Ho, ho, ho!

Santa was in Boyne City last weekend at the Boyne Valley Railroad office to find out what the local children want for Christmas this year. There was a good turnout of children and parents for the event. If you missed Santa, he'll be back in Boyne City on Dec. 20 from 3 to 5 p.m. Santa will also be the guest of honor at a Children's Cartoon Christmas Party to be held the same day at 1 p.m. at the Boyne Cinema.

Election is Monday

More support for EJ millage?

BY JIM BAUMANN

EAST JORDAN - Picketing resumed at one of the school buildings here Tuesday. But it wasn't a striking or protesting employee. The lone picketer was Mike Burr, a member of the K.I.D.S. group which is promoting a "yes" vote for the school millage election Monday.

Burr, dressed in a snowmobile suit, braved the season's first winter storm to carry his "vote yes" sign while parents were coming to the school for teacher conferences.

Despite three previously unsuccessful attempts to raise the school tax rate this year, Burr feels confident Monday's effort will be successful.

"Nobody worked as hard on the other elections," he said. "A lot of people have changed their attitudes. They're not going to vote a grudge. They're going to worry about taking care of grudges after the election."

Burr is just one of a large group calling itself K.I.D.S.—for Kids' Interest Deserve Support.

The group has been going to club meetings to coffee klatches and on a door-to-door canvass in an attempt to distribute election information to as many voters as possible.

They are even holding a spaghetti supper from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4, at the elementary school. Besides serving spaghetti, the group will be distributing information sheets and answering questions about school financial needs.

With the current local economy, millage supporters realize it isn't easy to ask people to approve a tax increase. Major points they make in justifying the millage are:

-Many program cuts have already been made and more may be necessary if the 2.8 mills aren't approved. Reduced state aid and reduced enrollment have cost the district thousands of dollars this year.

-Millage hasn't been raised in the previous two school years.

-East Jordan already spends fewer dollars per pupil than any other school district in the county.

-If the extra millage passes, property taxes will go up only about $36 from last year on a home with a market value of $20,000.

Board recall organizer thinks millage is needed

EAST JORDAN - The organizer of a drive to recall five members of the school board has finally turned in her petitions, but she says she is supporting next Monday's school millage proposal. "I personally think the millage is needed," said petition drive organizer Jan Hammond. However, she thinks the dissatisfaction evidenced by the nearly 500 signatures on her recall petitions will defeat the millage increase.

She said she hopes that her turning in the petitions to the county clerk less than a week before the election won't hurt the effort to pass the millage.

"I hope people don't try to blame it on me if the millage is defeated," she said. "I've already been accused of splitting the town, but I think this has gotten more people involved."

"Instead of sitting back and not knowing what's going on, they have gotten interested in finding out how their school system is being run. I feel pretty good about it."

The recall drive was started during the 16-day teachers' strike in September, and about 300 of the necessary 370 signatures were gathered in the first two weeks.

Then the drive slowed down after the teachers ended their strike and returned to work without a contract.

Hammond acknowledged that an unspecified number of teachers had helped "in some ways" to get the final signatures needed to place the recall question to a vote.

She was reluctant to discuss the teachers' role in the matter, however. "You better call Jim Everest about that," she said. "I don't want to say anything wrong."

Everest downplayed the teachers' role, saying "Some teachers made a few phone calls but they took it upon themselves to do it. The union did not get involved with the recall. That wouldn't be right."

Teachers' union president Rodger Ransom also said that any teacher involvement in the recall effort was unofficial.

"Some individual teachers may have called to check with clerks on how many signatures were needed and things like that, but they were not the ones circulating petitions. I know a lot of teachers were interested in helping, but we told them to stay out of it as much as they possibly could."

Like Hammond, Ransom said he supports the approval of the millage proposal Monday, despite his differences with the school board on other issues.

If the county clerk verifies at least 370 signatures, the school board recall question would probably be voted on next June.

Banking

Federal changes take effect soon; Local banks, S&L's reveal plans

BY KATHY JOHNSON

Banking and savings and loan institutions will be making a number of changes after the first of the year but local officials seem in agreement that the changes bring a mixed bag of good and bad for the consumer.

Starting Jan. 1 the initial phase of the Federal Depository Institution Deregulation and Monetary Control Acts goes into effect. With savings and loan institutions able to offer checking accounts, and banks and S&L's both able to pay interest on those accounts at a maximum of 5.25 percent annually, these changes will directly or indirectly affect everyone.

While the initial changes in the industry appear to mean more money for the consumer in the form of interest on checking accounts and market-determined interest rates for six-month and 30-month deposits, in reality what it may mean to the consumer is more services but at a cost to that consumer.

The money paid on the new NOW (Negotiable Order of Withdrawal) accounts and on other interest earning services may result in higher rates on loans. Loan money is tight and added to the higher loan rates will be the expense of maintaining new services and keeping track of the "deregulation regulations."

While the new NOW accounts will offer interest on checking accounts most financial officers seem to feel that the change doesn't really encourage savings. What will happen is that those who can qualify for the minimum balance will earn interest.

Gordon Wellman, president of the Charlevoix County State Bank said he views the changes in the industry with "mixed emotion." "We don't know (if the change is for the good) because the laws and interpretations are changing daily," Wellman said.

Wellman went on to say, "We've always been quite heavily regulated and in the last four years it has gotten much worse. Almost every week there is something new. They are passing a bunch of these laws in the guise of consumer protection, but the consumer is going to pay the freight," he concluded.

Changes at the Charlevoix County State Bank include the new NOW account which will tentatively carry a $750 minimum balance. Mike Zinn, assistant cashier, indicated that the bank would be encouraging its customers to close out their current automatic transfer accounts which require a $1750 minimum balance. Zinn said that the current accounts are much more time consuming and require more bank work. The new NOW accounts will be easier for the bank and the consumer.

When asked about the changes in banking Lou Hollow, president of First State Bank in Charlevoix said, "It is the old good news, bad news story. On the surface it looks great but it can do more harm for the person who can least afford it."

Hollow indicated that on the NOW accounts alone, the bank would have an additional cost of $54,000 a year in interest. Someone is going to have to pay for that.

The most readily noticeable change Jan. 1 will be at savings and loan institutions. They will have a new service to offer in the form of the NOW account. The difference between the NOW accounts at banks and savings and loans will be the minimum balance.

Vice-president of Lakewood Savings and Loan, Randy Lightfoot, said, "Banks and S&L's will pay the same interest on NOW accounts, but we only have to maintain a $300 balance (at Lakewood)."

At Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan, Chuck McDowell, chief executive officer and chairman of the board, said they would be offering a Check-Save NOW Account with an average daily balance of $1,000. Asked about the remaining differences between the banks and savings and loans, McDowell said, "You are better insured with bank insurance. We're more funded. And we have broader markets that we can go to for borrowing purposes."

First National Bank and Trust will be offering their NOW account with a minimum of $1,000 balance or a $2,000 average balance. Steve Woodcock, assistant cashier at the Boyne City office, said he felt that service was one of the important factors for consumers to consider when comparing institutions.

"We're a full service bank. It is important to look at all the services. We offer a variety of checking accounts and a variety of loans. We have full time trust services and Christmas Club."

Woodcock went on to say that "Most banks in this area offer credit cards through another bank. We are a card issuing bank and we offer both Master Charge and VISA."

Asked about the "deregulation," Arch Wright, president of Lakewood Savings and Loan said, "Deregulation is a gross misnomer. Nobody should be led to believe this is deregulation. The sense in which it is called deregulation is that over a period of years banks and savings and loans will become more and more alike."

Wright indicated that the industry is as regulated as every other industry, and echoing the feelings of Gordon Wellman, said that there are new and constant changes in regulations and rules.

The housing industry appears to be the industry which may suffer greatest from the changes. As consumers receive more for their funds, borrowers will begin to pay more for their loans and savings and loans won't be dealing as heavily in housing loans.

Wellman commented: "Experts are saying that the new powers of the thrift institutions could hurt mortgage lending." Arch Wright agreed, saying, "Savings and loans historically supported the housing industry with mortgages. As we take these away, the housing industry is getting in big trouble."

The current Kiplinger Washington Letter points out, "Home financing will change considerably in the next few years. Savings and loans are going to be restructured...more like banks. They won't be dealing as heavily in housing loans, nor as exclusively. Housing will need to find new pools of money to keep growing and meet rising demands...or live with less and risk stunting of growth."

One dissenting voice in the area comes from Dick Moreford, spokesman for First Family Federal Savings and Loan who feels the changes will be a "good thing in the long run. More competition is going to result from the changes and we feel it will be better for the consumer."

Asked about the housing industry problems Moreford said, "We hope it won't cause a problem for the housing industry. Housing loans are our specialty."

If the housing industry suffers, then the consumer will suffer. The new "deregulations" do offer a mixed bag. And there is more to come.

Overall financial officers seem to agree that over the next 10 years the banks and savings and loans will become more and more alike and there will be few differences left.

State branching laws will be modified and the computer industry is now and will continue to play a larger part in the changing scene. Check "safekeeping" will become more prevalent and along with your credit card, you'll carry your new "debit" cards.

Overall the next 10 years will present the consumer with many new services and opportunities. It will be up to time to tell whether the price the consumer pays will be worth those services. Banking and savings and loans will be in a constant state of change and the consumer will want to shop carefully for his money services.

Being on school board Tough but exciting job

Being on the school board takes concern for children and the community they will make—enough concern to equal courage, sometimes. Aside from that, the only qualification is being a registered voter in the district.

School boards have a very ancient tradition. It was ancient even back in the early 1800's when a school board member strode into a school room in New Hampshire and tongue-lashed the not-yet-famous essayist, Henry Thoreau. It was because Thoreau had been taking his students out to the woods to show them how Indians lived.

Unfortunately Thoreau quit on the spot.

But today's school boards, because of people like Thoreau, are more knowledgeable of teaching techniques. In Boyne City in response to community requests, they have formed committees to study various programs.

A candidate running for a school board post doesn't have to be knowledgeable. That's not one of the requirements, remember.

But once on the board, the new member has periodicals to read, workshops for new members to attend, and in Boyne City, Superintendent Rich Kelly meets with each member before every meeting. Every Friday he also sends board members information to study.

Recently, board member Eleanor West returned from the 32nd annual fall conference of Michigan Association of School Boards in Detroit.

It was an example of how school board work becomes exciting to a member.

West came back enthusiastically with a stack of notes. She admitted the forecast for the '80s was for gradually tightening belts, but even so boards have many ways of improving the situation.

"Performance is leadership, not just credentials," one speaker said. It was pointed out that in general teacher performance has suffered as expectations have climbed.

Teachers have to motivate and support their students continually. But who does this for the teachers?

Board members were advised that teachers need communication, appropriate pats on the back, and conferences when their performance is inadequate. Board members should work for in-service opportunities for teachers. "Everyone needs answers," West said. Another idea she heard was for the board to have committees of non-board members to whom people could go to talk to instead of taking on a board member.

But committee or no committee, boards were advised to read all letters to the editor, to call people who are distressed and listen to them.

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Communication for the sake of understanding came up again and again. Boards should explain to the public things like required equality in sports, union requirements, misleading words like "sex education."

Board members should go with talking in mind to the civic organizations in their cities.

West said that one of the speakers, Ann Barkelew, recommended the board should have the kind of parent contact that would allow them to say when students graduate. "We have been glad to have this-and-that share in the education of your child."

"Put ideals into words," Barkelew emphasized.

The least communicated to people, West reported, are the approximately 71 percent of the taxpayers who have no children in school. They have no hand-outs sent home from school by little Linda or Jimmy. They support schools because, like for all societies since the beginning of time, community survival success depends on the elders teaching the young. And sometimes they get on school boards. As Kelly says, "I think it's good to have a blend."

West said, "I was happy to see all these people (at the conference) really concerned about schools and children."

Besides this evidence, West, along with many connected with school, has come to realize the extent of the commitment of administrators.

What with meetings and school events she said, "They're on the job day and night."

Last of all, school board people, like everyone in representative government, "can't please everyone but...have to choose what is best," as West put it.

And communicate—in hopes of understanding.

HOW DOES ONE DEAL WITH A DECEASED'S BELONGINGS?

One of the most painful jobs the family of the deceased must face after the funeral is the disposition of the deceased's personal possessions.

Hastily discarding possessions is not always the wise thing to do. Memorabilia can become valuable with time; not intrinsically, perhaps, but sentimentally.

Clothing, jewelry, books, a stamp collection, a camera, a pocket watch - are these items to be discarded? Or retained as keepsakes?

We've observed that many articles, like jewelry, or watch, are not discarded; rather they are prized by members of the family as precious mementos. Nostalgia often takes over and a simple item, like small pocket knife, becomes a son's pride and bitter-sweet pleasure.

Clothing, on the other hand, may find its way into the hands of the needy by way of a favored charity; or, very often, many mourners take great pleasure in seeing a close relative regaled in a favorite suede jacket, a suit, a fur.

Dissident EJ groups agree: Vote 'yes'

"What next?" is the question East Jordan School District residents might be asking themselves this week.

In the past week, the latest in a series of disconcerting events leaves us wondering. Last Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, less than 70 percent student attendance - which had been warned by teachers - meant that the day wouldn't count as an official day of school.

Then on Tuesday, there was the announcement of the completion of a school board recall drive.

What is particularly unfortunate is the timing of these events, shortly before next Monday's millage election.

Despite three previous millage defeats and a teachers' strike, it appeared that a citizens' group (not closely aligned with teachers or school board) was making some headway in getting people to see through all the smoke.

Their basic point was (and still is) simple - the cash equivalent of seven mills have already been cut out of the school budget because of declining enrollment and declining state aid. After two years without millage increases a 2.8 mill hike is not an unreasonable request.

The group, which calls itself K.I.D.S. (for Kids Interests Deserve Support), is walking a very thin line, realizing that the teachers, the school board and administration are all somewhat controversial.

Communication and credibility problems can and should be addressed later, the KIDS group says, but meanwhile don't use your millage vote to protest past problems. It will only compound them.

Editorial

We think it is high time that all of the various parties - voters, school board, teachers and administrators - swallow their pride and bury the hatchet.

So far there has been no sign that this is happening. There is still no teachers' contract, and the conflict keeps getting worse.

Since the strike ended, the board has angered teachers and some citizens by issuing an ill-timed position paper on negotiations, communicating poorly at the annual budget hearing, and by attempting to force school attendance on the day after Thanksgiving.

The teachers have angered the board and citizens by their public hassling of the board via school board meetings, letters to the editor, lighted signs at their union office, and even behind the scenes assistance on the board recall effort.

Public discussion of issues is all well and good, but the East Jordan situation has gone far beyond the constructive stage. The recall drive - started during the strike to support the teachers' request for binding arbitration - seems especially vindictive now that binding arbitration has been granted.

The continuing public criticism of the board by teachers seems vindictive.

The board's decision to hold school on the day after Thanksgiving seems vindictive after the superintendent had testified in court that it was a poor idea.

Enough is enough!

The kids are being caught in the middle of political bickering. All sides should admit that their major problem is that they aren't communicating too well with each other.

But all the dissenting parties can agree on one thing. The board president, the teachers association president and the leader of the recall drive all agree that more money is needed to provide a decent education for East Jordan students. They are all in favor of a "yes" vote in Monday's millage election. They all agree that the kids shouldn't be the victims of an unfortunate political struggle.

And if a "yes" vote is accomplished, proper attention can then be devoted to solving some of the other problems of the school system.

We agree.

Letters to the editor

Don't cheat kids of education

Editor,

The people of East Jordan are once again faced with a critical decision—whether to approve a 2.8 mill increase and support the effort to provide quality education, or to reject the millage and allow the school system to continue its slide toward disaster.

In difficult economic times a certain amount of belt-tightening is necessary. But the object should be to bite the bullet, not eat lead.

Just so much can be cut from educational programs before they lose their effectiveness, leaving a meaningless facade of education with no substance to it.

Budget cuts of programs and personnel have already plunged the quality of education below acceptable levels, and further threatened cuts would reduce the East Jordan schools to a mockery of good education. East Jordan would possess an educational institution in name only.

If the people of the community are to be expected to make the necessary financial sacrifice to save the schools, they must understand the potential benefits of their support. It is essential to emphasize the importance of education, not only to the children involved, but to the community as a whole.

A child's mind, with the potential it holds, is the most precious resource in the world. The process of refining this resource, guiding the development of its potential, is what education is all about.

Education provides the foundation, the underlying basic structure, upon which later experience will be added to form an individual's knowledge and understanding of himself and the world around him. The strength of this foundation may well determine if a person is a success or a failure in life.

In an increasingly complex world, the old standards of "readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic," though still essential, are no longer enough.

Modern education must provide a broad background of information to help prepare children for survival in a fast-paced computer-age society. It must help them acquire the skills necessary to competently face new experiences and make the difficult decisions of adult life.

Marriage and family, college, career, political decisions, personal ideals and commitments—these are but a few of the matters children must be capable of dealing with if they are to successfully assume their adult roles in society.

Today's children are our legacy to the future, and the only hope for a better world lies in their dreams, their goals, their abilities, and their accomplishments.

Whether they turn out to be the successes—the leaders and creators, the productive members of society—or the failures—the welfare recipients, the alienated and the social misfits—depends largely upon the start we provide for them.

To deny our children a quality education is to risk sending them out into a brutally competitive world without the necessary tools for success.

It is a tragic fact that, as the situation exists now, the children of East Jordan are being cheated out of the quality education they need.

Passing the millage will not solve all of the problems of the East Jordan school district. Years of incompetent decisions, misguided priorities, and inept policies have created a crisis situation that won't disappear overnight. A great deal of community effort will be required to get this system straightened out—more remains to be said concerning these matters at a later time.

But for now the important thing is that the passage of the millage will enable some important educational services to survive, and it will give the schools and the community desperately needed time to cope with the many difficulties that remain.

There is much anger and frustration with the entire school mess, but to express displeasure with the situation by voting "no" on the millage will only worsen the crisis, not make it go away. A "no" vote is a vote against the children of East Jordan and against the future.

The vitality of a community is reflected by the state of its school system. East Jordan is sometimes referred to as a dying town, but it isn't dying—it's committing suicide. Only a conscious effort by the people to do something about it can turn this situation around.

The small financial sacrifice required to keep the schools afloat is far outweighed by the potential benefits of quality education for everyone in the East Jordan community.

As members of society we all share in the successes and the failures of our social institutions. If we let the schools fail our children by refusing to pay the price for their success now, we will inevitably end up paying the price for that failure in the future.

Thinking myself into trouble

It takes a lot of thinking to survive these days.

We've got to think how to get by without giving in to winter. We've got to think how we're going to meet those oil and gas prices that are already beyond our pocketbooks. We've got to think how we're going to meet those oil and gas prices that are already beyond our pocketbooks. We've got to think how we can keep our car in condition to meet the onslaught of ice and snow and those monthly payments.

We've got so much to think about as winter settles in, it taxes our very wits. It takes the wits right out of a person to sit down and think how he can work just long enough to become eligible for unemployment benefits.

Oh, oh. My wife is reading this and warning me that I may be thinking myself into trouble. Well, I'm not. I've had more experience thinking my way out of trouble than into trouble. The fact that I would rather think than work has nothing to do with it.

Darn. She's made me forget what I was thinking about. That makes me mad. Now I'm glaring at her and she's warning me to wipe that thinking off my face.

Perhaps the marriage vows should contain a P.S.—"I will not let on that I know what my husband is thinking."

Marshall Sayles

I don't know how wives would like that, but it sure would tickle husbands who need to lie on the sofa and do some heavy thinking in order to survive these days.

It's a fact of life that husbands do their best thinking when they are tickled. How come wives don't understand a simple thing like that?

I sure wish I knew what I was thinking about when I started this.

A friend of mine said that nothing ever scared him so much as the time two doctors disagreed about what was wrong with him.

I was touching elbows with a fellow on the street. He was offering his latest complaint. "Last winter," he said, "it was headlined state-wide that our resort operators suffered the loss of millions of dollars due to the lack of snow." And he was complaining that when they made millions during snowy winters, that fact made no such headlines.

"Because," I said, "if it ain't bad, it ain't news."

Not having my secret knowledge of the inner workings of today's journalism, he would not accept my answer. All he wanted to do was argue.

Heavens, this was worse than trying to make a Democrat admit that he was happy.

Sometimes when I finish a column like this I get the feeling that I've been going the wrong way on a one-way street.

In cities large and small the holiday spirit is catching

The fun, fantastic and frantic holiday season is here. And with it comes the community spirit that the megalopolis and small town both share.

A recent trip to the Minneapolis-St. Paul area was an exciting four days of Christmas cantatas, Salvation Army bells, theatre and shopping elbow to elbow with other holiday enthusiasts.

It's hard not to catch the spirit when lads with cockney accents cry, "Chestnut, get your hot chestnuts," from street corners.

But the small town is not undone by its city cousin. Community celebrations are geared for all ages during this Christmas season.

Boyer City is planning a caroling night this Friday, that will tie in with the annual Girl Scout Christmas celebration.

Santa Claus will be spending a good deal of time with children in the area and Boyer City merchants are hosting open houses replete with decorations and refreshments for their shoppers.

According to Donna Moll, service co-ordinator of the Boyer City Girl Scout troops, "The Girl Scouts planted a Christmas tree near the Chamber of Commerce building in 1978 with the intention that it would be the official Boyer City Christmas tree."

"Every year we have a tree decorating ceremony at Christmas time," says Moll. "The ornaments are made of popcorn or something that birds can eat. We light the tree and sing carols."

Moll adds that the Girl Scouts are happy to have the community participate in their outdoor Christmas party and the refreshments donated by the Chamber of Commerce will make it a special event.

The feverish Christmas rush so visible in the big city also exists in rural towns. The more orthodox and religious Christmas events are observed in a manner that is common to both city dweller and farmer.

However, during the festive occasions where communities gather to sing around an evergreen, it's nice to harmonize with familiar and friendly voices.

Time to support Front St. project

Editor,

Congratulations on your excellent editorial last week on the Front Street project. It was both timely and to the point.

Perhaps we should be grateful that we have so few die-hards left in our community that are more interested in exercising their own personal wills—how ever misguided they may be—than they are in the well-being of the community as a whole.

It would do not good whatsoever to merely resurface the street. It would just break up again. To do the job right requires stripping the surface completely, mucking out to a depth of at least four or five feet, filling it with the proper materials to forestall spring heaving, and resurfacing it. This could very well cost much more than relocating it and the city would have to pay the whole shot. No $200,000 from the developers to help out.

Mr. Loding's wants on relocating are utterly ridiculous. The plans were made public months ago. If he can't get his way on the whole street, then he wants part of it moved. More silliness.

With relocation, Boyer City will have a much better street, a better view, and a more easily maintained street, all at a fraction of the cost of rebuilding it in its present location. Doesn't this make sense? It will also help the developers with their design problems.

I think it is high time for Mr. Loding and his small band of cohorts to get off the back of this project. If they can't come up with a little enthusiastic support they should at least quit their obstructionist tactics.

The fallout from this project will help every business in the community as well as the city itself. The relocating of Front Street is a small price to pay especially when it all adds up to pluses. This might also be a good time for our business people to get off their hands and show a little gratitude for having a $10-million project come to town.

Now I ask Mr. Loding, specifically just who will benefit from leaving Front Street as is and to what extent? Will the benefits so derived outweigh the benefits of relocating? Do you really believe your stand reflects the best interests of Boyer City and its citizens? Think about it.

Don't use millage vote as a protest

Editor,

Because East Jordan schools have been beset with conflict, I would like to give the voters of East Jordan something to consider.

The purpose of the East Jordan school system is not to provide teachers or administrators with jobs or to give board members public duties to perform.

East Jordan Public Schools exist first and foremost to educate children.

I believe the adults of East Jordan want a good school system for their children and are frustrated by continual conflicts. I hope these adults can separate the students' needs from the arena of conflict.

Please do not use the millage election as a means of protest. The kids' interests deserve support from the adults of the community.

The youth of our community are our responsibility. How can we expect them to be responsible citizens if we don't meet our responsibilities?

Kids' Interests Deserve Support. Please keep this in mind when you go to the polls.

A story I'd rather not write

They tell me that my column should be an extension of the news. But like everyone, I have some things that I'd rather not write about.

On Friday a fire truck went by our office. Then another. Then the ambulance.

Well, I thought, this could be the season's first loss-of-house, loss-of-wordly possessions, loss-of-life, fire. Guess I better drop the tree ornaments (I was trimming the office tree) and follow that truck.

So I did. Nicely enough it was for nothing. Well, not nothing, but it was a chimney fire which was caught early enough to amount to only some damage at the Bob Prebble home on Advance Road.

Certainly not enough to write a story or take pictures.

But, you know, I'd rather spend the entire winter (and all next year) without having a single serious fire about which to write.

As a teenager I had a very bad experience with fire. I saw a man on a well drilling rig burn to death. I never really appreciated what "burned to a crisp" meant till then.

At the time, friends told me that I'd done everything I could. Called the fire department, an ambulance, and stood by without fainting until they arrived. I was calm, cool, collected.

Until I got home and my father, trying to get my mind off it, suggested I turn the chicken he was barbecuing. Then I calmly got hysterical.

The drilling fire was one of those useless accidents. Foolish. It should never have happened. The victim was pouring gasoline into a running engine. It sparked.

Most fires are that way. Useless and foolish.

People either burn green wood in the wrong kind of stove, or they burn too small a fire, or they don't put the screen up, or they make some other small mistake that gets out of hand.

Being careful is one of the easiest ways to prevent that fire. Having your chimney cleaned by a chimney sweep is another. If your chimney is too small or you'd just prefer another method, there are chemical products sold over at Great Lakes Energy Systems in Boyer City that reduce creosote buildup and make the existing creosote easier to get out. But even with chemicals, you still have to scrape out creosote.

Another thing they carry is a fire extinguisher flare that you can use in a wood stove or fireplace. If you get a chimney fire, you just put the flare in the stove or fireplace and shut it up and it will put the fire out. I'm going to buy one. Maybe two.

That's my column for this week. I'd really rather not write about any more fires of any size. I'd much rather write about junk mail or Texas.

Roast pork with apple cider

This is the time for fresh pork. There are lots of good pork cuts at the supermarket now, including loin roasts, boneless fresh hams and chops at prices that are better than they have been for some time.

Of course at this time of the year pork is at its best for quality and flavor. The old-fashioned butchering time and our crisp northern air really gives us an appetite for real energy food like this.

Janet Waldner, the Boyne City public librarian, gave me this recipe for roast pork. Janet is a creative cook, always trying new ways to prepare tasty meals for her family and likes to use lots of different herbs and seasonings using very little salt. This is a way Janet fixes

ROAST PORK WITH APPLE CIDER

Put the roast, (she recommends a fresh ham) in a roasting pan and place it in a cold oven. Then heat at low temperature for one-half hour to get enough fat in the pan so it won't stick to the bottom of the pan. Then she turns up the heat to about 450 degrees to brown the roast. Season to taste with salt and pepper (Janet does not use any salt).

When it is golden brown, add apple cider to the pan to about one inch in depth and roast uncovered at 325 degrees until tender, adding a little more cider during the roasting process if necessary. Always be sure pork is thoroughly cooked, up to 170 degrees F. If using a meat thermometer. This will take a couple of hours.

Remove roast to a hot platter and set in a warm place while you make the gravy. Janet adds some cranberry sauce to the liquid in the pan, thickens it with corn starch, and dissolved in a little water—a delicious sweet and sour sauce. She also serves cranberries with the roast, which is a nice change from regular applesauce.

Just imagine the fragrance coming from your kitchen while this is roasting! It would make a delicious Christmas dinner in place of the turkey for a small family. Janet says this roast is also delicious sliced cold for sandwiches and snacks.

Bazaars and cartoons for the holiday feeling

BY KATHY JOHNSON

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly, fa la la la la, la la, la la, 'tis the season to be jolly, fa la la la la, la la, la la."

Bah humbug! If you're already suffering from the "Too little money, too little time, where do you get the boughs and what am I buying for gifts this year blues," then here are some suggestions for "funtastic" ways to solve some of those problems.

You'll find plenty of answers to your shopping questions starting this Thursday at the East Jordan St. Joseph's Church bazaar. From 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. a salad luncheon and Christmas bazaar will be held. Luncheon cost for adults will be $2.75 and for children under 5, just $1.

Boughs for decking those halls can be purchased Friday at either of two greens markets to be held in East Jordan and Boyne City.

The Boyne Valley Garden Club will have its Annual Greens Market and Bazaar from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Northwestern State Bank in Boyne City.

Also on Friday, at Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan, the East Jordan Garden Club will hold its 20th Annual Greens Market from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Christmas greens, wreaths, centerpieces and baked goods will be available.

When you're ready to trim the tree, the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce is operating a tree lot behind the chamber office from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Your biggest opportunity for Christmas shopping could well be at the Holiday Hobbycraft Sale to be held Saturday from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Boyne City High School. Judy Johnson, Community Education director said she expects nearly 60 different vendors at the sale.

"We have 56 different people registered now," Johnson said last week, "and I think we'll hit 60 before Saturday. It's going to be terrific. There are all sorts of Christmas crafts, handmade furniture, pottery, and paintings." Johnson went on to say that everything in the show has to be handmade and that they are expecting this year's show to be even better than last with lots of variety.

Not only are there numerous gift ideas and tree trimming crafts expected at the show, but refreshments will be served and there will be a luncheon. This may be one of those places you can solve several of your holiday problems.

The same day at the Boyne City United Methodist Church, there will be a Christmas Bazaar from 10 a.m. until 4

Some 60 different craftsmen will be selling their handmade items at the Holly Hobby-craft sale this Saturday at the Boyne City High School. The sale will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and lunch and refreshments will be available.

p.m. and luncheon will be served from 11 until 2. Luncheon for adults will be $3 and for children from 5 to 10 years of age, $1.50. Free coffee all day.

The bazaar will feature baked goods,

Christmas cookies, bread, needlework, decorations, toys, grab bags, and a quilt and afghan drawing to be held at 3 p.m. Donations for the drawing are 50 cents each or 5 for $2.

Now, if all these sound like a great idea but you also have the "What'll I do with kids blues," the Boyne City Public Library has solved that one. From 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. and again from 1:30 until 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, there will be a cartoon Christmas program at the library.

Cartoon features include, "Sentimental Over You," with Pepe LePew; "Calling all Cuckoos;" "Phoney Express," with Inspector Willoughby; "Cold Penguin," with Chilly Willy; and "Bedtime for Sniffles," with Sniffles the mouse.

For some old-fashioned fun, you can attend the annual Peninsula Grange Christmas program at 7 p.m. Saturday. Grange Hall is 2 1/2 miles north of East Jordan on Advance Road. Grange secretary Claudia Grutsch says, "Come join your friends and neighbors in the program and please bring a cookie plate to pass."

There you are. By the time you've gotten your tree, your boughs, your Christmas gifts, had lunch, dropped the kids off for the cartoon features and picked up a few handmade items at the Holiday Hobby-craft Sale, your Christmas blues should be over and you'll probably be singing "Those back aching, sore feet, how tired I am blues." Well, it can't all be perfect.

BUILD OR BUY?

A decision to get your own home can usually be boiled down to three choices: (A) Buy or build a new one; (B) Buy an older home, or (C) Buy a "young" (five or six years old) resale house. There are pros, cons, advantages, and disadvantages regarding the above choices.

A new house can be more or less custom-made. At least with regard to decoration, personalized features, etc.; however, as with many new things, there could be "Shake-down" problems. There's also the matter of landscaping costs for lawns, trees, shrubs, and bushes.

An older house often means lots of space; the rooms may be big, giving you more area than some similarly priced new homes. But then there's often the matter of repair and modernization costs.

The "young" resale house answer the needs of many people. It's been "broken-in," it shouldn't need repairs, and there's established landscaping, among other advantages. What's the answer? Only YOU can say! Come in and talk to us. We list all types and can advise you with regard to your needs and wants.

BC coach enthusiastic about talented team

BOYNE CITY - Before the season starts, many coaches try to sound non-committal when they are asked to predict how their team will do.

But Bob Taylor knows he has a good team at Boyne City High School, and the new coach finds it hard to contain his enthusiasm.

"We're looking good," he says. In a five-team scrimmage last Friday, Boyne City had the best squad, Taylor said. The opposition included Kalkaska, Gaylord St. Mary, Ellsworth and Alpena, a Class A team.

The problem is, Taylor is new to this area and he knows almost nothing about the teams he will be facing in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference this winter.

An old friend who is the coach at Cheboygan told Taylor his first game, this Friday night at Grayling, might be one of the toughest.

"I wish we had an easy non-conference game to start it off," he said. Another temporary problem is that guard Larry Jarema, last year's leading scorer, sprained his ankle in practice and may not be able to play at Grayling.

While Boyne City has a lot of talented ballplayers this year, the lack of a coach and a summer program could hurt the Ramblers in the early going, Taylor said.

"Grayling played 30 games this summer," Taylor said. "Petoskey played 25."

With this lack of experience playing together, Taylor said his goal is to have

A night to 'meet the team'

"Meet the Team Night" will be held at Boyne City High School at 7 p.m. this Wednesday night, Dec. 3. A donation of $1 will go towards helping the team buy matching shirts for game nights.

While the season opening game is on the road at Grayling this Friday night, the Ramblers will play their home opener Tuesday against Rogers City. Game time is 6:30 p.m. for junior varsity and 8 for varsity.

a 3-2 record in Boyne's pre-Christmas games.

"If we can do that, we could win the league," he said. "Some of the people I've talked to say our league is really good and really well-balanced this year, and that somebody could lose five games and still win the conference."

Taylor has three starters back from last year's 6-13 team—seniors Kerry Kruzel, Darryl Tims and Jarema. Kruzel and Jarema are guards, while Tims is a 6-1 center.

Joining them as starters this year will be forwards Brian Vroman, a 6-3 transfer student from Wolverine, and John Tompkins, a 6-1 junior.

If Jarema misses the first game with his injury, a 6-1 senior Jim Plachta might start at forward, and Vroman could be used at guard. Other possible starters are juniors Todd Richard, Shawn Aimesbury and Ken Wilson.

Taylor said Jarema may be "the best guard in Northern Michigan. He's the quickest kid I've ever seen and he has a great outside shot. He has a great attitude, too."

Vroman looks to be quite a boon to a team that already had a good nucleus of veterans. He was the leading scorer in the Northern Lakes Conference last year as a sophomore. Taylor notes that Vroman will be playing much tougher competition this year, but he still thinks Vroman will be an outstanding player.

"Brian is tough. He is a good shot, a good rebounder, a good passer. The better player he plays against the better he gets."

Taylor says his offense will be a "fast pace, fast break" style of ball. But defense will be emphasized the most.

"We like to play defense...we LOVE to play defense," he said. "We're going to play a high-pressure defense. We want to try for complete denial of passes once the other team gets the ball into their half of the court."

Strong teams in the conference should be Grayling, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Boyne City—"I've heard a lot of people saying we're one of the favorites," Taylor said. Dark horse teams would be Petoskey and St. Ignace, he adds.

Coach Bill Chase has five returning lettermen on his East Jordan High School team this winter. In front are Todd Root and Mike Spence. In back are Chase, Randy Morris, Del Ingalls and Jeff Chanda.

New East Jordan coach has his work cut out for him

EAST JORDAN - This season will be no bed of roses for first-year varsity basketball coach Bill Chase.

Chase and the Red Devils will make their debut at home Friday night in a non-conference contest with Onaway. Game time is 6:30 p.m. for junior varsity and 8 for varsity.

After five years as junior varsity coach, Chase is now directing the varsity. Steve VanderHyde, the coach for the past two years, took a position with Alma College after his teaching job here was eliminated due to budget cuts.

Chase has only one returning starter, Del Ingalls, from last year's Ski Valley League champions which rolled up a 17-3 season record.

And Ingalls, a 6-1 senior who played guard last year, may be used at center this year.

That illustrates East Jordan's major drawback this year—lack of height.

"That's our biggest weakness, we're lacking in height," Chase said. "I hope we have enough quickness to make up for it. We're going to do a lot of running."

While East Jordan has no overpowering big man, Chase notes that all his players are good overall athletes with good jumping ability for their size. "The team is looking real good so far. The kids have a good attitude and they like to run," Chase said.

The Red Devils' starting lineup was somewhat tentative as of last weekend.

Leading candidates for two forward spots are 6-0 senior Mike Spence, 5-9 junior Bill Spence and 6-1 junior Mike Brennan. Del Ingalls will probably be the starting center.

At guard, the probable starters will be a pair of seniors, 6-0 Todd Root and 5-9 Randy Morris. Also possible starters at guard are Shannon Bennett and Jeff Chanda, a pair of 5-10 seniors.

Chase expects perennial power Harbor Springs to be the team to beat, as usual, in Ski Valley competition. "They had a real good junior varsity outfit last year," he said.

Mancelona and Bellaire should also be strong contenders, he thinks.

"We'll win our share of games," Chase said, but it's hard to tell this early because most of the squad is untested. "We'll be competitive. I know that. Nobody is going to blow us off the floor."

Women's basketball league forming

Women's basketball teams from Charlevoix County are being sought to join a league which is now being organized in Petoskey.

Petoskey Recreation Director Gary

Hice says there are already three teams in the independent basketball league, and more are needed to fill out the schedule.

Deadline for turning in rosters is Dec. 19, games will be played in Petoskey on Thursday nights, beginning Jan. 8. For further information, call Hice at 347-4105.
