BC grant accepted

A Small Cities Grant from the Michigan Department of Commerce was approved by the Boyne City city commission Tuesday, Sept. 21.

The grant is for $21,707. The city's contribution will be $8,600, making the total cost of the projects $30,307.

City manager Tim Clifton said, "We aren't going to be doing anything concrete with this money." But it will, he said, prepare the city for eventual construction work.

The focus of the grant is the Air Industrial Park. The grant will fund a study of what size water/wastewater mains would be necessary to the park site, and of what route they should take.

The grant lists a state contribution of $6,350 for this.

Platting of the park will cost $7,483 from the state and $6,600 from the city. Clifton noted that $2,000 from Michigan Aeronautics Commission has already paid part of Boyne City's contribution there with work done on the problem last year.

The platting will lay out actual sites for future sale to industries. It will also designate roads and utilities lines. This will increase the salability of the industrial park sites, Clifton said.

Two more parts of the grant; the preparation of a financing plan, costing $4,784, split evenly between the city and the state, and a plan for promoting the industrial park, splitting $10,964 evenly, complete the start-up arrangements for the project.

According to the application, the administrator will be the Economic Development Corporation with the city commission having final approval rights.

Granger Engineering, Inc., the city engineers, is the designated consultant for the project.

Brochures will be assembled with the promotional funds. These will advertise the industrial park, showing the platting and including the regulations relating to locating an industry in the city.

The industrial park package is scheduled for completion by April 15, 1983.

At the same time the grant request was submitted, Clifton also submitted one for a new well for the city. This with the attendant construction of mains would cost $280,000.

Asked if the well request would be jeopardized by being the second request from the same city, Clifton said no, because there are four separate categories of request. The first was in Economic Development Start-up, and the well was under Public Works.

The park request is no good without a new well, Clifton said, because the present water supply would not take care of additional demand posed by the park development.

If, however, the state does not approve the grant request for the well, Clifton said the city would have to undertake it in a two-year program. The new well has been discussed before as a city need.

Commissioner Thelma Behling, in approving the grant for the park, said to Clifton, "I'm proud of you. You've been very successful in these grants."

Clifton said it was mainly because the city can show the state specifically that it has made local efforts to solve its problems and use locally garnered public funds.

There's lots of work still to be done in the clean-up of the former Boyne Valley Railroad. This scene is behind the Boyne Theater along Front Street. The rail car in the background is no longer connected to anywhere by tracks as a salvage firm hired by the railroad board has ripped up the rail and ties. Piles of rail can be found at several spots in Boyne City.

BVRR gets more time

Boyne City officials voted September 21 to hold back on the deadline they had issued to Boyne Valley Railroad.

They had asked for action on cleanup of BVRR's dismantling operations, but will wait until after an October 7 meeting of the BVRR directors.

The week before, the commission had ordered a letter be sent to E. Dan Stevens, attorney for BVRR, setting September 21 as the deadline "in which to commence cleanup of the debris."

In addition the city asked for payment for the "removal of the rails crossing city streets and proper repair of the streets following the removal."

The city said they would do the removal job for an estimated cost of $3,600, with adjustments to be made for any variation in the cost.

"In addition," said city attorney William McTaggart's letter to Stevens, "my recommendation is that we also request the court to issue an injunctive order compelling the immediate removal of (railroad cars on tracks within the right-of-way of a city street)."

Because Stevens' response was that such matters would be discussed at the October 7 meeting, and, as commissioner Marty Paul put it, because the commission is concerned over the 200 Boyne City stockholders also involved, the city will delay the action on the deadline.

Stevens letter also restated the BVRR's expectancy to start cleanup shortly.

Depot to draw up train plans

Although ownership of railroad right-of-way next to the Depot Restaurant has not yet been determined, the Boyne City planning commission is asking restaurant owners to draw up a plan of what they intend to do with the parcel.

The restaurant acquired the strip of land containing the tracks and three cars from the former Boyne Valley Railroad to use in conjunction with the restaurant.

The city, however, contends that it retains ownership of the property because it only gave the railroad a right-of-way on its Ray Street easement.

Both the city and the Depot are having title searches conducted to try to settle the dispute.

Glen Pruitt and Tony Williams of the Depot told planners at their Monday, Sept. 20, meeting about their plans for the three cars at the site and a water tower in Boyne Falls.

The caboose would be turned into a museum containing railroad artifacts, and the blue coach would become a dining car or gift shop, they said. Plans include moving the flat car closer to the restaurant so it can become part of an existing outdoor dining area.

The pair plan to put the water tower near the caboose, they said.

Planners asked them to return with a detailed plan of how the site would be developed, whether or not the land belongs to them.

If it turns out that the city owns the property, city manager Tim Clifton said, it is possible a lease arrangement could be worked out. He said the restaurant — if the property is the city's — is using untaxable, city property for commercial gain.

Clifton said some other downtown merchants have complained about that.

A lease, Clifton said, could allow payment in lieu of taxes. City attorney William McTaggart said the city cannot grant a lease of longer than three years, under the terms of the city charter, but it could be renewable.

Clifton said the city has to be assured it would reacquire the right-of-way if it needed to widen Ray Street sometime in the future. The street's right-of-way is 66 feet wide, he said, which extends past the tracks.

Williams indicated they would be willing to sign a lease.

"We're not here to take on the city," he said. They had an opportunity to buy the cars, he said, they then were "cut off" because tracks at both ends of the property were torn up.

The tracks and ties are being removed by a salvage company hired by the railroad as part of the liquidation of the former tourist attraction which began in the 1800's as a logging train.

Pruitt said the only way to remove the cars now would be to dismantle them.

They are expected to return at the next planning commission meeting on Monday, October 18 with their detailed plan.

EJ bypasses state dilemma

An unexpected enrollment increase may put East Jordan Schools back on a state aid formula for money it might never receive.

The situation developed as enrollment — which was expected to drop by 50 students — rose by 24 as school opened, while the Legislature was approving the governor's plan to withhold state aid payments for up to nine months.

"We're going to be okay because we expected zero to start with," superintendent Tom Rossler said of the aid cut.

The Legislature last week went along with Gov. Milliken's call for $150 million in budget cuts — much of it in aid to education — to balance the state budget.

"My understanding," Rossler said, "is they will make the executive cuts now and reimburse us next June in a lump sum," but he added that the state may have to relinquish even that possibility because of high interest rates for borrowing.

The state's plan is to make the state aid payments as late in the budget year as possible, while still being in the school districts' budget year, which ends June 30. The state's year ends Sept. 30.

But Rossler said, "I don't think the state really knows when they can make state aid payments."

The cut will amount to $51,000 for East Jordan — but the district was not expecting payment because of the anticipated student decrease.

State aid is based on state equalized value of district property per student, so, if the enrollment dropped while SEV increased, the district would have less need for state money to ensure it could spend at least a state-mandated minimum per student. Rossler said the $51,000 would be subtracted from money the district was supposed to get — and might be taken from the previous year because of the way the fiscal years end.

But Rossler said the district is braced to go ahead anyway. "We're not going to cut any teachers," he said. "We're not going to cut any programs. But we have frozen the budget."

The one hitch in administrative preparations is the unexpected 24-student increase.

While enrollment in grades kindergarten through seven did go down from 612 last year to the present 606, enrollment in grades eight through 12 went up from 427 to 457.

The expectancy was a decrease of about 50 students for this year. Added to the 24, that makes necessary an adjustment of 74.

Some classes had to be divided. "I can't say enough for the way teachers are handling it," said high school principal Bud Ashton.

Principal Don Peters said seventh graders were taking band, shop, and art classes, using the high school facilities during the last period of the day.

And the elementary school has programs in computers designed for different age levels, Peters said.

Special education students now total 27, but many of them are not in the class for more than an hour or two, he said. He also reported that one class is half third grade and half fourth.

The combination was necessary to keep classes from being overcrowded. The students will be taught at their scheduled levels, he said.

Rossler said work on the new roof for the elementary school will begin in the next week or so.

Country Star move gets planning commission OK

The Boyne City planning commission has recommended that the city commission approve a rezoning request for the Country Star restaurant and supermarket.

The Country Star board of directors wants to build a store and restaurant on a 10-acre site between Top 'O'Michigan Rural Electric Co. and St. Matthews Catholic Church on M-75 just inside the city limits.

Country Star's second choice is a site on M-75 in Wilson Township.

Relocation is needed, a spokesman told the planners at their August meeting, because there is no room for expansion of the store or the parking area at the present North Lake Street site.

The planners held a public hearing on the proposed zoning change — from industrial use to general commercial/industrial — before taking their vote. No one in the audience spoke during the hearing.

Commissioners then went through a list of questions contained in the zoning ordinance to determine whether the site was suitable for the intended use.

These questions concerned such things as whether the land could be used in its present zoned category, whether rezoning would conform with the city land use plan, whether traffic or natural characteristics of the area would be disrupted and whether the move would cause a flurry of other rezoning requests in the area.

They concluded the rezoning request was permissible and in the city's best interests.

City manager Tim Clifton pointed out that some problems incurred at the present site could be corrected at the new one. Proper entrance and exit from the parking lot, control over parking and reduction of traffic problems could be worked into the site plan, he said.

He also noted that the new store would be bigger, thus generating more jobs for area residents and that the city tax base would be enlarged with the addition of the market and restaurant.

The commission voted 7-0 to recommend that the city commission approve the move. Two commissioners, Robert Pollys and Dale Parsons, were absent.

EJ to get lights on runway

East Jordan's airport will get remote-control runway lighting.

City superintendent Mike Dionne said, "We're starting paper work now."

This followed announcement by the state Aeronautics Commission that a 50 percent grant had been awarded the city for runway lighting, a lighted wind cone and a rotary beacon.

The state's $32,000 will be matched by $32,000 from the city, money already having been budgeted for the purpose.

City treasurer Fern Morris said about $25,000 of the city's share will come from money remaining from the runway paving job, also partly funded by the state.

Dionne said the state must approve the engineering plans, which will bring the timetable to spring construction.

He said the improvements ought to help "bring in future job potential."

Work is progressing rapidly on Water Street in Boyne City, where crews from C.H. Smith and Co. are reconstructing the water and sewer lines below the street and, then, the street and sidewalks. When they are done, scheduled for October 31, the block will look like the block done last autumn. Total price tag for the block between East and Park is about $110,000.

Emergency drill tests readiness

Charlevoix Area Hospital and emergency services throughout Charlevoix County held a major disaster drill Sunday morning at Elm Pointe and the hospital.

The scenario, as designed by hospital safety committee personnel, county sheriff George Lasater, and representatives of other emergency services, was an explosion at Elm Pointe during a family reunion.

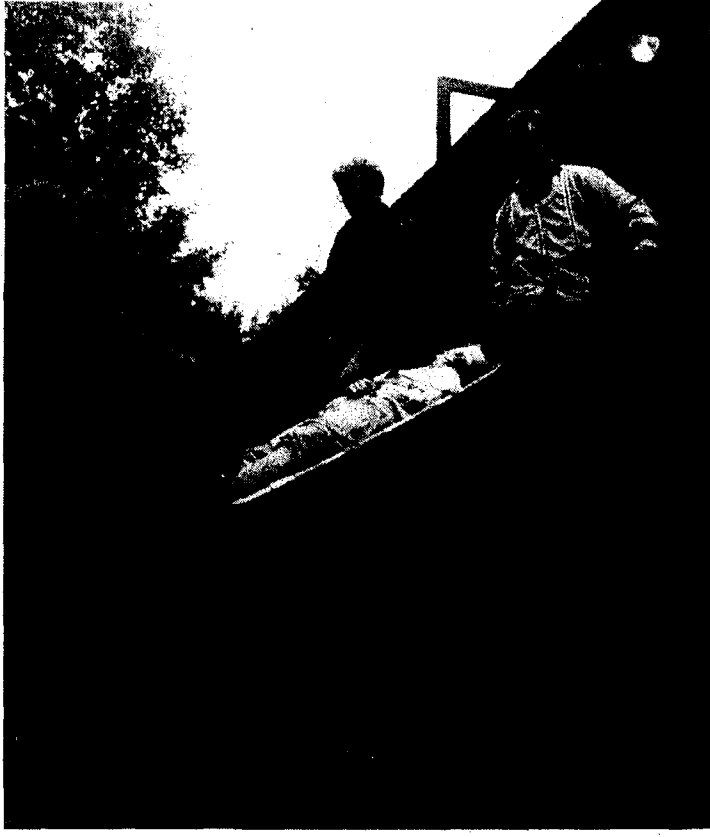

Fourteen young people from East Jordan were the volunteer victims, acting out various injuries while the East Jordan Fire Department, sheriff's deputies and ambulance crews from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City went through rescue and treatment procedures as if the event were real, not simulated.

East Jordan fire and ambulance crews were the first on the scene after notification from the sheriff's department.

When the extent of the problem became apparent, ambulance crews from Charlevoix and Boyne City were radioed, as was the hospital.

While the additional ambulance crews were en route the hospital notified all physicians, nursing personnel, x-ray and laboratory staff.

By the time the ambulance crews had stabilized the conditions of the victims and were transporting them to the hospital, hospital staff was gathering and the emergency rooms were ready for the arrival of the first casualties.

Ambulance attendants and sheriff's deputies carry a "victim" from a building at Elm Pointe in East Jordan during the disaster drill held Sunday by emergency crews from throughout the county and Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A triage system, determining which of the injured required most immediate care, helped in quickly assessing each victim's condition and directing ambulance crews and hospital staff as to where each victim should be taken for further treatment.

Injuries included a severe head wound, a badly injured pregnant woman, many types of fractures and lacerations and shock.

Commenting after the drill, Lasater said, "This was one of the best drills we've had. I think the kids we had acting as victims made the scene of the accident very realistic. Everyone had a real sense of involvement and it went very well."

Hospital and ambulance crews met briefly after the drill to discuss the morning and to plan for a further critique to see if there are any specific details in the disaster plan which need further work.

Such disaster drills are required by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation and are held twice a year by Charlevoix Area Hospital. The involvement of so many agencies in this drill made it particularly complex and realistic.

Pardon me while I bring a few things up to date.

Yankee Doodle came to town upon a little pony, he stuck a feather in his cap and called it macaroni. Personally, I think the guy should have stayed in East Jordan.

This little pig went to market; this little pig stayed home; this little pig had roast beef; this little pig had none; and this little pig cried, wee wee wee! all the way home. That's what happens when Boyne City gas stations keep their restroom doors locked.

Jack Sprat can eat no fat, his wife can eat no lean. What do they expect with the way grocery prices are today?

Jack and Jill went up the hill to fetch a pail of water. Jack fell down and broke his crown and Jill came tumbling after. Now maybe they will quit fooling around and go down to the city hall and pay their water bill.

Old mother Hubbard went to the cupboard to fetch her poor dog a bone; but when she got there, the cupboard was bare and she never voted Republican again.

Frankie and Johnny were lovers, my gawd, how they could love, Swore to be true to each other, true as the stars above. Lawyers can't make a dime with stuff like that going on.

There is a tavern in the town, and there my true love sits him down, and drinks his wine with laughter and glee, and never, never thinks of me. What are you hollaring about? You are the one who drove him to drink.

Little Jack Horner sat in the corner, eating his Christmas pie; He put in his thumb and pulled out a plum, and said, "How in the world did that damn thing get in there?"

Mother, may I go out to swim? Yes, my darling daughter; hang your clothes on a hickory limb and don't go near the water. Ha! Not at the state park you don't.

Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep; if I should die before I wake, who in the world is going to write this column next week?

Over in Germany a new political party is developing. As I understand it, they call it the Green party. The Greens are against big business and its concomitant pollution. They are for peace without nuclear bombs.

It is a bit more complicated than that, but at least it is clear that the predominantly young, blue-jeaned Germans know how to organize. Their party is making dents in German politics.

Then I also read that people who escape the sordidness of man's world by developing a comprehension of nature are being called green people. That's over here in America.

There have always been green people, but they weren't much noticed. In fact, people for whom the world is people, tended to trample on the world of the green people, until, as we all know, they showed signs of putting the planet out of commission.

I tend to want to call these latter folks the purple people. Partly because of their people-ish passions, and partly in recollection of that delightful song, "The Purple People Eaters."

Purple people tend to eat the land. (You have to read the song title properly.) We all eat the land, but purples more than the greens, certainly.

Purples want shopping centers and factories. It keeps them and the greens from going hungry. It despoils the land, however, and the greens are beginning to sprout objections to certain careless, ignorant, and aggressive projects of the purples.

Beware of the bronzes. The Greens in Germany are out to get the German bronzes, bronzing up a little themselves as they do so.

The bronzes here, as well as abroad, care little for the land or the people. They care for power. They are bronze because they are relics of the bronze cannon and the bronze statue eras. Unfortunately they are still clanging around.

As times change, I keep hoping the feeling will develop that bronziness is just not with it anymore.

What happens still is the insidious touch of bronze that unnerves even the purples as they see the pinstriped grays walk down their streets. The pinstriped grays favor bronze-colored neckties.

Probably no need to discuss the pinstriped grays. What's good for them is always good for the whole U.S.A., they have said. And indeed, it is so good we can all have television sets.

Besides the different human races I have named so far, there are also the blues — the artists among us — and the reds, those in entertainment.

And ever since "Clockwork Orange," I have tended to imagine that tinkers and inventors were orange. I keep thinking computers will come out in fetching orange boxes instead of in the present sober pinstripe-appealing grays.

All colors have their rights. We have learned this. I am quite wrong to have my prejudices. As we have been told before, we need the full rainbow of the races of humanity.

Yes, we do. And greens are best if they are also blue and purple and orange. And even the laccoca pinstriped grays have performed best by being dipped into a little color. Sometimes a dash of red.

The thing is to keep facing the idea, whatever it is, and not to become so buried in the goal of having it realized. You see, the colors of light are different from the colors of paint.

We can mix the colors of the illumination called rainbow and get clear, transparent, light.

But if we mix all the colors as pigments, we get, alas, the color of mud.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

We sure take things for granted sometimes. Like the water that surrounds our beautiful communities here in the north. Specifically, Lake Charlevoix.

Times ago, we used to throw junk and other pollutants right into the lake, thinking that nothing could ever destroy its beauty. But now, we are aware of such things as chemical pollutants along with a large group of others.

We should consider ourselves lucky that a few people, like the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association have taken on the task of monitoring the waters in the lake.

But, serious threats are just over the horizon if the Government gets control and decides to divert some of the water out to other states that have water problems.

Right now, everybody has enough water. In fact, scientists tell us that we probably have as much water here on earth as we had tens of thousands years ago. The problem arises that the water crisis that the west is having, the crisis in the south, and the pollution problems of the east, is not necessarily those of supply, but rather distribution and content.

The water is not in the right place, or is not pure enough to drink.

Recently, California held a vote to see if water from the Sacramento River should be diverted to the south, so the 1.7 million people in Orange County could use it. The vote was turned down so this means those people will be facing droughts and water management headaches.

Perhaps we will be facing a vote like that someday. We will have to figure all the economic and political considerations before we make our choice. Some even say that we won't get a chance to vote on the issue, they will just take it.

If that happens, and the level of Lake Michigan is dropped just a couple of feet, catastrophic things could happen. Shipping on the Great Lakes would have to be restructured so that the boats could come into ports like Lake Charlevoix. Millions of dollars for dredging would have to be spent in the thousands of harbors those boats serve.

If the boats can't load enough, shipping will slow down even more than it has in this economy. Grain would not be able to leave the lakes and go throughout the world. The thousands of items that are shipped by boat would be forced into shipping by truck or rail, increasing those costs dramatically.

Just thinking about it can scare you. When you think that water, while our most useful resource, could mean the doom of what we all want to live up here for, if we don't keep track of what may happen, or could happen. Especially if we keep our apathetic, take it for granted attitude about the water around us.

Just remember, there are a zillion uses for water from the midwest, to slurry coal out of Wyoming, to cooling gigantic power plants, up to the greatest user of water, agriculture.

This is just something we can't forget about.

Columnist appears for campaign fund

Nickie McWhirter, Detroit Free Press columnist will be guest speaker at Harbour Inn in Harbor Springs on Friday, Sept. 24, at 6:30 p.m.

McWhirter is also syndicated in newspapers around the country. She will be speaking in support of Michigan Women's Political Campaign Fund. The $5 ticket fee will go for the Campaign Fund.

Campaign Fund is a rather new organization,

Debbie Smith said. Smith is office manager for Women's Resource Center which has been publicizing the McWhirter event.

Originating in Detroit, the Campaign Fund now has offices also in other Michigan cities. Its purpose is to give campaign help to women running for office.

WFC director Jan Mancinelli said, "It's precisely the kind of organization that women need."

Mancinelli said lack of financial backing has kept many women from running for office.

Of course, she said, the expectancy is that the women obtaining MWP-CF backing will be interested in the various aspect of equal rights. Pam Harwood of Detroit heads the organization.

Mancinelli said one Emmet County candidate for commissioner is a woman—Ann Smith. Two women are running for probate judge in Chebo-gan. In time, she said, such women could have MWP-CF backing.

The Friday evening meeting is also to encourage area people to participate in the campaigning process. The meeting is sponsored by the Business and Professional Women and the American Association of University Women.

There will be a cash bar and refreshments at the meeting.

Four Gaylord touchdown runs defeat Ramblers

BY PAUL ZINCK
Gaylord quarterback Kurt Kalaviska ran for three touchdowns in leading the Blue Devils to a 26-6 victory over Boyne City.

Kalaviska scored the first three Gaylord TDs — on runs of two, 30 and one yard — and second string quarterback Jeff Cowles ran for the final six-point-er.

The lone Rambler touchdown came on a 5-yard pass from Brad Musser to Kimo Kuheana. Kalaviska had 118 yards rushing, including his 30-yard romp. He also threw to Chris Rau for a two-point conversion following his second touchdown.

The Blue Devils opened the scoring on a 12-yard touchdown drive with 5:58 left in the first quarter. Kalaviska scored on a two-yard quarterback sneak.

The touchdown was the result of a Boyne City fumble on the 12-yard line.

The Ramblers threatened on a 45-yard drive that took them down to the Gaylord 5-yard line.

Quarterback Brad Musser threw passes of 14 and 25 yards to Kevin Fitzpatrick.

Their effort went for naught, however, as they gave up the ball on downs on the 10-yard line.

Gaylord could move the ball only three yards and punted to Boyne with less than one minute left in the first half.

Boyne got the ball on the 40 of Gaylord with 50 seconds left.

Musser ran 25 yards from scrimmage and completed a 10-yard pass to Tom Moody before throwing the 5-yard touchdown pass to Kimo Kuheana.

The Ramblers failed to make the conversion and went into halftime trailing 14-6. The Blue Devils scored again in the third quarter on a one-yard run by Kalaviska. The scoring drive went 74 yards and used up over 4 minutes.

The backfield threesome for the Blue Devils, Kalaviska and running backs Ken Pawlonta and Kevin Weisel, rushed for 78 total yards while the only pass-play of the drive resulted in a 4-yard loss.

Stacy Reinhardt returned the ensuing kickoff 23 yards to the Rambler 33.

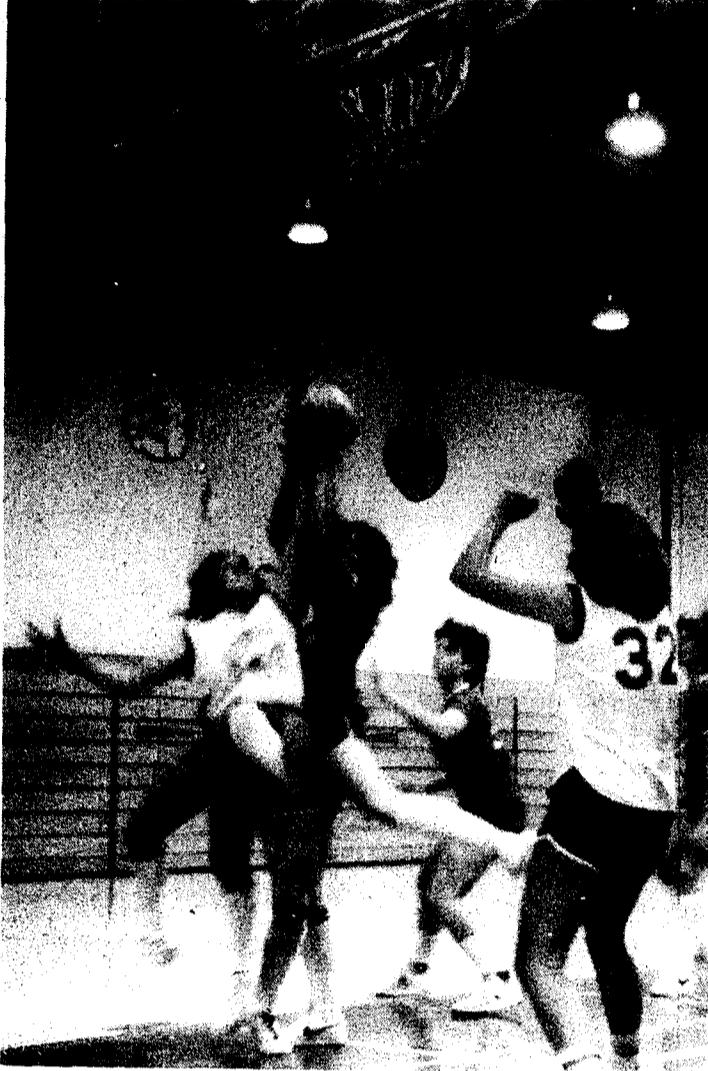

Musser then completed a 20-yard pass to Fitzpatrick and ran for 34 yards on the next two plays. Three penalties pushed the Ramblers back to the 28, and they had to punt. Gaylord then took the ball 72 yards in a drive which contained no passing. The Ramblers held them from scoring, however, by blocking Jim Warren's field goal attempt.

The Blue Devils scored once again on Cowles' 9-yard run to cap off a 30-yard drive. The conversion attempt was no good.

Boyne made another attempt to score but an interception by Todd Amthor on the 20-yard line with one minute remaining, put the game away.

The Ramblers play this week at St. Ignace. The Saints beat Sault Ste. Marie 32-12 on Friday.

Girls' basketball can get just as rough under the basket as the boys' version. Here, Kathy Kircher of Boyne City and DeEtte Looze of East Jordan tangle on a rebound try. The Red Devils won the game 51-45.

East Jordan girls outshoot Ramblers

Joelyn Ingalls and DeEtte Looze led East Jordan to a 51-45 girls' basketball victory over Boyne City.

Ingalls led all scorers in the game with 19 points, while Looze sank five straight foul shots and popped in a key field goal late in the game to seal the Red Devils' victory.

Looze finished the night with 14 points and was the top rebounder with 17 caroms. The Devils jumped to a quick 11-2 lead, but the Ramblers fought back to lead by a point, 12-11, at the end of the first quarter.

Boyne widened the margin slightly in the second stanza to hold a 29-26 margin at the half.

The devils came back after the break and outshot Boyne 14-6 in the third quarter to take a 40-35 advantage into the final period.

Looze's strong shooting in the final minutes allowed the Devils to widen the margin to six points by the final buzzer.

Liz Sturm was the top scorer for the Ramblers, as she deposited 17 points. It was the first loss of the year for Boyne, which had knocked off its first three opponents. The win erased the Red Devils' record at 1-1.

EJ girls fall to Ellsworth

East Jordan took an early lead over Ellsworth, but lost the non-conference girls' basketball game 46-37.

The Red Devils led 8-4 at the end of the first quarter, but fell behind 20-17 at the half.

They kept it close as the third period ended 30-29, but the Lady Lancers outscored them 15-8 in the final quarter.

Joelyn Ingalls led the Devils' scoring with 17 points, while Kim Etter added 10. Cheryl Elzinga was the top scorer in the game, netting 19 points for Ellsworth.

Joelyn Ingalls goes to the hoop during the Red Devils' victory over Boyne. Ingalls scored 19 points.

Boosters work toward $10,000 pledge

The East Jordan Athletics Boosters Club has begun a series of fund raisers to help support the school athletic program. While the school district has resumed some of its administration of the approximately $35,000 program, the Boosters have pledged $10,000 for the 1982-83 school year. Last year they carried the entire after-school athletics program. "We had a chili supper the other evening," said Larry Chanda, president of the Boosters. "And last Friday night we sponsored a dance for the high school students."

Chanda said the dance went well and added that he enjoyed meeting the other parents who turned out for a little chaperoning.

Working as a parent in these activities, Chanda observed, "helps you to understand the things kids are going through."

The Boosters are helping out with seventh and eighth grade tackle football. Chanda said, "Anyone is welcome who would like to give some help."

Chanda has been volunteering for close to seven years now, starting when his own son was in middle school.

Admittedly partial to sports, Chanda agrees with the Boosters' view that sports are an essential part of education.

"In East Jordan it involves about 180 kids," Chanda said. "A lot of discipline is learned. And a lot of give-and-take."

He said it creates fellowship, and with sports to look forward to, it helps many to make it through the week academically.

Other activities of the Boosters include a Glen's Market sales-slip drive. Students going out for sports canvassed various neighborhoods for the sales slips. Another drive may follow later in the year.

Booster members have asked local business people to contribute to their fund. All contributors, including individual donors, get their names printed in programs handed out at the games.

The Boosters do not get the gate receipts. The ticket money, Chanda said, goes into the schools' share of the athletics budget. "But the Boosters run the concession," he said.

Boosters also sell "Devil pins" at the games.

The tee shirts, printed with "You ain't played football until you've played East Jordan," have been sold out, and more ordered. And the Boosters may sell some type of jacket and tote bag, Chanda said.

Varsity jackets are still available, he said.

A Glen Mayhew memorial trophy cabinet has been discussed and "we anticipate having a spaghetti dinner," Chanda said. Mayhew, the baseball coach, died earlier this year.

Planning takes place at Booster meetings at the high school cafeteria on second Mondays. "We encourage the public to attend," Chanda said. "Parents don't know what they are missing." "We have between 28 and 30 attending meetings, and it's been the best year yet, with a lot of exceptional help. But more parents ought to get involved."

Area targeted for federal contracts

Charlevoix County is among 77 of Michigan's 83 counties eligible to take part in a federal program which targets government contracts to areas of high unemployment.

The eligible areas have been designated as "labor surplus areas" — which means they have unemployment rates at least 20 percent higher than the national average.

The Labor Department listing is used to determine which communities get favored treatment under Defense Manpower Policy Four, a program targeting federal procurement contracts to the areas with the highest unemployment rates.

There are 1,099 communities on the current national list. About $4 billion in purchases are included in the program.

Not included in the purchase program are weapons systems, but hundreds of thousands of items from shoes to sunglasses that can be supplied by small and medium-sized firms in the northeast and Midwest are on the list.

U.S. Senator Don Riegle said Michigan firms must still compete for the contracts; they will not be automatically awarded.

"The government's procurement system may seem confusing and bureaucratic," Riegle said, "but I think it's well worth the effort to master the system if it means bringing some of these contracts to Michigan."

Michael Smith in Riegle's Detroit office (phone 313-226-3188) has more information on the program.

The City Manager will instruct the Police Department to begin a more thorough surveillance of the park area.

Mayor Fitzpatrick opened a Public Hearing at 7:04 p.m. for citizen input on the First Reading of an Amendment to the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance A-28, Section 3.94 - Flood Hazard District.

There being no citizen input, the Public Hearing was closed at 7:06 p.m.

The First Reading of the Proposed Amendment is as follows:

term flood hazard area as used in this ordinance shall mean the flood hazard area zone.

C. DEVELOPMENT PERMIT

1. Development, including the erection of structures and placement of mobile homes, within a flood hazard area shall not occur except upon issuance of a zoning permit in accord with the requirements of this ordinance and the following standards:

The word "development," as used in this section, shall mean any man-made change to improved or unimproved real estate, including, but not limited to, buildings or other structures, mining, dredging, filling, grading, paving, excavation or drilling operations located within the area of special flood hazard.

d.(8) The flood carrying capacity of any altered or relocated watercourse or subject to state or federal regulations designed to insure flood-carrying capacity shall be substituting the capacity for the maintained. If any following designated alteration or relocation of sections of said Or. proposed, then prior B. DELINEATION OF THE FLOOD HAZARD OVERLAY ZONE

1. The flood hazard zone shall overlay existing zoning districts delineated on the official Boyne City Zoning Map. The boundaries of the flood hazard zone shall coincide with the boundaries of the areas of special flood hazards (A zones) designated by the Federal Insurance Administration in the Flood Insurance Study, dated January 19, 1982, with accompanying Flood Insurance Rate Maps and Flood Boundary and Floodway Maps, and amendments thereto, which are adopted by reference, appended, and declared to be a part of this ordinance. The percent of value of the streets, utilities and pads before the repair, reconstruction or improvement has commenced; and for mobile homes not placed in a mobile home park or mobile home subdivision, require that:

(a) stands or lots are elevated on compacted fill or on pilings so that the lowest floor of the mobile home will be at or above the base flood level;

(b) adequate surface drainage and access for a hauler are provided; and,

(c) in the instance of elevation on pilings, that:

-lots are large enough to permit steps,

-piling foundations are placed in stable soil no more than ten feet apart, and

-reinforcement is provided for pilings more than six feet above the ground level.

(5) No mobile home shall be placed in a flood-way, except in an existing mobile home park or an existing mobile home subdivision.

H. Obstruction of floodways

Located within areas of special flood hazard established in Section B.1. are areas designated as floodways. Since the floodway is an extremely hazardous area due to the velocity of flood waters which carry debris, potential projectiles, and erosion potential, the following provisions apply:

(1) Encroachments are prohibited, including fill, new construction, substantial improvements, and other development unless a technical evaluation demonstrates that encroachments shall not result in any increase in flood levels during the occurrence of the base flood discharge.

(2) If the preceding Section h.(1) is satisfied, all new construction and substantial improvements shall comply with all applicable flood hazard reduction provisions of Section C.1.d. PROVISIONS FOR FLOOD HAZARD REDUCTION.
