It's egg hunting season

Dozens of excited East Jordan youngsters took part in the Easter Egg Hunt sponsored by the Lions and Lionesses Saturday. The kids got to keep all the eggs they found, and the ones who found the most eggs won additional prizes, which were dispensed by special Easter Bunny emissaries like Warren Frank, at right. ## Tax cut proposal has local officials guessing

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

"Yes, it makes a difference," Ray Mouch, Boyne Falls school superintendent said.

The difference is the effect the state's Proposal A would have on his school budget if the bill should pass at the May 19 election.

Mouch was figuring the budget both ways—how it would be if the bill passed; how it would be if it didn't.

He said the school is bracing for a number of cuts, but the biggest one could be the one resulting from the big "if" of Proposal A passage.

The reason schools would suffer is that the state's tax cut section of Proposal A is accomplished by putting a six percent limit on property tax increases from year to year.

The bill would not limit increased valuation of the land, nor limit sales prices, but it would put a taxation cap on each of the categories of property—residential, commercial, and so on.

This doesn't mean that within a category, some tax assessments won't be higher. But the average of all property in each category must not exceed six percent.

If governmental units, including school districts, wish to increase millage requests above the amount represented by the six percent cap, they may have an election to that effect. The state will then pay them one-half of the amount to be raised.

It is this six percent limitation that is most disturbing to schools and cities. They are the ones who have to figure out how to cope with the difference between the projected nine percent rise in property values ("pretty well represents Charlevoix County values," says Boyne City School Superintendent Rich Kelly) and the six percent cap.

Kelly figured his school budget on the assumption Proposal A will not pass. If it does, he says, $80,000 will be lost in revenues because of the gap between six and nine percent—an $80,000 that will have to be compensated for in further budget cuts or in another millage request.

City Manager Tim Clifton, on the other hand, figured his budget, assuming that the bill would pass, with a 19.1 millage request to cover the possibility of lower revenue.

If it does not pass he committed the city in advance to a refund through deposit of the unused revenue in a contingency fund to be returned to taxpayers as a reduction on the next tax bills sent to them.

East Jordan's City Clerk-Treasurer Fern Morris warned the city council at its April 7 meeting that budget items may be affected if Proposal A is passed, but said later she didn't know what arrangements would be made yet for the eventuality.

East Jordan's millage request tallied 19.25 on April 7 when the budget was approved.

Being on the state aid formula, the East Jordan school system will not be hurt as much as those like the Boyne City system which no longer qualify for the aid.

Financial supervisor Ruby Dipinski said the state guarantees an amount for that the state reimbursement of one dollar per affidavit does not cover costs of the procedure.

Also being discussed in municipal offices is "what do we do until October when the sales tax reimbursement comes from the state?"

As Clifton says, "We are muddling through because the state is muddling through." The state Legislature has had to rush the bill, and clarifications are still coming in.

The rush, Clifton notes, is necessary.

The Detroit Free Press put it this way in an April 19 editorial: "We are persuaded that if there is no lid of this reasonable kind (six percent), and if May 19 vote is negative, voters will be more inclined to support the radical Tisch proposal, which has a lid of two each child if local property taxes don't cover the "guarantee."

The Legislature has had to rush the bill, and clarifications are still coming in.

No millage proposal has been announced yet for East Jordan. The board has been pressed by a search for a new superintendent and negotiations on teacher contracts. Board secretary Ed Drenth commented Monday, "Lot of work to do!"

School boards have to figure the possible revenue loss due to the six percent cap, but cities and towns have the burden of procedural problems hatched by the proposal.

Morris exclaimed, "No comment!" when asked about details, saying in summary, "I will have to change my cash management program."

One detail is the pre-election requirement being asked that Homestead Affidavits be sent all taxpayer-owners "in order for the homestead exemption amount to be deducted from the property tax bills this year."

This must be done early to give governing units lead time to revise their July tax billings if the proposal passes. It means also that the units must get ownership names from mortgaging institutions that have been paying taxes for their accounts.

City treasurers are also complaining percent for annual increases."

The six percent limit on tax increases is the tax cut and will result in a cut of $250 million in the state's budget for the coming year, $85 million of which remains to be made.

The rest of the tax proposal is a tax shift.

The sections dealing with the tax shift do not bother municipalities so much, except for the rescheduling involved.

Fifty percent of the money once collected from property taxes will now be collected from an increase in the state sales tax of from 4 to 5½ cents on the dollar.

Warren Gregory, legislative assistant to Ralph Ostling, speaking April 16 at a Charlevoix County Republican meeting, said the proposed sales tax would be on a par with neighboring states. He noted out-of-state purchasers would be contributing 12 to 15 percent of the tax. He said also, sales taxes fluctuate less than most other taxes.

Asked what is the best thing about the whole proposal, Gregory said, "It stabilizes property taxes."

Most people The Press contacted concurred with Fern Morris' statement: "I feel the sales tax is the fairest tax the state has had."

Neighbors press for safety at Castle Farms

BY TRISH WRIGHT

CHARLEVOIX - Castle Farms Music Theatre may have to implement additional safety measures for concerts this summer if suggestions by a local citizens' group are adopted by the Marion Township board.

Before the necessary permit to operate the outdoor concert theatre is given to Castle Farms owner Art Reibel, the township board will listen to complaints and recommendations from property owners near the concert area as well as the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and city police departments.

Reibel has reportedly applied for permits to have 12 concerts beginning May 24 at the facility on Highway M-66. He has operated Castle Farms as a music theatre since July, 1976.

"We'll listen to them," said township supervisor Mike Bonar. "They're concerned about the health, safety and welfare of the concert-goers as well as the residents in the area."

According to Bonar, a partial application for this summer's concerts has been submitted to the board by Reibel but no action has been taken.

Some 25 residents of Marion Township met on their own April 14, and again on April 21 with the township board to discuss alternatives to the problems created by the concerts and the crowds that sometimes reach 15,000 persons. Complaints of trespassing, property destruction, indecent exposure and drug abuse at last year's concerts were heard from nearby property owners.

"Our concern is safety," explained Dawson Way, one member of the citizens' group. "The concerts are not safe for those attending or the people who live nearby. We don't want to shut Castle Farms down but we do encourage the board to look at the sheriff's safety proposals before a permit to operate is given."

In a letter addressed to the Marion Township Board on March 18, Sheriff George Lasater outlined 11 suggestions for improving public safety at the concerts.

Recommendations listed include:

Sheriff Lasater has outlined 11 suggestions for improving public safety at the concerts.

installing eight foot fences for parking areas, extending no parking signs on secondary roads, limiting the number of concert-goers to 7,000, creating a head tax on each ticket sold to help defray the cost of law enforcement to the county on concert nights, and to provide uniformed guards to patrol parking lots.

Lasater also pointed out the need for more trained personnel to assist with traffic control. The sheriff would also like to explore the possibility that alcoholic beverages be prohibited inside the concert area.

"I believe that fencing in both parking areas, establishing a head tax on each ticket sold and limiting the number of patrons that can attend each concert are the most important recommendations," said Lasater.

"The head tax would give us a break with our budget and would allow me to hire off-duty police officers on the night of the concerts. Each concert takes about $250 of overtime out of the sheriff's budget. But these are just recommendations. I cannot force the board to do anything," added Lasater.

City police departments also share the financial burden of extra police force during the concerts. "It's a very costly situation," Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Moll said.

"We put out both cars and the entire staff during the concerts. There is at least one state police car in town and at the concert that coincided with the Venetian Festival last year, we had 10 state troopers here."

"One of my recommendations would be outlawing alcohol on the premises. There are a lot of good people that attend the concerts but the minority of troublemakers can give you fits," Moll said.

East Jordan Police Chief Joe Hammond estimates that it costs his department an extra $78 in manpower during the concerts—even though East Jordan is 13 miles south of Castle Farms.

"We have an extra officer and car out the night of the concerts," Hammond said. "There is a high volume of traffic here since many people go through East Jordan on M-66 to go to the concerts. Our problems concern speeding, pedestrian traffic (hitchhiking) and congestion on M-66."

The Press was unable to reach Reibel this Monday and Tuesday, but according to Lasater, Reibel has already agreed to implement several of the sheriff's safety recommendations.

"He has assured me that permanent signs are being installed to direct concert patrons to line up their cars on the shoulder of the road," Lasater said. Reibel has also agreed to hire additional security guards and trained employees to accept tickets and parking fees, Lasater said.

Getting trained employees to assist with existing traffic after the concert and doing something to eliminate the "crowd pressing effect" for patrons at the front of the concert stage area, have also been assured by Reibel.

"If the concerts are going to be here permanently then we all have to work together—the township, sheriff's department and Castle Farms—to see it run as smoothly as possible," Lasater said.

Boyne man bowls 300

12th strike was a nail-biter

BY JIM BAUMANN

BOYNE CITY - When Wayne Kleinschrodt rolled the last of 12 consecutive strikes Monday night, everyone else in the bowling alley quit bowling and watched him.

"I'd been throwing the ball pretty good, so I just stepped right up there and threw it," Kleinschrodt said. "Everybody was watching, but I wasn't paying too much attention to them."

He made the 12th strike for what is believed to be the first 300 game ever rolled in Boyne City—and possibly Charlevoix County.

Obviously, to roll a perfect game, luck was with Kleinschrodt, and this was especially true on his final ball.

The 12th and final strike was what bowlers call a "Brooklyn". Kleinschrodt's ball curved more than it was supposed to, hitting the pocket on the left side, rather than the right side of the headpin.

Converting a Brooklyn is considered a good break... and Kleinschrodt had Lady Luck on his side Monday.

When Kleinschrodt finished his 300 game, everyone at Boyne City Lanes broke into cheers and applause. Someone bought Wayne a drink—a Pepsi, because he isn't a drinker. "You can't drink when you're bowling," he said with a laugh.

His 300 score came in the middle of a three-game series of 725, which broke the bowling alley record of 717. Ironically, that record had just been set last Wednesday by Carl Bayster.

Kleinschrodt's other scores in his series were 211 in the first game and 214 in the third. After rolling the 300 game, he ended his 12-strike streak in the first frame of the next game by leaving the 10 pin standing on his first roll—and he missed the attempt to pick up a spare.

The closest Kleinschrodt ever came to a perfect game before was a 255 game a few years ago and he said he never really thought he'd roll a 300. He's not sure he'll do it again, although he concedes: "Now I know it can be done."

He is one of Boyne's best bowlers, as he carried a 179 average before rolling the 725 series Monday. He is also an avid bowler, as he competes in three different leagues three nights a week.

With all that practice, he had been bowling well lately. He had rolled series of 630, 654 and 656 in his last three outings.

Kleinschrodt, 42, has been bowling for about 19 years.

Besides an unforgettable evening, Kleinschrodt will be awarded 100 free games of bowling from the local bowling proprietors, plus a special ring from the American Bowling Congress. And bowling alley co-owners Bill Korthase said that since Kleinschrodt was using an AMF bowling ball, that company will probably give him a new ball and bowling bag.

IS YOUR HOUSE IN ORDER?

No one really plans for his own demise. It is an untimely event at any time. A physical check-up annually is still a good idea. And so is a check-up financially.

Is everything in order TODAY, the way you would like it to be if you were suddenly to die? Is your will UP-TO-DATE, if you have one. And make one if you don't.

Have you appointed an executor? Is that person still capable and available?

Have you gone over your estate tax situation with an accountant? Your trust for grandchildren?

Is your life insurance coverage still adequate? Beneficiaries still named the way you want them to be named and to share in your death benefits?

Have you indicated to your family the whereabouts of very important papers, safe deposit box and key, and your wishes for a full-service funeral and what its costs should be?

"Helping to Build a Better Community Together"

Fred Malpass received a check for $160.51 for the East Jordan Rotary.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it too.

Glen's wants everyone in East Jordan to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the store manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

Businesses weather the storm

After calling more than 40 businesses in Charlevoix County for last week's story on small businesses and how they are faring in our depressed economy, we were impressed.

The majority of the businessmen and women that we talked to were candid about their businesses in hard times. (This isn't easy when a reporter is asking questions which may not have rosy answers.) We were impressed with the knowledge proprietors had about their own particular businesses and how other business factors affected them.

We were also impressed with the compassion and loyalty they had for their employees. They truly want to keep the people working for them on the job.

We were most impressed with the spirit of the local business people. There is a spirit of competition, of wanting to do their best for the customer. There is creativity as each business owner tries a little harder to make the most of his resources for the customer's benefit.

We found a willingness to work long and hard to make businesses succeed—or at least survive. Through it all there is a generally optimistic feeling that summer will bring an improved business climate.

We were also impressed with most merchants' good business sense and responsiveness to the changing needs of customers. In hard times, most business people are trying harder to give the best possible service possible. They have to if they want to survive.

Yes, costs are going up. But many times we can save money if we need to. Gas stations offer self-serve pumps, grocery stores offer generic brands, and cars are getting smaller.

And despite the hard times, we still have more stores and services to choose from. Boyne City has new financial institutions, as well as new branches of the existing bank. Some stores have opened new markets for things as diverse as wood stoves and computers. Two bars have closed, but others have been rejuvenated with new owners, entertainers and even new menus.

East Jordan has suffered from a high unemployment rate, but a supermarket, bank, feed mill, restaurant and other businesses have expanded. A few more downtown storefronts are remodeled each year to a pleasant turn of the century look.

The biggest news for Charlevoix, of course, is the addition of a huge floating restaurant and nightclub that will soon be cruising around Lake Charlevoix.

All in all, we have to conclude that even though times are tough, small businesses in Charlevoix County are finding innovative ways to weather the storm.

The recession has caused us to lose a few businesses, and we will probably lose a few more before it's over. But the ones that survive will be those who have provided the best service and the most unique ways to keep their prices affordable.

They'll love my rotten hoax

I can't wait to tell my readers how I expect to make a million selling bottles of elm tree dry rot.

An elm tree in a glass. That's what I've got.

No other person in the United States has perfected the knack of bottling an old elm tree. The stuff is at least 100 years old and as scarce as a CETA job at city hall.

I've ground the dry rot into a fine flour-like powder that has a beautiful bright rust color. It is so light it would take a bushel to make a pound. It spoons and sprinkles just fine.

It's the cleanest rot I've ever seen. And I've seen one heck of a lot of rot in my life.

I was amazed to see how this magic lantern genie stuff rises mysteriously from the bottle when it's opened.

Once bottled and properly labeled, this soft, billowy genie substance will sell rapidly throughout the country.

That's because the American mind has been trained to buy anything that's scarce—and to buy it quickly before the other fellow beats him to it. We live in an age when no one wants to be beaten to it.

Another thing that will sell this beautiful old puffy dry rot is greed. Every last one of us think about getting something for nothing. So I've labeled the bottles: Shake thoroughly, rub bottle three times, open and make a wish the moment the magic rust colored potion rises gently into the air. Most people are so anxious to get what they want no one will stop to think that this whole thing is a dirty rotten hoax.

As I contemplate all the money I'm going to make on this, I'm reminded about something Henry Ford said in Detroit the other day. He said that the trouble with many Americans is that we are victims of our own success.

Gad, I wish I knew what he meant by that.

Something else to help fill out this column:

Waiting in line at the post office to buy some 18-cent stamps, which are no larger than the cheaper variety, I noticed a sign on the wall: "No loitering or soliciting in this building."

To loiter means to loaf around; and to solicit means to woo. So that sign certainly didn't apply to me. I've never loafed around in the post office trying to woo someone.

But apparently it was so flagrant in the past the sign was necessary. And I'm glad they've stopped it.

What woman wants to go into the post office and be wooed by a loafer?

Getting both sides of the story

The hardest thing to remember is that there is more than one side to a story. Especially when one of my children would come home with a complaint about a teacher.

I used to say, "You know we all have things to learn. Teacher, too. You go learn your school work and forget about the teacher."

But underneath I'd sympathize with my child. And on parent-teacher conference days I'd go in there a little suspiciously.

This didn't happen often. But when it did, I'd find another side to the story.

When the two sides were put together, things were worked out. I learned not to go in suspiciously. Teachers learned sometimes children don't understand. The children learned that teachers try and try again.

I recently asked teachers in one of the schools in the area what good it did for a parent to contact a teacher.

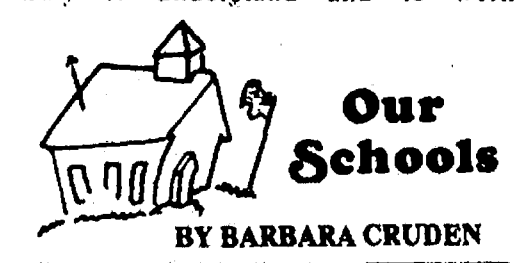

"A lot of good!" was the answer. One teacher added, "When a parent shows interest...the student feels good to know that his or her parent cares."

Another said, "Student behavior in the home may be quite different from behavior in the school," suggesting a number of things.

The consensus was that, especially when problems arise, it is a good idea to get together and work them out. But even without problems, it's beneficial all around when a parent asks what the goals of the course are, or what the family can do to help.

One guidance counselor gave these helpful pointers: "It depends on how they (the parents) contact them. If it is truly to understand and to work together to help a student, it can be a very effective thing...but if it is to 'chew out' the teacher, the student may feel he/she can get away with anything and Mom and Dad will take care of the teacher."

Our Schools

Another point was (and this applies to my being suspicious), "Don't view the school as an adversary, but as an ally in creating the best possible experience for the children."

Teachers said any time a parent has a concern, positive or negative, any time a parent wants to understand or be understood better, he or she should come in!

When? They said as soon as the question arises. Some teachers prefer to meet at school, some at home when they feel they have more time. So in any case, the thing to do is ask when, and make an appointment.

I never met a teacher who didn't care about reaching the students. But I have met plenty who have 175 students per day to teach! And some have another 175 on the next day! The goal is, of course, to bring that down so that a teacher has only 125 students per day. Only 125.

Picture yourself with 25 different children every hour for five hours! Grandmother will say, "Well, there were 45 students in a class when I was a girl."

True, but for one thing, behavior was quite different in those days. And learning expectations were different, too.

Regardless of the numbers, teachers do know their student, and what the student knows.

Students may not believe it, and also may not believe the teacher cares. And may not say anything about it to their parents.

So it's up to parents to start the ball rolling. Good idea, even when there appears to be no specific reason!

Today's wind bring a message

Today the wind's voice was strong in the woods. A little boy was picking trout lilies to give to his mother. And through the sky, kilddeer were flying with the wind, culling maybe a message about spring—or about their territorial claims, for many birds are as property conscious as we are.

Like us, each bird family stakes out enough land to provide food and security. A robin will fight off other robins all along a well-established (in his mind) boundary. Cardinals, thrashers, red-wing blackbirds—they all do it. A wren family won't allow a wren from another family on its property for a minute.

The tax on them is to be perpetually vigilant. On us, it seems to be to pay perpetual increases.

Not because the trees have developed new models. Dandelions haven't suddenly turned into "real" gold. The same stars still follow their ancient cycles. Grasshoppers, too.

The land is pretty much as it was, but people develop varying responses to it. Does all the earth, after all, have dominion over man?

People are drawn to the land in northern Michigan chiefly because it is beautiful.

Michigan herself may wonder why then do they erode the hills with land vehicles and cycles, and the crystal silence of the woods with the snarl of snowmobiles, put up street lights and farm yard lights so that the stars fade and northern lights cannot be seen.

She may wonder at the filling of swamps so that peepers no longer raise their wildly unique spring chorus, at the culling of forests so that only "valuable" trees remain, at the polluting of lakes, and at all our efficiencies—trees cut back from roadsides for the sake of snowplowing, trees cut from fence rows for the sake of field-plowing, and even a beautiful big maple downtown cut because the man said the leaves blew into his garage.

Well, we all cut down trees.

In a way, Michigan is our mutual property. But we each have our own view of what is meant when we say, "Let's keep Michigan beautiful."

Is it to keep a lawn green and groomed, or to have only a path through the un-groomed woods? Is it a well-designed condo on a lake shore? Is it a chalet or a brick bungalow? Is it acre lots in the townships? Or five acre lots? Or 160 acres?

So far there is just about room for everything and a space between where deer can run.

But the taxes grow. More people wanting the land, pushing its value up. So we look for a property tax cut, a bill that would be workable and fair.

For one thing it would help people to hang onto larger land parcels—prevent pieces being sold off to relieve a tax burden. It is the large, mostly wild areas that make Michigan beautiful.

That would be one good way to look at such a tax bill. One thing to look for in a tax shift...

Well...Speaking of looking, while we can still afford it, how about going to see if the bloodroot is in bloom in the woods?

County seat agitation continues in 1890

Charlevoix has some smart schemers, but 5 to 1 when the vote on submittal is called it will result: Boyne City 6 (probably 7); Charlevoix either 9 or 10. While it is reported that Hudson township has gone over to Charlevoix, one and probably two have come over to Boyne City. The people of eastern Charlevoix county are bound to keep the county seat just where it is, notwithstanding the reported lavish expenditure of money by Charlevoix, Boyne City people have not been napping. Next Wednesday we will get there with both feet and the boodlers will be completely routed.

The way it was

In honor of the 100th birthday of The Charlevoix County Press and the 125th anniversary of Boyne City, the following items are reprinted from past issues of ancestors of The Press.

8/7/86 - The county property will be removed to the Waldron House at Bay Springs only until the Boyne City village hall is completed, which will be in about five weeks. Then it will be removed to Boyne City.

9/3/86 - Earthquake - About 9 o'clock in the evening of August 30th, it was thought that a slight shock of an earthquake was discernible in Boyne City. The truth of the inference was made manifest by the news received the following morning. The shock had been widespread in the United States. South Carolina, so far as reports indicate, suffered most from it.

9/17/86 - In Clarion A.K. Smith has an extra amount of orders on hand and will soon run his bowl factory at its fullest capacity.

12/31/86 - A rather risky feat was accomplished by Mr. Phillips, of Advance last Saturday evening. With the ice on Pine Lake only about three inches thick, he crossed the lake with a horse and cutter. Well, the horse wasn't bigger'n a watch charm; but he's cute all the same.

Women Now

She saw the world...and came back

BY TRISH WRIGHT

"I think there are a lot of hurdles for women who are trying to secure jobs in this area. Jobs in Michigan are so scarce that men are usually the first to get them," says Lyssa Williams Truitt.

Sitting amidst tables with checkered tablecloths, wooden chairs and railroad memorabilia in her Depot restaurant, Truitt explains why a Boyne City girl would move away from her hometown to the less protected environment of Detroit or San Francisco.

"I always wanted to leave Boyne City and see the world, but I wasn't really prepared to land a job. However, I felt that if I wanted to be something more than a waitress or a clerk that I would have to leave here."

Truitt says that from her job experience she has found larger companies are being pressured to hire more women—and for key positions. But that is not the way it has always been. "On my first job in Detroit, I encountered sex discrimination. I was head of accounts receivable for a H.U.D. affiliate. A single man was hired to fill a vacancy in the department and it was my job to train him. I found out that he was making more money than me, so I quit."

Still in pursuit of a career, Truitt joined the management training program of Magic Pan restaurants, a subsidiary of Quaker Oats. "I had a lot of experience in the restaurant business," admits Truitt. "But even though I had cooked, tended bar and waitressed, it still took me twice as long to become a manager with my own restaurant than it did the men in the program."

"I got into a profession because I wasn't married and once I became a manager the business was my whole life. I worked six days a week for 10 to 12 hours a day. When I left the Magic Pan I was earning $20,000 a year plus bonuses."

"But the long hours and the possibility of being transferred to another restaurant were deciding factors for her eventual resignation. "After I was married my attitude toward the job changed. I had very little free time and the chances for advancement were slim."

"My husband, Glen, and I both wanted to get out of the city atmosphere and when the opportunity to buy The Depot presented itself, we decided to move back to Boyne and go into business for ourselves," says Truitt.

And although she admits that there is an adjustment to be made when moving from a metropolitan area to a small town, she believes that the right decision was made. "There's a lot to be done in this town and even though it can be difficult at times, we plan to stay and expand the restaurant."

Lyssa Williams Truitt seldom takes a coffee break even in her own restaurant, The Depot. And when she does she orders food... from a supplier.

A woman for all seasons

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Florida Bowman began her merchandising career 55 years ago when she sold penny candy and nickel thread for her father, general store owner Frank Kaden.

Born in 1914 during the First World War, Bowman can recount the more important times of her life by historical dates. "I graduated from high school in the year that the stock market crashed, graduated from the University of Michigan during the 1933 banking holiday, and married at the beginning of the second World War," Bowman said.

Bowman was the first woman to pilot an airplane in Boyne City. And although her flying club broke up before she earned her private pilot's license, she did stall, spin and put the two-seater "Aeronica" back on the ground.

She was also one of the first downhill skiers at Boyne Mountain. "I started skiing when the Mountain first opened. They didn't have snow packing machinery then so our ski classes would have to side-step up the hill to pack the snow."

In 1941 Florida and her husband Ira bought the Kaden's store and during their first week of ownership converted the old-fashioned grocery department into a supermarket. "We put in check-out lanes and in '47 expanded the ready-to-wear side of the store," Bowman explained. "We added national clothing brands like Pendleton, Jantzen and Arrow, included shoes in the inventory and eventually got out of the grocery business."

"You can't have a divided authority," Bowman said, "so until my husband died, the buying and managerial duties were left to him." But in 1960 Bowman picked up the Levi's line that was to become the mainstay of the clothing store that still bears the Kaden name.

"I sold the store on Sept. 11, 1972—that was just six months short of it being in the family for 70 years." But instead of retiring, Bowman set up shop one block away from her previous establishment and opened a gift store in June of 1973.

The antique coffee grinder, scales and clock that decorate The Coffee Mill were once put to work in Frank Kaden's grocery store. There is even a decorous, male mannequin who stands in the corner modeling a black suit from a bygone era.

In addition to having been a ready-to-wear buyer, antique collector, and one of the most venerable businesswoman in the community, Bowman could have been a teacher. "I had a teaching certificate for science and math and always intended to go back to school for a master's degree in astronomy."

Although she never did become a full-time teacher or delve further into the sciences, Bowman did serve on the school board in Boyne City for 10 years. It was during this time that the new high school was built.

This Boyne City resident, who has been a wife, mother and member of the workforce for over half a century, adds: "I don't feel that I have ever been discriminated against because I'm a woman in business. But then I've never pulled any feminine wiles either."

Florida Bowman began a retailing career by selling penny candy in her father's store over 50 years ago. She now owns and operates The Coffee Mill gift shop.

Two career marriage works

BY TRISH WRIGHT

She is a blend of the old and new; a woman who has been brought up on the traditional values of home and motherhood and is now confronted with modern ideas about the limitlessness of her life choices.

According to Nicki Atwood, senior counselor at the University of Michigan Counseling Services, this superwoman seems quite extraordinary as she manages the multiple roles of wife, mother, career woman, homemaker, daughter and friend.

"For most women the egalitarian two-career marriage is more and ideal than a reality... Finding a compatible, supportive partner to share responsibilities is difficult," concludes Atwood.

However, the two-career marriage of Dr. Richard Mansfield and Linda Mansfield will soon become a reality and according to Linda Mansfield, today's sacrifices will be well spent on tomorrow's career.

"After we were married I worked in Rich's office and that satisfied my need for being with people. But I noticed that there was a need for someone to help solve emotional problems as well as physical problems."

Linda Mansfield

In the fall of 1979 Mrs. Mansfield enrolled in Central Michigan University's counseling program. "I'm home from Thursday to Sunday, but spend the rest of the week on campus. I think that my husband and son now realize what it takes, to run this house and they have had more time to spend together," says Mansfield.

"You can't be truly oriented toward helping people and at the same time feel guilty about the time you must give up to become an effective counselor."

Mansfield will graduate this July with a Bachelor's degree but it may take another five years before she earns a Doctorate in Psychology.

"My goal is to be able to hang a shingle for family counseling in the Boyne area. The town is growing and there is a need for a community counseling center here."

Betty Kelts - Betty's Restaurant, Boyne Falls "I like being in this business because I love to be with people and make a good time out of my work."

Martha Williams - The Wood Shop, Boyne City "I'm designing wooden signs, graphics, carvings and sculptures. It's a very creative job and something that I've always wanted to do. I had an art background but now I'm learning drafting. It's a unique business in this area."

Resource Center is first aid for all kinds of women

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Experience is a good teacher, but she sends in terrific bills—Minna Antrim, quoted in the January Women's Resource Center newsletter.

Serving Charlevoix County and four other neighboring counties, the Women's Resource Center, a private, non-profit organization in Petoskey, has been a place of problem-solving for six years now, either at no cost or for low, low rates.

The first two years were informal beginnings. The groups of about 20 met, talked, and gave volunteer aid to women with questions or problems on personal development.

In 1977, volunteers still providing much of the go-power, the center obtained grant money from different government sources, and hired Nancy Stewart of Conway as director. The center has also depended on fund-raising and donations.

For the last 2 1/2 years, Jan Mancinelli of Charlevoix has been director of the center.

Mancinelli has been a Detroit school teacher, Charlevoix County Co-ordinator of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, and a social service worker in Antrim County.

She might well be called a woman's professional woman, because of the center's classes and referrals that help women get started in the job market.

Women at work has become a matter of survival, Mancinelli said, in both one- and two-parent households.

At the same time, the important role of homemaker is also serviced by classes in such things as child care, parenting, and consumer skills.

For women in between, the Displaced Homemaker's Program is being developed.

Not all classes meet in Petoskey, the newsletter said. Right now some are in Indian River, Harbor Springs, Wolverine, Vanderbilt, and Central Lake. A branch center is now located in Gaylord.

The center itself, Mancinelli said, is not affiliated with any other organization, although it provides referrals, and has its office located in North Central Michigan College.

People frequently assume anything focussed on women's needs is going to be radical, extreme, and socially destructive.

A look at center newsletters reveals the opposite. The center is not out to convert but to offer help. Thus, a common sense approach prevails. For example, the announcement of the weekly Thursday group, "Stress and Coping with Alcoholism."

The center has also established a "safe home" for spouse-abused women—and their children. Ongoing cases number 190, and that's all the room there is.

Cases resolved run to nearly one-half that number.

Because of cuts in state aid, however, two of Michigan's 21 spouse abuse shelters have had to close. Yet, Mancinelli said, "the trend in family violence has increased with the increase of economic stress."

At Petoskey's safe home, five CETA workers have been removed from their jobs by CETA cuts. The total center staff is down to a non-CETA 14.

Mancinelli commented, "I think the women's movement is going to be set back by the present administration."

A call to 347-0067 will still get results, however, whether to subscribe to the newsletter or to ask for help.

The address is: Women's Resource Center, Room 52, Administration Building, NCMC.

Fern Morris - City Clerk and Treasurer, East Jordan "I have a unique position. I believe that my job is very important and even though I am single, I feel like everyone in the community is my family."

Maggie Bates—The Whistle Stop, Boyne Falls "In our business we have the day to day satisfaction of creating to give others pleasure. The chance to mold a business into something that is you, is exciting."

Working women get helpful hints

Today's woman can cradle a baby in one arm and tuck a briefcase under the other. She tries to be a gourmet cook, a fastidious housekeeper and exercise to maintain attractiveness.

But superwoman could use a little help now and then. There are currently two books and a newsletter targeted at the working woman who is delicately balancing a family and a career.

As more and more women enter the work force, the demands on their time by family, job responsibilities and community involvement leave them with less and less time for meal preparation.

A new book, "Recipes For Working Women," presents recipes that will help women cope with limited kitchen time. All of the recipes have been selected for time-saving, no-nonsense cooking and compiled for women by a working woman.

Joan Keane has gathered over 135 recipes from her personal files that include practically everything from appetizers and snacks to entrees. "These recipes will give any woman, who has had a hectic day, the well-deserved breather she has earned," says Keane.

"Recipes For Working Women" may be ordered by sending a check or money order for $4.75 to J & J Publications, Box 1424, Traverse City, MI 49684.

A general resource book for anyone interested in the role of women in the U.S. economy is being offered for sale by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. "Perspectives on Working Women: A Databook," is priced at $4.50 and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

The databook points out that two of every three women, 25 to 54 years old, are in today's work force. Women make up 43 percent of today's work force, compared to 32 percent 25 years ago. The book contains information on women's marital and family status, school enrollments, education, earnings and income.

Now available from Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service offices is a newsletter for working moms and their families. "Employed Mothers... Families And Change" is a newsletter series aimed at supporting the working woman and her family and how to deal with the changes that occur when a mother joins the working force.

Although the series began in March, the newsletter is still available by sending $1 to "Employed Mothers—Families and Change" Marlene Caszatt, Extension Home Economist, P.O. Box 427, Bellaire, MI 49615.

New shop is challenging

When Nancy Oakes of Boyne City opened her store, Ladies and Babies Awaiting in Petoskey, it wasn't because she was a bored housewife.

"I had worked with a lot of younger people, and I knew that there were very few places in this area where pregnant women could shop for maternity fashions. So I decided to open a store that sold maternity clothes as well as clothing for infants."

Prior to the Dec. 1, 1980 opening of Ladies and Babies Awaiting, Oakes worked as a certified activities director for Beverly Manor Convalescent Home. "Before I worked at Beverly Manor I was the director of the senior citizen center in Boyne City," Oakes said.

Prior to the Dec. 1, 1980 opening of Ladies and Babies Awaiting, Oakes worked as a certified activities director for Beverly Manor Convalescent Home. "Before I worked at Beverly Manor I was the director of the senior citizen center in Boyne City," Oakes said.

"I suppose it's because of the social work with which I've been involved that I enjoy working with customers at the store. It's been a very challenging and rewarding experience, but I do look forward to the time when I won't have to spend as much time in the shop."

Oakes has a 13 year old daughter at home and is the American mother of Liana Almeida, an exchange student from Salvador, Brazil. "Liana is the second exchange student who we have had live with us," Oakes said. "She is a senior in high school and will be with us through July."

Nancy Oakes, right, is the American mother this year to 17 year old Liana Almeida from Brazil. "It's not how much time you spend with your family that counts but what you do with that time."

In addition to being a wife, mother and career woman, Oakes is the president of the Boyne City Child Study Club, and she will be president of the Order of The Eastern Star beginning next month.

"My family is very understanding and supportive of what I am doing," Oakes added. "They have to be or I wouldn't be able to do it. I believe that what you do with the hours you spend with your family is far more important than how many hours you spend with them."

Old-time radio returns...to Gaylord

BY KATHY JOHNSON

If you remember when Ma Perkins, Our Gal Sunday, and Lord and Lady Trent ruled radio, and...

If you remember when Sinatra (senior) was a 97-pound weakling and Elvis was King, and...

If you remember when teenage girls wore bobby sox, full skirts, and "craved" guys who drove '54 Chevys, then you just may be a Ray Durkee regular.

What's a Ray Durkee, you ask? Ray Durkee is the star of the popular radio show, "Sunday at the Memories," which is heard in our area on WWRM, FM-106.7. This radio show plays host to the memories of those who grew up to the music of the '30s, '40s, and the '50s.

For nearly five years Durkee, who comes from Aberdeen, South Dakota, has been entertaining nostalgic listeners across the country in some 40 states on 100 different stations.

Each Sunday, from 9 a.m. until noon, Durkee spins his own brand of oldies which include not only the music from 1935 to 1965, but also vignettes from the great radio days of Ma Perkins, Lux Radio Theatre, and Richard Diamond.

Also included is the news of the day—good news and bad. War is declared and we get six gold medals at the Olympics.

Each Sunday the theme is a little different. One week you may be listening to all the top 10 records that started with the letter "S". Or you may be hearing novelty songs of the 1950s.

If you are not already part of the Durkee cult, then you may want to give a listen this Sunday, when Ray Durkee will be broadcasting live from the WWRM studios in Gaylord. The show starts at 9 a.m.

Then again, if you just can't wait to sample that nostalgic feeling as the old sounds play back, then you may want to take a trip to Gaylord this Friday night to see Ray Durkee. Durkee has two scheduled appearances at the Chalet Inn Restaurant, one on Friday night and another on Saturday.

Durkee is so popular that the Saturday show was sold out almost as soon as it was announced. The Friday show, as of this writing, still has a few tickets available.

So give the Chalet a call and I'll meet you there at 9 p.m. Friday.

Early golfers miss those crowds

When spring weather comes, local golfers get the urge to take that putter out of the closet and practice a few strokes.

But now you don't have to use that office or livingroom carpet for a putting green. Take advantage of the area golf courses which are now open.

Right now the courses are less crowded than during the summer. Golfers will be able to get starting times at their convenience.

Ye Nyne Olde Holles even offers special spring rates through April 30. Springbrook Hills course offers $10 off on season memberships bought before May 1.

Here is a list of area courses golfers may want to try.

In Charlevoix County, Ye Nyne Olde Holles, Springbrook Hills, Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course and Boyne Mountain are now open. (Boyne Mountain is only open weekends until May 1.)

Ye Nyne Olde Holles, located on Ferry Road overlooking Lake Charlevoix, is a nine-hole, 2970-yard course.

Men's par is 35 and women's par is 37. It is currently open from dawn to dusk for open golf. Lessons are available, as well as a complete pro shop, and sandwich bar. Spring rates through April 30 are $3.50 for nine holes and $6 for 18 holes. Summer rates, which take effect May 1, will be $5 for nine holes and $8 for 18 holes. For further information call 582-7609.

Springbrook Hills is open from 8 a.m. until dusk beginning May 1. (Golfers wishing to golf before May 1 should call 535-2413 for starting times.) ## Sports Briefs

Trackmen working

BOYNE CITY - "We are working hard for a good season," says Rambler boys' track coach Bob McCullough. "We have to make up for the loss of last year's undefeated relay team."

Coach McCullough feels, "We're short on sprinters and in other events. To win the meets we will have to rely on our strength in certain events rather than overall."

In a scrimmage against Harbor Springs last Thursday, Pruetz, Cyr, Stackus, and Bragenzer did very well in the hurdles. The three relay also did well, and Bragenzer jumped 19' 7" in the broad jump.

"I'm encouraged by the work the team has put into practices and we are looking forward to having a good season," coach McCullough said.

Tennis team rallies

BOYNE CITY - The tennis team got a good start on the season by winning their first match against Harbor Springs last Tuesday. Martin Neumann started out against Linda Topolsky and was defeated 6-2, 6-1. Harbor's Mark Larson defeated Chris Kuhn 6-1, 6-2; and Mitch Kruzel lost to Matt Menzi 6-2, 7-5.

Boyne then started coming back with Todd Newville defeating Bob Menzi 6-2, 5-5, 6-2. All of Boyne's doubles teams won with Mike Toffolo and Kerry Kruzel winning 6-1, 6-4; Dave Mittig and Corey Fish winning 6-0, 6-4; Todd Rickard and Brian Vroman won their match 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

Boyne's 4-3 win set them in the mood for a great season. Coach Fred Rice said, "The team played well considering the weather, and they keep improving every time they play."

New girls' coach

BOYNE CITY - "It's a new experience," says girls' track coach Steph Moody. "I've never coached track before and it's a lot of work. We are low on team members and I hope we can pick up some soon or else it could be a difficult year."

The team has seniors Becky Aimesbury, Cindi Scott and Tammy Thayer; junior Judy Upton; sophomores Terri Heiermann and Cheryl Baumann; and freshmen Angie Murray, Marsha Neumann, Cathy Judkins, Chiara Leist and Tracy Pruetz.

"I expect a strong showing from Becky this year. Terri has also been placing well in the hurdles and she should be doing good this year also," said coach Moody.

About the scrimmage against Harbor Springs last Thursday, coach Moody said, "We did rather well considering our low numbers. We worked pretty hard and tried to make it pay off and most of it did."
