

Things that go 'bump in the night' march at school

The high school marching band started to play, and all of the witches, goblins, monsters, draculas, princesses and angels, along with a few E.T.'s, walked around the football field in one of the largest parades that the city has to offer. The parade of the elementary school children brings out more than just the proud parents. It gives all the rest of us a chance to see who will be visiting the door on Halloween night in the daylight.

Of course the children enjoy dressing up in their costumes and showing off to their friends....the excitement which brings them to a fevered pitch when they finally make it out to go around the neighborhood to collect their treats.

The parade is one of the most watched in Boyne, and it brings pleasure to all. Not a soul was afraid and spooked by all these little creatures.

5th grade to split classes next marking period

Boyer City fifth grades will be returned to three sections, following parental intervention. On Monday night at a special meeting, the school board voted to change the fifth grades from two to three sections, redistributing the 62 children into class sizes of 20, 21, and 21.

Superintendent Rich Kelly explained at the regular meeting in October, when the matter was first brought to the board, that fifth grade had previously been in three sections, but the class size had dropped over the past few years.

When scheduling time for 1983 came, its size was under 60.

By September, however, it had gone up again. Teachers and parents objected that the quality of learning was affected by less individual attention and more problems in discipline.

In the interim Kelly visited classes to determine the situation first hand. The board had taken the position that they wanted no child's educational opportunities slighted.

Seniority requires certain rehiring procedures, in addition to certification and qualification. Lynn Hall, teaching part time high school math was thus the proper candidate, but replacing Hall proved to be an unsolved problem by meeting time Monday night. The school, nevertheless, will go ahead with the parents' request, at the same time advertising the positions.

The board also decided on the price for last year's building trade's house, rather than ask for bids. The house, built by students at the high school, is located at 609 Alice Street. The board's price is $46,000.

A contribution of $300 towards Boyne City Nursery School playground equipment was voted. The equipment, which will cost about $600, will be used also by school children, as the nursery school facility is adjacent to the middle school.

Rasch denied in EJ suit

The decision by a jury of six in Charlevoix circuit court Tuesday, settled the complaint of former city superintendent Herman Rasch against the city of East Jordan in the city's favor.

Rasch had asked for $10,000 in compensatory damages and $10,000 more in punitive and exemplary damages for the city's breach of contract. Former councilman Russ Gee, in office at the time, stated, "There was no contract." Rasch had been hired after a word of mouth promise in 1977 by one councilman, Harry Watson.

Gee and former mayor Archie Nemecek said, following the conclusion of the court case, that Rasch had been fired "because of the way he treated people," both in his department and residents who called at his office. They said also that business people had objected to his making purchases for the city from businesses out of town.

Rasch had been warned about these two problems, both in and out of council meetings and at a special closed meeting which lasted for eight hours.

Rasch himself stated he believed the reasons he was fired were that he did not live in East Jordan and that his $27,500 salary was too high for the city scale.

At severance in June, 1981 Rasch received $24,000 in pay and benefits, the city said. This was well over half his annual salary.

The city's case, as argued by attorney Roy Hayes, was based on Rasch's position relative to the city charter, which states that department heads are responsible to the full council only and that therefore Watson's promise ("As long as you do the job, the job is secure.") was invalid.

Suspect tanks removed

Tuesday, the old gas tanks on Dr. Gary Mellon's property at the corner of South Lake Street and Main Street were removed, hopefully ending a bad chapter in the restoration of the South Lake Street project that the city is trying to complete before weather closes in for the winter.

The tanks were filled with water, according to Art Caden of the Department of Natural Resources. They were used back when the location was a gas station, later converted by Dr. Mellon to become his office.

The DNR suspected that the tanks were the cause of the gasoline contamination, first found in front of Mel's Gas Station, which is located about a block away. It was thought that the gasoline, lost out of the tanks at Mellon's, worked its way through the soil until it hit an area of soil that it could not permeate.

Mellon did not want to have to pay for the removal of the tanks until he had received written confirmation from the DNR. Confirmation was delivered over the weekend, and Mellon had the tanks pulled on Tuesday by C.H. Smith Company.

According to Mellon, state laws require that abandoned tanks be filled with sand. The contractor, who remodeled the station into the doctor's office, had failed to do this.

Boyer City candidates give views

Next Tuesday the city is holding an election for two commissioner spots for the City Commission.

In lieu of having the media ask the candidates questions which may or may not concern the voters, each candidate was asked to submit to The Press a statement which reflects the candidate's thoughts on why he should be elected, and what he or she would do for the city if they were elected.

The resulting statements were submitted by the candidates.

THELMA BEHLING

First and foremost I love Boyne City. I have enjoyed my past two terms on the City Commission and would really like the opportunity to continue to serve.

Even when the public didn't agree with me, I am sure they knew I was trying to do the right thing for Boyne. At least I always listen and try to understand both sides of any issue.

For the last 20 or more years, I have been trying to get a beach for Boyne City. Now we have one started I really want to stay on the commission until it is completed and dedicated to the people of this community.

For almost 30 years I have been working with the young people in this town and always feel sad when they have to leave here to find work. I pray we can be instrumental in bringing more industry and thus more jobs to Boyne.

We have so much going for Boyne right now—most of them are things I want to see completed. I am proud of what we have accomplished and hope to remain as a good council person in continuing these improvements. I want to see the street, water and sewer improvements expand each year.

I may not have kept my perspective when the issue on the Veterans memorial park came up. But knowing first hand as a veteran and the wife of one what all of us gave, makes me proud to be a veteran. The park was named Veterans Memorial and so I think they should be able to have something they want in it. I also was one who didn't want the park changed to just pedestrians because I love that park and as a handicapped person myself I couldn't enjoy it if I had to park outside and walk in. I also know there are many other senior citizens who have expressed these same thoughts to me and so I hope to see the park remain a drive through for all citizens.

I am also looking forward to Water Street One and the future development of Front Street.

ELMER CRAIN

Why I think I would make a good commissioner:

My field of experience is broad. In my business I have to be an electrician, plumber, carpenter, mechanic, bookkeeper, machinist, welder, etc. I do all of my own diesel and mechanical work on big and small trucks, Build, lathe, and weld most of my own tools. Have built my own well machine, hydraulics and all.

Now that I have told you what I can do it is only fitting to tell you what I can't.

Have difficulty remembering names. Couldn't make some of daytime meetings because I still work.

I have my own feelings but am capable of changing my mind to accept the views of the majority. This is a trait I feel hard to find. Even

Street to be completed by November 15

Boyer City's renovation of Lake Street went past its October 31 goal for completion, but city clerk Tom Garlock said C.H. Smith Company actually has until November 15 to finish the job. Merchants, whose businesses are affected by the street reconstruction, had begun to complain about a number of days of good weather when few if any workers were on the job.

Five merchants came to the Tuesday noon commission meeting to obtain a definite construction deadline. Mel Howard said he was in favor of the street work, but he has lost 80 percent of his business due to waiting for long-promised turn-arounds that were to have kept his service station in operation.

New city manager Randy Frykberg, sitting at his first regular noon commissioners' session, said he had scheduled business-to-business calls for Tuesday afternoon, to update store owners on the goal for street completion, which is now Tuesday, Nov. 8.

"They should finish as expeditiously as possible, said Garlock, "but I do think they have some cause."

It isn't a question of money, Garlock said, noting that the city, while running close, had not run over funds for the project. Frykberg said, however, whenever they had inquired about lack of action on the street, they were promised workers, but few materialized.

"Last year," interposed commissioner Thelma Behling, "they did such a good job."

In other business, commissioners voted to pay Hodgkiss and Douma, Inc. $3,900 to black-top the 35'x20 foot taxi-way for the remaining four hangars at the airport. Pilots said tar-and-chip could be dangerous with drafts caused by propellers kicking up gravel.

The cost was moderate because the paving contractors already have their equipment in town. As commissioner Bill Grimm said, up to that point, the city has not had to put its own money into the airport improvements.

The cost was transferred from the general fund and will be paid back from funds accumulated from the sale of fuel at the airport. Airport use, said treasurer Edith Beck, and consequently gas sales are up considerably.

An airport snowplowing contract was proposed. Frykberg said the city could do it at about the same cost, but wear on equipment and limitations on its use caused by the airport responsibility made contracting out the job an advantage.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE GRUNDNER

Couple united in Boyne City

Angela Marie Ayers became the bride of George Max Grundner on October 8, 1983 in a ceremony performed by the bride's uncle, the Rev. John Spohn at the Trinity Pentecostal Church of Boyne City, before 200 guests.

Angela is the daughter of Victor and Diane Ayers, and George and Irene Grundner of Rochester are the parents of the groom.

Given in marriage by her parents, Angela chose a beige gown with a Victorian neckline and vee yoke lace front, satin cummerbund, and a lace tiered skirt. She wore a halo of blue, pink and white daisies with baby's breath, and carried an arrangement of pink, blue and white daisies.

Bonnie Newville of Boyne City was maid of honor for her friend, wearing a blue dress with beige trim, featuring a Victorian neckline, vee yoke lace front and a full skirt trimmed in lace. She carried a small arrangement of blue and white daisies.

Ashia Grundner, daughter of the groom, served as flowergirl for Angela, and George Grundner, son of the groom, was ringbearer. Best man was David Johnson, a friend of the groom. Ushers and groomsmen were Tracy and Terry Ayers, brothers of the bride.

After a reception at the Advance Board of Commerce for 350 guests, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the upper peninsula of Michigan. They will make their home in Boyne City.

Angela is a second year student at North Central Michigan College and George is employed by IDC of Ellsworth.

Opinions

Only you have opportunity to decide city's direction

Next Tuesday will be just another day for many of the residents of the area. They will get up, dress, go to work, go home, and sit in front of the TV just like many other Tuesdays they have had over the past few years.

A few will get out and vote. Notice that we said a few. That is because of something called voter apathy. Another great buzz word that says there are many people who don't want to have part in controlling their lives, who don't want to participate in any form of government, and who don't care about their quality of life.

This next Tuesday is one of the days that we, as citizens of the United States, can participate in voting for the people who can control our taxes, and our city, more directly than can any other elected official.

Sure, they are not able to reduce the amount of taxes that we pay to the federal government, but they can guide us to find out what our city is going to be like a few years down the road.

In Boyne City, the elected officials have started a capital improvement program that is drawing rave reviews from the jealous folks in other communities.

In East Jordan, the decisions of the elected officials will decide in the future, the direction that city will have, whether it will be progressive or passive.

The real control over which way either city will follow can be directly affected by you, the voter, only if you decide to take some time out of your "busy" day, go to the polling place, and cast your vote for the people you want to see in office.

Only you will help decide who our elected officials will be, but only if you vote. Next Tuesday, you can have the opportunity to help decide the future of our local community. Vote.

Marshall Sayles

We've been hearing a lot about the "generation gap" these days. To which I would like to say "Phooey".

The way I see it, one of the main differences between our young folks and we old codgers is the new and fancy ways our youngsters have of getting themselves into trouble. Beyond that, there ain't a gunny sack full of difference between the kid and the old man.

Coming out of the post office the other day I got an idea that just might have satisfied a long felt want.

I went across the street and stood looking at the old Dilworth Hotel. Perhaps if I stood there long enough and kept sizing it up, a gunny would think I had enough money to bankroll its renovation.

I've always wanted to give the impression that I am a man of means. It has been one of my twenty-three life-long fantasies.

As I was standing there fooling the public, a man came up and asked if I happened to have five dollars I didn't need. (In Detroit, they call that "working the streets".)

"I'm sorry," I said, "but I've made a habit of saving every five dollar bill that comes my way."

"If you don't fork over five bucks," he threatened, "I'm afraid I'll have to resort to something I greatly dislike doing. Especially here in Boyne City."

His tone kind of scared me and I wondered what he would do if I refused the money. So, against all the will power I could muster, I slipped him a five.

Then he turned to go. "Wait a minute," I said. "What did I save you from doing?"

"Working," he said. "I'll be damned, I said to myself. I let a stranger fool me out of five bucks. I hate to be fooled. I can't stand being fooled. What a terrible thing I thought, hurrying down the street, feeling like a double headed rooster running both ways to get away from himself."

Now, there is no such thing as a double headed rooster. Most of my readers know that. But when a person tries to fool the public and gets fooled himself, double headed roosters just naturally come to mind.

Mama, it's cold outside. That's true. Temperatures have been nudging 30 and 32 in the morning, but there's been no frost on our pumpkins. That's because up here in the Alps of Charlevoix County we did not raise any pumpkins this year.

And another thing. In this outback of society, there has never been an Indian summer. That's because no Indians have settled on this breezy loft overlooking the strange doings at the base of the Boyne River Valley—such strange doings as digging a hole and striking gasoline instead of water. We may be short of pumpkins and Indians, but I'll bet if we were to sink a hole we'd get what we sunk for.

I have no idea what all this talk has to do with it not freezing up here on the summit. Maybe living in the clouds has taken its toll. Let's say it has, so I can come out of this, neither halt nor lame—fit to write another column next week.

Barbara Cruden

Why do we spend over a million dollars a year in this county just to teach the children how to write?

What have you written this week? A grocery list. What will the children write when they grow up? What's wrong with using the phone instead, you will tell them when they neglect to write to you.

Maybe a person that writes for a living is an exception—and shouldn't be telling others how important writing is!

After all, people would be in a mess without some of the other skills like car repair, health care, and accounting. True, absolutely true, but—

Well, look at the reasons people don't write, and see how many hit you. Reason One. People don't write because it pertains to the mind. They would rather do something physically active than mentally active.

Now, what kind of thinking can human beings do, while active, riding a lawn mower, cooking supper, square dancing, or anything else? Little, choppy, disconnected thoughts. Brooding. Mulling. Feeling. Talking to themselves.

No continuity. No analysis. No deep questioning. Very little developmental pondering.

So if people write, they will have to think. Later they will read what their struggles produced and maybe decide that they are stupid. Not true! I have never yet met anyone who is essentially stupid.

The problem is lack of skill. (Keep writing. Keep thinking.)

The second problem is that people don't like to be alone. Writing is solitary. Thinking is solitary. The fact is, without solitude, people tend to borrow from others what they are. How good is that!

Reason Three. There's nothing to write about. Ah, see? An empty mind? Not really. It's just that everything is pushed down under the trampling of chopped thinking from active lives.

Reason four. People have written for their teachers for all those 12 or 16 plus years. Now who do they write for? Who will read it?

When people write for themselves once a week, or at least every month or so, and collect their work in a shoebox or a notebook, they themselves enjoy reading their thoughts again and again in years that follow. Maybe someday their children will find those pages. More completely than snapshots does writing show what people are.

Writing about mushrooms. Writing about grief, cooking, people, summer, dreams. This also leads to looking things up, to reading what others think, how they express things, how to widen or deepen one's own perspective.

People who can write, become movers in their community. Writing is still a necessity.

Reason five. Not being a significant person. Nonsense! P.S. Get a dictionary—today.

Editor,
Regarding your column about Maytag wringer washing machines (Oct. 19). You don't have to worry about what your Mother is going to do now that they have stopped production of those wonderful machines. The last one she bought which had to be especially ordered and came from a warehouse in Detroit is only about three years old. And since those washers lasted at least 20 years, she won't have to get a new one.

You are right about most everything in that column. Yes, she did like the wringer washer because she was used to using one but there were other reasons, too. The first load was the white clothes, the second load, with the same soap and water, did the colored stuff and the third load did your muddy blue jeans or whatever.

Now you probably never gave a thought to the price of a box of All or a bottle of Era nor the cost of the water to fill and rinse three tubs of clothes. But water where we live is very expensive. In fact because Doc Mills waters his flower garden his last bill was $137.00 (3 months.)

Yes, our family had only two washers, not counting the last specially ordered one which has another 17 years to go. No, you never got slapped. You did get a whack on your butt twice that your Mother remembers—once with a fly swatter for not coming home in time for the cub scout circus. Yes, when it rained you used to "unplug" the storm sewers. That was a good word you made up.

County EDC completes brochure

The Economic Development Corporation of the County of Charlevoix has completed a Corporate Planner for the county, and will be presenting it for the first time, to the EDC on Wednesday, November 2, at its regular meeting. The Corporate Planner is a brochure designed to help attract businesses and industry to our area. It contains helpful information on services, labor force, population, etc., which will be very beneficial to a company planning to locate or expand in the Charlevoix County area.

The Economic Development Corporation meeting begins at 7:30 p.m., in the County Building Annex.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

I just received a book that I know a lot of the historical types would love to read...and I am going to give the book to them, after I have completely read it myself.

The book is a series of articles about the growth, decline, and re-growth of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. It deals with the mineral industry, the shipping industry and quite a few other things that make for very interesting reading.

Named "A Most Superior Land. Life in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan," it captures many moments of life in the U.P. with pictures of the old times, the early logging, one room schools. In fact, the book has more than 150 old pictures and photos.

While this may sound like an ad, the book is available from the Michigan Book Central Office, Box 30034, Lansing, MI 48909. The cost is kind of expensive for a book, $24.95, but with books of this sort, the information gained is worth a lot more just in the memories that are evoked.

Each chapter is written by journalists with a whole lot of knowledge of the U.P. Twenty-one authors contributed to the book.

The book is part of a series of books that the state is in the process of writing. This is the third in the series, if my memory serves me right. I think it is the best so far.

But I am prejudiced. I happen to like the history of the north country. Another book that I liked, and this is in a way another piece of history, is a book called "Copper Country" which gives you some of the history of copper mining in the U.P.

Have you noticed that after a cold night like we had last Wednesday, how the leaves fall off the trees in the morning when the sun hits them? They were falling like mad when I drove out to the Boyne Falls area. I hope that may be an omen like the woolly bear caterpillar, that we are going to have a good snow year.

Even though I don't like to shovel the stuff, our area needs it for all the winter sports activities that we have up here.

In a report from one of the upper peninsula ski areas, they are expecting a great snow year, because, they say, Lake Superior is a couple of degrees warmer this year, and the last time that happened, that area received over 250 inches of snow for the year.

That if that is the case, then we may be in for a good amount of snow, as Lake Michigan has to be a couple of degrees warmer, thanks to the summer we just went through.

And if it is, then the lake effect snows will mean something to our skiers and snowmobilers. I hope we have a lot of lake effect snowfalls.

But, we don't need any blizzards like a couple a years ago, when the things hit on Fridays or Sunday nights.

We need to let the folks who want to drive back to the cities have their drive.

Speaking of tourists, I think we should come up with a new name. We should also figure out a new name for all the people who have moved up to the area. I think we should start a slang word like, "locals" for those who live here, "natives", for those who were born here, and "fast trackers" for those who visit frequently.

"IT'S S'NO RISK FOR ME!"

Grinding and squeezing was the word for these members of the Girl Scouts who used a cider grinder and press to make fresh squeezed cider last Saturday morning. The mill and press came from the Barrett's of Boyne collection and was pressed into service by the girls. It must have been good as they sold all their cider by noon.

Juveniles take joy ride, go over 100 miles

Two juveniles, aged 12 and 6, learned how to drive a car last Saturday when they commandeered a 1982 Chevrolet and drove it to Mancelona. The two then found another vehicle, and took that for a further ride that ended up in Tustin, about 100 miles from home and more than six hours later.

The two, who have been turned over to the Charlevoix County Juvenile Court and the Department of Social Services for the misadventure, drove the entire distance apparently without incident. They found the cars with the keys in the ignition which gave them the opportunity to try to see if they could drive.

Both boys' names have been withheld because of their age.

East Jordan holds candidate night questioning

Saying that it was something like town meetings of New England, Don Yenni opened Candidates' Night in East Jordan on October 25 at the high school auditorium. An attentive audience heard Linda Barnes, Ellen Cihak, Clifford Gibbard, Cal Gotts, and Bill Merwin, candidates for city council, give their views and answer questions.

Candidate Mark Daneff had excused himself because of a prior commitment. Al Joseph is running unopposed.

Running for re-election, councilwoman Cihak and mayor Merwin maintained a solid front on the council's record for the past year in questions about Fern Morris, city manager government, and on the proposal to sell Elm Pointe.

Elm Pointe could cost the city as much as $100,000 in maintenance over the next five years, said Merwin. According to him the city council withdrew the proposal to sell when they were unable to obtain a consensus on how to spend income from the sale.

Originally council had thought the city was short of funds and the sale was seen as a means of bailing out the city. Thus, pressure for the sale actually dropped in March when the council uncovered information about the city's financial security.

Merwin emphasized that keeping Elm Pointe meant it would have to be more self-sufficient. He complained that greatest use of the park was by people outside of the city.

The sale of the park, Merwin said, in answer to another question, was the number one issue of 1983.

On the question of whether to reinstate the clerk-treasurer, Gotts, Barnes, and Gibbard said they lacked facts enough to make a judgment. Gibbard added that he had protested the dismissal when it was made because the council had at the prior meeting already reprimanded Morris. However, he pointed out, council does have the right to dismiss for any reason it believe justifies doing so.

Candidates were asked if East Jordan should have a city manager, as do Charlevoix and Boyne City. Barnes said the next council should look into it, "and not just close the door on the idea."

Gotts said he had collected data on the subject and presented it to council members when he had previously served on the council. He said there seemed to be no interest at that time, but he still thinks "it would eliminate a lot of problems" and would benefit the city to have a professional staying on the job.

Merwin, on the other hand, suggested that a city manager might not be worked hard enough to justify the expenditure. "Our problems have been superficial," he said. He also thought the city would lose some of the closeness now existing between administration (council) and the voters.

Cihak concurred, adding that having a city manager would require changing the city charter, a very expensive procedure. Gibbard's view was that localizing responsibility in one person was worth studying.

Someone asked when the streets were going to get attention, and Merwin answered that there were plans to pave five miles of city streets in the near future. Paving was held back, he said, because funds were low.

Each candidate was given a maximum of five minutes to present his or her reasons for being a candidate. Barnes and Merwin both stressed improving the city. Barnes noted that lack of employment was nothing new. Making the city a better place for those already here, would make prospective investors more interested, she said. Better relations in politics and in policing were two points. In the question period she added a third. "Anyone who is trying to create a job should be treated with respect and given a welcome mat, whether it is one job or 100."

Barnes said other reasons for becoming a candidate was to provide freedom of choice, and to become involved.

Merwin emphasized that the city was going nowhere although its location offers many advantages. His recommendations were: keep the industry already here, encourage heavy industry to come, and encourage tourism.

The present council has been helping the city in the direction of change, he said, and added later, that the city should "capitalize on the fish."

He took note of the praise received this year from visitors at the renovated Tourist Park, and he commented on how well the Chamber of Commerce is doing.

Gotts listed concerns he would work on if elected: developing Elm Pointe, dropping fees charged to charitable groups for use of public parks and buildings, not singling out particular groups in meeting needs, working for council-city manager type of government, upgrading city appearance, setting up goals for progress that don't change from council to council, and listening to what people wanted. Here he accused the present council members of making up their own minds.

Cihak's reasons for running for re-election as third ward councilwoman were her commitment to the council's programs to serve everyone by doing what is best for the city. Cihak has also been mayor before.

In his presentation, Gibbard said he was retired and would like to apply his experience to service to the city. He drew a laugh from the audience when he said that while he has disagreed with some of the council's decisions, he agreed with his wife's advice: "If you haven't tried it, don't knock it."

Moderator Yenni closed the meeting, which was sponsored by the Community Education Council, by saying most important of all was to get out and vote.

Boyer City Commission candidates

Boyer City is a super place to live and I would like to have an active part in its future growth by becoming a member of the Boyer City Commission.

though the people vote on something the present commissioners will vote their own way. Even against the majority. We have already discovered this fault. I have a conscience I have to live with.

Another important thing is that nobody can buy my vote. I will install a box so people can drop in for and against cards with their name and telephone number on all important items. And I will call some of them to receive their views and weigh them against the others.

Also the present commissioners are in such a hurry that they will accept a few questions and say that is it, meeting closed. I will stay there all night if necessary.

The present commissioners had a 5" well drilled with used, old pipe. Then took bids on installing a 6" pump in the 5" well. I told Clifton I wanted to bid on it but couldn't put a 6" in a 5" pipe. He laughed at me. Porter got the job and when he went to install pump they had to have a special meeting to ok a 4" pump. Money and time lost. Is this the commission you want?

ROBERT DUNNETTE

Boyer City should bring the landfill up to requirements and keep it maintained. But there should be a study done for a future way of solid waste disposal as I feel landfills are not the answer.

The city's annual capital improvement program spending meets with my approval.

I do support a DNR salmon weir at the Consumers Power bridge, thus allowing shore fishing from the tubes to the mouth of the river.

I fully support the air industrial park as a source of future employment.

I am seeking election for city commissioner because I am interested in the welfare and development for all the citizens of Boyer City.

Yes, I do support the further development of the city beach. We have it, let's make it safer and more attractive.

I'm for property tax breaks for the business community at this time.

I've been employed with the Charlevoix County Road Commission for 15 years, currently as a heavy equipment operator. I am Chief Steward of Teamsters Local 412, a Parks and Recreation Commissioner, and member of the city's Salmon Weir Committee.

RUDY FLORENSKI

I think the city should start thinking about the way that they do business.

They should have gone the special assessment route for the improvements on Water and Lake Streets; they should have had the developers of Front Street put up a performance bond to insure that the street is up to specifications and will hold up. I think it is falling apart already.

I think that there is a conflict of interest between the city attorney and some of the work that he has performed on both sides of the fence.

Instead of the state paying for the new addition of Front Street, the major abutting property owner should be asked to pay for their fair share. I think that is the legal way it should be done.

If I am elected I will try to see that everything that the city does, is right and legal, to benefit the majority of the people of the city.

MARVIN LODING

I am running for the City Commission because I feel I have both the time and experience necessary to do the job right.

Boyer City is in a period of expansion and growth, and I feel a person in this position should be able to look impartially at the needs of all parties involved in this growth. My work on both the Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals has given me the necessary background to deal with these matters in relation to the master and comprehensive plans, as well as the zoning ordinance.

Since I am retired, I feel this gives me the time to serve the city whenever and wherever necessary.

As the city moves forward in the coming years, I feel I have the experience and integrity to see that this growth is handled for the maximum benefit of all.

MARTIN PAUL

Elected as first president of UAW Local 1403, Courter-Bendix, in 1967 and served in that capacity until I retired in 1974.

Served as Charlevoix County Commissioner for 4 years from 1974 to 1978.

Elected to 4 year term as Boyer City Commissioner in 1979.

Four years ago a representative of the "Save Front St." group requested that I become a candidate for City Commissioner. I reluctantly accepted but during the ensuing four years the many challenges of the office have been enjoyed. I believe my service to the city has vindicated the trust placed in me.

With the help of my efforts a compromise solution was reached on the re-location of Front St. During my term in office the downtown street renovation has occurred, a master plan for the city adopted along with an up to date zoning ordinance. During that time a complete financial and budgetary system was initiated so that any tax payer can readily see where from and where to of the tax dollars. All this was accomplished with no increase in millage.

My commitment to providing a swimming beach within the city is being realized. My vote was one of those that obtained a grant for a beach study. I initiated the airport study that has resulted in creation of an air-industrial park that will soon be platted and a brochure advertising same will be printed. I also initiated the fencing of the North Boyer Landfill to prevent dumping of garbage so that now it is a presentable site half full of brush and dirt.

My future goals are, 1. to use future capital improvement funds to upgrade sewer, water and streets in areas outside the central business district. 2. To upgrade all the public access sites on Lake Charlevoix within the city limits so that they are available to the citizens. 3. To encourage the placement of a salmon harvesting weir in the Boyer River based on the study of a weir committee appointed by the mayor as to its location. This will bring more fishermen into the area and will be an economic asset.

Mansour to speak

The story of former nun Agnes Mansour makes her a significant choice as speaker at the fifth annual meeting of the Petoskey-based Women's Resource Center on Tuesday, Nov. 8. The particular connections to the work of the WRC, however, are in treatment of domestic violence, higher education for women, and equal job opportunities.

The meeting will be held at Harbour Inn in Harbor Springs. The Center is a tri-county non-profit organization.

Book fair planned

A book fair is planned for the week of November 7 at East Jordan Elementary School. Sponsored by Unlimited Potential, a parent-teacher group, the fair will be open to students, parents, and other interested adults during school hours, 8:30 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. On Thursday, Nov. 10 the fair will also be open in the evening during parent-teacher conference hours. Reading co-ordinator Pam Allen said the books are not textbooks, but are for leisure-time reading. "It's a good chance to buy Christmas presents," she noted.

Unlimited Potential parents and interested district residents will be meeting on Thursday, Nov. 17 at Allen's office from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Has 100 percent participation

Manager of the Country Star, Jim Wandrie reported that their firm had 100 percent participation from the employees in both the restaurant and the supermarket for the United Way Campaign here in Boyer City. The amount raised for the fund was $3639.00.

Boyerne shut out by Rogers City 32 - 0

BY PAUL ZINCK

A cold wind and a strong Rogers City Hurons football team outdid the Boyne City Rambler footballers last Friday night in a game played at Rogers City. Most of the 32-0 shutout was played in low temperatures and a chilling wind and some Boyne players said they were sore on the following morning as a result.

Things didn't look good for the Ramblers from the very beginning as Huron Allen Wenzel returned the opening kickoff 20 yards to the 45 yard line, leaving his team with excellent field position. The Hurons then went on the ground with their explosive offense.

Allen Fleming took the ball on the first play from scrimmage and carried for a four yard gain, and then rebounded to pick up another eight yards to the Rambler 43 yard line. After Wenzel rushed for four yards, Fleming took off for a 35 yard touchdown run. The first score of what was to be a long night for the Ramblers came with 9:30 left in the opening period. A point after touchdown kick by Dean Snow out of the hold of Gary Smolinski went wide, keeping the early score at 6-0.

Chris Howard was Boyne's quarterback in their opening drive, starting his first game at the quarterback position. Howard's opening series of downs was not successful, however, as the Ramblers could generate just four yards on three plays before having to punt. The yardage came on a one yard run by Kimo Kuheana and a three yard carry by sophomore Rob Musser.

After Tony Napont's 35 yard punt and a 10 yard return, the Hurons had the ball first and ten at the Rogers City 37 yard line. On the first play Snow took the ball on a quarterback keeper and picked up 36 yards. The long gain was nullified by an illegal motion penalty and the Hurons were backed up to their own 32. Gary Smolinski raced 28 yards to the Rambler 40 yard line. Just three plays later Snow gave the ball to Fleming, who, in turn, sprinted 30 yards through the Rambler defense and into the endzone. The score came with 5:58 and without the two point conversion, left the score at 12-0.

After the ball switched hands before the end of the quarter, a Huron defender recovered a Boyne fumble in the Rambler backfield. The hometown team took the ball from the Boyne 43 yard line and scored just over five minutes later. The touchdown came on a one yard dash by senior halfback Allen Fleming. Another failed conversion attempt left the score at 20-0 in favor of the Hurons with 9:42 left in the first quarter.

The Ramblers returned the ensuing kickoff out to their own 43 yard line and the offense gave an already tiring Rambler defense a rest.

Stacy Reinhardt took Howard's hand-offs on the first two plays and picked up 11 yards on the pair of carries. Howard kept on the next play for an eight yard gain and then gave to Reinhardt again to pick up another five. After a Boyne time out, the Ramblers set up on the Huron 34 yard line.

Kuheana ran for eight yards on the first down and Musser picked up an extra five for another first down. On the next play the Ramblers had a scare, as the exchange in the backfield resulted in a loose ball. Andy Sutton recovered for Boyne to keep the scoring hopes alive. All of the hoping proved to be for naught as the ball switched possession on downs just three plays and five yards later.

From their own 13 yard line the Hurons started a long drive that would eventually lead to the last score of the half. Snow kept on the first play and gained 15 yards out to the 28, but a holding penalty on the next play took them back to the 13 with a first down and 25 yard to go. A complete pass took the ball back up to the 25 yard line and a late hit call against the Ramblers took the Hurons way out to their own 40. Smolinski rushed for one more yard before Snow completed a 32 yard pass to Tom Chase to the Boyne 28. Two incomplete passes later Snow and Fleming hooked up for 21 yards to get a first down at the seven yard line. On the next play Fleming took it in from seven yards out to wrap up the scoring for the first half, with the score being 26-0 and 2:41 left in the half.

The Ramblers had another big chance to score at about the midway point of the last quarter. A 15 yard Reinhardt carry set up a first and 10 on the Huron 15 yard line. Musser and Marc Mentel each had a four yard run on the next two plays and Stacy Reinhardt was stopped at the line of scrimmage to put the ball on the eight yard line.

As Boyne's inexperienced quarterback went to the air he was intercepted on the five yard line. Cris Rohrer brought the ball down and started downfield. The six foot four inch 195 pounder outran everybody else on the field and chugged into the endzone, but a clipping penalty called the ball way back to the Huron 18 yard line. From there, the Rogers City boys started what was to be an 82 yard scoring drive. With 2:03 the Hurons hit paydirt on a seven yard Alan Smolinski run. That touchdown wrapped up the scoring for the game at 32-0.

The 3-5 Ramblers will wind up their 1983 season at home this Friday against the Petoskey Northmen.

Volunteers went out last Sunday to help clear the trails for the Avalanche Mountain ski race. This crew worked on the five kilometer course, clearing a section to keep the racers away from a barbed wire fence. They picked up the fallen trees, limbs, and other debris so that the course will be able to be skiable even if the snowfall this year is not very deep.

Boyerne places 2 in regional CC

BY PAUL ZINCK

The same twosome that has been doing the job all year long for the Boyne City Rambler cross-country team qualified together for the state finals. Mike Hulett and Steve Parsons will be going to the Class C State Finals for the second year in a row to run a tough three mile course in Big Rapids.

Hulett and Parsons weren't the only Ramblers to do well in the regional meet held in Shepherd last weekend. Hulett finished in seventh place out of about 221 runners, as he came in with a time of 16:23. Parsons took fifteenth place, sporting a strong time of 16:38.

Other Boyne runners were Hal Leach in 58th place, finishing with a time of 18:03. Jeff Johnson came across with a time of 18:06 and 62nd place. Geoff Bohne placed 80th with a time of 18:47.

Boyerne's girls also did a commendable job, as Gretchen Bohne missed qualification by seconds and just two places. Bohne finished with a good showing of 21:30. Yvonne Hulett finished with a clocking of 24:25.

As a team, the Ramblers finished ninth in a field of 20 teams.

East Jordan loses in Ski Valley deciding thriller

Barry Mumich [35] turns the corner and starts up field on one of the big gains that East Jordan had during the game last Friday with Central Lake. Others in the picture helped Mumich by blocking out the defenders and include Ted Snowden [5], Darrell Burt [65] and Tony Ruhlman [24].

BY MICHAEL BURR

It was expected to be a terrific game, the speed and finesse of Central Lake against the weight and power of East Jordan. It was billed as "the big one" and both teams were up for the game.

And what a game it was, exciting from the opening kickoff, right to the closing seconds. But, East Jordan lost their chance to win the Ski Valley conference after the game ended as Central Lake used the pass to beat the power and took a 22 to 14 victory.

In the opening stanza, East Jordan struck first, with a perfectly executed pass play from Ted Snowden to Darrell Spence for 49 yards and the opening lead 6-0. East Jordan kicked off to Central Lake and after a long drive, capped by an 18 yard touchdown pass, and an extra point play, Central Lake was up 8-6.

Central Lake kicked off to East Jordan, and with a fumble the Devils found themselves starting on their own seven yard line. The Devils elected to make it a short series, and in four plays capped by a 75 yard left end burst by senior Barry Mumich were back on top 12-8. Ted Snowden on a quarterback keeper got the extra point, making it East Jordan, 14-8.

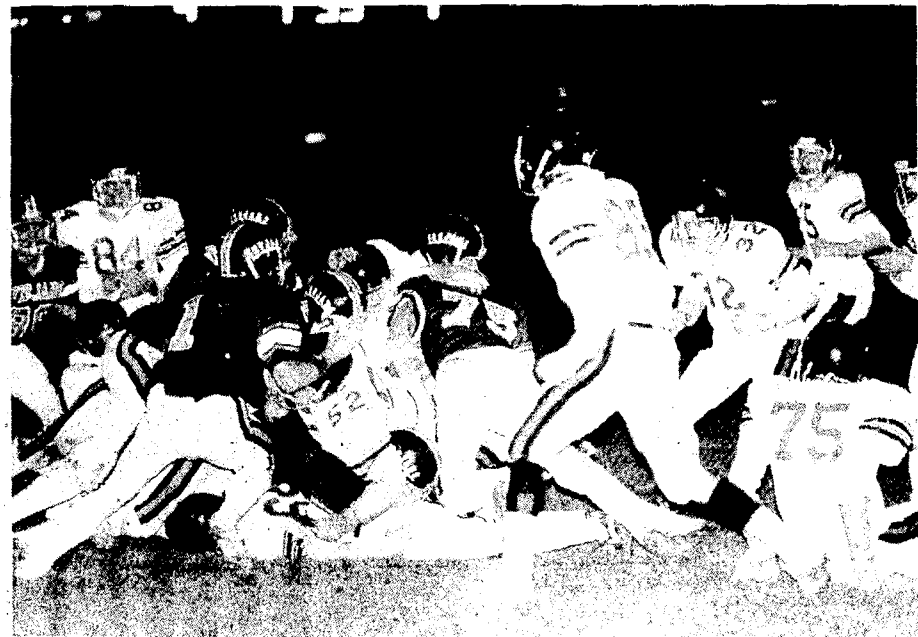

The Devils kicked off and Central Lake immediately began another march, this time being denied from inside the 15 yard line on four consecutive plays.

In the second half it was Bart Patton, and Todd McDonough duo that did the Devils in. In the third quarter the Trojans moved down the field 60 yards finishing off the drive with an eight yard pass play to end Harold Hoogerhyde, and quarterback Todd McDowell slipped in with the extra point, making the score Central Lake 16, East Jordan 14.

After an exchange for possessions Central Lake drove down to the Devils' 17 yard line where the defense stiffened getting the ball back. Two plays later freshman quarterback Ted Snowden missed a handoff and the Trojans quickly pounced in the fumble at the 19 yard line. It took Central Lake one play and senior halfback Bart Patton darted up the middle to put the Trojans in the driver's seat. The Devils got one more chance to score but time and nerves were against them.

It was evident that East Jordan missed runningbacks Mike Graham, and Chris Andersen. The game would probably have taken on a different flavor had these two been around to help out. All in all it was a great ball game, with both fans and parents very proud of the way the Devils hung in there.

This Friday closes the 1983 football season for East Jordan. The Devils will be hosting Indian River for Parents' Night with game time at 7 p.m.

Defensively, the East Jordan Devils played their hearts out, only to have the big pass play succeed for the Central Lakers. Stopping a runner on this play are Darrell Spence [32], Mitch Olstram [75], and Rich Raymond [85].

Boyerne out-points Hurons for 2nd league win

BY PAUL ZINCK

A strong performance by Keisha Crozier out-did a 21 point performance by Rogers City's Patty Furtlaw last Friday night, as Crozier and her teammates out-did the hometown Huron girls. The Ramblers picked up their second league win against eight defeats in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference.

Crozier sunk 11 field goals and hit on one of four field goals to score the largest portion of the lady Ramblers' 58 points, and to lead a strong scoring attack.

The Hurons played well but still ended up on the short end of the 58-50 score.

The Rambler girls opened the game by taking a 19-10 lead after the first quarter, and then held the lead throughout the final three quarters. In the second eight minute period, the hosts out-scored their guests by just one point, 12-11, but still trailed by a six point margin, 28-22, at the half.

Boyerne also ripped down 52 rebounds against 45 for Rogers City. Sturm led the Ramblerettes with 17 rebounds.

The one category where the Boyne quintet wanted to end up on the bottom was their only bad point. Boyne's girls committed 30 personal fouls, as the lady Hurons were caught just 24 times throughout the contest.

EJ JV's take touch decision over Lakers

BY MICHAEL BURR

In what should have been laughter, almost turned into a nightmare, as the East Jordan JV Devils just slipped by Central Lake 16-14.

With East Jordan expecting an easy time of it, the problems began on the fifth offense play of the night, when quarterback Greg Kitson went down with a severe broken right ankle. With coach Bob Rebec having fits on the sideline, it was time to put together a makeshift offense. Right end Bill Lytle was switched to quarterback for the first time this year and ulcers were beginning to sprout for the coaching staff.

In the first quarter after marching down the field, Central Lake punched the ball in and after missing the extra point were in command 6-0. Later in the second quarter again Central Lake marched down and scored, this time getting the extra point making the halftime score 14-0.

In the locker room at halftime, the team sat quiet and numb, wondering if their world was coming to an end. Dedicating the ball game to lost quarterback Greg Kitson, the team came back onto the field ready to play.

Into the third quarter, East Jordan got the ball and began to march down the field, capping the drive with a Bill Lytle to Mike Goebel 15 yard pass for the touchdown, with Lytle then running the extra point, closing the gap to 14-8.

With the defense completely shutting down Central Lake in the second half, the Devils picked up again and began a new march.

In the fourth quarter, Bill Lytle on a quarterback sneak from the one yard line tied the score, and then promptly passed to Mike Goebel for the go ahead extra points, making the final score

East Jordan 16, Central Lake 14.

Offensively, top rushers were Mark Snowden with 9 carries good for 88 yards.

Lentz closes career at LSSC

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. - Lake Superior State's women's tennis team wrapped up the 1983 season with a fourth place finish in the Great Lakes Conference championships in Houghton on Oct. 20-22.

Senior Nancy Lentz scored a pair of points in the Great Lakes Tourney by winning her opening round match in the number four singles position and teaming with senior Julie Dickinson for a first round win in the number three doubles bracket. She finished with a fine 8-5 record on the year in both singles and doubles play. She lettered four times on the tennis team at LSSC.
