Auditor hits water fund $ transfer

The auditor's report of Boyne City's finances revealed budgeting to be on a good basis except for one thing.

Auditor Eric Peterson of Hill, Woodcock and Distel told city commissioners Tuesday that the water/wastewater fund losses cannot be covered by borrowing from other funds, even though the results balance the books.

The city manager and the commissioners were aware of this requirement in the bonding that was voted in 1954 to pay for the waterworks. That is the reason for the new meters and the much-increased water rates—to make the department pay for itself as stipulated in the bonding ordinance.

In the years prior to this step, the city simply ignored the requirement and "borrowed" from the general fund to make up the difference.

The borrowing was never repaid because there were never any excess funds from the water revenues.

But in spite of the recent efforts to make the department self-supporting, as legally it should be, not only by raising the rates, but also by beginning to replace the decaying old water mains, a deficit of $67,000 was incurred this past year. Peterson pointed out that $37,000 of this was caused by depreciation.

City manager Tim Clifton noted also that one other fund was not meeting its expenses—the street fund.

For this meeting, however, the commissioners concentrated on the water fund problem.

In addition to the 1954 bond, which is repaid through taxes, a 1973 revenue bond is to be paid off by revenues from the water/wastewater service.

"We are making a gain (in self-sufficiency)," commissioner Thelma Behling commented, "but not at the rate needed. We're losing in water loss."

Clifton said, "We've decreased it substantially, but there's still 50 percent loss." He was referring to water leaking out of the old mains.

Commissioner Steve Moody noted it would take an unprecedented amount of money to do all the renovating of mains necessary. The commissioners agreed they would simply have to go at the worst spots as they could budget the work.

Meantime, Peterson said, "the state is going to come back to Mr. Clifton and Mr. Garlock (clerk Tom Garlock) with questions: 'What are your plans?'"

Moody said, "This isn't something that just occurred overnight. But it has improved."

"But it's not going to get well by itself," amended commissioner Marty Paul.

Moody agreed. He said at the rate they were going it would take a minimum of 10 years to correct the situation.

The commissioners agreed on the necessity of some form of prompt refinancing, a measure they will take up.

As for the water fund's debt to the general fund, accumulated technically over the years, Peterson said, "It must be repaid."

Big Rock foe gets first-hand look at plant

One of the leading critics of aspects of the operation of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant was given permission Monday, July 19, to tour the facility.

Christa-Maria of Charlevoix said her tour was conducted by the "very knowledgeable" Pat Donnelly, an employee of Big Rock. She was given a very comprehensive tour, she said, and allowed to see anything she wanted to as long as it was physically safe to do so.

She said she had requested the tour many months ago. Previous to Monday she was inside with others in June 1980 to monitor the plant's first comprehensive emergency drill.

She noted that it took a Nuclear Regulatory Commission Atomic Safety and Licensing Board order to allow her to stand at the one point from which she observed the entire exercise.

The request for the tour, she said, was because she wanted "to see with my own eyes what I had studied on paper for four years."

Christa-Maria, along with Joann Bier, John O'Neill and John Mills, are citizen-intervenor in Consumers Power's request to expand the spent fuel storage area at Big Rock. She, Bier and Mills are members of Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix.

She was most interested in seeing the parts of the plant layout which she and the group believed were of concern in regard to public safety.

Chief among them was the spent fuel pool which the facility wants enlarged from its present 193 spaces to 441 because capacity will soon be reached and there is no off-site place to take the spent cells.

"Not till I was physically inside containment (the dome) and standing right next to the spent fuel pool with the reactor about 10 feet away, did I realize how high it was."

She had thought much of it was underground, she said. Instead the pool—looking like a large swimming pool—is above a room that houses pumps. She said that later "it was a strange feeling to stand beneath the spent fuel pool."

Christa-Maria said with the pool located so near the top of the dome, "I felt my concern justified that a steam explosion from the fuel pool would have the potential of breach of contain-ments if the system failed to cool it properly."

"These," she said, "are the concerns I raised at the ongoing hearing pertaining to the licensing of the spent fuel pool expansion." The NRC is studying Consumers' request and hearing testimony on the objections raised by the Concerned Citizens.

In addition to the fuel rods, the pool is used, she said, "for a lot of radioactive materials stored there to keep their radioactivity down." They will have to be removed eventually, she said.

Water from the pool is circulated through a cotton sock (the technical term) which catches the radioactive crud, as it is called. The contaminat-

Hot weather brought sun worshippers out in force last Friday. As the temperature soared over the 90-degree mark, swimmers and loungers hit the new Boyne City beach which was marked earlier in the week by a city sign. A week earlier, city crews cleaned up the area on Front Street. Other summer enthusiasts worked on their tans or took advantage of the waters of Lake Charlevoix.

O'Sullivan shooting death probed

The shooting death of Joseph O'Sullivan, a retired lieutenant-colonel in the United States Navy, is under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

O'Sullivan was found dead of a bullet wound in his car in the driveway of his home in Ironton July 12.

O'Sullivan was very active as a citizen in challenging evacuation plans for the area in case of a nuclear accident originating at the Big Rock Point power plant.

In his Navy career he had been assigned to positions in the Pentagon and at Los Alamos, New Mexico, that dealt with challenges to weapon structures and uses.

Friends say he carried this role to private life after moving to the Charlevoix area to take care of his parents. Both parents died within the past three years.

While not necessarily anti-nuclear himself, O'Sullivan was concerned along with the local anti-nuclear committee over matters he thought should be checked at the Big Rock nuclear power plant. At the same time, he made it clear he didn't want to be part of any organizations.

Friends say he believed such organizations could not succeed.

He frequently tried to educate local officials, sharing with them materials directly available to him.

In the past six years, when Big Rock has been subject of criticism, incidents of harassment have been reported by members of the local Concerned Citizens for Charlevoix and by O'Sullivan.

The committee members were bothered by anonymous phone calls, cars being tampered with, and papers missing. These problems were reported both to local authorities and to an organization called Campaign for Political Rights, which helps defend the freedom to speak out.

O'Sullivan said he had been recently "driven off the road" twice. He told friends he was worried it all would develop into something more serious.

The exact cause of O'Sullivan's death has not been stated. Sheriff George Lasater said, "An autopsy would assist us in making a determination, but it would not necessarily be conclusive."

Further information may be forthcoming by the end of the week, Lasater said.

Lake St. plans hit roadblock

The planned changes along North Lake Street in Boyne City have not met with unanimous approval.

The owners and operators of the stores in the plaza containing the Country Star supermarket and Butler Drugs have complained to city officials that they are not happy with the proposal.

The city, as part of its 1982 capital improvement program, intends to build a separator between the street and the parking lot which would allow entrance at only two spots on Lake Street and at the present Vogel Street entrance.

Presently, even though there is a low-level asphalt "bump" dividing much of Lake Street from the lot, drivers enter wherever they please along the front of the building.

Store representatives expressed dissatisfaction with the plan at a Chamber of Commerce meeting last week. Kate Schafer, executive director of the chamber and chairman of the city planning commission, said their main objections involved the number of entrances, the placement of entrances and potential problems with snow removal.

City clerk Tom Garlock said discussion of their objections is expected at the noon meeting of the city commission on Tuesday, July 27.

The Lake Street improvements are intended to eliminate potential traffic hazards in front of the plaza and two manufacturing plants across the street where workers park adjacent to the street.

Planning commissioner Marv Loding said a check with the city police showed that area had the lowest accident rate in the city, however. Commissioner Don Toffolo said the changes were meant for the future, too, not just for the present.

Pedestrians would, for the first time, have a sidewalk along that stretch, commissioner Richard Sharer pointed out.

The corrugated pipe storm sewer there is collapsing, engineers have said.

The Lake Street changes would cost approximately $20,000, Garlock said. They are part of a $120,000 capital improvement program to be paid for with federal revenue sharing money.

The bulk of the expense comes in redoing the second block of Water Street like the first block was done last year. This involves replacing sewer and water lines, replacing the storm drain, repaving the street and changing the sidewalk and parking areas. Pedestrian pads will be placed on the corners, and decorative street lights will be installed to replace the standard light poles now in place.

Garlock said the standard poles along the first block will be taken down. They were left in place after the first block was redone until city officials could determine if the decorative poles provided enough light when trees were in full bloom.

Top O' Michigan users to vote on utility merger

Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co. customers will have an opportunity to participate in the advisory vote on whether Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative Inc. should merge with Wolverine Electric Cooperative.

The vote will be held during the Top O' Michigan annual meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, August 16.

It is the intent of Northern Michigan and Wolverine to merge into what would become known as the Wolverine Power Cooperative Inc. The main headquarters of the new company would be at the present Boyne City site of Northern Michigan.

Northern Michigan supplies power to Top O' Michigan, which sells it to its individual members.

The main reasons for the merger, according to company statements, are cost savings from reduced administration, from more efficient use of generation capacity and from reduced capacity needs by having a single lower peak load than the two separate systems.

The merger is not expected to bring about lower utility rates, a statement from Top O' Michigan says, but "should enable the Cooperative to slow the rate of increase in the cost of energy sold to its member-customers in the future."

The two merging entities hope to complete the transaction by the end of the year. They must first obtain approval from the state Public Service Commission, the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Rural Electrification Administration and the Internal Revenue Service.

The two cooperatives were formed in 1948 as non-profit corporations to generate and transmit power.

Northern Michigan supplies electric power to over 74,000 member-customers and Wolverine, which is based in Big Rapids, serves 55,000 member-customers. The consolidated assets of Northern Michigan are $265 million, while Wolverine's are $211 million.

Merger talks and studies have been going on since at least 1979.

Walloon Community Day

The first Walloon Lake Community Day will be held from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday in Walloon Lake Village.

The event, whose main sponsor is the Lions Club, has several organizations participating. The Lions will host a barbecue, a beer tent and several sawdust penny hunts for children.

There will also be raffles to benefit the sheriff's posse, the MeRose fire department, the Walloon Lake Boy Scouts and the Lions Club.

The fire department will provide fire engine rides and will sell special extinguishers for putting out chimney fires. There will also be a dunk tank and house numbers for sale so emergency vehicles can easily find residences.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's marine division will have a display and the sheriff's posse will be on hand.

The Walloon Lake Art Club will hold a sale and display, and there will be displays by the Boy Scouts and the Missionary Guild.

Sidewalk sale in Boyne City

Sidewalk Sales Days will be Friday and Saturday in Boyne City.

Water Street will be blocked off between Lake and East and Main Street will be blocked between Lake and Park as merchants put out their wares. The sale lasts from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Kate Schafer said several merchants whose stores are outside the blocked off area will be bringing items to the sale.

Marshall Sayles

We moved out here to live a simple life in the country.

Ha! When our electricity is off for 15 hours as the crow flies, boondock life is not simple. No electric stove, no lights, no television, no radio, no bathroom operations and no police scanner to hear who robbed what store. (My grandparents lived 40 years without any of those things, but I'll be darned if I can survive 15 hours without them.)

It all started during Saturday's electrical storm. Suddenly there was no electricity in the house. I went outdoors and there wasn't any out there, either.

Wind raged, rain pummeled the house, thunder clapped its hands, lightning struck any old place it wanted to and it got dark in the middle of the day. When night showed up we sat in total darkness; and it wasn't long before we heard boogiemen in every room.

We interrupt this column to bring you an important message; Members of the Boyne City Historical Society will hold a baked goods and white elephant sale on the nice grass in the city park where the annual August antique auto show will be held.

We're hoping to sell the baked goods first we'll have plenty of room for the elephants. The sale is being held to raise funds for the purchase of a building to house and publicly display the society's old photographs and many area artifacts.

The building will cost around $20,000 and we are excited over the $137 already collected.

Please come to our sale and make a purchase, either before or after you look at the antique autos.

We need your money worse than you do. In addition to baked goods and elephants, we will offer an added attraction. Free autographs. Bring your car down and we will sign it. Must have own pencil.

(Enc of important message; and now back to our regularly scheduled column, no electricity—not even a watt.)

Only a fool would be caught in the dark without a flashlight. I have two. Both with dead batteries. So what is a fool to do when the lights go out? Lots of things. But I couldn't see to do any of them. It always makes me mad when I can't see to do lots of things.

I phoned up the REA and asked how soon the lights would be on. They said that they had been working frantically for hours and that they would be on just as soon as possible. Darn. I was looking for a more positive answer.

Mostly I wanted to listen to the Tiger ball game. But the lack of electricity made the TV and radio look funny. They just sat there with their tongues hanging out.

It came to me that I had a small battery radio tucked away on a shelf; it was about three inches square and used a tiny battery. I had picked it up as a lark in Florida years ago. I bought it in Florida because larks cost too much in Boyne City.

We had just replaced the batteries in our smoke alarm; and luckily one of the old batteries fit my tiny radio. I put it in and it worked just fine.

So I went to bed, put the radio on the pillow and heard Detroit slambang a home run. Slowly the old battery played out and the radio went silent.

I threw the radio on the floor and began beating the pillow. If there's anything I can't stand it's getting into bed with a dead battery. You can see right there that life in the country ain't all that simple.

Barbara Cruden

Picture this—and if anyone knows if my conjecture is right or wrong, I hope they will write or phone.

It is evening. Only a little melon-colored light left to the west, through the trees.

Time to wind up the day, and then, through the stillness, the thrush is singing.

Down the green shadows, the varied, open chords play, the last of each three-note pattern, shimmering like moonlight on the lake.

But what is this, now. Another thrush!

Unheard of! But heard now.

Thrushes are strict soloists. They each have their own territories like any other birds. But more than that, they usually sing only when all other birds are still.

After a few moments it becomes evident that one bird is quite unskilled. He seems to be imitating the first singer.

Yes, he is! He pitches exactly to the first note of the maestro, fails to negotiate the second, but comes out with the silver finale in fine style.

Over and over they go. Overlaying slightly. Trying the different combinations of the thrush's repertoire.

It is night now. They have melted away. But I am certain I have heard a thrush giving his offspring a singing lesson.

Some kinds of birds, raised in captivity, away from their elders, are known to give only confused trips, not resembling the songs of their tribe.

How wide the necessity for song models is, I don't know.

So the thrush, the most gifted singer of all—Does he care that his descendants carry the splendor into the future?

What other explanation could there be. Why else two singers in these woods while the July day fades away?

Concern for the future of the Charlevoix County Transit prompts this postscript to last week's column. While I said I was opposed to asking the government anymore for grant money, I am certainly not against raising taxes to pay for with real money things like the bus system that are really necessary. The state is reducing its subsidy of the buses so the .29 mill request is a must. The cost of a bus ride while only 60 cents for senior citizens, is $1.20. It compares with the cost per mile of running one's own car—although without quite the convenience.

EJ Chamber thanks community

Editor, We would like to thank the civic organizations, church groups, local businesses, city government and the many individuals who made the July 4th Jordan Valley Festival a tremendous success.

The positive response from the vast majority of visitors was overwhelmingly positive as they enjoyed the beauty of the area and the hospitality of the residents.

The spirit of pride that this kind of working together brings should be the incentive for this community to continue throughout the year to develop its fine potential.

As a growing Chamber of Commerce we need your help and ideas. Please call us.

Thanks again for a "blockbuster" weekend. Let's do it better next year!

This procedure also "is one of my concerns," Christa-Maria said. She thinks the shipments should be followed down the highway that passes "within 50 feet of my living room" by a car driven by radiation experts—just as other dangerous loads have a car following in case of problems.

There were other considerations that she noted: One was the variations she found in repeating the use of a radiation monitoring device in the facility. She said that although these monitors were stationed all over the plant, no danger line was marked for the specific danger level for each area.

"There is probably a terribly good explanation for it," she said with a smile.

She was puzzled by the allowance for a time lapse between the time a sample of exhaust is taken automatically from halfway into the stack until it reaches the stage of having been evaluated.

Some of the concerns she has noted at past meetings with Big Rock officials are in the process of being corrected because of NRC requirements.

But she said Big Rock is, of course, aging, and she believed that since the Three Mile Island accident "was set off by what was considered unimportant" in the maintenance schedule, Big Rock should be more concerned with its secondary level equipment.

"Big Rock was originally licensed for research," she explained, "so it has systems unique to Big Rock. Some good—some bad—not all bad!"

Thus it is the only licensed reactor to allow the crane that removes fuel from the core to cross the pool with its load. This plus associated technicalities are part of Christa-Maria's concern.

She described the experience of walking through the plant. There is the air lock at the entrance so that anything loose will be sucked in, not wafted out. There is the huge machinery, giant-sized valves, concrete walls six feet thick, and so on.

And the yellow lines and yellow ropes, marking off the danger zones. And the careful observation of security measures—citizenship check, handbag check, weapons check.

"I was glad I had to wear a hard hat," she said, "because I did bump into things."

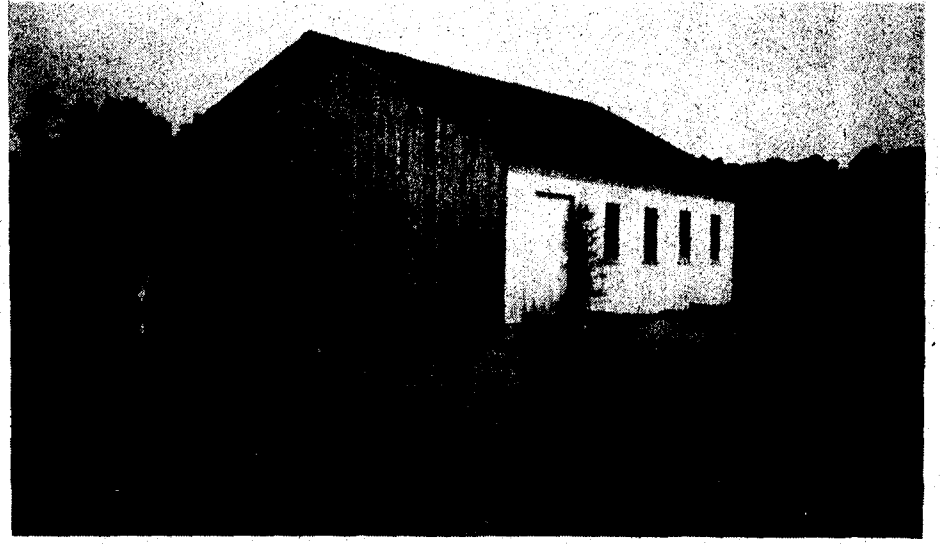

Christa-Maria became involved four years ago after reading about the Big Rock 14 who picketed at the facility site.

"It stirred my curiosity why people were going to such extremes," she said.

In private life Christa-Maria is an artist with a shared studio at Godwin Studio in Charlevoix. She is wife and mother—and from that stems her concern.

She summed up her impression of the complex power producer out at Big Rock: "All this to boil water!"

Van Treese gets award from H&R Block

Jerry Van Treese, owner of the H&R Block office in Boyne City, attended a meeting of H&R Block's Satellite Advisory Council at the tax firm's corporate headquarters in Kansas City, Missouri. Van Treese was selected to serve on the council along with 14 other H&R Block satellite franchise owners from the U.S. and Canada. The council meets annually to discuss tax changes that affect the general public and to examine the best ways for H&R Block to continue to serve the tax preparation needs of its customers in communities such as Boyne City. The council met in a two-day session with the top management of H&R Block. Van Treese was honored during the banquet which concluded the council meeting, when he was awarded a plaque in recognition of his contributions which helped to strengthen and improve satellite operations and relationships with the H&R Block organization.

Square dancing back in EJ

It will be square dance time again in East Jordan July 24. Square dancers at last month's gathering asked for it. "We had such a good crowd last time, I couldn't turn them down," Pat Berlo, city recreation director, said, in announcing the new date. The main question, Berlo said, was would it be too hot.

"If it is, we'll just have to hold it outdoors," she said, adding that they could block off Civic Center Lane, and dance in the street. "A lot of summer musicians and callers are back," she said. "All musicians and callers are welcome."

"It's all volunteer, every single bit of it," she said. "The bands and callers deserve recognition for making the dances possible." There has been square-and-round dancing at the Civic Center on a once-a-month basis. Busloads come in for it from Central Lake and Bellaire to join in the fun. The young crowd is finding the square dance evenings, Berlo said. All ages participate from elementary school age to "The oldest is 96, 1 think," said Berlo. Of course, many come just to watch, although they often wind up dancing too. Between square dances is music for "regular dating" for couples. Refreshments are provided by the senior citizens. Dancing starts at 8 p.m. The next square dance evening after July will be in October, "when it cools off," Berlo said.

Wins scholarship

Matthew Koontz of East Jordan, entering Alma College as a freshman in the fall of 1982, has been awarded a presidential scholarship by the college. Koontz, a graduate of East Jordan High School, is the son of Robert and Lola Koontz. Alma's presidential scholarships are awarded on the basis of outstanding scholarship, high national test scores and recommendations.

Library sale this weekend

The third annual white elephant and used book sale to benefit the Boyne City Library will take place Friday and Saturday, July 23 and 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"It will be held in the library basement," said Nancy Cunningham who is in charge of the affair. "Nice and cool down there—not like a yard sale in that respect."

But otherwise there will be the yard sale kind of variety. "And lots of used books," Cunningham said.

The library will welcome merchandise donations up to and including sale days, she said. Usually, unusual things turn up like the European glassware they will have for sale, Cunningham explained.

Bay View pair play in Charlevoix

Bay View flutist Kenneth Andrews and pianist Nancy Zipay will be presented in recital at the Charlevoix First Congregational Church at 8 p.m. on July 26.

A winner of several awards for excellence in musical performance, Andrews has been a soloist with the Louisville Chamber Orchestra, the International String Quartet, the West Suburban Symphony Orchestra and Band (Chicago), the Ohio University Chamber Orchestra and Wind Ensemble, and the Indiana University Symphony Orchestra.

He has been associate principal flute with the Montreal Symphony and artist-in-residence at Concordia university in Montreal. Currently he is an assistant professor of flute at Ohio University.

This is the third summer that Andrews has been performing and teaching at the Bay View Conservatory of Music.

Zipay, professional accompanying pianist and chamber music performer, has been an artist-in-residence at Bay View since 1974.

She was on the accompanist-coaching staff at the Juilliard School of Music in New York and has been on the faculty at Youngstown State University and the University of Tennessee.

She has performed extensively in solo and chamber music recitals across the United States and has appeared as guest soloist with the Hong Kong Philharmonic Orchestra. Currently Zipay is on the faculty of Ohio University.

The public is invited to the concert.

Walloon CC

Joann Hass entertained at lunch on July 13. The guest of honor was June McMullen, who is visiting from Jay, Florida, with her children Tim, Pat and Sherrie. They are former residents of the area. Others attending were Vivian Pearl and Violet Hess from Boyne City, Ann Howie from Petoskey and Leslie Cunningham from Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted McCutcheon II and children of Detroit spent two weeks visiting his parents Ted and Peg McCutcheon and relatives and friends.

Ronda Brasch of Sault Ste. Marie visited Kathy Hepf of Cynthiana, Indiana on July 8 and 9. They had a nice visit as it had been some time since they had seen each other. Ronda is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Planck, and Kathy is the daughter of Louisa Gross.

Willis and Judy Planck and children spent two days at Young State Park camping out.

Harold and Marcelyn Hamlin returned home after spending the week at the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn.

Laurie Lowery was honored at a baby shower July 8 at the home of Carol White. Games were played and Laurie received many gifts. Afterwards, coffee, punch and cake were served by hostesses Carol White, Kathryn Hopf of Indiana and Louise Gross. Other guests included Kim Gross of Ann Arbor, Shawn Wagenschutz, Kim White, Toots Simon, Joanne Wagenschutz and Pat Taylor.

Louisa Gross, daughters Kim and Kathy and her daughter Andrea, and Pat Taylor spent last Wednesday in the U.P.

Teesdales take walk through nature

Rufus Teesdale kneels to point out grass pinks growing along Horton Bay. He has identified 375 different species of wildflowers in the area and has photographed 330.

BY BARBARA CRUDEN

"One spring day I decided to take a picture of a purple flower I saw—for spring," Rufus Teesdale said. So many people, looking at the picture, asked him what flower it was, he finally looked it up.

The rest is just what any flower buff would guess—he got hooked on wildflowers.

Teesdale's wife Joyce said. "He only goes into botanical books now, with no pictures in them."

Joyce Teesdale shares her husband's pleasure in flowers. Their summer place on Horton Bay, left to grow naturally, is a beautiful example of what a superb landscape architect nature can be.

White pines and ninebark and dogwood shrubs shelter the wild orchids which are the Teesdales' favorites. Teesdale will stop suddenly while strolling along the path to point out a ram's head lady slipper. It's past blooming time so all there is today of this rare plant with a crazy name is a few pointed green leaves on a stalk about six inches long.

You wonder how many rare plants you have stepped on that looked as inconsequential as that.

New roads and new developments wipe out unusual plants, Teesdale said, musing over some he tried to rescue. But after he dug up and replanted them elsewhere, he said, new developments came along there, too.

"Run a road through, and that's it," he said sadly. "It's more destructive than wild-fire. People haven't the faintest idea of what they're doing."

On his weekly walk to the Horton Bay Store—about a mile through the woods, fields, and a little swamp—Teesdale makes it his goal to identify 50 different flowers each time. They have to be in bloom.

This time of the year it is easy. Besides daisies, right now, he said, fireweed is very good.

Fireweed?

Yes. It's called that because it is known to grow where the land has been swept by forest fire. It is a tall, stately plant with a rosy pink "spike" of flowers.

And there's white yarrow along the road, and in the swamp the last of the grass pinks.

Grass pinks are far more exotic than their name suggests. Teesdale-point one out. The wild orchid blossom is about an inch and a half in size. The spray of blooms would make a beautiful corsage except that to pick is to destroy.

Once the flower has withered, no one would ever guess that those two blades of grass are unique.

Teesdale is famous for his nature walks, given on holidays. With his light, quick step, he can march you along a path to the exact spot where the one-sided pyrola will bloom, or where a completely albino pink lady slipper dwells. He has identified 375 different species in the area—and photographed about 330.

"And our daughter Mary is following in his footsteps," smiles Joyce. Mary is taking botany classes and gives lectures and flower walks herself, the Teesdales said.

Teesdale's real life role is that of engineer, but book by book, he has taught himself the world of flowers.

He recommends "Michigan Wildflowers," by Helen V. Smith. "Wildflowers and Weeds" is another good general purpose book, he said. It is by Courtenay and Zimmerman.

Interest in wildflowers has grown so that seed catalogs now have several pages devoted to them. But Joyce Teesdale said she's found it hard to grow wildflowers from seed. You have to give them just the right habitat.

And you have to be careful about digging up and moving plants, she added. Michigan laws are very strict in order to prevent introduction of destructive pests, carried in the soil.

In Texas, she said, roadsides are being planted with wildflowers—even the beautiful Indian paintbrush orchid is blooming there by the hundreds.

Like many flower lovers, the Teesdales wish that Michigan roadsides could be spared the thorough mowing they get.

"Michigan is famous for its wildflowers," Joyce said. "Maybe they could mow early in the spring, or late in the fall" (except for near driveways).

Back from the road, Teesdale finds a fabulous spike-nard, hidden among the wild shrubs, its dark stems angle up three or four feet towards the light. Showers of white blooms are beginning to open.

Imagine, just walk along the road and find a spike-nard—that's if you're a Teesdale.

On the cover

With the temperature pushing up into the low 90s last week, boats of all types were out in force on Lake Charlevoix. Here a skier is pulled by a motorboat near Advance as a sailboat lazily floats down the lake.

Tom Borman of Petoskey displays some of the items donated for sale at the Thursday, July 22 Art Auction at McCune Arts Center. Tom and his wife Lynne are chairing the event to benefit Crooked Tree Arts Council in its service to the area. The auction begins at 7:30 p.m.

Layoffs won't halt drawbridge

Layoff of 240 state highway workers is not expected to affect operation of the Charlevoix drawbridge or Michigan's other 13 movable highway bridges.

Most of those being laid off effective June 30 are highway maintenance workers, state transportation director John Woodford said.

Woodford said the layoffs result from the inability of the state and the Michigan State Employees Association to arrive at an agreement on wage concessions by union members.

Scheduled for layoff are members of MSEA's Labor and Trades unit. They include more than one-fifth of the department's maintenance forces who perform upkeep and repair on the 9,400 miles of Interstate, U.S. and M-highways.

Others maintain the department's approximate 300 buildings and facilities across the state and perform many "housekeeping" functions.

Woodford said the department will place top priority on pavement patching and repair and completion of its annual pavement lanemarking and edgemarking program.

Services that will be reduced include maintenance of freeway rest areas and roadside parks, sign repair and replacement, roadside mowing, weed spraying and brush removal, tree trimming and dead-tree removal and cleaning of roadside ditches, storm sewers and catch basins.

"Unfortunately, trash removal at parks and rest areas is likely to suffer and, because overtime is authorized only in emergency situations, any vandalism or equipment breakdown may force a shutdown," Woodford said.

The layoffs are designed to save approximately $530,000 in labor costs by the end of the state's fiscal year Sept. 30.

Circus coming to BC

The Franzen Brothers Circus will bring its trained Royal Bengal Tigers and African Nubian Lions to Boyne City on August 5.

The big jungle cars are part of a two-hour circus, including horses, exotic animals, an elephant act, and other performers from around the world which will put on two performances at 6 and 8 p.m. on Thursday, August 5.

The Franzen big top will be erected at the waterfront in downtown Boyne City.

The circus, which also appeared in Boyne last year, again is sponsored by the Boyne City Area Chamber of Commerce.

Advance tickets are available at Country Star Market and Restaurant, Boyne Country Party Shop, Northwestern State Bank, Behling's Little Cub Market, Edward's IGA and the Chamber of Commerce.

Advance ticket prices are $3 for adults (age 14 and over) and $2 for children. Senior citizens age 65 and over will be admitted on a children's ticket.

Northern notes

More than a million and a half trout have been planted in Lake Michigan between Charlevoix and Petoskey since the state Department of Natural Resources won its battle with the Lamprey eel for the control of the lakes.

Dance added for this year's Venetian Festival

The boat parade on Round Lake is one of the annual highlights of the Venetian Festival in Charlevoix. The parade begins at sundown Saturday and is followed by fireworks. There is a traditional street parade at 10 a.m. Saturday on Bridge Street.

Charlevoix is having a party and everyone is invited!

That is the word from the Venetian Festival organizing committee which has chosen "Charlebration!" as its theme to reflect the party-like atmosphere of Charlevoix's annual summer festival July 22-25.

New this year, the 52nd year Charlevoix has hosted the Venetian Festival, will be a night of music and dancing in the park and a visit by the prestigious Stroh Highland Pipe Band from Detroit.

The festival opens Thursday, July 22, with the Miss Charlevoix Pageant to be held at 8 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School gym.

Eight young women sponsored by local businesses will vie for the honor of reigning over the weekend's events as Venetian queen and representing the community as Miss Charlevoix for the coming year.

Musical entertainment at the pageant will be provided by the popular Sean Ryan, the Pine River Four barbershop quartet and other local acts.

The contestants themselves will perform together in a choreographed musical number and individually in talent, swimsuit and gown competition.

East Park in downtown Charlevoix will be the center of activity Friday evening when the band Red Hearts will play from 8 p.m. to midnight for a "Night of Music."

The band will accommodate musical tastes of all ages and may liven the evening with a dance contest or two.

Food stands will be set up in the park and the carnival operating nearby.

The "Charlebration!" theme will be most evident on Saturday when two parades, one on the street and one in the water, attract floats and boats colorfully decorated on the party-time motif.

The Venetian street parade begins at 10 a.m. at the corner of Garfield and Bridge Streets and proceeds north on Bridge through the downtown area to the stoplight intersection at Clinton Street.

Highlighting the parade will be the Stroh Highland Pipe Band from Detroit which will also perform later in East Park.

The boat parade, steeped in Venetian Festival tradition,

BMX racing series to be held at Charlevoix Township's newly completed BMX track on both Saturday and Sunday. More than 200 BMX bicycle racers are expected to participate, coming from all over Northern Michigan.

For distance runners, the annual Venetian foot race will be under way at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Street.

Three races—one mile, five kilometers, and ten kilometers—will be held with prizes awarded in several age categories for both men and women.

Softball teams will compete over the weekend in a slow-pitch tournament to be held at the city's softball complex on Carpenter Avenue.

Weather permitting, the finals will be held Sunday afternoon with trophies presented to top-finishing teams.

2 concerts at Interlochen

The World Youth Symphony Orchestra will present two concerts on Sunday, August 1, at Interlochen's National Music Camp.

Made up entirely of high school students, the World Youth Symphony Orchestra performs 11 concerts during the eight-week season.

Guest Maria Tunicka is principal conductor of the Brevard Symphony Orchestra in Florida. She received her master's degree in conducting from the Warsaw Conservatory.

After receiving her degree, she undertook a series of concerts with leading orchestras in Poland, among them the Warsaw National Symphony and Polish Radio Orchestra.

Al Hirt, Warsaw Philharmonic at Interlochen

There's something to satisfy all tastes during the fifth week of the Interlochen Arts Festival—from the Warsaw to Al Hirt.

The Warsaw Philharmonic, conducted by Kazimierz Kord, will make its first appearance at Interlochen on Thursday, July 29 at 8 p.m. in Kresge Auditorium.

Founded in 1901, the orchestra quickly rose to prominence in Poland during the early years of the 20th century. During World War II half its members were lost, but the orchestra was re-established in 1947.

More Polish culture visits

Interlochen this week when Polish-born conductor Maria Tunicka arrives to conduct the World Youth Symphony Orchestra, made up of top-notch players from the camp's High School Division, on Sunday, August 1.

Interlochen's Chamber Music Festival this week showcases the Primavera String Quartet, a young group that won the coveted Naumburg Foundation Award for Chamber Music only two years after its members first played together in 1975.

Al Hirt will return to Interlochen's Kresge stage on Tuesday, July 27, for an evening of what has been classified somewhere between jazz, swing, classical and Dixieland music. The big man with the trumpet will take center stage at 8 p.m.

Another guest at Interlochen this week will be Stanley De Rusha, director of bands and associate professor of music at Michigan State University. De Rusha will conduct the High School Symphonic Band at 4 p.m. on Sunday, August 1, in Kresge Auditorium.

On Saturday, July 31, six members of the Art Department faculty at the National Music Camp will exhibit their works in ceramics, drawing, painting and sculpture. The show will remain on exhibit in the camp's art gallery for one week.

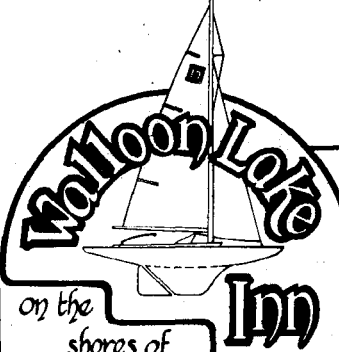

Interlochen's Festival Choir, made up of staff, faculty, university and high school singers, has been rehearsing since the start of the camp season for this week's performance of Berlioz's "Requiem" with the University Festival Orchestra. The performance is at 8 p.m., Saturday, July 31.

Theater Arts faculty will present a "readers theater" on Friday, July 30, at 8 p.m. in Grunow Theater. Faculty members will read through "Outward Bound," an allegory exploring the human condition by English playwright Sutton Vane.

Concerts on Sunday, August 1, include the All-State High School Orchestra and Choir at 12:30 p.m. in the Interlochen Bowl; the High School Choir and Girls Chorus at 3 p.m. in Kresge Auditorium; and the Intermediate Band and Symphony Orchestra at 3:30 p.m. in Corson Auditorium.

Overseas travelers motto: Be prepared

During the summer season, many individuals travel to foreign countries.

District Health Department No. 3 along with the "Harvard Medical School Health Letter" would like to pass on the following basic information of medical concern.

The immunizations needed by a given individual will depend on three factors: the destination(s), official government requirements, and personal immunization history. Among the immunizations to be considered are cholera, plague, typhoid, and yellow fever — as well as measles, polio, tetanus, and diphtheria if a history of such immunizations is not certain.

Since some immunizations must be given over a period of months and since some cannot be given in combination, planning for immunizations should begin many months before actual travel.

Recommendations should be obtained from your physician or the Charlevoix Office of District Health Department No. 3, at 547-6523.

Immune globulin is a special serum preparation that should be considered before travel to areas where hepatitis is likely because of poor hygiene.

Malaria can be a very serious disease. Therefore, if there is any significant risk of contracting malaria, prevention should be strongly urged.

Typical prevention involves taking a weekly pill beginning one week before travel and continuing throughout the stay and for six weeks after returning. The amount and type of medication will vary depending on the type of malaria prevalent in the region.

Traveler's diarrhea, while seldom life-threatening, can certainly interfere with travel plans and enjoyment. Therefore, there is great interest in anything that might decrease the odds of developing traveler's diarrhea.

In recent years, two medicinal methods have been suggested — broad spectrum antibiotics or the bismuth subsalicylate found in liquid Pepto-Bismol.

Many physicians feel that the potential for side effects from antibiotics — or the burden of carrying Pepto-Bismol bottles in the suitcase — make these preventions less desirable than common sense avoidance of any food or liquid that might be contaminated.

After attending to these pre-vacation details, it would also be wise to assemble a "traveling medicine cabinet." It need not be extensive, but should include enough items to manage the usual problems that can arise while away from home. Obviously, it should hold a supply of needed prescription medicines (insulin, heart drugs, etc.) along with extra prescriptions in case they must be refilled.

As a matter of practicality, an extra pair of glasses or contact lenses will spare a traveler from wasting vacation time having them replaced. Regular first aid items are also useful, such as adhesive bandages, gauze pads, adhesive tape, safety pins, scissors, tweezers, insect repellent, and a clinical thermometer. If you are headed for a warm, sunny spot, remember to take lip balm and sunscreen. It's also a good idea to take along an American Red Cross first aid guide.

Consumers shares its' property but asks respect for nature

Consumers Power Company shares thousands of acres of forest and river lands with the public and asks for only one thing in return—respect for nature and property.

"Consumers Power for years has allowed the public to use much of its river lands for hunting and fishing," Richard G. Dahlquist, manager of Consumers Power's Cheboygan Area, said. "All we ever have asked is that people who use our river lands respect the property and not camp in areas that are marked 'no camping or trespassing'."

The Jackson-based utility accumulated 100,000 acres in the early 1900s along some of the most beautiful rivers in Michigan's lower peninsula, including the Au Sable, Muskegon and Manistee rivers.

The land was purchased by Consumers Power for hydroelectric development. Over the years the company has planted more than 25 million trees to protect the watershed on land that had been harvested of the native white pines by timber companies.

"That property has become some of Michigan's prime wilderness and outdoor recreation areas," Dahlquist said. "Recently, thousands of acres have been sold to public agencies to develop camping sites and other recreation facilities. Still other acreage not sold has public parks and campsites on sites leased from Consumers Power Company."

More than 25,000 acres along the Au Sable and Manistee rivers were sold to the U.S. Forest Service in 1980 and 1981. In addition, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has leased or purchased additional acreage.

Dahlquist says the company finds unauthorized camping on Consumers Power property. The problem is the trash or unattended fires that campers leave behind.

"The trash left behind is scattered by animals and the winds, and draws dumping by other people camping illegally. The fires cause dangerous hazards to the forest."

Dahlquist cites other problems caused by some hunters who shoot animals, leaving them wounded. Four-wheel drive vehicles, dune buggies, dirt bikes and motorcycles cause serious soil erosion. Other people have illegally cut and removed trees and firewood on Consumers Power property. Still others leave fires unattended in wooded areas.

"When we put restrictions on use of our land, we do it for good reason.

"The problems we see on our river lands are the exception, not the rule," Dahlquist said. "Most people truly respect nature and wildlife. Consumers Power only is asking for that type of cooperation."

The company suggests that persons interested in finding recreation facilities along its Au Sable, Manistee and Muskegon river lands contact the Michigan Department of Natural Resources or the U.S. Forest Service for information and maps.

New flare gun law takes effect

New laws regulating the sale and ownership of flare guns have now gone into effect in Michigan.

Basically, the new laws exempt retailers and purchasers of flare gun pistols from handgun purchase permit and registration requirements, but restrict sales to boaters or pilots who are 18 years or older.

The purchaser is required to present a boat registration, bill of sale or airplane pilot license to the retailer in order to purchase a flare gun pistol.

Possession and transportation of the devices is restricted for use in conjunction with boating and aircraft emergencies.

Traveling between home and boating use, or purchase and home, etc., the device has to be unloaded, enclosed in a case and carried in a trunk of the vehicle. If the vehicle does not have a trunk, it should be transported in an area not readily accessible to the occupants of the vehicle.

Violation of the new laws also carries penalties. Anyone selling, purchasing or possessing a device not in compliance with these provisions is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $200 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days, or both.

A person who uses a device in violation of the act is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $200. Additionally, a person using a device is held strictly liable for any damages caused by that use.

State Police also warn that the flare gun pistols are by law still classified as firearms and anyone using one in commission of a criminal act would be subjected to the penalties prescribed for violating the particular criminal law.

WL races

Here are the results from last weekend's races at the Walloon Lake Yacht Club.

17's - 1. Kirk, 2. Rasmussen, 3. Bray, 4. Cameron.

Snipes - 1. Krimendahl, 2. Zent, 3. Limbocker, 4. Nelson.

Sunfish [Tuesday] - 1. Cawthra, 2. Peterson, 3. Zent.

Sunfish [Thursday] - 1. Zent, 2. Peterson, 3. Bray.

A Sunfish regatta will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday. There will be two races in the Wildwood-Michigan area.

Northern notes

Traditional and controversial electricity production takes place in Charlevoix County. The Big Rock Point nuclear power plant north of Charlevoix was the third operating nuclear plant in the nation when it opened in 1962. On the shore of Lake Charlevoix at Advance, between Boyne City and East Jordan, is the coal-fueled Northern Michigan Rural Electric Co-op plant.
