Army wants Boyne, Jordan river control

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is attempting to take over control of 4,700 miles of waterways in Michigan — including the Boyne and Jordan rivers.

Area Cong. Bob Davis, state Lt. Gov. James Brickley and others are trying to block the effort. Davis has introduced legislation to halt the action.

The Corps presently has jurisdiction over 571 miles of state inland waterways — including Lake Charlevoix.

The two area rivers now are managed by the state Department of Natural Resources, which has jurisdiction over the 4,656 miles the Corps wants.

"This jurisdiction can be claimed, via a Corps developed process, without public hearings or state input and without additional Congressional action," Brickley said in a letter of protest to Vice President George Bush.

The Corps has arbitrarily changed its definition of the term "navigable waters," Brickley explained, to include those waters which had at some time been used for commercial purposes or could be in the future. The only "navigable waters" up to this time were those presently used in commerce.

This change, Brickley said, goes so far as to include waters once used by trappers. The definition, he said, could include waters "which had out-of-state reparians (banks), or where a resident of another state had vacationed, or where waterfowl banded in another state had been shot."

Brickley is fighting the plan as a needless and potentially costly duplication of efforts, and as a violation of President Reagan's edict to return control to the states.

The Corps has spent about $650,000 in studies — in Michigan alone — to determine which waterways it can assume jurisdiction over, the lieutenant governor said.

He said the state's agricultural, mineral and forest industries and waterfront property owners "may be faced with another level of permitting reviews and many state fish and game activities will also be subject to supreme Corps authority."

Davis, in introducing his legislation, said the action by the Corps "cannot be allowed. At the federal level we have made a commitment to the states to give them more, not less, control of their own affairs. This move by the Corps is a move in the opposite direction."

The federal government, Davis said, has regulated certain waters deemed essential to interstate commerce under Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Act of 1899.

Hydroplane marathon race in EJ

A marathon on water will be one of the hydroplane races in East Jordan's first time Firecracker Triple-Header.

The Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the races with the Top O' Michigan Outboard Racing Club to bring a new feature to the city's Fourth of July celebrations.

Actually the races begin at the harbor on Saturday, July 3, and continue over both days. They include, besides the three-mile marathon, three closed-course races. The marathon starts at 10 a.m. Saturday. The Sunday races begin at 11 a.m.

The outboard Racing Club will award trophies and cash prizes to the winners. A complete listing of July 4th events in East Jordan, Boyne City and Horton Bay appears in the Fun & Sun section.

EJ school budget at $2.3 million

East Jordan Schools will operate with a $2,384,000 budget during the 1982-83 school year.

The budget is $114,000 higher than the one for the 1981-82 year which ends today.

The district faces the "99 percent possibility that we will have no state aid," superintendent Tom Rossler said. A district no longer gets state aid when its property value-to-student ratio reaches a certain level.

The budget prepared by Rossler shows no state aid among the projected revenues. Last year the district received $168,000 from the state and in 1980-81 it received $434,000.

The budget, which was approved by the school board Monday, projects $205,000 more in spending than in revenues. The difference will be made up from a $340,000 surplus that has accumulated over the years.

Just over $2 million of the $2.1 million in income will come from local property taxes. The rest will come from the federal government ($72,000) and from other sources ($48,000) such as interest on invested money.

Rossler anticipates an enrollment this fall of 955 students, down from the 1,039 of the year just ended.

The trimming of one principal and combining of the middle school program into the high school and elementary programs has resulted in a cut of $28,000 in administrative salaries.

Principal Don Peters told the board there has been a 15 percent cut in Title I federal aid for extra reading instruction for 80 students. The funding amounts to $69,000 and includes a pre-school program for about 32 children.

All elementary school students will have reading the first period of the day as part of their regular program, Peters said.

In addition, they will once again have a full vocal music program, and half the physical education program is being restored.

Seventh grade will have as additional activities computers, health, art and shop. Shop will be in the high school.

Summer temperatures arrived with a bang Monday as temperatures in the high 80's sent people scurrying to the beach. And it was a good time for an impromptu swim lesson in Lake Charlevoix as families used the new beach between the Boyne City sewage treatment plant and the Harborage condo development.

Boyne Schools OKs $3 million spending plan

The Boyne City school board Monday night approved a $3 million budget for the coming year.

Total spending is estimated at $3,177,408, while revenues are expected to be $2,975,258. The balance will be made up from funds left over from this budget year, which ends today.

This is an increase of 12.5 percent over the 1981-82 budget. The previous year the budget rose 7 percent, but in 1980-81 it dipped by 1 percent from the year before.

The district has a projected enrollment of 1,150, down from 1,191 in the 1981-82 school year. Superintendent Rich Kelly expects elementary enrollment to drop from 518 to 485 this fall, middle school to climb from 274 to 285 and high school to fall from 399 to 380.

The high point in district enrollment came in 1974-75 when the student population stood at 1,663.

No residents attended a public hearing on the budget held before the meeting.

The bulk of revenues will be brought in from local property taxes—$2.86 million of the $2.97 million. The state equalized valuation of the school district is up 9.03 percent over last year and the revenue from property tax is up $230,000 even though the district lowered the tax rate from 21.4 to 21.3 mills.

A hearing required by the state Truth in Taxation law will be held at a later date. The hearing must be held because the district will receive more money from property tax than it did in 1981-82.

Money from the state and federal governments has been drying up in past years. Since the district is no longer on the state aid formula, it has had state funding sharply curtailed. And money for state "categoricals" — transportation, vocational education and special education — has been cut by two-thirds. By naming the Char-Em Intermediate district as its fiscal agent (money handler) for these programs the district hopes to get some more money from the state for categorical. The board signed a contract with Char-Em for that purpose Monday.

The largest increases in expenditures are expected to come from utility and fuel costs and from salary adjustments and increases in employee benefits.

Dental care is being added to the health insurance package this year and long-term disability insurance is being added for some employees not already receiving it. Health insurance premiums are up 20 percent over a year ago, Kelly noted.

Kelly has predicted that it could cost as much as $60,000 to heat the district's four buildings (three schools and bus garage). In the school year just ended, heating costs were $47,500, he said, compared with $41,204 the year before.

Kelly has also budgeted $12,000 for repairs of the high school roof, which is leaking. He is still awaiting a report on the extent of repairs needed.

The cost of adult education continues to go down because of the district's involvement in a consortium of several districts which are sharing the cost of the program which was too small to be cost-efficient at the local level.

Adult ed cost the district about $50,000 two years ago and is down to $15,000 in the coming year. The consortium pays 75 percent of the salary and benefits of the adult ed director and 50 percent of those costs for the program secretary.

Kelly has predicted that the school lunch and sports programs will be less self-supporting in the coming year.

He budgeted a transfer of $38,400 to the athletic fund from the general fund to meet costs there, but says he thinks that can be whittled down. In 1981-82, there was $25,500 transferred to the

No-till soil program gets boost from feds

No-till farming is getting a boost from the federal government, county executive director Helen Dietze said at the annual Conservation Programs Review on Monday, June 28.

The county committee met with the director to have in-put from area specialists and review federal recommendations for the new agriculture year.

No-till and reduced tillage was high on the agenda since Charlevoix and Emmet Counties have been "approved by Washington for a nationally funded special project" to encourage these systems of farming, Dietze said.

The local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will take applications approved by the committee for aid of up to $7.50 an acre on chisel plowing, and up to $12.75 an acre for no-till planting.

In a news letter, Dietze said, "It is estimated that as much as 25,000 tons of potential soil loss could be averted in both counties by the use of these practices."

Bill Korthase, Tom Wieland, and Carl Gutsch, who make up the county committee, noted that it has been costing about $2.85 a bushel to grow corn that brings in only about $2.15 a bushel, contracted for this year's market. But, they argued that no-till practices, looked at over possible five years could be justified financially.

For one thing, it would make possible long-term savings like fewer tractor overhauls over the period.

"Every approval will have to be evaluated," Dietze said, as the government is weighing the tax dollar spending.

She said further, "We cannot loosen restrictions, but we can tighten up."

Forestry practices are also getting a new look from the federal government, Dietze said. Funding not to exceed $25 an acre may be applied for to open logging trails on a minimum parcel of 40 acres and to receive advice on tree selection — this still in the proposal stages.

The idea, Dietze said, is to provide access in case of forest fire and for tree management.

Tree management is part of getting more fuelwood on the market, and the cost of having this assistance will be borne up to 100% for not less than 10 acres, Dietze said.

The goal would be forest improvement and increased fuel wood production for non-industrial forest lands.

The limit for total conservation practices, she said, would be $3,500 for any one applicant.

The committee approved the proposal, and it will go next to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. By October 1 it is expected to be available in some form for the county.

Rod Cortright, County Extension Agent, reported a study comparing permanent pasture grass with alfalfa, showing that balancing out the pros and cons of both, permanent pasture grass compared favorably and lasted longer. "But that doesn't eliminate using alfalfa at all," he said.

Severe erosion of unused meadows was reported by Ron Reinhart, who is a member of the Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District.

He said people driving four-wheelers and motor-cycles are causing serious damage, especially on absentee-owners' land.

"People have no knowledge of what they are doing," he said.

A July 28 soil meeting at Whiting Park was announced. Dick Lehnert, editor of "Michigan Farmer" will be the speaker. A barbecued chicken dinner will be served.

Thursday, July 1, is the deadline for farmers to file for certification.

athletic account. The better the turnout at the ticket booth, the less transferred from the general fund, Kelly noted, pointing out that admissions accounted for over $15,000 of the $40,000 cost of the sports program in 1981-82. Kelly said he did not want to raise lunch prices, so he budgeted $36,000 to cover the shortfall in the school lunch fund. Last year, the general fund transfer was $13,800 and in 1980-81 it was $4,700.

The superintendent attributed the $17,000 drop in revenues from the program over the three-year period to the declining enrollment.

The total cost of food has remained fairly steady — the smaller quantities needed offsetting the rise in prices. Salary and benefit increases for employees have made up most of the rise in the total program cost.

The district expects to have $326,511 left over from this year. Of that, about $151,000 is expected to be needed to make up the shortfall in the coming year.

Kelly said the 1983-84 school year budget could be tight because the SEV is not expected to rise at as rapid a rate as it did this year. The $175,000 left over after 1982-83 might not be enough to make up the difference, he said.

Seventh grade band will also be in the high school.

Twelve out of the 20 teachers on the high school staff, principal Bud Ashton said, will be teaching in the self-contained eighth grade classes. But class of advanced math students from eighth grade will be taking algebra with the ninth grade.

Rossler said the staff and the school board have put in every possible hour to work on the school curriculum.

He said also that the problem of not having an athletic director could be resolved by asking the two principals to manage the programs in their respective schools. The board approved of this and of hiring someone to perform the field duties in after-school athletics.

Rossler said the Athletics' Boosters Club had pledged $10,000 for one more year to have a sports program.

How do you answer 'Who are you?'

A number of people have said they liked the column about Indians that appeared a few weeks ago. I mention this because I want it clearly understood that most of the column was taken up by excerpts from the 1855 letter to the President by Indian Chief Seathl. The words were his.

I'm glad so many appreciated the chief's powerful and beautiful message.

Coincidentally, I was just reading about an Indian who lives in Vermont and who ran away from being an Indian when he was about 16. It's like a post-script to the powwow.

Talking Moose (his nickname) felt trapped between being an Indian when Indians were viewed as non-persons, and accommodating the "white" way of life which was actually unattainable to the Indians.

But he returned after two years. For him it was to find a new way. "Not the old Indian way and not the white world's way."

His first step, however, was to go to the skills his Maliseet father taught him, one of them being basket-making. And the second was to revive his relationship with nature.

But it is one of the hardest things—to make one's own way. Much easier to copy what's been done—and possibly improve on it a little.

Others besides Talking Moose are trying it, hard as it is. Others besides Indians. It may even become popular.

As it is, one hears people at friendly gatherings, discussing values—what to keep, what to forget, how to organize them.

And that's what one would have to do—set up a list of things one values, like health, wealth, friendship, fun, and so on.

Next, well, there are several "nexts" to choose from.

Pursuit of just one value to see how good it is. That's silly on the face of it, but lots of people have done it, obviously—fame, wealth, or power being some favorites. Sacrificing everything else for it.

Or one could select a few at a time to develop during the daily routine.

Or jump the routine, taking the values to another way of life.

A good thing to do would be to see how the values relate to each other. Some may cancel others out, or at least require the balancing of temperance.

How far would one go with valuing nature, for example? Make a hobby of gradually becoming an expert? Make it a career? Fight every encroachment upon it?

How would one balance that value with the values of technology? The Pigeon River oil drilling, the comforts of electricity, and all that.

And all the others. How to reconcile the value of innocence with the value of wisdom. There's a good one.

Maybe it seems too much to do. Maybe one could boil it down, especially considering all this thinking must be put into deeds or it's hypocrisy.

How about narrowing it to kindness, honesty, and hard work?

Wait a minute, though. That's not very new, is it?

Sunday is the 4th of July. Hooray for the 4th! Most people will have Monday off, too. Hooray for Monday! It gives us time to quiet down after all that resting up we did on the 4th.

A woman watching afternoon television said she got real upset when President Reagan fired Secretary Al Haig right in the middle of As the World Turns.

Have you noticed how wonderful Boyne City has spruced up this summer? Flower gardens look wonderful. The all new tree-lined Water Street adds beauty to the downtown section. And I think a special award should go to those folks who have worked so long and hard to decorate our telephone poles with garage sale signs.

Wherein my memory fails....

June the 20th was Father's Day. The 21st was the beginning of summer. Thursday is Dominion Day in Canada. Sunday is our National Hoopla Day. I have no difficulty keeping dates like that in my head, but for some reason I can never seem to remember that Friday is our garbage day.

I delivered a speech before 114 people a while ago. (Not before they did, but in front of them.) When I approached the microphone I could not for the life of me remember the name of the man who introduced me. Was I embarrassed? I could have laid right down, curled up and lived.

Now, about those telephone poles. I think the city should raise, Ma Bell's rent on the property where all those poles are located. Perhaps it would bring in enough to lower city taxes a little bit; of course the telephone people wouldn't like that. They want you to reach out and touch someone as long as it isn't them.

I ran into Bill Taylor, a long-time friend, at the Holiday Inn the other night. I hadn't seen him in a while. The man with him told me that age has forced Bill to lead a normal life.

Hey! I have just discovered that a double negative is a no no.

Wife: Do you know what day it is?
Me: Yes. It's Dominion Day in Canada.

Wife: It's garbage day, you nut.

Have a happy 4th. Try not to slip on any of that slippery elm like you did the last time.

SS changes proposed

BY BOB DAVIS
11th District Congressman

Shortly after the House of Representatives reconvenes July 12, the house rules committee is expected to consider my request to allow major amendments to a bill that is supposed to address the problems facing social security disability recipients who are undergoing eligibility review.

The bill, which was reported favorably by the Ways and Means Committee, was prompted by the current disability review process which has caused many deserving disability recipients to have their benefits taken away.

While studies showed that as many as 18 percent of the people receiving disability benefits should not be, the current review process has resulted in the termination of benefits for about 46 percent of recipients.

Of that 46 percent who had benefits taken away, 65 percent later were found deserving, but had suffered the loss of benefits while their cases were being appealed.

Most members of Congress agree that legislation desperately is needed to revise the review process, however, the bill reported by Ways and Means takes the wrong approach. If passed, this bill would close the evidence record after the initial consideration of the review.

In other words, if the appeal reaches the stage of a hearing before an administrative law judge no new evidence would be allowed. This is especially unfair because most people don't hire lawyers until that stage, and undoubtedly have new evidence to present.

The bill also mandates a face-to-face interview at the initial reconsideration stage, which sounds good, but most likely would result in several months' delay for rural residents who would have to wait for hearing officers to travel to their areas.

In many respects, this bill would cause more problems than it would solve. Before it can reach the full House for a vote, the rules committee must decide whether to allow amendments to be offered on the House floor. If the rules committee votes not to allow my amendments, I will work to defeat the bill on the House floor and start over with my legislation.

Many senior citizens and handicapped advocate organizations have agreed with my position against the measure under consideration. They include: the Easter Seals Society, American Association for Retired Persons, National Council of Senior Citizens, National Office on Disability, American Foundation for the Blind and the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Cooking

BY BEA SMITH

Young mothers who work outside their homes inspire me.

They have conveniences our mothers never dreamed of, but there are only so many hours in a day and they must make very good use of them.

They work eight hours a day and still spend time with their children.

Debbie Sierocki is a working mother. She also has time for a life of her own—she plays golf in the summer and bowls in the winter. But there's nothing that makes her more happy than to spend time at home with Michael and Annie.

She loves to cook in her lovely kitchen that she and her husband, Terry, designed themselves with every modern convenience. It's a bright, cheerful room overlooking the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

I was delighted when she invited me to her home for a Saturday lunch when she made this delicious casserole.

Debbie's Hamburger-Noodle Bake

1 lb. ground beef
1 cup chopped onions
8 ounces medium noodles cooked and drained
4 oz. sharp processed American cheese
1 10% ounce can condensed tomato soup, ½ cup water
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon chopped

canned pimiento
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cups bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted.

In skillet cook beef and onion until meat is lightly browned and onion is tender. Drain off the fat. Combine soup, cheese, water, green pepper, chili sauce, pimiento, salt and dash of pepper and add to meat and onion mixture and mix well. Turn into a square baking dish. Combine crumbs and butter and sprinkle on top. Bake in 350 oven for 40 to 45 minutes. Serves 6 or 8.

Debbie served this with a tossed salad with ranch-style dressing and an assortment of relishes, pickles, cheese and crackers. A delightful lunch; then a long walk with her children through the woods and on the beach—a day to remember!

Here is one of Debbie's favorite desserts, nourishing and tasty without being too sweet. Her mother's recipe for Lemon Fluff

1 ½ oz. can evaporated milk
1 package lemon Jello
½ cup sugar
1 ½ cups hot water
¼ cup lemon juice (½ cup canned)
2 ½ cups vanilla wafer crumbs

Chill milk in freezer 1 hour. Dissolve Jello and chill. Whip milk. Combine Jello, whipped milk, sugar, juice and place over crumbs. Sprinkle a few crumbs on top and refrigerate a few hours.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS ONLY

More than 300 people contributed to the Boyne City fireworks fund by having breakfast Sunday at Roberts Restaurant. More than $600 was collected for the fund which pays for the Fourth of July fireworks show. The show is put on by a committee of private individuals.

Insurance misunderstanding resolved

A misunderstanding about how insurance bids would be considered left the Boyne City school board in a pickle Monday.

In past years the board has awarded its insurance contracts — with the exception of a couple policies — to one agency. But this year, separate bids were accepted on individual policies.

At its June 14 meeting, the board approved bids for liability, workers compensation and auto insurance.

Representatives of the R.A. Campbell Agency, which has insured the district for many years, complained Monday that they did not know the bids would be split.

Campbell's total bid, they said, was lower than the totals of the other agencies bidding. The bid was written to offer the best overall deal, they said, and was not intended to be taken piece by piece.

Bruce Hubble of Campbell pointed out that the bid specification sheet did not say bids might be treated separately and, in fact, said "a contract" would be awarded.

On June 14 Campbell bids for liability and auto policies were accepted. The John Best Agency's bid for workers compensation insurance was approved.

Board members agreed with Hubble it was not specified that the bids would be broken up, but some argued they had to spend the smallest amount of money possible for the best coverage.

As they attempted to come up with a fair solution to the problem, three motions from separate board members died for lack of a second.

Finally, the board voted to award school board liability and umbrella policies to John Best and to rebid all policies next year. Normally the board re-bids insurance policies every three years.

East Jordan Council Minutes

East Jordan City Council met in regular session Tuesday, June 15, 1982 at 7:30 p.m., Mayor Nemecek presiding and all members present except Dietrich and Gee.

Minutes were approved, authorization was given to pay $48,422.42 in bills as presented and the necessary transfers were made.

The Ambulance report showed 31 runs for May; the Cemetery Committee is considering banning artificial flowers at the Cemetery; reroofing the vault and building a barrier along the road; the Street Committee awarded the bid for painting the Heavy Equipment to Roberts Body Shop and rejected the bid for the Light Equipment; the Tourist Park Committee awarded the bid for Riding Mower to Galmores and Council voted to build a temporary Tourist Park office in the brown building and to remove the log cabin office, and the Building Committee is holding the bid for reroofing the DPW garage for further information.

Other business included authorizing a property split of Griffin Road; Jim Lilak was appointed to Planning and Zoning; the U.S.D.A. will be notified that the City of East Jordan is still interested in Shoreline Stabilization; the area in front of the Senior Center has been targeted for beautification as far as funds are available; a donation to the Fire Department by the East Jordan Bridge Tournament was acknowledged; a report was received on Elm Point with a request that it be kept open year round; in conjunction with the 4th of July Festival the Chamber of Commerce was granted permission to close the dock to fishermen and spectators during the boat races, to control the concessions and to use the Civic Center if it rains and as the need arises.

The City millage rate of 16.00 mills was adopted and the County will do the assessing for the City again this year.

At the Ambulance Administrators request a letter will be sent to the Highway Department regarding the dangerous railroad crossing between East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Councilman Dietrich's resignation from Council for health reasons was accepted with regret.

The City Clerk reported that there has been a change in the last date to file nominating petitions because the date of the August Primary changed. Last day to file is June 22, 1982 at 4:00 p.m. She also reported that there will be a One Year Term for Third Ward Council to fill the vacancy caused by Dietrich's resignation.

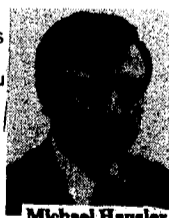

Meeting adjourned about 9:15 p.m.

A copy of the official minutes of the above meeting are posted at the City Hall for perusal during normal working hours.
