South Lake St. construction plans announced

"We want to work with you...We solicit your patience;" these were the themes of George Cranger's presentation to the city of the proposed plans for Lake Street renovation.

Cranger, of Cranger Engineering, Inc., showed the city's plans for the 600 feet of the wall-to-wall project to city commissioners and merchants from Lake Street at the commission's noon meeting.

It will be like the two blocks of renovated Water Street, Cranger said, only it appears that there will be more problems to contend with. For one thing, as Ron Grunch said, some of the sidewalk is three layers deep. And in one case the newest sidewalk is bonded to the building.

It is also expected that there may be considerable water to deal with, as the contractors go deep to bury new and larger water mains below the frost line.

The other category of problems is the time frame. The state funding program from which, the $170,000 loan for the project comes, only completed authorization in late July, and it required all construction contracts to be let by August 31.

"An extremely compressed time frame," is how Cranger described it. "That means that everything we have been doing has been compressed into about half the time." And, he added, there is almost twice as much to do in comparison with previous renovations.

He explained that to stop the job at Ray Street would make the reconstruction program more difficult than to continue it to Main Street.

There will be disruption, Cranger said, even of Main Street. They will try to keep it for short periods. The city has already started clearing the way for detouring back of buildings on Front Street.

Water service will only be disrupted about an hour when the contractor switches from the old line to the new. Service lines will run to every site, Cranger said, even if the land is vacant. Old lines are so bad, he noted, they crumble to the touch.

Probably the business to be most affected by the torn up street will be Marathon Service Station. "We will lose 60 percent," said owner Mel Howard, "but I understand it," he added.

The project funding loan from the state only covers the actual street and sidewalk reconstruction. The state program does not include the work on utilities. These will be paid by the city. Besides the new water mains, there will be upgraded sewer mains to install. All east-west power lines will be buried.

One businessman asked why Water

Street was allowed diagonal parking, but the new Lake Street will have entirely parallel parking.

City clerk Tom Garlock explained that the state will not fund for diagonal parking, and the only way that it happens on Water Street is that the city forgot to include the item in its contract.

Diagonal parking is frowned upon, Cranger said, because of the amount of lane space it takes to back a vehicle out.

The continued application of the pedestrian mode idea was defended by those present. Grunch said the new, extra-wide Sears trucks tested it and found no difficulty.

Sandy Kadrovach said she liked them and didn't want to see the city break up the general design.

Cranger explained to commissioner Bill Grimm, who said he was still not sold, that the node layout offers 30 feet more of turning radius for semi trucks. Observation from Erber's Service Station showed that only the trucks carrying cars have trouble because of axle placement.

Changes in the plans are still possible, Cranger said. He hopes that people with concerns will speak of them.

One of the problems the engineers have had to work with is the difference in elevation between the east and west sides of the street. Worked out, the result will cause only a one inch increase in the height of Lake Street at the center line.

The schedule for the project called for a joint meeting with utility companies for August 16, advertisement for bids on August 20, deadline for submitting bids on August 29 at 4 p.m., a review of facts and figures to date at the commissioners' noon meeting on Aug. 30, special meeting that evening at 7 p.m. to award bids for street construction, and on Tuesday, September 6 work is scheduled to begin. Target date for completion is October 31.

Planners OK alley closures

Following a long standing policy of vacating alleys in the city, the Boyne City Planning Commission approved of two requests for alley closing at Monday afternoon's meeting.

The first request, which has already received approval from the city commission, was the closing of the alley between Earl and Alice Streets. The streets are presently dead ended off of Wisner and the alley runs parallel with Alice and Earl Streets. Both streets are plotted through to Division Street but have never been completed.

John Kujawski made the request to the city commission, where it was approved, pending the approval of the planning commission. He owns property adjacent to the vacated alley.

The other request was made by Trinity Pentecostal Church of God, to close part of the alley that runs east and west, between Jefferson and Hannah Streets.

The church owns the property on both sides of the alley and have said that they would like to landscape the lots and put a parsonage on the property, as well as a playground for the children of the church members. According to the church they are concerned with the possibility of having a child injured from a car going through the alley.

The request was recommended to the city commission for consideration and a public hearing was set for the closure.

In other action, the planners named Mick Kane to the planning commission to fill the vacancy on the commission caused by Don Toffolo's resignation.

The planners also heard a request from Bob Hermann, who is thinking about renting the present Sears building after Sears moves to their new location across the street.

Hermann asked the planners if they would have any objection to putting a garage door on the south side of the building where he could bring cars into the garage for his tire business.

The door would eliminate two parking spaces in the city owned parking lot if approved.

Hermann asked that the door plan be accepted because of the turning radius of the present door on the north side that faces the alley. He also mentioned that the alley was blocked frequently by trucks delivering goods to the stores and would make it inconvenient for the customers of the tire store.

The planners recommended the door plan be accepted and referred the matter to the city commission for the final acceptance as it requires the commission's approval to eliminate the parking spaces.

Boyne City to hold Madness sale

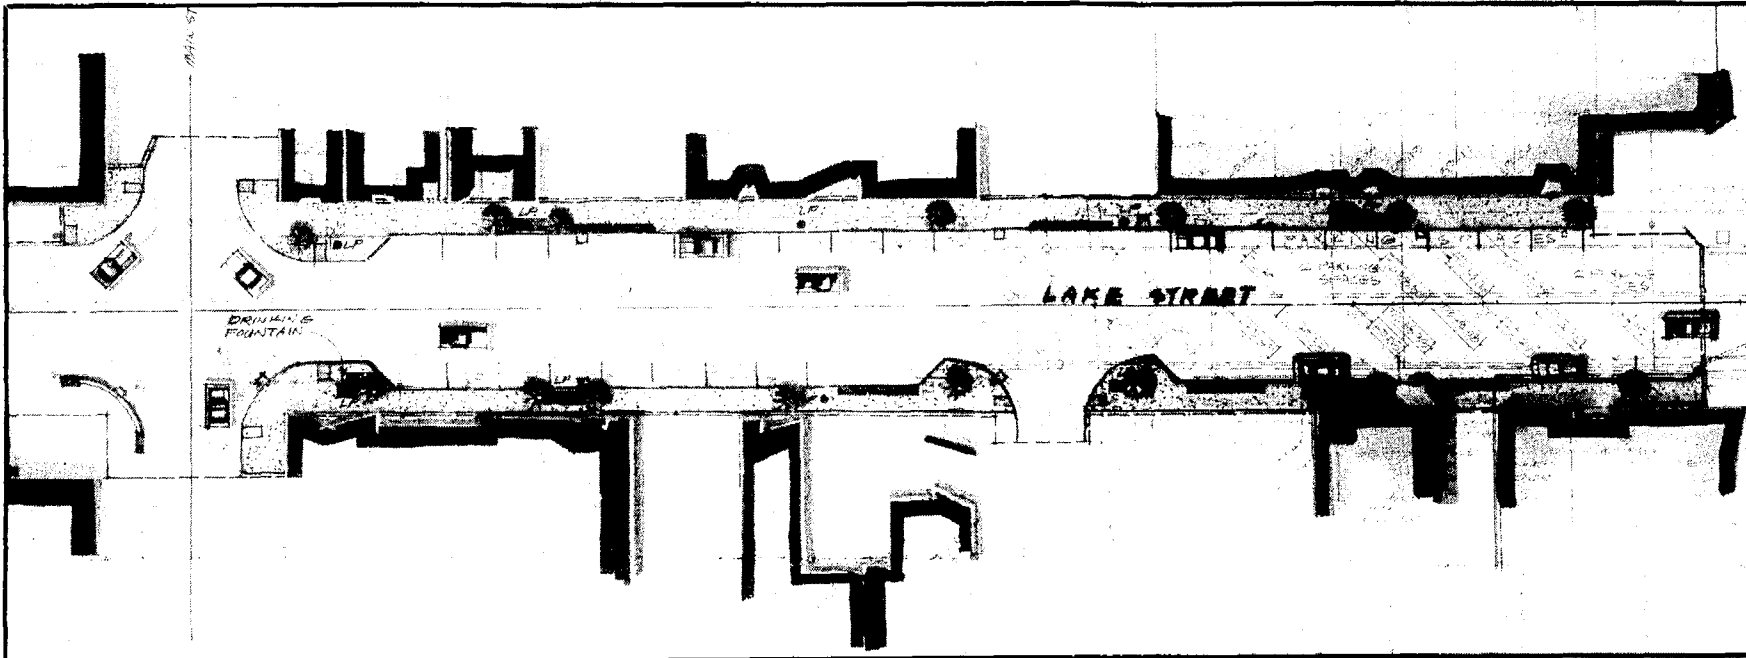

Moonlight Madness, that time of the year that our merchants go crazy with bargains, will be happening this Thursday night between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Among the things being offered to attract crowds to the stores in the downtown area are free cotton candy, courtesy of some merchants and the Lions Club.

Kids will get a chance to show off their pets in a pet show and contest that will be held in front of the Dairy Queen at 7:30 p.m. There are prizes for all participants, according to the Chamber of Commerce bulletin.

Also playing fine banjo and fiddle will be Tom and Friend. They will be entertaining the crowds between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

But the thing that will be the real draw will be the bargains the stores are putting on sale.

Looking at South Lake Street plans show how the street will look when work is finished. The street improvement program will be started Tuesday—September 6, with the expected completion date of October 31. The street will be funded by a loan from the State of Michigan and will be paid back to the state from future capital improvement funds.

Boyne City annexes township land

Nearly 85 acres of undeveloped city-owned land in Evangeline Township was annexed by Boyne City commissioners last week, further clearing the way for the city's proposed air-industrial park.

However, commissioners postponed action on annexing an adjacent 3.6-acre lot owned by the Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Co. after receiving objections from the firm and township officials.

Both parcels are located on the north side of the M-75 route between Boyne City and Boyne Falls. Commissioners initially thought the land was within the city limits, but closer scrutiny showed that both parcels were located in the township.

The city commission can legally annex the 85 acres without any other government approvals because the land is city-owned, undeveloped and uninhabited, city attorney Bill McTaggart said.

However, the annexation of Top O'Mich. parcel would have to be approved by both the city and the township since it is not city property, McTaggart said. He added that Top O'Mich. has no authority to deny annexation of its land.

City officials commented that the approved annexation will increase the city's chances of receiving grant funds to develop an industrial park. Part of the 85 acres is taken up by the city airport.

Property tax income generated from industries that locate on the annexed land will now be funneled to the city treasury.

While the Evangeline Township Board opposes city annexation of the Top O'Mich. parcel, the board approves of the proposed industrial park in the adjacent acreage.

With Top O'Mich. currently paying $68 in property taxes to the township for the land, the board does not want to lose the local revenue. Annexation of the land would raise an additional $868 for the city.

Tom Hanna, general manager Top O'Mich., said the annexation would work against the best interests of all involved parties. Along with noting the objections of Top O'Mich. and the township, Hanna said the parcel is not a necessary part of the city's industrial park development plans.

The approved annexation created an eight-foot wide island out of the 3.6-acre Top O'Mich. parcel. The strip remains within Evangeline Township jurisdiction, although it is completely surrounded by the city and Wilson Township.

BF finds cost of funds less this year

The Boyne Falls school district will pay about $2,100 less in interest on funds borrowed in anticipation of tax revenues than its officials first projected for the 1983-84 school year.

At Monday night's board meeting, Superintendent Carl Moser said the overestimation was a "pleasant surprise," as current interest rates proved to be lower than budget projections.

When the school board approved the present school year's budget last June, $13,600 was allocated for interest on the tax anticipation loan. With the board accepting the lowest interest bid of 6.65 percent on Monday, calculations showed that $11,482.80 will be paid in interest for the 1983-84 year.

"I was very pleased at the number of bids (five) that came in," Moser said. "Of course, when you make your budget in June, you never know."

The lowest bid came from First National Bank and Trust, which will finance a loan to the district of $296,000. The bank was the district's lender in the 1982-83 year, loaning $299,000 at 9.125 percent.

Competing bidders included Okeana State Bank (7.14 percent), Northwestern State Bank (7.9), State Bank and Trust (6.85), and Harbor Springs State Bank (6.79).

School districts are required by state law to accept the lowest bid offered by a state bank.

The district cannot automatically spend the additional $2,100, as the funds must be used to help operate the district until it receives property tax revenues in early 1984. Afterwards, the board can amend the school budget if a surplus is still apparent.

The board also moved on Monday to join the Mason Lake Food Co-Op for the present school year. For a $250 annual fee, the district joins the school systems of Boyne City, East Jordan and Central Lake in receiving food at bulk-rate prices.

Moser says the membership fee will pay for itself through the savings in food prices the district will realize through the co-op.

For instance, the district will save 11 cents a loaf by purchasing bread from Interstate Brands Corp. through the co-op.

In selecting its milk supplier for the school year, the board went with Detroit Pure Milk Co. (Farm Maid Dairy). The milk prices offered by the downstate dairy are less than those offered by the co-op, Moser said.

The board also chose Woodland Oil of Traverse City as its weekly supplier of gasoline for the school year. The price offered by Woodland, subject to market fluctuations, was 98.9 cents a gallon—the lowest of three bids.

For the first time in two years, the board raised hot lunch prices at the school. All prices were increased five cents and set as follows: students K-6, 70 cents; students grades 7-12, 75 cents; and adults, $1.30.

In other actions Monday, the board:

Sportsman's Park is receiving consideration by East Jordan city council for possible development to attract both residents and visitors. The idea is one of several seen as a means for broadening the tax base.

The focus on recreation has involved two other parks, as well: Elm Pointe and the Tourist Park.

According to city manager Mike Dionne, Sportsman's Park, with its pleasant setting and flocks of waterfowl, has "a lot of potential."

Once owned by the Sportsman's Club, the park was turned over to the city, because paying the taxes put too much pressure on the club. The club members then leased it back for the city for 25 years. The lease will be up in about two years.

Club secretary Ken Lemon said that at their August 25 meeting, members will discuss relinquishing their lease to the city. Such things as developing the park and renovating the restrooms so children won't be running across busy Route 32 to the launch site restrooms are beyond the scope of the club.

Lemon said, "We can't get grants as the city can." He went on to say, "Years ago it used to be a real park. There used to be animals—Elmer Green took on the job of caring for them—did a good job at it."

Then the lake was silted up and that caused flooding at the park, and the quality of the park began to slide downhill.

The club is now concentrating, Lemon says, on its rifle range, located outside city limits. They have renovated the landmark log cabin, once in the tourist park, to use for meetings at the rifle range.

Dionne described a few of the ideas for developing Sportsman's Park. Playground equipment has been offered the city by one resident. More equipment the city has could be renovated and installed. More picnic tables could be added, and a raised boardwalk built along the river for a nature walk.

Also, he said, when the lake is dredged in making the harbor, the sand could be used to raise the ground level at the park.

It's a popular spot already, Dionne said, and it could be even more popular, as it was years ago.

The East Jordan Garden Club held their annual Flower Show on Aug. 15 at the East Jordan Civic Center.

The theme for this year's show was "Flowers Under the Big Top," and there were many beautiful and unusual arrangements displayed.

The "Best of Show" for arrangements went to Norma Thorsen for her animal act entry, while the "Best of Show" in the horticulture category was awarded to Bernadine Greig for her acorn squash entry. There was a "Sweepstakes Award" based on accumulated points given for class entry awards at this year's show. This award was given to Bernadine Greig.

Other awards for specific classification were as follows:

Class 1. Animal Act (arrangements featuring animal accessory). The blue ribbon went to Norma Thorsen, the red ribbon to Evelyn Gidley and the yellow to Bernadine Greig.

Class 2. Ringmaster (line arrangements). The blue ribbon went to Norma Thorsen, the red to Cyg Riley and the yellow to Polly Sinclair.

Class 3. Center Ring (novice arrangements—designer's choice), with the blue ribbon awarded to Marjorie Smith; the red to Marian Sherman; and the yellow to Esther Porter.

Class 5. The Midgets (miniature arrangements). The blue ribbon was given to Evelyn Gidley; red to Marjorie Smith; and the yellow to Bernadine Greig.

Class 6. Side Show (dried arrangements), with Cyg Riley the blue ribbon winner; Margerite Stokes the red; and the yellow going to Evelyn Gidley.

Class 7. Flying Trapeze (swan arrangements). First place winner was Bernadine Greig; second to Peggy Midener; and third to Emily Coward.

Class 9. Highwire Act (hanging baskets), awarded two blue ribbons, one to Betty Yenni and the other to Evelyn Gidley, while the red ribbon went to Polly Sinclair.

Class 10. The Midway (house plants; awarded four blue ribbons. One was to Zola Kemp for her African Violet, one to Evelyn Gidley for her orchid, one to Janice Birkelbow for her geranium and the last to Gladys Sattler for the foliage plant.

Class 11. The Thin Man (cut flowers) awarded blue ribbons to Bernadine Greig, Norma Thorsen, Mary Malpass and Bernadine Greig.

LODGES
Jasmine Rebekah Lodge #365 was called to order at 1:30 by vice grand Vi Daley. The noble grand was absent. The secretary read the reports and the minutes. She reported that Mrs. Chanda was in Little Traverse Hospital.

The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the Masonic Hall.

Julie Rude is at the home of her daughter Elaine Dvoracek at Ironton. Angelina Bowman and Alberta Vogel are in charge of ways and means for August and September. They had an elephant walk at the last meeting. Next meeting on Aug. 17 they will have a raffle.

The September 7 meeting of Jasmine Rebekah Lodge #365 will meet at 1:30 p.m. There will also be a white elephant auction. Lunch was served by Effie Weldy and Margaret Archer.

Jordan Valley V.F.W. Post 7580 and the Ladies Auxiliary will have their monthly meeting on Aug. 23 at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall.

It is vitally important that as many members attend as possible to discuss and pass post by-laws.

Also remember, our monthly meetings are every fourth Tuesday of the month.

Engaged? Married?

The Charlevoix County Press publishes engagement and wedding announcements without charge.

Pictures are welcomed, but we do suggest a few guidelines. Good quality black and white photographs, either of the couple or bride-elect, are preferred. All photographs are kept on file in the Press office and may be picked up at any time following publication; those pictures not picked up after six months will be discarded.

Wedding and engagement announcement forms are available at our office or will be mailed upon request and the receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope.

While we try to publish each announcement the week that we receive it (and in the case of weddings, the first publication date following the ceremony), space constraints sometimes force us to delay the printing of the announcement for one or two weeks. Therefore, we ask that information be received at least two weeks before the intended publication so that we might better plan for its publication.

We will not accept wedding announcements received more than four weeks after the wedding.

Cooking

BAKED LIMA BEANS
Summertime; and it is time for family gatherings and visits with my many friends when some wonderful recipes for some very special meals are exchanged.

Wealtha Hedgecock from Caberfae at Cadillac gave me this one which is just the dish for a large gathering of family and friends. If cooking for a smaller group divide it into two casseroles and freeze one for a later time or just prepare one-half this recipe.

BAKED LIMA BEANS
2 lbs. large dry lima beans
Cover with cold water and soak overnight.
Cook with 2 teaspoons salt ½ hour. Do not let them get mushy.
Mix together:
½ cup packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons (rounded) dry mustard
1 pint sour cream
4 tablespoons molasses (optional) if sugar is very light.
Mix with the drained beans and bake in 350 degree oven for one hour.

Some other suggestions about beans from my friends are: Everyone likes to make baked beans from the canned ones, just adding whatever is liked best, like molasses, tomato catsup, chopped onion and maybe some bacon or brown sugar. It's all good. Then, of course, they are delicious with weiners. Michigan hot dogs are excellent. My friends who spend the winter in Florida have some sent to them, and Robin Oatman of Tucson, Arizona has her son send her Michigan hot dogs every year.

her Michigan hot dogs every year. Just a little hint from Nony Irey of Pawcatuck, Conn. She says that her family has always made their Boston baked beans with red beans.

My friend, Wealtha, also gave me this recipe for pickles that will deliciously compliment the lima bean casserole. Just give them a day or two in the refrigerator. These you do not eat. They will be eaten up right away, though it is no problem to keep them some time in the refrigerator, covered, of course.

FRESH CUCUMBER PICKLES
Mix together:
1 cup sugar
1 cup vinegar
1 cup vinegar
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 tablespoon salt
Bring this mixture to a boil until the sugar is dissolved, then cool.
Slice enough cucumbers and onions to just be covered with the vinegar mixture and store in refrigerator. Use your own choice for the amount of onions.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Boy, some people make me envious.

After looking at all those old cars parked at the old car show and flea market last Saturday and Sunday, I decided that I would like to own at least two...maybe three or four...aw heck, I want them all.

There were cars that would appeal to anyone. Cars from the teens all the way up to cars that the teens could relate to in their dreams.

But give me an old Model T any day.

As to the flea market part of the weekend, I have decided that folding sunglasses are the top item of the summer. The reason I think so is that I saw too many flea market merchants selling them. Not everyone was, but a few too many. I can imagine a price war among the merchants to see who was going to be the lowest.

"Why, I can get these same glasses next door cheaper than yours," I could imagine someone saying. "So if you lower your price I will be back in a minute with the money."

And then they went next door and said the same thing to that merchant and so on around the park until the merchants were giving the glasses away just to get rid of the guy.

Another thing that I am almost always amazed at is the number of pieces of glass that those merchants carry and display. I think I would go nuts unpacking them at the beginning of the show, and then packing them back up if they don't sell during the show. If they are merchants who go to many shows during the summer, just think of how many times they have to do it...pack and unpack all that glass stuff.

Each year the show seems to get larger, someone told me that if they could find room for 250 flea marketeers, they could have them. I think the show is large enough, but I also think that if they want to grow, then they could. All I can say about it is that it takes me a whole day to look at everything.

Of course, there are things that I would want to go back and look at again, and maybe even buy.

But, with my luck, they are usually sold before I get back to the booth that has just the thing I wanted.

In talking with a camp counselor the other day, he said that he found a few leaves that are turning color already. I told him he was just looking forward to the day when the camp sends the last camper home and he can go on with his life.

I guess he was getting a little tired of summer and all the activities that are planned around the summer.

We who live here almost have the same type of thoughts. There are those who look forward to Labor Day weekend because they will be able to use some of the facilities that the tourists have overcrowded all summer.

The parks seem to empty out and we still have a lot of good summer-like days left for the locals to take advantage of. I almost wish that I could, but in this business, when school starts, so does football and basketball and all the other activities that keep the kids busy, and the news media trying to follow them.

Remembrances

SUN AUG. 18, 07

It used to be fun sitting around on a sunny day and listening to the band play from the city gazebo that was located in the Old City Park. At least that is what some oldtimers say when they think back to when the bands played for the afternoon's enjoyment.

This picture was from a postcard that was made sometime in the early teens of this century. If you have any old pictures of the Boyne City-Boyer Falls-East Jordan area, bring them in to us so that we may copy them to share with the readers.

This column was written at 5:30 in the morning. That's because I under slept.

He: Did you buy anything at the city park Saturday?

Me: I was flea-bitten three times before I remembered we didn't need another thing to put on the shelf and look at.

He: Did you check out the old cars?

Me: I'll say I did. Those were all the rage when I was a kid.

He: Hal There weren't any cars when you were a kid.

Me: Oh, yes there were. And people took pride in their work in those days. When they made a car, they made a car, not four wheels and a plastic box.

He: Look, bub, when you were a kid the only people who took pride in their work were grave diggers and hangmen.

Me: You are just as old as I am, but I've noticed lately that you have been over doing it.

He: Not to change the subject, but did you check out the new Country Star on the Boyne Falls road?

Me: The minute the doors were open I went out there for a cup of coffee; and I paid for it with my own money, too.

He: I hate paying for stuff with my own money.

Me: What else can a body do?

He: I don't know. It's getting so you can't go on welfare unless you're broke. It's terrible. I went down to get some of that government cheese and they wouldn't give me any because I had shaved and was wearing a necktie.

Me: What do you mean "government" cheese? That cheese was bought with our tax money by people we support with our tax money. We paid for that cheese. The people in Washington like to think it belongs to them and that they can give it to just certain Toms, Dicks and Harrys. It makes me made when I pay for my own cheese but can't have it. Oh, how I wish I could have my own cheese.

He: We were talking about the flea market down in the city park, remember?

Me: Oh, I forgot.

He: What did you buy down there?

Me: I looked for a bell for years and I finally found one. It only cost ninety-five dollars. I brought it home and attached it to our back deck. I'm going to use it to call my wife in from hoeing the garden or chopping wood, whenever I need her.

He: You mean you actually paid nine-tive bucks for an old bell?

Me: Yah, I don't mind paying for stuff like that when I really need it.

He: How about paying for cheese when you really want some?

Me: I've already written my Congressman about that.

Michigan has the second highest number of hunters—880,000 to Pennsylvania's 1,053,000. That means, according to the DNR, a billion dollars for the Michigan economy.

But Michigan also has 5,785,200 people who are nature watchers. What is being done to convert their interests into economical benefits?

Have you ever seen a store for nature lovers?

By doing a little arithmetic, it becomes clear that there should be six times as many nature lovers' shops as there are gun shops. And I've never seen even one.

The trouble with nature lovers is that they aren't aggressive enough, and they don't wear day-glo orange. People don't realize they are around. Half the time they don't even know each other is around.

So what would nature watchers spend money on? One way to answer that would be look through a few catalogs, which, incidentally, don't seem to originate from Michigan merchants.

L.L. Bean, up there in Maine, for years has been selling camp equipment, and nature watcher clothes. And Bean is only the beginning.

But here in Charlevoix County, the nature watcher has to review the contents of stores that cater to snow-mobilers, carpenters, hunters, fishermen, comic book readers, and photographers. The nature watcher is losing a lot of time in this kind of shopping. And Michigan is thereby losing another billion to six billion dollars. Time is money, even if some nature watchers are retired, the merchants aren't, and they aren't collecting much from the nature watcher's shopping time.

A nature watcher store could start small, selling bird feeders, bird houses, bird books, and, of course, binoculars. Branching out with tree-watching equipment is a natural. Folding camp seats, mosquito repellent, tree books.

And you just take note. Anyone who has moved into watching one thing, can be enticed into watching something else. There's no end. That's the beauty of nature. No end to it. Wild flowers...butterflies...insects...

Insects! There are millions of those. Think of the insect traps, books, ant farms, microscopes, canoes, kayaks, hammocks, tents, camp lights and stoves...

Most fun would be to have some cracker barrels in the nature shop to encourage the folks to sit around and listen to the fabulous stories of the butterflies, birds, leaves, and fish that got away.

That's it. That's the thing. Nature watchers are satisfied with the memories.

Bay Twp. okays new zoning ordinance

Bay Township administrators finished up 18 months of the township's planning commission work last Thursday night, when after a short discussion, the township board approved a revised 43 page zoning ordinance by a vote of four ayes and one nay.

The new ordinance took effect immediately and copies of the northern schools. She's familiar with all their problems. We think that's important."

--Heard a building committee report from board member Ron Barnadyn, which stressed the need for greater insulation of the school. Moser commented that if energy conservation steps are not taken by the district, the school's energy costs will double to $30,000 over the next five years.

--Heard an administrative report from school principal Joel Donaldson. He said teachers will report to work on August 31, with classes starting on September 6. (The vocational educational center at Petoskey High School will not start classes until September 8.)

Donaldson also said he expects the school's enrollment to rise a few students over last year's, which finished at 293 students.

--Heard an administrative report from Moser, who said the school and all of its belongings are being appraised for the first time since 1975. Moser said the district needs to keep an accurate record of all school contents in case they are destroyed. (The former Boyne Falls school burned to the ground in 1946.)

"To me, that's responsible management," he said of the appraisal.

The cost of developing the park would be covered by the sale of Elm Pointe, according to the projections of the city council. Sportsman's Park is one of the items the city has in its list of needed improvements that could be funded if Elm Pointe were sold.

On the other hand, the Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as opposing the sale. It "does not believe it is a good idea to sell off lake land at this time," reported Chamber executive-director Judy Shea. "It is not economically sound to sell off any lake land," she said, explaining further that the Chamber was not so opposed to its sale if the site were to continue nonetheless as a public park.

The vote of residents in November will decide whether or not the park may be sold.

Meantime a third park is having noteworthy success. Dionne said fees from the Tourist Park, which has a new harbor this year, will exceed those collected last year.

He said he's heard a lot of compliments made by tourists on the harbor and on the caretaking of the park. He noted he had listed the park in a number of tourist brochures.

In the past three years, the park has undergone a series of improvements, financed by state grants with the city providing labor.

ordinance are being printed for those who wish to purchase them.

While the new ordinance replaces the previous 1974 ordinance, this ordinance features many new sections in the zoning codes, including for the first time, a Planned Unit Development code. Other changes included the changing of some zoning to bring it in line with the current uses. Lot sizes and building heights are also changed in the new ordinance.

In some discussion after the vote was taken, one member of the board wondered if the ordinance should be put to a vote of the people and suggested that a petition may be presented to the board to bring the matter in front of the people.

The enforcement of the new ordinance will start in 30 days from last Thursday's board meeting.

Because of the new zoning ordinance, members of the appeals board had to be appointed. Those picked to serve on that board include Bill Ohle, Bert Hawkins, David Stolt, Bob Sorenson and Paul Chamberlain.

Two vacancies on the planning commission were also filled at the board meeting. Appointed to serve on the planning commission were Irv Sturm and Russ Abel.

In other action, the board approved sharing in the cost of a fence between the public access on Lake Street with the Horton Shores Association. The board voted to pay $100 towards the construction of the fence to protect the access site from the private property owners of the association.

They also okayed the clearing of a right-of-way access on Franklin Street on Walloon Lake of the downed tree branches so that the public can reach the site.

Larry McNitt, the president of the Country Star Food Market and Restaurant chain, congratulates the first customer through the doors of the new restaurant. Harold Howard was the man who came through the door first, saying that he had orders to be the first one from all of his friends. He waited patiently for the doors to open at 11:30 a.m. last Friday. The new restaurant has been busy showing off its splendor to the many customers.

While the restaurant is completed, the workers started hanging the steel for the grocery store last week. It only took a couple of days for the steel to get erected for the new store on M-75 south. Expected occupancy will be sometime in late September or by the middle of October if the construction goes as scheduled, according to Ron Reiffitt of the Peninsula Construction Company doing the work.

George Wuerth has 100th birthday

George Wuerth is 100 years old this month and still laughs.

He laughed at the old question: "What do you do to live 100 years?" He really didn't know. Maybe it was because he never smoked or drank. Maybe the hard outdoor life of most of his earlier years.

But looking at the calm, vigorous face, one might also believe it was a deep-set sense of calm that carried him across the decades.

Wuerth has lived in Boyne City all his life—which takes Boyne City back to the point when it wasn't very settled. In fact, it goes back to when what was North Boyne was called Bay Springs.

"There was empty land between Bay Springs and Boyne City in those days," said Wuerth, adding that it was predicted that the two would grow together and make one city.

But big things went on during those small beginnings. Wuerth spoke of the iron mill to which boats brought the ore from Minnesota. Charcoal was made from the tops of lumbered-off trees. Then, Wuerth said, they blew gas across the burning charcoal to make a very hot fire and melt out the iron.

"It was nice to look at, at night," Wuerth said. When they pulled out the dirt, plugging the opening, the iron would "run out like water, all bright red, into troughs about this big," and Wuerth held his hands about 28 inches apart.

He worked at the Tannery for 48 years. Then, he said, he quit and went to work for the diesel plant, hauling wood.

In the winter a team of horses hauled a tank of water over the snowy roads. A sprinkler turned the snow to ice. The sleds carried logs to the sawmill.

Winter was Wuerth's theme in reminiscing, probably because, as he said, winters were worse in those days.

"I made my own ice skates," he said, his eyes brightening at the recollection—two strips of iron set on edge in a wood frame and strapped to his boots, is how he did it. And barrel staves for skiing. And lots of sleighing.

They spear-fished from an ice shanty, using a 15-inch painted wood fish for a lure. "It had tin fins," said Wuerth. "And you bent the tail, so when you pulled the line, the fish went around and around in a circle." The fish was weighted with lead, and would do its circling about 15 feet down.

Winter was tough though, when you had to fetch the water nearly half a mile away from the creek. He pronounced it "crick" in the good, traditional way.

It was tough when the wind would blow from the northwest three unrelenting days. But it made clear ice on the lake, two feet thick, before the snows got into it. The ice was cut and stored at the ice-house, then hauled around town in the summer, and shoved into folks' iceboxes.

Today's world isn't any better, Wuerth said. "It's getting worse!" The world of Boyne City was one of people helping each other and getting together for dances at which all ages participated.

It's a long perspective for George Wuerth whose 100th birthday came this month. He says the old days still look good.

Asked if in his childhood family of 10 children, boys and girls had separate roles, he said vigorously, "No! Boys and girls worked together." But girls wore long skirts and stockings to their knees, held up with garters.

"Women certainly do dress differently now," he said with a severe expression coming into his usually peaceful eyes.

Wuerth has outlived one of his five sons. Weller died a few years ago. His other sons are George, Jr., with whom he stays, and John,

Norman, and Clyde.

Wuerth married Marie Guine of Cheboygan. She was of French descent. His father was German. His mother, he said, came from Pennsylvania.

Wuerth, like his Boyne City is many strands, enduringly woven into one.

EJ holds line on lunch prices

The good news about school is the hot lunch prices will not go up in East Jordan, for a change. Bread and milk each will be costing the school about a cent less.

Gas will cost the school 3 cents a gallon less. That's another one.

Classrooms for grades K through three will be carpeted for quiet and ease of upkeep. The carpet will come from Jordan Carpet, which made the lowest bid.

In borrowing for before tax revenues are available, the school has to ask for only $700,000, which is $200,000 less than last year's loan. Bank bids have not come in yet.

And the roofing job will be under way.

"We are on target financially," said superintendent Tom Rossler, adding that even if there were one of those executive order cuts from the state, the school was in "financial readiness."

Some of the new things for the fall semester are: (1) The shiny red folder for elementary school children to share with their parents. It contains important information for reference.

(2) Dennis Snarey will be athletics director.

(3) Elementary school will receive six more Apple computers, bringing their total to nine, and the high school will add three more to the six they already have.

(4) Matching funds are available in the school for Unlimited Potential's grant application. The UP group of parents and teachers is planning a sequence of writing and story-telling events for the coming year.

(5) Ann Johnston has been appointed to assist adult education director Shelly Martin. Johnston is taking on the enrichment program. Adult ed begins September 12.

County gets food grant

Charlevoix County has received an "Emergency Food and Shelter" grant of $14,973, all going for food.

It was applied for by Doug McComb of Social Services Department for Charlevoix County, and administered by a board consisting of Don Smith—county commissioner—chairman, Irene Brannon—director of Community Service Center of Seventh Day Adventists—treasurer, Shirley Bauer—chairwoman—County Red Cross, Pat Donnelly—President of United Way of Charlevoix County, Sheri Rhoads—extension home economist.

Doug McComb—Social Services, and Bill Knapp—Northwest Michigan Human Services coordinator.

This food will be distributed to approximately 1100 families in Charlevoix County in coordination with the surplus cheese distribution on September 21.

Bike-a-thon in Boyne Falls

The Central Regional announced today that Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Ms. Thure Erickson has agreed to chair the St.

Jude Children's research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Boyne Falls.

The Bike-a-Thon program is dedicated to "Terry". Terry was diagnosed with leukemia in March of 1978, and began treatment at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Today, she is well and off all medication.

The funds raised in the Bike-a-Thons this fall will help assure the continuation of the life giving work at the hospital.

The concern which Ms. Erickson has for the work being done at St. Jude is greatly appreciated.

The Boyne Valley Garden Club held their annual flower show on Aug. 3, with 150 people attending.
The theme chosen by general commander Winifred Shields and her committee was: We celebrate the seasons which lent itself to divisions for spring, summer, fall, and winter with special booths designated for these.

There were special flower arrangements for a daughter's wedding, flowers suitable for a luncheon and tray breakfasts on the patio.
Displayed on a bunting-covered table were red, white and blue flowers in shell containers. These were appropriate for Fourth of July entertaining.
Baskets of wild or garden flowers in unusual askets were shown on rough crates and had been planned for summer picnics.

The fall and winter displays were equally interesting.
A patio was built for the horticulture division with its many entries of flowering and foliage plants.
All standard flower shows must allow space for an educational division. Native evergreens of Michigan were selected for the study.

Much credit is due the staging committee for planning attractive backgrounds.
A flower show involves hard work but members are in agreement that it is a rewarding experience.

Fred and Erna Eichler of East Jordan are hosting 14 high school cross country runners from downstate Hardland this week. Both the boys' and girls' teams are coached by Eichler's son, Larry (at far right), formerly of East Jordan. The coach hopes that each of his runners will amass 100 miles during their five-day stay, in which they have three daily workouts. Eichler's girls' team finished second in the state last year in Class B competition. Some of the runners are sleeping in tents during their East Jordan visit.

French exchange student enjoying Boyne

A 14-year-old mademoiselle is spending her first American visit in Boyne City and is apparently loving every minute of it.

Nathalie Legendre, a native of Epinay Sur Orge, France, is staying with the M. Richard Leitz family at their home on Springwater Beach. She arrived four weeks ago after boarding an airplane for the first time.

Last year, Nathalie met Nicole Leitz when Nicole stayed at Nathalie's French home as a student through a foreign exchange program. The two girls, who are the same age, have kept in touch ever since.

Rather than traveling to the United States through an exchange program, Nathalie decided this year to visit the Leitzes on her own. Since arriving in Michigan, she has traveled to Mackinac Island, Tahquamenon Falls, Sault Ste. Marie, and other locations.

Lake Charlevoix is the first lake Nathalie has swam in. While living at her suburban Paris home, she has to take a train just to get to the nearest swimming pool.

Nathalie tried both waterskiing and board-sailing for the first time on Lake Charlevoix, but she found both sports too difficult. Instead, she enjoys being towed on an inner tube.

The Leitzes also plan to take Nathalie horse-back riding and fishing before she leaves for France next week.

Fortunately for her, there has been plenty of sunshine in Boyne City in recent weeks.

"When I see the rain, it reminds me of Paris," she says with a good grasp of English.

Nathalie has found her favorite food while in Michigan to be "peaches and watermelon." Unlike many of her countrymen, she says she does not drink wine because the taste of alcohol bothers her.

Nathalie plans on entering the tourism profession as a translator upon finishing her education in France. She can also speak German and Spanish.

Nicole and Nathalie plan on keeping in touch after they part soon, and Nathalie hopes to return again next year.

C-21 finishes 2nd in District

Century 21 women's softball team took a second place in the Class D District Tournament held this past weekend in Mackinaw City.

The team worked its way into the finals by beating Gaylord's Midwestern Construction, East Jordan's American Legion and Gaylord's Little Caesars.

Little Caesars worked their way into the finals by coming in through the losers' brackets and the Boyne team had to play them twice more for the finals.

Boyne lost both of the final games to end up taking second in the tournament.

Swim program to wrap up with swim

Year-end activities have been planned for Boyne City Swim School including a swim across Lake Charlevoix, games and races, and the annual awards night.

Advanced Swim School students have been swimming "laps" to deep water buoys all summer to prepare for the annual swim across Lake Charlevoix. Most swimmers complete from 10 to 30 miles. On Friday, August 19 approximately 25 swimmers will leave Young

State Park for the mile and one-third swim across Lake Charlevoix to Whiting Park. The swimmers will leave the beach at 9:30 a.m. and will be surrounded by boats for safety. The first swimmers will arrive approximately at 10:30 a.m.

On Monday and Tuesday, August 22 and 23, Games and Races will be scheduled for all Swim School students, at Whiting Park. Races in all swimming strokes and water skills will be featured as well as novelty races such as raft races, sandcastle building, and relay races. The schedule for the games and races will be:

Monday, August 22, Morning, 10 a.m. Advanced Beginners and Intermediates
Monday, August 22, Afternoon, 1:30 p.m. Beginner I's
Tuesday, August 23, Morning, 10 a.m.: Swimmers, Advanced Swimmers, Basic Rescue and Water Safety, Advanced Lifesaving, and Water Sports.

Tuesday, August 23, Afternoon, 1:30 p.m.: Beginner II's and III's.

The Swim School bus will run both race days at 9:30 in the morning and 1:00 in the afternoon for those students participating in the games and races. The public is invited to the two games and races days but only swim school students will be allowed to ride on the bus. Wednesday, August 24 is scheduled for a make-up day or free swim day for everyone. The last activity of the Boyne City Swim School year will be on Thursday, August 25, at 7:30 p.m. It is the annual Awards Night and it will be held at the covered pavillion in Memorial Park in Boyne City. All Swim School participants, including the Pre-Swim School students will be recognized at the Awards Night. All Red Cross cards, Merit Certificates, Lake Swim and Distance Awards will be given out at this time. A short reception will immediately follow the awards program.

East Jordan's Lucrezia Joseph takes state Miss Teenage title

East Jordan is a star on the Michigan map because of Lucrezia Joseph, daughter of Al and Bev Joseph. Lucrezia, or Lucki, as she is usually called, was chosen Friday out of 93 other girls to be the state's teenage queen.

Miss Michigan United Teenager will travel to Hollywood in November and then on to Hawaii for a five-day stay. In December she will compete in Washington, D.C. for the national crown.

A large audience at Adrian College applauded Lucki's award as she, true to queenly custom, broke into tears of surprised happiness.

Back in East Jordan, she was promptly back to work at her job at the Dairy Corner. Besides her job, she also has cheerleader practices, and the very thought of school coming up makes her feel even busier. Lucki will be a senior in high school.

What was hardest about the contest? Lucki had to give it thought. "I'd say the impromptu questions."

The contestants were supposed to come up with answers to whimsical questions, taken from a bowl. Hers was: "If you could grant wishes what would you say to a little girl who wanted a wish? Lucki's response was she'd grant it if the little girl wished for happiness for herself and the world."

Her answer to "What was the best thing?"

was quick: "Making new friends."

Clearly Lucki enjoyed the whole experience.

Tennis tournament slated for EJ

Tennis tournament time again, said Pat Berlo, recreation director for East Jordan.

They are open to everyone, although great things are expect-and Washington? "I'm looking forward to it," she said quite calmly.

from those who took tennis this summer.

The date is Saturday, Aug. 20 and 21 and those entering need to call Berlo ahead of time. Her phone: 536-2111.

EJ Sports passes available

1983-84 sports passes for the East Jordan High School games are now on sale at the superintendent's office.

Family passes for fall sports will cost $15 and are available until Sept. 16. Family passes for winter and spring sports are $25 and a full all-sports pass is priced at $35 per family.

Student passes for all-sports are $12. Senior citizens, 65 and over, can obtain free admittance to the games.

Gate prices for all high school events are $1.50 with no presale tickets being sold this year. Prices for junior high events are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Junior high sports will have no presale tickets this year.
