300 sign petitions against Shields' ouster

By BARBARA CRUDEN and DON DIBLEY

The dismissal of middle school principal Doug Shields last week caught residents by surprise and has spawned an effort to have him reinstated as high school principal.

More than 300 people have signed petitions so far asking that Shields be retained, drive organizer Gigi Antoine said Tuesday afternoon, and the petitions are still being circulated. It was announced at the Tuesday, March 9, school board meeting that Shields' position was being eliminated and that the middle school students would be absorbed into the other two schools.

Superintendent Tom Rossler said it had not been decided yet how the grades would be split between the high school and elementary. The split, he said, could be kindergarten to sixth grade in the elementary, kindergarten to seventh or kindergarten to eighth. The board "regretfully" approved the elimination of Shields' job without any discussion.

A group of about 35 parents and students — mostly high school students — met Friday afternoon to form a committee to approach the board with arguments that Shields should be retained instead of high school principal Harry "Bud" Ashton.

The meeting was held without the knowledge of Shields, who has requested a closed hearing with the board. No date has yet been set for that hearing, Shields said Tuesday.

The petition requesting that Shields be retained was read at the Friday meeting and persons attending that session were asked to circulate it around town.

School body president Matt Koontz was threatened with suspension from school Tuesday morning by Ashton after the principal discovered a notice on the bulletin board saying Koontz had petitions for students to sign, according to Antoine, who helped organize the Friday meeting.

After Koontz' mother met with school officials, it was decided that he would not be suspended.

Persons who spoke at the Friday parents' meeting mostly emphasized Shields' good points, while some did make negative comments about Ashton's methods in handling students.

It was said that Shields possesses "beautiful interpersonal skills" and that students respect him even when they are disciplined. Ashton, several speakers said, does not have the same qualities or respect.

The petition also says that Shields has more seniority than any other administrator. Shields, who was hired as high school assistant principal, has been with the district for nine years.

Antoine said she has requested, on behalf of the committee, a meeting with the school board but has not yet received a reply.

EJ Schools' financial picture

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

"We will end the year in the black—a minimal amount—without unforeseen expenses coming up."

That's how financial supervisor Ruby Dipzinski summed up East Jordan Schools' monetary status in an interview.

"We have watched every penny," she said.

Schools are required by state law to stay in the black, but East Jordan's $2 million budget projected for next year, only slightly above this year's, is already threatened by cuts in state and federal aid.

One threat is the expected enrollment drop of about 55 students. The state aid formula this year paid $118 out of the $2,000 cost allowed for each student, or a total of about $156,000. Loss of students means loss of aid. Enrollment next year is expected to be about 984 students.

The loss of students and the increase in local taxes could mean the state aid would be cut off anyway, Dipzinski said. Superintendent Tom Rossler puts that loss figure at about $95,000.

"It's a very real possibility," she said. The decrease in enrollment could, according to the state aid formula, class the school district as self-supporting. On this basis, Boyne City is now without state aid.

Last June East Jordan voted a two-year operational tax of 30.3 mills. In December three more mills were voted for one year.

Still, the athletics program had to be cut, and has been borne all year by the Athletics Boosters Club with the cooperation of students, parents and community.

At the school board meeting Tuesday, March 9, Rossler indicated the program next year would be developed as a three-way effort among Boosters, community and school.

Also at the board meeting, principal Don Peters reported next year would see a cut of 14 percent in Title I aid for extra-help in reading for elementary students. A four percent cut in the $70,000 stake has already been made, and another cut is outlined for 1983-84.

Title IV, a federal program also, is doomed, Dipzinski said, because the $15,000 grant would only be available for students who could prove they were more than one-fourth Indian.

This is next to impossible, Dipzinski said. The older Indians have died and any information now available would, for the most part, not be official.

"Right at this time there are so many uncertainties," Dipzinski said, "it's hard to come up with real answers."

Rossler said at the board meeting, "We are on top of the thing....We have the lead time....but we still have problems."

BC approves zoning law

Boyne City's new zoning ordinance has been approved by the city commission.

The ordinance, which details where specific land uses are allowed, is included in its entirety in this issue of The Charlevoix County Press.

The ordinance takes effect on March 25.

It has been five years since work on the new ordinance began. Work halted while the city's Comprehensive Plan was developed. That document was approved in 1980 and efforts to revise the old zoning ordinance were renewed.

The plan and ordinance are used in conjunction to guide and regulate the growth of the city.

The old zoning ordinance, city manager Tim Clifton has said, did not foresee many of the developmental problems which have cropped up since it was approved in 1966.

The new ordinance addresses those situations and provides for some future situations. Among those are development of a city industrial park near the airport and establishment of a planned residential development provision.

With the PRD, developers will be able to better fit their housing units to the available property than under traditional single-lot zoning. Preservation of open space will be possible as buildings can be clustered on one part of a large parcel.

The industrial park is being created in an effort to attract small, support industries to the area. The site, which will be developed over a 10-year period, is accessible by rail, air or road.

Taylor wins BF tie-breaker

Boyne Falls has a new village clerk.

Deborah Taylor, who tied incumbent Joann Bell in the March 8 election, was declared the winner at a tie-breaker meeting on Monday, March 15.

The deadlock-breaking mechanism was a piece of paper—marked "elected"—pulled from a hat. Bell's paper read "not elected."

The two had each finished the balloting with 31 votes.

A tie between two write-in candidates for assessor did not have to be broken in a similar manner when Lewis Upton withdrew from consideration.

The new village assessor is Janet Kondrat.

First time: BC budget smaller than last year

For the first time in history, Boyne City is likely to have a smaller budget than in the previous year.

City manager Tim Clifton has proposed a $1,761,335 spending plan for fiscal 1982-83 that is 5.7 percent lower than this year's budget.

In preparing the budget, Clifton also absorbed 1.19 mills being levied for the first time to pay off a bond for the new city hall. In the past two years, proceeds from the sale of the old city hall were used to make the bond payments.

The city operating budget was reduced to 12.47 mills in order to keep the overall tax rate at 18.05 mills, or $18.05 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Clifton and the city commission are presently holding public budget review sessions on the proposal. Commission action is expected at the Tuesday, April 13, night meeting.

The review sessions are being held in Clifton's office at noon each Tuesday and Thursday through March 25. There will also be a Wednesday, March 24, session at 7 p.m.

Forty-nine percent of the anticipated revenues will come from property taxes. Eighteen percent will come from state revenue sharing, 7 1/2 percent from federal revenue sharing, nearly 10 percent from "municipal functions" such as sales of gasoline at the airport, ambulance fees paid by patients and contracting townships, and fire protection fees paid by contracting townships.

In past years, non-tax revenues have outweighed taxes by about $100,000, Clifton noted, but reductions in state and federal revenue sharing and a 300 percent increase in delinquent payments to the city have eroded the non-tax base.

This is the first year that Clifton knows of that the amount of non-tax revenues is expected to be lower than in the previous year.

The largest portion of the city's income, 30 percent, goes for general services, which includes administrative salaries and fringe benefits, street lighting, a portion of street maintenance work, library subsidy, and other items.

The next largest expense is the police department, which makes up 20 percent of the budget. The capital improvement program — Water Street renovation and other city improvements — takes up 10 1/2 percent. Central administration — basically the manager's and treasurer's offices — accounts for 9 1/2 percent.

In keeping the budget below this year's level, Clifton did not make across-the-board cuts, but reduced some areas and increased others. There are no layoffs proposed, but in a couple cases there are reduced hours for personnel.

Clifton has proposed 10 percent pay increases for most city employees (unionized workers are already scheduled for 10 percent pay hikes), but not for himself.

Because of the reduction in hours for some workers, the elimination of two part-time police officer positions and some other moves, the actual dollar increase for non-union employees is only 2 1/2 percent overall.

Cherishing memory of Pappa -- and others

Love, honor and bring money..... We cherish the memory of world renowned Ernest "Pappa" Hemingway -- not only because he was a famous writer, but also because he spent some time here as a boy.

In cherishing his memory, we refer to this as "Hemingway Country," asking in our pamphlets and brochures that vacationers come to spend their money in motels, restaurants and other places of business to help us with our cherishing.

These are hard times. We need several more people to cherish. One would be surprised how deeply we could get into the cherishing business if more people would bring money to help us do it.

The papers are saying that our economic situation is so bad even the collection agencies are going broke. Boy, am I glad of that. Now I can rest comfortably in debt.

Several years ago in this column I informed women how they could tell when they had reached middle age. The average woman lives until she is 72. Half of 72 is 36. So she who is 36 is middle age. A number of women informed me that not all correct information belongs in a newspaper. I was hand-bagged from the far reaches of East Jordan to the downtown heavy traffic area of Horton Bay. (I'm mentioning this again to see if it is still dangerous to report that half of 72 is 36.)

I dislike those people who stop me on the street to put their troubles into my head.

How delighted we are to know that summer is preparing to spring from the closet. The wrinkled dillydallies among us have missed the charms of those young lovelies basking in the warm sunlight, minus snowsuits, minus turtle-necks and minus other garb thought proper when Phoebe was queen of the bloomer girls. After all those dark days of sleet, ice and snow, we who subsist on Geritol and social security, hanker for the dizzy heights of summer. And then, too, they serve to assure our wives that we are, after all, still conscious.

She: How come you retired?
He: I worked my hind end off for 40 years until I found something better to do.

She: The words 'hind end' were not necessary.
He: Yes they were. I worked at a desk.

During the lull days when stragglers, drifters and mule skinner wandered into Boyne City asking how to get to West Water Street, they were often told to walk until their hats floated. One young man who had chanced to test some slippery elm for the first time stumbled west on Water Street until he nearly drowned. The night cop who fished him out turned to a staggering Indian. "This is what too much whiskey can do to you," he warned. "No, no," the Indian objected. "Too much water."

I always write this column as fast as I can before my tranquilizer wears off.

State should sell -- not buy -- property

BY JIM SILBAR

The DNR wants to take money it is making from the sale of oil leases and use it to buy more land for recreation. The state should take that money and make the recreational facilities it already has better.

I am sure there are plenty of state parks that have been forced to neglect maintenance because of the states' fiscal problems. Snowmobile trails, hiking paths, fisheries and lots of other areas also have come under the knife in the areas of development and maintenance.

The state should do something radical. It should hold a land sale.

Most of the land the state has, if my memory serves me right, was taken in the Great Depression through tax liens. When you couldn't pay the taxes, the land reverted to the state. This is why, if you look at maps, the boundaries of the state lands are not square; they seem to go all over the place as the government picked up lands throughout the years.

What I am proposing is that the state could make some money from the sale of the land to private parties and, more importantly, put the land back on the tax rolls so local governments could get more than what the state is presently paying them for holding raw land.

One of the first things a private owner is likely to do is to build a cabin, a vacation home or even a primary home on his new land.

That building will help the local economy, provide sorely needed jobs for the people with building skills and add to the taxes that come in to the townships and the counties.

I can visualize all kinds of good things coming from a program to return some of the public lands into private hands, instead of just adding more land to the public trust.

Perhaps even the environmentalists could see some benefits. They could privately buy up the lands they think are worth saving as parks, open them as private wilderness areas and hike through them to their hearts' content. They could even charge other people for the privilege.

The people who live and work up here in the north may get even more of a benefit, from the jobs that may be available to the sports programs in our school systems.

Think about it, and let someone know what you think.

Barbara Cruden

No background music for this, please

Various circumstances prevent me from having television in my life. Thus I am frequently standing around flat-footed when people make jokes connected with TV ads.

But a funny thing happened to me on the way to see a televised portion of "Brideshead Revisited." I almost decided not to.

And I wish I hadn't, except that now I know it is unquestionably important to consider dividing drama into either seeing or hearing.

I'd been just listening to the radio portion of the performance on National Public Broadcasting. It's hard to explain how the whole thing shrank when I saw for the first time the characters in the dramatized novel I'd been listening to.

I've been wondering since then, what went wrong?

Possibly this part of the story wasn't as good, or this part of the dramatization wasn't done as well. Or I was already finished with what it had to say.

But the same thing happened last year with a performance of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." After listening to it on radio, I had the opportunity later of seeing a color videotaping of the performance.

Even though the staging was gorgeous and the acting excellent, I was more enlightened by the radioed performance.

For some time now, people have been saying radio makes the imagination work. But how?

Is it like reading--and the way you can feel let down by the movie version of your favorite book?

Books and radio come closer to you. Come closer to your own realities.

Seeing is distancing. You must see what someone else has put there.

Besides that, the seeing is accompanied by the listening and that is distracting in an additional way.

They don't always go together. People's voices don't usually match their looks, anyway. Try being a radio announcer. And actors have trouble coordinating the gesture with the tone of emotion.

Lastly, registering what you see takes up your concentration, and so does registering what you hear. So your mind flicks back and forth between the two as the show goes on.

I don't know how they did it, but people in the audio-visual departments of a few universities found out that is what was happening when students viewed educational films. The students switched attention rapidly from sound to picture, from picture to sound.

The studies didn't conclude how good or bad this was. No experiments that I know of tested which would be the better way to learn--from sound or from sound and picture. In other words from a lecture or a book--or from a film.

And I haven't seen the later literature on the subject.

But I've made up my own mind. It says don't mix the two when you are after a strong, clear effect. Pictures, diagrams, yes, when appropriate. Still, one thing at a time.

That's why pantomimes are so absorbing. And why books will never be surpassed. And why music is music.

And why television is slightly deadly. One reason, anyway.

Flu, chickenpox outbreaks hit area

The flu season came late this year -- but it's here.

Dr. Brian Youngs, director of District Health Department No. 3, said flu-like illnesses are being reported throughout northern Michigan.

Chickenpox is also quite prevalent, he said.

District health officials are not sure if the respiratory illness is actually the flu, Youngs said, and have sent cultures to the lab to be tested.

Type B influenza has been detected in Cadillac, he said, which leads to the belief that is the strain being experienced in northwestern lower Michigan.

Youngs said one school in the Indian River district had to close because of high absenteeism. Other problem spots have been Pellston and Posen.

If the flu is Type B older persons who received flu shots are protected, Youngs said. But older people who have significant respiratory problems which could lead to pneumonia should be cautious, he said.

Both Type B influenza and chickenpox are associated with Reye's Syndrome, a sometimes fatal collection of symptoms which strike children.

Reye's can hit anyone under the age of 18, Youngs said. It can strike children as they are recovering from viral illnesses. Youngs noted, however, that the incidence of Reye's is extremely low.

In the winter of 1979-80, he said, there were about 80 cases of Reye's reported in Michigan. Last winter, there were about 20. Youngs said three children have died from the syndrome this year.

Youngs said there has been one case diagnosed as being Reye's in Emmet County, but that diagnosis was "by exclusion" -- meaning other diseases were ruled out, leaving Reye's as the probable malady.

Youngs emphasized that Reye's is not communicable. He did warn, however, of the relationship which seems to exist between aspirin and Reye's.

Four studies have been conducted in recent years, he said, which link aspirin or aspirin-containing medicines with Reye's. While the evidence is not conclusive, he said, it is strong enough to issue warnings against giving aspirin to children who have the flu or chickenpox.

Medical associations and public health departments have issued statements cautioning against aspirin use in such cases. They say to leave low-grade fevers untreated or to sponge with luke-warm water to make the patient more comfortable.

Youngs said there is also evidence that low-grade fevers are beneficial in fighting illness because they increase white blood cell counts and production of some proteins.

If a fever reaches 103 degrees, he said, the patient is significantly ill and should be attended by a physician.

Youngs is not sure if the spread of flu-like illnesses is on the wane. The three major storms of January delayed the flu season because human contact was lessened during the month, he said.

Probe of cop complaint continues

A complaint against an East Jordan police officer, brought to the city council on Jan. 5 is still under investigation by the council police committee.

Police committee members indicated they were waiting for information, but would make no further comment other than they anticipated a decision possibly this week.

In January the council heard a public complaint by bar owner Charles Sherk, who said police officer Ron Malinowski had entered the bar Christmas Eve and had behaved in an "unreasonable" manner.

Information came subsequently that Malinowski and Officer Paul Timmons, on duty together that night, had submitted a violation report on the bar, dated Dec. 29, to the state liquor control commission.

Sherk made a second complaint to the council alleging the statements in the report were false and presenting written statements from witnesses backing the complaint.

The liquor commission has not yet called a hearing on the matter.

Meantime the council has discussed placing some of the responsibilities and duties now held by committees in the hands of department heads, subject to veto by the council.

An ordinance making these changes possible is to be voted on soon.

Upgraded phone system in works for Boyne

Michigan Bell is getting ready to upgrade Boyne City's phone system.

A company representative presented plans for a new computerized switching station to the city planning commission on Monday, March 15.

Ralph Eby of Bell's real estate division said the utility would put "state of the art" equipment in a new building on East Street.

The 40- by 39-foot building will replace the present Bell structure -- a former frame house -- on the site.

The new structure will be built and equipped before the old one is demolished, Eby said. This will facilitate switching from one system to the other without major service interruptions.

Bell wants to begin construction in September and complete it next January.

The new equipment is expected to be in service by October to December of 1983.

It will be "the most modern switching system available," Eby said. All custom phone services, such as conference calls, call forwarding and call waiting, will be available, Eby said.

The solid-state circuitry will provide more trouble-free service, he said.

There will be no full-time employees at the site, Eby said.

Eby appeared before the commission to seek approval of the plan for the site. That approval will be the subject of a public hearing, probably at the planning commission's next meeting on Monday, April 19.

Unfinished club worries planners

The Boyne City planning commission is concerned that the Eagles Club will not be able to finish work on its new clubhouse before its construction permit runs out.

The Eagles had 18 months to complete the interior and exterior work on the building at North Lake and River. That deadline is April 13.

Much of the work is not done, commissioners pointed out at their Monday, March 15, meeting.

Submitted by, Equalization Committee, Commissioners Ward, Annear and Harmon. ROLL CALL VOTE: Yeas, 14. Nays, none. Excused, Davis, 1. Motion carried.

RESOLUTION--SAW MILLS (#82-004)
Moved by Commissioner Ward and supported by Commissioner Harmon that the following resolution be adopted:

WHEREAS, sawmill owners have notified suppliers of sawlogs that they, the mill owners, cannot buy from any producer who is not carrying Workmen's Compensation Insurance; and

WHEREAS, this situation is limiting the ability of the small woodlot owners to market forest products if they are doing the work themselves; and

WHEREAS, according to existing law, any second or third parties involved in producing forest products can sue for damages from any mill purchasing wood from uninsured suppliers, thereby threatening such mills with loss of membership in the self-insuring Workmen's Compensation Fund.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners urges the State of Michigan to enact legislation to prevent mill owners from being sued by second or third parties involved in the sale of forest products.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that copies of this Resolution be sent to Governor Milliken; Senator's Irwin and Mack; Representatives Ostling, Andrews, Stevens, Varnum and Jacobetti; the Iron County Clerk and the Michigan Association of Counties.

Submitted by Resolutions Committee, Commissioners Ward, Annear and Harmon.

ROLL CALL VOTE: Yeas, 14. Nays, none. Excused, Davis, 1. Motion carried. Commissioner Bieganski reported on a Sheriff's Committee meeting which covered several personnel policy concerns. The Committee also received a report from the Sheriff indicating no decision has yet been made regarding relocation of the antenna.

RESOLUTION--CHARLEVOIX COUNTY SPORTS FISHING (#82-005)
Moved by Commissioner Meggison and supported by Commissioner Breakey that the following resolution be adopted:

WHEREAS, tourism is the second greatest asset the State of Michigan has in these troubled times; and

WHEREAS, sports fishing plays a major role in tourism, especially in the counties in the northwestern section of Michigan that border on Little Traverse and Grand Traverse Bays; and

WHEREAS, indiscriminate and unregulated gill net fishing has depleted the supply of lake trout, which has been the main source of sports fishing; and

WHEREAS, the loss of the sports fishing industry has resulted in the direct loss of $893,000 to the economy of Charlevoix County alone as well as a total loss of $1.8 million in direct spending from fishermen visiting the five coastal counties bordering these bays; and

WHEREAS, the brown trout, as compared to the lake trout, is not considered a commercial fish and therefore does not have a commercial outlet; and

WHEREAS, the brown trout, being a predator, will feed on alewives and smelt, reducing the die-off of these species this area has experienced in recent years; and

WHEREAS, this section of Lake Michigan offers other necessary forage as well as the sheltered bays which make an excellent habitat for the brown trout; and

WHEREAS, the reproduction process of the brown trout results in the desirable migration of the fish to the rivers and small streams where it was planted without the subsequent die-off following the process; and

WHEREAS, the brown trout will serve the sports fisherman who comes to this area to fish as well as those tourists who come to enjoy eating commercial varieties of fresh water fish in area restaurants or at home;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners emphatically urges the Department of Natural Resources to replenish the supply of sports fish in the Little Traverse and Grand Traverse Areas of Lake Michigan with the brown trout which will fulfill the needs of the sports fishery and tourism industries at a time when tourism is fast becoming this industrially depressed state's major industry.

Submitted by, Public Safety & Property Committee, Commissioners Meggison, Breakey, Bieganski and Haggard. SHOW OF HANDS VOTE: all present in favor. Motion carried.

RESOLUTION--BAN SMOKING DURING BOARD SESSIONS (#82-006)

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this action shall take immediate effect.

Rayders in regionals after nipping Ramblers

Charlevoix is the only county school still in the state basketball tournament, following a narrow victory in the district finale against Boyne City.

Here's how the districts went for area teams, starting with the district final on Saturday night and working backwards to opening round play:

Boyne's valiant attempt to catch the Rayders fell just short Saturday night, as Charlevoix advanced to the regionals on the strength of a 53-51 triumph.

Boyne had gotten to the finals by knocking off Traverse City St. Francis in another close game and wiping out Elk Rapids. The Rayders set up the showdown with wins over Kalkaska and East Jordan.

The county's fourth high school, Boyne Falls, was the only one not in the Kalkaska Class C district. The Loggers, a Class D school, fell to powerful Gaylord St. Mary in the district at Gaylord.

Charlevoix takes on Rogers City at Gaylord tonight.

BOYNE CITY Vs. CHARLEVOIX

It went right to the wire, even though the Rayders held a 40-24 lead mid-way through the third quarter.

Boyne rallied and came within two points with two seconds left. And a Rambler shot, taken by Brad Musser, missed at the buzzer. The shot was ruled taken after time expired, though, and wouldn't have counted if it had gone in.

Seniors Brian Vroman and John Thompson led the Rambler comeback, as they have all year. When the clock hit 1:21 to go in the final stanza, the Ramblers took the lead 49-48.

The Rayders were however, and went up 53-49 with eight seconds left. A two-pointer by Gary Drury, a pair of free throws by Jim Buchanan and a foul shot by Dave Buday gave them that margin.

Tompkins hit with two seconds left and Boyne called a timeout.

Todd Rickard intercepted the Rayders' inbound pass and got the ball to Musser, who took the final shot.

The game got away from Boyne in the second period, as the Rayders went into the lockerroom at halftime with a 32-20 bulge. It took 12 straight points in the third and fourth quarters to put the Ramblers back in the game.

Vroman finished his high school career with a 22-point effort. That gave him 514 for the year and 1,818 for his four years (two at Wolverine and two at Boyne).

Thompson added 19, giving the pair 41 of Boyne's 51 points.

Charlevoix goes into the regionals with a 19-3 record. Boyne's season ended with a 19-4 mark — three of those losses to the Rayders and the fourth to Class B Cheboygan.

BOYNE CITY Vs. ELK RAPIDS

The Ramblers had an easy time with Elk Rapids, which went into the Thursday game with a 4-15 mark. Boyne won 69-47 behind a 26-point performance by Vroman. The Ramblers held comfortable leads at the end of the first quarter (12-7) and second period (35-25) before putting the game out of reach in the third period.

Boyne outgunned the Elks 22-8 in that eight-minute span, then coasted in with a 12-point effort in the fourth quarter while Elk Rapids notched 14.

Vroman hauled down 14 rebounds and dished out five assists while leading the scoring. Thompson, who was held to just eight points, had nine assists. Musser finished with 13 points and Rickard added 10.

John Thompson and a Charlevoix player make contact while fighting for the ball during Charlevoix's two-point victory in the third meeting of the two teams this year. The Rayders won all three.

Brian Vroman of Boyne goes up for two points during the Rambler's loss to Charlevoix in the district tournament finals in Kalkaska on Saturday night. John Thompson is at right.

EAST JORDAN Vs. CHARLEVOIX

The Red Devils kept up with the Rayders for the first eight minutes of their only district game on Wednesday night, but cold shooting and good Charlevoix defense put them away in the second and third periods.

East Jordan managed only two points in the second period and six in the third as the Rayders took an easy 78-39 victory.

The Devils stayed with the district champs 17-16 in the first quarter and canned 14 to the Rayders' 23 in the final stanza. While the Devils were cold in the middle periods, the Rayders dropped in 39 points.

Todd Ingalls led East Jordan with 12 points. The Devils ended the season with a 5-16 record.

BOYNE FALLS Vs. GAYLORD ST. MARY

The tournament was a short one for the Loggers, too, as the powerful Snowbirds outgunned them 77-47 Wednesday night.

Tim Smith was a bright spot for Boyne Falls, tough, as the junior scored 22 points. Seniors Norm Mahanke and Bruce Crouterfield added 11 and 10 points, respectively, to the Loggers' total.

St. Mary put the game out of reach in the first quarter when the Snowbirds took a 22-9 lead. After a fairly even second quarter, St. Mary held a 37-21 lead at the half.

The Snowbirds came out of the lockerroom shooting and put 26 points on the board in the third period to the Loggers' 12. Each team canned 14 points in the final stanza.

Boyne Falls' final record was 7-12. St. Mary was toppled by Inland Lakes in the district finale on Saturday.

BOYNE CITY Vs. St. FRANCIS

Boyne had to come from six points down with less than two minutes remaining to get past Traverse City St. Francis in the opening round on Tuesday, March 9.

A man-to-man press by Boyne and St. Francis' inability to convert from the foul line helped the Ramblers take a 62-59 win.

Vroman scored eight of Boyne's last 12 points and grabbed three crucial rebounds in the stretch drive. The senior all-stater had 22 points in the game.

Thompson contributed 16 and Musser 10 for the winners.

The game was close throughout, with Boyne only building up leads of five and six points in the third quarter. St. Francis battled back each time and outscored Boyne 16-6 at the start of the fourth quarter to take the six-point lead.

Boyne took a one-point lead with 28 seconds left. After a St. Francis timeout with 15 seconds remaining, a Traverse City shot bounced off the rim to Vroman who was fouled with four seconds left.

Vroman put in both free throws to assure the win.

CHARLEVOIX Vs. KALKASKA

BALLOONS HELP KIDS STAY ON THEIR SKIS

Technical assistance provided by Professional Ski Instructors of America

One of the most common problems encountered in teaching children who have never skied before is getting them to stand up on their skis. Often, what they would rather do is squat down on their heels or fall over in a fit of giggling.

One good way to encourage the child to stand up is to tie several colorful balloons around his waist with a string and warn him that he won't be able to take the balloons home if he breaks them. Children love balloons and hate to see them pop. With one or two balloons behind them, they are very reluctant to sit down or fall over—and you can get on with letting them learn to ski.

CLIMBING THE STEEP HILLS— HERRINGBONE STYLE

The herringbone is a method used in climbing a hill which is too steep to go straight up. By keeping the tips apart and rolling the edges to the inside the skis are kept from sliding backwards. The most common error is to keep the skis flat on the snow with no edging which allows the skis to slide backwards. Look for the indentation left in the snow by the edge. This will let you know that the edge is set.

Ski fix-up tops $177 million

Capital improvements at the nation's alpine ski centers topped $177 million last summer.

"That represents an increase in spending of 36 percent over the previous summer," said Cal Conniff, president of the National Ski Areas Association.

"It is indicative of the general good health of the ski area industry that we see this kind of growth at our ski facilities despite the mediocre 1980-81 ski season."

On a national scope the biggest portion of the ski areas' dollars is being spent on snowmaking systems and related expenditures including air compressors and new or expanded water storage facilities.

But it is also buying dozens of new ski lifts, 68 all told from coast to coast.

It is paying for the cutting of 2,603 more acres of new ski terrain and the fleets of new snowgrooming vehicles needed to keep these slopes and trails in good condition.

More than 35,000 square feet of new, expanded, or remodeled base area and onmountain facilities will also be ready for the winter ahead.

"What the skier doesn't see," commented NSAA's Conniff, "are many other improvements to a ski area operation. Sewage systems, new energy management systems, trail grooming and recontouring, parking lot paving or expansion, new computer systems.

"All these projects are important in making a ski operation more efficient and creating a better skiing experience for our customers."

Of the 68 new lifts installed, 19 were replacement lifts. That generally means an upgrading of service to the skier as the new lifts have higher capacities capable of carrying more skiers an hour than the old."

Based on statistics gathered by the National Ski Areas Association from its member areas, ski area spending centered more on snowmaking and trail cutting and grooming than in the previous two years that the membership survey has been conducted.

Skiing puts action into winter vacation

If it's lots of action the winter vacationer is looking for, then a ski vacation is a sure answer to that quest.

For work-weary bodies and minds a ski vacation offers one of the greatest get-aways possible.

Skiing is a great escape to an exciting mountain world full of color, action and countless things to do day and night. A ski vacation is as zestfully frenetic or as quietly relaxing as the vacationer chooses.

The greatest asset of a ski vacation is the opportunity it provides for some good healthy outdoor exercise done at a pace with which each participant feels most comfortable.

"Skiing is a participation sport," says Cal Conniff, head of the National Ski Areas Association which represents 400 ski resorts in America, "but the appeal of the sport is that you participate at your own level. There are no opponents in this game. Whether you ski with family or friends or by yourself, you choose how seriously you want to participate. Ski areas the world over offer terrain for all levels of skiers, so everyone can pick his or her own level of challenge depending on desire and athletic ability."

A novice skier can have just as much fun during a day on the slopes as an expert because there is terrain at all ski areas geared for all abilities.

A hardcore skier can yo-yo up and down the mountain for six hours a day, but no one frowns at the skier who makes only a handful or two of leisurely runs, as befits one mental or physical tempo.

"In skiing, you call your own shots," says NCAA's Conniff, "whether you elect to ski the narrow and steep or the gentle and easy, the deep powder or the packed slopes. It's an individualistic sport where no one sits on the bench. You participate at your own speed."

But there is more to a ski vacation than sliding down snow-covered slopes and trails and that is what has given this sport its appeal to millions of Americans.

For one thing, it is the unspeakable beauty of the mountains covered with winter's pure white mantle of snow, evergreen trees bending under the weight of new fallen snow, sunrises or sunsets tinged softly pink-orange over glowing snowcapped mountain ranges, the busy excited calls of colorful winter birds flitting about searching for food in the crisp mountain air, the quietude of a day or night when the snow is falling ever so gently and clinging to every branch and window pane.

It is the rosy color that comes to one's face after spending time in the briskness of the winter air, and it is the deep rich sun tan that comes from the winter sun reflecting as warmly off the snow as it ever does off sand and water, a tan that is the envy of the folks back home.

A ski vacation is also rife with other activities for the hearty souls who want to keep going after the lifts have closed for the day, or who want to try something else in between spells on the slopes.

Indoor tennis, indoor and outdoor swimming, ice skating, racquetball, sleigh rides, dog sled rides, health spa workouts, dancing, dining, game rooms, shopping for the unusual, moonlight cross-country ski tours.

They are available at the full-service destination ski resorts.

And for those who find a good day's workout on the ski slopes enough exercise for one day, there is always the quiet evening by the fire enjoying good company or a good book. It's all there, all the options for a perfectly enjoyable vacation.

"Sure, you can take your winter vacation lying down in the sand, playing an hour or two of tennis a day, riding around in a golf cart, sitting on a boat," says Conniff, "or you can drink in the crisp clean mountain air while you get some really great exercise and take in some truly memorable scenery, and then move on to gourmet meals, great night entertainment, and a whole host of other vacation amenities if you elect to take a ski vacation this winter.

Try a pack

A day pack is a useful cross-country ski accessory. In it you can carry all the clothes you take off and then put back on because of variations in your body temperature caused by changes in the weather and your skiing place.

POLE GRIP

Most tourers rely on their poles for propulsion especially when climbing a hill. Having the correct grip on your poles will help progress immeasurably.

The proper grip starts when you reach up through the strap as in the photo. Then drop the hand on top of the strap with your thumb on one side and your fingers on the other. This grip allows you to push down and back on the strap and pole.

Many skiers grip the pole by dropping the hand down through the strap and then grabbing the pole handle. This grip gives them nothing to push against. When any pressure is exerted on the pole, their hand will slide off it.

Before you next start out on the trail, take a minute to insure that you are holding your pole correctly. It may give you a better "grip" on your skiing.
