Homecoming '82

These three floats were the featured performers in the annual Homecoming parade that went through downtown Boyne City last Friday afternoon. Even with all the pep and the hopeful sayings, Boyne lost their homecoming contest with the Blue Devils of Sault Ste. Marie 27-6. See story on page five.

Grievances brought to board

Two former teachers brought their grievance to the Boyne City school board meeting Monday, Oct. 11. Represented by the teacher's union, Carol Powers and Gordon Howie said the school board was not following contract procedures. The teachers' union president, Leon Jarema charged that the board by-passed the teachers in hiring Katherine Copeland as the art teacher for the elementary grades. He said that Powers had tenure, had a satisfactory record for her 4.03 years of teaching in the system, and was "authorized" in her certificate to teach all subjects, from kindergarten to the eighth grade. Union representative Fred Rice said she was next in line for recall for full time work. Powers had been laid off according to contract procedures when a budgetary cutback was made. Rice said Powers should have been recalled, according to the same procedures when the hiring was done.

Superintendent Rich Kelly responded, "We were looking for someone with a strong background in art."

"What's the use of seniority then?" Jarema said.

Board member Bill Chipman queried Jarema on the issue of "certified but not qualified" which was added to the August 1981 contract, but Jarema characterized it as a grandfather clause and therefore not pertinent to Powers.

Powers said she has taken art courses in undergraduate and graduate school. Chipman concluded the discussion with "I have to feel the best decision was made."

The board has one month before taking a vote on the grievance.

A second discussion focussed on the hiring of Marlys Clark as a CETA aide for kindergarten.

Elementary school principal Ed Snyder said the range of school readiness was wider among this year's kindergartners than it ever had been. There was also a wide range in ages, he said.

When Clark came to the school with an offer to work three weeks for nothing and then, if kept on, to work according to the program approved by CETA, with CETA paying half her salary, it answered the need for additional help in the kindergarten classes, Kelly said. The board voted 4 to 3 to retain Clark.

Kelly announced a student forum for high schoolers in the area, conducted by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District on Thursday, Nov. 4.

Later on in the month an opinion poll will be taken by callers trained by Char-Em.

These are, Kelly said, part of the state board of education's Project Outreach.

The board heard a presentation Monday night given by Beth Townsend, a teacher for the hearing-impaired. The class is a Char-Em program which is located in the Boyne City school for the first time.

In other action at Monday night's meeting, the board set the price for minimum bid on the school's North Bay School property at $8,500, set the price on the building trade's house for $49,900 (including land), and decided on Blue Cross/Blue Shield as carrier for school health insurance.

Master Plan, bids, discussed at EJ council

A masterplan for East Jordan will be the focus for the planning and zoning commission this winter, according to commission chairman Tom Sheridan. Sheridan came to the city council meeting on October 5 to ask for appointments of people from representative groups in the city and South Arm Township to help the commission with the job.

Sheridan said using the work done on a previous masterplan project and with the input from these appointees, they "would have a melting pot from which a masterplan could emerge."

Sheridan also reported to city council that the commission okayed a request by Larry and Jackie Brooks to remodel the Canoe Livery downtown. The Brooks' plan to have a family-type video game arcade and fast food place at the location.

Sheridan said because it was not unlike other businesses in the area, the commission advised that no action was needed by the council.

The city council did approve a special use permit for Pat Lord of 304 North Street to start an in-home beauty shop.

In other matters, the council turned over the study of bids for work on the city dock to the harbor commission which will work with the Michigan Waterways Commission.

"Waterways," said city superintendent Mike Dionne, "has to review the bids first," before the council can make any decision. The bids ranged from $7,880 to $26,000—the differences caused chiefly by the distance equipment would have to travel to the job.

The council discussed the dangerous condition of the rear portion of the Snizbee building downtown. Dionne said the co-owner had promised he would do something about the problem in October.

The library board report, given by board member D. C. Pray, noted the request by the three library employees "to be brought under the umbrella of dental, optical, and medical coverage with the other city employees—at a cost of $900."

The request was referred to the finance committee.

Pray reported further that the state library board requested East Jordan to keep the library open six more hours a week to comply with guidelines for obtaining state aid.

Pray said the increased wage cost could be covered by increased fines.

"The main thing is we're within our budget," Pray concluded.

Police car saga continues

The story on Boyne City police cars continued as a local resident asked for further clarification at the Tuesday, Oct. 12 noon meeting of the city commission.

Last week, challenging the city's purchase of police cars from outside the area, resident Skip Sheaffer had on his own account brought in a conversation he had had with Bob Mathers of Mathers Ford concerning the city's purchase of cars from the state's bulk purchasing.

The city can buy a police car for $2,000 less by buying it from the state, city manager Tim Clifton had said.

Later Clifton verified this for The Press, saying, "the sticker price on the car we got was around $11,000." Buying it from the state's bulk purchase, Clifton said, knocked the price down $2,000.

"This is no reflection whatsoever on Bob Mathers' automobiles," Clifton said. He explained that the state's bulk purchasing and warranties make the savings possible—as it does in the purchase of road salt.

Mathers, in a telephone interview, countered by saying that while the discussion was not his idea, the fact was that he sold East Jordan a police car—a Ford LTD—larger than Boyne City's new car for $8,400.

Mathers said, referring to the mileage comparison, "Our cars are specially built as a police car and certainly should be capable of performing as well."

As for the charter requirement that all such purchases be advertised for bids, Clifton said, "The state does all the advertising and bidding so we don't advertise ourselves. But we do advertise for other vehicles which the state does not purchase in bulk."

He concluded by saying, "The next time we buy a police car, we'll make state specs available to them (local dealers). If they can do it," he said, "we'll take it."

Water Street renovation in Boyne City should be finished by October 23, according to city manager Tim Clifton. Finished, except for the brick paving, he added. Over the last weekend, workers started laying the cement for the sidewalks. The final grading of the street should be done on next Monday or Tuesday and the street will be paved. Clifton added that the work is still ahead of schedule.

Clifton says city should unload property

"City owned property is tax exempt," city manager Tim Clifton told the city commission at the Tuesday noon meeting, "So it behooves a city to unload what isn't necessary."

EJ Homecoming plans announced

Plans for East Jordan's High School's Homecoming were announced by the Student Council for this weekend's activities. A parade downtown starting at 1:30 p.m. will go down Elm Street and up Main Street to start off the celebration.

True to tradition, the parade will include class floats, cheerleaders, team members, and the royal court.

The football game with Mancelona will begin at 7:30, with coronation of Homecoming queen and king coming at halftime.

The final event will be the Homecoming dance, set for 10 p.m. Friday evening.

Leading up to the big weekend is another tradition—Spirit Week, during which students will come to school dressed according to the rubric of the day, whether it be Twine Day, Punk Rock Day, Toga Day, or Hunters' Day.

The student council, sponsoring the festivities, is headed by president Cheryl Postma, vice-president Todd Chanda, secretary-treasurer Lisa Fuson.

map the parcels the city owns, Clifton noted there were a few city-owned lots near Rotary Park that could be sold.

Clifton commented also that "Boyne City is uncharacteristic in that it doesn't have a lot of untaxed land."

He said the relatively large area around the north well protects the water system and allows for additional wells when needed in the future.

The land, zoned public land, out at the airport that drops steeply toward the river probably be given over to passive recreation, Clifton said, as it is in the flood plain and not a likely spot for development.

The public has an additional restraint, he said. "Before the city can sell any park land, it has to go to a vote of the people." Other city property is sold by bid procedures, he said.

Sherman, Todd Chanda, Scott Meade, Don Nachazel and Mike Clanswalk. Out of this group will come a queen and a king, while the rest form the court for the homecoming celebration.

Dayton Ballet to visit EJ Civic Center

Area schools will be coming to East Jordan's Civic Center to a free lecture-demonstration by the Dayton Ballet. This nationally known company is being sponsored by Crooked Tree Arts Council, and their presentation in East Jordan will be on Tuesday, Oct. 19 at 10 a.m.

The company will perform in Petoskey that evening at the Petoskey High School at 8 p.m. Tickets for that performance are $10.

The opportunity being given school children and interested residents in the area is more than one to hear questions answered on classical ballet and see a few pirouettes. Dayton Ballet is one of the troupes which applies classical ballet to modern movement. With, as the New Times says, "exciting new choreography." The Times calls the dancers brilliant and talented.

Their visit will provide insight and examples of the range of classical through modern ballet as the Dayton performers see it.

Free color tour brochures are available from the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce.

The brochures, which contain five color tour routes, can be obtained from the chamber at P.O. Box 308, Petoskey, or at the chamber office, 401 E. Mitchell.

Marshall Sayles

I was checking the ingredients listed on a loaf of bread the other day and was surprised to discover that they had added some flour to it.

Weather scientists are fussing with their charts again; and we are getting oddball predictions about some nasty weather we can swear at this coming winter.

Many are forecasting the snowiest, coldest season on record. Cold and hip deep snow followed by cold and hip deep snow, they say. And they are telling ski run operators that the forces of nature will run wild—so they should get ready for an excellent cash register pounding season.

Some are pointing to the extra fur on animals and others report that sun spots are just right for a blinger. Ha! I looked that up in several dictionaries and was surprised to discover that there isn't such a thing.

If there is no blinger in the dictionary, how can we have one outdoors? I've never seen anything outdoors that wasn't in the dictionary. So, you may be wallowing hip deep in two or three months, but it won't be due to a blinger. (I remember one winter when I was a kid in north Boyne. I wallowed clear up to my nozzle, but that was 50 years ago before snow plows and weathermen were all the rage. And since there was no dictionary in the house, my folks called it a blinger.)

One of the most reliable ways to tell how cranky the winter is going to be is to go around Boyne City checking the wood piled up behind houses. When there's lots of wood in the yards you don't need a weatherman to tell you what's coming.

I stopped at one house and asked the man why he was piling up so much wood and he said that he was getting ready for a blinger. When I explained to him that there wasn't such a thing, he said he was getting ready for it anyway.

Now there is something for you. An uneducated man using the same logic as an experienced weather forecaster.

Many of us came from down on the farm—went to the big city to shun the pitchfork and slop-pail once and for all. But if Ronald Reagan doesn't turn the economy around, we who fled to the bright lights and money changers will be forced to return to whence we came. If there's anything I can't stand, it's returning to whence I came.

I am reminded of my lawyer uncle who was a hide-bound Republican with many of Mr. Reagan's ideas. When automobile numbers were exploding all over the country, he said at a state Republican meeting that if the nation was to survive, the people would have to get off the rubber and return to the hoe. Mr. Reagan is old enough to have been there and perhaps swallowed the advice. Let us pray that he was making a horse opera at the time.

I wish that just for two weeks I could have everything I've ever wanted; any longer than that and they would ambulance me off to the hospital for sure.

When I can't sleep, I often lay there thinking of the darndest things. Just last night I spent an hour wondering why monkeys act so much like men.

Lately I've been depending upon Geritol and Tylenol to keep me fit to go full blast. But now that they have taken one away, I'm only fit for half a blast.

Chop this thing off, Marshall. There is such a thing as saddling a column and riding it to death.

Barbara Cruden

Softly, without saying goodbye, the birds have left. The walnut tree is a yellow lantern inside the green. Brown hills and rows of corn say "peace," and in a mist the sky enfolds the earth.

Everything that can be said about autumn has already flowed from pens and been tapped out by machines across miles of paper. So we simply say "what a beautiful day" to our neighbors—unless our business is words.

Then, because it is here again, like the mountain people climb because it is there, we write of autumn.

I once knew some children from eastern Colorado. They had never seen autumn until they moved to Michigan. "Why," they asked their parents, "didn't we live here?"

And so we try to think of ways to celebrate the scene. Car trips, boat rides—How about a balloon ride?

But those who live here, don't have to take a trip. Mostly the slow-riding sun and clouds and passing days do the trick, right where they're standing.

They just stand—and watch October sigh into yellow and red. Watch the sun shine through the leaves and sift between them and draw all the beauty of the planet from them in a moment.

How strange to hear this described on the radio as "autumn color is 60 percent advanced."

They smell the afternoon on the dry fields. Pick it up in a ripe tomato, warm from the sun.

We are so used to getting information, do we know how to read the hills as they turn purple with October cloud shadows?

What is the point of standing here, just looking? What is the message?

Is it that time is passing and we are one autumn older? Or is it all about the great order of turning earth and revolutions around the sun, steady on while we earthlings go boom and bust?

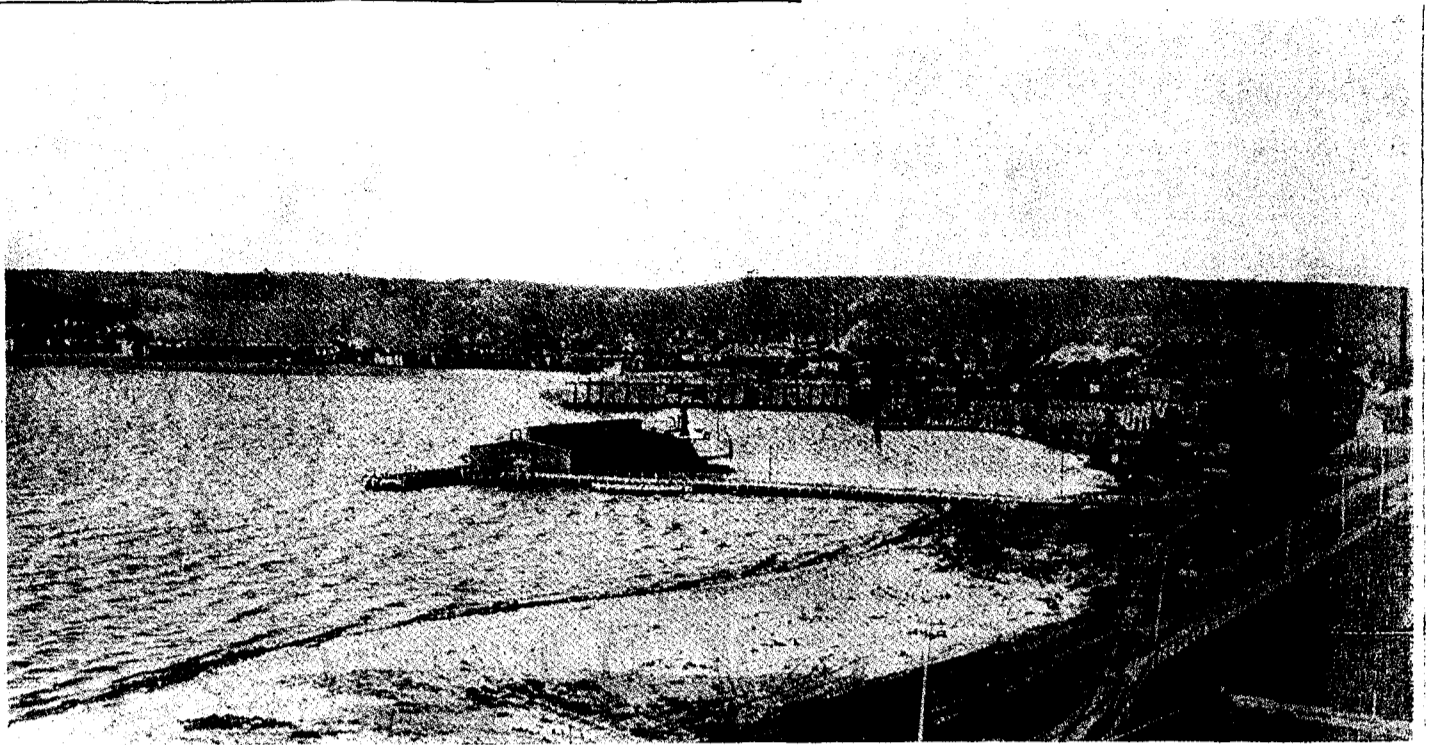

I think it's not time's passing.

I think it's only partly the order. And partly the color and the mists and the monarch butterflies on purple asters.

But mainly it is a great picture of what beauty is, the beauty itself that we see with. Beauty and love and praise.

The reason autumn is such a wonder is so we can see what it looks like—that beauty that lives so deep inside us.

Remembrances

This picture looks over the shoreline of Boyne City when there were piers sticking out in the lake, and shows the piles of wood from the White Lumber Company stacked up on docks ready to be loaded into boats. This picture must have been taken shortly before the roundhouse of the Boyne City railroad was built, although tracks are leading up to where it was built. It was taken from the top of the Tannery chimney looking along Front Street towards downtown. The Harborage Condominiums are now in the foreground where the dock was. If you have any pictures of old Boyne City, or old East Jordan, bring them in to our office and we'll share them with our readers. Of course you will get them back, they are too valuable for memories.

Neta Gerard, a practical nurse

As Neta Gerard tells the story, she is just a typical person like so many others in the Bohemian Settlement southeast of East Jordan. And she is typical in not relishing being interviewed about her life. But she is not typical in the road she took to success and the places she has been in her long eightyish years.

The typical story starts with very little more than a piece of land, and it goes through hard work to positions of security, service and finally success.

In Gerard's case the success was based on service. Neta Gerard spent most of her life as a practical nurse. It is hard to get her to talk about herself. She speaks more readily of her son and his family, or her brother, killed in World War II or other ones in her family.

Her schooling started in the building still standing across from the little stone church of St. John Nepomcene, and then on to Boyne City school.

Antonina, she was in those days. "That's the Czech name," she said. It became Antonette, and finally Neta.

Somewhere between Antonia and Neta, she said "I got a feeling I'd like to be a nurse." She was able to get Red Cross and first aid training by going to classes at night, one of five young women recommended for the class, while working by day at a knitting mill downtown.

The fact that she was left with a three year old son to raise only seemed to further her career, she could go out on practical nursing jobs and take her son with her. People didn't mind that, she said, they were so glad to have her come to do the work.

It was sink or swim in those days. No welfare. And the depression soon followed. Sometimes she was lucky to make six dollars a week, although she remembers working for a little as $1.50 a week. She said her son worked too, picking cherries and doing what he could, and members of her family helped when they could.

She moved to the city areas where there was more work. At first she advertised her services in the local newspaper, "And the phone just rang and rang," she added.

But then she learned of the nurses' registry which handled the appointments for the nurses, and along the way she finally became a certified practical nurse.

She glosses over the bad experiences with the rough cases, and her eyes light up with the recollections of her first trip out of state.

That happened when it was decided that one of her patients would have to return home to Delaware. A long trip followed, and after a number of weeks there, Gerard was able to come back home by train—her first train trip.

She recalled the trepidations, the novelties of traveling all day, and becoming well acquainted with all of the other passengers in her train car.

When she was at a hotel in Buffalo, she overheard announcements about a side trip to Niagara Falls, which included an overnight trip by boat back to Detroit. She took the trip probably thinking she would never see the falls and she was quite close at the time.

The sense of adventure wasn't always in such bright scenes. She was just willing to work in the cases of the very poor as for the wealthy.

Her favorite cases were those requiring care of mothers and new babies. "My best work was in the home," she said, speaking generally.

Gerard also worked in hospitals and at Grandvue. Her practical sense of how to help gave her a good reputation everywhere.

As she looked back, her hands tightened in her lap on the packet of letters she has received from her patients. A little book also, which carefully lists the names of every patient she cared for during her long career.

The living room of her little house in East Jordan is warm with associations. Her father's rocking chair, the last curtain in the design of an American flag that was crocheted by her mother long ago.

The house itself was built by her son with the help of friends and family back in 1932.

Gerard in 1982 faces her own eighties bravely, "one day at a time."

Then, with an irrepressible smile of humor, she thrusts a scrap of paper out. It's a verse by "author unknown".

"When I quit this mortal shore", it says, "and mosey 'round this earth no more. Don't weep or sigh or grieve or sob. I may have struck a better job."

The verse goes on, but that verse is enough. It is part of the pluck of Neta Gerard.

1st passenger train north in years

CHARLEVOIX - The first passenger train in 20 years to run from here to Grand Rapids is scheduled to leave next Saturday, Oct. 16 on a special two-day fall color tour.

The Bay Rail Express, which provided regularly scheduled passenger service on weekends last summer between Charlevoix and Petoskey, will carry more than 600 passengers on the 12-car train.

Cars on the train range from two refurbished 1914 Denver-Rio Grande day coaches to modern day lounge cars.

The trip is part of a three-day excursion originating from Chicago, South Bend, Lansing, Jackson, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids where passengers will be taken by motorcoach to hotels in Traverse City Friday.

On Saturday, they will be taken by motorcoach to Charlevoix for boarding the train. After an hour's stop in Petoskey, the train will continue on through Boyne Falls, Mancelona and Kalkaska to Fife Lake where passengers will be taken back to their Traverse City hotels.

On Sunday, passengers will travel through Cadillac, Reed City, Big Rapids and on to Grand Rapids, with a brief stop in Rockford. Waiting motorcoaches will take passengers back to their points of origin.

The excursion was arranged by Forlow Travel Corporation of Oakbrook Terrace, Illinois.

The last passenger trip over the tracks was in the early 1860s when a group chartered a train from Mackinaw City to southern Michigan on its way to a conference in California.

Letters

Wants urn returned

Dear Editor,

This letter is to the person or persons who removed an urn off of my father's grave between Sept. 6 and Sept. 20.

We have checked with other family members, the local greenhouse and the guys who take care of the cemetery. No one seems to know where it went.

We have had the same urn for 19 years and now someone has lowered themselves to steal it.

What kind of person are you to do something like that?

Do you know what it is like to go to a grave site where a loved one has been buried and find your beautiful flowers and urn have been stolen?

Wouldn't it be a good feeling for all concerned if the urn was returned to my father's grave?

Open House set for Boyne high school's building trades completed home

With the completion of the building trades class project house at 613 Alice Street, the class will be hosting an open house to show off the work that was done by the students. The open house is set for Sunday, October 17 between the hours of 1 and 3 p.m. Monday night the house will be opened for viewing between 7 and 9 p.m. The house, which is now up for sale by any area real estate brokerage, has lots of features built in that many of this area's houses would like to have. The Spanish design, 3 bedroom ranch features a solar domestic hot water system. This active solar device stores hot water in the full basement in a special 60 gallon insulated water tank and should save the buyer of the model home significant money over the years.

Over 16 students participated in the building of the home according to Harold Hamlin, the instructor for the program. They included Bob Christy, Kevin Crandell, Andy Dunlap, Art Hess, Kerry Hocquard, David Hofbauer, Jeff Hosmer, Tim Moyer, Jerry Schmoldt, David Skornia, Barry Sydow, Randy Weiss, John Magee, Mike Potter, Larry Williams and Jon Goike.

According to Hamlin, the class would like to express their thanks and appreciation to the local businessmen, contractors, suppliers, and city officials for their assistance and advice during the planning and construction period. The home sits on a lot 82 1/2 by 126 feet and has three bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths, recreation room, full basement and has energy saving features besides the hot water system with an approved field. The exterior of the house is rough sawn fir plywood in the texture 1-11 style and brick. Wolmanized wood porches and decks help add to the good looks of the home. The school administration hopes that this home will sell quickly because of declining interest rates, and other favorable factors in the marketplace.

This Spanish design three bedroom home will be open for viewers Oct. 17 and Oct. 18. The house, built by the Boyne City high school's building trades class features a solar hot water system, and has a lot of exceptional construction work done by the students. Instructor Harold Hamlin said he was proud of the work and the quality of it done by the sixteen students in the class over the year. The home will be offered for sale by the school system for $49,900 which includes the property.

Open House tonight at BF

Work of the students will be on display tonight, Wednesday, at the open house being held at Boyne Falls School. The hours of the open house are 7-8 p.m.

Free babysitting service will be provided at the school and cartoons will be shown to small children while the parents visit with classes and talk with teachers.

Students who qualify will also be inducted into the school's National Honor Society Wednesday afternoon at 1:45 p.m.

Pathfinders to enliven services at S. D. A.

The public is cordially invited to attend a special service beginning at 9:30 a.m. this Saturday, October 16, at the Boyne City Seventh-day Adventist Church located on the southeast corner of Cedar and S. East Sts. Uniformed Pathfinders, ranging in age from 10-15, will officially open the regular worship service by marching behind the color guard into the sanctuary. The Pathfinders will participate in the service, and Pastor Gary Russell will provide the pastoral message. The Boyne City Pathfinder Club is one of similar clubs that have over 150,000 members around the world and is known for its annual "treat instead of trick" Halloween visitation. Instead of collecting candies, etc., Pathfinders collect food and funds to help those people needing them.

Volunteers clean EJ reservoir

Completing a job that is usually sub-contracted out, East Jordan city superintendent Mike Dionne gave praise to the teams that participated in the effort that saved city taxpayers about $4,000.

On September 22, the city's department of public works and the volunteer fire department crew joined up to clean out the city water reservoir. Dionne said the reservoir was built back in the '30s by Works Progress Administration (WPA), and he's found no documentation that it had been cleaned since then. Dionne said the procedure was to check out the structure first, in case any repair should be made at the same time. "We found it to be sound, physically," Dionne said. "Next we took the pumps off line for a short time to let the water go down. We were monitoring the water pressure around the city at the same time," he said.

Before going into the reservoir, all equipment, including the boots the men wore, were cleaned in a mild chlorine solution as a sanitary precaution, Dionne noted. It took about six hours to scrub the structure down, alternating with four pressure spray rinsings by the fire department trucks.

The residue was pumped out with a department-built pump, Dionne said. Refill of the 250,000 gallon tank took about 12 hours, he said, and the water samples afterwards passed with flying colors.

Before the cleaning job was undertaken, a new roof had been installed, Dionne said, with new venting to stop the previous problem of moisture collection on the underside of the roof.

Boyne helps break Devils 27 game losing streak

BY PAUL ZINCK

The Ramblers of Boyne City inadvertently helped break a 27 game losing streak last Friday at Boyne's homecoming game with Sault Ste. Marie. They let the Soo Blue Devils win 27-6. Boyne City upped their own record for the year to zero wins and four losses. The Sault Ste. Marie team opened the scoring on Dan Rambo's 65 yard touchdown pass to Dan Franchette after a nearly scoreless first quarter that saw both teams move the ball and then be forced to punt it away. Charles Alexander kicked the extra point with 15 seconds left in the first quarter.

There was no more scoring after the start of the second half until Blue Devil Mike Peller ran one in with 8:02 remaining capping a 34 yard drive that was highlighted by Peller's 12 yard run. Alexander's kick made the score 14-0.

Boyne's only score happened in the fourth quarter when Stacy Reinhardt ran four yards for the touchdown. The touchdown capped off a 39 yard drive starting with the Devils' Clifford Gambliin punting 27 yards. Brad Musser's two point conversion attempt was intercepted leaving the score for Boyne at six points.

With 3:29 left in the game, Peller ran 10 yards for his second touchdown of the half. The drive to the goal line was 38 yards. Alexander's kick went wide, but the Sault team once again opened the lead to 14 points.

Franchette's kickoff went out of bounds and the Ramblers had the ball on the 40 yard line to start their next attempt to make a score. Musser was then sacked for a six yard loss.

Double penalties moved the ball all around the field but it ended up at the same place as the Blue Devils got caught offside and Boyne had a motion penalty given them by the officials.

Then, a 15 yard personal foul penalty against Boyne moved the ball back to the Rambler 19. Musser tried three passes but they all fell incomplete and the ball went to the Blue Devils on downs.

On the first play, Peller ran 19 yards for his third touchdown of the evening. Jim Casey kicked the extra point to wrap up the scoring for the game.

Next week the Ramblers will take their dismal record on the road to Onaway in hopes that they can break their losing streak. Onaway defeated St. Ignace in an overtime game 26-20.

Brad Musser finds a hole and goes up the middle for a short gain in last Friday's Boyne City-Sault Ste. Marie contest. This drive ended with Boyne giving the ball away on downs as it fizzled out on about the forty yard line. Boyne's Boyne's Musser played the whole game with a muscle strain in his arm according to observers at the game.

Fired up Rams take defensive battle

BY MICHELLE BOS

The Harbor Springs Rams, fired up by a homecoming crowd, bent, but wouldn't break Friday night in a tough defensive battle against the East Jordan Red Devils.

Despite several determined efforts by the Devils, the Harbor defense shut out the previously undefeated East Jordan players. Harbor scored twice although one was recalled because of offsetting penalties.

For most of the game, both teams failed to advance the ball past the opposition's 20 yard line.

The only score of the game came when Holladay received a pass from Larson in the end zone for a touchdown. The winning play was set up by Pete McGonigal's 36 yard end run and a 22 yard pass play from Larson to Breidenstein that put the ball on the Devils' eight yard line.

A penalty on both teams nullified a fourth period scoring play, a screen pass that went 43 yards from Larson to McGonigal.

The Devils had threatening scoring drives undermined by mistakes, which added penalties, and a fourth down and 22 yard pass interception by Harbor's Nate Parsons.

The Rams were called for Roughing the Punter during the quarter and East Jordan had a first down on the Ram 34. The Red Devil offense was unable to pick up a first down on four running plays however, and the ball went to the Rams.

With 1:40 left in the game, East Jordan got the ball back on its own 23 yard line. A passing attempt was foiled as McGonigal intercepted with 1:08 and Harbor just played the time left in the game running the clock out.

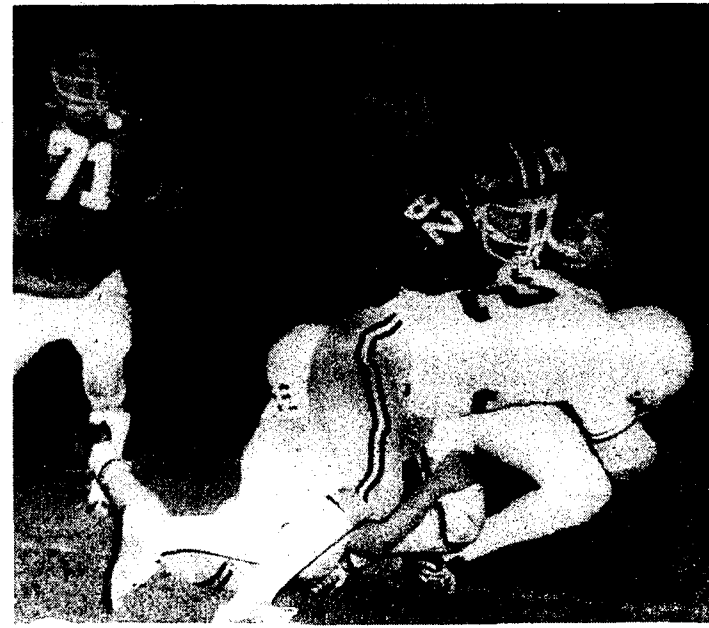

The workhorses for the Devils were Barry Mumich and Mike Graham and they kept the ball on the ground for most of the game. Mumich rushed for 153 yards in 25 carries and Graham had 52 yards in 14 carries.

Defensively, East Jordan was led by Scott Meade's ten tackles with Jim Roberts and Darrell Burts contributing eight tackles each. Joe Buick recovered a fumble in the third period aiding the Devils' defensive effort.

Buck Cihak, coach of the Red Devils was happy with the running game but obviously disappointed with the teams failure to make a score.

This Friday the Devils will be playing their Homecoming game against the Mancelona Ironmen.

Kevin Fitzpatrick gets brought down after catching a pass from quarterback Brad Musser in last Friday night's homecoming game with the Blue Devils of Sault Ste. Marie. The Ramblers lost the game 27-6 and now have a record of zero wins and four losses. [Photo by Kyle Stanley.]

EJ girls take Harbor, 54-53

By MICHELLE BOS

The East Jordan Varsity girls defended the home court Tuesday night against the ever-tough Harbor Springs Rams.

The results of the first quarter was 20 to 12 with Harbor Springs in the lead.

In the second quarter, Harbor picked up 11 points, while the Devils gained 12, making the score 31 for Harbor Springs and 24 for East Jordan.

The defensive tactics of the Red Devils during the third quarter played a big part in the victory. It was in the third quarter that East Jordan out-scored Harbor 18 to 8. The score at the end of the third quarter was East Jordan 42 points, Harbor with 39.

A pressure hoop by Ingalls with six seconds left put the Devils in front for good. The Devils beat the Rams by one point, the final score was 54-53.

This win puts the Devils in a three-way tie for second place with Harbor and Inland Lakes. Gaylord is in first place so far this season.

Dan and Ron Krouse, the new owners of the Boyne City IGA store, rearrange items in the frozen food section so they can add additional items during a restock of the store last Friday.

Edward's IGA changed to Boyne City IGA

Two brothers from Richmond, Michigan announced last week that they have purchased the Edward's IGA here in Boyne City and have changed the name to Boyne City IGA.

The sale was pending for some time as the details had to be worked out according to Dan and Ron Krouse, the new owners.

Both brothers are familiar with the food business as Dan has worked in IGA stores in the Richmond area for the past 11 years, while Ron worked in another area of the food business, running a dairy farm downstate.

They are busy making plans and restocking the store, planning on offering expanded grocery lines, produce and they said keeping the same quality fresh meats that the store is noted for.

"They will both run the store in the IGA way," Ray Kitts retail development manager for the IGA chain said. Kitts was helping stock goods on the shelves in a whirlwind of activity around the store last Friday.

Kitts said that the key to running a successful operation was having the ownership live nearby. That way, according to Kitts, the owners can readily see what the store needs and how well certain items sell.

Living up to that, the Krouses are now living here in town at the Lakeview Village Mobile Home Park.

Dick Edwards, the previous owner, owned the Boyne City store for two years. He will continue to operate his Charlevoix Edward's IGA.

The Krouses say that after they visited the area on a vacation last year, they decided that this would be an excellent area in which to open a store, but with the purchase of the Boyne City IGA, they are all ready for the coming growth of the city that they see in the future.
