History buff honored

The regular monthly meeting of the Boyne City Historical Society included a surprise for middle school history teacher Bob Morgridge, who has written and will soon publish a history book of Boyne City was honored by the society for his research and efforts in documenting local history. The historical society will assist in selling the book during the city's 125th anniversary from July 5-11. Before he was awarded a plaque from the historical society, Morgridge made a presentation of his own—on behalf of his seventh grade classes. For the third year in a row, the classes donated a large mounted picture from the city's past. This year's picture is of a parade, and it was taken above the corner of Lake and Water Streets. The parade photo is now displayed in the public library. (Photo by Trish Wright)

Castle Farms, Marion Twp. head for another showdown?

BY TRISH WRIGHT

CHARLEVOIX - The matter of concerts at Castle Farms could be headed for another courtroom showdown.

Despite the fact that the Marion Township Board has made a number of new requirements which concert promoters must fulfill before holding a concert, advertising and ticket sales have already begun for the season's first concert on May 23.

According to Supervisor Mike Bonar the township board may seek an injunction for the first concert since Castle Farms owner Art Reibel has not complied with sheriff George Lasater's recommendations and has not implemented security measures requested by the township.

"We don't expect him to fence in the parking area before the first concert, but before a permit is granted, Reibel would have to agree to the conditions the board has proposed," said Bonar.

The township has attempted to stop Reibel from holding concerts without a permit in the past, but the court has refused to grant such an injunction.

In a letter to the Marion Township Board and Art Reibel, Lasater listed 11 recommendations that should be met before the annual permit was granted.

"He has indicated in writing that he would meet some of them. But I'm not completely satisfied," said Lasater.

On Lasater's list were the suggestions that the parking area be fenced, the number of concert attendants be limited to 7,000 and the outlawing of alcoholic beverages on the concert grounds.

Approval from the District Health Department concerning the removal of solid and liquid waste at Castle Farms also remains to be granted.

"We owe it to the people who are concerned about this problem to enforce our ordinance," said Bonar. "We will decide on a course of action at the May 11 township meeting."

Art Reibel declined to comment but said that he has retained legal counsel.

More senior citizens ...but funds dwindle

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

The well-known challenge "if they can get funding" has become familiar to Boyne City senior citizens as they begin to focus on the dream of their own senior center.

When the City Hall moved to new quarters on Lake Street, one of the rooms was turned over to senior citizens, but the number of participating seniors has grown. They now use the city auditorium in the same building.

Boyne City senior director Phyllis Tison said Tuesday she served 69 midday meals (10 were take-outs for shut-ins.) The center serves at noon every Tuesday through Friday for 60 cents a meal. The rest of the $1.50 cost is subsidized.

All these meals are catered from the East Jordan center and brought over to Boyne City.

So with the increased activity, the Boyne City group, with its advisory board of three, has been looking for a location for a Boyne City-Boyne Falls center.

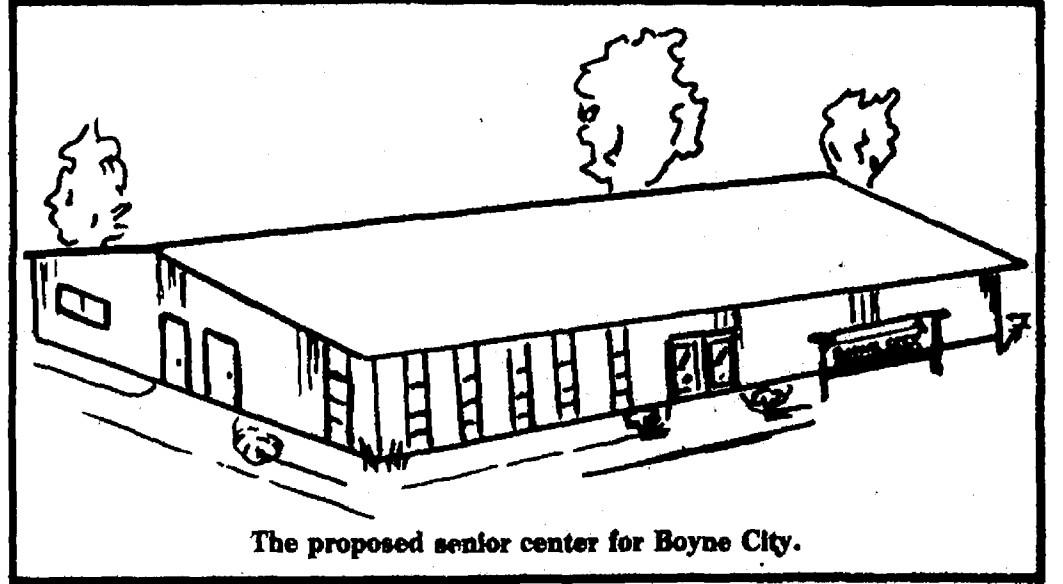

In Harbor Springs the solution, which was written up in several national magazines and newspapers, was to make use of spare space in the high school. Not only did the seniors enter the premises, but they began enrolling in classes, some contributing expertise in the teaching process, as well.

Bob Doan, director of Harbor Springs Community Schools and Ed Schnell, retired businessman, both active in the project, believe the set-up is ideal for bridging the generations gap.

Tison said she liked that idea, but when the city offered them the 1 1/4 acres north of city hall as a building site, they decided to begin collecting money to build a center there.

Tison explained that by law they had to have a barrier-free building. Remodeling in buildings they had looked at would have been too expensive.

Litzenburger Place, the local senior apartment building, is getting a new wing through a Housing and Urban Development grant, but their lounge won't be big enough and space limitations wouldn't allow for a kitchen with all the strict equipment requirements that the state Area Agency on Aging imposes.

The proposed senior center for Boyne City.

So, the seniors have a plan for a building to go on the city-owned site on the lakefront. They say it will hold some lakefront for future generations as well.

The 50 x 125 ft. building would hold, besides the kitchen facilities, a crafts room, a crafts sales room, a cards room (to shut off the smokers!) dining room/auditorium, and office. Equipped and all for $150,000. Some hope of a museum is also held out.

They plan to share it with the community for low fees. Lakeside Players, for example, could put on performances there, they say.

Tison's count of Senior Identification cards issued was close to 700. Of these, 350 have come to the center in April alone.

With this much evidence of support, the idea of their own center has been heating up since early in the winter, and about $3,000 has been collected for the building drive.

However, one of the questions that crops up before the city commission is who will maintain it.

Charlevoix County senior director Dorothy Pelton estimated a cost of $1,500 a month to take care of a center. Tison said the city might help on maintenance.

Right now Tison works part-time, paid through a small grant from the Area Agency on Aging, Traverse City office.

Her help is mainly volunteer. Some of the seniors volunteer along with others. Some help comes through Charlevoix County Social Services. They send people over to work out some of the money they are granted.

East Jordan has a senior center downtown with the Civic Center its immediate neighbor. It is actually the Charlevoix County Senior Center, located in East Jordan, and it, too, is a busy spot.

Besides midday meals served Monday through Friday, including meals sent Tuesday through Friday to Boyne City, the center, like those in Boyne City and Charlevoix, sponsors programs required by the Agency on Aging.

Once a month a blood pressure checkup is offered in Boyne City and Charlevoix with volunteering nurses taking turns providing the service. In East Jordan, Bernie Hammond does it. Similarly nail-cutting assistance is provided.

Homestead exemption taxes are figured.

If the bus service doesn't fit in, transportation is offered for a trip to the family, the doctor, and so on.

A person over 60 can have a simple physical check-up.

Some who still manage to take care of their homes should be "called" on, especially shut-ins. So Telephone Lifeline makes sure they are all right.

Pelton said they are looking for more folks to help make these calls.

She had three CETA workers. The emphasis is "had." But still one full-time worker from WIN program comes. Two women work three hours a day, two for 20 hours a week, and there is one fulltime cook, Phyllis Legato, who turns out about 400 meals a week besides all the nutritious food sent to Boyne City.

A busy schedule of speakers, crafts, trips, parties, and more attract senior citizens to these centers.

Louise Pop, who started directing the program in Charlevoix in 1977, is, like Tison, a part-time person—except what she adds on her own.

All three, Pop, Tison, and Pelton brim over with interest in what they are doing.

Pop learned her skills through Senior Employment—an agency for people over 55, similar in other respects to CETA. She still works as a book-keeper there for some of her other part-time, along with other volunteer work.

Charlevoix seniors—about 60 in summertime—borrow the high school cafeteria for their meals, Tuesday through Thursday, and stay on to play cards, do handicrafts, have auction sales, music, and so on. They use the school the year around.

The new senior citizens' housing going up in Charlevoix with 61 apartments will have a lounge, but like the Litzenburger complex, will not have room for the meals kitchen.

Ed Gregory, who will be the executive director of the new housing, said use of the lounge by non-resident seniors would be up to the residents. Matters of insurance and such might also have to go before HUD which is funding the $2,369,000 construction.

This public scope of attention of senior citizens, of course, doesn't cover the whole spectrum of life for the elder members of the county community. But beyond health concerns, it is important also for recreation and social contact.

How it will continue to be funded is beginning to be a consideration.

Many service agencies in government and out will be hunting sources. "Title 20" is one place they may go. And that, according to the directors, means cutting smaller pieces from the pie.

Busy season for Lions

BOYNE CITY - Spring is always the busiest time of year for the Boyne Valley Lions.

This weekend's mushroom festival, which the Lions co-sponsor with the Chamber of Commerce, is probably the biggest activity, but it's just one of many.

Last month, the local Lions hosted a bowling tournament for more than 20 teams from around Northern Michigan, sponsored their annual Easter Egg Hunt and participated in White Cane Week.

Later this month the Lions will be conducting a broom sale and they will be running their concession trailer at school picnics and on the Fourth of July.

Most of the money the Lions raise is currently going to help the city pay for a new $6,000 to $8,000 building now under construction at Rotary Park. The building will provide equipment storage, concession stand, rest rooms and a scorer's booth.

In a sense, the building will be a memorial to Everett Hadix, says Lion President Roy Brunel. "Everett and I dreamed up the idea for a little storage building," Brunel said, "but he died before we could get started."

Hunting season

They're off! The gun sounds and mushroom hunters from a previous year's National Mushroom Hunting Championship head for the woods. They'll be doing it again this weekend in Boyne City. Turn to the Fun Guide section, pages 5-8, for stories, and more pictures. Bargain hunters will even find "good picks" as Boyne area merchants are welcoming the mushroomers with special offers.

Math bowl contestants head for Alba

Now that basketball season has waned, math season is upon us. On April 11, we had the Region II Mathematics Competition. The state level finals of that will be Saturday, May 16.

Our Schools
BY BARBARA CRUDEN

And this week—Thursday, May 7—is the annual Math Bowl for grades seven and eight from ten northern Michigan school districts.

Going to Alba from Boyne Falls will be six students from each of the two levels. Three of each team of six will be pooling talents on each of the 25 problems. Team membership will change to make use of any special talent, just as it does in team athletics. The problems will have time limits and that's close, because all 25 must fit into the two hours allotted Thursday afternoon.

Of course, seventh and eighth grade levels will have different problems.

Guy Dame's Boyne Falls students had not completed the eliminations at press time, but Jane Brown, East Jordan math teacher, said the following will be going from their middle school: Ted Jeffery, Steve Gee, Jeff Gee, Max Gibbard, Joe Kornowski, and Dan Bennett from seventh grade.

From eighth: Rick Warden, Sheila Michaels, Mindy Zoulek, Gary Coolman, Jim Byard, and Tina Sulak.

Spelling champs

The top speller in each grade competed in the grand finals of the Boyne City Middle School spelling bee last week, and eighth grader Mike Carson, at left, was the winner. Next to him is Brian Bennett, the seventh grade champ, who finished second, and Mike Harmeling, the sixth grade winner, who took third in the overall spelling bee. Mike correctly spelled "vitamin," after Brian missed it, and he won the bee by also spelling "vitamin."

Interlochen students bringing comedy to EJ

EAST JORDAN - The fun and warmth of Neil Simon's comedy writing will come to East Jordan on Thursday, May 14, when theater students from the Interlochen Arts Academy present the play "The Good Doctor," at the Civic Center at 8 p.m.

There is no admission charge for this presentation, a part of the Interlochen Show on the Road program, which is supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

"The Good Doctor" is a series of stories and anecdotes of Anton Chekhov as retold and rewritten by Neil Simon. The audience will be entertained with sketches entitled The Sneeze, Too Late for Happiness, The Seduction, and many more.

The cast is comprised of seven theater arts majors from the Academy and the show is directed by Mel Mrochinski. Mrochinski has taught drama for seven years at the Interlochen Arts Academy. A former professional actor, he is Director of Apprentices, Cherry County Playhouse and Instructor of Acting at Northwestern Michigan College, both in Traverse City.

HOW TO HELP THE WIDOWS?

Widows, widowers and divorced people hate to be grouped or "lumped" together at social events. All too often, a hostess will invite a newly widowed person and then bring in three or four more widows to "keep her company."

This is just what they don't want! Widows find themselves considered a "separate clan" and they feel isolated in spite of themselves. Most widows and widowers struggle to get back in the mainstream and they want to enjoy the company of married couples and of other single persons not necessarily in their same widowed situation.

As a host or hostess, you should try to find social activities which are not always couple-oriented. Try to arrange group action and group socializing. Widows (and widowers) become all too self-conscious and afraid of being "fifth wheels". It becomes easy for them to retreat into shells of loneliness. The time to prevent this is in the early stage of widowhood.

GLEN'S SAVE-SHARE

Save-Share

Cindy Fay, Dawn Bergmann and Brian Howard received checks in the amounts of $116.02 and $167.48 for the East Jordan 6th grade.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it too.

Glen's wants everyone in East Jordan to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the store manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

Update

Hospital week

CHARLEVOIX - A presentation on hypertension for the public, an all-week blood pressure clinic, seminar for high school students on health field careers are part of Charlevoix Area Hospital's National Hospital Week Celebrations, May 10-16.

The theme for the week is "Looking Well into the Future."

Dr. Bruce Lindsay of East Jordan will conduct a question and answer session on the problem of hypertension—high blood pressure—starting at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 14.

Blood pressure clinics will also be conducted during National Hospital Week, next Monday through Friday, from 1 to 6 p.m., at the hospital's emergency room.

All afternoon Tuesday, May 12, area high school juniors and seniors who have indicated an interest in health care careers and issues, will participate in a seminar with hospital staff members.

Eagles Hall

BOYNE CITY - Designers of the new Eagles' Hall, now under construction on Lake Street in downtown Boyne City, have made some concessions to those who criticized plans for the building last fall.

A brick planter, three or four feet high, will encircle the building. Tall plantings in the planter will mute the building's metal siding and add a little more landscaping to downtown.

City and Chamber of Commerce officials last fall had urged the Eagles to build a structure more compatible with Boyne's downtown restoration movement.

Getting morals?

BOYNE CITY - We're not quite sure if it's an honest mistake or a tongue-in-cheek joke, but it seems to happen almost every year.

This year, it's the Sears store window that has that easy-to-make spelling error on its mushroom window painting. "Get your morals in Boyne Country," the sign says—although obviously it's supposed to say "morels."

Marshall Sayles even felt compelled to point out the difference in his column (which had a "moral" to it) last week.

Joke or no joke, it's nice that Chuck Britton's high school art students take the time to do the "Welcome mushroomers" window paintings every year.

Preparing mushrooms and pasties

Mushroom lovers from all over Michigan and surrounding states will be in Boyne City for the National Mushroom Festival this weekend, so it is time to be prepared to spend some time in the woods and fields.

What would be better than to have a nice warm pasty in your jacket pocket? If you keep going, who knows, you might run into a whole new patch of those delicious morels. Rosalind McClanaghan of The Charlevoix County Press gave me this recipe for pasties.

She is one of those outstanding cooks who cooks without a recipe but she has put this together for us. The pasty can be dated at least as early as the 14th century in medieval England.

The Cornishmen, a group of men from Cornwall, were brought to the Upper Peninsula to be captains and workers in the copper mines. Known as the Cousin Jacks, they played an important part in the development of the mineral regions. They also brought with them the pasty. They wrapped them in a napkin and wore them inside their shirts until lunch time in the mines. This is the way Rosalind makes them.

PASTIES

Grate 6 cups of raw potatoes into water and rinse several times; this removes

Cooking Yesterday & Today

with Bea Smith

the starch so the potatoes stay white. 2 cups raw rutabaga, grated. 2 medium onions grated. She grates the onion in her blender but hand grates the potatoes and rutabagas.

2 pounds of good lean ground beef. 2 tablespoons Lowry's seasoned salt.

Squeeze all the water out of the potatoes and combine all the above ingredients into a large bowl.

CRUST

4 cups flour. 1 teaspoon salt. 1 1/2 cups vegetable shortening. Enough ice water to hold the dough together.

Cut the shortening into the flour, salt and mix very well, but the less you handle the dough after you add the water the better. She lifts the dough out gently and forms balls about the size of baseballs and rolls them out on a generously floured board to about 12 inches.

You can use your own judgment as to the amount of the meat and vegetable mixture you put on each pasty. Rosalind uses more for her husband's lunch box than for lunches for her children. She folds the dough over, seals the edges, cuts the extra dough off the ends and bakes the pasties at 350 degrees for at least one hour to 1 1/4 hours.

Make these ahead and freeze them. Then when you want them, heat in a hot oven, wrap in foil and then in newspapers. They will keep warm a long time. She uses the regular oven to reheat them as the microwave leaves them a little soggy.

MUSHROOMS

Now how to prepare those wonderful mushrooms? Here is a quote from an old cookbook:

"The peasants of a great portion of Europe eat mushrooms raw with salt and dry bread, and wholesome and good they are. The true flavor of mushrooms, nevertheless, is greatly heightened by cooking; and cook them how you may—a broil, a stew, or a fry with the simple addition of butter, salt and pepper, and they are excellent. There is one rule that should always be observed in however mode they are cooked, and that is that they should be served up quickly and hot."

I am not an expert on mushroom cooking so I became an inquiring reporter and asked a number of people how they do it. They all agreed with the old cookbook—they all soak them in salt water first.

Erma Mills dips them in flour and fries them in butter. Mary Topolinski who usually finds lots of them just fries them in butter after soaking them in salt water and draining them in the refrigerator.

Anne Jenkins fries the large ones in butter and stews the small ones for scrambled eggs and other recipes. In a heavy-bottomed pan she cooks them over very low heat and lets them stew in their own juice until tender, seasons them with butter, salt and pepper, then pours beaten eggs over them for scrambled eggs.

My daughter always breads her morels usually with the packaged fish breading because her family likes the mushrooms a little crisp.

So good luck with your hunting and no matter how many you find or how you cook them, they are delicious.

We would be interested in more mushroom recipes—especially how they can be preserved and dried. Send them to The Press, P.O. Box A, 106 S. Lake, Boyne City.

Making life fun

Late April and early May are an "in-between" time for those of us who live in Northern Michigan. Ski season is over, but it's still too cold and wet to swim or sail.

So it's always welcome to have some real live, indoor entertainment at this time of year. And this year is even better than past years.

First comes the ambitious musical, staged by the Boyne City High School Drama Department, usually around the last weekend of April. In the nine years that Bob and Jackie Wollenberg have been directing the shows, this has become a true "event"—well-known throughout the area and eagerly anticipated by all. After each year's performance, one can only wonder "What will they do next?"

Next on the annual agenda is the Bush League Show and Quartet Contest sponsored by the local chapter of barbershop singers. This, too, is a real happening, made all the more amazing by the unlikely attraction of barbershop singing in the 1980's. It is certainly no dying art in this area, as a Sweet Adeline women-singers' chapter has sprung up in East Jordan during the past couple of years.

This spring's entertainment line-up has been made even more satisfying than most with the addition of two live theater presentations.

The first is the musical "Oliver," which starts May 7 at the beautiful new Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. This center in itself will be a great boost for live theatre in Northern Michigan, not to mention other artists. Theatre groups have sprung up regularly in the past, but the problem of where to practice and give performances was always a large obstacle. Oliver will be continuing with a number of showings over the next 10 days or so, and now is as good a time as any to start supporting local theatre.

High schoolers Marty Moody and Lauri Redmer in a scene from Boyne City's "Hello Dolly."

Next Thursday, May 14, East Jordan residents (and any others who choose to attend) will be in for a treat when theater students from Interlochen Arts Academy will be performing "The Good Doctor," a Neil Simon comedy, at 8 p.m. in the East Jordan Civic Center. Thanks to a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, there is no admission charge for this presentation. Local arrangements have been made by city recreation director Patricia Berlo, who has also been active in making the new civic center a fun and accessible place for everything from square dances to photography exhibits, roller skating and boxing.

All in all, we're lucky to have such an abundance of live theater and entertainment in our area. It makes life a lot more fun, and it's certainly a welcome alternative to television.

Letters to the editor

EJ sports become a labor of love

Editor,
The Athletic Boosters have kept sports alive in East Jordan. This was not an easy task. We believe in the program and support the millage.

Help keep the program going for the younger "Red Devils" coming up. A special thanks to:

-The teams, for a thrilling season, well worth the price of the admission.

-Buck Cihak and the officers of the Boosters, who organized the program and kept it from ending.

-The Athletic Boosters for the donation of money and hours and hours of time.

-The East Jordan School Board, who believed we could do it.

-Coaches and cheerleading advisors, who cared more about the kids than their own personal gain.

-Volunteer coaches, a real labor of love, and who pay expenses out of their own pockets.

-But especially to Frank Holes, who believes in young people.

Strong support in a unique community

Editor,
The Boyne City High School Drama Department would like to thank all of the business people of our city. "Hello Dolly" couldn't have appeared without your support.

Many times it's the small things that help the most. For example, we'll send a student downtown to pick up a small part for the set and the store manager will give it to us, telling us not to worry about paying.

We take a suit to be cleaned and it comes back "no charge—compliments of a drama friend." We received a bill for many items we purchased from a local hardware and it says, "Take 10 percent off for a job well done."

Many store owners are not contacted for an ad in our program. We get calls from these people telling us we'd better not miss them next year. They want to help. Our 20 page program is completely funded by our business community—many schools never receive half as much backing. Our local paper gave the drama program three pages of pictures and articles, developed our program's pictures for us in exchange for an ad in our program!

This list could go on and on—many, many people care for our school programs in this community. Our show was a group effort of the students, business community, school staff, and parents. It is a very unique situation—a unique community. We'd just like to say "Thank you."

Students write for national letter week

Editor's note: Last week was National Letter Writing Week, and students across the country were encouraged by the U.S. Postal Service to write letters to the editor as an educational exercise. Here are three that were submitted to us from Boyne City Middle School.

Editor,
I would like to talk about the space shuttle.

I think it is great that we can go into space and re-use the craft that went up. It has only been since 1903 that we had the Wright brothers fly the first plane that was only 40 feet, four inches.

If we were to go into space many times we could build things impossible on earth. We could have space cities.

They had to wait to take off, after the computer broke, but once they got up they came down to a perfect landing that couldn't have been better.

I think it is great that we can go from small gas engines to a big Saturn V engine with thousands of pounds of thrust.

The training took years and years to get right. Crippen and Young must have had a tough time at different times. They had a big job in the flight.

I think it is great.

Editor,
My name is Mark Carson and I'm writing about your newspaper. I especially like the way you write up the sports section with all the pictures, and I read your paper regularly.

I like the honor roll in your newspaper because it tells all the people that get A's, and I was on it three times.

I like your hot lunch menu in the paper too because I know if I should take lunch or not.

The scoreboard in the sports section is very good. I like to look at it.

I like the articles by Marshall Sayles because he is funny.

I like to read the writing under the pictures about new stores opening like the picture of the A&W in your paper.

The front cover of your paper is very interesting and I read it sometimes.

Editor,
This town needs something exciting for the kids to do all summer long. Since the hottest thing that's "in" seems to be roller skating. How about putting in a roller rink?

It would probably turn out great. It would at least give the kids in Boyne City something to look forward to.

It seems to be great fun in Gaylord, Walloon, and Petoskey, let's make it great in Boyne City!

Take your 'pick' this weekend

Mushroom madness!
That's what Boyne City will celebrate this weekend. Officially it's called the National Mushroom Hunting Championships.

What a long name for a four-inch wrinkle.

Newspaper, magazine and television people have raised their eyebrows over the great mushroom frolic. They'll be on hand to report, resort and consort—on an expense account, yet.

Picking mushrooms and putting them into a grocery sack has been going on around here for the last 100 years. About a quarter century ago the city and its Chamber of Commerce stood in a circle and put their heads together. Why not organize the confusion and add a twist of whoopee?

I think they overdid it. For now when it's mushroom time in Boyne City, nothing else seems to make sense. It's fun and it's exciting—even though you may have to lie about the number you found last year.

Ah yes, pickers will be coming here from far and wide this weekend. You haven't seen anything until you've seen a far and wide picker.

Marshall Sayles

They will join the "pickers' parade," picking their way down through town and out into the woods where they will be picking those cotton-picking mushrooms.

I sound like I'm mad and I am. I've never picked more than a peck of mushrooms at one outing in my life; and I've developed a healthy hatred of those who are forever returning to town with a bushel—grinning the while, mind you.

Just once I'd like to see someone return with a bushel of harmless puffballs, thinking they are mushrooms.

Whenever I spend a full morning attacking the hills and dales for mushrooms and find nary a one, I do not behave as though I were in church.

I'm not the only one who gets upset this time of year. A bachelor told me last spring that he never realized how much he needed a wife until he came home to an empty house with a bushel of freshly picked mushrooms.

Let us not forget that Sunday is also Mothers' Day. So if you want to go mushrooming but are invited to your mother-in-law's house for dinner, you must make a grave decision—to pick or not to pick, pick, pick.

But Saturday is the real contesting hoopla day. That's when all happiness can be summed up in five words: "Ah, there's one over there!"

Everyone is getting cautious

Tuesday morning was a long one. It began by having to chauffeur our son to school before 7 a.m. for an early morning class. This duty is usually relegated to me since my husband can somehow schedule his out-of-town days to coincide with the pre-school bus days.

I drove home to begin getting ready for work only to find that I had locked myself out of the house. I've become very security conscious lately. The number of breaking and enterings in Charlevoix County has increased significantly in the last few months.

During a recent telephone conversation with Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Moll, I learned that most of his time has been devoted to investigating local B & E's. And while grocery shopping last weekend, I overheard a couple complaining that they had moved back to their summer home from a winter in Florida to find their house a mess and missing a gun.

Unfortunately, their home hasn't been the only one hit. Walloon Lake, Boyne City and Charlevoix have all been burglarized in the search for cash, silver and guns.

Trish Wright

I understand that the media has been criticized for reporting these incidents. "Let's not say anything about the break-ins. It's bad for business," some say.

I disagree. The problem will not go away by sticking our heads in the sand. Citizens have the right to know what's going on, the right to know that lights should be left on at night when the house is empty and the doors locked.

While talking to a neighbor, whose phone I used to call someone to help me, into my locked house, I learned that she was arranging for someone to house-sit during her family's vacation. And she and others in the neighborhood were watching the traffic entering and exiting our area. This scrutiny doesn't mean we won't have a burglary, but it's a step in the right direction. It makes us all feel a little more protected.

I felt somewhat foolish last Tuesday when my friend found that a door I thought was locked was merely caught and just needed extra push and pull. And it was unnerving to think that while I couldn't get into my own house, a thief would probably have had no problem, even if all the doors had been locked.

But there was one consolation. It only took one knock on the door of a neighbor's house for the use of the phone and a cup of coffee. It took only five minutes for a friend to leave work and be at my door willing to help.

One flower makes a gardener

Gardening is connected to our other life—the one that has little to do with office hours, traffic lights, shopping lists, and so on.

Gardening, instead, turns us back to universals—the sense of life beyond our own making, the sense of a law irresistible, and a sense of calm, totally unaffected by the criticism and gossip of our social world.

Maybe that is why being shut out of the Garden of Eden was such bad news for Adam and Eve. Anyway, ever since then, we've been making gardens of our own.

Only they are never our own. Sometimes they seem to belong to grasshoppers, but always they would be incomplete without the song of the indigo bunting overhead, and impossible to imagine without the smile of the sun and the sighs of rain.

So, there's all that, and food and beauty besides.

Just today I read in the world news that Britain, to solve some of the unemployment problem and the recent rioting problem, is considering all the empty corners and plots of land in the cities that could be turned into vegetable gardens. Estimates run as high as 110,000 acres, totalled from scraps and parcels, empty lots, uncared-for public lands, and so on.

Another news item tells of volunteer beautification (an ugly word for a nice thing) in cities in the United States. Cities, having to cut park budgets have been pleased to accept neighborhood interest in planting traffic islands, public parks, nature trails, and vacant areas.

Barbara Cruden

The volunteer participation makes for less vandalism, new friends, and recreation.

It doesn't take a lot of technology nor even knowledge to garden, but it does take persistence and optimism.

Maybe that's why the gardens I saw in a state prison yard were just derelict. Just as there is a fascination in the ever-changing light on the trees and flowers in a garden, there is a fascination in the hundreds of aspects of thought prompted by growing a garden or merely by contemplating one.

Some people would have immediate affinity with the Little Prince's point of view about his rose. (The Little Prince, by Antoine de St. Exupery). This book classic is in children's libraries, but I think it is meant for the child part of adults which gardeners never lose. Even gardeners who never get around to gardening.

After reading at least that part of the book—which I think is the best part—one may understand enough never to be put off from gardening by the fact that one's neighbor knows nearly everything about the subject and has a veritable bowler in her/his yard.

One rose or one rhubarb plant makes a gardener. And if these fail, there's more skill in another try.

I like to think of a little account told to me by a woman who escaped from Communist Hungary. It took place before she left her native land.

It was the first warm day of spring, and she decided to go for a walk. Along the way, she saw a fenced garden plot. The garden was still bare. No rows of peas or beets had sprouted yet. But in the middle in a chair sat a man. He was gazing at one lone flower blooming there in the middle of the bare garden.

When he saw her he stood and bowed slightly. Then he invited her to share the flower-viewing.

She accepted and he went and got another chair.

"Did you talk?" I asked, somewhat at a loss.

"No. We looked at the flower," she said.

The Little Prince would have understood.

The glass-eyed toy-soldiers of Boyne, erswhile Maroons, with their pretty suits, took the boat for East Jordan last

Mushroom hunting championships

BY TRISH WRIGHT

The forest elves leave evidence of their nocturnal play

When forgetting their umbrellas upon approaching day,
Hidden under dew-tipped leaves
They're nurtured by the sun
And clothed in wooded tones of day,
The picking is the fun!

Welcome to the National Mushroom Hunting Championship where all you need to win is a paper bag and a swift eye.

On Saturday, May 9, mushroom hunting contestants will depart from Boyne City Chamber of Commerce for the official secret hunting grounds in the preliminary round of the contest. Their goal—to pick and bag as many morel mushrooms as possible.

And the mysterious morel will be there. Local residents have already spotted them in their camouflaged surroundings, so the picking should be plentiful.

According to Bud Bates, who has been involved in the contest for 12 years, the only thing that is needed is warmer nights. "The moisture is there and if the weather is right there shouldn't be a shortage of mushrooms."

Bates, a member of the Boyne Valley Lions Club which is co-sponsoring the contest with the Chamber of Commerce, will be responsible for selecting the hunting grounds.

"Finding a territory isn't difficult but choosing a place where 200 people can park their cars can be a problem," said Bates.

Kate Schafer, Chamber executive director, expects the number of people participating this year will equal last year's count. "Approximately 225 people entered last year. The Chamber has received about 50 pre-registrations to date."

"These are the people who took advantage of the discounted entrant's fee," said Schafer.

Although the $3.50 entry fee was good only until May 1, Schafer is confident that more registrations will arrive by mail and that the $5 entry fee after May 1 will not discourage others interested in the contest.

"The bulk of the registrations come in the morning of the contest. It gets pretty wild in the Chamber office. Most of the interest has come from the Ohio area. An article about the Mushroom Hunting Championship appeared in the Dayton Journal Herald and it will also be featured in the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press," Schafer said.

The 22nd annual Mushroom Hunting Championship has also received publicity in the Michigan Travel Bureau calendar as well as the nationally publicized "Chase's Calendar of Events."

John Trestrail, associate director of Western Michigan Poison Center in Grand Rapids, has entered this year's hunt and will present a seminar concerning the proper identification of mushrooms after the contest. The slide show will be held at 3 p.m. on Saturday at the City Hall auditorium and it is free and open to the public.

"According to Trestrail, we are about one week ahead of schedule in terms of the appearance of mushrooms, but I don't know if we'll have a year like 1973," said Schafer.

In the record year of '73, local resident Stan Boris picked 953 morels in 90 minutes. A light blanket of snow may have added to the successful hunt by providing a white backdrop for the black morels.

"Although residents generally bag more mushrooms than the non-resident, I've seen some years when the non-resident will pick as many," said Bates.

"Many of the local people will pick more because they're usually experienced hunters and they want to win the prize money. A lot of the out of town contestants enter just for the thrill of it," added Schafer.

You have to know what you're looking for when morel hunting...but once you get the hang of it, nearly anyone can find mushrooms. Greg Massey, 5, of Boyne Falls found a sackful when he was out hunting last weekend.

The 20 highest scorers, first 5 in each category (non-resident men, non-resident women, resident men and resident women) will compete in the finals on Sunday.

All entry fees will be returned in cash prizes and divided equally among the winners. But perhaps the best prize is being able to take the mushrooms home.

Mushroom Festival Activities

The cone capped, white morel mushroom is edible and delicious. But during a "Mushroom and Mushroom Poisoning" seminar, presented by John H. Trestrail, the non-edible mushroom will be discussed and identified. The slide presentation begins at 3 p.m. at the city auditorium in the Boyne City Hall. Admission is free. Time capsule visits Boyne City Festival

BOYNE CITY—A specially made time capsule from Gaylord will be featured at the mushroom festival in Boyne City this weekend.

Sponsors of the time capsule are inviting festival-goers to place a personal message, photograph, drawing or "whatever you fancy" into the capsule, which is being called "Everyone's Time Capsule."

The messages, sealed in special envelopes, will not be opened until 2001, when the capsule will be unearthed from its burial place on the 45th parallel in Gaylord. Then the entries will be published in the book Only Yesterday, assuring all participants of a page in history.

This project, sponsored by the Gaylord Chamber of Commerce and Alpenfest, gives individuals an opportunity not generally available to the public—to project a personal presence to the world, while leaving a message to a particular person or the people of the future in general.

"If you would like to preserve a drawing by your child, leave a letter to your grandchildren, immortalize a favorite family recipe, document your mushroom hunting achievements or anything else, be sure to see Everyone's Time Capsule," the organizers urged.

Although the official capsule unveiling is not until May 18, Boyne area residents and mushroom hunters will be given the first opportunity to preview the capsule and participate.

The time capsule, along with a talking robot, will be in Old City Park during the Festival on Saturday and Sunday.

Chamber sponsors flea market

BOYNE CITY—The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a flea market at Old City Park on Saturday and Sunday, in conjunction with the Mushroom Festival.

Artists, craftsmen and sellers of antiques and other items will be showing their wares from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and from 12 noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Anyone wishing to participate in the flea market must register beforehand with the Chamber of Commerce. Call 582-6761 for information.

Smith fans 14 of 15; Loggers sweep two

BOYNE FALLS - The Loggers boys' baseball team won two easy games and lost two games—all by large margins in the past week.

They opened their season with 17-0 and 17-1 losses to Alanson last Thursday, but then rebounded to whip Vanderbilt 16-0 and 11-3 on Monday.

Sophomore Tim Smith hurled a no-hitter and struck out 14 of the 15 batters who faced him in Monday's win over Vanderbilt.

The only batter to hit the ball in fair territory was Matt Sides, who grounded out in the fourth inning. The game was shortened by the 10-run rule after five innings.

The Loggers took advantage of numerous walks and errors to score their 16 runs, as they had only six hits. Jim Spencer and Cliff Leazier had two hits each.

In the second game, Jim Spencer was the winning pitcher, although he needed relief help from Tom Towne. The Loggers had four hits, including doubles by Smith and Jay Gee.

Lucky 14 for Logger girls

BOYNE FALLS - Fourteen was the magic number for the Logger girls' softball team as they won a pair of close games from Vanderbilt Monday.

The Loggers won the first game 14-12 as Sharon Franckowiak led the hitting attack with two doubles and a single. Karen Sevanski, Janice Green and winning pitcher Pat Franckowiak all contributed two hits to the victory.

In the second game, Lori Baker had three singles, including the game winning hit, to give Boyne Falls a 13-12 victory in extra innings. Baker's hit drove in Sandy Payton, who had two hits for the day.

Last Thursday, the Loggers dropped a doubleheader to Alanson, 14-9 and 5-4. Sally Bauman and Kim Mikula had triples in the first game, while Payton had two doubles in the second contest.

League short on uniforms

BOYNE CITY - Little League season starts May 18, and league officials are short on equipment and uniforms.

They are urging former players who may have borrowed uniforms or equipment at home to return them as soon as possible.

Anyone may contact league president Dave Williamson to have equipment picked up. Call 582-2220 days or 535-2269 nights.

Fore! It's a 'Golf Bowl'

Ye Nyne Olde Holles and the Boyne City Lanes will sponsor the 1st annual men's Golf Bowl on Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16. Participants will bowl four games and take the three best scores on Friday and golf 18 holes on Saturday.

The entry fee will be $10 in addition to the golf and bowling fees. All fees will be returned in prizes and prize money. There will be a $200 first place prize.

Winners will be determined by subtracting their handicapped golf score from their handicapped bowling score, with the highest total winning. Call 582-6447 for more information.

Devils lose 3 close games

EAST JORDAN - The Red Devil baseball team lost three of four close games in the past week.

Last Thursday, East Jordan split a doubleheader with Central Lake. The visiting Trojans scored all the runs they needed in the first inning of the opener with a two-run home run.

Red Devil sophomore righthander Rick Newville took the loss, although he gave up only four hits in seven innings.

East Jordan scored once in the contest, an unearned run in the bottom of the first.

The Devils came back to take the nightcap 5-3 as junior lefty Kevin Mayhew ran his record to 2-0 on a four-hitter. Bob Castle and Mike Chhak had two hits each to pace East Jordan's eight-hit attack. Chhak had a two-run double to cap a four-run fourth inning for EJHS.

Second baseman Tom Peters made a game-saving catch in the seventh inning, diving to his right to rob a Trojan of a sure single on a hit and run play. He caught the line drive and turned it into a double play to end the game.

On Monday, May 4, East Jordan dropped a doubleheader to Pellston by scores of 6-4 and 6-5. No details were available. The Red Devils are now 2-4 for the season.

BC netters lose 4-3

BOYNE CITY - Close matches seem to be the story this spring, as the Rambler tennis team lost to Charlevoix 4-3 last week.

Martin Neumann faced off Dennis Morgridge to begin the match, but lost 0-6, 1-6. Chris Kuhn was defeated by Rick Rajewski 1-6, 1-6. Dave Mittig played against Pete Cockfield and won 6-4, 6-3; and Charlevoix's Lisa Hoffman defeated Todd Newville 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

In the doubles matches, Mike Toffolo and Kerry Kruzel were defeated by Paul Hoffman and Pete Dunkeberg 2-6, 4-6. Corey Fish and Mitch Kruzel beat Kris Lignell and Patrice Stanley 6-3, 7-5; and Brian Vroman and Todd Rickard won against Lew Kline and Ingrid Wiemer 6-0, 6-1.

What's that rule?

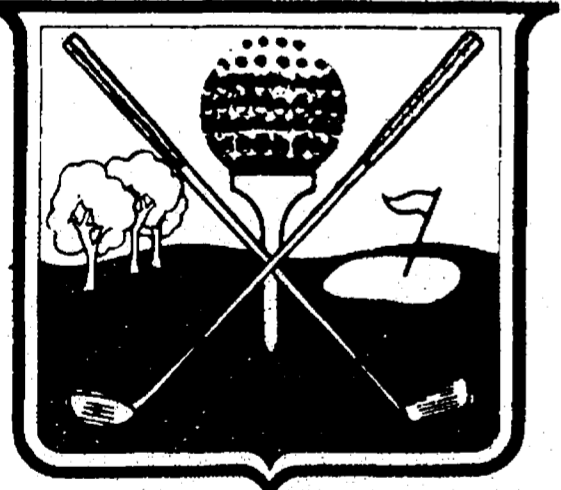

BOYNE CITY - Softball rules and rule changes will be discussed in a rules' clinic at 7 p.m. Monday, May 11, at Boyne City Middle School gymnasium.

All local softball enthusiasts are encouraged to attend the clinic, which is sponsored by the Northern Michigan Umpires' Association.

Linda Mason

Home & Garden

Interior design - an eclectic profession

BY TRISH WRIGHT

At first glance, the Charlevoix centennial home in which Linda Mason operates her design studio suggests an inner decor of overstuffed furniture and beveled glass. Not true.

When the first-time visitor steps over the threshold, he is greeted with a visual treat of wicker, antiques and contemporary furnishings, put together in a way that makes one think, "Why haven't I ever thought of arranging things this way?"

Mason's first floor showroom is an expression of eclecticism. She has selected the best furniture and accessories from various periods and themes and grouped them as studies in art.

The studio's wall colors suggest the inimitable style of a designer with confidence in her work. "Before the furniture arrived, people would gasp at the fushia-colored walls of this room," says Mason. "But with the right furniture it becomes soft and cozy."

Mason began her interior decorating career by marking fabric samples at Pumco in Petoskey. "It's the best way to learn materials and prices. I eventually realized through my contact with customers that they were often pleased with my suggestions for their homes."

"I minored in art in college and taught art in school but I found that there are other experiences that aid in making the total person. Teaching was rewarding but I love what I'm doing now."

In addition to Mason's design studio, she and husband Hugh own a do-it-yourself home furnishings store in downtown Charlevoix. "We geared Charlee's toward those people who wish to personally decorate their own homes."

"We stock knock-down furniture, inexpensive lamps and other home accessories. Some of our prices can compare with K-Mart's. But because of the more stylish appearance of Charlee's, people think that it's expensive."

According to Mason, you don't have to be a millionaire to have good design in the home. And a professional designer's assistance doesn't have to be expensive. Mason and her assistant, Lori Chaffee, will work with any budget.

"The three most important things to remember while decorating are balance, scale and color." For an example she explains that to achieve proper scale in a room where several prints were used, they would have to vary in size. Just as a huge Mexican lamp wouldn't balance with a dainty Provencal sofa. And she notes that wall colors can make or break a room.

Mason stressed the need for communication between the designer and the client. "Your home is a reflection of you. Sometimes it takes a lot of guts to give your home up for another individual to decorate."

The first question Mason asks her clients concerns the colors with which they feel comfortable. "I wouldn't suggest using a color that someone absolutely hated, but a customer must be objective about a designer's suggestions. I'm not saying that a designer never makes mistakes. But they should be trusted and as a resource person."

"This is my business. I spend all my time keeping up with the new lines, trends and technology. My customers should use me like an encyclopedia." Mason adds that the cost of using a professional is justified since this designer often saves money by eliminating mistakes.

"I often become involved in the interior decorating of a house when it is still in the blueprint stage. My consultation with the architect broadens my scope."

I've worked with Jack Begrow, an architect in Charlevoix, on several homes and I think our work complements one another's. He enlightens me on structural aspects and I help him since we both believe in a harmonious look."

Both the interior and exterior architectural design of a Cheyboygan residence was recently featured in a special home supplement to the Detroit Free Press. The combined talents that made the home worthy of front page attention were those of Mason and Begrow.

"My own home is mostly traditional," says Mason. "However, much of what I do is for condominium owners and they want a contemporary look. It works well with the limited space of a condo since the lines are simple and the fabrics sturdy."

The Mason design studio includes everything from baskets to a French writing desk, yet there is a common element of quality and purity of style.

"The day of walking into a furniture store and buying a showroom look is over. It's just too expensive. So people buy pieces and bring out their antiques to use."

"I think that's the best thing that has happened to design because people are now forced to put thought into decorating."

Although the profession of interior design is one of glamor and creativity, it is not without frustration and competitiveness.

"There is a difference between decorators and designers," says Mason. "Many decorators can tastefully put things together but a designer usually knows everything about a house from the studs up."

"It's easy for someone to go into business as a decorator. A sales tax license and a client are all that's needed. They offer the service but use other's samples."

When Mason purchases a wallpaper sample book for approximately $50, she believes it isn't fair play for someone to use the book for information and then order elsewhere.

"If you're using someone's time and talent without good intentions of remunerating them, that's a rip-off." Mason

Home & Garden

Gardening for business and pleasure

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Martha Chamberlain has never had to advertise her summer business. Yet it flourishes in much the same way as her annual garden does. From the small plot of land next to the white frame house in Horton Bay, she has unearthed a pot pourri of vegetables and bouquets of multi-colored flowers for 21 years.

Gardening has been a part of Chamberlain's life since she was a child. And the proper respect she has for her garden is a reflection of her European ancestors' regard for the land.

"My parents were from Germany and when they moved here they were farmers. I grew up helping mother with the garden," said 83-year-old Chamberlain.

After she married and became a minister's wife, the various parsonages that housed Martha and her husband, Roy, were decorated with the fruits of their labor. "We always had flowers around the church or house. And, even if we didn't have much room for a garden, Roy would plant tomatoes."

The couple's final move to Horton Bay provided them with a garden area ample enough to supply the nearby Red Fox Inn with fresh floral centerpieces, relishes and jams.

"Marion Hartwell (owner of the Red Fox Inn) was my first customer. She said, Martha why don't you can and make preserves for me. That was 18 years ago and my canning business gets bigger every year," said Chamberlain.

After sampling the delectables that accompanied a Red Fox dinner, customers would ask that Chamberlain put up preserves or can relishes for their own kitchens.

She says her secret has always been freshness. As soon as a fruit or vegetable is picked, it is prepared for enduring taste. "The freshness makes all the difference in the world."

Approximately 43 different comestibles are available from the Chamberlain kitchen. Her inventory includes: beans, rhubarb, cherries, plum butter, blackberry jam, tomato apple chutney, mint jelly, pickles and corn relish. It is everything from pure packed tomatoes to delicious medleys of peaches, melons and pineapple.

"Many of my customers have asked me to compile a cookbook," said Chamberlain. "But, everyone has their own touch and even if the recipe used is the same, it will taste different than what I make."

Her success is based on the quality of her products. But the strong, ambitious woman who seals each jar also delivers a personal flavor of graciousness to each of her customers.

"My regular customers know that they can call me or come see me with an order anytime of the year. If I have something already made up or the ingredients to make what they want then I'll fill the order."

"I'm crazy to work like I do in the summer," said Chamberlain. And since the death of her husband she admits that the garden isn't what it used to be. But it is unlikely that anyone but Chamberlain would know the difference.

The simple road sign that modestly offers preserves and vegetables for sale in front of her house is a gentle reminder of the quality control that is part of her lifestyle and livelihood.

"He who makes a garden works hand-in-hand with God," reads a plaque in the Chamberlain home. The flowers that grace the pulpit each Sunday in the Horton Bay Church may testify that this is their gardener's, Martha Chamberlain's, personal motto.

Interior design

[Continued from page 12] explains that even though discounts are offered by many types of order takers, once the merchandise is delivered it is owned. There are no refunds for defective merchandise.

"A designer's customer is protected from having to pay for something that won't work or they are not happy with," says Mason.

"I believe very strongly in the American Society of Interior Design and when time permits I'll become a certified member. The A.S.I.D. is trying to separate the 'trunk designers' from the professionals. Belonging to their organization doesn't guarantee that you're a good designer. But it does weed out those who haven't studied the subject in its entirety."
