Leaving town? Tell the police

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

BOYNE CITY - Stop in at the city police department if you are going on vacation—or even leaving town for just a couple of days.

That's the message in Residential Security Check.

It has always been going on, actually, but late last fall the concept was systematized. City Manager Tim Clifton believes wider use of the service would cut down on breaking and enterings, which Police Chief John Talbovs says constitutes the most serious crime in the Last year, Talboys said, there were five B&Es, only one of which, however, was on the security list. Being on the list means, Talboys said, that police have a fresher trail, and it is much more likely the culprit will be caught than if the problem isn't picked up until the

It also means that with the daily check going on, a person would think twice before making a theft.

"Residential Security Check is a continuous program," said Talboys. We want the people to contact us if they're going to be gone for a weekend Help prevent a break-in

Are you going away for a few days or longer?

Police agencies have these suggestions for minimizing the possibility of a break-in at your home:

1. Lock all doors and windows. It sounds elementary, but surprisingly many peopole forget. 2. Tell a neighbor you can trust that you will be gone and ask them to watch your house.

3. Stop your mail and newspapers, or have a neighbor pick them up daily.

4. Have someone mow your lawn if you're going to be gone for long. (Or shovel the snow in the

5. Buy a couple of inexpensive timers and attach them to lamps, so that your lights go on and off in different rooms at different times.

6. Do everything else possible to make your house look "lived in." Have a neighbor move your car in and out of the garage periodically.

or a longer period of time.'

He said residents can come down to the police station and fill out a card with the dates of their absence, and other information-such as where they will be, if there is a warning device, and so

The information may be phoned in. Talboys said, but he prefers having the

The card goes into the police car and every check-often more than one a -is entered on the card.

Not only theft, but other difficulties may be prevented. Talboys noted. A winter storm could blow in a window, for example, he said. Damage from such accidental problems can be minimized by quick attention.

This program of surveillance doesn't mean that attention from other services can't continue also. Talboys pointed

"It's a proven fact that the more activity there is around a house, the better...Up in this part of the country." he said. "unattended buildings seem to be the biggest problem, whereas in the cities, it's the more violent crimes.

If residents have service people with keys to the house, going in during their absence, adjusting heat, water, and such, that's not competition, Talboys said. That's just more of that beneficial

If neighbors will keep an eye out, that is something to be continued, also, he Residential Security Check doesn't cost the taxpavers or the city any more. Talboys said. The policemen are on patrol anyway, and the close check takes just a few minutes.

Besides the residential check, the department also conducts an annual Commercial Security Check. This involves going over the inside and outside of business buildings in the city. checking for dark areas, weak fastenings, and so on Talboys, who has been chief since 1966, hopes that everyone will take advantage of the service.

Officer Ken Schroeder of Boyne City for just about any other policeman in the county will check your home for you while you're on vacation this summer. All you

Sheriff's Dept. will check on country homes

The sheriff's department gets out the snowmobile to make their routine off-the-road residential security check.

The winter, of course, is the toughest time. That's when most of the work must be done with many vacation homes closed and vacant.

But Sheriff George Lasater says the department encourages anyone going for a weekend or a week's vacation to contact the department. 'Most of our B and E's (breaking and enterings) are done by local people," he said. "Therefore they know they're going to be gone. Lasater set up his program 41/2 years ago. People out in the county who will be away are encouraged to stop by and fill out a one-page form telling such things as where they can be contacted. who has a key, and including a map showing how to get there. The department does not keep keys.

A copy goes to the nearest substation at Boyne Falls, Beaver Island or East Jordan, or to the service officer at the department who will take care of that check.

Checks are done during times when the complaint load is light. "We hit as many off the road as time permits." Lasater said, even though the owners may not have requested a check.

But specific requests are helpful An example of the problem when someone does not fill out the form was one occasion when the department answered a fire alarm. When the officer arrived, no fire. Everything shut up tight. It took 45 go in and not told how to deactivate the minutes to go back to town to locate the distant owner, who, by the way, had plugged into the sheriff's fire-alarm phone without informing him.

They returned, broke the window and were nearly knocked over by a blast of heat. The bathroom heater had been left on. Lasater said in another hour there would have been an explosion from the accumulation of heat in the tightly shut house. That was a precious 45 minutes, he noted.

The department responded to 69 burglar or fire alarms last year. Lasater said, but only five were valid. "Not a very good average." he added.

You realize we go all out to answer an alarm." Then it turns out it was a relative or a workman who was asked to alarm before doing so.

Downstate the police fine people $50 or so for these careless false alarms.

Some people hire private agencies to check their homes while they are gone. Lasater emphasized. "We are not competing with private enterprise.' The more people making the check, the better, he said.

People, who want the sheriff to send them a monthly report while they are may leave self-addressed, stamped envelopes with him. Reports will be sent out with the times of inspection listed. On all forms this information appears, and it includes the name of who did the inspecting.

The department also does a commercial check as a matter of procedure.

security check programs similar to the newly reorganized system in Boyne

In East Jordan, residential check forms have been available for eight or nine years.

East Jordan Police Chief Joe Hammond points out that one advantage over the regular day-to-day road patrol past the residences is that the forms permit police to come on the property,

In the city of Charlevoix, police cars make frequent trips every night past closed-up houses.

People who are going to be away for any length of time—two days or 10 months—usually call the police department and leave the information, along with who may have a key to the house

This permits closer inspection, and quick attention in case of trouble.

A nightly check of commercial buildings is also a regular practice.

Tons of rock will protect EJ park shoreline

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

EAST JORDAN - About 669 tons of rock make Memorial Park look like a little mountain right now, with another 630 tons still to come

City superintendent Herm Rasch said the rock will go along the shoreline. down into the water to prevent "shore-line scouring." In other words, the waves will beat in vain. The park won't

Before the rock edging goes in, there are some preliminary steps. Rasch said. Sand will be laid and compacted down to coze out the mud.

Then a filter fabric will go down. Over that, the rocks. The fabric will allow water, but not sediment, to seep through. This will prevent the shoreline from being silted in and will help in keeping the lake water clear.

Rasch said these are part of the 'critical treatment measures' that will go from Esterly Street to near the highway bridge crossing

The rock shoreline will extend about four feet above the water, and there will be a slope back to a high point in the park from which rainfall will drain in two opposite directions to culverts already in use.

Not all of the park will be affected by the changes in elevation, Rasch explained. But some parts will get granular fill and 2,700 square yards of

'We're trying to work around all the trees." he added.

They will put loose stone around each tree where fill and topsoil will go in. The loose stone will permit air and water penetration to the roots.

Rasch explained if topsoil were piled on top of the ground around the trees, it would choke them. After the topsoil is made ready, it will be hydro-seeded. Rasch said. It is the same process used on the berm in the Tourist Park. Rasch explained you mix seed, fertilizer, and mulch in a tank and spray it out at high pressure. The mulch holds moisture and keeps the seed, fertilizer and soil from washing away in heavy rain. The Rotary Club flea market will have to be moved this year, as the newly seeded grass wouldn't be ready for foot traffic the Fourth of July. "It's going along pretty good," Rasch said of the park job. C.H. Smith Company of Charlevoix is the contractor. The cost is estimated at $52,790, Rasch said. A funding grant through the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and the state will pay 75 percent, with the city supplying 25 percent of the cost.

Finger piers in now will be adapted to the improved shoreline. And, Rasch added, there is hope the city can afford more work on the hoat dock and rental

Voters OK renewals, not increases Voters in Charlevoix County voted

Monday to support status quo school millage requests, but rejected status quo programs that required additional

An example was East Jordan which asked the same 21.2 mills as last year, but two additional propositions to maintain programs. The 21.2 passed, 639 to 302, but the two mills in Proposition II went down, 393 to 538, and the half mili for athletics went down, 322-551.

School board president Mary Mason said the loss of the two mills "eats the heart out of the elementary and middle school programs."

The failure to fund athletics is another problem, she said, because the cost to volunteers in supporting the program since December has been so nuch greater than the cost would be to the community whose children have participated in athletics.

Boyne Falls also passed a renewal of last year's 21.37 mills. Superintendent Ray Mouch said, "We feel very good that the community is supporting us. The vote was 143, yes; 108, no.

But the supporters balked at 1.23 additional mills asked for repairs to the building and to busses. Voting for were 115; against, 126, Boyne City passed its renewal of 21.4 mills with 460 voting yes. 254 voting no. Charlevoix renewed 15.25 mills, 705 voting yes and 407, no.

The Char-Em Intermediate School District lost an attempt to increase its millage from 1.0 to 1.8 by a 53-47 percent margin. In the 12-school district: the vote was 3,547 to 3,092 against the proposal.

In Charlevoix County, the Char-Em proposal passed by a 378-349 margin in Boyne City, but failed in the other districts. Vote totals against it were 146-106 in Boyne Falls, 417-502 in East Jordan, and 466-649 in Charlevoix;

Not all school districts had contested elections on June 8. But East Jordan had four candidates running for two four-year terms. Incumbents Mary Jason and Edwin Drenth were re-elected. Jason with 579.

The unsuccessful challengers were Mike Burr with 234 votes and Terry Lord with 290.

In Boyne City, George Shiotellis was re-elected for four years with 505 votes. Eleanor West received 556 votes, and Richard Wulff, who succeeds Richard Manafield, was voted in for a two-year term with 521 votes.

Do I thank people for coming to the visitation?

It is not socially required for your friends to come to funeral visitations in your behalf. They are there to support you and they just want you to know they care.

But, of course, most people do like to be remembered for their friendly gestures, so it is nice to remind them of your appreciation when you see

On the other hand, when your friends send flowers or food, acknowledgments are in order. For this purpose, we and other funeral directors provide tasteful acknowledgment cards so you can send them 'Thank You'' notes.

If there are other such questions in your minds, by all means come in or phone us. We will be glad to answer you as best we know how.

BC schools OK curriculum changes

English, used since before Principal Rick Casper was involved with curriculum will be discarded following the vote by the school board Monday night.

Apex, which divided English into sub-categories to permit student selection, was discarded on the recommendation of the school staff.

The same situation applies to the math competency exam.

Another change will be in the withdrawal of "work experience" for credit. The reason, Casper said, was the difficulty in evaluating the students.

"Co-op" programs will be kept, however, as the jobs students take in co-op relate to particular career courses being studied at school.

These and other changes promise to make scheduling harder, Casper said, and fewer choices for students. But, he said, it was felt educational values would increase.

Here it comes...summer!

The tennis courts, softball fields and golf courses are filling up. The kids are out of school.

Construction projects are underway—even with the slow economy. Condominiums are going up fast in Boyne City and Charlevoix. The City of East Jordan is rebuilding its croding lakeshore on one side of town and making major changes to the Tourist Park on the other side of town.

Summer also means the Boyne City police are calling attention to their residential security check program to prevent burglaries while people go away for summer vacations.

Seasonal and year-around businesses are opening up and gearing up. Greenhouses are overflowing with flowers, vegetables, shrubs and eager gardeners.

Castle Farms Music Theatre opens-to the delight of rock music lovers and to the disappointment of its

The Boyne Theatre re-opens after a winter which started so slowly that the owner decided it really wasn't worth staying open.

New businesses, large and small, open. To be sure. now is the time. Spring is a season for hope and optimism! The Beaver Island Boat Company will literally be "testing the watters" with its Bay Queen dining and dancing ship. In Boyne City, a downtown flower shop is now staying open until 10 each night just to sell ice cream cones and "Jelly Boynes."

Another sure sign of summer's approach-The Charlevoix County Press comes out with its first issue of Fun & Sun. (This year's motto: "Another great summer!)

Hot off the press: Morgridge book on Boyne history ready for distribution-just in time for the city's 125th anniversary celebration, which starts the week of July 5. The 84-page book, written by middle school history teacher

Bob Morgridge, is titled "Settlers to Sidewalks: A History of Boyne City From its Beginning to the End of the Booming Lumbering Era. The book, which was brinted by Boyne Valley Printing Company, is now available at the printing shop. The Charlevoix County Press, the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce office, Kaden's Emporium, the Coffee Mill and from Jean Talboys at Northwestern State Bank.

The book is being sold for $8, or $7 for senior citizens with SID cards, from now to June 30. After that date, all books will be The Charlevoix County Press will be printing excerpts from the history book from now through the city's 125th anniversary

This first excerpt is about the Millers. Boyne's first permanent

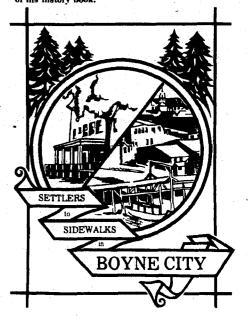

It was late in the day on November 14, 1856, when a man and his wife beached their boat on the shores of Boyne. After walking up the hill, they found a dilapidated shelter-their "dream cabin" - which they immediately claimed as their home. These hardy pioneers were John and Harriet Miller, and they began a residency that marks the beginning of the history of Boyne. Their reason for coming to Boyne is one of the remarkable stories in Michigan history.

John Miller was born on October 10, 1811, in a land of small farms, pastures, and great peat bogs. He was the son of a Scotch-Irish father, Hugh Miller, and his wife, Agnes, John's birthplace was in St. Andres Town Land in the county of Down, Ireland. In 1823, John and his parents emigrated to the United States. Landing in New York, they pushed north and westward across the state, finally settling on a "tract of wild land" in upstate New York. On Christmas Day in 1840, John married a sixteen year old Canadian born girl by the name of Harriet Russell. She had been born to Irish parents, and John met her while she was visiting relatives in St. Lawrence County, New York. Two children were born into the Miller family: Hugh, on February 14, 1842 and James the following year. In 1843, the Millers bought a farm in Oswegotchie Township, St. Lawrence County.

For twelve years the Millers cleared their land, plowed their soil, hoed their garden, and apparently led a contented life. It is said that on one morning in 1855, Harriet Miller awoke from a strange dream. In her dream she envisioned a lake to the west which was shaped like a bear and had an abandoned cabin at its eastern end. Convinced that she must seek out this mysterious place. Harriet persuaded her husband to sell their land, pack their bags and head westward.

Bob Morgridge checks over a freshly printed copy

Grand opening! (Or was it?)

GRAND OPENING! Of Bellamy's Handsome New Theatre, Saturday Evening, March 19

After many months of patient waiting, the public is at last given an opportunity to view the interior of Bellamy's grand opera house, and witness an attraction of superior merit.

We say it is a grand opera house, because it is not putting it any too strong. There is not another theatre in the state in a city the size of Boyne of such magnificence. Neither time or money has been spared in giving us the best to be had, and to give the public a chance to show their appreciation of his efforts, Mr. Bellamy has secured the famous Gorton Minstrels as an opening attraction, Saturday evening, March 19. and to the sale of seats all are bidden.

finally being confined to W. S. Shaw and Frank Anderson, the latter securing the coveted honor at a price of $25.50.

Less than three hundred greeted the first appearance of Gorton's minstrels on Saturday evening...The opening was in a measure unsatisfactory, there being manifest a woeful lack of interest in the sale of tickets. It is true the prices were high, but considerably lower than in most places on an opening night. The people have been sighing for just such a threatre for the past five years, but did not show the appreciatson (sic) due Mr. Bellamy's large investment when the crucial moment came.

Second home owners love it here!

They don't come to seek publicity or to stand out in a crowd. Just the opposite. Second home owners who spend their weekends and summer vacations in Charlevoix County come mainly to relax. They have found what is for them an ideal place to come to leave their work week worries behind.

They love Charlevoix County! They love the beauty of the area, the outdoor recreation, and the slower pace. It is a refreshing change from the hustle and bustle of their normal urban or suburban surroundings. They love it so much, they have made the sizeable investment of owning a house or condominium beer.

"We totally fell in love with Charlevoix County," said Terry Marrs, who owns a condominium in Wildwood on Walloon Lake.

"What we have here at Wildwood is unmatched in the state." Marrs and his in-laws, Mary and Bob Wood bought their condominium two years. Marrs and his family, who are from Northville, have been vacationing in Charlevoix County for six years. The Woods plan to retire in the condominium.

Marrs wasn't the only second home owner to express warm feelings for Charlevoix County. Katie and Mac Norris, who own a home at Springbrook Hills near Walloon Lake said: "We love it up here. We love to just pack a lunch and go shopping all over. We love to watch the boats in Little Traverse Bay, or to visit the museum in Petoskey."

The Norrises have a year-round tenant in an apartment in their Springbrook Hills home. Although they love the summers, downhill skiing is what first attracted the Norrises to this area.

Their home isn't only a vacation home, it is an investment. They plan to retire in their Springbrook Hills home.

WHILE VISITING FRIENDS...

Cille Ramsey, who owns a home on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City, said that he husband sailed in the Mackinac Island race from Chicago to Mackinac Island five years ago.

On the way home they stopped in Boyne City to see a friend that Mrs. Ramsey had known in Ionia, where she grew up. They fell in love with the house he was planning to sell.

"It was a major commitment," Mrs. Ramsey said. "We just threw reason out the window and bought the place."

The Ramseys who live in Lake Forest, Ill., have not regretted their decision. They have made lots of friends in their lakeside neighborhood. "In fact, says Mrs. Ramsey, "I think this neighborhood has a better sense of being neighbors to one another than our neighborhood in Lake Forest."

"When we are home, people are more caught up in their day-to-day routine," Mrs. Ramsey said. "Here, there is always a neighbor who helps us put in our dock and we help them. Our section of the beach is nicknamed 'lonia beach.' Homeowners from five out of seven of the lots had some roots in Ionia."

Steve, Sarah and Cille Ramsey think their lakeside cottage is a perfect place to come to relax.

When the Ramseys come up north there is a real need for escape. But they are not bored. There is always something going on in their beach neighborhood—lots of invitations to cocktail

"But people aren't offended if we're tired and just want to share a bottle of wine at home." Mrs. Ramsey said. "They come up here to relax, also." If Ionia people bought lots in one section on Lake Charlevoix, it seems Lansing people located in another area.

Mac and Peggy Halbert, who have been coming to Charlevoix County for about 35 years, own a cottage on Lake Charlevoix, also near Boyne City. They have owned their lake property for 19 years, but just built their house five, years ago.

NEARLY EVERY WEEKEND

nearly every weekend, although they did mention that the gas prices were starting to make this expensive. Before they built their current Cape Cod house, there was a cottage on the property. They moved that piece by piece and sold it to Sue Sharp, who put it up in Walloon Lake.

The Halberts also love the area. They like the fact they can get their boat from Lake Charlevoix into Lake Michigan. They socialize with lots of people from

The Halberts had some of the same concerns about Boyne City's large new Harborage condominium development that some local citizens had. They worry about the increased traffic on the lake. "But," said Mrs. Halbert," Mac woried about that when the Landings project was built and we didn't really notice that great a difference."

For the last two months the Halberts have been busy rebuilding a seawall by their cottage—with the help of their neighbors, of course.

Housing fits owner's style

BY JAMIE BAUMANN

Charlevoix County offers a wide variety of second home choices for vacationers. Each second home owner seems to have found the ideal vacation home for himself and his family.

Dr. Bob Abraham, an orthodontist from Okemos, and his three teenagers and wife think their condominium at Wildwood on Walloon Lake is a great vacation spot. Abraham likes it because he "doesn't have to work" once he comes up here.

The condominiums have good security because the developers live right there.

He doesn't have to worry about things like lawn mowing and building maintenance. His condominium is taken care of and can be used as a rental property when he and his family are not

It offers him nature trails, a beach and a boat dock all in a beautiful setting.

Terry and Laurie Marrs from Northville agree with Abraham. They like to be able to bring friends up north to their condominium and enjoy the time they have here without having to worry about maintenance and security. Babysitting is even available if they want to go out for an evening without their two children—Kelly, age 6, and Annie, age

Eleanor and Jerry LaVine from Bloomfield Hills have found their dream home in Springbrook Hills east of Walloon Lake. Springbrook Hills is adjacent to miles of state land for hiking, and it has its own heated swimming pool, sauna and clubhouse.

IT'S AN INVESTMENT

"I don't like condos," Eleanor La Vine said. "It's like living in an apartment. We know the developer at Springbrook. There is good security and a rental management service."

The LaVine's use their home about eight times a year for varying lengths of time. The rest of the time it is available for rentals by the Springbrook Hills management.

Mac and Katie Norris also own a vacation home at Springbrook Hills. There is an apartment in their home with a year-round tenant living there. They consider their home a good investment.

When the LaVines first started coming up north they were attracted by winter skiing. They bought a trailer which met their needs at that time. As they became more familiar with the area as a year-round resort area, they decided to buy the house at Springbrook Hills.

ON THE LAKE

The ultimate in luxury, privacy and expense is owning an individual lake-side cottage.

Second home owners who own cottages like the privacy of their own secluded beach and the feeling of neighborhood they have with the other lake side owners. The view is magnificent out most of the living room windows. It's nice to be able to dock a sailboat right outside the house.

A lakeside home is many people's ultimate goal. Mac and Peggy Halbert of Lansing owned their lakeside property for 19 yeaars. It had a small cottage on it. In the last five years they have build their own Cape Cod house. They plan to retire there.

They grumble a bit when they talk of putting up their seawalls, but it is apparent that the house is a part of them. They wouldn't be anywhere else. They love their home and their neigh-

Cille and Steve Ramsey also own a lakeside cottage. "It's an efficient house, which doesn't take a lot of upkeep. It's really a perfect place for us," said Cille Ramsey. And their daughter, Sarah age 8, has found lots of playmates in their lakeside neighbor-

BREAK-INS ARE A PROBLEM

Lakeside cottage owners are much more susceptible to break-ins than those who own condominiums or houses in a development. They are so susceptible that one lakeside cottage owner preferred not to be interviewed so he would not advertise that his cottage was vacant much of the time.

But that threat is reduced if they have a close lakeside neighborhood where people keep a watchful eye on each other's property. The Ramsey's also let several of their friends from the Chicago area use their cottage when they are not planning to be here.

Prospective second home owners can find a place just right for them in Charlevoix county. This area offers it all—rustic cabins in the woods, houses to be restored in town, lakeside cottages for privacy and a splendid view, condominium and housing developments with management services, and even trailers to visit for ski weekends.

Summer brings Fun & Sun Welcome to summer and this year's first issue of Fun & Sun!

This first issue of Fun & Sun is devoted to getting acquainted with some of the people who own second homes in Charlevoix County. Why did they choose Charlevoix County as the place for their vacation home? What do they do for fun when they are up here to visit?

Fun & Sun will be published 13 times this summer by the Charlevoix County Press. Some other topics which will be looked at in Fun & Sun are the Little Traverse Historic Festival, unique shopping, Fourth of July preview, romance and romantic places, entertainment, the Venetian Festival, artists and art shows, restaurants and delicatessens, watersports, Beaver Island, and places to go for a day outing.

Most importantly, though, Fun & Sun is your Fun guide to things to do and places to go in the area.

Turn to our Out & About and Recreation guides to find out what's happening each week. Fun & Sun will also feature a dining guide, and Kathy Johnson's dining column will be starting in a few weeks.

The editor of Fun & Sun this summer is East Jordan resident Jamie Baumann. If you know of a fun activity coming up, give her a call at the Charlevolx County Press. S82-6761.
