

Char-Em request to be different

Char-Em's millage election to be held Tuesday, Sept. 8 will be the same as last spring's but with a difference.

At the spring school election, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District asked for .8 mill to add to their chartered one mill, in order to continue the special education services required by the state, but no longer so well-funded by the state.

The difference is, Shepard said, that instead of making the .8 a chartered millage, the Char-Em board is "following editorial advice and would evaluate in three years."

They don't expect to need an .8 mill levy indefinitely, but, Shepard said, "we definitely need the additional millage in order to put ourselves into a reasonable condition. We ended our fiscal year with a zero balance," he noted. "Without the money, our programs would stop."

The vote would be for a ceiling amount, Shepard explained. The board could decide not to levy the full amount.

"Our projections show we may not have to levy more than 1.65 mills."

The Char-Em millage has always been chartered. It's like the allocated millage in a township, Shepard said. Once allocated, it always goes, unlike local public school operational millage which must be voted anew every year.

Char-Em has had one mill chartered. This spring it asked an increase of .8 mill, which would have become part of the chartered millage.

Changing the .8 from chartered to "evaluated in three years" might cause a slight legal problem, Shepard said. But another district in the state asked a limited amount and it wasn't challenged.

"Our attorneys tell us that they do not feel that any court would keep us from levying such a millage," Shepard said.

He pointed out that with uncertain economic times, millage really should be voted for a definite period of time.

The necessity for the request increase became evident last winter when news of state cuts began coming out of Lansing.

75, but it has hovered around 40 to 45 percent for two years."

As the economy took a dive, Shepard said, the state contributed only about 15 percent.

The state and federal governments require these programs, Shepard said, "It's good programming and I don't think it's excessive in most cases."

"There are some neat little bright little kids out there."

"If you go back about four years," Shepard explained, "when mandatory special education came into effect, up to 75 percent of the funding was eligible to come from the state. It never did reach

But if the government doesn't contribute, either the district or the individual schools will have to pick up the slack. Mandated programs cannot just be dropped."

As it has been noted in the past, it is more efficient for the intermediate district to operate such specialized activities than to require each school to provide full services for the few students it may have who are deaf or otherwise handicapped.

Children have shown the benefits of these programs, Shepard said. Programs are presented at the level at which the child is able to function.

"A number of years ago," he went on, "hard-of-hearing children would never have learned. The result is these children are now going to be part of things."

"There are some neat little, bright little kids out there who would not have been productive. I am an advocate of reaching handicapped children and helping—working with their parents, providing techniques for them, as soon after the child is born as we can."

Char-Em oversees six classrooms distributed throughout the area for children in various categories of disability: for those who are hard of hearing, have impaired sight, are mentally or emotionally handicapped, have speech disabilities, learning disabilities, or other physical handicaps.

Not all children served by Char-Em are in special classrooms—only the most severe cases. The total load is 1,000 students a year.

To accommodate the earlier drop in revenues Shepard said last spring they laid off 17 people, a secretary, learning disabilities people, and so on. "We shuffled staff," he said, "with what was left."

The Char-Em vote will not have the advantage of being part of a school election. It is part of Shepard's concern that people will not realize it will be going on.

BC commission seats will need to be filled

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

BOYNE CITY - The terms of three of the five city commissioners will have run out this November. Two of the commissioners plan to run again. Catherine Jessup and Steve Moody have both said they would be on the ballot.

Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, who has served on the commission since 1966 and been mayor for three terms, is not so sure.

The mayor in Boyne City is chosen by the commissioners from among themselves after the election. He or she is not elected mayor by the city voters.

Whether Fitzpatrick runs again or not, he said he can look at many changes since he took office the first time. He approves of the city manager system, begun more than a decade ago.

"I think it's worked very well. A city manager has far more time to devote than does the strictly council-type government," he said.

The mayor is particularly satisfied with the capital improvements program begun last year, and, he said, with the growth of the town. He would like to see future growth controlled and utilities repaired.

"We have to keep ahead of city growth, and there's an awful lot of work to do on streets and sewer and water,"

he concluded.

Commissioner Steve Moody is also growth-conscious. It makes serving the city both important and time consuming, he laughed, but added he likes to participate.

Jessup's review of her past four years highlighted the Front Street issue. "It involved the whole community," she said. "So does our new and up-to-date system of budgeting, although people are not as aware of it."

Jessup, too, stressed the capital improvements program and also named the comprehensive plan as an important step in city progress.

Backing the city-manager form of government, she said, "If you choose the proper one, everything goes easier. I think we chose the proper one."

She added, "The manager is the one who tweaks the system, and makes it work."

Looking ahead, Jessup said she would like to see action on the Air-Industrial Park. And she, like the others, wants to see the new capital improvements program carried out.

Want to run?

If you are thinking you should run for office, petitions will be available in Boyne City City Hall on Thursday, Sept. 17. Clerk Tom Garlock said not less than 20 nor more than 40 signatures must be collected to make you a candidate.

Petitions are due back at City Hall by Oct. 2 for the Nov. 3 election.

In Boyne City every candidate represents the whole city. There are no wards, nor do candidates run for any political party.

EJ schools solve com ed problem

EAST JORDAN - Without a community education director for the past three weeks, the East Jordan school district has solved the problem by joining the Straits Area Consortium.

"They will provide the expertise," Superintendent Tom Rossler said. "All funding for adult education is taken care of through the consortium which will use state funds," he added.

The superintendent met with Boyne City and talked with several other school districts. The need for an administrator for community education was difficult to meet because, Rossler explained, it was a part-time position, and could not be combined with another part-time position.

"We will still have our program here," he emphasized.

People who are interested in teaching the high school completion courses that make up adult education may call 536-3241. This phone is also for people wanting counseling on what courses to start with.

Advertising will go out through the media, Rossler said. There won't be time this year to send brochures out to residents, as classes will be starting in less than two weeks.

"We will also begin enrichment classes later on," Rossler said. These classes require a small fee from students, although adult education continues to be free.

The consortium solution is for one year, Rossler explained. Then the school board will "assess the program, evaluate the results, and make another decision at that time."

Lakefront walkway project off until next year

BOYNE CITY - A walk with benches along the way was to have been built on the lakefront at Veteran's Memorial Park, but it won't be built this year.

The city commission last Tuesday voted to postpone the project till next year, following review of bids. The lowest of the four bids was about twice the $9,500 that was budgeted this year for the walk.

The bids were rejected. The money will be held over, and the commission will study possible alternative materials, as well as the possibility of additional funds.

The original idea of an asphalt public walk from the base of Water Street to the Little League baseball field received four public hearings—once for the Coastal Zone Study grant proposal, and

Bay Township board members facing possible recall

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Bay Township residents may be asked to sign a petition soon that requests a recall of three township board members. It will be the second petition circulated in the township this summer.

To update the township's zoning ordinance, John Hess of Site Planning Development was hired by the board on a three to two split vote on August 14. A petition opposed to the hiring of Hess was presented to the board at that time. It was signed by 120 township residents.

"They ignored the petition and hired him anyway," said Harold Johncheck, one of the two township board members who voted no. "I don't agree with the board and I don't think we have to hire the guy for that amount of money."

"The reason for the recall is because the board is doing things that they want to do, without listening to the people," added Johncheck.

The petition will call for the recall of board members Elaine Smith, Bill Ohle and Carl Skornia, township supervisor, who voted in favor of hiring Hess for a sum of and not to exceed $4,700. However, The Press was unable to contact anyone who is organizing the petition and was told that it is in the process of being drawn up legally.

"Hess had worked with us on a contractual basis for the comprehensive plan. We were struggling with the zoning ordinance, trying to update and clarify it and follow through with the comprehensive plan. Hess was hired to help us for the sum of $4,700 which included expenses and printing of any documents," said board member Smith.

"We want a very rural, residential community but the township includes land bordering on two lakes and we want to have an updated zoning ordinance so that we may be better prepared for development," Smith added. "The idea is to control development and developers. The zoning ordinance gives us leverage."

But according to Johncheck the board should be able to revise and update the zoning ordinance without outside help. "It seems as if Hess wrote the comprehensive plan for his own benefit. The board should have been able to write the plan and the ordinance themselves," said Johncheck.

Members of the township planning board recommended that Hess be hired for his professional assistance. "I think we made a wise move. We needed his help so that the zoning ordinance would stand up legally. Certain things in the ordinance need to be changed and improved," said Lee Ekstrom, planning commission member.

United Tech donates to Charlevoix hospital

BOYNE CITY - Donations to the Charlevoix Area Hospital building fund continue even though the new wing and renovations are complete and dedicated.

John DiMartino, plant manager for the Boyne City division of United Technologies (formerly Essex International), presented Thomas Carey, hospital board president during the building project, and Kathy Boss, manager of patient services, with a check for $1500 last week.

One of the new two-bed rooms in the new wing will bear a plaque commemorating United Technologies' donation.

Carey commented that "The continued generosity of area businesses and individuals means that the hospital can reduce its indebtedness at a faster rate."

The fund drive has now netted over $800,000 for the costs of the renovations and construction of the new wing. The balance of costs were met with an FHA low interest loan.

DiMartino said the United Technologies tries to budget donations to Charlevoix Area Hospital every year. "Our employees use this hospital and we feel a responsibility to support it."

Viewpoints

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

Going to school for the first time, or even for the first day of another year, has its excitement—and sometimes fear.

According to Gaston E. Blom, M.D., who teaches elementary and special education at Michigan State University, probably the best thing parents can do is give their children a chance to talk about their anxieties, unless they already have encouraged them over the months to have a good sense of anticipation.

For first-time students, Blom suggests practice walks to school. We could add to that, for bus riders, maybe even a visit and walk around the halls before school opens.

Talking is beneficial, balancing out the "horror stories" pre-school children may have heard from older kids about mean principals or difficult lessons.

School isn't really scary or hard. Parents can give their children the understanding that school is nothing to fear if, as Blom says, they will take the time to talk about it.

Teenagers are often reluctant to discuss their feelings. They already know the approach their parents will take. Blom says they may be better off talking to a family friend or a youth worker.

Yet, even if they don't want to talk about it, parents can still help them with reassurances. The more parents stay in contact with the school, the more real the reassurances can be.

If parents know that a certain teacher is hopeful about their son or daughter, they can afford to be encouraging. Or they can find some skill in their child to praise.

Well-founded encouragement is the finest thing parents can send with their youngsters.

Even despair over one's child doesn't have to carry over. This is a new year. Parents can go to school themselves and find out what they can do to help.

It's a great point of view when there are problems. Children often come home with their side of the story—sometimes exaggerated because naturally who wants to get punished.

How many times have teachers wished the parents could hear their side of the story.

Teachers do care.

So this is to say, yes. Professor Blom—talking about it is better than not talking.

again with the parks and recreation commission, then the planning commission, and finally the city commission.

As City Manager Tim Clifton said, "Citizen approval was indicated." It was the first part of the larger plan for the park, including a beach and other improvements, to be added over the years.

The walk was to give residents and tourists a way of socially enjoying the waterfront, enhancing Boyne City's important natural feature—the lake.

There has been a telephone campaign by some residents against what they call "an unneeded improvement," but the commissioners' comment was that "this is a valid project" in the interests of everyone, and one which had received an affirmative response in the four hearings.

Two of the rejected bids did not have all requirements fulfilled, Clifton said, particularly in reference to bonding.

The possibility of having the walks made of concrete was offered in the bids, but the effect desired is more informal, although a fairly hard surface was the preference of the various commissions.

Finding an inexpensive hard surface will be the problem for the city commission to resolve in the interim before reconsideration of the project next year.

New community ed director brings zest

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

BOYNE CITY - Only a person who hasn't taken a course yet in community education would fail to recognize the name, Shelly Cobe.

Cobe was assistant director last year, working with director Judy Johnson. Now that Johnson has moved away, Cobe will shoulder the directorship, but will have to do it all part-time, as one of the results of school budget cuts.

But part-time Cobe is not short on zest for the job.

"I firmly believe education is a life-long process," she said, adding that it could be simple things that make the difference—not necessarily something as profound as a schedule of courses in philosophy.

Cobe is as enthusiastic about a course in carpentry or a gym class like the one she taught last year as she is about English literature or beginning calculus.

She mentioned a woman 94 years old who won her high school diploma in community ed last year in the Upper Peninsula.

"I don't think people realize how much adult ed. changes them," she said. "They become very alert. More sure about themselves."

This year because of the budget cut, Cobe said the priority will be "providing a good, solid basis in adult ed." But she is trying also to add vocational education courses—maybe basic electricity and woodworking, and courses in office skills like typing and accounting. "The Boyne City picture is typical," she explained. "Michigan schools are having to cut back."

Now that Boyne City is off the state aid formula, community ed. no longer receives state funds.

However, Cobe added, "the school board is really supportive of community ed. and is trying to provide a program."

It isn't hard to get Cobe to talk about the program, past and future.

"There's always a need for enrichment even if there isn't a need for a high school diploma," she said. "I'm convinced there's a lot of people out there who want to come back for their high school education, though. We get quite a few calls."

One of the services of the program is to take high school students who may have, for one reason or another, recently dropped out of school.

They may enter the night classes of community ed. with the approval of the director and the principal.

"We have people who take only a class here and there," Cobe said, explaining the options.

At the other extreme was a man who took classes four nights a week for three years, besides holding a job and having a family.

And this past year his wife, too, went three nights a week.

Why should a woman who is not job-hunting need or want to go back to school?

Cobe's response is well-seasoned with what she's heard such women say.

They never know—they might have to work some day. And the high school education makes further education possible—college or trade school.

They say it helps their children take school more seriously. They all do homework together. They no longer hear their children say, "You didn't finish school; why should I?"

And it helps in raising children, that most important job.

What if people say, "I never was good at school?"

"They become amazed when they get into class," Cobe responded. "They do well. They find out it's fun. All the ideas of how it was for them just fade away."

Cobe said it doesn't matter how old a person is or how long they've been away from school.

"If anyone wants an education, that's what I'm here for."

Cobe grew up in northern Idaho and the Upper Peninsula. She earned her B.A. at Ferris State College in 1974. Her major was community school education and recreation.

She taught English and physical education for one year at Sun Valley, Idaho, to fulfill requirements for her goal—community ed. administration, and two years ago started work on her master's degree at Central Michigan University. She has also served community ed. internships in two Michigan cities—Port Huron and Baldwin Community.

She said in some places businesses have allowed lunch hour classes or even given the last hour of the work day for their employees to have classes, because the improvement in their work makes it worth it.

"Education makes you spread your domain out," said Cobe.

The new "domains" will be listed in the community ed. brochure, coming out in September, Cobe said. The brochure will list courses and give registration dates.

One million elementary students will be starting school around the state on Sept. 9, and the Automobile Club of Michigan urges drivers to be careful. An auto club study revealed that most school-related pedestrian deaths involved jaywalking. Only one of 13 deaths in 1979 occurred at an intersection. Traffic accidents are the leading cause of death for children under the age of 14, a spokesman pointed out.

Mrs. Ruth (Eggers) Corbett of Kansas City, Mo. served as matron of honor and Jerry Nofsinger of Grand Rapids was best man. Other attendants included, Janice Koteskey of Kankakee, Ill., sister of the bride; Mary McWatters of Petoskey, Edwin Bradley of Houston, Texas, and James Linebaugh of Lyons. Michael and Daniel Koteskey, brothers of the bride, served as ushers during the ceremony.

Following a reception at the church the couple left on a wedding trip to Seattle, Wash. They will reside in Kankakee, Ill. where the bride is employed as a registered nurse at Riverside Medical Center. The groom is self-employed.

Opinions

It's time we meet the challenge

In the United States, we have in various ways committed ourselves to the education of the handicapped. Here in Charlevoix County, we can't go back on that humane choice.

But in June of this year, we voted down the request of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an additional .8 mill to support special education services. The negative vote was in part a vote against feeling caught up in the rising cost of things perhaps. It was also a vote against institutionalizing higher costs, because normally Char-Em's millage, once voted in, stays until it is voted out. In other words, it has been chartered millage.

Or it may have been a vote against bureaucratic growth. Ever more and more services, and services upon services seem to become necessary when dealing with children who are in wheelchairs or mentally unable to cope.

Such things as diagnosis at a technical level becomes necessary when decisions require government money—the people's money—to be spent.

Special attention and special training becomes necessary as these are not the provinces of public school teachers. If they were, we would have to pay for what would in most cases be overquali-fication on the job.

Our separate schools could each provide for the three or four children in their district who are disabled in some way, but it would cost more that way than if the children were gathered from several schools and taught together in their appropriate groups.

The vote may have reflected a feeling there was a proliferation of these services.

It is hard to believe it could have been a vote against children—a vote to keep defective children out, as they did in the old days when the lame beggars were not allowed inside the temple.

Now that Char-Em is again requesting the additional .8 mill, it is time to vote yes. The reasons are that the objections have been weighed and some action taken.

The district has economized. Staff cutbacks were severe. The millage will not be chartered, but will now come up for review in three years.

In addition, we could ask that parents make even more of an effort to learn how to encourage and train their children who are on the edges of what we call average and normal.

We could ourselves take the time to learn and to teach our children how to accommodate and be congenial with afflicted children as well as with those who are more average.

It is one of the misfortunes of this effort to help them that we set the handicapped apart, because they are only a little more—or less—so than we are ourselves, and the less differences are stressed, the better we understand each other.

Still, while they need special help, programs in school districts for helping to educate and train the handicapped are required now by the state. Someone must pay for them.

We can send our money for them through the state (with new legislation, restoring the cuts) or we can pay our public schools to do it or we can pay Char-Em.

The vote is really not whether or not to educate the handicapped, but now to pay for it.

Char-Em was challenged last spring, and did something about it. It looks like the challenge on September eighth is now up to us.

We print nearly all letters we receive. Priority is given to letters on local issues that have not appeared in other publications.

Only signed letters will be printed. Include your phone number so that we can verify who has written the letter. All letters, especially long ones, may be edited for length.

Local government could learn from Reagan

Editor,

I have always flatly refused to give blind, unquestioned allegiance to any political party. Partly because I am a bit close with a buck but mostly because I have never heard of a politician who had the guts to keep his word. Until now—that is. Now it would seem, we have a president who is going to do just that.

The powers that be in both parties are absolutely stunned. The Republicans never dreamed Reagan would turn out like this. They are embarrassed to find out that he expects them to act in a like manner and they have never had any training of this sort. It just simply isn't done in this day and age and they are finding it hard to cope with.

The Democrats, with Tip O'Neal and Teddy at the helm are completely flabbergasted. Their members of Congress that are up for reelection are deserting like flies in favor of a more secure umbrella even if it means voting for that so-and-so's programs.

Old Tip is in a real snit. Here he has a vast constituency of professional poor people that he has managed to keep on the dole and off the labor rolls and now along comes this upstart who says if they want to eat they have got to work—if able-bodied. Why that's sacrilegious, that's unethical, that's even immoral to say nothing of patriotism, motherhood and apple pie.

Their combined screams can be heard from coast to coast as the realization hits them. "My God, I've got to get a job and go to work—this guy means what he says." Teddy can't cope with an honest man either.

Now, wouldn't it be nice if our own little community could find enough people with this kind of integrity to run its business affairs?

Our present crop of city commissioners and manager dream of million dollar swimming holes that can be used only eight to 10 weeks out of the year with an average of five days a week that the weather is decent, of a board walk along the lakefront that won't be used, of a pair of stairs up Avalanche that 50 percent of the people of Boyne are too damn old to climb anyhow and the rest of us have no reason to.

They paid out some $35,000 for advice from some so-called experts to tell them what is wrong with our city and how to fix it. Ann Landers offers far better advice than that for free: "If it ain't broke—don't fix it."

If the people of Boyne City want a swimming hole, boardwalk, stairs or any other part of this little dream bad enough they'll get it the same way they got their baseball fields.

The commissioners and manager seem to think that if they can get the federal government to foot the bill, we, the people, won't have to pay for it. Someone has to take them over in the corner and explain the facts of life to them. They still believe in the cabbage patch and tooth fairy.

Free Press admits to inflation

Dear Marshall Sayles:

I just had the chance to read your column which noted some potentially inflated figures for a Boyne City celebration.

And I also noted your comment that "The Free Press does not lie on Sundays." Or any other day for that matter!

We do, however, make mistakes sometimes (which is one of the hazards of being human). When we do, we work even harder to make sure they're not repeated.

In this instance, reporter Peter Gavrilovich tells me:

"Embarrassing. The information about the 100,000 flocking to the Mushroom Festival in Boyne Falls came from the Auto Club. That organization keeps records on tourist attraction attendance. I assumed (always dangerous, of course) that when the fellow from the Auto Club told me the Mushroom Festival occurred in Boyne Falls, he knew what he was talking about."

In any event, I'm glad I had the opportunity to set the record straight in the pages of The Charlevoix County Press.

Yours for truth...

Enjoyed editorial

Editor,

I really enjoyed the editorial about August but I have something that says it all about August.

Unfortunately, I did not write it but I had to share it with someone.

"August is a plump, creamed cat, purring in the sun. The frantic energy of the growing season has slackened; the dress rehearsals of early summer are over; August is what summer has been aiming for.

"There is a truce now with the lawn and lawnmower, with weeds and crabgrass, with undone tasks, with energy and activity. Now, in August, there is time and license to sit and listen to deep summer."

Betty Volk in the
Cleveland Press

I am somewhat of a collector of poems and sentimental words of wisdom, and perhaps the only one in my age group who has read poems by Edgar A. Guest! (Thanks to my mother, who is also very sentimental.)

Thanks for letting me share one of my "collected words of wisdom."

Layers are the look this fall

BY TRISH WRIGHT

Fashions for this fall and winter 1981-82 season can easily be described in one word—ample.

It appears that every American and European designer has had not only the size of his industry in mind lately, but also the size of his creations.

With almost every model's sprint down the runway comes the designer's vision of what men and women with any sartorial bent should be ready-to-wear this season. And that vision, shared by top designers, is a voluminous one.

Layers of heavy cloth stitched into generous shapes will be displayed on many a store mannequin this fall. Separates will have shoppers scurrying from one department to another in search of flared skirts, tunics and shawls.

Except for very formal evening wear, a simple silhouette will not be seen unless it appears beneath knobby sweaters or waist-length jackets.

The slim skirt whose hemline has inched upward in recent seasons has now plummeted to mid-calf lengths and swirls in circles. And although straight skirts will be available for suiting, the focus will be on what clads the torso. Embroidered jackets, long tunics and high rise, ruffled collars will be romantic counterparts to the basic suit.

Attention has been diverted from the waist to the waist. Wide and soft leather and metallic belts cinch the shape of blanket dresses, turtlenecks and unconstructed looking coats.

"Accessories are mostly metallics," says Judy Bandemer, manager of The Casual Stop in Petoskey. "But there is a lot of gold flecks in clothing as well as shoes and accessories."

Skirts are definitely on the upswing this year, however, Bandemer adds that the trouser pant with fitted bottoms, knickers and culottes all in corduroy or velveteen will be versions of the pant theme.

Plaids, paisleys and tweeds will be in layered variations this fall just as russets, olives and browns will be combined for woodland tones. Menswear will feature lots of loden, grays and taupes. These subtle shades become active, however, if sportswear is integrated with suit pieces.

An old tweed suit takes a different twist when combined with a cable knit pullover or a berry colored V-neck vest. The look is a little more casual and textured.

And although pleats are losing their popularity on men's pants, they are gaining on women's skirts. "We're seeing more pleats and pleats than before," says Lee Teller of Daily L in Petoskey. "And separates, which have always been the choice of most school-age girls, will be layered and monogrammed to a greater extent this fall."

Children's clothes, usually a season or two behind the styles of womenswear, have teamed up with personalized accessories for a fun fashion statement of their own.

"The demand for monogramming and personalizing accessories and clothing has substantially increased in the children's market," says Richard Hanten of Richard Hanten's Clothing for Children in Petoskey.

Hair ribbons, barrettes, socks and even shoe laces are printed and personalized now. Blue whales, green frogs and red hearts are on turtlenecks, belts and ribbons. And an applique that once may have been considered a detraction from the piece of clothing it decorated is now seen on every item in the ensemble.

"A jumper with a balloon applique today sells because it has a matching sweater, socks and even hair ribbon. The applique is on everything."

Hanten believes that even though women may cut back on their own wardrobes, they will still be selective when purchasing clothes for their children. And what has been a staple item in mother's closet will usually sell well once it is manufactured for children.

"The bermuda bag is available for little girls now and is selling very well, as is the patterned Fair Isle crew neck sweater. Children's clothes are still quite traditional but there are lots of requests for unusual things like hand-painted names, appliques and decorated overalls."

EJ buses need safety inside, too

"The school bus is the extension of the school classroom," said Doug Shields, East Jordan Middle School principal.

"All of the rules relating to the classroom, relate to the bus," he explained.

In addition, there is a $25,000 vehicle and the priceless lives of those inside to think about.

One bus driver described it this way. "You are fighting the snow that loads down the windshield wipers and you have 60 screaming kids and not always can you stop and get some order in there..." He shook his head.

Many children will be riding the bus for the first time in their lives. The rules posted inside on the front of the bus are pretty much what you would want in your car:

- Do not move around.
- Face forward.
- No heads and arms out the windows.
- No profane language.
- No throwing things.
- No punching or kicking.
- No eating or gum chewing.
- "Drivers," reminded Sam Bricker who is in charge of student transportation in East Jordan, "Drivers have to keep their eyes on the road."

This seems pretty obvious until you remember those 60 children behind the driver. Who's keeping an eye on them?

Driver Cameron Graham has an experienced point of view about bus driving. "Ninety percent of the kids are perfect," he said. For the other 10 percent—well...

"You have to be the boss on the bus and the kids have to know that. You can't be hollering from one end of the bus. I stop the bus and go back and talk to any trouble makers," he explained.

"I have a front seat for whoever needs it," he added.

"I feel I am part of the staff," Graham said. "The main thing is the cooperation of the school administration."

School Superintendent Tom Rossler backs his bus drivers this way: "Transportation is one of the most important components of the school program."

He noted the bus driver is the student's first contact with school. "Both have to have a positive attitude to get off to a good start."

When things get negative the driver may have to warn a student that he or she will not be picked up the next day. Parents are also informed.

Once in awhile a driver will go talk to the parents in order to help get the situation cleared up.

"Riding the bus is a privilege," said Shields. "It will be denied those individuals who cannot control themselves." He emphasized the safety factor in good behavior.

Some school districts have had to withdraw this expensive privilege as they face shrinking revenues. Legislation is being studied to permit a class four school district (East Jordan is class four) to close out school bussing if it becomes necessary.

In the past, drivers attended night classes two or three times a year. The classes, given by Michigan Central University, were on safety and discipline. Bricker said only new drivers will receive the training from now on.

Many bus drivers have been on the staff for more than 15 years.

How do they do it?

"It takes a real dedicated person," said Shields, "to sit behind the wheel."

Grand opening for Warm Spot

The Warm Spot grand opening becomes official this week when a new sign is hung over the area's newest woodstove shop.

Owners Bob and Roseann Herrmann recently opened their new location in the middle of downtown Boyne City at 108 Water Street and are selling several lines of quality wood stoves.

While the Warm Spot is the new in-town store outlet, Reh Acres, Inc. may be a more familiar name as it was here that the Herrmanns got their start in the wood burning business in 1975.

Festivities will be marked with registration for a grand prize winner to be named Saturday, Sept. 5. Refreshments will be served at the Warm Spot all week long.

Customers will be greeted by the Herrmanns and will have an opportunity to meet sales manager Irvine 'Shorty' Smith and his wife, Betty.

School board meetings

BOYNE CITY - The board of education will again be holding its regular monthly meetings on the second Monday of the month, starting in September.

That has been the regular meeting time of the board for the past several years, but meetings were recently changed to the second Tuesday.

That schedule was tried in August, but it was changed back to Mondays to avoid a conflict with the Boyne City Commission, which meets on the second Tuesday.

Railroad loses another hope

BOYNE CITY - With the city commission's reluctant negative vote Tuesday, Jordan Valley Railroad lost what is probably its last faint hope of escaping extinction.

Kate Schaefer, Chamber of Commerce director, laid the option before the commissioners, explaining the Chamber's unsuccessful efforts to find a grant.

The commissioners concluded that bonding the city for the $250,000 that would be needed to repair and carry on operations would be unfair. The bond would have to be paid off with a one mill request going for 10 years.

Founded in 1893, the 7.2 mile railroad spent its final decades providing a scenic journey for tourists and residents, being sold and resold in the process.

Most recently, Lake Associates had been involved in trying to save the landmark, but after a thorough study, had given up the idea.

Cookin'

with Bea Smith

The markets are overflowing with all kinds of squash like the yellow crook neck or straight neck, the dark green zucchini and the pale green, scalloped patty pans. These watery, tender varieties require very little cooking, and are delicious just steamed, or cooked in very little water and seasoned with salt, pepper and butter. However, they blend very well with other vegetables and can be the basis for casseroles or meal-in-one dishes.

Rosalind McClanaghan fixes zucchini squash. She says that she does not have the exact amounts; she is one of these terrific cooks who goes by how hungry her husband is and how many of her children will be home, for the amount of ingredients. I made it with these amounts.

ROSALIND'S SQUASH

1/2 cup grated sharp cheese
1 cup cooked rice
1/2 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup chopped peppers Season with salt and pepper, garlic salt, if you wish, or oregano. Then with an apple corer remove the centers of about six zucchini squash and stuff with the above mixture. Put into a casserole or baking pan and cover with soup. Rosalind usually uses tomato soup for this but she says that you can use mushrooms, onion, or celery soup for whatever flavor you like best. Sprinkle generously with parmesan cheese. Bake this covered until squash is tender, about 1/2 hour at 350 degrees.

If you have more filling than squash, just make little meatballs with the remainder and put in the casserole and bake with the squash.

Rosalind has another recipe for squash like this:

LAYERED SQUASH

Layer in casserole:
Sliced yellow squash
Sliced zucchini squash
Sliced green pepper
Sliced tomatoes
Put layers of sharp grated cheese between these vegetables. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and bake with cover until tender. About 350 degrees.

My friend and neighbor, Lucille Shively, gave me this delicious recipe for zucchini bread. Bake this one of these cool mornings and put in the freezer for one of those times when you want something special to serve the girls with a cup of tea.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

3 eggs
2 cups coarsely grated zucchini
1 cup oil
2 cups sugar
2 cups flour sifted with:
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup nut meats

In mixer beat eggs, add oil and zucchini, then add dry ingredients and mix well. Add vanilla and nuts. Pour into 2 oiled and floured 5x9 inch loaf pans. Bake one hour at 350 degrees.

This bread freezes very well. Recipes for acorn, buttercup, butternut and hubbard squash will be forthcoming. We welcome any new ideas.

Cluster concept for mail delivery announced

BOYNE CITY - To save time and cut costs, the United States Post Office has developed a "new delivery concept." People moving in and needing mail service will have to have a box on a post on the roadside. People who live on streets with some distance between houses are being asked to do the same. And any new subdivisions or condominiums will have to have mail delivery to clustered boxes.

These will all be provided free by the local post office. In the case of cluster-boxes, a key will also be provided.

Boysen Falls Postmaster Frank Jasinski said he has completed setting up the new delivery in the city, taking out the areas most costly to the department, including streets where the carrier has long stretches to walk between deliveries, and then must return to his jeep where the rest of the mail is carried.

Jasinski pointed out the carrier must then drive past those same houses to get to his next parking station.

He said, however, that delivering mail to curb-mounted boxes is not cost-saving in areas where houses line both sides of the road. The curb-side post boxes will not be used in such high density areas.

Concern has been expressed that it will be hard for elderly people to go out to get their mail, and also that boxes lining the street will make it harder for drivers of snow plows.

Women's slow pitch holds banquet

BOYNE CITY - The Women's Slow Pitch League held their annual banquet on Aug. 25 at the Masonic Temple. Guest speaker was District Judge Harvey Varnum.

The league took the occasion to honor the Northern Michigan Umpires' Association, the Boyne Valley Lions and Lionesses, and the Rotarians for making league play possible at the park.

Officers for 1982 season were elected: Kris Leist, president; Tammy Ryder, secretary; Sara Bricker, treasurer.

Another Great Summer!

Supplement to the Charlevoix County Press

September 3, 1981

Last week for summer

Are you coming to the realization that summer is almost over and it hasn't brought you all those things you fantasized about last March and April.

You haven't had that garage sale yet. Your perfect tan faded after the Fourth of July and you haven't quite gotten it back again.

This was going to be the year that even though you are a local resident and work during the summer, you were going to take some time out to rent a pontoon boat or a motor boat or even a canoe to enjoy one of the beautiful lakes in this area.

Or maybe you haven't walked every day to lose those extra pounds which you were sure would just peel off once the warm weather hit and you could exercise outdoors comfortably.

Or perhaps you planned to try a special restaurant or see a particular band perform. Have you done it yet?

There is no time like the present to enjoy what is left of a beautiful northern Michigan summer.

Here are some suggestions of things you may want to try this Labor Day weekend.

1. Rent a boat at one of the area marinas and go out on Lake Charlevoix to enjoy watching the Red Fox Regatta. It will give you a different perspective of this area than you had on land. Besides, the telephone can't reach you in the middle of the lake.

2. Hike one of our area nature trails. Warner Creek on M-32 is a beautiful trail almost four miles long. Springbrook Pathway on Chandler Hill Road near Thunder Mountain is positively idyllic. It offers a three and a four mile loop. Deadman's Hill in the Jordan River State Forest has a spectacular view at the beginning of a three mile trail. It is off of 131 south of Boyne Falls.

3. Ride Charlevoix County's newest tourist attraction, the Bay Queen. Guys, this is a real way to impress a date with a romantic evening. Lunch and dinner reservations are available seven days a week. Saturday evenings there is a cruise beginning at 11 p.m. for those who prefer a night club type of atmosphere.

4. See the Jelly Roll Blues Band, a local group that has been gaining in popularity this summer. They're hot and they will be playing at Duffy's Country Inn in Harbor Springs this weekend.

5. If you prefer a quieter evening with folk music and some bawdy jokes, go to see the Irish folksinger who is many tourists' favorite attraction in this area, Sean Ryan. Ryan's Public House is in old State Road just off of M-75, just outside of Boyne City.

6. Younger people may enjoy the Flight Deck in Charlevoix, the Mogul Inn in Boyne City and Little Caesar's Pizza Parlor in Petoskey.

7. C & W fans should try the Tucker Inn on Advance Road between Boyne City and East Jordan and the Walnut in Boyne City.

8. Eat at a new restaurant in Charlevoix called the Great Lakes Whitefish Company. Whitefish and chips is delicious and only $4.95.

9. Meet bartender Margie Fortune at the Tannery Saloon in Boyne City if you don't already know her. It's Margie's personality that makes that place a cozy local bar.

10. Go swimming. That's right. Have you been in the water yet this year? East Jordan has two beautiful beaches to try. With the children, the Tourist Park is the place to go. There is playground equipment and a raft. For a more secluded beach travel on M-66 toward Charlevoix past the Tourist Park to Elm Pointe. The spot is truly one of the most beautiful places in the county.

11. While you are at Elm Pointe visit the Historical Museum. Or visit the Historical Museum in Petoskey on the waterfront.

12. But if you really like both secluded beaches and museums, Charlevoix County's Beaver Island is the place to go. St. James boasts three museums which are all fascinating. There is a Marine Museum, a Historical Museum, and a Toy Museum. In the toy museum, you'll meet a delightful couple, Mary and Larry Scholl. He collects antique toys. She creates inexpensive toys with her imagination and paints. They plan to start a toy mail order house.

The possibilities are endless. Labor Day is a day of rest for the workers. Spend it doing something you will truly enjoy.

Superman ice cream makes shopping at Rainy Day Lady in Boyne City fun for the kids.

Summer of ice cream

Nineteen eighty-one will be known as the summer of ice cream in Boyne City. Besides the already booming Dairy Queen business in town, two new places began to sell ice cream.

Rainy Day Lady on Water Street stayed open until 10 p.m. each night to sell its scrumptious ice cream.

The Little Dipper opened up on State Street. Weight Watchers are in seventh heaven there, because they sell Weight Watcher Ice Cream. They also are Boyne City's first fudge shop.

Sailors will be testing their skills during this year's Red Fox Regatta Sept. 5 and 6.

Red Fox Regatta slated for Saturday

One of the oldest sailboat races in Charlevoix County will once again be taking place this weekend on Lake Charlevoix. It is the Red Fox Regatta.

The race got its name from the old Red Fox Inn in Horton Bay. It has been an annual event for over 15 years.

Over 60 sailboats are expected to enter this year's race according to Warren Todter, the race chairman. You'll be able to see them gracefully making their way across Lake Charlevoix from Charlevoix to Boyne City on Saturday, Sept. 5 and from Boyne City back to Charlevoix on Sunday.

There will be evening activities for race participants in Boyne City's Veteran's Memorial Park Pavilion.

The race is divided into four divisions for judging purposes. It is open to only mono-hull off-shore boats.

Labor Day weekend, Lake Charlevoix will be full of sailboats with sailors aboard who will be testing their racing skills. It is a nice way for race participants to spend their last summer fling.

Summer's last fling

The leaves already hint of fall in the air. School will be starting soon. Charlevoix County residents and visitors alike are gearing up to celebrate the summer's last big weekend—Labor Day.

Pictured on this page and in stories in this issue of Fun and Sun are suggestions of ways to spend your last summer fling in Charlevoix County.

This is the summer's last issue of Fun & Sun. We have already explored food, entertainment, watersports, unique shopping, recreation, romantic places and other topics this summer. Now it is up to our readers to fit in the activities they won't want to miss before the summer ends and fall is upon us.

Enjoy Charlevoix County this weekend.

Enjoy fall on a color cruise

With the end of summer approaching, many area residents and visitors are anxiously awaiting the fall color season.

A unique way to see the colors is to take a cruise around Lake Charlevoix aboard the motorship Beaver Islander.

Annual color cruises are sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. This year's cruises will be held Sept. 26 and Oct. 3, 4, 10 and 11.

Ticket prices are $7 for adults and $3 for children. Drinks are also available. Jacquie Merta of the Chamber of Commerce urges people to buy tickets in advance because past years' cruises have been sell-outs.

The destination of the cruise is a "Captain's choice," with the captain cruising either to Boyne City or East Jordan. Bring your camera and binoculars to catch the brilliant shoreline colors.

For further information, contact the Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101.

The Beaver Islander will again be cruising Lake Charlevoix for annual fall color cruises. The boat has a protective cover and the cruises are held rain or shine.

Swimming

"Geronimo," says Sharon Carson of Boyne City, as she jumps in the water. Her friends Theresa Mapes and Heather Massey look on.

What do people like to do outdoors in Charlevoix County? Fun and Sun asked some people and here is what they said. Steve Weber of East Jordan enjoys playing tennis, although he confessed that he rarely found the time to play. Mike Etienne of Plymouth, Michigan likes to come to Boyne City to sail. Denise Bal of Norway, who was in Boyne City for the first time, enjoyed relaxing and sailing. When Craig Hoffman of Plymouth comes up north, he enjoys the local bar scene and having a drink or two. Alan Baskins of Plymouth likes to sail. This Plymouth group of people were enjoying an A&W picnic in Veterans' Memorial Park when they were interviewed. They seemed to enjoy the sunshine. Natia and Heidi Soave, ages 4 and 12 from Detroit, like to swim when they come up north. Heather Massey and a group of her friends from Boyne City enjoy swimming and biking. Bessie Hankins from Petoskey and Lottie Tobin from Empire just enjoy sitting in the park and enjoying the scenery. They were in Boyne City to visit friends.

Artist and Antique Tour Guide

Northwestern Michigan has many fine antique shops. It's fun to take a drive through our pretty countryside and make up your own antique shop tour as you go. To find the shops, check the map below.

A SIMPLE SOLUTION TO A COMPLEX PROBLEM — BOAT SLIP OWNERSHIP

Northwest Marine Yacht Basin Condominiums...an idea that has come of age. This unique concept revolutionizes boat docking and storage by guaranteeing boaters the security of a permanent waterfront boat space for a minimal monthly payment. This equity-building, real estate investment is a viable, economical alternative to purchasing and maintaining a lakefront secondary home primarily for water access. And, an alternative to paying rent year after year and owning nothing.

Northwest Marine Yacht Basin Condominiums are nestled in the natural splendor of Lake Charlevoix and have a natural access to Lake Michigan. This boating paradise provides an escape from the everyday bustle and crowds and yet it is conveniently located 10 minutes from downtown Charlevoix. It will include a building complex with a three story atrium, offering diners at the third floor restaurant a magnificent view of the harbor and Lake Charlevoix. First floor businesses will include such shops as a delicatessen, bakery, party store and a boating supply store. An adjacent bath house facility will provide the clean, comfortable conveniences of home.

This spectacular development consists of two construction phases. The first phase includes sixty-six slips. Thirty-six slips will accommodate up to a 34 foot boat and thirty slips for boats to 44 feet in length. Special provisions for accommodating vessels larger than 44 feet may also be made. Each slip is individually metered for both water and electricity to ensure the independence of each owner.

For more information about Northwest Marine Yacht Basin Condominium and how to become a lakefront landlord on scenic Lake Charlevoix, contact Northwest Marine at 616-547-4088. OR WRITE TO: Northwest Marine, 104 Michigan Avenue, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Real Estate Report

BY TRISH WRIGHT
Recent predictions on the rise and fall of home mortgage rates concur that there won't be more than a one or two percent dip in the next year, and that they may be inching higher this summer before slightly retreating by the end of this year.
However, since high interest rates are making the traditional long term, fixed rate home mortgages a thing of the past, a variety of non-conventional or creative mortgages have come into play. And many local realtors have reasoned that counseling clients has made a significant difference in their business.

"It's the fellow who wants to sell his house and move up to another more expensive home who has been the hardest hit," said Martin Bieganowski of Bieganowski and Associates in Boyne City.
"The properties other than primary dwellings are somewhat discretionary and acreage is moving. But even though we've had traffic comparable to last year, it's becoming harder to close a deal."

To help satisfy the needs of their clients Bieganowski and Associates has taken a people, rather than a property, approach toward the real estate market.
"We take inventory of a person's wants and what is available to satisfy him. By counseling and taking time with the buyer, we're fitting people to property," said Bieganowski.

Counseling clients may be the key to continued success in marketing real estate. Variable rates, renegotiable rates and shared-appreciation mortgages—all alternatives to the fixed rate mortgage—came with a built-in element of risk, in that the interest paid several years from now could be higher than the starting rate.

With counseling the buyer or seller may realize other alternatives to the cash sale. "It's a challenging market but we have had the best year ever and the reason for it has a lot to do with being honest about the current situation, knowing the market, what is selling and then relating that to our client," said Mark Kowalske of Ski and Shore Properties, Inc. in Boyne City.

"We're spending more time sharing ideas with clients. Exchanging properties is getting more popular now and bartering has become a vehicle to get the job done when cash is not available.

 "Real estate is just like any other commodity and I personally think it's one of the best investments people can make. However, people have to realize that prices can and will go down," added Kowalske.

 The Kiplinger Letter from Washington D. C. has it that although dropping prices have been reported in many metropolitan areas, including Detroit, there has been no indication of a crash in home values. Rather, the seller often subsidizes the cost of the sale by accepting land contract terms on which usury laws mandate a maximum of 11 percent.

Over a period of time the seller has dropped the price of his house when he earns only 11 percent interest on his money from the buyer rather than earning an approximate 18 percent, the value of money determined by the marketplace.

"People just aren't selling for cash like they used to do," said Kowalske. A buyer may have some cash and a sailboat. If the seller is interested at all in sailing, he may sell his house sooner by accepting the cash available and bartering for the sailboat rather than waiting for the full cash offer. Transferring equities is what we're doing. Five years ago that was practically unheard of."

Kowalske believes that solving people's problems and helping people meet their goals by putting a realistic value on their property is the obligation of the realtor today. "I have to see myself as a problem solver not just a real estate agent, in order to stay in business."

"If I have to wait for the economy to turn around I'll wait all my life to do something. As it is the only government program we're using now for financing is Farm Home with its loan interest loan," Kowalske said.

Lake frontage and vacant properties are selling well in Charlevoix County and according to John Buick of Buick Real Estate in Boyne City, there are many people in the area looking for investment properties.

"Our office has had a very good summer," said Buick. "The top of the line pieces are selling but the in-town moderately priced home isn't moving as fast. Almost everything is being sold on land contract terms."

Gary Winters

Gary Winters of Charlevoix Properties in Boyne City agreed but added, "There has been some pick-up in the primary home market. And that's a good sign because the in-town residential has been soft. Yet, I'm having one of my best years."

Winters said, "About 70 to 80 percent of the sales in a year take place during the late summer and fall months. We have some strong selling months ahead. I've seen a sharp increase in buyers in just the last two weeks."

Looking back on school daze

Back to school books. Back to school clothes. Back to school pads and pencils.

That's what Boyne City merchants are pushing at their stores. Get ready now, they say, because school will open before you can turn around.

It's true. Television sets will be turned off, books will be cracked and students will again be whipped with the intellectual rod.

get an idea how a mugwump talks in later life.)

All my parents wanted me to do was to graduate from high school, get a job and behave myself. The first two weren't so hard, but I had a rough time with that last one.

Yes, things are so different today. Many parents now figure that if their children don't grind out five or six years of college they'll never be able to compute worth a hoot.

In fact, the educational demand put on children often amazes me.

Just the other day I heard a concerned parent arguing with his son who wanted to open an all-night pizza parlor in Elmira.

In the excitement, I heard him yell, "You're going to college and learn to become a genius, you fool!"

Marshall Sayles

Those wishing to learn will pay attention and work hard; those whose heads hurt when they study will go untaught and become mugwumps in a society where there's only a slight demand for a mug with an uneducated wump.

The future lies in computers, electronics and other technologies beyond the grasp of the Geritol set. Which means a student must become a genius if he's to get anywhere in this computerized circus. Every youngster seems programmed to learn, learn, learn. Even the shiftless and lazy don't feel good unless they have an education.

Heavens, how the generation gaps.

I did not go to high school to learn. I went because my folks pointed, saying, "Git!" And it always seemed to happen at a time when I was wandering barefoot through a potato patch smoking corn silk and feeling like a man.

If you could read and write and do that other stuff, you had it made. What a sugar and spice set-up! Even though I didn't know it at the time.

More than one teacher threw a great wad of intelligence at me and missed; it was almost as exciting as being shot at and missed.

Secretly, I wanted to grow up and become a genius without having to learn anything. Little did I know that it was hard enough to grow up without getting an education.

But it wouldn't have made any difference, anyway. Schools hadn't yet gotten the hang of teaching the art of becoming a genius. It was just that universities hadn't taught enough teaching so teachers could properly teach taughting. (I said that so you can
