Although the holiday season wasn't a record breaker for local ski resorts, good snow and a ten day vacation provided steady traffic at the lift lines. (Photo by Kathy Johnson)

'Soft economy' still hurts tourism

BY TRISH WRIGHT

The 1980-81 holiday ski week was a good one but not a record breaker, according to most area ski resort owners.

The vacation period between the Christmas and New Year's holidays is traditionally a lucrative time for ski resorts and other tourist-oriented businesses.

This year's 10-day vacation that many visitors enjoyed in Northern Michigan boosted the lift ticket sales above last year's. But 1979 was a poor year for comparison because of the lack of snow.

"Even though we had snow this season, the soft economy hurt us," says Art Tebo, general manager of Boyne Highlands in Harbor Springs. "Counts were down but traffic was steady," he adds. "The hard-core dedicated skier was here and the families that ski together. But the occasional skier we're not seeing as much of."

Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls reports that business was up but 1979 was not a good year for which to draw a comparison.

"We're down a little compared to a normal year," says Sandy Turlyo, a Boyne Mountain executive secretary.

"Friday, Jan. 2, was the day we had the highest skier count which was about 5,000. Our lodge is 50 to 60 percent full now," she said on Monday, Jan. 5.

Jim Dilworth, manager of Nub's Nob in Harbor Springs, said that the holiday season was not as good as he expected.

"The reservations for lodging at Nub's is strong for the upcoming ski weekends but the mid-week reservations are down. I was surprised that we didn't have more traffic when we have snow and the western resorts have little or none," Dilworth said.

Schuss Mountain in Mancelona experienced an increase in holiday skiers this year compared to the 1978 and 1979 ski seasons, but according to Sally Hebben, assistant general manager, counts were up only because the four-day weekends extended this year's holidays. "Day area skiers are down. These are the ones we get from our feeder areas, local motels in Mancelona, Kalkaska, Charlevoix and even Petoskey."

"I don't think the region as a whole does enough to promote mid-week skiing to people in the downstate area. There is no consistency in advertising," said one motel manager.

"It's a buyers' market this year so we are very competitive with prices," says Hebben. Last February we had a record year and by opening 36 new rooms this month, we expect to meet last year's figures."

The one ski resort that is slated with this year's holiday season is Shanty

Creek in Bellaire. "We've spent about six million dollars in one year on new snow-making machinery, a chairlift, slopes, an indoor pool and 40 condos, so we expected to do well and have doubled our business since last year," says John Meeske, general manager of Hilton Shanty Creek. Shanty offers night skiing and Meeske thinks the extra hours of skiing and heavy advertising in the downstate metropolitan areas has helped business.

"We have 96 people in the house now and our bookings for the rest of the season look great," he said Monday.

Kjell Johansson, manager of the Weatherlane Terrace Motel in Charlevoix, figures that December of 1980 was up 23 percent from 1979 and 30 percent from 1978.

"We've had a decent increase in occupancy rates but then we've advertised heavily downstate and about half of our increase is due to good snow conditions," Johansson said.

"We haven't been hurt too much by the economy because we cater to people who can afford to spend their money on vacations in our area. About 50 percent of our weekends are booked through March, but I am a little concerned about the mid-week business."

"I don't think the region as a whole does enough to promote mid-week skiing to people in the downstate area. There is no consistency in advertising," says Johansson.

Howard Erickson, owner of the Cliff Dweller Lodge in Boyne Falls, agrees that reservations are coming in slowly, especially for mid-week skiers. "We're doing about the same as we did last year at this time."

Another Boyne Falls motel owner, Pat Theisen, reports that even though this holiday season was lucrative and on par with 1978, reservations at the BoyneVue Motel for the rest of the ski year are coming in slowly.

Boyne City restaurant and bar owners, Terry Toomey of the Tannery and Mac McNicols of the Boyne River Inn are enthused about their "after-ski" business.

"Traffic has been excellent," says Toomey. "We're up from 1978 and we look forward to having a good year. The people that are here are spending. I think the economy has affected the marginal skier, the one who really can't afford the ski vacation."

Citizens' group zeroes in on school problems

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - Dec. 8 may have killed the school millage proposal, but it did not derail a steering committee, which helped to promote the millage.

Formed last summer to give input to East Jordan schools and school board, its "reason for being" continues, according to committee member Jim Barnett. Barnett has called a meeting for Thursday, Jan. 8 at 7:30 p.m. to plan for the committee's future.

Input, along with output, is still needed to keep both community and school board informed about each other, Barnett said, and Cal Gotts, committee chairman, concurred, when each was interviewed on the subject.

Gotts said the school board likes the idea. Also, "I think we ought to have input from teachers, administration, and the public (as in the past)," Gotts noted, the committee has had representation from the school board and the PTA as well.

The steering committee met frequently during the period of millage elections, working on possible cuts in school budgets. Three sub-committees took over some of the categories of work: millage, curriculum, and communication.

Thursday night's meeting in the elementary school media center may produce some new committees, Barnett said. Problems remain. The teachers' contract has not been resolved.

And Gotts pointed out the board recall petition is very much alive. County Clerk Jane Brannon has said validation of signatures is nearly complete.

But even without these pressing matters, a steering committee will be "an important tool."

"(It) presents an informed atmosphere...where people can come in and shoot the breeze," Barnett explained. He said people need an informal group they can come to—where they can sit around, trying out ideas, voicing complaints, ultimately organizing recommendations.

The more people express themselves through means like the steering committee, the better they will be represented in the way these committee people look at it.

They are also interested in getting budget information from the school administration on a continuing basis to study, discuss and publicize.

Barnett said the committee as a whole and the millage subcommittee in particular were successful because as a result, "people knew a whole lot more than they did six months before."

He said he hoped people would express their interest by coming in and participating. He included people without children. "They vote, too...We're looking for new blood," he said.

Health center drops plans for addition

EAST JORDAN - A $150,000 proposal to add six rooms to the East Jordan Family Health Center has been tabled.

Health center board members took the action at their last meeting because they are uncertain about future federal funding for rural health programs.

The health center has received about $500,000 in federal grants for staff and equipment during its three years of operation. A $275,000 grant for the coming year is also expected. Those federal funds were allocated as seed money to help establish the health center. But after this year, the center may have to get along without federal assistance, according to Neal Colburn, administrator of the center.

"With the new administration in Washington, we don't really know what to expect," Colburn said. The Rural Health Initiative program, which provided funds for East Jordan, may be changed significantly, he said.

Until more is known, Colburn said, "It doesn't make sense for us to go into debt and build the addition."

"If the grant programs were to end or change we would still be stuck with the bill" for paying off the building addition, he said.

The addition would have been financed with a low interest loan from the Farmers Home Administration. The extra space would have been used for examining rooms for the two doctors and physicians' assistant who are on the health center staff.

Cross-country ski races set for Jan. 31 in Boyne City

BOYNE CITY - Plans are now being finalized for the fourth annual Avalanche Ski Classic, which will be held on Saturday, Jan. 31.

Other Winter Festival events such as a snowmobile safari, ice fishing contest, and an ice skating exhibition will also be held throughout the weekend.

As in past years, the ski race is designed to appeal to both serious racers and recreational skiers. There are two separate races, a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) event for racers and a five-kilometer (3.1 miles) race for recreational skiers.

"Many people enter the race just for the fun of it," said this year's race chairman, Jim Baumann. "Every participant gets a souvenir race T-shirt and bib, and everyone has a great time at the party after the race."

Olympic style medals, 72 in all, will be awarded to the top three finishers in each of 24 racing divisions. Participants will be divided according to age, sex and skiing proficiency.

A grand prize for the fastest finisher in the 10-kilometer race is a vacation weekend for two in Boyne City, including lodging, food and entertainment.

The race is held at Avalanche Mountain Preserve, a 300-acre city park owned by the city of Boyne City. The race course takes a gradual climb up the side of a high hill which was once used as a downhill ski area. At the top of the hill, ski racers can see for miles.

The course follows a ridge overlooking Boyne City and Lake Charlevoix, then goes down the hill, through woods and fields and back to the starting point at the base of Avalanche Mountain.

Entry fee for the race is $6 from now through Jan. 23. From Jan. 24 through race day, Jan. 31, the fee will be $10.

The race is being sponsored by the City of Boyne City, The Charlevoix County Press, Schafer's, The Dilworth Hotel, Natural Light beer and First National Bank.

For entry forms, stop at one of the sponsors or write the Avalanche Ski Classic, Boyne City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

Tourist Park evolution begins this spring

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - Phase I for East Jordan's Tourist Park will get underway this spring. Funded by a $30,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), bids for park work will provide a new landscaped entrance and "a substantial amount of the berm," according to City Superintendent Herm Rasch.

The berm—a long, low earth mound—is designed to screen out traffic noise where Highway M-66 runs along one boundary of the park. Once planted with shrubs and trees, it will also give park users more of a vacation-land setting.

"The concept itself is one of the needed aspects of the park," Councilwoman Pat Sweet states. She emphasizes the berm as a safety factor also. Over the years residents along M-66 have brought to the council's attention the tendency of youngsters to dart across the highway from anywhere in the park. The berm will act as a considerable deterrent.

Complaints from nearby residents that the berm will obstruct their view of the lake were reviewed by the Tourist Park committee of the city council.

The point was made that because of "the density of trailers that have been there, they couldn't see much (of the lake in the summers past)."

The berm will be about four feet high and six feet wide at the top with the base about 40 feet across. Other changes are planned for the park by Site Planning and Development Co. of Charlevoix, but no financing is available yet, other than the present DNR Coastal Management Grant.

This is an 80-20 grant, with the city's 20 percent being contributed in labor and administration. According to Sweet, the plans are in three phases and could take five to 10 years to complete. They were approved by the city council in the summer of 1980.

The evolution of the Tourist Park has been discussed off and on for several years. Nearly three years ago, the council set a five-year moratorium on the use of the park by mobile home owners, many of whom had summered in the park for years.

The city had been able to collect rent on the home in the winter also, as many of them remained in place from one year to the next.

EJ Tourist Park work to begin

City council members, however, concluded the park was not the proper place for permanent and semi-permanent residents whose low rent and prime location were subsidized by East Jordan taxpayers.

The moratorium gave the mobile home residents time to relocate and gave the park more space for camper trailers.

Sweet says the park has been self-supporting and will continue on that basis. It is not meant as a source of revenue for the city government.

The park has always been open to East Jordan residents for swimming and picnicking. Sweet notes, and the plans, she says, provide for improved swimming, recreation, and bath facilities for local use.

"We are up-grading the park two-fold," is the way Sweet puts it.

Work on the berm and the new entrance is scheduled for completion by Aug. 1, Rasch says. The landscaping design will be by Site Planning.

Citizens' group might help school through difficult time

Communication has been part of "the problem" in the East Jordan School District this school year, and we hope that the continuation of a citizens' committee will help improve things.

Steering committees of this sort tend to pop up during times of stress, as a Twin Valley citizens' advisory committee did a few years ago after voters turned down building proposals several times, forcing half-day sessions.

The past year has, indeed, been a time of stress for the East Jordan schools with a teachers' strike, severe state aid cuts, an attempt to recall the school board, and four unsuccessful attempts to increase operating millage. The teachers still don't have a contract and morale is low.

No steering committee can hope to turn around a situation like that overnight. After all, the poor state of the economy really started most of the school's problems, and that is beyond our control locally.

But when the problems became compounded, other things started, like finger-pointing, second-guessing, mistrusting and misunderstanding—on the part of all parties involved.

That's where a steering committee might help. East Jordan's has already done some good by putting out fact sheets and stimulating interest in the December millage election. The millage still didn't pass, but the further involvement of citizens in the campaign was healthy.

Besides promoting millages, the committee wants to study the school budget and curriculum so it can address some of the credibility/communication problems that have surfaced. The budget seems to be a particularly touchy subject which the committee must deal with head-on. When accusations are made, when budget questions are left unclear, perhaps the steering committee can get to the bottom of it.

Hopefully, all sides will be better off. The school board and administrators will learn where they must improve their communications with the public, and the public will learn more about its often complicated school system and how it operates.

We need to coax those tourists

While taking a spot survey of businesses related to the ski industry this week, I realized that one lukewarm adjective raised its three syllable head during many of the discussions.

I conferred with Webster's and found that the fourth definition, both a and b, of the word "marginal" was the one that ski resort, restaurant and motel managers were referring to.

marginal (4 a) close to the lower limit of qualification, acceptability, or function. (b) having a character or capacity fitted to yield a supply of goods which when marketed at existing price levels will barely cover the cost of production.

Economists have predicted that in 1981 the marginal stores will be weeded out faster than in the past just as top retailers will no longer go along with a losing store for two or three years. They're just too much of a drain.

Skiers are important to the Northern Michigan economy... but it's getting harder to coax them here.

Trish Wright

And it is the consensus of many local businessmen that the marginal skier is caught in the downstate drain. It may not be as exciting to ski at home, but the price of lodging, transportation and recreation in the north may be too much for him.

Hardcore skiers, families and a few local skiers are the ones who are still in the lift lines, not the occasional winter visitor on skis.

Bars and restaurants report that their customers this winter are spending a lot and leaving healthy tips on the table. One restaurateur noted that over 25 percent of the tabs during the holiday season were paid for with bank cards.

"I don't know exactly what that means," he said. "But we've never had that many. And we have had an excellent season."

So it's the fringe (an economic as opposed to a pejorative interpretation) skier who is staying home to wax cross-country skis or file downhill edges. And even though those people may not be big spenders they may mean a tighter belt for many local businesses.

Kjell Johansson, manager of the Weatherlane Terrace Motel in Charlevoix, is concerned about the slowdown. He maintains that the lack of coordinated advertising by this area as a whole is not helping to alleviate the problem.

"We should be promoting the entire area to people in the downstate metropolitan areas," says Johansson. "Mid-week traffic is slow and our weekend lodgers are staying for a shorter period of time."

We residents of northern Michigan live in a winter recreation mecca. We don't need to be reminded of what this area has to offer. But downstaters should be reminded and coaxed by aggressive promotion to enjoy our winter wonderland.

A marginal attempt to lure the city dweller will produce marginal results. It's time for a comprehensive campaign that will benefit the entire region.

Another endangered species

Do you have a 1981 calendar? Well, aren't you lucky. They are as hard to come by as a cheap promissory note. They aren't extinct, but they do rank along side the dollar bill as an endangered species.

Remember back when next to a woman a lump of money was the most exciting thing in the world? In those days most stores handed out calendars as soon as the moths had eaten up the old year. We hung ours on the wall and stared at the store advertisement for the next 12 months.

I grew up with a Bailey's Drug Store calendar on the wall. If it wasn't there, I was in the wrong house.

Boy, were they handy. Especially for those suspicious folks who circled the date whenever a young couple rushed off to get married.

Heavens, how things have changed. Most stores went out of the free calendar business and young folks don't hardly get married at all.

What a change we've gone through in this mixed up affair called life. I remember my folks harping on the fact that too many right-minded women were marrying wrong-minded men. And once hooked they stayed that way. Divorce was the top no-no all over town. In those rare times when there was a break-up the mouths of the community were full of it. Everyone's hands were busy talking about it.

It is still in the front of my mind how gas stations and garages hung calendars on the back of the men's restroom doors. There were naughty pictures on them, like you see on prime time television today.

We were fortunate to find an '81 calendar. Already it is cluttered up with things to be done on certain dates. And I am reminded that my life has been one long seige of important things to be done.

Checking the dates I found a February first reminder: Pay property taxes. That's when I fell into a stupor and could not talk for the balance of the day. I looked that word up. It said, "Stupor: That which a school board member falls into when asked why he voted to fire a coach."

Darn. I do not know how writing about calendars got me into all this. I think the reason I don't know is because I do not want to know.

But I do enjoy writing this stuff for the paper. It offers a better opportunity to reach people than standing on the street and raising my voice.

A myth: education ends at adulthood

It has been the same thing through the ages, with few exceptions. The religion, the learning, and the skills of the tribe are passed along to the children, who are then promptly initiated into adulthood.

At that point—the myth has said—education ends. What remains in life is the polishing of skills, except for a few individuals who keep on inquiring and are the wise women and medicine men of today.

This pattern strongly suggests that as far as education goes, when the body stops growing, so does the mind. No one can really agree with the only other implication, that there is only so much that is worth knowing!

So someone coined a phrase: You can't teach an old dog new tricks. Is it possible he meant an old dog may be unwilling to learn new tricks?

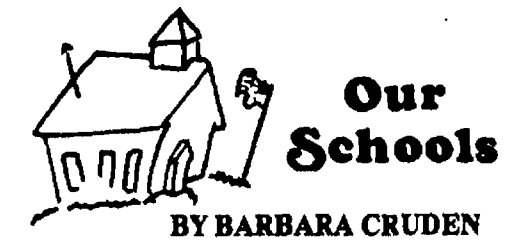

It seems pretty clear the main reason we adults settle comfortably into the old myth is that nobody is in the position of making us continue to study.

We are duty-bound to compel the children—and sometimes with oh what difficulty—but there's no one to compel us.

Besides we have 10 good excuses. The last excuse will be considered first because it has the most validity. It is: Going for more education is full of difficulties.

And that's right! For example, how shall we get to a class? A long drive on a wintery night after a long day? Solution: Two-week all-day courses offered during the summertime which include with study, recreation, baby-sitting, even housing. Some colleges are doing this for adult education. Wouldn't it be great to get a high school diploma the same way?

Our Schools

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

(Department of Education take note.)

Another difficulty: How do we know what to study? Solution: education offices always have someone to answer questions. If we don't have to take courses for a diploma, why not just dive into something farout? (Another note—people with low or failing marks should have the option of withdrawing their names from records.)

Lastly, why don't we just educate ourselves? Good idea, except for one thing. People who do, wind up intensifying their own points of view and also not developing their methods of understanding. It usually takes a teacher to get them out of their ruts, to at least see different perspectives in both what and how they study. Liberal education means climbing out of ruts and getting the view.

Well, so much for excuse number 10.

- Here are the other nine.
1. I'm too stupid.
 2. I never was much of a student.
 3. I know enough to get along. I make more per year than any college professor.
 4. I have too much to do already.
 5. Learning more doesn't make you any wiser.
 6. Learning more doesn't make you any happier.
 7. I don't want to be an egghead. I'd lose my friends.
 8. It's so tiresome.
 9. I'm too old. What would I do with it?

We may wash out these excuses with two responses. One is that no one has proved that except for abnormalities there is such a thing as a lack of intelligence.

We may prevent our own expression of intelligence by attitudes of laziness, pride, or distractibility. We may have lack of study skills or lack of confidence.

We may believe our low I.Q. scores, but they don't measure intelligence—only experience.

Intelligence may be like appreciation—something that grows with application.

The second response is a logical deduction. In sixth grade we found that, say, fourth graders were pretty ignorant.

Only in looking back do we know how much we didn't know and realize what we have become capable of.

Is there anyone who wants to give back the values of having learned something?

Win takes pressure off Loggers

BOYNE FALLS - Was basketball coach Dale Reinhardt excited when his team finally broke a 44-game losing streak last week?
"Well, we were more relieved than anything," he said. "It takes the pressure off. It really made a difference in the way we played the next game."
Boyer Falls broke their 2½ year streak last Monday, Dec. 29 as they beat Vanderbilt 43-28. The victory was in a holiday tournament on Vanderbilt's home court.

The next night, the Loggers almost made it two victories in a row, but they dropped 42-41 to Pellston.
"It was unbelievable how well we played against Pellston," Reinhardt said. "Our guys had confidence for a change and we really controlled the ball game."
Another good opportunity for victory comes this Friday when Boyne Falls travels to Vanderbilt again. Next Tuesday, Jan. 13, the Loggers travel to Johannesburg-Lewiston to face what Reinhardt says is probably the strongest team in the Northern Lakes Conference. The holiday games left Boyne Falls with a 1-4 record for the year, and those are the only five games that can really be attributed to Reinhardt and this year's team.

Reinhardt wasn't coaching during the two previous winless seasons, and only three players on this year's team played last year.
Still, it was a cross the Loggers had to bear, and they are glad to have the streak ended.
The victory over Vanderbilt didn't come easy, though. The Loggers trailed 18-15 at halftime but then outscored the Yellowjackets 12-3 in the third quarter to take command. The final victory margin was 15 points.

"We went to a man-to-man defense in the second half," Reinhardt said. "We held them to three points in the third quarter and that changed the ball game."
Tim Smith, the Loggers' 6-4 sophomore center, kept his average near the 20 point mark with 19 points. He also grabbed 15 rebounds. Other leading scorers were Bruce Crouterfield with 11 points and John Hausler with eight. Norm Mahanke had seven rebounds and had a fine defensive game. Reinhardt said.
The Loggers led most of the way before dropping the one point game to Pellston. Smith led the way with 14 points and 15 rebounds. Pat Harmon had 11 points, and Crouterfield added six. Mahanke and Jim Spencer both had seven rebounds.

EJ returns to league dogfight

EAST JORDAN - The basketball Red Devils head back into Ski Valley League play this Friday, knowing the five-way tie for first place is bound to be broken...and hoping they can stay among the leaders.

East Jordan, 2-1 in league play and 4-2 overall, travels to Inland Lakes Friday night and then plays host to Central Lake next Tuesday.

Inland Lakes is 1-2 in the league and 2-2 overall. The Bulldogs are a scrappy team, about the same height as East Jordan, according to Coach Bill Chase.

Central Lake, one of the league co-leaders, has been hot and cold this year. The Trojans easily defeated Harbor Springs but later lost to Inland Lakes.

That kind of inconsistency leads Coach Chase to say: "They must just have on and off nights. I hope we don't catch them when they're on." The Trojans have a good-sized team, he points out.

East Jordan split its two games in the Traverse City Christmas tournament, losing to Maple City Glen Lake but then coming back to whip St. Francis 78-66 on Dec. 30.

"I was real happy we went down to the tournament," Chase said. "It was good experience for us. I told the guys I hoped we got our tournament jitters out of the way in the Glen Lake game and we won't have to worry about them in the district tournament."
For a little while, it looked like the tournament jitters were still there for the St. Francis game last week. The Devils fell behind 9-1 early in the game but then rallied to outscore the Gladiators 20-2 in the next few minutes.

Mike Spence had the best game of his career, connecting for 22 points. Del Ingalls chipped in 19. Mike Brennan had 12. Todd Root seven, and Randy Morris and Bill Spence, six each.

Two share men's league lead

BOYNE CITY - Payton's Well Drilling and Boyne River Inn have taken over the lead in the second round of play in the Independent Basketball League.

BRI gave Great Lakes Energy Systems their second loss in a row Sunday after Great Lakes had gone unbeaten in the first round. BRI took a 36-31 halftime lead and won by a 74-66 margin. Kevin Griffin led the victory with 20 points, while Terry Elzinga added 10. Hal Price scored 24 and Mark Guitard had 14 for Great Lakes.

Payton's took a 47-33 halftime lead over Schafer's and held off a late rally to win, 87-80. Terry Erber poured in 32 points and Tim Crego chipped in with 13 for Payton's. Tom Beyer had 18 and Kevin Hocquard 16 for Schafer's.
Northwestern State Bank/Boyer City

Lanes also had a hot first half, jumping out to a 46-22 halftime lead over Country Star, and coasted to an 88-69 victory.

Jeff Krusel hit 22 points and Tim Markham and Lon Kowalske each had 18 for the winners, while Bob Taylor and Dave DeNise had 23 and 17, respectively, for Country Star.

NEXT SUNDAY: Schafer's vs. Country Star at 12:30 p.m.; BRI vs. Bank/BC Lanes at 1:45; and Great Lakes vs. Payton's at 3.

Mike had his best game of the season Dec. 30 when he scored 22 points in East Jordan's holiday tournament victory over Traverse City St. Francis. A 6-0 senior forward, Mike also played excellent defense and stole several passes, Coach Bill Chase said. Mike is the son of Lee and Linda Chase.

Ramblers at home Friday Key game: BC vs. Charlevoix

BOYNE CITY - It's still early in the season, but Rambler Coach Bob Taylor feels this Friday's game with Charlevoix is a "must" if Boyne City is going to stay in the race for their conference title.

The game with the Rayders is on Boyne's home court. Game time is 6:30 p.m. for junior varsity and 8 for varsity.

The Ramblers are 3-2 in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, while Charlevoix is 2-2. In the standings, they trail Petoskey (4-0), Cheboygan and Grayling (both 4-1).

"This is really a key game for us," Taylor said. "We have to win all our home games and at least half of our road games if we expect to be in the conference race."

The Charlevoix contest also presents an opportunity to get a winning streak started with four straight home games on the schedule, plus a road game with winless Rogers City prior to meeting Cheboygan on Jan. 27.

Taylor has one word to describe Charlevoix—"talented."

"They had five sophomores on the varsity last year and their JV's still beat our JV's. So you know they've got lots of talent. It should be a really good game."

In conference play, the Rayders have Ross Carey, Paul Hoffman and Gary Drury all averaging about 10 points a game.

The Ramblers are led by 6-3 junior forward Brian Vroman, who is second in the conference in scoring with a 19.8 average. Also coming on strong just before Christmas were Jim Plachta, Larry Jarema and Kerry Krusel.

A new addition to the Boyne squad this month is Brent Sweet, a 6-2 transfer student from East Jordan.

Sweet may be hampered this week with wrist injury, but Taylor said Sweet's height and rebounding ability could be a big help in games to come.
