in order not to be left behind in the world. Maybe the millage committee which has sprouted out of the furor can help the school district agree on some other things.

Acting as a fact-finding third party, they are anxious to share the information they have gathered and the conclusion they have come to.

The conclusion is that the 2.8 mills must be passed on Dec. 8. They are anxious to share their fact-finding with the community.

Although the district voters have already passed millage renewal, this December request became necessary when, a week before the October vote, more funding was lost as state aid broke out of its formula and offered no commitments for the spring semester.

A few facts are unarguable.

For one, the last two years the school has stayed with a levy for 21.2 mills—while inflation has plunged ahead, and state aid has dropped.

For another, East Jordan schools operate on the lowest per pupil cost in the county, lower also than the state average cost per pupil.

And for another, if the millage fails to pass, more cuts will have to be made immediately on a budget already trimmed back over seven mills worth. While millage passage won't end all the school's difficulties, it is the best next step.

The focus has to be on the responsibility of the whole community to educate its children. This is the biggest task it has.

The focus, also, is not only on school administration operation or on school board decisions, which we may or may not like.

More than on school problems, the focus is as much on the problem of taxation as it is on spending.

But we can not wait to pass a law against the rising cost of property ownership. We have to pass a millage to educate a generation to solve problems.

A gift of naught ...and best regards

Someone said on television that Christmas was just around the corner.

The next day I went down to have a look. I peeked around the corner at Fox's. It wasn't there. Then I went down to Moore's Hardware and looked around the corner. No Christmas.

So I went over to the bank corner and looked around. All I could see was another bank.

There wasn't a corner in town with Christmas just around it. That's the last time I'll believe a J. C. Penney ad on television.

They should have said that Christmas was on the way and that you'd better get with it before your family winds up gift-less.

The folks at this newspaper know that. And they've done something about it. The entire staff tossed their names into a hat and then plucked them out. Each person is supposed to buy a $5 gift for the person whose name they picked. (We newspaper people are pretty sharp, coming up with a game like that. I wonder why no one ever thought of it before.)

I did not pick the janitor's name. Nor the bookkeeper's name. Not even the typesetter's name. It wasn't the name of one of those hard working gals who chase around for ads so they don't have to put so much news in the paper. No. None of those people.

To my dismay I had picked the editor's name. The man who dots the I's and crosses the T's in this column.

I was an editor years ago. They gave me the title instead of a raise. In those early days five bucks was a lot of money. You could take it, catch a train at Boyne Falls, ride to Grand Rapids and have enough left over to buy a hamburger and a short beer.

Heavens, five bucks won't even buy a trinket these days. (I looked that word up. It's a thing of naught.) There isn't a store in Boyne City where you can buy a thing of naught for much under $10.

So, calling my compassion to the front, I figure I'll buy a trinket and give it to the editor along with my best regards. Most small town weekly newspaper editors who have to print the truth all year long feel "best regards" to be a highly tolerable gift.

Next week: How I discovered a way to control my hunger flare-ups. I wrote the prescription myself. No outlandish doctor's fees. No haggling with Blue Cross. No confusing letters from Medicare. My prescription for those pesky hunger flare-ups calls for three doses of food per day. It's as simple as that. You've got to use your head to save money these days.

It tickles me when I can turn out a column like this. For there is no substitute for good, common sense.

Gas company makes some customers hot

It has never been my fortune or ill fortune to be a Michigan Consolidated Gas Company customer. But I'm beginning to think that maybe I'm lucky that I haven't been.

During the last several weeks I have talked to numerous customers of the gas company and have yet to find someone who doesn't have a complaint.

No one seems to be excluded from inaccurate billings. Churches, residences and businesses have reported that they have received inconsistent billings that result in frustration. Service charges vary from $4 at a Charlevoix residence to $8 at a Boyne City business.

Meter readings that should occur every other month do not. Two-thirds of the bills that a Charlevoix woman has received have been estimated—and always estimated high.

The Department of Social Services was a last resort when the gas company estimated usage as four times higher than it should have at one home. Using federal funds, Social Services paid the gas company $150.76 more than it should have.

And because the bill was submitted to the Detroit office, the Petoskey office credited $150.76 of the taxpayer's money to an individual who was willing to pay what she owed but unwilling to pay an exorbitant, estimated fee.

Trish Wright

I contacted the Petoskey, Grand Rapids and Detroit offices of Michigan Consolidated Gas. The code that should identify the location of a meter couldn't convey that message as easily as one would hope. Why a meter was not read was explainable if the meter was inside the house—but it was not. And then the possibility of a dog being tied to it was explored.

The Grand Rapids office curtly admitted that they had a problem in getting meter cards to post office boxes but they were unable to explain why a rural route customer had not received cards. For some reason I wasn't satisfied with the "We always send cards to those that request them" retort. Neither is the customer.

Not only do meter cards vanish but so do meters! The Charlevoix County Press has a gas furnace but for some inexplicable reason the gas company refuses to believe that we even have a meter. I don't know who they have coded us but our meter is as visible as the building.

But they have seen our neighbor's meter. Not only do they know he has a meter but they've billed him when he doesn't even use their gas. I shudder to think what his code might be.

The Michigan Consolidated service representative in Detroit offered some logic by saying that their toll free number would put a service rep on the line who might be able to unravel factors, estimates and unit usage. Adjusted billings are furnished simply by reading your own meter, comparing its reading to the estimated billing and calling their office if there is a discrepancy. Their toll free number is 800-632-8700.

An adjusted bill would certainly cool some tempers. This service either has not been publicized or requires an effort that the customer has not been willing to make.

Death--TV's big drawing card

The entertainment industry has reached a new low. Television has gone off the Richter scale for "human" rights and dignity.

The movie industry saw it coming. It foretold the future in two movies. One of the movies was "Network," which graphically displayed the limits (there are none) to which a network will go to get those all-important numbers.

The other movie was a futuristic look at games called "Rollerball." The message for both movies was death. And the point was that the audience would love it. Death is the ultimate game.

Of course, both movies were to the extreme and no one would really expect audiences to be entertained by that sort of thing. Well, no one may expect, but it sure looks like the networks were paying attention and that we are all but there.

We don't have to wait for a "Rollerball" rerun. Just tune your dial regularly to "Games People Play" or "That's Incredible" and you have a chance of seeing someone die right before your eyes.

Kathy Johnson

I can remember when someone would get hurt or killed on television and my children were little and they would cry...but I could always explain that it wasn't real, it was just pretend. A story.

But how do you explain to your child that it is perfectly all right for a supposedly intelligent adult to stand on a highway and attempt to jump up between two autos colliding head-on at 70 mph...and what do you say when his left leg is crushed in the attempt?

How do you justify your choice of "entertainment" when a young man trying to jump the Caesar's Palace fountain misses and hits a wall at 80 mph? (After several weeks in intensive care he is back on television with the reruns of his accident.)

Death. The big drawing card. And just think. The next stunt may not only not work, someone may actually go to that big rating service in the sky. Imagine the viewing that night.

Probably eight out of every 10 sets will be tuned Friday night to "Dallas," just to see who shot a mythical character. Ratings for a real in the flesh "death stunt" should be even bigger.

And it will happen. It is certain. Unless the viewing audience lets the producers of this type of show know, beyond a doubt, that we are not amused.

We are not entertained by this lack of responsibility on the part of the producers, the networks, and their sponsors. Someone must act responsibly. It could start with you.

Hard work is worth it

Senior play has long tradition

A small city with a 19-year-old mayor is how it starts. That has possibilities, especially considering the mayor is also going to college.

Then the mayor comes up with an assignment for science class in which he has figured out—on paper—how to convert nuclear waste into electricity.

Thus begins John Henderson's three-act comedy, "If I Had a Billion." Tom Sheridan, senior class advisor and father of one of the actors, is directing the production.

What happens after the mayor's discovery? "Pandemonium," says Sheridan succinctly.

In order to get the play into good shape, the cast of 18 seniors has been coming to play practice at seven in the morning every day, staying after school to practice again at three o'clock.

The senior play has a long tradition. "I can't remember there ever not being a senior play," says Sheridan.

Last year he co-directed the play with Pam Schoen. This year the job is all his.

The hardest part, according to Sheridan, is getting everybody there at seven in the morning. For six weeks! But, he says, it's all worth it. Seeing something through together. Seeing the production finally bloom on stage.

Performances this year start with a matinee Thursday, Nov. 20, for middle school students and (since it's a senior play?) for senior citizens. Matinee tickets will be a little something to help offset the royalty fee.

Thursday and Friday evenings, Nov. 20 and 21, will be public performances. Tickets are $2.

"Anyone can come," Sheridan points out. "Good entertainment...There is something to do Friday!"

The stage crew has been working on some electronic sound effects. The advertising crew is getting underway. There is a host of people involved here. The cast of the play is as follows:

Eric Hanson as Jason the mayor, Pat Meade as Dotty Corona, Lynn Hawkins as Jason's mother, Chuck Hillaker as J. B. O'Rourke, Stacy Barrow as science professor, Cherise Merrimer as Gazelle Skaggs, Kathi Postma as Jason's sister Jenny, Mike Spence as Lt. Fletcher.

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Diane Sheridan as TV journalist Barbara Blacksheep, and Mike Chahak as General Fletcher.

Also in the large cast are Vivian Knop, Connie Peebles, Kathy Smith, Mark Bauer, Mickey Tison, Lisa Fox, Renee Borg, and—a mystery person.

And how did a vocational automotive instructor (Sheridan's main role in school) get into this?

He laughs, "Maybe my daughter who is a senior?"

But then the writer of famous English comedies back in the 1700s was Richard Brinsley Sheridan. Not news to Tom.

beautiful music programming. "It is the most contemporary beautiful music source in the country, Kala Music, out of Kalamazoo," says MacDonald. She explained that like the TM service used by KHQ, Kala programs for some 50 or 60 stations.

MacDonald further stated that MacDonald Broadcasting is working to improve the delivery of their product by doubling the antenna height and by doing some new electrical work.

Because of its size, WMBN and WPZ may appear to be small stations, but the business-like organization that is apparent from a visit to their limited-space studios indicates they don't plan on being small for long.

The MacDonald Broadcasting Company is owned by the MacDonald family. Kenneth H. MacDonald, president.

WMBN is located at 96.7 on the FM dial and WPZ is at 1340 on the AM dial.

WVOY, Charlevoix, is the AM sister station to WKHQ. Tim Moore, general manager of WVOY is equally enthusiastic about this station.

WVOY began operations in 1974 as a day-time contemporary station and now is the "Beautiful Island" sound of northern Michigan.

"The sound of the new WVOY is not like anything ever before presented in upper Michigan," says Moore. The beautiful music format heard here is programed for an additional 85 markets by TM Programming in Dallas.

The offices for both WVOY and WKHQ are as contemporary and upscale as their mutual sounds. Asked about the move from Dallas, Moore commented as he pointed out his window to the lake below, "There is no view like that anyplace in Dallas."

It's like Mike Harrington said, "The changes are very positive." The new sounds in northern Michigan provide the listeners with variety and a choice they've not had before.

The big city sound has taken its place in the area.

Jazz, classical, even hillbilly

Public stations are an alternative

If "News and Information," "The Rhythm of the Northwest," or "The Music Station" is not the radio entertainment you are looking for, then don't despair. There are other options of entertainment at your public broadcasting stations.

Northern Michigan is fortunate to have three PBS stations in our area, WCMU-FM in Mt. Pleasant, WCML-FM in Alpena and WIAA-FM in Interlochen.

WCMU and WCML simulcast the same programs and offer you a variety from Jazz and "hillbilly" to symphony and "Homespun."

Upcoming jazz specials include the Bruce Early Quintet on Friday, Dec. 19, at midnight and "Jazz Notebook" which features interviews with leading musicians in performance and at jazz festivals around Michigan. Some of the performers featured in Jazz Notebook include Gerry Mulligan, Dizzy Gillespie, Lionel Hampton and Woody Herman.

"Homespun" is a new two hour program featuring recordings of traditional folk music from the United States and abroad. These include a number of music styles, such as Western Swing, Bluegrass, Old Time, Folk, Shetland and Irish Jigs.

Other programs carried by WCMU and WCML include "Live From Our Front Porch," "San Francisco Opera/Metropolitan Opera," and the Groucho Marx quiz show, "You Bet Your Life."

If you would like a copy of their schedule or would like to help support their programs you may contact them at WCMU-FM/WCML-FM, Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, MI 48859.

WCMU is located at 89.5 and WCML at 91.7, both on the FM radio dial.

Another PBS option is WIAA.

WIAA also carries a wide variety from jazz to classical along with programs like "All Things Considered," and "Options." Special radio dramas are heard daily and on Thursday at 1 the National Press Club is heard.

All three stations carry very similar programs and offer a wide variety of entertainment forms for the individual who is not interested in non-stop pop music, commercials, and talk.

You may contact WIAA at the Interlochen Center for the Arts, Interlochen, MI 49643. WIAA is located at 88.3 on the FM dial.

Helping the library

The East Jordan Rotary Club and Friends of the Library recently combined to donate $1,400 to buy the public library a microfiche reader/printer. The two groups presented checks to the library last week, and librarian Mickl Hamerski (seated, center) showed representatives of the clubs exactly what they were helping to buy. At left are Friends of the Library Susan Morean and Ron Postma (standing) and Nancy Postma (seated). At right are Rotary members Ernie Ross (standing) and Don Yenni. The microfiche reader/printer will help library users by making microfilm and published reprints available from all over the country. It will also help the library by freeing a number of shelves which are now used for storage.

East Jordan and Boyne City appear to be evenly-matched teams as they head into Friday night's game in the girls' basketball tournament at Onaway.

Game time is 7 p.m., and all tickets are $1.50 at the door. The winner will play in the district finals at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The two neighboring schools didn't play each other during the regular season, but they had similar records this fall.

Boyne City, the defending district champion, finished 10-8 this year. East Jordan stood at 11-7 before a final game with Kalkaska Tuesday.

"I think we can beat them," says East Jordan Coach Mike Bos. "Becky Aimesbury is definitely their best player. Nobody is going to stop her, but we would like to keep her from getting too many points."

"Boyne also has a good press. If we can handle that, we ought to have a reasonable chance," Bos said.

Aimesbury, a senior, is scoring 20 points a game and is now Boyne City's all-time leading girls' scorer with nearly 1,100 career points.

Although Aimesbury has been the Ramblers' leading offensive weapon this year, Coach Steph Moody says the team does better when it has balanced scoring.

"We've got to have scoring from everyone," she said. "That's been a problem for us. We don't usually win when we only have one or two good individual performances."

Junior center Lori Paquette is the Ramblers' top rebounder and second leading scorer with an 11.5 average.

Boyne also has good height and rebounding from its forwards, senior Cindi Scott and sophomore Julie Paquette. Playing guard along with Aimesbury is junior Michelle Russel.

Moody says she is "hoping we can knock off East Jordan and get another chance at Charlevoix." The Rayders are definite favorites in the district, which also includes Onaway and Rogers City. Charlevoix won the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and chalked up a 14-2 season record.

Like Boyne City, East Jordan also has a high scoring player in Coleen Thompson, who was leading the Ski Valley League in scoring most of the season with a 17 point average.

Thompson plays forward along with sophomore Joelyn Ingalls, who is seventh in the league in scoring with a 10.9 average.

Center Yvonne Grant, a 5-11 junior, is scoring about eight points per game, and she is the team's leading rebounder.

East Jordan's guards are Lynda Detlaff and Gayle Crick.

Aimesbury excels in classroom, too

Speed, dribbling help 5'1" guard make all-state

BY TRISH WRIGHT

BOYNE CITY - Number 25 on the girls' basketball team is Becky Aimesbury, a 5'1", 115-pound senior who has been playing varsity basketball since she was a freshman.

When Boyne City played St. Ignace on Nov. 4, Aimesbury scored enough points to put her over the 1,000 mark. She could be over 1,100 points by the time this season ends.

Last year she received an honorable mention for the Class C All-State team. This year she hopes to do better.

Only two other girls in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference have ever accumulated 1,000 points. And only one other player in the region can match the four digit score.

Aimesbury says, "I'm the shortest in the conference. I might have a better chance if I were a few inches taller."

Although her height is not her greatest physical asset, it surely has not impeded her physical prowess.

"I guess my speed and dribbling ability are my strong areas," comments Aimesbury. "I played basketball with my older brother Carl. He's the one who got me interested in sports. I play with my younger brother, Shawn, now. He's on the boys' varsity team."

Although basketball is Aimesbury's favorite sport, she also runs track and plays volleyball and softball. "Last summer I played shortstop for Schafer's of Boyne City and on a Petoskey team. During the summer I work as a lifeguard at the Boyne City swim school."

But all of this athlete's time is not spent on the court. Aimesbury has a 4.0

grade average and is planning a career in engineering.

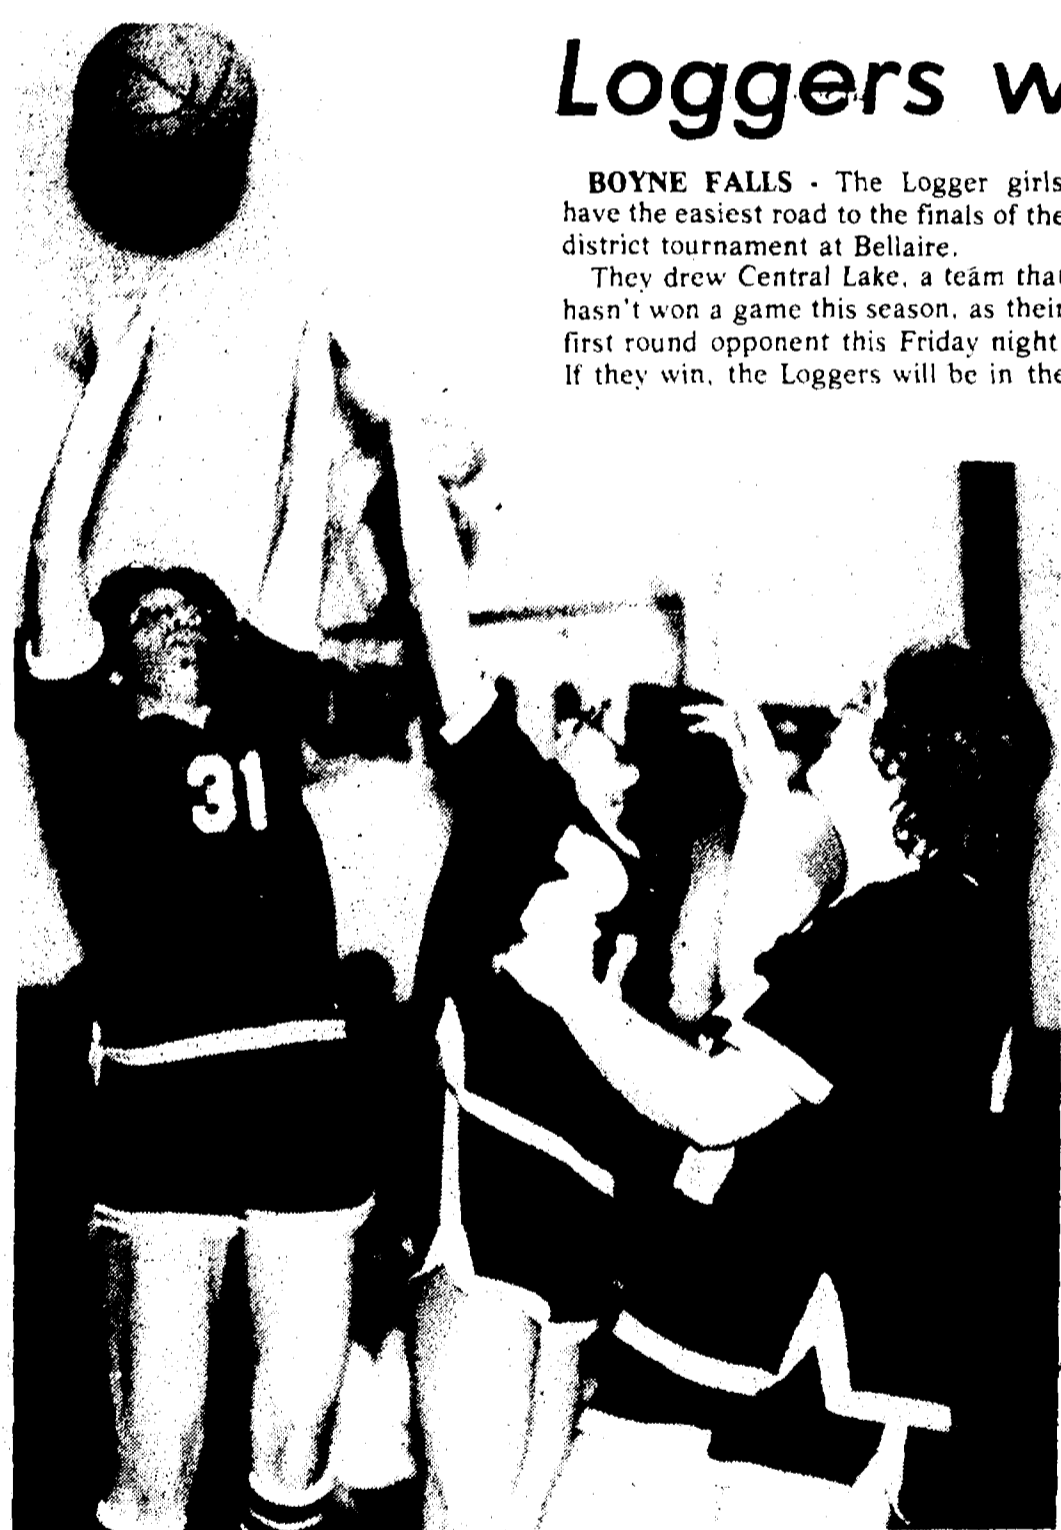

According to girls' basketball coach, Stephanie Moody, Aimesbury is at the top of her class. "She's very demanding of herself. She has natural athletic ability, but she also works at it all the time. Becky has been very helpful to me as a team leader. I'll miss her when she graduates."

Aimesbury has not decided on a particular college. She hopes to qualify for a sports scholarship and then make her choice of schools.

"Becky has competed in track events at the state finals three different times," says Moody. "She may be able to receive a scholarship but playing basketball in college may be more difficult for her than it is in high school. Her height may be a disadvantage."

"Steph has really helped me a lot," says Aimesbury. "I wouldn't have been able to score a 1,000 points if she hadn't put me on the varsity team when I was a freshman."

Aimesbury is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Aimesbury of Boyne City.

Loggers would like to surprise people

BOYNE FALLS - The Logger girls have the easiest road to the finals of the district tournament at Bellaire.

They drew Central Lake, a team that hasn't won a game this season, as their first round opponent this Friday night. If they win, the Loggers will be in the finals on Tuesday against either Bellaire, Ellsworth or Alba. All games start at 7:30 p.m.

"We should beat Central Lake," said Coach Joel Donaldson. "I'd like to be the team that comes into the tournament with a mediocre record and surprises everybody."

Boyne Falls has a 6-11 season record, which Donaldson said is not as good as he hoped it would be. "I've been a little disappointed in the way we've been playing. We had a real good junior varsity team last year, and we had high hopes for this year."

The problem, he said, is that "We're still waiting for everyone to put it all together on the same night."

The team's youth may be part of the reason it hasn't quite jelled. Only one starter is a senior. And the Loggers have been playing winning basketball the second half of the season. After losing their first six games, they won six of the final 11.

The Loggers are well balanced, with Sandra Payton, Melody Wilson and Sharon Franckowiak all averaging about eight points per game.

Payton, a 5-9 junior center is the leading rebounder, averaging 9.8 per game. The forwards are junior Pat Franckowiak and senior Janice Green.

The guards are sophomore Sharon Franckowiak and junior Melody Wilson. Wilson leads the squad in assists, with four per game.

Top reserve when the starters need help is senior Carol Bearss, who usually ends up playing as much as the starters.

Same three teams win again in Boyne City basketball league

BOYNE CITY - The same three teams that won their season openers last week stayed hot this week and won again in the Men's Independent Basketball League.

Payton's Well Drilling, Great Lakes Energy Systems and Country Star Market stayed undefeated Sunday with their second consecutive victories.

Payton's won the closest game, coming back from a one-point halftime deficit to edge Schafer's 84-78. Terry Erber had 24 points and Julius Kowalske canned 19 for the winners. Dean Hicks poured in 30 and Bill Hoaglund added 23 for Schafer's.

Country Star became the first team to break the 100-point barrier with a 103-80 win over Boyne City Lanes/Northwestern State Bank. Ken Gahn and Dave Peck led the victors with 29 and 22 points, respectively. Jeff Krusel had 19 and Tim Markham 16 for the losers.

Great Lakes came on strong in the second half to whip Boyne River Inn 83-57. Jeff Belford collected 35 points to pace the winners, and Dan Osmer and Al Looze added 11 points each. For the BRI, Terry Elzinga had 18 points and Rob Spencer scored 13.

NEXT SUNDAY, Schafer's meets Country Star at 12:30 p.m. BRI plays BC Lanes/NWSB at 1:45, and Great Lakes faces Payton's at 3.

New license is a bad buy

"It stinks!" That is Bill Mittig's statement about the way the hunting and trapping Sportsman's license is set up this year. Mittig is a forester with the Department of Natural Resources.

Local store owner Jim White of Ace Hardware in Boyne City seems to agree. "Because the license expires on March 31, 1981, the fisherman will have to get an additional license after that to fish, which means he'll spend more than it's all worth," White explained. "It costs less to buy each license separately because of the change in expiration dates."

In the past, the Sportsman's license has been good until August and consequently, while there was no monetary savings to the sportsman, it was much more convenient to purchase the one license to take care of the entire year's activities.

Mittig explained that this year the legislature made all the licenses due on March 31. By doing this they created a mess causing the license not to be a good buy. "It's a snafu. The legislature just made a mistake," Mittig said.

The license, which costs $27.75, will hopefully be corrected next year by the legislature, he said. In the meantime, "It just isn't economical to buy the Sportsman's license," said White.

The Home-Buying Single Woman

Increasingly in today's housing market is the single woman. Many are buying homes, either by themselves, or together with other women. This trend reflects the growing number of affluent single women in the population, and the growing number of affluent single women as a result of new occupational opportunities. It also reflects the fact that financial institutions are more willing to lend money for home purchase to single women (as result of legal action and moral persuasion by women's groups). Their motivation to buy is largely financial—a home purchase is best hedge against inflation and also one of the best tax shelters available to single women. The largest market is in condominiums, but single women also buy single family homes, investment properties, and vacation homes.

Many builders are aiming their advertising at women; providing information on tax advantages; and designing and furnishing models to appeal to women. This is an important new development that can greatly broaden the base of the home building industry.

Fast planned for world's hungry

BY TRISH WRIGHT

November marks the beginning of the holiday season. And, for most Americans the holidays include preparations for bountiful feasts. While many are compiling gift and grocery lists, an organization called Oxfam-America is planning a fast for world harvest day.

According to Susan Solomon, East Jordan member of Oxfam, Thursday, Nov. 20 is a day for people to stand with the world's hungry. Oxfam-America is a nonprofit international organization which funds self-help development programs in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

"Everyone is encouraged to fast for the day and send the money that would have been spent on food to Oxfam. People are encouraged to donate as much as they desire. Over the past six years, Oxfam has raised approximately one and a half million dollars through fund raising efforts that include days of fasting," says Solomon.

Oxfam began in England in 1942 as the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief. During the past 38 years, Oxfam has gained a worldwide reputation for aid projects which depend on the energy and initiative of the people in third world countries.

Solomon explains that her involvement with the program is a result of having read about this global agency that accepts no government intervention. "Oxfam is run on individual contributions only. They don't accept any government money. And, of the money which is donated, 82 percent of it goes directly to the program specified by the donor."

Oxfam's philosophy is one of self-reliance. The group supports the efforts of the poor to overcome injustice and to share in the world's resources. They believe that community change is actualized only when community members determine their own choices and needs.

Oxfam has 30 field directors who live in the project countries and are familiar with the people and problems of developing nations. Fast dollars help support projects that include: funding rural health workers who bring medical care to isolated Nicaraguan families, teaching farming methods to South African refugees and helping Cambodian farmers move toward agricultural self-sufficiency.

On Thursday, Nov. 20, the Oxfam fast day, Solomon will be presenting a program on world hunger at the East Jordan High School at 7 p.m. She will be showing two slide shows provided by Oxfam-America agency, The Animal of Friendship and The Face of Cambodia. The public is invited.

Solomon adds that fasting is a way of experiencing the hunger that many live with every day. "Regardless of whether or not you fast, you are encouraged to send a donation to Oxfam-America at 302 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Mass. 02116.

Happy Thanksgiving

Pumpkin pie with a snap

Every year the magazines are full of ideas for Thanksgiving dinners, but how can we improve on that golden brown roast turkey surrounded by cranberry sauce, mounds of buttered squash, mashed potatoes and relish trays of all

1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/16 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 cups scalded milk

Mix the pumpkin with the beaten egg yolks then add the sugar, salt and spices. Mix very well, then add the scalded milk. Last, fold in the beaten egg whites and pour into prepared crust. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes until knife comes out clean when inserted into center of pie. Delicious served with whipped cream.

our summer pickles and preserves... always served with hot homemade rolls and pumpkin pie for dessert!

Here is a very old recipe for pumpkin pie which has always produced "ohs and ahs" when I have served it. My recipe card is brown with age and the writing is faded, but at least once a year at Thanksgiving time I get it out of my file and make:

Pumpkin Pie with Gingersnap Crust

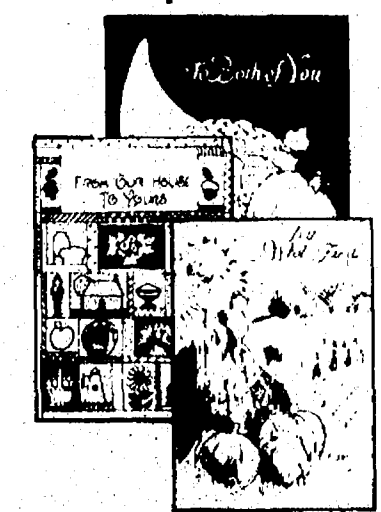

Crust:
Use 40 small gingersnaps. Crush them into fine crumbs. One way to do this is roll them with a rolling pin between waxed papers. This is not easy to do, but it is worth the effort. Work into these crumbs 2 tablespoons of softened butter or margarine and press into a 9 inch pie pan. Then make the filling.

Filling:

2 cups cooked or canned pumpkin
2 eggs separately beaten
1/2 cup white sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon mace or nutmeg
