Front St., Water St. plans approved by city

Boyer City should be receiving bids back for extending Front Street and the adding to West Water Street, according to an update that was presented before the planning advisory group Monday night.

The bids are expected back from the prospective contractors on April 25. The engineering firm will then look over the bids and present their findings to the city commission on May 1. If let, construction on the new streets should begin shortly after, according to George Granger of Granger Engineering.

Expected completion dates for the two streets are set for June 30 for the rebuilt Front Street and July 21 for the section of W. Water Street.

The planners took a look at the final drawing for the W. Water Street part of the project and gave their approval.

When asked, city clerk Tom Garlock told the planners that while Sunset Park, which is alongside of W. Water Street, would be closed to those leaving boats and fish shanties, the city is going to provide a place for launching the crafts near the end of the parking area behind the Little League field in Veterans Park.

By winter, the city will build a ramp from the park someplace near the cannons so that the wintertime fishermen can move their shanties by snowmobile out onto the lake. The ramp would become the main road to Smeltania. Cars will, however, be barred.

After learning that the city commission passed a street closure over the objections of the planning board, the board suggested that it would be a good idea if they could send two members to the city commission meetings where planning action was concerned.

It was felt that city officials would like to hear how the planners arrived at their recommendation for action on projects.

While the item on the agenda was a lot split for the Boyne City School system from four lots down to three buildable sites, the issue of a street to serve the new lots that the school system intends on using in the building trades program, brought the most concern from the residents who own property adjacent to the lots.

In the engineering study, prepared by Granger Engineering for the school, the proposed road would cause a water run-off problem, ac-ording to some of the residents.

Planners asked that the city, school, and residents sit down to work out the problems before the board would approve of the new street. A public hearing will take place Tuesday, April 24 at 11:30 a.m.

They did recommend the lot split so that the school can start the planning for the student built homes.

Another lot split, involving the Tannery and the Granary was approved so that Terry Toomey, owner of both parcels, could lease out the Granary while keeping the Tannery.

Boyer City approves record budget

A record budget, $2.37 million dollars, was approved April 10 by the Boyne City commissioners. The figure represents an increase of 12.6 percent over the previous year.

Most of the increase is due to a $290,225 small cities grant that will be used to finance a new well and improve Front and Water Streets in the downtown area. Another $47,000 in grant monies will be spent on airport improvements.

The budget for the fiscal year starts on May 1 and will also reflect a reduction in total millage levied in 1984-85, according to Randy Frykberg, city manager. The millage will decrease by .13 mills even though the city will be collecting more property taxes due to increases in the State Equalized Valuation (SEV) on the property within the city.

The city plans to levy 17.8 mills for 1984-85 which breaks down to 16.42 mills for general operations and 1.38 mills to help retire some long term debt payments on some of the city facilities.

The total amount collected from taxes for the city will be approximately $582,915 in property taxes and $49,140 for the debt retirement millage.

According to Frykberg, this is the sixth time that the city has not increased the allowable millage that could be collected on the properties within the city.

The city also voted to close a portion of South East Street based on a petition of Joe Blossom and bordering residents. The closure was asked by Blossom because a portion of the street right-of-way would go through his house and garage. The street has never been developed, but was platted on city maps.

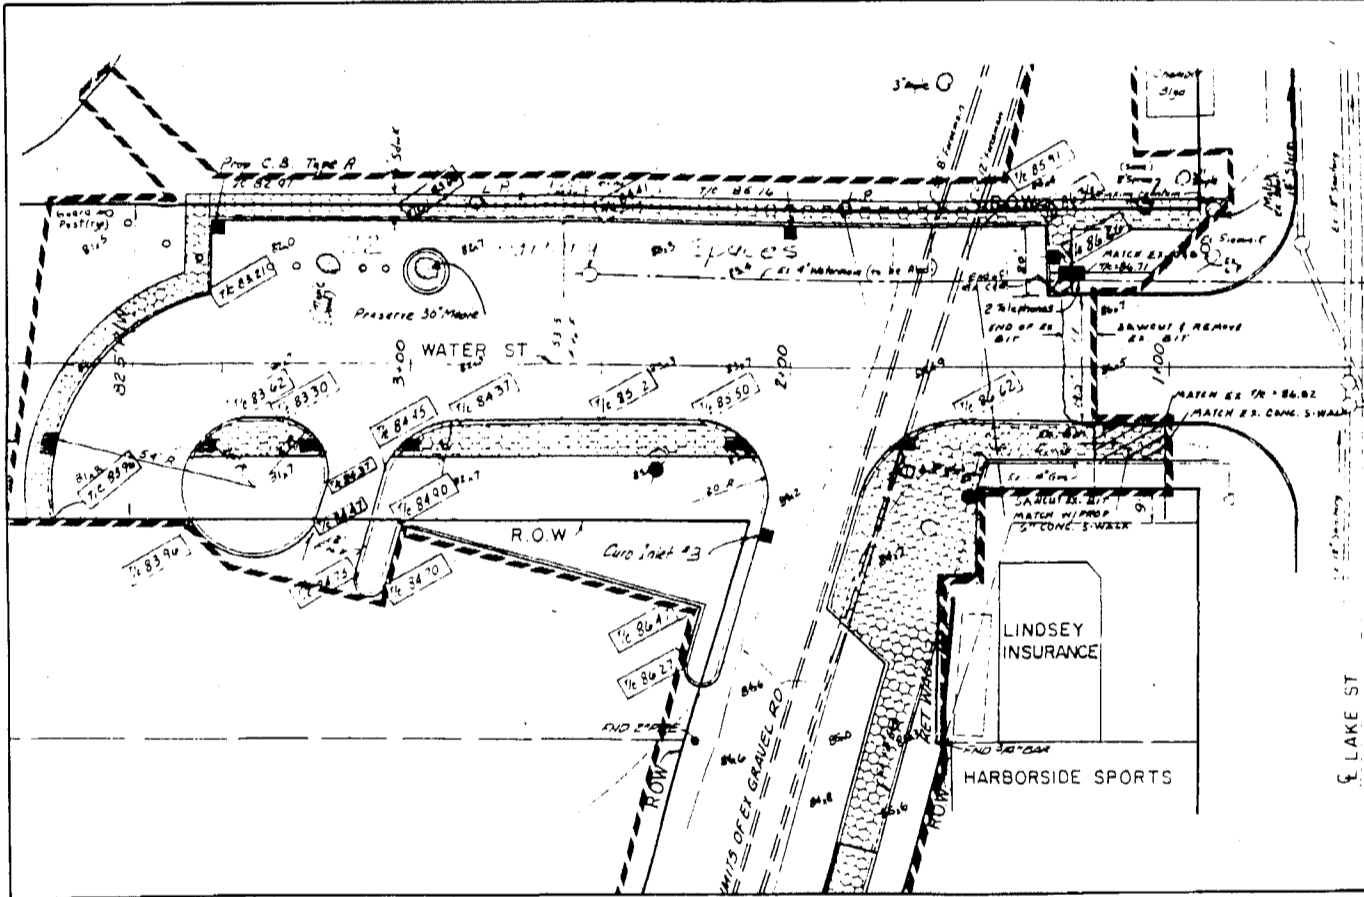

In their vote the commissioners also refused to agree with the arguments that the planning advisory board has suggested when they voted to turn down the request.

The planners had said that the closing of the street would represent poor planning procedure because the street in the future may be the only access to property that could be developed.

The street, if developed according to the plat maps, goes all the way south to Division Street. As the street is not developed, the right-of-way currently passes within seven feet of the Litzenger Place.

The commissioners felt that if the property were ever developed in the future, the developer at the time would come in with plans to provide access to reach all portions of the property being developed.

After the closure, city attorney Bill McTaggart suggested to Blossom and others who wanted the street closed that they contact an attorney because the street closure may need circuit court approval according to state statute.

This is the final print showing how West Water Street will look when it is completed and how it ties in with the continuation of Front Street. While the sidewalks won't be honeycombed shaped, they will be cut similar to those in the rest of the downtown. The work on the road is expected to be able to start in a couple of weeks with the completion of Front St. by the first of July. Water Street should be completed by the end of July.

Resident expresses concern over EJ wells

What happened to the money the city asked for in 1968 for new wells? The question arose at East Jordan's public hearing for the budget on April 12. A resident, Zettie Kitson, challenged city council on the water rate increase, recently voted by city council to cover exploration for a new city well.

"I don't care that the water bill went up," she said. "That doesn't bother me. We still have a low rate. What bothers me is that it's for a new well. What happened to the wells we were supposed to have been paying for when they raised the water rate before?"

City superintendent Mike Dionne, who was not working for the city when the first proposal for new wells was made, said the city would have to look into it.

A search by city treasurer Glendora Murphy brought data on a special election in 1968 to bond $150,000 for two wells. Murphy believes the bond payments were not earmarked so the funds went into operating expenses.

Another resident said that, following a state survey back in the '60s, calling for a new well by 1984, the city agreed that the well wasn't necessary right away and so applied the funds to a booster pump for the two wells on the west side, along with a booster pump for water to Hillcrest.

Water rates were then lowered. According to the resident, the bonding for the two west wells was prior to the rate increase. The well structures are now considered in poor condition and the water too full of iron to be desirable.

While the city council approved the 1984-85 budget, the question of earmarking the rate increase for a new well has not yet been resolved.

The budget for the coming year will require $832,337 for tax-supported expenditures. City council continued the 16 mills of property tax which is anticipated to bring in $289,882.

Self-supporting funds are planned to total $374,830. The total budget figure is $1,207,167.

Other complaints at the budget hearing concerned department of public works payroll. Although the DPW workers belong to a union, Dionne said the new wages would not cause problems. He said the raises averaged 3 1/2 percent, except for one, and were based on the ability of individuals to take on a wide variety of jobs in the department.

He added that the work force had been reduced and thus roughly $35,000 of wages and fringes cut from the budget.

Bob Gorkiewicz, hospital physical therapist, and Susan Roache, an occupational therapist consultant to the hospital, discuss tools which can ease daily living for people with physical disabilities. Charlevoix Area Hospital is the first hospital in the area to offer occupational therapy to patients from infants to adults.

Therapist able to help all ages at Char Hosp.

Occupational Therapist, Susan Roache, is now offering occupational therapy to disabled people of all ages, through the Physical Therapy Department of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Ms. Roache, a Registered Occupational Therapist, who also works, under contract, with the Petoskey Nursing Center, the Emmet County Care Facility, and District Health Department #3, will see patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital, through physician referrals.

Explaining that her work will be with "infants to adults with disabilities," Ms. Roache said she will be involved in "evaluating and determining appropriate therapy so that the patient can live and work in the least restrictive environment."

Infants, she said, come to her attention, if they have been hospitalized for a long time and normal development has been delayed. Working with older children might involve teaching skills such as eating or writing with the opposite hand while a fracture heals. For adults, her work could involve getting ready to go back to work. For an older patient who has suffered a stroke, Ms. Roache may even make home visits to analyze what the patient needs in order to best care of him or herself.

Occupational Therapy, she said, takes the motions and exercises learned through Physical Therapy and puts them into familiar settings. She said Occuational Therapy is a compliment to the Physical Therapy Department.

"Charlevoix will be the first hospital north of Traverse City to offer Occupational Therapy to patients of all ages," Ms. Roache observed. Patients will be referred to Ms. Roache through their attending physicians. Physical Therapy Department Supervisor Gorkiewicz explained.

A 1972 graduate of Wayne State University, Ms. Roache has worked at Mary Free Bed Hospital in Grand Rapids and Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac, where she worked primarily with children. In 1980 she moved to northern Michigan to join the Community Mental Health staff and begin her contract Occupational Therapy work.

The history and government classes from the adult education program at the senior citizen center in East Jordan took a field trip to Lansing on April 9, 10, and 11th. A school bus was provided by the school district and Hugh Vaughan was the driver.

The students raised money for the trip through bake sales, raffles and bazaars. A two night stay at the Travel Lodge Hotel was paid for through these efforts.

After arrival on Monday, the class went shopping at one of the malls in Lansing.

The second day was spent in the capital. A tour was conducted by a guide; then a session of the Senate was observed where Senator Mitch Irwin introduced the group to the Senate. Senator Irwin, along with future district senator, Connie Binsfeld, met the group on the capital steps where pictures were taken with all those present.

A tour of the governor's office was next. Since the governor was absent that day, some students were able to sit in his chair and have their picture taken.

To end their day at the capital, a dinner at "Jim's Tiffany Place," Greenhouse Cafe, in Lansing, was held in one of the banquet rooms.

A NICE SPRING DINNER OR PARTY
I made this casserole and took it to my daughter's family for testing. They all loved this nutritious dish, even my steak-hungry son-in-law. So I have planned a nice spring dinner using this entree.

Casserole of dried beef and noodles
Super cole slaw
Fresh or frozen peas with mint
Mandarin orange cake

As you can see it is the kind of meal which makes for a real party and everything can be prepared ahead of time, and the cook can enjoy her friends and family. You could cook the peas at the last minute, adding a dash of mint, butter and salt and pepper to taste. This is an easy meal to take to the patio or porch on warm evenings.

BEEF CASSEROLE
2 tablespoons margarine

1 small onion (about 1/2 cup, chopped)
2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
2 cups cooked noodles (I use the whole wheat kind)
2 hard boiled eggs - sliced
2 packages of dried beef (2 1/2 oz. each)

1 cup grated cheddar cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
Melt butter in sauce pan. Add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Blend in flour, add milk stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add cooked noodles, eggs, dried beef cut up fine, and salt and pepper if needed. Put into a greased casserole dish, cover with grated cheese and bake in moderate oven 350° for 30 minutes. You could do all of this early in the day, cover and keep in refrigerator until ready to bake, adding 15 more minutes to the baking time.

Bee Howard spent three days in Cheboygan with her daughter Pat and Jim Kitchen and family. While there, she attended the Cheboygan Opera House, featuring, "The Reel World String Band," sponsored by Central Michigan University. The opera house has been undergoing a complete restoration and is nearly finished. It is the only one around in this area and has many fine upcoming programs scheduled.

On Thursday night, the RLDS women's evening group met at the home of Eleanor West for their monthly business meeting and program. The lesson was entitled "Charity." On Friday night, the church's "Over 45" group met at the home of Verta LaLone for an Easter party and potluck. They enjoyed an egg hunt and singing hymns around the piano. On Sunday, the guest speaker at their morning service was Elder Ted Mockerman of East Jordan. The Jim Crawfords of the Park of the Pines, Lenore Landon, Eleanor West and Darryl Gillespie attended the RLDS Church World Conference in Independence, Mo. last week.

Engaged? Married?

The Charlevoix County Press publishes engagement and wedding announcements without charge.

Pictures are welcomed, but we do suggest a few guidelines. Good quality black and white photographs, either of the couple or bride-elect, are preferred. All photographs are kept on file in the Press office and may be picked up at any time following publication; those pictures not picked up after six months will be discarded.

Wedding and engagement announcement forms are available at our office or will be mailed upon request and the receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope.

While we try to publish each announcement the week that we receive it (and in the case of weddings, the first publication date following the ceremony), space constraints sometimes force us to delay the printing of the announcement for one or two weeks. Therefore, we ask that information be received at least two weeks before the intended publication so that we might better plan for its publication.

We will not accept wedding announcements received more than four weeks after the wedding.

Let's start a drive to upgrade morels

OK, it's time to make sure that Michigan, and Boyne City retain their place as the leader of the mushroom, especially morel mushroom business.

The state of Minnesota is trying to grab away from Michigan a little bit of pleasure that we can find quite abundantly here around Charlevoix County.

What we are talking about is that some senator over in Minnesota is suggesting that the morel be named the state mushroom.

Our Mitch Irwin and Ralph Ostling should have been on the ball and introduced a similar measure in our house and senate.

We even think that Governor Blanchard, if he has ever eaten morels, would be pleased to sign the bill into law making the morel OUR State Mushroom.

We would go so far as to have the morel listed in front of such other things as the state fish, the state flower, the state tree, and of course, the state stone.

Such a sorry state we have as report after report come out saying that the state is a poor place to be in business. Since the legislature cannot take the initiative to decrease all those taxes that make the state such a poor place for business, maybe they can start by spending time for such things as making the morel the state mushroom.

And Boyne City could play a very large part in promoting the drive for the state mushroom. After all, we have the National Championships for collecting the little things, and we know of several people who enjoy eating them, even though they don't run through the woods to find them within a set time.

We think that everybody should send letters to our senators and legislators to get the morel and Boyne City on the state map.

Marshall Sayles

This offering is being arranged on Friday the 13th. It's not only supposed to be an unlucky day, it actually is—for me.

Viz: Which means, to wit. Which means read on.

Stay in bed. Don't get up and face all those prevailing errors of the day.

I can't. I've got to get up and make as though I'm not superstitious. Black cats and broken looking glasses shall not control my life. If I see a ladder, I'll walk under it. If I see a crack in the sidewalk, I'll step on it. I would open an umbrella in the house if I had an umbrella. I shall throw my hat on the bed, which is the greatest trouble inviter of them all. Walk right up and face the evil future with a mighty fist, that's what I always say. Put Friday the 13th in its place.

So I arose from my bed, tripped over the rug, got up and swore aloud that I would out-wit what is known as the "twenty-four hour jinx." I always swear with my mouth shut except on Friday the 13th.

So the day began:

I did not win the Readers' Digest Sweepstakes, like they said I probably would.

I did not win the Michigan lottery, like they half promised on TV.

No woman phoned me up saying she'd gotten the wrong number, but could she talk a while.

My wife left the burner on under a dry tea kettle. Twenty-five bucks down the Friday the 13th drain.

I should have a check in the mail today. I walked out to the mailbox, fell down and very cleverly inserted my nose into a wet mole hole in our lawn. We put moth balls in those holes to discourage the animals.

You haven't lived until you have gotten a real close whiff of damp moth balls. I heartily recommend it to those who are sick of the candidates and would like to give up the ghost but don't know how to go about it.

I got to the mailbox. No mail.

What's that? A car in the ditch on the other side of the road. The driver seemed quite drunk.

"Don't you know enough not to drink and drive?" I asked at the top of my Friday the 13th voice.

"I sure do," he slobbered, "but today I'm out furnishing a horrible example to our young people who think it's cool to drink and drive."

"I'm sorry I yelled at you," I said. "I hope our young people will look at you and learn a lesson."

Back in the house. A man on the phone was complaining. He used to be a gut each week but lately all he'd gotten out of these columns was a pleasing grunt.

As the day wore on I was quite tickled to see Friday the 13th sail off over Horton Bay, dragging all those hokey hoodoos along with it.

It feels awfully good to get back to cuss mumbling with my mouth shut.

providing you sign up for the hunt.

And you do that by stopping off at the Chamber office in Boyne City and getting an entry blank.

One of the surprises of nature is how soon after the first rainfall the dull, brown grass comes to life and turns green with growth.

Of course, a little fertilizer helps in the wintertime, but it always amazes me that with just a day or two of rain, the grass suddenly comes to life.

The only problem with it is that it also brings out one of the summer-time traits of the suburban housekeeper. Mowing the lawn.

It is a never ending struggle. You try to get the most perfect lawn possible by adding seed, fertilizer, and all the other things that you have to do, like rake it, dethatch it, and all for the privilege of running the old mower over it about every week during the late spring and throughout the summer.

I have always threatened that the only perfect lawn was one of concrete painted or dyed green. But that threat never went over well with the other folks who live with me.

misty rains continue, then the mushroom festival should be right on target for getting those delightful little morsels.

The same expert told me that for the last few years the festival was always a week or so ahead of the hunters which made for some slim pickings.

Maybe this year we will see a bumper crop.

I know that the Lions' Club and the Chamber are preparing for a fantastic time, all I need to know is where they are going to hunt so I can walk through the woods and get acquainted in case I get lost.

I did get prepared though. This year I bought a compass so that I can really get lost when I wander around in the woods looking at the ground instead of where I am going....or coming from.

I get really envious of those who can do both.

Speaking of mushrooms, there is a rumor that the powers who set up the hunt are going to try to have a "superhunter" class. If that is so, then all you amateur hunters will have more of a chance to win a prize,

Barbara Cruden

One of the surprises uncovered when snow melted this year was a miniature beach at the bottom of a hill. The children found it and instantly began heaping up a sand mountain.

Actually we were out on a soil-study excursion. Ah, well. Let's see what this intimacy with sand will produce.

Soon tired of scooping and having the sand fall between their fingers, they turned and spewed sand up by digging like puppies.

"Now you know why beaver can carry so much in their paws," I reminded them. They had recently learned from a friend that beaver have webbed paws.

"What made sand?" I asked as the sand mountain rose higher.

"The road," said the dark-haired one, looking at the washout nearby.

"God," said the one who smiles.

"Broken down rock," said the scientist of the group. "Sand is very old."

"Well, can you make some new sand?" I asked.

The scientist stalked off, found a soft rock, and came back to rub it on a boulder nearby.

Behold! Sand! The others tried it, too. But soon stopped. Sand is slow business.

The scientist, however, continued. "I want to put some water on this and see if I can make some chalk." We scraped the little heap into a jar after a bit so he could take it home.

The mountain, now huge, tantalized them with possibilities.

"Let's dig a tunnel!" proposed the one girl in the group enthusiastically.

"No, no," the others chorussed.

"It'll all cave in." They proceeded to sculpt the sides into raceways.

"Will anything grow here," I asked, still pretending I was on a field trip.

Rocking back on their heels, two of them obligingly informed me that stuff only grew through it.

And then it happened. The boys started first to dig caves and then tunnels.

"Look who said not to dig tunnels," I pointed out.

From then on, the boys made gallant efforts to include their girl companion.

And she, who had so many times accepted the boys in order to gain acceptance, was vindicated in a leadership proposition.

What a good field trip.

The children from the four sides of the mountain continued to dig in. When their wriggling fingers finally touched somewhere deeply hidden from sight under the huge pile of sand, they screamed in pleasure.

I thought about tunnels reaching out of sight.

How lucky I am, I thought, looking at the children, reaching toward each other under the pile of sand. How lucky I am, and we all are, on this fine spring afternoon field trip.

A man is too apt to forget that in this world he cannot have everything. A choice is all that is left him.

B.F.D.

If anyone says that Boyne City firemen should hold their horses, then this picture of some of the firemen way back when doing it should suffice. The old fire hall showed how the harnesses were set up so that when there was a fire, the horses that pulled the pump could be quickly hitched to the rig. It looks like the horses were a matched pair of greys that either stood tall or the men stood short in this photo from the old days that shows the interior of the fire hall.

Gifted, talented need more educational opportunities says Martinchek

Because gifted and talented children are so smart, it has long been supposed they don't need special help. But, according to Kathy Martinchek, consultant for the gifted and talented, the opposite is more generally the case. With April 29 starting Gifted Child Week, it is fortunate we could talk with Martinchek, who is employed by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate Schools.

At last week's East Jordan school board meeting she pointed out that these bright children face frustration daily in having to acquire learning at the plodding pace of their average classmates.

The result is that they cause a problem for their teachers who have neither the time nor the materials with which to meet their needs. They are a problem also to their classmates who must struggle for the right answers the bright ones seem to be born with.

Usually the bright child is shunned by the others from the failure of simple communication. "The social stigma of those who are bright," said Martinchek. And finally what happens, she said, is the gifted and talented children will become discouraged and a high percent do drop out of school.

Because of unfortunate early experiences, bright children often become laggards and don't work up to potential, even scoring low in an IQ test. So they are not generally easy to discover.

In a later interview, Martinchek reminds one that Einstein scored 82 on an IQ test. (100 is average.) So, besides IQ, which can vary as much as 20 points either way, she said, the search for the gifted and talented depends on teacher observation marks. And some programs that a school may add could include such children. Indeed, some schools have programs that encourage the individual talents, recognized or not, in every child. Such a program is Unlimited Potential in East Jordan.

She even has a packet of ideas for parents.

For this summer she has helped organize the second "College for Kids," to be held at Martinchek is not, however, suggesting wide changes in school curriculum. Her job, and referral, parental referral, academic achievement, Metropolitan tests, and/or the Torrance Test of Creativity. Char-Em does a needs assessment if no school tests are available.

Some of the students singled out by these methods may not necessarily be gifted. Instead they are hard workers, regularly earning good

But, Martinchek said, the number of gifted and talented people in the general population has been set at from 3 to 5 percent. "It depends on your definition of what 'gifted' is, though," she said.

So what to do about the gifted and talented. "It is not undemocratic to try to do something for them," Martinchek said. Instead, she pointed out, it is a serious responsibility to search out and use the talents of people. Right now, she said, we spend $1000 for the handicapped for every $2.42 for the gifted.

Her job is to respond to requests from schools for programs for their gifted students. Possible solutions vary with each school and each level. She cooperates with the school in North Central Michigan College. It is co-sponsored by neighboring intermediate school districts, and offers afternoon classes from June 11 to June 22 in subjects ranging from dramatics to philosophy.

But it's not all just reading books and collecting information, Martinchek stressed. The best education moves into higher level skills of analysis, synthesis, and creativity. She said she expects to see many new ideas discovered for educating children. And not just for the small segment of gifted children, she added, describing something called Renzulli's Open Door, a technique in which all the children deal with the same concept at whatever level they are. Some will go she said, is simply in co-operating with a school on whatever steps it would like to take to help these children with "programs designed to increase high potential to be a producer rather than only a consumer."

She is also working on a parents' night at Char-Em for sometime later this spring.

Three conferences relating to the subject are coming up, she said. On April 26 at Mackinaw City, Nancy Johnson from Good Apple Co. will speak to

At Boyne Mountain on June 10, 11, 12 a conference called "Reaching Out for Excellence" will bring several speakers to the area in a program designed for parents and professionals.

Later this spring Michigan State University will host the state conference on gifted and talented children.

Clearly the light of American education is focussing now on the whole range of learning ability with the final inclusion of the gifted and talented.

Amy Webb shows how she dresses for her part in the Trinity Pentecostal Church of God musical that the church is presenting for Easter.

Church to present musical

Trinity Pentecostal Church of God, located at 401 State St. in Boyne City, invites the public to an Easter musical, "Worthy Is The Lamb." The one-hour presentation is written by Don Wyrzen. The 27 voice choir will be accompanied by a full orchestration tape.

A story in song, this musical starts in the Old Testament with the story of the Passover in Egypt. Young Nathan (a shepherd boy played by seven year old Amy Webb) has to give his tiny lamb to be the sacrifice for the Passover.

The storyline then takes us to the New Testament where we find that God gave Jesus to be the supreme sacrifice for all the world.

Songs include: Worthy Is The Lamb, Let God Be God, Shepherds Lullabye, Daybreak, Behold the Lamb, and many more. The soloists are: Steve Balog, Cathy Boden, Leanna Brown, Lori Hull, Tim and Cindi Markham, Denielle Moose, Greg Shattuck, Jenny and Joyce Spohn, Dawn Stackus, Amy and Patti Webb, and Henry Wittenmyer. Come and Join us April 20, 21, 22, at 7:00 p.m. for "Worthy Is The Lamb."

Congressman Davis' District Representative, Bill Huber, will be visiting your area in the near future. Anyone wishing to meet with Bill is invited to do so without an appointment. Bill will be available to discuss any problems you may be having with federal or state government and will be in Charlevoix at the County Courthouse Law Library on Monday April 16th, 9:30 - 11:00.

Parents learn skill of discipline from expert

Assertive Discipline for Parents drew a crowd of 300 at East Jordan High School auditorium on April 12. Bert Simmons spoke to teachers from area schools last fall, and was the sparkplug for the discipline program now adopted by schools in Charlevoix County.

Returning for a talk that had parents hanging on every word, Simmons explained how the principles that function in school apply equally well at home. He pointed out that parents, like teachers, become hostile or unassertive in their continuing encounters with young people.

He described assertive parents as those who repeatedly argue, discuss, complain, or cajole rather than simply insist on proper behavior.

"Move up on the kid," he said. "Tell them exactly what you want him or her to do."

It helps to put one hand on the young person's shoulder, he said, unless the child detests touching.

"Stay on target," was another of Simmons' admonitions. Don't let the child start you discussing the matter once you have heard everything and issued the correction. He had the audience practice a mock situation. "Don't be disruptive," said the ones who were acting the part of the parent.

When Simmons, acting as the child, was rude or angry or rebellious in response, the "parent" simply firmly repeated the injunction.

Simmons, who was a school principal for 10 years, reminded the audience that children learn quickly how to manipulate their parents. One of the big ones, he said, was "I don't love you any more."

"Stay on target," Simmons repeated.

A negative consequence is also necessary, he said, and he stressed that the child must know what it will be ahead of time.

For a three-year-old it could be sitting, facing the corner for two minutes. That is a very long time for a small child, he said.

For an older child it could be not having the bike for a few days.

All this, he said, drastically cuts down on emotional uproar and wear and tear.

Simmons discussed the value of also expressing approval for good accomplishment. "Praise is four times as powerful as punishment." He called it "tracking positives."

East Jordan school sponsored the talk.

Simmons represents Lee Cantor, publisher of "Assertive Discipline for Parents," as well as a book written for teachers.

When Bert Simmons comes to town, things happen. Last time he came, he talked to area teachers about "assertive discipline." The result was at least three schools adopted it as a school policy. Last Thursday he came again to talk to parents. Results? Catch a parent in the store saying calmly to junior, "Don't be disruptive." And junior cools it. Simmons was sponsored by East Jordan school.

East Jordan picks coaches for fall

A three-year contract for varsity football coaching was given to Ted Jeffery, already in the East Jordan teaching staff. Jeffery succeeds Joe Etienne, Jr. Two candidates had applied for the position.

Also appointed for coaching positions were Alan Peterson, assistant varsity coach; Bob Rebec, junior varsity head coach; and Steve Poole assistant junior varsity coach. Recommendations came from athletics director Dennis Snary, and were approved by the board at its April 10 meeting.

A former athletics director, Frank Holes, had also submitted an application, but according to superintendent Tom Rossler Holes did not apply especially for football coaching, being interested in responsibility for the other sports as well.

Snary did not interview Holes. At the board meeting president Mary Jason addressed staff members on what she called an apparent failure in communication regarding the Holes application.

Snary received tenure at the board meeting. He has served as athletics director for a year and has also taught in the classroom.

The board also appointed Anne Johnston to head the East Jordan community education program. The Straits Area Consortium last year included a community ed program run for both East Jordan and Boyne City with the office in Boyne City. For 1984-85 East Jordan will have its own office. Johnston served this year as assistant to Shelley Martin, Boyne community ed director.

Johnston said an advisory board for community ed was being assembled. Rossler reported that the federally funded Chapter I program will be cut 15 percent, and with more cuts expected, teachers' aides may have to be laid off.

Kindergarten teacher Louise Johnston, who took the place of Dianne Frykberg, off on maternity leave, will not be back as Frykberg is returning in September.

Rossler reported that the increase in enrollment warrants five sections of kindergarten for next year. Lloyd Prevo, bus driver, resigned to take another position.

Millage for school taxes does not come up till next year, since last year's vote was for two years. Rossler said the half mill additional, voted for the elementary school roof, could be applied on the remainder of the roof work and also, if the board approves, on the bus garage roof, as well as work on the garage itself. The board will study the matter.

Reporting to the board, principal Bud Ashton noted that Saturday detention was continuing and had made it possible for at least one student to continue in school. "I think it's a good alternative," said Ashton.

Board member Bill Olstrom asked for a summary of the program.

The board heard a presentation on computerized payroll service from Bob Prebble of Northwestern State Bank.

Park acquisition ok'd by Township board

Up to $5,000 was set aside to acquire an option for a township park in Bay Township on Walloon Lake off Eagle Island Road at the annual meeting of the township last Thursday night.

The option would secure the land so that the township could then apply for a state grant for the total purchase price. The funds for the purchase would come out of a township contingency fund.

The park, which would include a swimming area, would be the first for the township. It presently only has public access points to the lakes that are the north and south boundaries of the township.

In other action during the annual meeting, the board approved the salary increase for the township officials.

At the board meeting, which was held immediately after the annual meeting, the board approved the budget of $58,500 in revenues and expenditures of $47,000 from the general fund. The fund currently has a surplus of $56,500.

The board also increased the assessor's salary by $1,000, from $2,500 to $3,500, to cover the additional workload that the assessor is planning on doing to update and streamline the assessments for the township. Supervisor Carl Skornia is the township assessor.

The board also approved the spending of $1,500 to cover the costs of repairing and improving the lake access sites. The proposed spending is to cover the costs of ice damaged docks and clearing at some of the other sites in the township.

While the road fund is planning on spending $900 more than it is going to take in, for the improvement of the Wildwood Harbor Road, the additional money will come from the projected $151,000 surplus that the road fund will have at the end of the year.

Jacob Robinson and Kelly McNew hold their award winning rabbits during the recent 4-H show that was held down at East Lansing.

McNew, Robinson at 4-H rabbit show

Kelly McNew and Jacob Robinson of Boyne Falls represented Charlevoix County at the recent State 4-H Rabbit Show held at East Lansing. Kelly and Jacob were among 405 exhibitors who entered 1,567 rabbits of 26 different breeds.

This was the first time the youngsters participated in the State Show or any other show of that magnitude. Kelly entered her Silver Martin doe and Jacob entered Silver Martin and Rex rabbits.

While watching the many classes of rabbits being judged, they learned about the desirable qualities in the various breeds of rabbits, and acquired many ideas for improving their own stock. They also had the opportunity to see many less common breeds of rabbits and meet other 4-H rabbit fanciers from all over the state.

While in Lansing, Kelly and Jacob also visited the State Capitol and State Historical Museum and attended "Rabbit School" classes sponsored by the Michigan Rabbit Breeders Association. On the following day they participated in the youth division of the Michigan ARBA Show.

Jacob is in the third year of the rabbit project and Kelly the second. Both are members of the Country Bumpkins 4-H Club. They were accompanied by their leader, Pat Edgcomb and family members.

The old barn likes the April snowfall, but not anybody else. Fortunately Tuesday's snow lasted less than a day. And, besides, the lakes are open.

Coulter announces for 103rd

that he will seek the Republican nomination for State Representative of the 103rd District.

Coulter, calling for a return to common sense in state government, said that he believes he can carry a more accurate view of the wishes of the people to Lansing.

Noting that Ralph Ostling, the current representative of the 103rd, has been in Lansing for 12 years now, Coulter states that he has been active and involved with the people for the past 12 years. "People are sick and tired of the same old thing from our state bureaucracy. I believe we need new blood and new ideas in Lansing. We also need our traditional values applied to how this state is run, there comes a time when right is right and wrong is wrong. My pledge is to really represent the people; my goal is to cut some of the fat out of state government."

Ostling seeking 7th term in House for new 103rd

RALPH OSTLING

State Representative Ralph Ostling, Roscommon Republican and vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, announced today that he will seek a seventh term in the Michigan House of Representatives, representing the newly reappointed 103rd House District.

The new 103rd District includes portions of Roscommon, Antrim, Otsego, and Emmet Counties and all of Crawford, Kalkaska, and Charlevoix Counties.

Ostling, who served as Gerrish Township Clerk for 17 years before running for the State Legislature in 1972, is a graduate of Roscommon High School and received his B.S. and M.A. degrees in education from Central Michigan University. Ostling taught secondary education for the Roscommon School District before entering the State Legislature.

He also served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and is a member of the V.F.W., Rotary and Lions Clubs. He and his wife Thela live in Roscommon. The Ostlings have one son, Kurt, and a granddaughter.

"For the past twelve years I have had the privilege of representing the people of the 103rd District," Ostling stated. "And I look forward to the opportunity of serving them again for another two years. It is not an easy job, and it continues to be a challenge for me. I have dedicated most of my life to public service and I hope the people of northern Lower Michigan agree with me that I have done and will continue to do my best."

Register your new tires

New tire purchasers across the country are being urged to take advantage of a new law allowing consumers to register new tire purchases directly with tire manufacturers in case a tire recall notice is ever issued.

In a Washington press conference, the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association in cooperation with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration launched a national campaign urging consumers to use the new system of voluntary tire registration.

In 1983, more than 130 million new passenger tires were sold in the U.S. replacement market.

Other groups urging use of voluntary tire registration include: American Automobile Association (AAA), American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange, Service Station Dealers of America, and Rubber Manufacturers Association.

Under the new law, the independent tire retailer must give new tire purchasers a postcard form containing the tire registration numbers. Tire purchasers then, add their addresses on the form (already pre-addressed to the manufacturer), add postage and mail it.

If a tire recall occurs, the manufacturers would use the registration information to notify tire owners.

"NTDRA members, other tire retailers and several national groups are urging new tire purchasers to take advantage of this law which provides a type of insurance for recall information," NTDRA President Jim F. Hughes, of Asheville, North Carolina said in kicking-off the public information campaign.

"NTDRA's nearly 5,000 members are happy to join NHTSA and others in this partnership of business of government in urging the public to take a few minutes to register their new tire purchases," Hughes added.

"Independent tire retailers supporting the program are not only obeying the law, they are showing a real concern for their customers," Hughes concluded.

NTDRA members across the country have received showroom display posters urging consumers to take advantage of the voluntary registration program.

This voluntary system of new tire registration is the result of an effort which began in 1979 with NTDRA's efforts to increase the number of tires being registered and, also lift a paperwork burden from the independent tire retailer under the unsuccessful mandatory registration system.

In studying the registration system, NTDRA commissioned an independent nationwide consumer survey, and found that 86.1 percent of those surveyed would or probably would complete and mail the form under a voluntary system.

DNR commits for harvesting salmon in Jordan

A commitment for temporary harvesting of spawning chinook salmon in the Jordan River for the next three years was obtained by a group of Charlevoix County officials, meeting April 13 with Ronald Skoog, director of the Department of Natural Resources.

East Jordan Chamber of Commerce executive-director Judy Shea said the group asked for an effective weir and harvest on the Jordan so that half the salmon won't get upstream while the other half is being collected.

Shea said the DNR will also honor their commitment to plant some salmon in the Jordan, starting in 1985 and continuing for five years.

The concern of the group was for developing sport fishing from small boats and from docks on Lake Charlevoix. Because of problems with placing a weir and lamprey barrier in the Jordan last year, the DNR arranged with Medusa Cement Company to plant some 300,000 salmon fingerlings in the Medusa Creek this spring.

The problem is that most of these fish are not expected to swim around into Lake Charlevoix. Instead they will probably provide sport fishing on Lake Michigan.

Shea said the meeting with the DNR was arranged for the Charlevoix group by Senator Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie. Attending the meeting were Irwin, Shea, county commissioner Tom Breaky, Charlevoix mayor Ken Staley and city commissioner Michael Greeley. East Jordan city superintendent of public works Mike Dionne, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce director Jacqui Merta, and two members of the Natural River Board, Sherman Thomas and David Pray.

Shea said the group members were pleased that the DNR would listen to them. Also attending the meeting with Skoog were three other officials from the DNR, including John Scott, chief of fisheries.

A third concern presented by the group was getting DNR assurance for a lamprey barrier on the Jordan.

Lamprey, which prey on fish, are a serious pest and have been controlled in the past with chemicals in the rivers where they spawn.

The DNR effort to have a barrier in place in the Jordan in 1984 was stymied by engineering problems. Shea said the DNR doesn't expect a solution until 1987, so there will be one more chemical treatment before then if a test shows it is warranted, Shea reported.

Meantime the DNR continues to plant trout for the Jordan and Lake Charlevoix: about 100,000 lake trout, 60,000 rainbow, 30,000 brown, and 10,000 steelhead.

Shea added that local officials are still pushing for a Jordan salmon plant, also.

And the DNR is looking for a pond for walleye. The walleye would be transferred to Lake Charlevoix at maturity. Lake Charlevoix, said the DNR officials, is stocked with more fish than is any other inland lake in the state.

"But we have a lot of work yet to do," said Shea.

ABOARD THE USS IOWA - Where do you hide an 887-foot long, 108-foot wide, 58,000-ton battleship? Nowhere - it doesn't have to hide.

The battleship USS Iowa rejoins the active fleet in full view of Richard M. Vincent of East Jordan, his 1,561 shipmates, and many distinguished guests on April 28 during re-commissioning ceremonies in Pascagoula, Miss.

"Having the chance to commission a battleship is the highlight of my Navy career," the son of Mike and Maggie Vincent, 105 Bowen St. S., East Jordan, said. "It's quite an experience."

"Iowa's commissioning is a significant step toward our goal of a 600-ship Navy," commanding officer Captain Gerald E. Ganeckow said.

"It would have taken five years to build a new battleship - Iowa was reactivated in less than 18 months.

"We were able to do that because the people assigned to Iowa are the cream of the crop. The general consensus here is, if we can't make it work no one can."

"If I had to pick a group of people to man a ship, Iowa's crew would be hired," Senior Chief Petty Officer Vincent said. "They're outstanding sailors. They take great pride in their work, and are striving to make this battleship the best in the fleet."

All the crewmen are "plank owners," members of the ship's initial crew, traditionally entitled to a plank from the ship's deck upon decommissioning.

"Being a plank owner of the Iowa has meant hard work," Vincent said. "I'm proud, and it will be among my fondest memories when I retire."

Commissioning a ship is probably one of the hardest tasks Vincent will ever encounter in his Navy career. Because the commissioning date was moved up two and half months, it meant working 12-hour days, seven days a week.

"During pre-commissioning everyone worked extremely long hard hours," he said. "Because of daily pressures, commissioning a ship is a demanding job. Our crew worked well together and we're finally ready to do what we've been sent here to do - get under way."

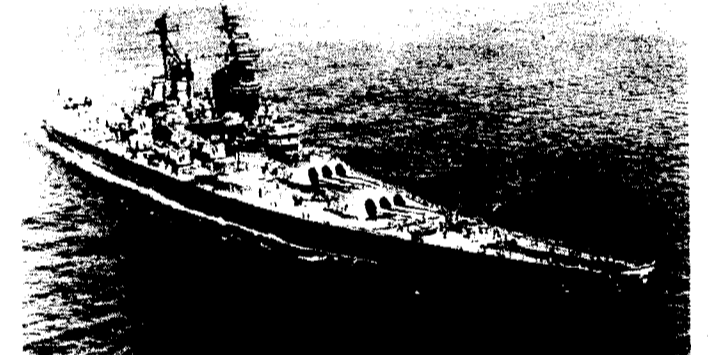

Vincent, a former East Jordan High School student, is a storekeeper. He's the supply supervisor and the administrative assistant to the supply officer. The 25 men he supervises provide supplies for the entire ship.

Iowa was built at the New York Navy Yard, and commissioned on Washington's birthday, 1943. Later that year the ship carried President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the historic Tehran Conference, where the president met with Winston Churchill and Joseph Stalin.

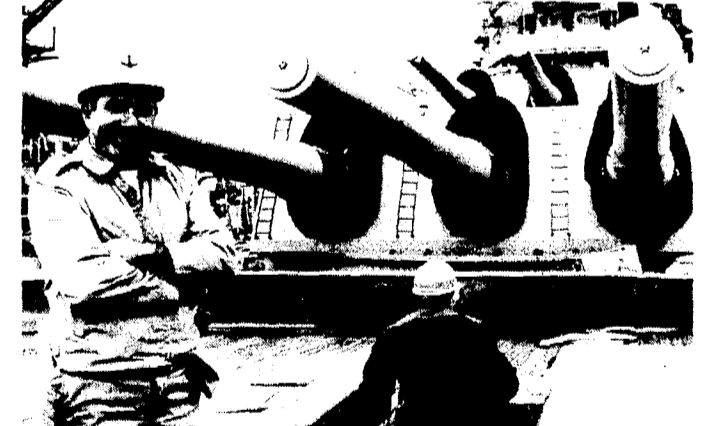

Iowa served as flagship for Adm. William F. Halsey Jr. during surrender ceremonies in Tokyo Bay in 1945, and was decommissioned four years later after participating in numerous cruises and exercises.

The mighty warship was recalled in 1951 to support United Nations forces during the Korean conflict, and added two more battle stars to the seven earned during World War II. Iowa was decommissioned again in 1958 in Philadelphia, and remained there until September 1982.

The ship was moved by tugs to Pascagoula, where Ingalls Shipbuilding Co. workers and ship's personnel com-as it was 40 years ago.

"Before reporting aboard the Iowa, I served aboard the USS New Jersey off the coast of Lebanon," Vincent said. "While on board I realized just how effective battleships are in today's Navy. I'm glad to know battleships are being reactivated—it has been long overdue."

With their addition, and advanced radar and fire control systems, Iowa becomes the ultimate man-of-war, just 2,700 pound shell 23 miles; penetrate 33 feet of reinforced concrete or make a 50-foot-wide, 20-foot-deep crater. Modern weapons systems have also been added to the dreadnought's armament.

Iowa will be temporarily homeported in Norfolk, Va., with plans to move the ship to Staten Island in the late 1980s, along with six other ships. Plans are also in the works to re-activate the other two Iowa-class battleships.

These are the largest battleships afloat. Armor plating, installed to protect vital areas of the ship, ranges from seven to more than 17 inches thick.
