Boyer goes for North Central accreditation

Yes, try for accreditation, the Boyne City school board said at the Monday, March 14 meeting.

Representatives of parents and the city were on hand and approved the decision as a benefit to both.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Kate Schafer said, "Just from a community standpoint, we are very interested in pursuing the North Central accreditation. We are impressed with the fact that such a system is an important consideration to people in moving in or moving a business into the area."

The school is already accredited by the University of Michigan which accredits 90 percent of the schools in Michigan. Only 50 percent are accredited by North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, principal Rick Casper said, adding that the two use different procedures.

The accreditation being sought of North Central requires a thorough self-evaluation by the school in terms of an appropriate set of standards. The standards are obtained from North Central.

This is the most important aspect, Casper said. By November, the evaluation should be finished and North Central would send one or more representatives to visit the school for a day. Final approval would be determined at the Association's spring meeting in 1984.

Also at the meeting, superintendent Rich Kelly presented the first stage of the 1983-'84 school budget. "The figures will change," he said.

Present figures showed a few increases. Textbooks and teaching materials purchases was one, making up for the freeze the school had imposed on itself during cutbacks in previous years. Some of the increases shown will be reimbursed.

The tentative budget comes to about $3,337,706.

An event involving students across the state will be the second state summer institute in arts and sciences for outstanding students. Each intermediate school district will send in the names of its candidates. Nominated from Boyne City high school were Liz Sturm, Chris Howard, and Mark Bogetto.

Ten volunteer coaches were honored by the school board. Receiving certificates of appreciation for their services were: Ron Reinhardt, Sherry Gillett, Bud Beebe, Rob Polleys, Lee Stadt, Sara Bricker, Mary Dunlop, Linda Caverly, and Mike Engel.

Casper took note of the passing of Dorothy Christensen, who had been with the school from 1951 to 1973 as head cook. "She will certainly be missed," he said.

History teacher Bob Morgridge made a presentation on the teaching of city history in his middle school classes.

Rick Casper explains the North Central Accreditation program to the Boyne City Board of Education at Monday night's school board meeting as many concerned parents listen attentively. The board passed a resolution endorsing the high school accreditation proposal after hearing about the program. The school system was accredited by North Central some years ago, but had to drop the program when the school system was forced to have split shifts.

Boosters give another $10,000 to East Jordan schools

East Jordan Sports Boosters did it again, supporting the school athletic department with a $10,000 donation. They presented the check at the school board meeting on March 14. It amounts, board president Mary Jason said, to one-third of the total athletics program expenses.

Last year the Boosters supported the entire program with their own volunteer coaching, labor, and collected donations.

The school board received another boost from watching a video taping of the high school cheerleading team's performance at the recent state cheerleading team's performance at the recent state cheerleading competitions.

A thorough report on curriculum offerings for high school students next year was given by counselor Carl Rothenberger. The new small engines class has become very popular. Rothenberger said the six computers have three students per machine in class. The program, started this year, will be extended next year to a Computer II class. More computers are needed.

All students taking vocational courses, he said, are required to take a shop math course, which, he added, is not a snap.

Eighth grade students that took algebra will go on to geometry, he said, as they begin their high school program.

Student schedules will be filled out soon and then go home for parental review. Changes can be made after that.

Pam Allen, reading coordinator, reported the recommendations made by the curriculum committee after complete input from school staff.

The four recommendations were put into a motion and approved by the board to go into effect as funds were available.

The first was that spelling and reading be taught as a unit to students, grouped according to reading achievement, and that the time for instruction be expanded.

Second, the committee decided that the Houghton-Mifflin series should be used throughout, rather than, as at present, moving the children through the discontinuity of a variety of series.

The third recommendation was to reinstate the junior primary class, the main reason being that children pushed into reading before they are able to cope with it, are almost always in need of extra help through the rest of their school experience.

Superintendent Tom Rossler commented on these three by saying, "Read-"

"Reading is our number one priority. We're not going to have something fancy, but if a child can't read, he can't succeed."

The last recommendation was for the reinstatement of K through seventh grade physical education.

The observation was made by staff that, at recess time, the children aren't playing well together any more, resorting to attacking each other. And the thought is that they lack the influence of organized games in phys. ed. to carry over into free play.

And they need a trained instructor, the committee report concluded, one who knows when certain developmental steps should be taken.

With the completion of the study of the reading program, the curriculum committee is now tackling the inter-

VOA gets property tax request on ballot

A team circulating petitions for reducing county tax millage by 2 mills has succeeded in getting the request put on the ballot of either the county's April 7 election or the June 13 school elections.

Karl Waldner of Boyne City and Charlevoix County members of the small but growing Organized Voters of America circulated 47 petitions in the county and obtained 773 signers. The reduction in property taxes could amount to $80 and up for average home owners.

Legally, the county is limited to a maximum millage request of 15 mills, but property taxes continue to rise because of increased property value assessments. According to Waldner they have gone up a total of $20 million a year.

The 2 mill reduction if approved, would continue until changed by public vote.

In 1976 Waldner said he was part of a similar thrust in which a 3 mill reduction was voted on. It was aimed at the schools' share of tax monies and it was voted down because at the last minute a counter-campaign was mounted, spreading, Waldner said, misleading and intimidating information.

"Voters should be warned," he said, "that it could happen again." An information sheet is available and being circulated about ways the county could save money. Collecting some $2 million dollars from the cities, for example, Waldner said, the county returns only about one-half million in services.

Of the 2 mills, 1.4 would come out of county government. The rest would be subtracted from the schools' share of county taxes. This figure reflects the lowering of school populations, Waldner said.

In knocking on doors, petition carriers found that 88 percent of those approached signed up. The 12 percent who did not were school people or county employees or uncertain of their own opinion.

One school official was reported as saying, "Why should we do something that's not in our interest?"

Waldner believes that property tax is not the way to finance schools. But until the necessary governmental restructuring he sees as the alternative takes place, the 2 mill reduction seems to be the best step.

"Out of a sense of frustration and hopelessness," he said, "people respond to an opportunity to participate directly."

There will be a similar effort made soon in Emmet County.

Tax or sell position decided to help East Jordan budget

Sell Elm Pointe or collect a city income tax, was decided by East Jordan city council, figuring that either one of these would be a less undesirable way of meeting city expenses than raising the millage, cutting city services, or calling on the sheriff's department to take over some of the police chores.

Neither of the solutions proposed could be enacted without a city election, however.

The problem, as Mayor Bill Merwin put it at the city council special meeting on March 8, is, "If we can't do something this year, we'll be paying twice as much next year."

Council approved the 1983-'84 budget proposal of $832,337 and set two hearing dates, March 22 and 29, because of the seriousness of the city's financial situation.

According to finance committeeman,

Keith Kenney, the finance committee pruned the budget down from an already austere $948,605. Last year's total expenditure was $953,823.

On Saturday, March 5, Morris and city superintendent Mike Dionne spent all day with the finance committee, as they pared the budget still further.

Morris reported the only items remaining untouched this time were under the headings of police, Senior Center, library, Civic Center, and cemetery.

"We came up with a proposed decrease of $64,000 and a possible increase in revenue of $1,400," Morris said. This would bring the new budget request to about $769,737.

The reasons for the struggle to cut expenses are three, Kenney said: cutbacks in state revenue sharing, fall-off in interest from investments, and the need for an improved tax base.

"Tax base is a big problem," Morris explained later. The city needs more business and manufacturing to provide additional tax money.

She also explained the revenue-sharing situation. This past year, she said, they were looking for $120,620 from the state, but received $83,000 instead, the last quarter payment being postponed.

Federal revenue sharing provided the city with $55,000, but next fall it comes up for renewal. If not voted, cities won't get any. And the city does not anticipate receiving the postponed payment from the state.

Merwin's fears for '84-'85 spring also from the shrinking "cushion." The cushion of budgeted, unexpended funds was $214,563 in 1981-'82, Morris said. "We may have $140,000 this year if my wildest dreams come true."

Concerned citizens explain nuclear goals

"It is not our total goal to shut Big Rock Point down," says Christa-Maria, one of the leaders of Concerned Citizens. "Our goal is to see the plant run safely, even at the price of cost effectiveness."

In an interview by The Press this weekend, Christa-Maria, a Charlevoix artist, recollected the origins of Concerned Citizens, and also explained their forthcoming hearing in Washington, D.C. on March 24.

This hearing broke off, she said, when the licensing board made a decision in favor of Concerned Citizens to the point of sending Consumers Power "back to the drawing board to make new calculations."

Christa-Maria pointed out that Consumers' application for temporary increased storage in the pool is no less dangerous than the prospect of permanent storage. The boiling water, she said, would still be a present possibility.

Big Rock Point's public affairs director, Robert Grupp, explained in an earlier interview that the plant would not be in operation during inspection, but Concerned Citizens counters that President.

Consumers next applied for temporary additional increase of fuel rod storage, because rods had to be removed for Big Rock's 10th-year safety inspection, due this May.

Last June at Boyne Falls, the licensing board heard Concerned Citizens on their contention that additional storage would present the danger of boiling in the pool. Christa-Maria said there could be "a self-sustaining nuclear reaction if the water boils."

The June hearing broke off, she said, when the licensing board made a decision in favor of Concerned Citizens to the point of sending Consumers Power "back to the drawing board to make new calculations."

Christa-Maria pointed out that Consumers' application for temporary increased storage in the pool is no less dangerous than the prospect of permanent storage. The boiling water, she said, would still be a present possibility.

Big Rock Point's public affairs director, Robert Grupp, explained in an earlier interview that the plant would not be in operation during inspection, but Concerned Citizens counters that this makes no difference in the storage pool.

A remedy now being proposed by Consumers for the danger of boiling is the provision of a water line to add water to the pool if boiling should become imminent.

It was, according to Christa-Maria, the research of Concerned Citizens member, JoAnne Bier, that revealed there was no efficient system to make up water in the pool. This problem was not discovered by the Consumers engineers nor by the NRC.

Probably because Big Rock was an early plant, Christa-Maria said, not all systems, including a line to the pool, had been connected to their emergency power system.

She added, Bier had been acknowledged in Washington for this research by several people involved in the review.

The hearing process has actually been going on for four years, Christa-Maria said. "We are working with a professor from Antioch Law School who, along with some of his students, is doing the daily brief case work in Washington, D.C."

She said, "The matter of intervening is so complicated and special that only a handful in the country can do it."

Concerned Citizens is supplying him with the research. "He isn't doing the legal work just for us," she noted.

Another individual, interacting with the group in the hearing, is John O'Neil of Maple City.

O'Neil learned of the group's efforts from a TV news program and joined the intervention process, but not as a Concerned Citizen, because of being too far away.

Christa-Maria said he is doing his own presentation.

"You are allowed as an individual to tap the legal arm of the NRC for advice," she said, adding that a number of issues have become shared matters between the group and O'Neil.

It was the issue of the spent fuel pool that brought Concerned Citizens into being in 1979, Christa-Maria said. About 20 people filed a petition, intervening against that proposal, but were told from Washington that the NRC could not accept just a bunch of names.

Not everyone in the group was ready to find money for the long fight that loomed, and so, because of the rapidly approaching deadline on the intervention, she said, the petition was accepted over her signature, and that is why documents show the participation of "Christa-Maria, et al."

"Things can't be just thrown at the NRC out of thin air," she noted.

Since then Concerned Citizens for Charlevoix Area has become registered as a federally licensed non-profit organization, not just as a Big Rock watchdog, but also as a support and education group for alternative energy and other environmental issues.

The group has a newsletter, through which they circulate information and, on occasion, appeal for donations. "People are alerted on needs for travel or photography (documents) expenses," she said.

The major brunt of expense for legal action is paid for out of personal funds of the group members. "We have received no federal monies, no state monies, no foundation monies," she said. "It's been a grass roots citizen effort."

And she added, "Our major effort on the legal process has been our time commitment. Three most active members have each contributed an average of 30 hours a week for four years. If I could have taken that time for my art work..."

Other members have worked on their individual to environmental efforts.

For example, recently, she said, they provided gallon jugs of clean water to the Charlevoix schools for drinking purposes, as many children had been told by their parents not to drink the TCE-contaminated city water.

The project had the blessing of the health department and the school. "We were willing to continue with it, but the school felt the situation would be dissolved very, very soon," she said.

Meantime the group focus on the hearing in Washington will intensify on March 24, and for however long it may continue.

Concerned Citizens also calls it "an outstanding issue that safety of the people who will work on installing any changes in the pool be guaranteed."

Edna Campau celebrates 100th birthday with 75

Three babies, creeping experimentally across the rug at Grandvue Medical Center dining room, did not know it, but they were the fifth generation at the birthday party that evening.

The party was in honor of Edna Hollenbeck Campau on her 100th birthday. Gathering for the affair last Saturday evening were 33 members of her family. The babies were great great grandchildren.

Married in 1904 to Frank Campau, Mrs. Campau lived on a farm near Brown City. Her husband died in 1939. In 1947 she came to East Jordan to live with her son Glenn and his wife Helen. It was in 1980 that she moved to Grandvue where she lives in a self-care unit.

When Mrs. Campau arrived at her birthday party Saturday, she said with a happy smile, "It was the same gang came a year ago!"

A few days earlier she had had another birthday party when she showed her friends the birthday card sent to her by President Ronald Reagan.

Her 100 years of memories center around life on the farm which she loved. "Yes," she agreed, "gardening may be good for a long life." But she said she has no particular fondness for houseplants. It was the work outdoors she liked.

Helen Campau said, "She has really stayed in good health. She got around the house and did the dishes and things until she went to Grandvue."

Mrs. Campau has a brother, living in Florida, and a sister in Manchester, Michigan, five grandchildren, 14 great grandchildren, and the three great grandchildren.

Family Services re-opens adoption agency

The Gaylord office of Community, Family & Children Services provides infant adoption services to residents of Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Otsego and Roscommon Counties. Reflecting the fact that the need for adoptive homes for healthy infants has decreased markedly in the last five years, the agency's waiting list is closed from time to time. The agency has had a closed waiting list since December 1981.

Effective February 1, 1983, the agency is once again taking names and addresses of couples interested in adopting and attending an orientation meeting to be held in late spring. This meeting is open to anyone interested in information about adoption.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Ellen Campbell at Community, Family & Children Services, 202 W. Mitchell, Gaylord, MI 49735.

East Jordan City Council Minutes

Minutes of a Special Council meeting held Tuesday, March 8, 1983 at 7 p.m.

Present: Mayor Merwin; Councilmembers Sweet, Joseph, Daneff, Cihak, Antoine and Kenney;

Superintendent Dionne; Don Saganek-Fire Dept. Sec; Clerk-Treasurer Morris.

Absent: None
The purpose of the meeting was to receive a report from the Finance Committee on the financial condition of the City and attempt to come up with a Proposed Budget for the fiscal 1983-84 year. The Finance Committee Chairman Kenney reported that, after two 4 hour meetings, they felt obliged to go to full Council for direction. The proposed tax-supported Budget of $948,000.00 has been pared down to $832,000.00 but anticipated revenues were short by $109,000.00. If all available funds on hand were used to balance the Budget, there would be no cushion for next year or contingency fund for emergencies. Some long range plans must be made if the City is to survive beyond this year.

Several alternatives were discussed. Raise taxes, adopt a City Income Tax, sell Elm Pointe, reduce services, reduce more services including police.

After weighing the pros and cons, on roll call, the consensus was: No on property tax; may be on income tax; yes on sell Elm Pointe; and no on reduced services.

Motion was offered by Cihak, supported by Kenney, that the Budget as presented, be adopted as a Tentative Budget, with Public Hearings to receive comments March 22nd at 7:00 p.m. and March 29th at 7:00 p.m.

Motion carried with six ayes and Joseph voting nay.

Mayor Merwin named two committees: Cihak (chairperson), Antoine and Sweet to investigate all aspects of "Selling Elm Pointe". Kenney (chairperson), Joseph and Daneff, to investigate all aspects of a City Income Tax. Both of the above would require a vote of the people.

Motion was offered by Kenney, supported by Joseph, that the Elm Pointe Budget be amended to move $500.00 from M&R to a new line item-appraisal fees.

Motion carried all ayes. Motion to adjourn was offered by Cihak, supported by Daneff, and carried all ayes.

PROCEEDINGS OF EAST JORDAN CITY COUNCIL

East Jordan City Council met in regular session Tuesday, March 1, 1983 at 7:30 p.m., Mayor Merwin presiding and all members and Department Heads present.

Minutes were approved, authorization was given to pay $28,270.30 in bills as presented.

Requests were granted to the Chamber of Commerce to use the Civic Center March 21st for their presentation of the proposed FAA Ballot Issue and to the County Sheriff's Department, April 13th for their Neighborhood Watch presentation.

Mayor Merwin was made an honorary member of the tribe, and given the Indian name Ah-Ki'-Au-Nih-Neh (which means Earth Man). Mayor Merwin proclaimed May 28th and 29th 1983 as Day of the Eagle in the City of East Jordan. The Tourist Park and Softball area were made available for the celebration of the "Second Annual Day of the Eagle Powwow."

Superintendent Dionne reported that the Elm Pointe Caretakers have offered their resignation effective April 15th, and ads are being run in the newspapers for replacement; the trimming and clearing at the airport will begin March 14th; he was given permission to submit pre-application for Public Works Grants; he was also given permission to implement grant application for an Economic Development Grant for the Tourist Park (when it becomes available).

Mayor Merwin appointed William G. Boswell to the Board of Review.

East Jordan budget

But with the proposed '83-'84 budget there could be only a very small $40,000 cushion left for 1984-'85, or for 1983-'84 emergencies.

It's a matter of spending for necessities and not planning any funds ahead. "The year '84-'85 could be the year the city went bankrupt, if they don't plan ahead," Morris said. In this planning, she noted, the city can not rely on the state.

Council discussion was organized around the pros and cons of each of the five options for raising money.

The possibility of asking the sheriff's department to supplement some of East Jordan's police protection was dropped. Although there has been a little discussion on sharing measures, large scale supplementation figures were not available at the council's special meeting. However, Kenney said, "As far as cost savings go, it's not going to cure our woes."

A second option was to raise the millage. "Our limit is 20 mills," Morris said. "We are at 14.5. A 5.5 mill increase would balance the budget... Then we would have a recall election," she laughed.

Each mill generates about $19,000. Councilwoman Pat Sweet said, "Beyond what it will do to our taxpayers—People won't want to come to a place with high taxes."

The third consideration centered on a devastating cut in public services, down, city superintendent Mike Dionne said, to the bare needs of health, safety, and welfare.

Dionne said $75,000 could be cut back in services and employees if conveniences and recreation were cut. This would mean closing the Civic Center and the Community Building; all parks, except the Tourist Park, which is self-supporting; and the airport.

Councilwoman Cihak commented, "It would be a loss of our identity as a city."

Saying he was not in favor of cutting services as long as there are alternatives, Dionne pointed out there weren't very many "luxuries" in the budget.

Sale of Elm Pointe seemed to the council members to have the most going for it as an option.

Deeded to the city by Mrs. Augustine Westgate, joined by her husband, George Westgate, the land was given for public purposes.

In 1973 it went on the ballot and taxpayers voted "overwhelmingly" to keep it, according to Cigred Riley, former Elm Pointe commissioner.

In a phone interview, Riley took note of the many contributions made by the Portside Art and Historical Society and other civic groups, both in funds and in cultural events.

Speaking of the money received from the proposed sale of the park, Riley said, "It would be used and we would have nothing to show for it."

The council believes that buyer, or group of investors, could be found that would want to turn it into a conference center-hotel complex. While a guessed-at sale price could be anything from $350,000 to $500,000, taxes from the property would go to South Arm Township.

Cost of the park have outweighed revenues, but it wasn't noted whether the costs took account of donations. Annual expenses range between $8,000 and $20,000; revenues $150 to $13,000.

The last option is the city income tax. The two advantages of this means of finding more funds are that it would bring in money from those living outside city limits, but profiting from city expenditures, and that it would be a redistribution of the tax burden.

Council said it would not tax corporation profits. The proposed figures were 1 percent for residents and .5 percent for non-residents.

It could have a psychological disadvantage, councilman Al Joseph said, with two taxes instead of one being called for. It might seem more than simply the increased millage.

"We could check with Michigan Municipal League," councilwoman Eilan Cihak said, "about other small cities having an income tax."

Merwin reminded everyone that the options were for next year. This year will be paid for, he pointed out.

Committees were appointed for determining the actual benefits to be derived from the council's preferences of Elm Pointe sale or city income tax.

Morris said, "It's been 16 or 17 years since East Jordan ever had such problems as we are facing now."

Remembrances

Remember when the big boats docked at Boyne City? This picture shows the Cloca, an ore boat that brought iron ore to the pig iron plant here in Boyne City and also to East Jordan. The boat got its name from the first letters of the Charcoal Iron Ore Company of America, and was one of two boats that brought the ore into this area for smelting. Located on the deck of the boat were cranes to help in the unloading of the ore and the loading of the pig iron if it was to be shipped by water. This picture, taken by R.C. Leavenworth, was donated to us for our share-picture collection by Mrs. Betty Reich of Boyne City. If you have any pictures you would like to share, we'll be happy to make a copy and give back the original.

Why do taxes go up when sales figures stabilize?

There is something rotten in good ol' Charlevoix County. At least according to Don Berlage, the president of the Northern Michigan Company of Antrim and Charlevoix.

Berlage sent out to all the members of the Board of Realtors in Charlevoix County a wrap-up of the sales that occurred for 1982. He also compared those sales figures with the sales figures of 1978-79-80-81.

He has determined that the average sale price of all forms of property, vacant and improved, which also includes new annual construction has increased very little from 1982 as compared to 1978.

In 1978 the average was about $23,000. The average in 1982 was only about $25,500.

At the same time, the assessed values for the same property have risen dramatically, and not as the same percentage as the average sale price.

Now, we don't know where the assessors are getting their figures, but we can assume from Berlages' figures that they are taking them from out of some book that says that real estate has to increase in value every single year. Year after year, after year.

What the assessors tell us is that they are always averaging the figures from several years to come up with what the property should be paying in taxes.

But, something is wrong if Berlages figures are right. We are sure that everybody is paying more than a nine percent increase.

We have talked with some property owners who have said that their property assessment has risen 100 per cent just this last year alone.

Berlage does put a qualifier on his statements, saying that he is sure someone, somewhere could challenge his methodology in determining the figures, but we would like to think that he puts up a valid argument.

Some of the other figures from the same analysis show that the number of sales have dropped 31 percent and the dollar volume of the sales has dropped 26 between 1978 and 1982.

If you happen to go to one of the Boards of Review, you may want to talk with them about this information and ask them to explain their criteria for the assessed value they have imposed on your property. You can ask them to justify the assessment by comparing real sales figures over what they can come up with.

It probably won't do you much good as we doubt you will get your assessment changed, but you will get the satisfaction of learning more about your taxes and how they are derived.

We hope that the figures Berlage presented, and they should be valid as he also writes most of the title insurance for the county, are some place to start. As almost everyone would say, they are paying too much in taxes for what they have in land.

And we are sure that others will say that they don't believe them.

One thing is certain, land values up here in this beautiful land of ours isn't selling like hotcakes as it was a couple of years ago. It just shows that the recession is prevalent in our area as well as the rest of the state.

Perhaps with this turnaround that every economist is talking about will help make our properties salable at the fair market value we all want to see so that we all pay our share of the tax load.

Marshall Sayles

My name is not Pat nor Mike and I'm English, not Irish; then why do I insist upon the wearing of the Green on St. Pat's Day? I do not understand it. Neither do I know why I go to the Boyne Falls festival and act like a Polack. It disturbs me when I do things and don't know why I'm doing them. I can't tell you how many times I've wished I knew why I was doing what I was doing.

I found a quarter in a store the other day. Nobody was looking so I thrust it in my pocket, adjusting my face in such a manner one would have thought that I just finished listening to Billy Graham on television.

As I moved around the store, I got to thinking. Maybe that quarter was some child's weekly allowance—or perhaps it belonged to a little old lady wearing tennis shoes. Then, too, it could have belonged to a needy young girl with two children and no food stamps at all.

Suddenly I felt as though I were a thief. The feeling did not creep up on me gradually. No. The guilt set in immediately. And if there is anything I can't stand, it's that sudden feeling of being a thief.

Perhaps if I were to give the quarter to a clerk, he might say he knew who it belonged to, thus giving me an opportunity to feel simon-pure again. But then he might put it into his own pocket after I left. What a crook!

The manager was honest faced as he wrapped a package for a customer. Maybe if I gave it to him, he would ask around and find the rightful owner. Then again he might put it into the cash register and forget it, fattening up the day's receipts. Another crook!

Well, my final decision was to show those people a thing or two. All my life I had been eighteen-carat. Except now.

I decided to keep the quarter, shut my mouth and never mention this incident to anyone. After that it took me a couple of minutes to work up a clear conscience.

A clerk came up. "May I help you?" he asked in a pleasant voice.

"I'm just looking," I said, reaching into my pocket to feel the quarter. It was gone! It had slipped through that hole in my pocket and was somewhere on the floor. Then I remembered. That was my quarter. It had fallen through my pocket right after I'd come in the door. I bent down, picked it up and put it into my other pocket. Then I glanced around at the people running the store.

Crooks. All crooks. I would never come in here again.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Boyne City is getting hot. And not just the weather, although it does seem to be a lot like a late spring.

I am talking about the real estate market.

In talking in the past several weeks with some of our real estate brokers, Boyne is showing signs of interest to many people who want to invest in property here in town.

Maybe it is the idea of The Harborage development, or the soon to get started, One Water Street. Whatever, there is a lot of buyer interest in our town according to several of the brokers in the area.

One told me that he feels as busy today as he normally does during the summer months. He even said that if the interest keeps up, his firm may be able to make up for the past two years of lean times.

Another told me that his firm is going great guns, and he is afraid that he may run out of listings, if he doesn't get out and find some more.

John Buick, while he told me that business was looking good, is continuing to find buyers, just as he did for the Horton Bay General Store.

The real estate business here in the North must be one of the more tenuous businesses as the industry is based, to a large part, on the second home purchase.

Now, not every home sold is a secondary home to some downstater who wants to enjoy a little bit of what we have up here every day, but that sort of homebuyer is a solid thing for us here in Boyne.

We are turning into a more diversified community. Our industry will stabilize the work force, while the tourist business will let it grow and develop.

Boyne is a unique town. While off the beaten path and not on a major road, it is located in the center of almost everything.

I have tried to get our Chamber to drop the slogan of the "Best kept secret" and change it to, "The center of the fun." When you think about it, we are in the center of a lot of activities, summer and winter, just minutes away in every direction.

Our real estate folks know that too. And that is why they are pushing for Boyne, to find new owners for old businesses, or to find places for new businesses that want to come to the community.

Some are even looking for new businesses that want to start here in town, serving those people who want the products and the items that the store or the manufacturer offers.

I wish them all the success that they are looking forward to in the coming months. If all of us can hold on just a little longer, we can ride the wagon also.

Letters

Dear Editor, I have just finished reading the March 2, 1983 edition of your Charlevoix County Press and decided that being I have been enjoying your paper here in Louisville, I should write and tell you why I like to read about places and people so far away from my home.

A friend of mine, Orville Nelson, whose hometown is Boyne City, subscribes to your paper and that is how I started reading your paper.

The Charlevoix County Press seems to be able to keep me interested in what is happening to the town and the surrounding communities so I can imagine how it helps everyone that lives there.

When I read in the Jan. 19 edition of the paper that the Harborage developers, Dave and Rick Smith had decided to go with a "Modified 'A' Plan instead of the 'Plan B', I was really pleased because, from what I have read in your paper, that is what the people of the town wanted.

Being an outsider, and only knowing what I read in your paper, I had gotten the impression that this is what the majority of the community wanted and that should be what counts.

Mr. Nelson drew me a map of the area and explained what he could about Lake Charlevoix and the changes that are taking place so I think I understand the feelings of the majority of the people living there.

I enjoy reading Neighbors, Jottings, Letters to the Editor, and Marshall Sayles, (note to Marshall Sayles) Mr. Sayles, You light up my life.

I hope to visit your town in the near future.

Thank you,
Cora R. Tellman

P.S. If there is a way that I could obtain a map of Boyne City and the surrounding communities plus the History of them I would like to know to whom to write for this type of information.

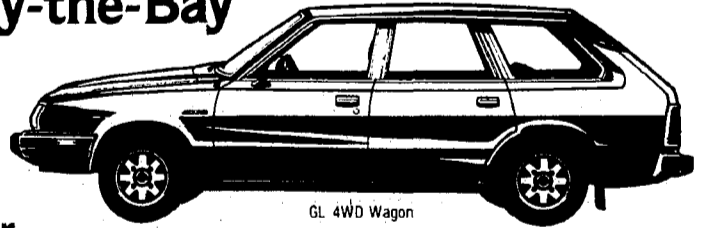

Thanks again.

50 Boyne students in mini-workshop

Fifty Boyne City students from the cast of Guys and Dolls, music students and members of the bank participated in a mini-workshop conducted by Fran Tollas of Charlevoix. The workshop was directed in performance, demonstration and discussion to voice control through breathing. She concentrated on the music for the high school production of Guys and Dolls which will be presented April 21, 22 and 23.

The workshop was given as part of the requirements of a grant awarded to Mrs. Tollas by the Michigan Council of the Arts through CHIP (Counseling Center of Charlevoix). Its purpose is to teach and encourage singing as a tool to better emotional health. Mrs. Tollas has recently received a second degree in vocal performance from Grand Valley State College, and she teaches singing at the Crooked Tree Art Council.

Participating in the ceremony were Lee Reibel, trustee chairman; Ed Chamberlain, council board chairman; Rev. Leon Andrews, the district superintendent for the Methodist Church; and the present pastor, Rev. Martin Fox. The building will house the Fox family when it is completed late this summer.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY
Pat O'Donnell is always in my memories on St. Patrick's day. He was born the 17th of March 1898 on Beaver Island; Irish parents, of course. I do not believe that I have ever known anyone with such a compassionate heart and as generous to so many people as Pat, unless it was his wife, Leona. Most of Pat's life was spent on the Great Lakes. He studied and passed the navigational exams at a very young age. He was captain of the Coast Guard flagship for a number of years, and during World War I he was a lieutenant Commander in the south Pacific. Even after he retired he was called on to navigate the car ferries from Frankfort when they were stranded.

Pat had many stories to tell his children and grandchildren about life on the lakes—about the couple stranded on Isle Royale one winter, to the loading of potatoes at Bower's Harbor, and the King Strang story as told to him by his mother who knew some of the Mormons left on Beaver Island. He told them about the winters on the island when his mother taught school on the nearby Garden Island. He did the cooking for himself and his younger brothers. He said that they lived mostly on pancakes. One of Pat's favorite food was smoked fish and he cooked everything with a minimum of effort. I must tell you about the way he cooked his breakfast when he lived alone, later in life. His doctor said that it was an ideal breakfast. First he put the coffee pot on and drank his orange juice while an egg boiled in a small pan; after three minutes he removed the egg and added the right amount of oatmeal and salt to the boiling water. He cracked open the egg at the top and ate it. By that time the oatmeal was ready and he added milk and ate it right from the same little pan. He had his well balanced breakfast while it was hot and only one juice glass, one little saucepan and one spoon were all the dishes he had to wash!

Leona was a terrific cook, she always made good use of whatever was on hand, as she was very often cooking for a crowd. Friends seemed to congregate at their house, and what gracious hosts she and Pat were. I remember one time more people came than she expected so she added a small veal roast to her simmering chicken stew. The best veal I ever tasted. Imagine, at that time veal was cheaper than chicken!

Friends and neighbors were always leaving garden vegetables and fruits at their door; they were the only people I know who received gifts from the children of the neighborhood on Halloween instead of asking for trick or treats. I would like to dedicate these old time Irish recipes to the memory of Patrick Henry O'Donnell.

No St. Patrick's day meal would be complete without potatoes. Here is an easy way to fix tasty

ESCALLOPED POTATOES
Line the bottom of a buttered casserole with sliced onions, then thinly sliced potatoes on top. Season with salt and pepper and pour milk to almost cover the potatoes. Cover with small pieces of sliced bacon and bake at 275 to 300 degree oven, this might take 1 1/2 to 2 hours until the bacon is crisp and the potatoes tender with a crispy golden top.

As soon as the snow has melted is time to dig out some of the parsnips that were left in the garden all winter. How we loved the first taste of those parsnips; a foretaste of spring.

FRIED PARSNIPS
Cook about six parsnips until tender, drain and mash; to this mixture add 1 beaten egg, salt to taste, about 1 tablespoon melted butter and couple tablespoons of flour. Mix real good and fry on a hot griddle like little pancakes, with a small amount of butter. Serve these parsnips with sausages, and Pat's favorite

DEEP DISH APPLE PIE
8 tart apples
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon butter
Pare apples, core and cut in thin slices. Put in a baking dish about 3 inches deep, add sugar and spices and dot with bits of butter. Cover with plain pastry, trim edge and press with the tines of a fork. Prick top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a quick oven 425 degrees for 10 minutes, lower heat to 375 and bake about 30 minutes or until apples are tender.

This is delicious served with whipped cream or whipped topping, or a scoop of ice cream.

Boyer Falls in closing minutes at District

BY PAUL ZINCK noshot that the A frantic comeback Ramblers seemed to be attempt by the Boyne City Ramblers was not enough to overcome the case of third quarter

Francis quintet at the end, even though they tried like mad to get back into the game in the closing minutes. At the start of the game that finished out the season for the Ramblers, the two teams traded baskets with regularity as both teams played hard and tough for the whole first half. Boyne took a 12-10 first quarter lead and then stretched it out to a 31-28 score at the halftime break. The biggest lead Boyne had in the first half was just six points. Jeff Gabos put in eight points in the first half for the Ramblers in the drive.

Boyer went cold after they came out of the locker room for the third quarter, as they have many times this year. They only scored six points for the period, while the Glads scored 18 points to take a nine point lead into the final stanza. It was the biggest point spread of the match.

With 4:26 left in the game, the Traverse City St. Francis Gladiators held a 64-46 lead. Darryl Johnson sunk a pair of field goals to bring Boyne within five points. But, Rich Eikey, the all-state candidate from the Glads, hit a field goal and that started the teams trading baskets until the end with the score settling at 69-60. The contest got close near the end as Brad Musser and Mike Harris each sank a field goal and Dan Peck hit a free throw to pull the Ramblers back to within two points. But the Glads tallied six points to put the game out of reach.

The loss eliminated the Ramblers from meeting their arch rival at the other end of the lake who went on to win the District Championships on Saturday night. "These kids don't have anything to be ashamed of," said the Rambler coach Dennis Starkey after the loss. "They have been coming from behind all year and never gave up until the final buzzer."

"I was glad to see all our seniors play their roles tonight," he continued, referring to his senior starters, Harris, Musser, Peck and Johnson.

For St. Francis, Rick Eikey scored his 25 point average, and Mike Knudson scored 13 while Ed Rosenberg hit on five field goals for 10 points.

Boyer's Gabos ended up with 12 points, while three Ramblers, Musser, Harris and Johnson had 10 to add to the score.

Dan Peck gets fouled by Rick Eikey of St. Francis in the last game of the season for the Ramblers. Boyne lost the game with St. Francis when a late rally fell short in the closing moments 69-60.

Falls falls to perennial foe St. Marys, 56-48

BY PAUL THEISEN At one point during the fourth quarter the Loggers pulled the score up to within three points of winning St. Mary's. This slightly upset the Snowbirds as they did not expect the Loggers to come this close. This also upset the crowd as they "roared" back-and-forth the last two minutes of the game.

Unfortunately the Loggers missed a couple and the Snowbirds gained a couple baskets. But the Logger players certainly gave the Snowbirds a tough and unexpected surprising game. Coming out of the first quarter the score was 10-13, the Snowbirds grabbing a small lead. By halftime the points were pushed up to 19-33, the Loggers not making enough effort, and falling way back.

As the third period terminated the score was 33-45, the Loggers gaining a few, and coming closer to a lead. And as the final quarter got underway the Logger boys made tremendous efforts but couldn't gain a lead.

It all lead up to another St. Mary's victory of 56-48. High pointer for the Boyne Falls Loggers was Tim Smith with 22 points and 12 rebounds. Joe Bearss gained eight points in the losing effort, and teammate Clarence Stark pulled in 11 rebounds.

For Gaylord St. Mary's Ken Fitzek gained 23 points.

DNR report
Weather conditions last week remained generally mild with temperatures climbing into the upper 50s. Some rain and light snow were recorded early in the week. Snow depth is 0 in the eight northern counties of the lower peninsula. Fishing pressure very light on lakes as ice conditions become unsafe. Some trout fishing taking place on streams that remain open all year. Portions of streams that open on April 1 are listed in the Fish Law Digest. The beaver and otter season that was scheduled to close on March 20 has been extended to April 20 in area "B". New trapping licenses will be needed after April 1 and the total bag limit will remain unchanged—25 beaver and 1 otter. If the warm weather continues smelt runs are expected to be far ahead of schedule. Grass and leaves dry very rapidly at this time of year and people who are eager to burn leaves and brush should be very careful with fire and obtain a fire permit from the DNR before doing any open burning. These permits can be obtained by calling or stopping at the DNR office. In general, people should make a special effort to keep dogs at home.

There are over 100 changes in this year's tax laws and forms.
