Mushroom madness!

Final contestants were off and running at the sound of the siren signalling the start of the mushroom hunt on Sunday. The object was to see how many morel mushrooms they could find in the allotted 90 minute period.

On his way to winning his 4th consecutive championship Boyne City's Tony Williams reaches down to find another one to add to his collection.

Williams, Whipple take 4th title

Williams and Whipple sounds a little like an impressive law firm but in reality, they happen to be among the best wild mushroom pickers in the nation. They each finished with a first place in their divisions for the fourth straight year in the national mushroom festival contest that was held here in Boyne City this past weekend.

Tony Williams, a native of the area who has been hunting mushrooms all his life in the Boyne area, took the resident category when he found 90 of the elusive morel mushrooms. Paul Whipple, from Nunica, Michigan found 80 morels to take the non-resident category in the allotted ninety minute picking spree.

While weather for the contest was less than what you could call great, with a steady downpour during the Saturday qualifier, a lot of the hunters walked out of the woods without finding a thing.

110 people signed up for the contest from as far away as California. Minnesota and Ohio pickers were also out in force to try to win the national championship.

From the 110 pickers, the rain and the weather brought the field down to 45 for the Sunday wrap-up. The rules were changed to allow hunters from Saturday into the Sunday event. Winners are chosen from the field that qualifies during the Saturday portion of the festival.

Others taking first places included: Irene Mackie, Walloon Lake with 55 morels for the resident women, and Rebecca Kost of Lancaster, Ohio with 33 morels in the non-resident class. Second places were taken by Jim Habasco, Boyne City, 54 morels, resident men; Gerry Boris, Boyne City, 41 morels, resident women; Bob E. Barber, Kentwood, Mi., 35 morels for non-resident men; Marge Farrand, Ann Arbor, MI., with 27 morels.

Third places were given out to: Kirt Kajawski, Boyne City, who found 47 in the resident men's class; Jackie Carpenter, Boyne City, who had 36 morels for the res'ent women's class;

Steve Barber, Kentwood, Mi with 17 for the non-residents; and Joyce Bixler, Lancaster, Ohio with 22 in the non resident women's class.

Those taking fourth and fifth places were: Resident men: Dana Shaler, Boyne City, and Dave Seeley, Boyne City; Non-resident men: Gary Micolia, Lancaster, Ohio, Homer Beall, Milford, Illinois. Resident women: Judy Hubble, Boyne City, Lyssa Truitt, Boyne City. Non-resident women: Tammy Barber, Kentwood, Mi. and sister Deann Barber also from Kentwood.

While the rains came down on Saturday, the weather Sunday was sunny and mild, giving the hunters ample sun to see the morels growing on the forest floor. In other action over the weekend, the carnival Sunday had good crowds that helped make up for the Friday and Saturday wash-outs.

With the singing indoors, the Bush League barbershoppers had a good show with "The Very Idea" quartet taking the first place in the contest. The show and the afterglow were very well attended according to a member of the Boyne City barbershop group.

Boyne schools set lower debt millage, renewed operational

Boyne City school board set the debt-retirement millage request Monday night at 2.5 mills, down .3 of a mill from last year. The operational millage will be a renewal of last year's 21.3 mills.

Property matters also occupied the board when the sale of the vacant Morgan-Shaw school building was completed with the price of $35,000 reduced to $32,000 if total cash payment is provided within a year of the sale. The buyer is Ray Palicki, of Northville, MI. He plans to convert the building into apartments.

"It's going to help out the whole neighborhood," said superintendent Rich Kelly.

The board also accepted a purchase offer of $46,000 for the students' building trades house, completed last fall.

As in previous years, the board agreed to supply a school bus and the fuel to the summer swim school. The swim school will pay for the driver. Swim school was placed under the Community Education program. First classes will begin July 5.

Softball and baseball fields will be made available again to the city, church, senior, and independent leagues on the same maintenance-sharing basis as in other years.

A new league, a Connie Mack league, may be added if enough 16 to 19 year-old people sign up.

In other action the board approved three new textbooks for purchase: in trigonometry, pre-calculus, and world geography. The last replaces a 15-year-old rebound set.

Negotiations for non-union personnel will begin this month. Teachers and other unionized employees have three-year contracts and will have no negotiations this year.

Principal Ed Snyder reported there would be about 90 children coming to kindergarten next year.

At the other end of the scale, Shelly Martin, community ed. director, said 18 would be graduating from Boyne City adult ed. classes, 10 from East Jordan, and 2 from the county jail. Eight additional people were awarded high school diplomas by passing G.E.D. tests.

Funding still uncertain for EJ Park

The funding for the 40 boat slips, which would make East Jordan's tourist park unique, is still uncertain despite recent hopes that the city could borrow the $75,000 from its Perpetual Care Fund. The proposal was to pay the fund back over a period of about five years along with the going rate of interest.

The Michigan Municipal League, however, gave a consensus opinion that the fund may not be applied to such an extensive loan. The finance committee will review the problem.

The city does have a grant to finance the engineering study for the proposed city harbor. City superintendent Mike Dionne announced a $3000 50-50 grant from the State Waterways Commission. The city's $1500 share will come from funds already budgeted.

The harbor layout will include a dock-promenade, extending along the Water Street embankment at the south end of Memorial Park. From there, right-angling into the river, will be a pier. Between the end of the pier and the end of the present city dock, would be the opening to the harbor thus formed.

The engineering design will be done by United Designing of Cheboygan.

"At the very, very initial stages" of discussion," Dionne said, is the possibility of rebuilding the old hydro-electric dam at Lake Patricia that year ago used to provide the city with its electric power.

The council approved his applying for something like an 80-20 or 90-10 grant of $20,000 to $25,000 toward exploring the possibility of a 55-75 kilowatt hydro-electric plant which would pay back the city in power supply at net profits ultimately of $30,000 or $40,000. Dionne also suggested that other municipalities might want to participate.

Responding to public comment on new fees levied to baseball leagues for seasonal use of the parks, city councilwoman Pat Sweet said that equal treatment to everyone was the only fair way. The city, in turn, would provide Little League with chalk lines, new bases, and other needs, some of which Little League teams have undertaken in the past.

Similarly, Sweet noted that if the anti-liquor ordinance should continue, it should be equally enforced. City attorney Tom Anderson pointed out that one of the problems with modifying the ordinance is the increased insurance involved.

Bids were awarded for re-roofing the Tourist Park Pavilion and for purchase of five "green box" trash collectors for the landfill.

The successful bidders were Sutherland Siding of East Jordan with a low bid of $2,620 and Bay Shore Steel of Charlevoix with a low bid of $2,830.

Agreement announced

Tentative agreement has been reached on a new three (3) year contract between the City of Boyne City and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), Council 25, Local 2759, AFL-

CIO. The amended Collective Bargaining Agreement is retroactive to March 3, 1983 and will continue through March 3, 1986.

The contract covers fifteen (15) [Concluded on Page 8]

Engaged?

The Charlevoix County Press publishes engagement and wedding announcements without charge.

Pictures are welcomed, but we do suggest a few guidelines. Good quality black and white photographs, either of the couple or bride-elect, are preferred. All photographs are kept on file in the Press office and may be picked up at any time following publication; those pictures not picked up after six months will be discarded.

Wedding and engagement announcement forms are available at our office or will be mailed upon request and the receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope.

While we try to publish each announcement the week that we receive it (and in the case of weddings, the first publication date following the ceremony), space constraints sometimes force us to delay the printing of the announcement for one or two weeks. Therefore, we ask that information be received at least two weeks before the intended publication so that we might better plan for its publication.

We will not accept wedding announcements received more than four weeks after the wedding.

Marshall Sayles

We have a wood stove insert in our fireplace. (What's so great about that? Lots of people have them.) Now, don't hang up on me yet, I've got something to say and I want you to hear me out. (We've heard you both in and out many times. If this one isn't highly sensational, we'll stop clipping your stuff out of the paper and pasting it on the living room wall. So there.)

Don't "So there" me before I have even gotten this off the ground. It ain't fair to hang an innocent man before he's found guilty. Now quit cluttering up expensive white space and let me get on with this.

Our wood stove heats the house just fine if it isn't thirty below outside. It's cheaper than gas or oil and provides something to hold your back to when you come in out of the cold.

However, there are drawbacks. I've never seen anything real good that didn't have at least one drawback. (A friend of mine once said that he had a real good wife, but that her drawbacks off set the real good, making their marriage rather average instead of the boom, boom affair he was led to believe it would be when he was arm wrestled into going through with that death binding ceremony.)

Now, about this wood stove that's cheaper than gas or oil. It not only gives off plenty of heat, but it also spreads an even layer of dust throughout the house. We do not have to look outdoors to check the weather. If we can put our finger on the wall and write our name, we know it's spring.

It's a real good thing that summer is stumbling up Marshall Road. No more fussing with that dang wood stove.

However, there is one drawback to the end of the heating season. Spring cleaning! Ceilings, walls, floors and furniture have to be hauled out on the lawn and shook free of dust--two weeks of using your arms, back and legs after not doing a thing with them all winter.

My back objects the most. "Get off that davenport and come to dinner," my wife insisted for the second time.

"I can't," I said. "My back has gone out."

"Your back?" "That cleaning," I said, "My back won't take it."

"What cleaning?" she asked. "Our spring cleaning, the walls, ceilings and stuff."

"Oh, dear" she said. "I'm going to have to tell the men to come and get you again."

"Come and get me?" "Yes, we haven't even started our spring cleaning yet."

Talk about drawbacks. Just thinking about spring cleaning put me on the davenport and threw my back out.

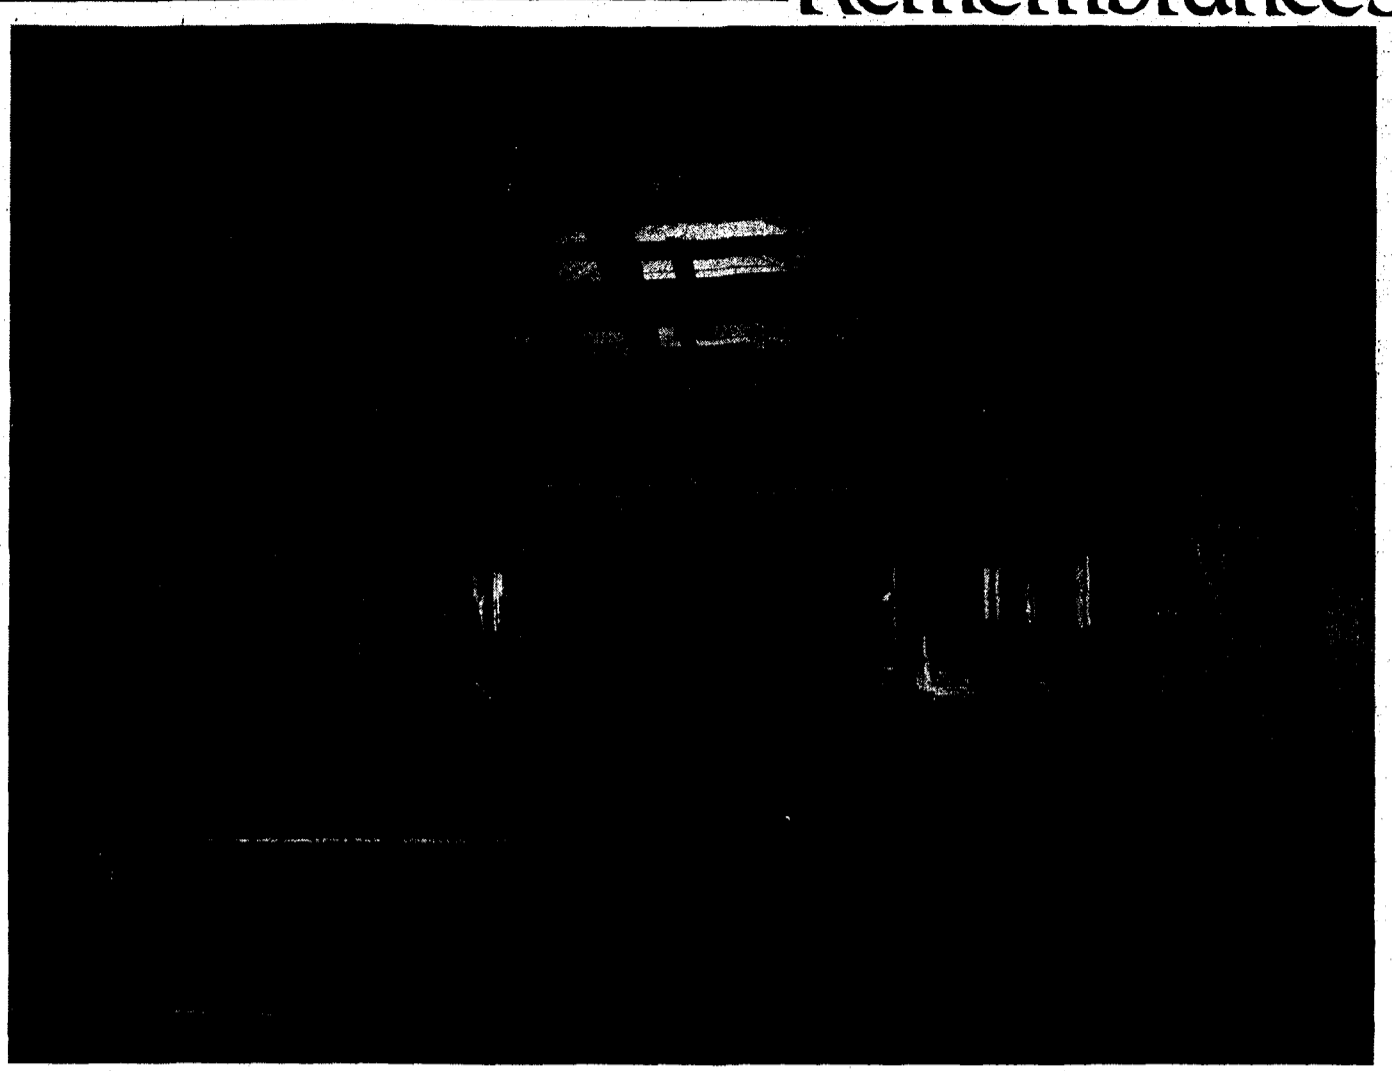

I told her that we were going to throw out the wood stove and go back to using the oil furnace. She said no, oil costs too much. I said yes, because the wood stove was ruining my back. She said no and I said yes, and she said no and I said yes until the dinner burned.

Forty years of marriage and we still have dusty walls and a burned dinner. That was me talking, not meaning a word of it.

You and that wood stove are the most disgusting things ever to come into this house. That was her talking, not meaning a word of it.

Then she said and then I said and then she said and then I said....

(Dear reader: If you wish to hang up on this, I have no objection.)

After the logs were cut into slabs during the logging days of Boyne City, they would be sent down the line to an edger which cut off the sides of the plank into the six, eight, ten, or twelve inch widths. From here they would go to a planer where the rough wood would be planed smooth. The wood would then be taken outside to air dry or sent to a kiln for quicker drying. After drying, the wood from Boyne was sent down the lake to help build the great cities of the nation. This picture shows the edgers that were installed in the White Mill Number Three that was located along the Boyne River about where the airport is today. The edgers were located on the upper floors of the mill according to Ed Hartnell who brought this picture in from his collection.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

I finally found out how to find those morel mushrooms. After two years of trying, I finally found at least one hidden in the leaves someplace along the side of a hill in Chandler Township.

With the finding of that mushroom, I also learned the secret to finding that one and a whole lot more of them too.

All it takes is to walk back into the woods during the National Mushroom Championships and find Tony Williams.

That is the secret.

After you find him, then do like I did, watch how the four-time national champion works an area, running, yes, running, along the hill, looking for those little things. You have to run to gather the mushrooms Tony has in order to win.

But Tony doesn't cover the ground as well as he could if he were not in a hurry. And that is where I found my first patch of morels.

You see, Tony was working this area, and a guy from Sports Illustrated was trying to take pictures of him as he jumped around looking for the morels when I caught up with him.

He moved on after finding a few in the area where we were trying to get his picture. We stayed in the area figuring that if we moved too much farther, we would get lost.

Lo and behold, I found I was almost standing on top of a morel. I would not have noticed it myself, but the guy from the magazine said that there was one right next to my foot. After looking for a couple of seconds, I was indoctrinated in the sport of mushrooming. I found it.

And then I found another, and he found another, and I found one, and so on.

Dave Guzniczak from the little daily up the road was with us and he found a bunch of them, too. And the best thing was that both of the guys didn't want to keep the mushrooms they found, but they put them in my bag for my eating.

It seems that Tony, in his hurry to find enough to win, glossed over the section we were standing in, content to take about twenty and then figuring that there was a better spot somewhere else farther back in the hills. He missed quite a few and we found them.

Boy, were they good when I ate them.

Now, next year, I think I am going to enter the contest, especially now that I know what they look like, how they stand up in the woods, and almost everything.

As I see it, I only have one problem. The darn things have to be growing around my feet as I walk through the woods so I can find 'em.

The door opens and you drop your suitcase to throw your arms around the first one at hand.

Maybe it's a good thing when our grown children live hundreds of miles away, because it's such a wonderful splurge of love when that door opens. Or maybe it's a pity we don't do it each day with those of our children living close by.

Of course, it isn't only for our children that we have this enthusiastic affection. And it isn't only with our children that an island world is built over the years. But children do give us the best chance.

Each family has its own island, its own streets of memory. Families share recollections of awful moments that turn out to be funny when enough time has passed. We remember, maybe without ever speaking of them, the hard times. If we have enough love, those bind us together in the strength they generated. And on these islands live all the jokes and praise and pratfalls we shared over the years.

When we meet now, they pop up here and there, like bubbles when you shake a soda bottle.

"This is just like...." some one says, "when Mom wouldn't let us order French fries..." (And after all these years it pops out what a terrible mistake she made.)

The islands are worlds of shared values. Not identical in degree, for some in the family want to be city people, and others want not to think about cities, ever! But held in common ones—the way we look at fairness, patience, and things like that.

There is such a feeling of comfort when we meet on the island of shared values.

The greatest thing about the island, however, is how it was built, and this makes it nearly unique in the realm of human relationships. The island is built of love, and that's not corn. It's pure struggle.

Children aren't born thoughtful of their parents. It takes a few years of literally and figuratively carrying a child before a parent may get the thrill of a child's spontaneous gesture of thoughtfulness. In any case, it look a lot of loving.

It's not all a burden, of course. Children are such marvelous beings. We see all their promise. Each one is going to be the wonder of the world.

Strange that they grow up to be pretty much like everyone else's children, working hard, being a Brownie Scout leader, putting off the mowing the yard like everyone else.

It takes the eyes of the fond parent, or of the cultural philosopher, to see that, in fact, even grown up, they still are marvelous beings, rising morning after morning to keep hope and courage alive in the world. Making mistakes and going at it again.

Although some of them may give their lives for what they believe in, most of them will live out their convictions to be remembered as good neighbors.

many times that we have lost count. On the morning of May 5 when driving to work I saw that it had happened again and I made plans to get a new post and re-set the mail box on Saturday. That evening when I came home the mail box had been re-set on a good new post. This had never happened to us before.

We want to thank that unknown "Someone" who broke our mail box and then repaired it. It is our sincere hope that no one was injured in the accident and that damage to the car, if any, was minimal.

Area 4-Hers get capitol experience in Lansing

Heath Green and Michael Horton, both of Charlevoix, and Sue Peters, Brenda Caldwell and Maxine Howard, all of Boyne Falls, and Bret Johnson of Boyne City were among 65 Michigan young people to participate in the 1983 4-H Capitol Experience, April 20-23 in Lansing.

The purposes of the activity were to acquaint Michigan 4-H'ers with legislative and governmental processes and to encourage them to get involved in public affairs on local, county, regional, state and national levels, according to Nancy Radtke, 4-H Capitol Experience coordinator.

The youths attended discussions on state government, food production and international interdependence, hosted legislators at a special legislative breakfast, visited the Capitol, sat in on a senate session, talked with agency directors, visited local community agencies to learn more about their projects and operations, interviewed top MSU administrators about their jobs and talked with Capitol news media correspondents about their roles.

After returning to Charlevoix County, the youths will organize a community action program, using knowledge they gained through the 4-H Capitol Experience program.

The program was organized by the MSU Cooperative Extension Service 4-H-Youth Program and the Michigan Partners of the Americas, with partial funding from the development education program of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

ence April 20-23. The experience was co-sponsored by the MSU Cooperative Extension Service 4-H - Youth Program and the Michigan Partners of the Americas, with partial funding from the development education program of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

EJ nets 1st place in Olympics

Olympics of the Mind state competition, held May 7 at Central Michigan University, awarded a first place to an East Jordan High School team. As a result, Bill Lytle, Jamie Karki, Jeff Gee, Greg Kitson, Joe Kornowski, and Greg Kretschmann will take their spring car entry to the world Olympics competition to be held at CMU on May 27.

The spring car entry had to be designed and built by the group although it was permissible to ask for advice. The concept was based on a design for a spring-driven car by Leonardo da Vinci made back in the 1400s.

The high school team also won one of the few Ranatra Fusca awards given out. This was for uniqueness of the team's spirit. The judges commended the team for cooperative attitude and creative humor.

Over 1000 young people entered the Michigan Olympics. East Jordan coordinator Anne Johnston said northern Michigan was well-represented and many of the winning teams were from this area.

The East Jordan team entry called Humor from Homer did promisingly against 30 other teams, but lost out in the finals. Also, awarded sixth out of a field of 36 was the elementary school's Wrecking Ball Balsa Structure, which held 225 pounds.

"We found all 35 of our participants displayed a cooperative spirit,"

Johnston said. "We're really proud."

The students in the various schools work on Olympics of the Mind projects in extra-curricular programs, often partially supported by parent leaders.

In Boyne City, elementary school, students from an after-school enrichment program, taught by Phyllis Hosier, made their first Olympics effort this year.

Hosier said, "I felt they did well. I was very proud." Not the least of her satisfaction was the way the youngsters handled experience, she said. Middle school students also prepared entries. Hosier said nine chaperones generously gave assistance in the trip to the competition.

Suspect identified in EJ vandalism May 6th

A suspect in two incidents of vandalism on May 6 has been identified by the East Jordan police. The damage was a broken window at Northwestern State Bank's branch office on M-66 and trash spread around the trash collectors at Glen's Market on M-66.

The police are continuing their investigation. The paper work is being sent to the prosecuting attorney.

Jeanene Froats, daughter of Janet Froats of Boyne City, received a $200 scholarship from Big Brothers-Big Sisters. Director Jim Marshall stands next to her. Extending the check is Diane Rosendahl, who made the donation as a memorial to her late husband Jack Rosendahl.

Friends of Elm Pointe elect board

Friends of Elm Pointe elected an executive board to spearhead action to preserve Elm Pointe park for city residents. The board members are Ted Jeffrey, Harold Pietz, Larry Spence, Fran Pietz, Peggy Midener, Cal Gots, Dr. David Pray, Thora Kotovich, and Nancy Carey.

Jeffrey and Spence are members also of the Elm Pointe commission.

The board will hold a meeting at Loveday House in East Jordan on Thursday, May 12 at 7:30 p.m.

On May 3 the Coffee Cup Bowling League donated $100 to Elm Pointe.

At the May 3 city council meeting, Elm Pointe commission chairwoman Betty Boswell presented a proposal for a citizen-group called the Friends of Elm Pointe to contract with the city to operate the city's lakeside park for one year, starting May 1983.

Their proposal is to make the park more nearly self-supporting. The members are also concerned that the city's plan to keep the park open only in the three summer months will encourage vandalism.

The new caretaker, Boswell said, who was taking up residence before scheduled in order to catch up on repairs, surprised a man on the grounds at 4 a.m. recently.

City council moved to study the Friends of Elm Pointe proposal. The council also moved to widen the duties of the ad hoc Elm Pointe committee, originally appointed to study the question of selling the park. Added to that now, will be further concerns such as

Evangeline O-E-S holds May meeting

Dolly Buckingham Past Matron Club met May 4 with Ruth Van Hoesen. Fifteen members were present. Dorothy McClure's devotional was, "By Just Being You."

Ruth VanHoesen offered to call members for the June meeting, which is the annual dinner to which husbands are invited.

Ruth won the mystery gift provided by Juanita Erber.

Evangeline Chapter 95, Order of Eastern Star, held their May meeting at the Masonic Temple.

Worthy Matron Evelyn Gould and Worthy Patron Allie Chipman presided.

The altar was draped and memorial read for Rosemary Andrasi, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Michigan.

Dorothy McClure will have charge of the May 20 and 21st rummage sale.

Worthy Matron Evelyn appointed the five star points to make the oak tree of grand chapter. Conservation is ethically sound. It is rooted in our love of the land, our respect for the rights of others, our devotion to the rule of law.

Boyne, East Jordan have industrial art winners in state

East Jordan High School had a top winner at the Michigan Industrial Arts Education Society's state fair, held April 28, 29, and 30 at the Grand Rapids Civic Center.

Willie Castle won in his division with his fireplace set of shovel and tongs, made in metal work class.

Over 2,400 projects were submitted at the fair, metal work instructor Norm Cook said. "There were 11 divisions and four levels of competition."

Cook was also proud of other student winners. Dave Rosensteel (wind chimes) and Gail Byard (aluminum tray) took third. Fourth place awards went to Ben Silva (a safe), Kelly Knoop and Mike Shank (etched trays). Chuck Henry's tray took fifth, Dave Ver-million (ash tray) and Bob Parsons (slide hammer) took seventh, and Rick Ernst (tooled copper picture) took ninth.

"It was good for us to get that many," said Cook.

Galen Robinson, Boyne City High School freshman, won first place in the open division. His cider press was made from plans he brought from home. Next year he plans to build a canoe, now that he "has become familiar with the tools," he said. His shop teacher is Russ Harvey.

Other students whose work advanced to the state finals were Glenn Hardy, Brian Hosmer, Mike Potter, Lester Crandell, Mike Redman, Erroll McCraney, Don Karlskin, John Hartwell, and Gordon Kirby.

Willie Castle holds the first place plaque he won for the fireplace set he made in East Jordan High School metal work class.

Boyne City student Galen Robinson is happy over his first prize cider press. Both students' work won prizes in the State Industrial Arts Fair.

Why do you do it? "So the adults can learn more about their town," was the genial answer of the six students, who prepared an evening on Boyne City's lumbering era. The students are members of Bob Morgridge's local history classes at the Boyne City Middle School. From left, they are David Roberts, Heather Silbar, Amy Schinkath, Tom Smith, Lori Knight, and not pictured, Lesa Carry, project recorder. The presentation was made at the Historical Society's meeting at the public library, May 9. Eventually an enlarged photograph taken back in those days will be added to the library's collection. The guest of honor was Ed Hartnell, long time resident of the city. Hartnell's father was a local railroad man.

Shaler video tapes wedding memories

If you are looking for a new way to remember your wedding, or any other special occasion, then you should give Frank A. Shaler a call for his Video Memories.

Shaler will come to your rehearsal dinner, your wedding rehearsal, the wedding and the reception with his video television camera, recording for all time on a 1/2 inch video cassette that he will provide.

If you don't have a video playback system, Shaler will arrange one for you so that you can look at the occasion when you like.

The video tape is made by using a portable television system, similar to what a television station would use for on-the-spot news. Shaler said he can record up to six hours on one tape. He figures that is enough to see the rehearsal dinner, the wedding rehearsal, the actual wedding, and still have several hours to tape the reception.

He is also using his camera for other events and occasions.

One, was to take a video tape of an area athlete for the coach of the college where the athlete is intending to go.

Actually there are many reasons for using a video camera according to Shaler, as the camera is very portable, makes no noise that would disturb whatever is going on, and can be viewed many times after the fact.

While Shaler admits that he is just starting, he is anticipating many requests to have him work at weddings this summer, recording memories.

Frank A. Shaler aims his video camera at a practice session for an up-coming outdoor wedding. Shaler has started a business of video-taping those special occasions where you want your memories on tape.

Salmon plant started in Jordan River last Wednesday

The mottled, finger-length fish, their backs glowing iridescent green, nosed about the shallows of the Jordan River, coolly ignoring the cameras and intent faces looking down at them on the May 4 planting day.

The chinook salmon had just been dipped from the Department of Natural Resources truck and "planted" in the river. They were the first of 250,000 fingerlings to be planted by the DNR as part of the plan to greatly increase sport fishing in Lake Charlevoix. The salmon are expected to return to spawn in the river when they are mature.

DNR director Howard Tanner released the first fish. His comments revolved around the economic benefits not only of attracting sports fishermen, but also of the commercial harvest of the fish when they return to spawn.

Area groups such as the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Lake Owners Association, and the South Arm Township officials had signed a petition to the DNR this past winter, requesting the chinook salmon program, which has boosters also in Boyne City and Petoskey.

Along with the fish plant, the DNR proposes a barricade in 1984 to keep the mature salmon from going upstream to spawn. The DNR proposal to put in the barricade in conjunction with a lampy barrier depends on a $160,000 federal grant. At a meeting last week of the county planning commission, county planner Larry Sullivan registered a series of objections. Sullivan is out of town, but his objections may be reviewed on May 24 at a meeting of a DNR board for "wild rivers," the category that includes the Jordan.

Restrictions placed by the categorization would affect the plans for a salmon barrier. Sullivan complained that no variances have been granted. His other objections centered around the DNR's not having submitted an environmental impact statement, and the site selection not having been given enough consideration.

He also said South Arm Township opposed the site selection.

A South Arm official denied that the township had made any such commitment, saying rather that the general feeling seems to be one of approval.

Dennis Jason, a member of the county planning commission, said the commission is waiting for the questions to be cleared up, but his own belief is that the program would be "a real boon" to the area.

The approval time table for all boards involved is June 13, Jason said. The planners will meet at least once before that.

The program then goes to the federal funding agency.

Mayor Bill Merwin of East Jordan and a small fry were two of the joyful participants in "planting" fingerling chinook salmon in the Jordan River. The crowd turned out on May 4, the day that signalled the beginning of a hoped-for sport-fishing boom for the area.

Wildflowers, mushroom should be great by weekend

Weather conditions last week remained mostly cloudy and cool with heavy rain all day Saturday changing to snow late Saturday night. By Sunday morning the ground was mostly white in Otsego County. Precipitation last week totaled 4.22 inches, while temperatures ranged from 15-58 degrees.

Many people were in the woods Sunday looking for more mushrooms and finding very few at the present time. Warm weather is needed to bring on good picking. Good picking should get underway by the weekend of May 14.

Trout fishing was generally light most of last week because of poor weather and by Sunday morning streams were over their banks in all areas of the district.

Without additional rain, streams should return to normal by the latter part of this week.

Increased pressure is expected at forestry campgrounds as well as on the inland lakes as the northern pike and walleye season opens on May 15.

Many wild flowers are presently in bloom after a slow start because of cold weather and some of these flowers would be, trailing arbutus, Dutchman's breeches, sorer, squirrel corn, early meadow and many others. The above flowers will hit a peak in 1-2 weeks.

In general people are reminded that county maps and information on the northland are available from the DNR office. Enjoy the northland and have respect for private property.
