East Jordan opts out of expanded playoffs

East Jordan school board is not eager to go along with Ithaca coach Jim Ahern on a stepped-up school football program.

Ahern, who is a board member of the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, wants to increase the number of teams in the football playoffs. One of the effects of his plan would be for teams to begin working out in pads for three weeks, playing the first game on Labor Day weekend.

At the other end, the playoffs could involve three games in eight or nine days.

No action was taken. The state athletics association had not yet reviewed Ahern's plan.

Boosters in East Jordan are being asked for $5,000 to $10,000 for uniforms for several sports, including junior high girls' basketball. According to athletics director Dennis Snarey, many uniforms are in ragged shape.

Following a month-long study of computerized payrolls, the board authorized superintendent Tom Rossler to contract for eventual adoption of such a system. Rossler said he'd get to the board with information from various companies.

The present bookkeeping machine needs expensive servicing, Rossler said. The board agreed it was time to move into computerized payroll.

A presentation to the board by Chris Shea, director of East Jordan Family Health Center, centered on preventing child abuse. Shea asked the school district for $12,500 in each of the next two years. The center is also applying for a competitive grant, towards funding the program. The board took no action.

Kindergarten teacher Diane Frykberg will be returning in the fall. She has been on maternity leave.

On May 17, students will hold a reception to honor 40 student authors in the school literary magazine and 200 students who produced books during the year. Adults who participated in the year-long creative writing project, have also been invited. The project was initiated by Unlimited Potential.

The board took an enjoyable time out to listen to the senior citizens' chorus. The group has performed at various events in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

At a previous meeting the board approved purchase of a new school bus for about $36,000.

Participants start the 25th annual mushroom hunt. Over 165 people participated in the contest that was held Saturday and completed on Sunday with two inches of snow in the higher hills of Chandler Township.

The winners. From left to right, Tony Williams, winner of the new pro division announces his retirement as a five time champion, while Graham Fineout thinks about how many mushrooms he will have to collect when he has to compete in the pro division next year, because of his first place in the resident division. Irene Mackie, who added another wooden mushroom to her collection out at Walloon Lake looks on with a weary outlook after tromping through the wet woods to find 150 mushrooms for her resident win. Joyce Nicolla from Lancaster, Ohio, took the non resident women's class with only 18 mushrooms found. She beat out the other finalists by 14. Taking the non-resident men classification was Marshall Holmes of Traverse City after he gathered up 148 mushrooms and caps from the snow on Sunday. Other mushroom pictures are on page four.

Mushroomers face weather problems

It was the best in years, but it was also the worst in terms of weather as over 165 morel hunters went out into the fields and woods to try to beat their own personal records or even just to find an elusive morel. Finding them was easy for some. The crop next season may show that this year's contest was excellent by comparison.

Over 7,000 mushrooms were collected in the two day event that started out from Boyne City Saturday morning.

With the opening of a new professional class of mushroom picker, the past national champion, Tony Williams, pulled out his fifth win, taking it in the new class. Williams collected 575 morels and morel caps on Saturday, added another 221 on Sunday to beat out another former winner of the event, Dana Shaler. Shaler collected 528 mushrooms for the weekend.

The pro classification was based on the entire amount of mushrooms collected for the two ninety minute periods.

With Williams moving up in class, Graham Fineout of Boyne City took the win in Sunday's finals when he found 160 mushrooms. Second place went to Bill Kuhn, Boyne City, who collected 114. Third place was taken by Bob Mackie of Walloon Lake after he found 84.

perennial winner, Irene Mackie, Walloon Lake, took first place in the resident women classification with 150 mushrooms. She was followed by Kathy Moore, who found 61 for the second place, and Susan Matison pulled the third place finding 33.

In the non-resident class for men, Marshall Holmes drove up from Traverse City and drove home with the wooden carved mushroom that is given to the winners. He collected 148 during the Sunday collecting time period. Jeff Lindsay, a former Boyne City resident now living in Grand Rapids, took the second place with 117 of the elusive morsels collected. Third place went to former four time champion Paul Whipple of Nunica, Michigan.

In the Women's non-resident classification, Joyce Nicolla, of Lancaster, Ohio found 18 mushrooms on Sunday. Second and third places were tied when Becky Holmes of Traverse City and Karen Lindsay of Grand Rapids could only find four mushrooms in the time period.

The weather, as usual, pulled off its usual thing with a cold blustery Saturday and something worse on Sunday. Two inches of snow had fallen where the collectors were dropped off to start the hunt.

Boyne hires 2 basketball coaches

Boyne City high school will have two new basketball coaches next season after Rick Fowler and Jack Caverly were approved by the board as coaches for the boys' and girls' squads.

They will be replacing Russ Harvey who resigned last week after some parents objected to the way he was coaching.

The school board also had a discussion about a tuition student in the system who, through an oversight, has not been charged.

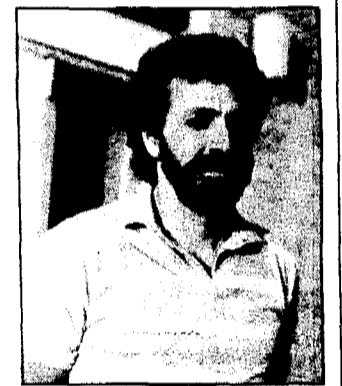

The board asked that the administration invite the concerned parents to the next board meeting to hear their side of the argument before they make a decision.

They also approved the use of two baseball fields at the elementary school, the high school hardball and softball fields by the city parks and recreation as well as the little league teams for practice fields.

The board then went into a closed session so that they could work on the continuing negotiations with the teachers unions.

RICK FOWLER

JACK CAVERLY

Both have experience as coaches

Rick Fowler, the new basketball coach is not new to the Boyne City school system as he was the junior varsity coach last season as well as the cross country coach.

Fowler has been involved with coaching sports since his graduation from Central Michigan University in 1977.

His first coaching assignment was in Boyne City with the eighth grade basketball team in 1977-78. Then he moved to the high school where he coached wrestling for two years.

After being laid off from the system in 1981, he went to work at Stevenson School System, in the Upper Peninsula as the JV basketball and assistant football coach. Stevenson is a real powerhouse school system having beat Charlevoix some years back in the state tournaments in basketball.

Fowler returned to Boyne City in 1982 and started coaching the cross country teams. This past year, he coached cross country and the boys' JV basketball team.

Fowler has been involved with sports since high school playing on the football teams, track teams, and basketball teams. His minor at CMU was in physical education with an emphasis on coaching.

Jack Caverly, named Monday night as the new girls' varsity coach, has eight years of coaching experience in both the middle school and high school levels.

A hair stylist at a local salon, he has worked with the Boyne Falls and East Jordan schools as the girls' JV basketball coach, the boys' JV coach at East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

In high school, he competed for Hale, Michigan on a team that went as far as the quarter finals in the state tournaments.

Caverly said that he is excited about the opportunity to coach the varsity squad and said he favors a "run and gun" type of game where his team can control the tempo of the game. He also said that he would like to see a continuing program down to the sixth grade so the athletics coming up will be used to a system of coaching that is the same throughout the school system.

Both new coaches will be stressing the basics of the game. Fowler and Caverly said that more games are won from the free throw line, and are lost for lack of basic skills.

Veterans' Park will get its Veterans' Memorial this spring in time for Memorial Day. Digging in preparation for the steel arch are Ralph Moore and Leonard Zarembo. Also involved were Jim Bates, Max Houck, Steve Treach, and Elmer Hammontrous.

MR. AND MRS. BRYAN E. GRAHAM

Grahams united in afternoon ceremony

In an afternoon ceremony performed by Pastor Roger Freed at the Bellaire Wesleyan Church, Patricia A. Baker became the bride of Bryan E. Graham on April 28, 1984.

Patricia, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Baker of Bellaire, chose a gown of Chantilly lace trimmed in dacron organza with beaded silk Venice lace motifs at the bodice, waist and wrist; a Queen Ann neckline, leg o'mutton sleeves and a semi-cathedral train. A cascade of ruffles of alternating Chantilly and sheer lace, with pencil edging, formed the skirt. A finger-tip veil with Juliet headpiece inlaid with lace, seed pearls and silk flowers completed the ensemble. She carried a cascade of spring silk flowers accented with babies' breath.

Mrs. Kathy Moore served as matron of honor for her friend, and bridesmaids were Charlotte Baker, sister of the bride; Sheryl Kirks, Kathy Kassuba and Linda Harp, all friends of the bride. They were dressed in lilac taffeta with matching short sleeved jackets, and carried wicker baskets with spring silk flowers of yellow, pink, lilac and white.

Jolain Horst, niece of the groom, and Misty Baker, niece of the bride, acted as flower girls for Patricia, wearing lilac dotted Swiss dresses trimmed in white lace. They carried white lace baskets with silk flowers.

Robert Myers served his friend as best man, and groomsmen were A. Joseph Relation, Steven McCloskey, Thomas Francis, and David Corretore. Serving as ushers for Bryan were friends James Young and Victor Hughson, and his brother-in-law, Woody Horst. Ringbearer was Joseph Baker, cousin of the bride.

Bryan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Graham of Miles Rd., East Jordan.

After a reception at the Hilton Shanty Creek Bellaire Room, Patricia and Bryan left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. They will make their home in Bellaire.

A rehearsal dinner was held April 27 at the Ricciardi Restaurant of Eastport.

Patricia is a 1979 graduate of Bellaire High School and is employed at Valley View Pharmacy in Bellaire.

Bryan is a 1977 graduate of East Jordan High School, graduated from Alma College in 1980 with a B.A. in History, and from Notre Dame Law School in 1983. He is presently Antrim County Assistant Prosecutor.

INSURING MICHIGAN'S FUTURE

"The demand for electricity in the United States closely tracks our economic activity. If our economic output increases, the consumption of electricity goes up. If our economy is stagnant, the demand for electricity stays flat. It's been that way for more than fifty years."

Dr. Chauncey Starr,
Vice Chairman
Electric Power Research Institute

POWER TO GROW

Electric use grows at a rate approximately equal to the growth rate of the Gross National Product. The two track side-by-side. One cannot grow without the other. Careful studies of that relationship since the 1973 oil embargo have demonstrated conclusively that economic activity and electric consumption are linked more closely today than ever before. As our economy grows, so grows our electric use.

In a previous message on these pages we discussed the issue of electric energy supply in Michigan and how we must increase that supply by completing ongoing construction projects. As you have almost certainly read or seen, not everyone agrees with us on that issue. There are those who say we need no new generating plants, that our forecasts of growth are too high, that we can get by for a number of years with just the generating plants we have operating today. But think a minute. If electric consumption in our state is not going to grow appreciably in the 1990s, as some sources suggest, and given the interrelationship of electric consumption and our economy, what they are really saying is that Michigan is going to stagnate economically, that our economy is going to grow barely, if at all, in the coming decade.

We simply cannot accept that proposition. We're not predicting nor are we building for an economic boom in Michigan. We're predicting and building for a very modest growth rate. Our projection for growth parallels that of Detroit Edison, which forecasts increases of 2.6 percent per year, and those of utilities in Ontario, Ohio and other nearby states whose forecasts range from 2.1 to 2.8 percent per year. Even the Michigan Public Service Commission staff forecast of Consumers Power's load growth is virtually identical to ours until about the year 1993.

ENOUGH TO GO AROUND?

But there are also those who say it doesn't matter if our forecasts are more accurate than theirs, that it doesn't matter if we're right in our planning. Sure, they say, we may be short on our own electric capacity, but that's all right, we can just buy power from those utilities that are building for the future.

Perhaps. But will there be enough power available to us from others, and what will be the price of that power? Look again at the growth forecasts for the utilities around us, those from whom we would be buying power. That growth is in their areas and states and provinces, not ours. We have no guarantee that those utilities will build enough new capacity to meet their own needs, let alone ours. If they do, they will sell power to others only after they have served their own people and industry, and the power they sell will be the most expensive power they produce. Right now we have the lowest electric rates in Michigan. If we depend upon other utilities to supply our customers with power, that will no longer be the case.

ENERGY DEPENDENCE?

Is that the way we plan for the future in Michigan? Is that a rational course of action when one of the highest priorities of our state is to encourage industrial expansion and attract new business? In the wake of the 1973 oil embargo one concept was burned into the minds of most Americans: Energy independence. No longer would we trust our energy future to others; we would control our own destiny.

At Consumers Power Company our goal for almost a century has been to provide power to our customers when they want it and need it. That's the basis of our planning, the blueprint for our construction. By carrying through with our plans we intend to ensure that our customers hold the key to the future—a reliable electric energy supply—in their own hands.

Remembrances

This view of the VanPlaten lumber mill, which was located in the north Boyne area of town, shows how high the scaffolding was that the workers took the lumber off of to stack on the ground for drying. The freshly cut lumber was pushed on small railcars out to the drying areas by the workers. The railroad tracks on the ground were for the incoming lumber that was cut from the hills around the area and brought to the mill for cutting by train. If you have any pictures of the early days that you would like to share with our readers, bring them in and we'll copy them.

Damaged Paper

Intentional Retake

Barbara Cruden

This is the time of year you stand on a ridge in the woods to see the sun light up the pale new green, and to watch the bluejays fly through the high avenues overhead, bird avenues, just under the highest arching branches.

Our neighbors still have birds coming to their feeder. A couquette bluejay bobs up and down and warbles till her favorite chevalier bluejay comes over and feeds her a sunflower seed.

A black-and-white woodpecker takes his seed to a well-worn slot he's made by encouraging a splinter to spread a little farther out from the post. He inserts the seed and proceeds to peck it open. A tool-user bird?

From each point of the compass, the brown thrasher is staking out his territory. No question that it's the brown thrasher. No other bird sings like that. A large repertoire of inventions, each one sung twice. Hear it? Two chirps followed by two warbles, followed by two trills, followed by two guttural calls, and on and on in rapid succession.

How does he think them up so fast! The birds also seem to think he is a wonder. They stop in mid-song when the thrasher begins.

Indigo buntings are here again. Soon the warblers will come through in mixed groups, picnicking quickly from tree to tree, moving northward even while they eat.

A bird lover can go happily wild, trying to identify these little sparks of yellow and orange. There are 50 different kinds. Some of them stay here, but never will they be as identifiable as now, before the leaves are fully out.

In Mexico, where they spend their winters, they are called candelita, or "little torches," a much better name.

For those who would like to attract more birds in summertime, the Garden Club of America supplies a list of plants and trees whose berries are bird favorites.

Here are some: pin cherry, crabapple, cotoneaster, shrub dogwoods (those red-stemmed bushes found in low places), hemlock (cut to make a high hedge), Russian mulberry, Russian olive, white pine, shadbush (also called serviceberry), all kinds of viburnum, and bachelor buttons, sunflowers, coreopsis, and marigolds for their seeds.

And have a birdbath, not more than two inches deep, placed in the open so birds can see if a predator comes, but near enough to shrubs so they can make it to safety with their wet wings.

For protection against cats, one of the new hanging bird baths is good, but baths should get fresh water every day, so don't hang it out of reach. And put it where you can watch your little song sparrow neighbor, the most enthusiastic of bath-takers, dipping and splashing three and four times a day.

The sun has set, now. The brown thrasher has made it back to point A on the compass. The clock says 9 p.m. as his last performance of the day concludes. Maybe tomorrow will bring the candelitas.

Dana Shaller, the second place winner in the pro classification said that he was surprised to find the snow, although he knew that the record for finding mushrooms was just after another snowfall back in the early seventies. Over 900 were found in that ninety minute period that year.

What Shaler was hoping for, so he could catch up with Williams, wasn't

Short meeting okays Glen's bonds

There were reasons why the meeting was short, and the biggest one is that there were no objections to the building of Glen's Market in the former Country Star location.

After a very short public hearing, Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick closed the hearing and the commissioners voted to approve the bond sale of $1.3 million dollars.

The bonds, which Glen's now has approval to sell, are tax-exempt revenue bonds from the city's economic development corporation, and will be used to pay for the renovation of the 35,000 square foot building.

The financing does not involve any city monies and the city is not liable for the debt, according to the way the economic development corporation structured the bond sale.

Mushroomers

The mushroom that was placed in the Boyne City area was found by Kathy Gilmore of Boyne City in lot 111 at Young State Park.

Each winner of that contest won a $100 savings bond donated by local area banks and $75 in cash.

The mushroom giveaway that was sponsored by the Boyne City merchants featured a $100 savings bond. It was won by David Feemster from Clearwater, Florida, who was up her to participate in the hunt.

Entries for the hunt this year came from as far away as California, Louisiana, and Florida.

Consumers says thanks

Editor,
Last week's windstorm tested the ability and stamina of Consumers Power Company's employees and the good humor and patience of thousands of our customers. During this storm there were instances of customers having service restored once only to have it lost again as the storm continued. All told, the number of outages reached more than 370,000. In the Northern Region alone 59,000 customers were out of service for varying periods of time.

I would like to express my thanks to our customers for their cooperation and patience as our employees worked tirelessly to restore service. The widespread nature of the damage from wind and falling trees and branches made this storm worse than those of 1976 and 1980 in some respects.

I am proud of the way the men and women of the Northern Region responded to this emergency. They showed me once again how devoted they are to maintaining service to our customers. I believe they also proved their devotion to duty and to the public we serve.

All of us are pleased that the restoration work was performed safely—a real achievement under the difficult circumstances our line crews encountered.

Sincerely,
John Goense

Wants support for police

Editor,
President Reagan has declared May 13-19 National Police Week. During this time, we honor those men and women who daily risk their lives to protect us from violent crime.

The Congress should show its gratitude to these officers by passing the Law Enforcement Officers Protection Act. This legislation, sponsored by Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Congressman Mario Biaggi (a 23-year veteran of the New York City Police Department who was wounded 10 times in the line of duty), would ban the manufacture and sale of cop-killer bullets—ammunition designed to penetrate the bulletproof vests worn by police. The bill would also require a mandatory jail sentence for using cop-killer bullets in a crime.

Handgun Control has joined the nation's police in urging Congress to pass this common-sense measure. Already 200 Senators and Representatives have endorsed the bill. But the National Rifle Association has launched a multi-million dollar campaign to defeat the measure.

We urge citizens across America to contact their legislators during Police Week and ask them to support the cop-killer bullet ban. It's time the Congress stood up to the misguided NRA.

EJ schools start new program

"We have a philosophy for it," said Arline Rullman, who is coordinating the new kindergarten program in East Jordan.

"We had that philosophy in effect with our preschool program for seven years. It's helping parents teach their children."

The philosophy, in brief, is that the school staff feels that parents are the most important teachers the children will have. Rullman said that when school and home can work together, education improves.

The philosophy will go into effect in the fall for at least one of the four sections of kindergarten. Parents will spend one half day a week at school, working with their child in a class project, and also meeting with the other parents and a teacher in discussion sessions.

Neither parents nor children are required to enter the program. It is a matter of choice, but, Rullman said, superintendent Tom Rossler believes it gives the best start in school. Rullman credits the superintendent for his vigorous support of the program. At the school board meeting last week Rossler said, "We need to establish this partnership."

He said the plan would give parents more input in their children's education. Parents are being invited to a meeting soon on the plan. Rullman said, depending on parents' desires, more than one of the four sections of kindergarten could participate.

The program has already been applied to the junior primary class, Rullman said. Part of parents' one half day a week, she said, has been spent with Marion Friedly, who has taught them "specific activities to do with their child to reinforce what the children were learning at the classroom."

One of the side effects, Rullman said, is that "parents discover a new, comfortable relationship with their child." The activities provide enjoyment for both parent and child, and, Rullman noted, the children all enjoy having their parents' interest.

It also makes more clear to them the importance of education when they see their parents' participation, Rullman said. "And we want the parents' feedback so we can cooperate with them in their child's education."

In a comparison of tests given before and after use of the program, results showed that children whose parents were involved had the highest gains.

Do children ever show anxiety or resentment when their parents are in the classroom? Rullman answers with an emphatic no. "I've always had lots of parents in my room," she said. Rullman will be one of the kindergarten teachers in the new program.

She has also been involved in the pre-school program in which parents have participated over the last seven years.

The program details were first organized at Redford public school, near Detroit, Rullman said. She explained that the state is promoting good programs which can be duplicated. East Jordan obtained a one-time grant to get it started here and to get training for those involved.

For parents who wish to participate, but can't come daytimes, Rullman said, there will be once-a-week evening sessions.

At the school board meeting, Rossler called it "a tremendous education for all of us." He added that it is an idea that could possibly be extended on up through the elementary grades.

As reading coordinator Pam Allen put it, "It's for the entire community. We ask, 'What are your needs? How can we help meet them?'"

Granary-Tannery lot split OK'd

A lot split, recommended by the Boyne City planning and zoning board, received approval following a public hearing at the city commission's noon meeting Tuesday. Terry Toomey said the split makes possible the separation of the two businesses involved, The Tannery and The Granary. Toomey said he was doing it for a future resale of the buildings, but he would not comment on how soon.

The change will not affect liquor licensing, he said, adding that the bar is not being leased out.

City manager Randy Frykberg asked the commission to make a formal resolution on Peninsula Beach. The city is submitting a grant application for $430,000 for beach improvement, to be shared 50 percent by the state and 50 percent by the city.

Frykberg said Department of Natural Resources procedure require a specific statement in the resolution for the Land and Water Conservation Fund Grant.

The city expects to be responsible for $65,000, mostly in city labor. The rest of the $215,000 would be picked up by The Harborage developers, Frykberg said.

Funding is being sought for a man-made peninsula, parking facilities, and other improvements. The peninsula is essential in protecting the beach as well as the swimming area from strong winds. It will also prevent boaters from coming in too near the swimming area.

Frykberg said the state decision on the grant application will not be made till fall. Meantime the city will set out buoys to mark off the swimming area.

Mushroom madness takes over Boyne

Contestants in the contest listen to the final explanation of the rules before they were allowed to go out in the ninety minute period to search out the mushrooms.

Over one hundred cars filed out to the hunting ground and waited to find a place to park in the area around Five Corners.

Lining up prior to the mushroom hunters parade through town before heading out to the secret hunting ground was a fine place to renew acquaintances with fellow mushroomers.

The count was done inside a local building where the members of the Lions Club spent over an hour counting out the mushrooms of the contestants.

A quarter of a century old business in East Jordan will soon have a new look. The East Jordan Lumber Company has recently changed hands. The recent opening of McRea Simmons Lumber Company will mark a new era of expansion and change at the old lumber company site and an expanding business move for new owner Murray MacDonald.

The reputable McRea Simmons Lumber Company first opened its doors over 60 years ago in Pellston, where the company has established itself as a competitive and growing lumber company.

Murray MacDonald, a resident of Petoskey, will be running the new East Jordan business, while his son Murray MacDonald Jr., will take care of business in Pellston.

Plans for expansion include a totally remodeled store showroom with increased lines of hardware, paint, glass, screen repair and garden tools.

"We have purchased a semi tractor trailer rig to carry inventories between Pellston and East Jordan," Murray said. "This will offer a wider selection of inventory for our customers."

New storage facilities will secure a larger inventory for the new lumber company and two new delivery trucks will help the company in serving a wider county radius.

Management of the McRea Simmons Lumber Company will remain the job of Joel Evans, a previous employee of the East Jordan Lumber Company for 20 years. A new employee of the company is Joy Murray of East Jordan.

"We've kept the key people of the old company intact," said MacDonald.

The East Jordan Lumber Company was previously owned by Kenneth Diller of East Jordan and George Light of Norwood.

Rendezvous successful for shooters

BY JERRY FROATS

The weekend's Rendezvous turned out to be quite an affair as shooters turned out from as far away as Flint and Newberry. There were forty-two men and nine women competitors. Costumes were of Indian-squaws, French traders, Union and Confederate soldiers, and early settlers dress.

Competition was humorous and jovial as the awards were split by folks from all around the state. There were no perfect scores, and many of the contests were decided by shoot-offs. The women's 50 yd milk jug event required four shoot-offs.

Many of the visitors camped overnight in teepees, tents, and campers to enjoy the beautiful weather that kept the night from becoming too cold.

Traders sold jewelry, shooting equipment, tomahawks and knives, tanned skins, and many other frontier type items.

The Jordan River Sportsmans Club, sponsors of the event, are expecting nearly twice as many shooters to attend their second Rendezvous in August.

Honors list

Russell Hoffman, a senior from East Jordan was one of 412 students inducted into Sigma Iota Epsilon at Central Michigan University on May 5. Sigma Iota Epsilon is a scholastic business and management honorary.

Heath Green was among 72 Michigan 4-H members and volunteer leaders to attend the 1984 Capitol Experience, April 30-May 2 in Lansing.

Green represents county at capitol experience

Heath Green, of Charlevoix, represented Charlevoix County April 30-May 2 at the 1984 4-H Capitol Experience in Lansing. He was one of 72 Michigan 4-H youth and volunteer leaders participating in the event.

"The purposes of the activity were to acquaint Michigan 4-Hers with legislative and governmental processes and to encourage them to get involved in public affairs on local, county, regional, state and national levels," explains Leah Green, Charlevoix County Extension 4-H program assistant.

The youths attended sessions on state government, met with media representatives who cover the capital, visited the Capitol, including the governor's office and the Senate and House chambers, and talked with representatives of several state agencies.

The 4-H members spent one afternoon working on a community service project of their choice, ranging from assisting a local food bank to lending a hand at a child abuse center in Lansing.

After returning to Charlevoix County, Green will help organize a community action program, using knowledge he gained through the Capitol Experience program.

The program was sponsored by the MSU Cooperative Extension Service 4-H—Youth and Natural Resources and Public Policy programs.

Senior Vice Commander Clifford Green, Jordan Valley Post 7580, was elected commander of the 13th district for 1984-85.
