Proposed bond issue defeated in light vote

In an extremely light turnout, the voters of the county handily turned down a proposal for bonding of the proposed Federal Aviation Agencies' Flight Service Station that may be placed in Charlevoix County.

Of the approximately 14,000 registered voters in the county, only 1458 turned out at the polls to turn down the $750,000 bonding issue. The proposal passed in only two townships in the county, but failed to pass in every city. 13 Townships also failed to pass the proposal.

In Boyne City the issue failed by a vote of 28 for and 70 against the proposal. East Jordan voters showed that 40 voted for the bond while 92 were against the issue.

In the county, including the city of Charlevoix, which had the best chance of seeing any of the benefits of the FSS station, the vote showed only 515 were for the issue and 930 were against it.

Members of the committee campaigning for the proposal were disappointed in the results but have indicated that they have other ideas to make up the money if the FSS is awarded to the county.

Election workers all over the county spent a slow day last week, waiting for the voters that never showed up. Although the polls opened up at 7 a.m., the workers had to wait for the voters to show up. In the entire county, only 1458 people showed up at the polls out of a total of 14,000 registered voters. The issue failed by a wide margin when the few voters turned down the bonding request for the potential flight service station that the county is trying to attract to Charlevoix.

School asks same millage

The millage request for Boyne City schools for the coming year will be the same as last year's 21.3 mills request. The school board approved the request after study of the $3,177,408 budget proposed for next year.

Total budget requirements are up from last year by about $410,306. Superintendent Rich Kelly estimated that local revenue would be $2,904,756, up $39,945 from last year.

Along with the millage vote on the June 13 ballot will go the names of three candidates for two vacancies on the school board: Billie R. Reinhardt, Philip Bowman, and Dick Wulff who is running for another term.

The board approved having the county sheriff's fingerprinting program for the elementary school. Kelly pointed out that it was entirely voluntary. "Only those children whose parents or guardians have given consent will be fingerprinted," he said, reading from Sheriff George Lasater's letter.

The letter was also signed by the Rev. Dale Turner, and contained a form for parents' signature.

The program, used in other school systems in the county, is to record identification for the possibility of a child's being reported missing.

Principal Ed Snyder noted that even in Boyne City last year there was such a case, solved fortunately with the aid of New York city police.

Peninsula Beach depends on getting grant

The dream of a full-fledged Boyne City beach rides on a grant application to the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund. City commissioners shook their heads at Tuesday's noon meeting when they saw the total cost, but city manager Tim Clifton said, "Wait!"

The city's half of the $398,000 grant request would be covered by the sale and lease of properties to The Harborage. Clifton identified the land in question as lying between Harborage property and the city sewage treatment plant.

Clifton said the parcel to be sold was a 50-foot wide strip, about 350 feet long, running from Front Street up to the beach.

The property to be leased is, low land, lying between the beach and the treatment plant. The developers of The Harborage propose to put their boat storage building there instead of on Front Street.

Developer Rick Smith said the new location would be better in that the treatment plant and proposed landscaping would tend to conceal the 80 by 200-foot building.

In addition, a public beach house is planned to go across the north end, and along the west wall, Smith's plan calls for about 15 stalls, each 10 feet wide, to be used by area artists in the summer as workshops and sales outlets.

Smith said the 35-foot high structure could also be used by the city in the summer season as for such things as antique shows, or rainy-day shelter for the farmer's market.

The boat building would also contain a service shop for boats at The Harborage Marina. In winter, of course, it would be filled with stored boats.

The lease would run 99 years and the lease money would all be applied at once to the grant funding. The lease, together with the purchase price of the 50-foot wide strip is intended to cover the city's $199,000 share of the grant.

An important feature of the new plan would be the man-made peninsula to be added to the west end of the beach, the chief purpose of which would be to prevent wave action from washing away beach sand. Clifton said the peninsula would also create more beachfront in the resulting 500-foot long horseshoe, shelter swimmers from waves from that direction, and protect them from boats heading in and out of the neighboring marina.

The beach design, drawn up by Bill Farrand of Farrand-Vroom Associates, also includes landscaping, extension of the promenade, paved parking, a tot-lot, and picnic area.

Extension of storm sewers either side of the beach to carry water out past the swimming area is also part of the proposal.

Clifton expressed optimism on the city's being awarded the grant.

The funds for the public participation in the development of One Water Street may also be coming through a grant, this one from the Small Cities Program of the Michigan Department of Commerce.

Pre-application and full application were approved Tuesday, April 12 for a request for $290,225 for street, water, and sewer extensions to the site that is going to be developed by Lake Associates.

Where the development affects the city park, associated dredging and rip-rapping will be needed. Also a new city well will be constructed.

The total for the project includes the cost of the new restaurant and docking facility, but that portion, amounting to $1.2 million, is coming from private funds.

The city's cash share of the grant being requested is $80,000. It is committed to well construction.

The grant money, Clifton emphasized, is totally for public improvements.

The city's $80,000, the grant's $290,225, and the private fund's $1.2 million add up to a $1,570,225 project. Clifton expects the application can be submitted by the end of this week. "I am extremely optimistic that funds will be forthcoming," he said.

East Jordan continues to look for alternatives

East Jordan city council continues to study the possibility of selling one of its waterfront parks, Elm Pointe, as a means of coping with city expenses.

Ellen Cihak, chairwoman of the Elm Pointe committee, reported at city council meeting, on Tuesday, April 4, the committee's recommendation that the park be kept open while the study goes on.

Cihak read from an evaluation of the park by Interpretive Development Planning Company, made for Portside Art Fair. While noting that the city was "extremely fortunate to have such a facility," the statement made two points: the responsibility for maintenance and for keeping the park attractive to the whole community, not just to particular groups.

Mayor Bill Merwin reminded the public again that sale of the Pointe could only be by the vote of the taxpayers.

The alternative proposal for keeping the city afloat in 1984-'85 and until times improve is a city-wide income tax. The committee studying the proposal is postponing a report until the Municipal League brings out its updated advisory booklet on May 30.

Council approves a resolution declaring that policy-making authority comes from the council, not from any committee or commission. The resolution rescinds any authority granted by previous councils.

Water/sewer tap fees were doubled, going from $200 to $400. The owner or their contractor may do the work. The city will supply pipes and water meter. "It's not yet a mandatory tap," clerk Fern Morris said.

The city relented on its Tourist Park regulation against taking reservations for campsites. "We're going to accept reservations in advance this year," parks chairwoman Pat Sweet said.

The council also agreed to keep the recreation building open from 10 to 11 p.m. Sweet noted that no drinking was allowed in swim areas, although alcoholic beverages may be served in the camps.

Still no drinking at other public areas, and also no smoking in the Civic Center, although the possibility of a smoking room will be reviewed.

City superintendent Mike Dionne presented a new plan for the city marina which would extend a dock from the south end of Veterans' Memorial Park. This would keep harbor traffic away from the East Jordan Ironworks, and also eliminate the necessity for moving the train engine monument.

An arm of the dock would go at a right angle to the dock, towards the present city dock. Boats would enter the harbor through the opening between the "arm" and the city dock. Dionne said there would also be a breakwater, protecting the harbor entrance.

Council approved asking for a $3,000 grant from Waterways for the engineering design. The city's half has already been budgeted.

Answering a question from a resident at the well-attended meeting, Dionne said eventual financing of the dock would not be with a 50-50 grant. It would have to be with some form of joint grants, joint bonding, or some other way of spreading the one million dollar harbor price tag.

Dionne noted that with the engineering done, the city would be in a good position to move it, for example, the jobs bill coming out of the federal government should be accessible for application for the harbor.

Other projects were reviewed: Tourist Park marina, landfill transfer station building, and replacement for the crumbling well house number 1. Water supply is not affected, Dionne said of the latter.

He is applying for a $30,000 grant from the Small Cities grant plan for reconstructing the well house. The city would provide $5,000 in engineering services, in part, offsetting their share of the cost.

Costs to the city of across-the-board salary raises were discussed. The practice has been to raise non-unionized employees' salaries to keep pace with union raises.

Councilman Keith Kenney explained some of the raises as coming to correct a lower-than-appropriate wage.

Commissioners drop animal request

A letter from the Charlevoix County Humane Society was read at a county commission meeting earlier this year, in which the Society objected to use of pound animals for medical research purposes.

The commission had received a request for such animals from the Michigan State Medical Society. Following the position of the Society, the commissioners dropped the matter.

EJ Chamber completes survey

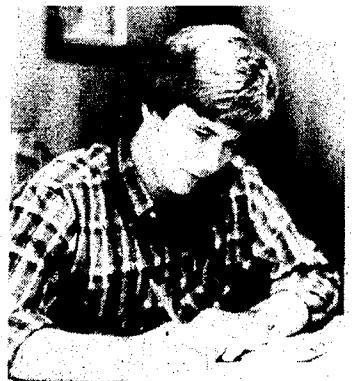

Do you buy your antiques, appliances, auto parts, carpets, clothing, and food, among other things, in East Jordan?

That is part of what the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce hopes to find out in their just completed survey. Its chief purpose is to help the city's business people "evaluate their particular area," said Jeff Streebman, one of the two Chamber members most closely connected with the project. The other was Dr. John Kempton.

The survey, a three page questionnaire, went out to 2,500 randomly selected households and, thanks to interest in the area, produced a 17 percent response. "Unusually high for a survey," Streebman commented.

After being tallied by a computer in Bellaire, the results will be sold to businesses and individuals in and out of the Chamber. One of the questions on the survey asked which radio station was most often listened to by the person filling out the survey, which might tend to indicate to business people where to place their advertising money, particularly as some stations appeal to particular age groups and have different interests.

As Streebman pointed out, not only would business people know where the survey showed that people were shopping, but which sex, which age, or which income group was making the purchase, if the survey was totally completed.

"And if 99 percent of the people say they practically never purchased an item in East Jordan, we'd better find out why," Streebman continued.

One way a business could find out why, was to look at the reasons people had in back of their purchase. Was it consideration of price, quality, extent of selection, service, adjustment policy, or appearance and atmosphere?" the questionnaire asked.

Streebman emphasized that the answers were only representative. Of the 2,500 people the businesses try to serve that received the questionnaire, they had 450 answers to go on. Still, Streebman said, the Chamber thinks the effort is and will be helpful.

"We haven't had anything of this nature before," he said, explaining that he and Kempton had been thinking about it for over a year. After they had worked on it, they presented it to the Chamber board of directors, where they picked up suggestions and encouragement.

Prior to this, Streebman, who is in sales at the East Jordan Ironworks, had done another similar survey as part of his studies in marketing at college.

He said that one of the results of this questionnaire was that they also were given some ideas for new businesses. And, he said, some respondents not only answered the questions, but also added comments, writing on the backs of pages and up and down the margins, as well.

He was also impressed, he said, when someone who came to the Chamber Dinner said, "If ever I saw a diamond in the rough, it's East Jordan."

"There are some tremendous possibilities in town, already," Streebman said, "not only for new businesses, but for existing businesses as well. I hope that this survey will open up the potentials, open up the door a little bit."

Streebman said that further information on the survey may be obtained from the Chamber executive director, Judy Shea.

And they're off and running to see where all the candy Easter eggs were hidden all around the Little League ball field at the Lions Club Easter Egg Hunt that was held Sunday. The event, postponed because of rain the Easter weekend, still attracted a lot of children anxious to see how many eggs they could gather. Here, the four year olds and under started running when their parents told them there were plenty of eggs over there, to your right, or your left.

The Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics have announced that Boyne City Middle School students have been registered so that they can compete in the 1973 Region 7 math competition. Students include (sitting) Derek Smith, Julie Karkosak, Mike DeSchryver, (standing) Mike Harmeling, Peter Smith, and Brian Ledahl. The students will take a one hour test in their grade level with others from different schools in the region. The top twenty-five scorers at each grade will qualify for the state competition to be held at Central Michigan University. The regional competition will be held at Oscoda High School on Saturday, April 23. Over 500 students will be participating.

Well known salon changes hands to daughter

Violet Paquette (everybody knows her as Vi) is retiring after 46 years in her business. She owned and managed Hair Unlimited in Boyne City until this week, when she sold the business to her daughter Karen Habasco. "She would go there at eight in the morning and not get home till after nine at night, day after day," daughter Karen said. "Now I'm going to do all the things I've wanted to do," said Vi, naming even every day things she has had to forego. Taking over the management of the shop on Park Street will be Sally Moran, already a familiar figure in Boyne City from her work at Studio One. For three years Moran had her own shop, Sally's Hairport. Assisting will be Vi's daughter-in-law Beverly Paquette and Kevin Moore, Sally's son. Bev has assisted Vi already for 24 years! Kevin, recently licensed, will bring in new ideas.

Howard (now Garnet Knapp) assisted Vi. Now she too will be leaving the shop. "I've been really happy in my work," said Vi, "and I expect to be happy now with my new life."

Boyne Falls kindergarten registration

Boyne Falls Public Schools will be holding a Kindergarten Round-up on April 20 for all children who plan on attending the Boyne Falls school in 1983/84.

This year a new system of testing is going to be used, and according to school officials, it's very important that the child is pre-registered. Registration before April 15 will insure that parents will not have to wait for their child to be screened. Parents with children that will be kindergarten age next year are encouraged to call the school with the following information: child's name, age, birthdate and the names of the parents. Parents will be contacted by the school with an appointment time. For more information, or to register your child, call 549-2211.

Engaged?

The Charlevoix County Press publishes engagement and wedding announcements without charge. Pictures are welcomed, but we do suggest a few guidelines. Good quality black and white photographs, either of the couple or bride-elect, are preferred. All photographs are kept on file in the Press office and may be picked up at any time following publication; those pictures not picked up after six months will be discarded. Wedding and engagement announcement forms are available at our office or will be mailed upon request and the receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope. While we try to publish each announcement the week that we receive it (and in the case of weddings, the first publication date following the ceremony), space constraints sometimes force us to delay the printing of the announcement for one or two weeks. Therefore, we ask that information be received at least two weeks before the intended publication so that we might better plan for its publication. We will not accept wedding announcements received more than four weeks after the wedding.

Opinions

Vote was a disaster

Appalled. That is the only word we can use to describe what we thought of the vote in last week's bonding proposal.

We really don't care who won or lost, but it amazes us to find out that the county spent a whole lot of money paying for the advertising, the polling place workers and all the other costs of an election for which almost almost no one voted.

Perhaps the people in this county want to lose the right to vote. It can happen here as it has happened in other parts of the world due to the apathy of the voter.

The blame for the extremely poor turnout can't all be blamed on the county, because we feel that they tried to do their best in getting the word out. The media also wrote several articles over the preceding weeks of the election, trying to inform the voters of the implications and the ramifications of the issue.

Perhaps the question was one that should not have been placed in front of the voters in the first place, but, with public monies being spent, we agree with the County Commissioners that we should have some voice in whether or not it should be spent. But the results of the election are ridiculous.

Only 10 percent of the people even bothered to cast a ballot.

The other ninety percent must have been thinking that their vote would not count. And they are right. It didn't count.

Maybe in the next presidential election, we take the money that would be spent, and spend it on improving the road signs throughout the county. There would be money left over so that we could throw a big party for the losers of the county.

Those that couldn't be bothered.

Of the few rights that we have left to try to control our government, we just saw one of them being mis-used, and we would rather see it used so that we can keep control on our governing body.

Maybe if a whole lot more had voted, we wouldn't be thinking this way, but at least we would know that a whole lot of people thought enough about the question to spend a few minutes of their time to tell somebody what they thought.

Marshall Sayles

Now that Spring is here I am once again trying to convince myself that I owe my robust health and rich olive complexion to not mowing the lawn and not working in the garden.

I met a man on the street the other day who looked as though he had just arrived in town from Horton Bay. In our conversation I asked where he was from and he seemed reluctant to say. That's how I knew he was from Horton Bay.

If he had been from Boyne Falls he would have told me in such a way that everyone within a three block area would have known; and he would have been right to have done so. For when a man flees the Falls for Boyne City, all ears are perked for news from that wild and exciting geographic region of the county.

When I first met the man on the street I knew right off that he wasn't from East Jordan. When a man from East Jordan comes to Boyne City it isn't necessary to ask where he is from. You already know. For he's the one who married your sister, your aunt, or your ex-wife.

East Jordan and Boyne City have a great mass of intermingled people, partly the result of Boyne City men running over to East Jordan women and East Jordan women coming over to yank a man's shirt sleeve informing him that a quick marriage would be advisable. This sort of thing has been going on between Boyne City and East Jordan for so long one would be hard put to separate the kith from the kin. (There are times when I get things mixed up. Heavens, how I hope this isn't one of them.)

Boyne City and Horton Bay have kithed and kinned back and forth over the years, but not often enough to recognize a relative at first glance. In the course of my conversation with the man from Horton Bay, it was discovered that he is a distant relative on my mother's side. He had spent most of his life in Chicago, having returned to his Horton Bay area home to retire, a multi-millionaire.

Something happened when I heard that word "millionaire." Horton Bay seemed to blossom out and become the finest community around. Suddenly it had East Jordan and Boyne Falls beat four ways to last Thursday. Maybe it was last Friday. I was so excited, I couldn't really tell.

I took the man's arm and told him how I had always had a special feeling for Horton Bay; and why didn't he come to Boyne City more often? Many people here still recalled when he was a young man in Horton Bay.

As he left I shook his hand, assuring him that when we first met on the street I had recognized him right off. (It is hard to say exactly where this story is faulty, but something is the matter with it. It may have slid off in the wrong direction when the word "millionaire" was mentioned.) I'm just not sure.

Someone gave a rather embarrassing appraisal of last week's offering and I lost my temper, developing a sour stomach. It has happened before and I've always known what to do. I usually step into a restaurant for a quick dish of strawberries. A slow dish simply will not make a sour stomach sweet again.

The waitress brought the quick dish but forgot the silverware. There was a large knife on the next table so I ate the strawberries with a knife. It is not socially graceful to eat strawberries with a knife from the next table. But when you have to get the berries into your stomach as rapidly as possible, you can't let etiquette dictate.

An elderly lady leaned over. "Young man," she said, "you ate those strawberries with a knife."

"Yes," I said.

"Well, I'll be damned," she said.

I took longer than necessary with my napkin so the nice lady could sit there and be damned for a while. After all, she had called me a young man in a voice that beat the soothing action of the berries. I liked that and was no longer sour stomached over the disturbing appraisal of last week's published stuff.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

This is the lean time of year, but at the same time, it is the time for planning for the upcoming summer.

A lot of restaurants close down about this time. It's after skiing and before mushrooming. Or it's because the owners want to go to some exotic vacation spot that they have been saving up for all year long.

And when they return, they will start planning on how many meals that they will serve this summer, programming all that information into how much they may have to order, what menu changes they will want to make.

In my imaginary restaurant, I would do the same thing.

Should I serve popcorn salted, and with butter? Or should I get some of the imitation food coloring with the super buttery taste?

You see, my restaurant only serves the best things, things that I like to eat.

Other items on my menu include just about every kind of junkfood you can think of, from cotton candy through to Screaming Yellow Zonkers.

You name it, I like it.

In the real world of restaurants though, the food costs are the things that can make you money, or cause you to lose your shirt. Just ask any one who owns a place to eat and they will tell you the real facts.

The restaurant business is one of the easiest to get into, everyone thinks that they have a great idea for great food at greatly reduced prices and all those factors will attract great crowds.

It ain't necessarily so. National statistics show that the food business is one of the hardest to succeed in, and those that do, are people who know how to control all the factors.

Just one factor, like, ordering 150 live lobsters for what you think is going to be a good weekend and then it rains, and you only have three sold before they all die, can drive you up a wall.

My restaurant will never have those problems, only because I know how hard the business is, and I will not go into the business unless someone rescrows my head on crooked.

I was going through some of my mail yesterday, and one of the items that caught my eye was the Michigan Travel Commission's travel news. They are the people who try to keep track of some of the things that happen around the state that might attract some tourist business.

The item that they sent out contained a list of some of the festivals and events that are on the calendar this year.

You could go to the Asparagus Festival down in Shelby and Hart, or you could take a visit down to Battle Creek to participate in the world's longest breakfast table during the Cereal City Festival. They are giving out free breakfasts made from Battle Creek products, and you may be able to say that you helped set a world record as they are trying to get the breakfast table in the Guinness Book. Don't bother to ask for eggs and bacon. I don't think they are going to serve that.

Up in the Upper, you could attend the Thimbleberry Blossom Festival to help celebrate that particular event up in Copper Country every June.

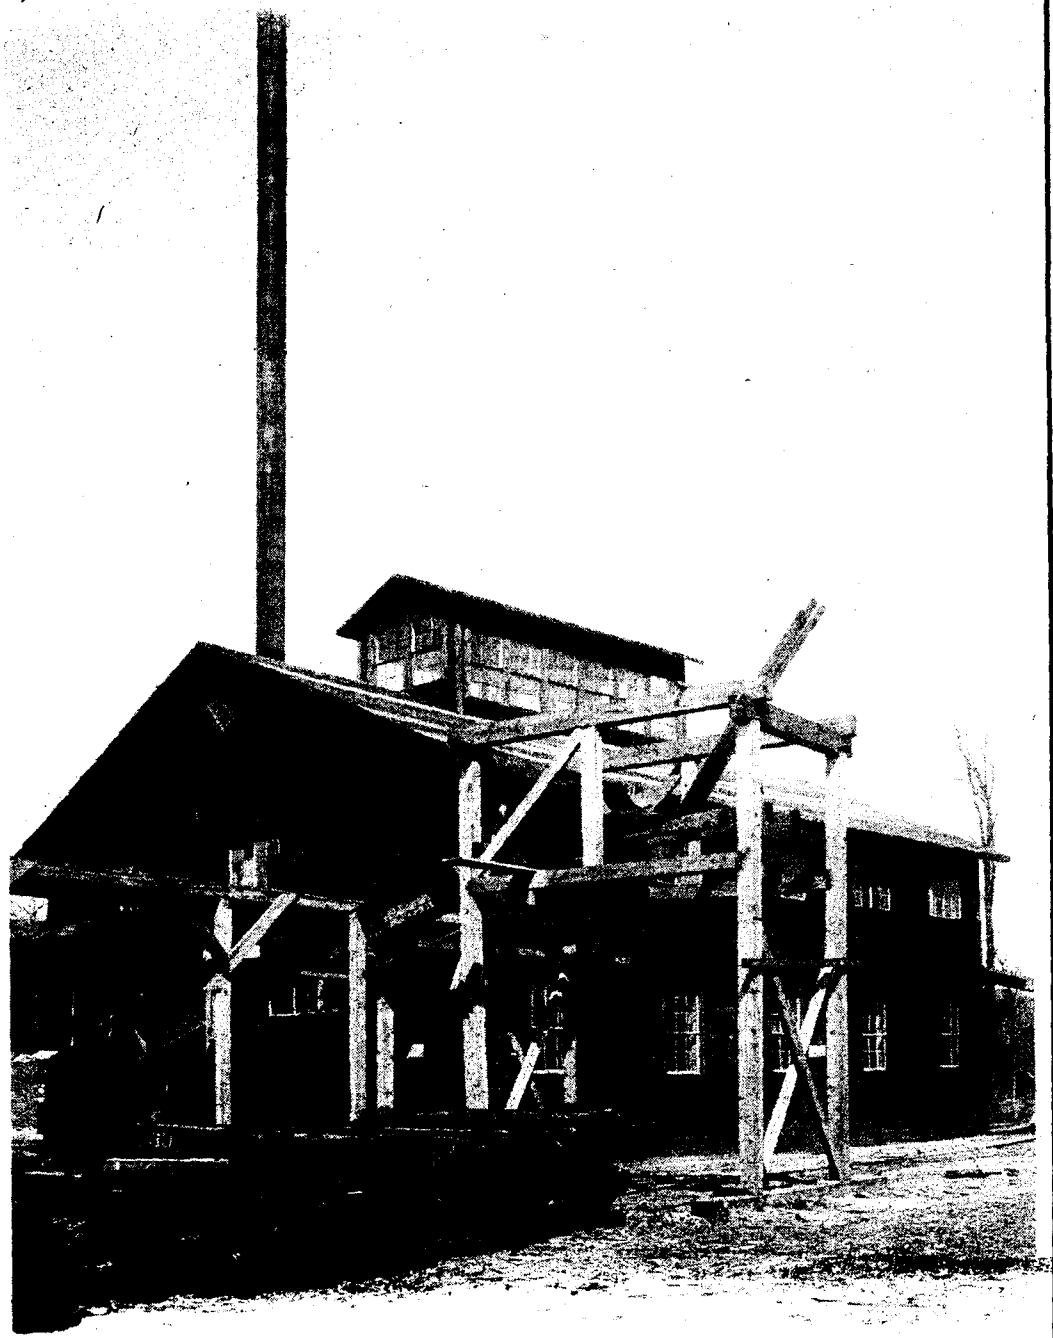

There must be a thousand festivals you could go to if your heart desires, but for me, I think I am going to be one of the participants in our own festival, the National Mushroom Hunting Championships. At least it will get me out of the house on Mother's Day.

Remembrances

Boyne City had a shingle mill that made cedar split shingles back in the old days. It was located close to the Boyne River just north of the present day airport. According to Ed Hartnell, whose picture this is from, the mill closed down about 1912 when the prime cedar ran out here in the area. Before being torn down, many kids in the city used the mill as a playground, albeit a dangerous one. This picture was taken in 1918 after the mill had closed.

WILLIAM FARAND AND FAMILY

1st pastor to visit

Bill Farand, the first pastor and the first leader in the formation of the Assembly of God Church here in Boyne City, now called Faith Community Fellowship, will be making a visit to his old parish this Sunday, April 17th. He will be visiting his many old friends in the church that he helped guide through its early years here in Boyne City, before turning the reins over to Rev. William E. Severance.

Property Ass'n. to hold meetings

In response to requests of Lake Charlevoix homeowners for assistance in developing crime prevention programs, the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association will be sponsoring three Neighborhood Watch meetings which will focus on the prevention of residential burglary.

Officer David Hague of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will explain how citizen participation in Neighborhood Watch programs can deter burglaries. The meetings, co-sponsored by the East Jordan, Charlevoix and Boyne City Chambers of Commerce, will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 13, at the East Jordan Civic Center; Thursday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Grant Street, Charlevoix; and April 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Auditorium, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City. The public is encouraged to attend.

HS presents 'Guys & Dolls'

Boyne City High School's big musical is set to go this weekend, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, April 14, 15, and 16. Drama teacher Bob Wollenberg reminds everyone the show, which is "Guys and Dolls," will start at 7 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. as in previous years.

Only a few seats are still unsold for Saturday, but Thursday and Friday tickets are available. Reserved seats are being offered.

Wollenberg said the story is about 1948 New York gamblers trying to find a place for their game. A romance develops between one of the gamblers and a Salvation Army lass.

Another romantic couple has had a fourteen-year engagement. Will she get him to marry her?

The cast of 50 intersperses songs with the story. Old favorites will be heard: "I Love You a Bushel and a Peck," and "Luck Be a Lady Tonight."

Some of the cast comes from the elementary and middle schools. An orchestra of 15 will provide the essential music.

Jackie Wollenberg planned the costumes and Jeanie McCarty, with the help of some parents, is sewing them.

East Jordan Council Minutes

PROCEEDINGS OF EAST JORDAN CITY COUNCIL

East Jordan City Council met in regular session Tuesday, April 5, 1983 at 7:30 p.m., Mayor Merwin presiding and all members present.

Minutes were approved, authorization was given to pay $69,476.82 in bills as presented and the necessary transfers were made.

Action of Council included waiving fees at the Civic Center as requested by the Inter-Faith Chorus, the Powwow and the Chamber of Commerce.

Council also adopted new rules for the Tourist Park, new rates for Water and Sewer taps, and granted seven requests for use of buildings, parks and streets for the 4th of July Festival.

Reports were heard from the Income Tax Committee, the Elm Pointe Committee, Civic Center Committee, Tourist Park Committee, Finance Committee, and the Police Committee. A report from the Harbor Commission resulted in adoption of resolution requesting a 50/50 grant for design engineering for the Harbor.

A resolution was adopted affirming that no

Committee or Commission has Policy Making authority. They are all reports to Council.

Reports were heard on the various projects in the City.

Meeting adjourned about 8:55 p.m.

A copy of the official minutes of the above meeting are posted at the City Hall for perusal during normal working hours.

EJ Little League sign-up set

East Jordan Little League sign-up will be Thursday, April 14, at 7 p.m. at the high school cafeteria. Parents should remember birth certificates and $5 insurance fee.

A make-up date will be April 20, same time and place.

Bike Safety Program

A bicycle safety program will be held at the East Jordan Civic Center on Saturday April 16 at 10:00 a.m. The program is being sponsored by the East Jordan Police Department in cooperation with the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in order that the youth of East Jordan may have a safer bicycling season.

The VFW, under the supervision of Clifford Greene, will hand out free bicycle reflectors, and the police department will present a bicycle safety movie and talk.

All of the youth of East Jordan are invited to attend the program.
