City residents should expect water rate increase

Boyer City residents who have been paying higher water utility rates since 1981, will have to face the fact that the department will require even more money in 1983 in order to be self-supporting.

City manager Tim Clifton said the department is still losing about $2,000 a month. The only place the city could save money, he said, is by juggling the staff hours to prevent overtime on the seven-day-a-week servicing the department requires. This would save about $10,000, he said, if employee wage negotiations, coming soon, will sanction the move.

"We're not overstaffed," Clifton added.

Reluctant to ask for a tax increase, as many residents are not on the city sewer line, Clifton said the rest of the shortfall would have to be covered by increasing user-fees, starting January 1, 1983.

Without this action, the water department would have a $30,000 loss this year and a $50,000 loss for 1983. The increase for '83 is projected not only on rising costs for chemicals and wages, but also because bond payments have a principal increase.

After 1984, rate increases would be nominal, Clifton said, but the boost is necessary now to comply with state law regarding city utilities. In order to have bonding, the city water department must be self-supporting. This pertains also to being qualified to float bonds in the future.

Prior to the 1981 rate increases, the city was in conflict with the regulations and its own charter, because it was partially subsidizing its water department from the general fund.

Proposed rate increases will be: An increase of 25 cents per thousand gallons for sewer utility only. (Resulting in an annual increase of $22,500.)

An increase of $1 per quarter for water and sewer service charge. (Resulting in an annual increase of $8,600.)

Increase of fire department fire hydrant rental from $4,500 to $9,000 per year.

Security deposit, up from $50 to $75. Flat rate charge of $25 increased to $30 per utility (for unmetered customers).

Clifton compared Boyne City's total water/waste water budget, including bond issue costs, with those in neighboring cities: Boyne City—$341,000, Harbor Springs—$375,800, Charlevoix—$398,890, and East Jordan, which is much smaller and has no tertiary treatment—$263,660.

He said dropping tertiary treatment (3rd stage) would save money, but "we would create a serious environmental impact."

One other step just taken is a more stringent policy on delinquent customers. Right now there are 100 or so people who are more than a month in arrears, costing the budget $7,500.

Well-known is the expensive condition of the water mains—expensive to repair, but also expensive in water loss. Clifton said the city pumps 200 million gallons of water a year, but only 90 million of this is billed, in other words, reaches the customers.

The 'big rate adjustment of 1981 could never repay the $96,000 debt to the city for past water department deficits. This will have to be forgiven one day. But it even, after 12 to 16 months could not hold the line in operating costs, Clifton said.

He added that in 1984, one more significant increase would occur—a planned 25 cent per 1000 gallon increase for water. This, together with the previous increases, would eliminate the $80,000 loss otherwise looming for the next two years.

At the December 14 city commission meeting, commissioners will vote on the changes for 1983, following input from the public.

The slopes at Boyne Mountain are being covered with snow in preparation for this ski season's opening. The resort could open early if the cold weather of the last weekend stays cold enough to allow the machines to freeze the water that makes the snow crystals. Last weekend, the snow-making crew was working on Hemlock and Victor, the two slopes the Mountain traditionally opens with, so that beginning and intermediate, as well as experts will have skiable terrain on which to practice their sport.

Change orders still keep Water Street project within budget

Change orders totaling $9,715 were approved at the Tuesday night meeting of the Boyne City Commission last week. The total for the project is still within the budgeted figure according to City Manager Tim Clifton.

Clifton said that if the change order were taken out of the figure, the Water Street improvement would have been under the projected figure that was budgeted.

The change order included adding additional sewer and water leads, additional construction in the intersection of M-75 and Water Streets and the hauling away and disposing of broken up street and sidewalk materials.

Final inspection of the reconstructed block of Water Street was completed Nov. 5, 1982. The city's engineer certified all the quantities of materials and approved the work done as being up to the specifications. The city administration, according to Clifton, was pleased with the quality of work as well as the cooperativeness of the contractor and the sub contractors.

The city will also be saving money on electricity as the new lights in the downtown area are more energy efficient and now owned by the city making the electrical cost for the new fixtures downtown fall under a discounted rate from Consumers Power Company.

Consumers removed their 10 high overhead lights when the city replaced them with the 20 new historic styled street lights. Officials at the meeting suggested that the savings generated by the reduced electrical price would probably keep the cost for electricity the same for the year after price increases instituted in the future. The city renewed the electric contract with the company.

Members of the city police department believe that the new lights provide better lighting of the stores as they don't cast the shadows as much due to being lower to the ground.

In other action, the Commission had their final reading of a resolution approving the rezoning of the 10 acre parcel for the Country Star Supermarket which is to be located on M-75. The rezoning was to change the parcel from industrial/manufacturing to commercial.

They also approved the following re-appointments to various city commissions. Kate Schafer, Dale Parsons and Don Toffolo to the planning commission; Marty Paul and Marv Loding to the zoning board of appeals; and Gail Toffolo and Vera Tokoly to the historical commission. All appointments were made for a three year term.

EJ students propose Mexico trip

A trip to Mexico City for 36 language students was proposed to the East Jordan school board on November 4 by teacher Kathleen Martinchek.

The week-long trip would take place over spring vacation if the board approves. Martinchek asked for a decision before next board meeting as flights are filling rapidly.

"The emphasis of this trip is on education," Martinchek said. Other schools in the area, she said, send their students to French or Spanish-speaking locales to give them actual experience. Students are getting fund-raisers ready in case the word from the board is "go."

At the same board meeting another presentation was made, this one by Kelly Noirot, an eighth grade student council member.

Kelly asked the board to lift the bar they had placed against eighth grade participation in high school social activities.

Last spring the middle school concept was dropped and the school was restructured for elementary grades running from K through seven, and high school going from eight through twelve, administratively. The high school and the eighth grade, however, were to be otherwise separate, with separate programs.

Kelly said the eighth grade students, feeling shut out both ways, wanted to take part in the high school activities.

Interviewed later, board president Mary Jason said that at an open house last spring, parents had come out for keeping the eighth grade separate, socially, from high school. Jason said the board would review their decision. Meantime more interaction between grades seven and eight had already been proposed, and one seventh-eighth grade dance had already taken place.

Another student, Jason Parsons, who was a member of the high school group attending the district Student Forum on November 4, reported the day's workshops and presentations to the board.

Student forums were conducted in other Michigan school districts as well as part of the state's Outreach Program.

According to principal Bud Ashton, the student-run program was very well done. The student council is picking up the ball with discussions on how students can help improve classtime and teacher presentations. The board appointed teachers Bill Chase and Bob Snyder to be varsity and junior varsity basketball coaches, respectively.

Athletics banquets this year will be organized around, the conclusion of particular sports. The cross-country, football, and cheerleader banquet is set for Wednesday, Nov. 17 at 6:30 p.m.

Jason was picked by the Michigan High School Athletics Association to one of the traditional roles at the state football play-offs in the Silverdome. She will present the Class C trophies.

Principal Don Peters said this year's elementary school Christmas program, scheduled for December 6, was going to be a little different. Directed by Margaret Thompson, children from various grade levels will perform together, with all classes participating in choruses.

A medical insurance package was explained by Chuck Porte of School Employees' Trust. He said it would slow the upward spiral of medical insurance costs, which this year amount to $110,795 in East Jordan schools.

The board must also study bids at the December 3 meeting when four or five insurance companies will be bidding on insurance covering the rest of the school operations.

"We have never had truly competitive bids," Rossler said, adding that these were based on detailed specifications. Bids for snow removal were reviewed, and Tom Wiltjer was given the contract for $19.50 per hour.

The board also decided that December, January, February school board meetings will be on second Mondays to allow attendance at Tuesday night basketball games.

Engels help beats wrestling deadline

Dr. Michael Engel beat the deadline of 48 hours and has volunteered to be the new wrestling coach for Boyne City's high school.

It only took a concerned parent about 30 hours to find Engel and influence him into a meeting with school officials and to be named coach for wrestling after the Boyne City school system had recommended that the sport be dropped because they were not able to find a qualified volunteer coach.

A week ago the school board had agreed to drop the sport because of its being one of the probable injury sports that required a coach with first aid training. High school sports litigation is a growing concern according to educators and the increase in lawsuits from injured high school students involved in the sport was a large concern with the Boyne City educators.

But Judi Kenyon stepped forward at the school board meeting and asked that if she could find a proper coach with the right credentials, could the sport be continued? The Board agreed with her and gave her 48 hours to find someone.

Dr. Engel was asked, and went to a meeting with school principal Rick Casper and athletic director, John McGeorge last Wednesday afternoon. The school agreed with some of Engels' requests, and the sport was reinstated.

Engel, 28, has helped with the wrestling program before at the school and is holding down a full time general practice in medicine in Boyne City. A wrestler in his own high school days, he was ranked second in his weight class in Indiana prior to the state tournaments. He was ill with pneumonia and unable to compete in the state championships, however.

Dr. Engel went out for the sport as a means of conditioning himself for football, as wrestling is known to require a good deal of stamina. Engel was an all state football player.

He held his first practice session with the interested wrestlers to explain when they will be working out, what he expects from them, and how well they hope to do with the personal goals each wrestler wants to achieve. The team will practice in the mornings between 7 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. as a group, and will be working out at weight training and other personal activities after school.

The workout time was one of the requests that Dr. Engel asked for so that he could continue on with his present work schedule.

Antoine teaches Indians their culture

It was a book of legends, starting in their resemblance to the cultural patterns of the United States. It came from a shelf in the Title IV classroom in East Jordan.

The clan system, said "The Mishonib Book," is the form of government instituted by the Creator of the Indians. The two Chief Clans, "by working together...gave the people a balanced government with each serving as a check on the other."

It sounds exactly like the Republicans and the Democrats. Nowhere else in the world are there only two major parties. Could the Indian legends have influenced our founding fathers?

There were other resemblances, and there were differences, also. It is because of the differences that Indian people in East Jordan want classes in Indian culture for their children.

GI-GI Antoine, who is teaching the 34 students, said, "We are reviving our tradition, and whatever the children pick up and keep—that's fine."

She added that the main goal this year is "to give the children their self-identity so they can function in the dominant society."

The first step was to give each one an Indian name. "We even gave Indian names to people like Mr. Rossler (school superintendent) and Mr. Peters (elementary principal)," she said. Rossler is Chi-moko-mon Jeh-jeh (white man leader) and Peters is Chi-mokoman Me-no (good white man). Indian parents have Indian names, also.

Interest in the once-a-week classes is high, Antoine said. There have been no absences. Meeting after school, the classes often run well past the allotted hour. "These kids are so enthusiastic," Antoine exclaimed. "You should see."

Antoine has parents aiding in the instruction, and the older students help the younger ones in working on designs which will decorate the Indian clothes they will make for themselves, and in learning to cook Indian food.

As the youngsters learn, they are given the Indian words for things, learning language, thus, as they go.

And speaking of language, Antoine points out that "Indians" isn't a real name for the people since they are only called that because of Columbus' mistaking North America for India.

"We call ourselves 'Anishinabe,'" Antoine said.

According to the book of legends, Anishinabe were represented first by "Original Man" who was lowered to Earth by the Creator, Gitche Manitou. He walked the Earth and named all the animals, plants, hills, and valleys of the Creator's garden.

The Indian story honors woman too. "Woman always comes first...Woman lights the way for man..." According to the legend, woman is first represented by Mother Earth.

"I get all the material I can," Antoine said. She is a member of the Eagle Council (eminent Indian educators in Michigan). "And I get much help from our elders," she said. The result is she has accumulated a good library of Indian information.

The program that brings all this to pass in East Jordan is the federally funded Title IV program. But it can only be instituted if Indian parents band together to request and to direct it.

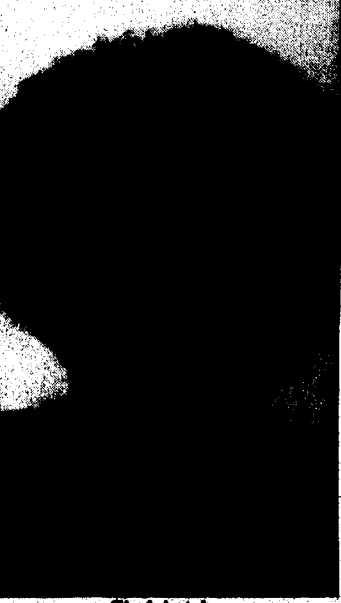

"Our proposal was approved without amendments this year," Antoine said proudly.

No other schools in the county have Title IV classes, either because of an insufficient Indian population or because no movement was made to organize a program.

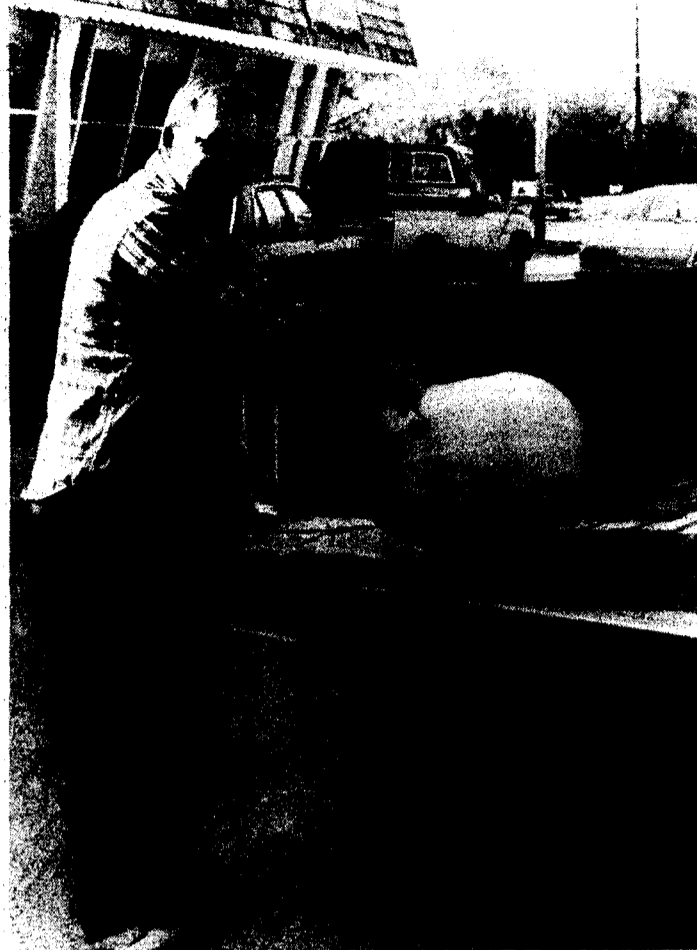

"Because of Title IV cuts, we are asking for help from local organizations and individuals," Antoine said.

For a winter highlight, the class and the parents are planning to host a snow snake tournament for all Title IV classes in Michigan. A snow snake is a polished and decorated wood rod about four feet long with a metal tip. It is thrown down an iced runway in the competition.

And Antoine said, they are also beginning plans for a two-day pow-wow this summer.

Notice: Highly successful hard rock musician now giving singing lessons. Students must bring own microphone and pound of beans.

For several weeks my winter tires hummed on dry pavement. They sang a little song: Winter is coming, winter is coming. I put them on in October. Why wait until you get caught in a snowstorm when the service stations are jammed with summer tire people? If there is anything that I can't stand, it's summer tire people in a snowstorm; they rank along with those who wait until the first deep freeze before they have their car winterized. Well, not me. I do everything in advance. Not getting caught is one of my specialties. I hate getting caught. I can't remember when I've been caught.

I was bragging about this to my wife. "By the way," she said, "how come you haven't put the garden hose in the garage?"

"It's too early," I said. "It isn't going to freeze for two or three weeks yet."

She told me to do it anyway. So I went out and began winding up the hose. It was heavy, stiff and cracked in several places. One hundred feet of new plastic hose ruined.

I went back into the house and received that "wife look".

"Listen," I said, I've been talking about not getting car caught, not hose caught.

A worrisome conversation: The social Security System is going broke. What will you do if the government has to cut you off?

I would have to sell my house and live in a tent.

Houses aren't selling right now and tents have been outlawed in Boyne City.

Then I would wrap myself into the welfare state and settle down for a long winter's nap.

You've got too much money to go on welfare. If you lie about it, they will put you in jail.

Do you mean that I'm liable to go directly from Social Security to jail?

-Yes.

Damn all Republicans and Democrats.

Boyer City is a one horse town. Petoskey is twice as big. That makes it a two horse town. It costs much more, or I'll give you your money back. (I never could get that commercial straight.)

Our granddaughter moved into a Kalamazoo apartment where pets are not allowed. So she left her nice little kitty, Buffy, with us. After three or four weeks, other cats came to visit. If there was anything we didn't want, it was a litter of kittens around the house. So we took her up to the vet for an operation. When we got home, the lady called. "Well," she said, "you won't have any kittens around your house."

It had only been two hours. "That was a quick operation," I said.

"We didn't operate," she said, "You brought us a male cat."

A male! Impossible. She had been a female for over a month. We had treated her like a girl; we had talked to her like a girl. Even referred to him as "she".

I'm sorry," the lady purred on. "This is a tom cat."

How could a grown man with all my worldly experience not know the difference between a male and a female? I'm not that dumb. I've known the difference all my life—ever since that experience out behind the barn fifty years ago.

But now I am worried. What else did I learn fifty years ago that isn't true? Well, I certainly hope it has nothing to do with male or female. That would explain too many things I don't want explained.

Remembrances

Back in the old days when lumber was king, the logs that were cut down were piled high along the river bank. From the river, once they arrived here in Boyne City, they were taken out and stripped of their bark so that the bark could be sent off to the Tannery to use the tannic acid for the tanning process. In this picture, quite a few of the boys of the town were asked to climb up on the log pile to pose for this picture. Normally, such climbing was dangerous so this must have been a special occasion. The size of the logs indicates the huge trees that once covered this area. If you have any pictures you would like to share with our readers, bring them in. We'll be happy to make a copy for the paper and return your photo back to you.

Jottings

It always amazes me and amuses me when the first real snowfall of the season falls to stick on the ground. I sometimes have to laugh as I watch drivers of cars spin, slip and slide as they get used to their snow pedal style of driving.

Heck, I do it myself, knowing full well that I shouldn't use too much gas pedal when I start up and out on the road. I found myself slipping and sliding as I went out to Boyne Mountain Saturday to take some pictures of the snowguns starting up for the upcoming ski season.

Snowguns have always interested me. I helped make snow at Mt. Holly a long long time ago when anything that you could slide on was considered to be great stuff.

Boy, have the machines they have on the market today surpassed those that we had back when. Our snowmaking crew differed greatly in the equipment we had to tote around as we checked out the our machines compared to those at the Mountain this year.

Number one piece of equipment we had was a large propane torch. We used that item to thaw out the nozzles of the snow guns because they used to freeze shut at almost every opportunity. And if it was the air outlet that froze, then just water would go spraying out onto the ski slope and make a great ice skating rink. The water sometimes made great mounds of ice that, in passing, put great obstacles in the way of the beginning skiers. Now this was before the advent of decent snow grooming equipment. I think all we had was a kind of a tractor that pulled a piece of fence.

It sure is different today.

The only equipment I saw the snowmakers use was a large wrench. They use that to adjust the water flow to the big fans that now blow the water crystal out into the freezing air. The airless guns can be turned by a slight push and the snow that they make can be dispersed at least 3000 percent better than when I was a kid in that new upstart sport called skiing.

One nice thing is that with all the snowgrooming equipment, all the ease of making the sport safer, it sure is a lot better than the old days when you had to contend with ice spots, moguls on a hill where none should be, and washouts where the hoses that went to the mixing nozzle fell apart and created huge bare spots of dirt.

I am sure that many of the skiers in the sport of today, probably would not be skiing if they had to contend with the same things the early skiers did when they appeared on the slopes.

Anyway, I am looking forward to trying to make a few turns at some of our local ski areas this year.

A little animal carving in the gift shop was where my Christmas shopping began this year, but instead of Christmas, it reminded me of a summer day once spent at the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago.

The Brookfield Zoo is now about 50 years old. It was one of the first to provide something appropriate for the animals to live in, instead of cages and cement floors.

On one wooded hillside we came upon a pair of tigers—separated from us by a moat and fence. I could hardly bear to leave them. Elegant as silk, they were, and in their great size, they seemed to magnify affection by their gentleness with each other.

And then the giraffes. I had never known how graceful they were, nor had pictures ever shown the shining gentleness of their eyes.

I was beginning to think I was in some bower of Eden when we came to a little park with a concrete pool about 14 feet long in it.

Now maybe your stereotype of a pompous, wealthy, wheeler-dealer isn't an overweight, bald man with walrus-whiskers, a grayish-brown suit, and a practically incomprehensible speech pattern, complicated by a cigar in one corner of his mouth, but mine is. And there he was. Goodbye, Eden.

Never mind that he was lounging, half-submerged in one corner of the pool, an elbow somehow active under his fat and wrinkly brown shape, there he was, minus cigar, hooked to the edge of the pool by his elbow, and leaning back to deliver a rapid, growly lecture to us on how fools invest their money.

Then, without waiting for our comment, of course, he lunged into the water, charging down to the end of the pool. Then back he came, to deliver a few more telling points.

To this day he is one of the most wonderful characters I remember encountering, and as I held the little carved walrus in my hand, I laughed to think of the walrus in the pool, his fast, gruff lecture as he fixed us with his eyes, and his elbow, deep inside the gray-brown skin, hooked to the edge of the pool.

Animals have always represented to us our own human characteristics. Aesop held them up as mirrors to kings in his ancient fables, and even today we have our Donald Ducks and Winnie-the-Pooh bears.

So I wonder how we can go out and shoot them or trap them. I suppose we put zoo animals, story book creatures, and our pets all in one mental box, and the creatures we kill for pleasure or torture cruelly in traps for money we put in another mental box from which we seal off all our compassion. What does this do to us? I'm not one to have the earth overrun by chipmunks nor the woods filled with starving deer. The money and attention used to hunt the animals down could be used however, to find humane methods of control. They're studying ways of feeding deer in the wild so there will be more to shoot. More? They used to say they went hunting to reduce the numbers. As a friend of mine said, "Their disguise is slipping."

BY BEA SMITH
The North wind blows cold, night settles quickly over our northern Michigan and as the poet says, "The hunter is home from the hills." My father was not much of a hunter, though he and Uncle Frank usually went out during the pheasant season and got a bird or two and sometimes he came home with a rabbit. Mother suspected that they spent most of their time sitting on a log and visiting and rehashing old times. It was something else with Uncle Garfield, he was a real hunter and spent most of his time in the woods and fields. Every year he went up north to get his deer and we always had at least one good venison roast. Remember how nearly every car going South in November had at least one deer on its fender? This is the way my friend, Bertha Potter, of Charlevoix, makes venison roast which she likes to serve for Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner.

Roast Venison
First she soaks a 4 to 5 pound roast in salt water overnight. She says that a small amount of salt (about 1 tablespoon to a quart of water) gives the roast a sweet flavor and eliminates some of the wild taste. The next morning she removes it from the brine, then cuts slits in the roast and inserts pieces of onion in the slits. Then covers the top with a layer of bacon slices. Put into a covered roaster and roast at 350 degrees until tender. It will take about 3 and one-half hours for a four pound roast. Bertha says that the roaster bags for roasts and turkey is also a good way to roast venison. You can make a delicious gravy with the drippings in the bottom of the pan, the bacon makes a layer of fat needed for the dry venison and makes a good gravy. For each tablespoon of fat, use 1 tablespoon of flour or cornstarch and one cup of hot water. Add the water to the drippings stirring to get all of the delicious pieces of brown crust, then thicken by mixing the flour or cornstarch with enough cold water to make a thin paste, about a 1/2 cup. Add a few tablespoons of the hot gravy, mix good and gradually stir into the gravy mixture, cooking and stirring all the time to make a smooth gravy. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

I have been saving this venison recipe since last summer and hoping for some venison, then finally decided to try it with beef steak. It was great and I will make it again when and if I acquire some venison...I have promises.

Venison Stroganoff
1 1/2 lbs venison steak
1/2 lb mushrooms
3 Tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 pt. sour cream
1 teaspoon flour
salt and pepper to taste

Cut steak into one-quarter inch strips and one inch long. Melt butter, add steak to bubbling butter and cook slowly, covered. At the end of 15 minutes add mushrooms (broken into small pieces). Cover and cook for 10 minutes. Put mixture in top of double boiler over low flame. In another pan melt one tablespoon butter and add flour. When stirred smooth add sour cream and stir this four to five minutes. Pour this sauce over venison mixture and simmer 10 to 15 minutes. Serve over rice, noodles or home made biscuits.

"Boss Lady" leaves hospital with 27 years of fond memories

The "Boss Lady" of Northern Michigan Hospitals is leaving. Retirement is beckoning, the chance to travel at a whim, to visit at length with children and grandchildren scattered across a continent, and to drop everything and go shopping with Peg are too much to resist. But at the hospital there are teary eyes, hugs, kisses and best wishes for a woman who gave new meaning to the words warmth and concern, who kept a constantly growing hospital clean, and who not only trained her supervisors, but watched them grow up.

When Virginia Hegerberg of Boyne City left work for the last time Friday, she left 27 years of effort and memories behind, and in the opinion of everyone that knows her, NMH is a better place for her having been there. She is one of those rare individuals who through some quirk of fate, are blessed with the temperament and personality that make them able to inspire both the love and the respect of those who know them. And better yet, she returns those feelings in kind. She's not ashamed to admit, she loves the hospital.

This story actually starts in 1956, when then Little Traverse Hospital's first Director of Nursing, Loretta Gibbons, and her unofficial assistant Bonda Hale, called Hegerberg at her home in Boyne City and asked her to find a friend and come to work for the hospital. She didn't want any part of it. From what she knew of hospitals she didn't like them. But a persistent Gibbons prevailed and a few days later Virginia and her next door neighbor Peg Spencer became LTH's first ward clerks.

"They pushed us right into it," recalled Hegerberg recently, "Just come and try it," and we did and we fell in love with it." Things were different then. Ward clerks earned $37.50 a week. They ran and got supplies from the storeroom, carried cases of IV's on their shoulders to patient rooms, transported all patients to the Burns Clinic by wheelchair, ran errands, answered phone calls and did charting.

Five years later, Hegerberg took over the housekeeping department, which at that time consisted of 12 people and one vacuum cleaner. But with these, and a lot of hard work, the hospital got and stayed clean. When Showing off her new retirement gifts she received from her Indian friends at Northern Michigan Hospital is Boyne City resident Virginia Hegerberg. Hegerberg spent the last 27 years on the staff of the hospitals working up to the position of Director of Housekeeping. She plans on doing a little of this and a little of that and a whole lot of traveling to visit her family.

John Rasmussen came on board as a new administrator in 1967 she got a new vacuum cleaner, and when he also took over administration of the clinic from 1968 to 1972, she got that too. The combined departments grew until at one time she supervised nearly 80 employees. When the clinic added its own administration, Virginia left their housekeeping employees under the supervision of George Petoskey, one of her longtime supervisors. Since that time the merger has added another hospital and the expansion has more than doubled the size of both. In every instance of construction, and there were many over the years, her housekeeping staff has not only managed to maintain their regular cleaning schedules, but cleaned each newly constructed area from top to bottom without outside help. "I've been through so many building programs I think I own the place," smiled Hegerberg. "But I'm proud of the fact that we never hired anybody to come in and clean after construction. We always did our own." In many ways the job of house-

4H holds fall banquet at Whiting

Charlevoix County 4-H programs held its Fall Awards Banquet November 4, at Whiting Park with a potluck supper. Meat and beverages were provided by the 4-H Council.

The purpose of the program was to recognize the accomplishments of 4-H members, note the contributions in financial or other support of members of the community and to show appreciation to the 4-H leaders who have taught children during the course of the past year.

Listed are the names of 4-H members who showed the most accomplishment in their particular project areas in the 1981-1982 4-H year. The list does not reflect all 4-H members, but only those who qualified for project pins this year.

Micki Puroll, Ricky Brooks - Dairy - (for goats) Dove Fraley, Henry Fortune, Mary Murray - Food Preservation - Krista Sumner, Aaron Brock, Barbie Genson, Heather McKay - Food and Nutrition - Barbie Genson, Becky Robinson, Missy Genson, Paula Harvey - Bicycle - Aaron Brock, Scott Peck, Ricky Brooks - Clothing - Brenda Stolt, Mike Horton, Jennifer Clock, Dawn Brock.

Fashion Revue - Eve Reinhardt, Krista Sumner, Sue Stolt, Nancy Louise, Tammy Boggs, Amy Alger, Amy Boyer - Horse - Cindy Crozier, Sheila Harris, Teri Howard, Laurie Sherman - Achievement - (overall) Sue Stolt, Vicki Stolt (single project) Renee Reynolds, Robin Gee.

Veterinary Science - Lori Fraley - Horse - Davy Schmoltd - Lamb - Dan Kately - Beef - Lisa Caverly - Hog - Leadership - Sue Stolt, Vicki Stolt, Kim Mikula, Clarence Stark - Citizenship - (for the county program) Rhonda Beishlag, Lori Campbell, Heath Green. Friend of 4-H Awards: Harold Vorce, Fran Bertig, Anne La Crosse, Chuck Britton, Pam Parsel, Nancy Dascamp, Bill Price, Village of Boyne Falls, Penny Lewis, Russ Gee, East Jordan Cop.

Henry Grutsch, Jackie Raymond, East Jordan Rotary, Debbie Niswander, Boyne Falls School.

Grandvue, Philo Sumner, Bill Conklin, Anoa Norton.

Friend of 4-H award certificates are given each year to thank those members of the community, usually county residents or organizations, which have helped the Charlevoix County 4-H program with things it had to seek outside itself. Sometimes this is in the form of financial assistance, but most often the help received is time spent with youngsters or in sharing expertise in a teaching or resource capacity. 4-H would find it hard to carry out its goals without such community support.

This year all 4-H club leaders received a certificate citing their years of service to the county program. These are dedicated volunteers who share their knowledge with county children on a continuing basis, some year after year. 4-H is a family kind of activity so many opportunities and rewards which are available for youngsters are also available for adults.

Special recognition was given to Larry Boyer...Larry is a leader of the Charlevoix Livestock Club, he is serving a two year term on the Charlevoix County 4-H Council, he has been the superintendent of 4-H hogs at the Emmet County Fair, and serves on the Livestock Project Council.

Two teens and two adults were elected to replace those 4-H council members whose terms had ended. Mary Murray and Heath Green were chosen to take over one year terms previously held by Lori Campbell and Lori Fox. Adults Henry Fortune and Phyllis Sumner will be new council members replacing Nancy Brooks and Debby Peck. Those with terms still running are Charlie Myers, Cindy Fraley and Larry Boyer. The Charlevoix County 4-H Council is a planning and policy making body which works with the CES staff to implement the 4-H program.

Errata

Due to a printing error in the first computer printouts given out by the county at the election headquarters, we used the wrong numbers in the election for mayor in East Jordan.

We had more votes cast for one of the two people in the race than were cast in the whole race.

The final figures showed that William Merwin won with a total vote count of 376 and not 1610 as our story, written under the pressure of a printing deadline, indicated. Calvin Gots, the other candidate in the race for mayor received 311 votes.

With a dejected look on his face as one of the many plays of the season did not go as planned, Coach Bob McCullough experienced a total losing season when the Boyne City Ramblers failed to win a game all year. He is still optimistic though as he looks forward to next year when the team will have about 20 returning players with game experience. This picture was taken during the Petoskey-Boyne City game which was the last football game of the season.

Boyne varsity and JV girls lose to Cheboygan

BY PAUL ZINCK
After leading by two points in the first quarter, the Boyne City Rambler girls fell behind and ended up losing their match with the Cheboygan Belles, 52-46.

The Belles came back after the first quarter to tie the game 35-35 at the half, pulled a two point lead at the end of the third quarter and slowly built it up to take the win at Cheboygan in the fourth quarter.

For the Ramblers, Julie Paquette had 10 fourth quarter points to give her 16 for the evening. Jami Vroman added nine buckets while Liz Sturm sunk eight. Keisha Crozier added six and Terry Heiermann and Mary Beth Tims each chipped in with three points apiece.

For Cheboygan, Valerie Willis led the scorers with 16 points. In the JV game, the Ramblers jumped out to a 9-2 lead in the first quarter and continued to lead at the half 23-9.

Then the bottom seemed to fall out and the shooting got cold as the Boyne City team could only sink one basket in the second half. The Cheboygan girls took the game 41-24.

Michelle Guzniczak led the Ramblers with 12 points and Julie Montgomery added seven.

East Jordan picks up 2 over tough Boyne Falls

BY PAUL THEISEN

Boyne Falls and East Jordan played each other two times this past week, once in Boyne Falls and once in East Jordan. At the end of the two games, the Loggers took two losses in the more than exhausting games. There was probably more skin on the floor, than there were balls through the hoop as Tuesday's battle at the small Boyne Falls gym seemed to be a football affair instead of a basketball game. There were tackles left and right as the girls tried to get loose balls. Some of the players ended up getting hurt, the game was so rough.

Coming out of the first quarter, the score was 13-4, East Jordan leading the attack. By the half the points were 26-17, with the Loggers slowly falling back. The third quarter score moved the board up to 40-34 as the lead for the Red Devils continued. At the end, it was 60-47 as these two teams fought it out with the East Jordan quintet taking the marbles from the Loggers.

Sharon Frankowiak ended the evening with 16 hard earned points, had 15 rebounds and the Logger top scorer honors. Sister Karen Frankowiak added 13 points. Ronda Grubough pulled in 15 rebounds for the Loggers.

East Jordans' JoeLyn Ingalls had 18 points and DeEtte Looze added another 12 for the Red Devils.

At the second game of the week, this time held at East Jordan, the larger gym helped keep the game a basketball game but that didn't help the Loggers as they fell behind in the first quarter 18-6. Things seemed to get worse as the Red Devils kept adding to the score each quarter and finally ran away with the ball and the game, taking it by a score of 67-22.

words that the team was going out to beat the Petoskey bunch but after the game, he had to eat those words as the score he had wished for was turned around, Petoskey taking a 45-6 win.

One of the weak spots for the Ramblers was not having a field goal or extra point kicker. As a result the Ramblers converted only four of fourteen two point conversion attempts. McCullough said, "Kickers come along every now and then. They must practice it. Ramie Leist has a good leg but it was needed on the JV team."

With quarterback Brad Musser leaving next year, the Ramblers will be looking for a new starter. McCullough says that the prime candidates are Mitch Kruzel, Dave Milks and Cris Howard. He added that "Our defensive pass coverage needs some work."

When asked about the strongpoints of next year's team, McCullough said that the team should have some experience in the offensive backfield and their line should be better.

The Ramblers are in the tough Michigan-Huron Shores conference, which contains many quality teams. McCullough added that "It's an old story by now, we are a small class C in a large C and B league. Good B's do well against good C's, good A's against good B's, etc."

"Every now and then you get an exceptional group that defies logic. I hope this group will become one of them."

Ramblers girls take 55-37 win over Central Lake

BY PAUL ZINCK

The Rambler girls took a 55-37 decision over Central Lake in a game played Monday night in Boyne City to wind up their regular season play.

Boyne jumped out to a commanding 13-2 lead after the first quarter and out scored the Trojan girls 22-12 in the second stanza to build their lead to 35-14 at the halftime break.

The lady Ramblers went on to put 11 points on the board versus the Central Lakes nine in the third quarter to give them a 23 point lead heading into the final quarter of play.

Liz Sturm led all scorers with a 20 point game, as she sunk nine field goals and two free throws. Tracy Preutz came off the bench to add eight points for the Ramblers.

Jami Vroman, starting in the place of the injured Julie Paquette, added six. Teri Heiermann sank two field goals and a free throw to give her a total of five points for the evening while MaryBeth Tims gave the Ramblers a four point performance.

The Central Lake girls won the JV contest, a game that was a low scoring one from the beginning. The Trojan girls opened with a 4-1 first quarter lead but the lady Ramblers rebounded by outscoring the visitors 11-4 in the second quarter to take a 12-8 lead into the locker room at the half.

For the second game in a row, however, the Boyne girls could only score one point in the third period as the lady Trojans took a 20-13 lead into the final quarter. The score at the end of the game was 28-19 in favor of Central Lake.

Central Lakes' Kathy Cary led all of the scorers with her 11 points. Linda Bieganowski and Tammy Winters each had five points.

Boyne looks to next season

BY PAUL ZINCK

Rambler football coach Bob McCullough is still looking forward to next year, even after having a 1982 record of zip wins and nine losses. The record doesn't reflect the future of the team as this year, they only had six seniors on the squad and a whole bunch of young players.

In fact, the Ramblers had to bring up ten players from the Jayvee team to help out this season. If all goes well, the Ramblers will have almost twenty players returning next year with experience.

McCullough commented on this season by saying, "Nobody likes to lose, however, I was pleased with the effort of the players. Many of our younger players were needed on the varsity one or two years early because of a small number of boys in the senior class. I thought they did well. Next year we will only lose our six seniors from this year, so it's easy to see we should be improved."

Boyne stated out this year losing to Harbor Springs 14-12 at their home field, mostly by not containing Pete McGonigal who ran for 141 yards, caught two passes, passed another for a touchdown.

From that point, the Ramblers ran into Gaylord who took a 26-6 decision when quarterback Kurt Kalaviska rushed for 118 yards and three touchdowns for the Blue Devils.

Then the Ramblers took their show on the road, traveling to St. Ignace. They returned home with another loss letting the Saints beat them 38-8. In that game they allowed five touchdown runs.

The team returned home to face

Charlevoix, their rivals at the other end of the lake. Charlevoix emerged the victors, taking a 29-12 decision. Again the Rambler defense had a hard time containing the other teams' star. The Rayders Pat Mitchell rushed for 176 yards. The Rambler offense came up with seven turnovers to help lose the game.

Now Boyne looked forward to their homecoming game, against Sault Saint Marie. The Soo team had lost their last 27 games and it looked like Boyne was finally going to get on the winning path. But, their defense let them down and Mike Peller ran for three of the Soo's four touchdowns to take the game.

The next Friday, the dejected but still hopeful Ramblers traveled up to Onaway to play the Cardinals. Onaway took the decision 26-16. Boyne's Brad Musser rushed for both of the Rambler touchdowns.

The winless Ramblers then went to Grayling on a cold and windy night to take on the Vikings, who were, at the time also winless. It was another chance by Boyne to break into the win column but Boyne went down fighting, losing by four points in the last few seconds. The final score was 22-18 and the 18 points were the most they scored in one game so far all season.

The Ramblers returned home to play a very tough Rogers City for their last home game of the season. They lost to the Hurons, 42-22, in front of a small parent's night crowd.

McCullough said then, "Have you ever seen 25 guys with a 0-7 record go out there and play as spirited as these guys?" McCullough also had some

Ramblerettes win - lose in B-ball action

BY PAUL ZINCK
 Boyne City's Ramblerettes learned the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat last week when they traveled to Petoskey and won over the league leading Northmen with a stunning upset victory 64-38. This was followed up Thursday when they hosted the Saints from St. Ignace and fell from their winning spree 50-35.

In Tuesday's game, Boyne was in command throughout the game with the Northmen after jumping out to a 14-7 lead after one quarter. Liz Sturm had 10 of the lady Ramblerettes' 14 first quarter points. Boyne led by 10 at the half, 29-19, and took a 47-31 lead into the final stanza.

Boyne's Liz Sturm led all scorers with 20 points, Julie Paquette was second with 15 points and Teri Heiermann sank 12. Monica Malec led the Northmen with 12 points scored.

Also for the Ramblerettes, Mary Beth Tims pumped four field goals for eight points. Keisha Crozier had five points and Jami Vroman added four points. The Ramblerettes sank 29 total field goals and shot 50 percent (6 of 12) from the charity stripe.

Petoskey took the preliminary game 56-33. Michelle Guzniczak had 16 points for the Ramblerettes in a losing cause.

The Boyne City Ramblerettes' girls' basketball team stayed home last Thursday to play hostess to the Saints from St. Ignace. The lady Ramblerettes came off from two consecutive wins falling to the lady Saints 50-35.

After jumping out to a 16-12 first period lead, the Saints' girls opened up a 25-15 lead at the half. The Ramblerettes closed the gap to 33-29 after the third stanza but the visitors outscored them 17-6 in the final quarter.

Marian Walker from St. Ignace led all scorers with 15 points and Keisha Crozier, the only sophomore on the Boyne City team, led the Ramblerettes with 12 points. Also for Boyne Liz Sturm had 11, Julie Paquette sank 9, Mary Beth Tims made one field goal for two points, and Jami Vroman sank one free throw to add one point.

In the preliminary game, the Saints took a 33-24 decision.

After a 14-10 first period each team scored just two points in the second quarter to give the Saints 16-12 half-time lead. St. Ignace outscored the Ramblerettes by only one point but still took a 22-17 lead into the final stanza.

St. Ignace's Karen Mundt led all scorers with 16 points and Tammy Winters led the Ramblerettes with seven points. Also for the Ramblerettes, Julie Montgomery had six points, all in the first quarter. Linda Biegenowski sank 4, Michelle Guzniczak added three, and Karen DeSchryver and Nadja Clute each chipped in for two points.

JVs end season with loss

BY PAUL ZINCK
 The Rambler Jayvees finished up their season losing to Petoskey's Northmen last Thursday taking the short end of the 48-6 score. Boyne season record ends up with no wins, eight losses, one tie, and a whole lot of experience that will help them next year.

In the game with the men from P-town, Boyne struck first on a 20 yard pass from quarterback David Milks to Mike Gabos. After failing to complete the conversion, they took the lead 6-0.

Petoskey's Todd Fettig scored from 10 yards out and kicked the extra point to put the Northmen on top, 7-6. A few plays later, Daryl Burr passed to Mark Pflughaar for the second touchdown, while Tyler Shomin ran another across the line for the third. Quarterback Mark Schuch threw to Dean LaBlance for the two point conversion after Shomin's touchdown to make the halftime score 21-6 in favor of Petoskey. There was no scoring in the third quarter, but Petoskey hit paydirt four times in the fourth quarter building up the score to 48-6.

Boyne coaches Dave Bricker and Jerry Anderson commented, "We were very pleased with the attitude this season. The kids stuck together, showed a lot of class and never gave up."

Blue-Gray show had BC beginnings

If you watched the television Mini-series the "Blue and the Gray", you should also know that the author of the book the story is based upon had Boyne City connections. Bruce Catton wrote the story based on his personal views and impressions of the Civil War, popularizing it more than any other 20th century writer by bringing to millions of people a vivid sense of history, drama and legacies of this great American struggle. Probably while he was living in Boyne City, he started interviewing veterans of the war, recording their memories. Possibly some of the stories that will appear on the television will be memories of some of our Boyne City veterans.

Boss lady retires

keeping has changed a good deal over that time. At one point Virginia was responsible for all the decorating, painting, drapes and furniture selection, besides keeping them clean. The actual housekeeping methods, much like the rest of the health care field, have gotten vastly more technical.

"Everything has changed," she said. "The rooms are more efficient. The layout of the hospital is more efficient. We no longer use real wax on the floor, disinfectants are much safer. Things are just so different you can't believe it."

"The days of the one janitor closet for the entire hospital are gone, but that didn't mean she worked any less hard. Her regular schedule the last few years started at 4:30 a.m. She'd be at Lockwood by 5:30 to check in with her night crew, and at Little T by 6:30 a.m. when the day shift started to arrive.

Retirement will mean a whole new life style for her, but it's one she hopes she can quickly adjust to. When asked what she intended to do with her time the answer was characteristically: "Anything I want to."

Her immediate plans call for some traveling. She hopes to spend Christmas with her daughter Pamela and three grandsons in St. Louis, Missouri, and the best part of January in Hawaii with her son Thad. After that it all depends "on how much I spend in St. Louis and Hawaii," says Virginia.

For a girl who was born at home and spent all her life growing up in Boyne City, the lure of long trips is a powerful one, but the force drawing her back to Boyne City is even stronger. During the Depression, Hegerberg, (then Virginia Schaub) left to attend Michigan State College for two years, but illness in the family brought her back and she never left again. Peg Spencer and her husband Frank are childhood friends who still live next door. The Spencer girls Ann and Betty, are like her own children.

In 1939 she married Arne Heger-berg. Arnie left for the war and to fill the time Virginia followed her interest in writing with a job stringing for the Detroit Free Press and Petoskey Evening News. She regularly wrote articles about the G.I.'s as they returned from the war. After the war both she and Arne worked in her father's Boyne City meat market, until 1956 when the call came from Gibbons.

Her career at the hospital brought her a whole new circle of friends that further cemented her to northern Michigan.

"I feel like I have another family," said Virginia of the people she came to know here, mentioning that her housekeeping supervisors were all so young then, they're now in their mid-forties. "They started working for me right out of high school. I feel like I brought them up."

That kind of affection went both ways, and as her retirement neared it manifested itself in a very big way. Not only did over a hundred of her employees and friends set up a com-ination birthday and retirement dinner for her, but they, and nearly a thousand other employees, kept it a secret. Amidst best wishes and the first of hundreds of goodbyes she received perhaps the greatest honor of all, an Indian name.

Her former supervisor, George Petoskey, now retired, gave her the name "Gimah-Kwa, meaning Boss Lady, at the November 1 dinner. In a ceremony including Indian chants, ceremony and singing, the tribe made her one of their own. It was a fitting tribute to one who had employed and been a friend of so many.

When Virginia first took over the housekeeping department in 1962 half of the dozen employees were Indians. Most of those are retired now, but the sentiment remained. Arlene Naganashe, who worked in dietary, presented Virginia with a handmade necklace, and a third gift of a quill box made by Donald Naganashe, a nephew of George Petoskey, was also presented to her that evening.

It was the first of many parties and tributes to the friend, boss, and peer that had always been a friend to each. She has been named an honorary lifetime member of the District 7 Michigan Housekeeping Council, a group she is the only remaining charter member of. A dinner, hosted by the NMH administration, honored her on November 9 and a tea for the entire hospital staff was held on her last working day November 12.

"I'm sad and I'm glad," said Virginia, reflecting on her retirement. "I'm tired of getting up at 4:30, but I will like being able to come and go as I please. All I want to do is keep my good health so I can do all those things I've got planned."

Officially Virginia will not be retiring until December 31, but even that will not be the end of her association or importance to NMH.

She summed it up best at the November 9th dinner when she said, "For the last 27 years this hospital has been a big part of my life, and for the last 11 (the year of her husband, Arne's death in 1971) it's been most of it."

For many years to come Virginia Hegerberg, alias Boss Lady, will still be a big part of ours.

 MERCHANDISE POLICY: Wolverine World Wide, Inc. has an established quality control program for its products. When products do not meet standards they are processed as irregulars and offered at "Little Red Shoe House" factory outlet stores. These stores also carry seasonal inactiv (closeout) merchandise. Although there is no control over available sizes of irregulars or closeouts, we do offer substantial savings on all styles and sizes that are available in the stores.
