Boyne school sports funding problem solved

With acting president of the Boyne City school board Richard Wulff saying that the board is "not ruling out any sport that gives kids the most opportunity within the budget constraints, the board acted to save most of the minor sports program that the school system offers.

Saved were the sports of wrestling, the reinstatement of golf on the paid coaching level, and the reinstatement of the ninth grade basketball program.

Additionally the board authorized the spending of funds for ninth grade football and the paying of the middle school basketball transportation costs.

The only sport that was dropped from this year's sport schedules is girls' volleyball.

The program, which was presented to the board as a package program and was unanimously approved by all those present at the special meeting held last Monday night, will cost the school system an additional $3,600. The money will come out of the fund equity the system has, according to superintendent Rich Kelly.

The package plan was reached by a special committee to work out the sports problem after the board last week was asked to eliminate the sports of wrestling and volleyball by the athletic director who said that the programs did not warrant support due to lack of participants. The committee worked hard, according to one of the members, to come up with a consensus package, which would permit the greatest number of students to be involved with the athletic program.

Specifically, the wrestling will be retained as an intramural sport still utilizing volunteer coaches. There is still a possibility of inter-scholastic matches, and the school system will pick up the coaches' mileage. The school system will not be participating in the sport as a league entrant, but the wrestlers will still have the ability to go to invitational events as well as participate in regional and state meets if they qualify.

According to the consensus package of the board, the sport may be recommended to the funding level if the number of participants merit, and the principal and the athletic director approve.

Ninth grade basketball will be started again, although the board said that no games may be more than 35 miles one way and the team is limited to just 12 games for the season. The distance means that most of the games will be between neighboring school districts rather than league rivals.

Ninth grade football was instated because of the large turnout of athletes for the team. Twenty-nine players were out for the sport. They are limited to five games this year with two of the five to be played at home.

Middle school basketball will still have volunteer coaches, but the transportation costs of the team to go to games will be picked up by the school system.

The board made a special effort to acknowledge the support that the sports boosters club supplied to the sports program over the years and thanked them for their efforts. The board hopes that the close working relationship with the club will continue.

In the only other action to come before the school board in their special meeting, was the request for a property transfer with the Boyne Falls school system.

The request was made by Richard May on some property that he owns that is not able to be serviced by the Boyne City school system. He asked that the property be transferred to the Boyne Falls district as it can supply the bus service to whomever is going to live in the house. May presently lives on the property, and has been providing the transportation of his children to the Boyne City schools. To have a Boyne City school bus service, the property, which is surrounded by Boyne Falls school district properties, would require the Boyne City school bus to make a four mile trip out of the way to reach the property. During the winter months, the road is very hazardous for a bus to travel and the school system said that they would not be able to provide the transportation to the students.

The property transfer, if approved by the Char-Em Intermediate School District, applies to the taxes that are produced by the properties and not to real estate owned by either school system.

The board approved a request to have the Char-Em board approve the transfer if the Boyne City schools can pick up some properties of equal value from the Boyne Falls district. The Char-Em board will meet on the question within the next few weeks.

In arguing for the transfer, May told the board that the question of transferring the property should be made on the basis of safety for the students, not the question of the taxes gained or lost. He told the board that he didn't think the conditions of trading taxes should be considered for the request.

According to board member Larry Monshor, "If we give, we should also get."

The board is asking that Char-Em in looking at the request give the Boyne City schools the taxes from four parcels that are currently going to Boyne Falls in place of the May property. That way, said the board, both schools will still have about the same income from taxes as before.

Youth corps workers are slowly making their way up the hill in the Avalanche Preserve, building steps as they go. The steps will allow sight seers access to the top for the view of the Boyne City, Lake Charlevoix area. Every few feet, they are building rest benches so that those not in condition to go up the stairs non-stop can rest. They hope to have the project completed by the color tour season.

East Jordan approves .5 mill increase for '84-'85 year after hearing

Projected utility increases and improvements in the curriculum prompted the East Jordan administration to approve a .5 mill increase in school taxes for the 1984-85 school year after the system held a public hearing on August 14.

The hearing attracted no public input and allowed the school board to set the millage at 31.3 mills.

The increase is expected to boost local revenue by 4.7 percent or $79,780.

In regular session Tuesday, the board selected the low bid of Northwestern State Bank to finance a $700,000 loan at an interest rate of 7.285 percent.

The board was pleased with the low bids submitted and board president Mary Jason attributed the low rates to be a reflection of the board's faith in Rossler and his financial management of the school district.

Following a recommendation by Rossler, the board moved to freeze hot lunch prices for the first semester of the 1984-85 school year, which is set to open Tuesday, Sept. 5. The prices will remain at 70 cents for elementary and middle school students, 75 cents for high school students and $1.50 for adults. Ala Carte items, which vary in price, will also remain the same.

Rossler said that in all probability hot lunch prices will remain the same for the entire school year.

The board moved to hire Becky Gengle of Petoskey to teach special education classes for a one year probationary period in the absence of Peg Johnson who is on sabbatical. Ms. Gengle is a graduate of Central Michigan University and comes highly recommended, according to Rossler.

A letter of resignation was accepted, with regret, by the board from kindergarten teacher Mary Louise Johnson, who moved to New Jersey.

A drop in the number of kindergarten students enrolled for the coming school year will result in four instead of five kindergarten sections this fall, according to Rossler. Rossler reported that the number of students is expected to drop from 106 to 95.

Sherry Gaunt, a kindergarten aide, will be laid off for the year due to the decrease in students, Rossler said.

The board adopted a district transportation policy designed to formalize the transportation department. Rossler explained that the policy, which has been under consideration for the past year, will hopefully create a shared responsibility between students, parents, bus drivers, and administration concerning transportation conduct.

The transportation policy will be included in the 1984-85 student handbook which the board hopes to have circulated by mid-September.

Merchants plan Moonlight Sale

Boyer City merchants are setting up the final plans so that the annual Moonlight Sale will be a successful event this Thursday night.

The sale begins at 7 p.m. and will last until 10 p.m. in the downtown section of Boyne City.

One of the more popular events planned is the third annual pet show where the children of the area are asked to bring their favorite pet downtown and compare the pet with others from the area. The pet show will start at 7:30 in front of the Dairy Queen.

Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a talent show—non-competitive—from 8 to 10 p.m. at the end of Water Street.

Planners OK project, PRD, reject two others

Site plans and a rezoning request for Planned Residential Development were approved for the Brooks-Dietze Development, Inc. The developers are proposing to build two 16 unit apartment buildings on Division Street, while two other requests for PRD rezonings were turned down at last Monday night's Boyne City Planning Advisory Board meeting.

The approval for the apartment buildings came after the planners went through a 14 point criteria that the developers of the project had to meet. Each point was thoroughly discussed by the planners, who had some concerns over what the project could do in terms of increasing the density factors for the area, and whether or not the project needs to be fenced to lessen the exposure to the public lands that surround it. The land is surrounded by city property.

The only change that the developers will have to make in their plans that were presented, is that they will have to increase the amount of parking to two cars per unit. Their drawings indicated that space was allocated for only one car per unit.

The approval of the planners recommending to the city commission to okay is one of the last steps that had to be taken before the Farmers' Home Administration will allow the funding for the project to be released to the developers.

The developers have been working on the project since 1979 and have had to revise their plans to meet the present day market needs as to the number of units that the city and the area could fill.

The apartments, which will be on a site near the base of the Avalanche Preserve, are located on property presently owned by John Kujawski on Division Street. The developers have an option to buy the land that totals 10 acres. The project will only be built on three acres. The remaining property will be held until market conditions warrant the building of additional units sometime in the future if needed.

Scott Dietze, one of the developers proposing the apartments, hopes to have construction start in September with occupancy ready by January of 1985.

The apartments will consist of six one-bedroom, 24 two-bedroom, and two one-bedroom apartments for handicapped citizens.

The PRD requests that were turned down by the planners included a proposed rezoning by Gregg and Margaret Smith for a 10 acre parcel that they own on Hull Street, and a request from Marshall and Thelma Behling for a 10 acre parcel that they own on Division Street.

Both were turned down because of the lack of a site plan for the proposed rezoning.

The planners cited the requirement that all rezoning requests should have a site plan as to the proposed use of the property in question.

In making the determination to deny, the planners said that the requests failed to meet a certain paragraph in the zoning ordinance.

The planners did not say that the request would be denied in the future if the proper conditions were presented to the board.

The planners also cited comment from Johnson, Johnson and Roy, the makers of the city's comprehensive zoning plan, who said in a conversation Monday with Kate DeRosier, that PRD zoning does change the complexity of the area. Basically, according to DeRosier, the request would mean that the property in question would almost automatically be able to have the present R-3 zoning density, although it would have some control with the open areas, and other controls available to the planners and the developers.

In other action by the planners, they proposed to have J J & R work with them on some of the site plans and rezoning requests that will be coming up in the future.

The planners want to have the firm review the requests and make changes before they come in front of the planners.

"None of us are professional planners on this board and none are on the city commission," said DeRosier. "We should have professional help to guide us in making the decisions."

Developer Rick Smith, who was in the audience, told the board that he agrees the city should have the input from JJ & R as it would help the city to see where it is going in relation to the comprehensive plan that they helped to set up.

Commissioners say no money for review

The recommendations by the Boyne City planning board reached city commissioners Tuesday this week. In regard to consultation with the firm of Johnson, Johnson, and Roy, on the plans for Country Inn and marina extension, commissioners said no funds exist in the budget for asking advice from JJ&R.

They agreed with developer Rick Smith that such consultation would be useful to the city as well as to the developers, but added that if Lake Associates wanted the consultation, the fee would have to be their responsibility.

City commissioners also reviewed the decisions of the planners regarding owners of undeveloped parcels who also wish for PRD assignation. These were denied because of lack of site plans, but an argument persists that according to law they did not have to have a site plan. The request was referred again to the planning board for action.

There will be three vacancies in the planning board by fall, with one vacancy already existing on the nine person board and two more with the up-coming resignations of Kate DeRosier and Don Toffolo due to residence change.

Commissioner Thelma Behling requested that the need for replacements be widely disseminated.

The contractors for the entire project hope to get the condominium-hotel under construction this fall if they can get the approvals from the city.

The hotel complex, as is presently proposed, will contain 51 units and, according to Smith, the developers, will feature a turn-of-the-century motif so that it blends in with the rest of the development and the city.

The developers want to get the approval of the planning board and the city commission so that construction could start before the winter sets in.

The entire plan, along with the proposed expansion of the marina at The Harborage, will be discussed at the next planning board meeting which will be held in September.

The planners also gave their okay for a public hearing to have another lot split on property owned by Neville, Michael Weeks and John Clark. The property is known as the Amber Oven, located in the Central Business District, and the split would separate the parking lot from the building. The split was asked for by John Buick who is acting for the Weeks and Clark concerns.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS A. CARPENTER

Laura Rose Moore weds Louisiana man

In an afternoon ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church of Boyne City on August 11, performed by the Rev. Milton Walls, Jr., Laura Rose Moore became the bride of Thomas Alan Carpenter of Lafayette, Louisiana.

Laura is the daughter of Owen and Arlene Moore of Boyne City and Tom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown of Boyne City, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Carpenter of Lake Odessa.

Dawn Peterson of Petoskey was maid of honor for her sister, and Cindy Moore of Afton, also a sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. Friend of the bride, Sara Hildebrandt of Gaylord, also served as bridesmaid.

The bride's gown featured a brocade and lace bodice with ruffles and a high neckline. The Bishop sleeves were made of English lace and brocade. Her skirt, with chapel length train, was sheer organza with a flounce tapering down the front. A derby type hat with attached veil and satin ribbon completed Laura's costume. She carried long stemmed pink roses with greenery and babies breath. The dresses of the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were of mauve pink calico with ruffled yokes and puffed sleeves. They carried pink silk roses made by the bride. Corsages and boutonnières were also made by the bride.

Mike Bates of Mulliken, and brother-in-law of the groom, served him as best man. Groomsmen were Ron Massey and Kevin Wilson, friends of the groom. Brothers of the bride, Scrap and Mitch Moore, served as ushers.

After a reception at the F.O.E. Hall in Boyne City, a buffet dinner for 200 guests, the couple left for a visit to the upper peninsula. They will make their home in Lafayette, Louisiana, where Tom is employed at Butler Drugs in Boyne City.

Both Laura and Tom are graduates of Boyne City High School and Central Michigan University.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, parents of the groom, at Country Star Restaurant.

Senior Olympics coming Sept. 6-7 at TC

The Senior Olympics Committee today announced the Sixth Annual Senior Olympics will be held September 6-7, at several locations in Traverse City. This two-day event for those 55 and over brings more than 150 people from the 10-county Northwest Michigan region annually to participate in many of the activities.

Events include tennis and table tennis at Northwestern Michigan College; shuffleboard, euchre, 8-ball pool and women's horseshoes at the Senior Center, 801 Front Street; frisbee golf, walking and running events, cycling, basketball shoot, frisbee toss, softball throw, men's horseshoes, swimming, and sidekick soccer at the Civic Center on Front Street; bowling at Wildwood Lanes on S. Fairfield; and golf at the Elmbrook Golf Course on E. Hammond Road.

First, second and third-place awards will be presented at a banquet Friday, September 7, 5:30 p.m., at the Masonic hall on W. Bay Shore Rd. Competition will be based on sex and age for all events except tennis, shuffleboard, and field events. Awards will be given to the oldest male and female participants to take part in a sports activity. A special award will be given to the best time in the women's 25 yard backstroke competition.

There is a non-refundable two-dollar registration fee and the deadline for registration is September 4.

Promotional Senior Olympic T-shirts, caps and visors will be available for sale before and during the Senior Olympics. For more information, to register or order promotional items, call the Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging (616) 947-8920.

THE RUSH IS OFF

Flash! Our five acres of wild blackberries will be ripe in about a week or so. At that time I shall dig up that old story about the bears in there eating them. That will serve to hold back half the town from rushing out here, pails in hand—until we, the owners, have gulped our fill. After that they're yours, bears and all. (Actually, I was just kidding. If you want to be bear eaten, it ain't no business of mine.)

DOG DAYS HAVE BROKEN

THE CHAIN

Twenty-one days until Labor Day. What in thunder happened to hot and dry or wet and humid—Summer, that is? Like the speed of light, it vanished. Nothing left but a national election campaign, a couple of full moons and a worry that our Detroit Tigers will stub their toes. School will start soon and that will tie the bag. Summer will be kaput and we will be wandering knee deep in fall. The poets call it Autumn, but I call it menopause and look not forward to the kind of weather that comes upon its heels. (Like alcohol and gasoline, winter and a ripe old age are not compatible.)

GRADUATES GO BACK TO SCHOOL

The old Boyne City Central school building still stood at the corner of Park and Main Streets a few nights ago. That's when nearly 100 men and women attended an "all graduate" dinner and program at the Depot Restaurant.

They were there from the class of 1917 to the class of 1945. Memories of some of the things that happened at school during those years were discussed and, as our early day society reporters used to say, a good time was had by all.

Violet Manglos and Gerry Williams arranged the meeting and Dick Dixon was master of ceremonies. Boyd Heaton also attended.

FUDDY DUDDIES AIN'T HELP

Now, to compare grade school kids today with those in the old grade school back when cigar boxes were made of wood.

Here's the comparison: I took a young school boy by the hand and began to explain the facts of life and about the birds and bees. I know I had graduated 50 years too soon when the young fellow listened politely, shook his head and then started to bring me up to date.

CRY, CRY, CRY

During grade school days I was brought up on johnny cake, corn meal mush and dandelion greens. (During the Depression, anyway.)

But, wow! We have a granddaughter who, like a lot of kids today, reached fourteen drinking coke and eating potato chips. Sometimes I think that if there were no Dairy Queens, half of the kids in the country would fall sick. But the thing that bothers me most is how kids can do their homework during the commercials and still get better marks than I did.

Truth is, I'm frustrated. I would not care to be sixteen again, but at the same time I envy the free and easy life our kids have today. No outhouses, no patched pants, no poolroom for your parents to drag you out of. What a deal!

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

This is one of those weeks, you know, when summer is almost over and you haven't done any of all the things that you planned on doing back in May or June when it first started.

And the problem is that you have just had time to reflect on all the things that you did not get time to do.

In my case, I have been planning for the last three years to go down to Buckley, Michigan for the old engine show that they hold every year. Again this year, I found myself out of time to do it.

I was also hoping to get some more work done at the office, like start a carpenter project. That doesn't look like it will be done.

But it may be all right as there are some projects that are worth while to procrastinate on. As long as I don't procrastinate too long, or else I will be doing said project in January amid the snowstorms.

But summer is winding down, and I feel like winding with it. Or unwinding as it may be.

I definitely think that if I had a boat, this would be the summer that it didn't get in the water. I almost feel like some folks who wish that the summer would be over so they could pack up the house or the cottage, and then head on down the road to Florida thinking that a fresh start in new surroundings is going to be the cure for everything that ails you.

But, since I am stuck here in beautiful, expanding, growing Boyne City, I might as well get a good night's sleep someday, and then start thinking of starting fresh in the morning.

I was thinking about going out to the Olympics, and watching all the athletes make a run.

Not the summer Olympics, I saw enough of them on the tube, but the winter Olympics.

But being a procrastinator, the Olympiad in Lake Placid is long gone, so I guess I will have to eliminate seeing that one in person.

I was also going to spend a lot of time just fixing things up around the house, the yard and the office. But seeing that I can find a whole lot of other reasons to not fix up things around the house, the yard, and the office, I won't get the chance to get to doing all those jobs.

Yes, being a procrastinator has its advantages.

You never have to worry about getting a job done, because you never get to do the job. I know a lot of people who think like me in that regard.

I am hearing a lot of comments about a comment that I made a few weeks ago from some of the business folks around here. Seems that they liked the idea of coming back to Boyne as a tourist in their next life.

So, I am proposing to set up a travel agency especially for those who never get a chance to partake of the wonders of the area.

This tourist type of trip will only be available to those who are in business here in the area, and never get a chance to get away.

We will start with a guided tour through the downtowns of Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and East Jordan, then take a nice leisurely trip across the Ironton ferry, go over to Charlevoix, have a nice lunch at one of their restaurants, travel up to Petoskey for an enjoyable hour of shopping at the store of your choice, make a side trip to Pellston to visit the airport and watch the planes come in and go out, and then we will head up the road to visit the really hot tourist stops that you and I have seen advertised on bumper stickers for years.

Yes, we will go to Castle Rock and the Mystery Spot.

Then on our way home we could stop in at Sea Shell City, see the cross in the woods, and finally make it back to do a little bar hopping in our own hometown.

After we get back, we will have a critique of our trip and find out that everything we did, and everything that we saw, could have been done better without leaving the confines of the city limits.

We will probably find out that having friends over for a few hours is a whole lot better than making a trip to an area where you don't know many folks. And those who know somebody in those areas mentioned, will be able to get together with them and have a great time just enjoying a cup of coffee.

The only problem is, when business folks get together, they end up talking business, even if rule number one is not to talk any business. For that, they don't have to make the trip all over the woods, they could just go to the next door business and have some conversations with the other owners.

Since these people will be talking business, I guess that there is really no reason to have a tour just for them.

I guess I should leave the travel business up to those who know what they are doing.

This picture shows the construction crew that built the Wolverine Hotel in Boyne City. The hotel is now known as the Dilworth and is still standing, awaiting conversion to a bed and breakfast hotel. The building was one of the first projects of the Price Bros. Construction firm which is still in existence but known as Price Bros. Marine Construction Company located in Ohio. They have grown to be one of the largest in the field according to Bill Underhill, who supplied us with this picture. The only known workers in the picture are sitting on the end, George Underhill and Austin Knipe in a striped shirt in the back row. The picture was taken in 1912 while the building was still under construction. If you have any pictures that you would like to share with our readers, bring them to our office so that we may copy them.

A report in the news described a United Nations film project called Agenda I, which is being used as a means of solving world problems. Because the United States didn't participate, we don't get to see the series.

Nevertheless, the report joggles me. I've been thinking how a film series would help parents. Not a new idea, but then, not one that has been put to much use, either. Let me explain.

A few years ago I agreed to a teaching job in which I was to teach along the lines of a system unfamiliar to me. I had already taught in public school and knew my ABCs in that system. In order to do something different, I had to hoe out all the old methods and plant the new.

If the mind can feel pain, mine certainly did. Such a struggle. No wonder people prefer their old ways.

But along with all the books I read, I was able to spend a day watching the different system in action. How much it helps actually to see a new thing in action!

The problem is in making the arrangements—finding the person to watch.

So, back to the idea of films for parents. How do parents get to see other parents in action, that is, parents whose style is different from theirs? Most likely not by watching their friends. Their friends are friends because of similarities, not because of differences.

Maybe you remember the TV series about a real family in California when cameras recorded the actual lives of the family. It was popular because we wanted to compare our style with theirs.

Not that we can't get a great deal of help from books. It's only that a person can't imitate a book. Besides, what about those who don't do much reading.

Films are the answer. How great it would be to go to the library, check out "Betsy Talks Back to Her Mother," go into a viewing booth, and in 10 minutes get an idea from the film of how several other families dealt with the problem.

The horseshoe crab, named for its hoof shape by early English settlers to North Carolina, is not a crab at all. Its nearest relatives are spiders and scorpions.

Very few things are more important to the world than raising children properly. And very little public attention is given to how to do it.

Not that anyone has discovered the perfect way, but certainly there are more enlightened ways than many of us saw our parents use.

Studies regarding child abuse, for example, show that much as the abused children may have wanted to be better parents themselves, when the time came, they more or less helplessly repeated the patterns set for them by their parents.

Film libraries could break that chain as well as other chains in child-parent relationships.

Family Health Center elects, hears Davis

New members joined the board at the annual meeting of the East Jordan Family Health Center on August 15. Donna Schmitt was elected to a three-year term, Gerry Chase to a two-year term, and Lois Schmidt for one year. They filled vacancies caused by resignations of Fayette McIntyre, Ted Sherman, and Bill Olstrom who stepped down because of pressures of other responsibilities.

The nine-member board then chose its officers, Walter Goebel, Sr., president; Mary Hebron, vice-president; Fern Morris, treasurer; and Charles Mason, secretary. Morris and Mason were re-elected to office.

United States Representative from the 11th district, Bob Davis, present at the meeting, read the speech he will present to Congress on sup-

Chris Shea, director of the East Jordan center, reported on center activities of the past year.

In subsequent interviews, both Morris and Mason verified that federal cuts have forced the center to reduce some of its services, "but we are continuing the basic medical services," said

Mason, "with two doctors and a physician's assistant, optometric service twice a week from Dr. Anderson of Charlevoix. He said some of the service of a psychiatric social worker continues, but the school social worker and some discounts were cut.

According to Morris, who has been a member of the health center since it began seven years ago, "Things are not as rosy as formerly for outside funding," but, she added, it's not a "disaster." The center will try to be more self-supporting. "As much for less money," was the way Morris characterized it.

The center receives its revenues from the federal government, some from the state, from private donations, and from fees paid by those served.

One of the policies set by the board, Mason said, is that of charging according to the individual customer's ability to pay. The center also accepts barter, he said, as individuals may work off their debt, doing jobs around the center.

Membership in the health center starts at $7 for individuals; membership is around 200, Mason said. Board meetings are on first Wednesdays, and are open to anyone interested.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD COSIER

Couple celebrates 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cosier of East Jordan will be honored with an open house to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, August 26th. The event will be at the East Jordan Tourist Park Pavilion at 2:00.

Mr. Cosier, of Boyne City, and the former Beth Simpson, of Boyne Falls, were married in Charlevoix January 20th, 1934. They have lived in the area since their marriage, and have five children, sixteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

The celebration will be hosted by the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Gene (Ruth) Gagnon, of East Jordan; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cosier, of the Gambia, West Africa; Mr. and Mrs. Art Cosier, of Boyne City; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cosier, of Boyne City; and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie (Nina) Moore, of Ellsworth. Friends and relatives of the couple are invited, and may bring a dish to pass if they wish.

Rainbow Runaway program offers help

In 1983, a grant was awarded to RAINBOW Runaway Program of Northeast Michigan Community Service Agency in Alpena by the Department of Health and Human Services for the purpose of developing a demonstration project which would strengthen and unite families. This project, one of 150 funded nationwide, was selected out of 6,000 requests for funding. The project, which began operation in October 1983, will run through January 1985 and provide a training program for adolescents and their parents in effective communication and problem solving skills.

The project will consist of six complete training cycles held within a fourteen county area. The Program for Charlevoix and Emmet County resolved, pressures build and can have serious results such as emotional stress, physical illness and possible break up of family units. Reuniting Families Program will encourage the development of improved communication and problem solving skills between adolescents and their parents through an intensive training program.

The program is designed to combine proven effective methods in a format which treats the family as a whole rather than separate parts. An initial weekend long retreat type of experience followed by six follow-up weekly reinforcement sessions will teach youth and parents how to communicate effectively. Self-help family groups will maintain skills learned after the training is over.

The project will consist of six complete training cycles held within a fourteen county area. The Program for Charlevoix and Emmet County residents will begin September 7th and run through October 18th. The deadline for application to the program for this area is August 31, 1984. Area agency referrals and general public requests will be taken and screened for program participation prior to each training cycle.

The training team will consist of local area professionals and volunteers who will participate in the intensive weekend training and support the follow-up groups throughout their duration. At the completion of the demonstration project, training manuals and training program teams will be available for integration of the project into local community agencies. Area agencies and families who are interested in participating or receiving additional information of the program can contact Julie Robarge, Reuniting Families Project Coordinator, at 1-800-292-3003 or in Petoskey, call 347-8933 for more information.

BF student attends NMU

MARQUETTE—More than 100 of the state's brightest high school students, including Scott Winhusen of Boyne Falls, sharpened their skills in mathematics, computer science and art during a recent two-week program at Northern Michigan University.

"Even though these students are among the best in our state, they were challenged by the intensity of Northern's program," said institute director Marilyn Robbert.

A typical day for the students found them attending classes for a full eight hours.

Edna Nielsen displays her three-year-old lipstick plant, awarded a blue ribbon at the East Jordan Garden Club show held last Monday. Best-of-show prize went to Norma Thorsen for an arrangement using a swan figurine. Three prizes went to Bernadine Greig for a massed arrangement, a centerpiece and table setting, and a specimen flower. Betty Yonnal's specimen rose won a first, and so did Joanne Schenck's specimen annual. Speciman vegetable first went to Edna Johnstone. Houseplant growers Peggy Midener and Evelyn Gidley took blue ribbons, and Cygred Riley, Katharine Sewell, and Schenck won blue ribbons for their flower arrangements.

Ralph Ellenburger is known far and wide for his gardening skills in Boyne City, but he doesn't lay any claim to planting a sunflower seed in the bottom of one of his hanging pots. For that he blames a bird who took the seed from the feeder during the wintertime and hid it in a crack in the cast iron pot. As things go, the seed grew when it got watered and the roots went up into the pot while the plant worked its way around the outside and then up to the sun.

Impressionist art coming to McCune

An exhibit of 26 impressionist paintings and graphics, currently traveling throughout the state of Michigan, will soon arrive in Petoskey.

"Color and Light: American Impressionist Paintings and Prints from Michigan Collections" is scheduled for display at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey from Friday, August 31 through Saturday, Sept. 22, 1984. An opening reception will be held in the gallery on Friday, August 31 at 7 p.m., and all are invited. Honored guest will be James A. Bridenstine, Associate Curator and Coordinator of Statewide Services, Department of Education, Detroit Institute of Arts.

Although pioneered by the French, impressionism was heartily embraced by many American artists at the turn of the century. Many American studied under the French Masters, but retained a distinctively American vision in their own impressionistic work. The selections in the exhibition represent key figures of this American group, including major works by Mary Cassatt, Childe Hassam and Theodore Robinson.

This exhibition was assembled from public and private collections in Detroit, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, and produced by the Statewide Services traveling exhibition program of the Detroit Institute of Arts. A four-color poster and a 20 page catalogue containing reproductions of all the exhibition's paintings are available.

"Color and Light" may be seen at the Gallery at the Arts Center, located at the corner of Mitchell and Division Sts. in downtown Petoskey, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays.

This event is sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council and admission is free. Local chairpersons for the event, Walter and Peggy Midener, hope that area persons will avail themselves of the opportunity to see this important exhibition and especially encourage school groups to contact the Arts Center at 347-4337 to arrange a group tour.

Senior Citizens picnic

The fifth annual Charlevoix County Senior Citizens' picnic will be held Tuesday, Aug. 28 at Whiting Park, beginning at noon.

The Boyne City fire department will barbecue chicken for dinner, and there will be door prizes and entertainment.

The regular Commission on Aging lunches will not be held that day, but bus transportation will be available to take regular lunch-goers as well as others to Whiting Park.

Further information and tickets may be obtained from the Commission on Aging office in Boyne City, phone 582-7301, and the Charlevoix County Senior Centers in Boyne City and East Jordan.

WEEKLY MEETING - JULY 24, 1984 - 11:30 a.m.: Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Marvin Loding, William Grimm, Steven Moody and Thelma Behling. There were five people in attendance at the meeting.

Commissioner Grimm reported he had received a complaint on the soft shoulders on W. Michigan Ave. Commissioner Behling commented that the shoulders of the road had very tall grass, obstructing the view of stop signs.

The City Manager gave his weekly report covering the launch ramp and the possible construction of a walkway path at Avalanche Preserve, using Michigan Youth Corp labor.

A set of rules and regulations was approved for the Public Launch Ramp site on N. Lake St. The new Rules and Regulations include:

1. There will be no parking or storage of boats or other property at the Municipal Boat Launch Ramp Parking Lot for more than 24 hours without proper written permission.

2. Swimming is not allowed in the area of the ramp.

3. Boats will be readied for launch prior to entering the ramp area.

4. All lines must be secured to avoid wind noise.

5. The city Police Department is hereby authorized to enforce these Regulations including the impounding of any vehicle, trailer, boat, or other items that are in violation.

Meeting adjourned at 11:59 a.m.

WEEKLY MEETING OF JULY 31, 1984, 11:30 a.m.: Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Marvin Loding, William Grimm, Thelma Behling and Steven Moody. There were three people in attendance at the meeting.

The Adm. Asst. gave the weekly report on City Activity which covered the Front St. Project. It is near completion with the new street lights to be in operation in 10 days.

The Commission gave approval to the City Manager to spend up to $4,000 for the construction of walkway and viewing platform at Avalanche Preserve, using Michigan Youth Corp labor and assistance from the Soil Conservation Service.

The Boyne River Bank Erosion Control program has been delayed until 1985, because of the lack of RC&D Funds.

Meeting adjourned at 12:15 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, AUGUST 7, 1984, 11:30 a.m. - Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Steven Moody and Marvin Loding. Absent: Commissioners William Grimm and Thelma Behling. There were six people in attendance at the meeting.

Mr. Richard Beagle was introduced as the new Coordinator for the Charlevoix County Business and Industry Task Force. Mr. Beagle stated his prime job was to assist local business and industry and to attract new business and industry to the County.

The First Reading of Zoning Ordinance No. A-28, Amendment 4-84 was given. This Amendment is to rezone 20 acres of property, located at the corner of Hull and Division Street, from Residential One to Planned Residential District. This property is known as the old Comloquoy property and is presently represented by Century 21. The Second Reading of the Amendment was scheduled for September 11, 1984.

Meeting adjourned at 11:59 a.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, AUGUST 14, 1984, 11:30 a.m. - Present: Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Marvin Loding, William Grimm and Steven Moody. Absent: Commissioner Thelma Behling. There were five people in attendance at the meeting.

Commissioner Grimm congratulated the Fire Department for the fine job they did in restoring the 1917 LaFrance Fire Truck and directed that a letter be sent to them recognizing their accomplishment. Commissioner Moody suggested that one of the old airport hangars should be used to store the old LaFrance Fire Truck. The matter was referred to the Fire Department.

The City Manager introduced Carl Dulin as the new Deputy City Clerk/Treasurer for the City of Boyne City. The City Manager also gave his weekly report covering the success of the Flea Market and the Antique Car Show; the progress on the scenic trail and viewing platform construction at Avalanche Preserve; and the success of operation of two new computers purchased recently by the city.

MONTHLY MEETING AUGUST 14, 1984, 7:00 p.m. - Present:

mayor Keith Fitzpatrick, Commissioners Steven Moody, William Grimm and Marvin Loding. Absent: Commissioner Thelma Behling. There were twelve people in attendance at the meeting.

Beatrice Zaremba and Wilma Heaton were present to issue a complaint concerning the noise and loitering of young children and adults in Old City Park. They suggested that new curfew hours be established to help alleviate the loitering problems. The City Manager and City Attorney were directed to meet and review the changing of curfew times. In the meantime, the Police will step up their patrolling activities in the area of Old City Park.

A bid in the amount of $1,321.00 was awarded to Fochtman Motor Company for the purchase of a generator for the Fire Department. The City Manager was authorized to advertise for bids to raze the old airport hangars in September.

A Resolution was approved which authorized an Amendment for the Boyne City Housing commission to receive $21,800.00 from the Federal Government for the purpose of installing additional safety devices at Litzeburger Place. The meeting adjourned at 7:40 p.m.

New men's store open in EJ

"We will be carrying the type of clothing found on the main streets of northern Michigan, from the casual to the dressed-up. We will be able to outfit men and boys for the great outdoors to the dinner party at one of the area inns," said Bernie Schmitt of East Jordan, as they open their doors to a new men's store in East Jordan.

The new men's apparel store is located at 200 Main Street, the former Schenck Realty building. The building has been completely remodeled inside and out. The outside is still keeping the turn-of-the-century flavor, while the inside main selling area is decorated in warm brown tones with oak fixtures.

"We have many national brands well-known in the north, such as Woolrich, Campus, Haggard, Wrangler, Career Club, Stetson, Diplomat, John Weitz, Interwoven, Dior and Munsingwear," Schmitt continued.

"And our prices will be very competitive with area men's stores and department stores," he added.

The new family-run business has been two years in the making as the Schmitts looked around for a small business to establish in East Jordan. The family has been coming to the East Jordan area for the past nine years.

In 1981 they sold out their restaurant business in Monroe County and moved to East Jordan.

"We feel a complete men's clothing store with good selections and moderate prices is needed in East Jordan," said Donna Schmitt. "Many times a resident of East Jordan or even Boyne City areas have had to travel to either Petoskey, Charlevoix or Traverse City to fill his clothing needs. We feel we can now fill this void and give him a good selection at good prices, a lot closer to home."

The Schmitts have lived in East Jordan with their three children, Timothy, a student at Ferris State, Helene and Patti who are both students at East Jordan high school, for the past two years.

The Schmitts are members of the Christ Lutheran Church in Boyne City, members of the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce. Schmitt is also a member of the East Jordan School Board and a member of the Rotary Club.

The new business will be open Monday through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

I would like to thank all my supporters for your diligent efforts and many votes in the primary election. I pledge to do my best to continue working in your behalf in Lansing.

Most of us at any age are striving for good nutrition without weight gain and are searching for ways to accomplish this. Elinor Hammontree has a method which I have been trying and it is working fine, though sometimes my plans are changed in the middle of the day when a friend says, "Lets go out to lunch" or "How about some buttermilk pancakes and sausage tonight." Anyway there is the old Chinese saying, "Any thing that satisfies hunger is good food," and her plan is flexible. It goes like this; she makes a list of what she will eat the following day, after dinner at night while she is not hungry and she can see what is in the cupboard and refrigerator, thinking in terms of good nutrition.

This way one can see at a glance if he or she is eating the right foods or not. I might look at my list for today and see that I am not getting the calcium that I know I need and add a couple glasses of skim or 2 percent milk to my diet, or I decide that there is not enough bulk, so I shake bran on my cereal or salad. I really like this method.

Soups and stews are a good way to give the vegetables and protein we need. This is one I like to make. A real he-man dish for your sports fans.

CABBAGE PATCH STEW

- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 large onion, diced
- 1 medium head of cabbage
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 quart stewed tomatoes or juice
- 1 tablespoon sugar (optional)
- 2 cloves of garlic, mashed

Lightly brown the onions and garlic in oil, add the ground beef and cook until the redness is gone, drain off the grease. Add cabbage and tomatoes and cook until cabbage is tender. Leave the cabbage slightly crunchy. Sprinkle with cheese when serving if desired.

Soups are always nutritious, using the canned soups is a good idea especially when one adds a little leftover meat and some freshly cooked vegetables, no end to good ideas here. Try rounds of bread toasted with Parmesan cheese in each bowl—GOOD!

My neighbor, Esther Welch, who is a real nutrition expert, makes her own home made crackers with whole wheat and other good ingredients. Here is her recipe for crackers which I made today.

SESAME CRACKERS

- 3 cups oatmeal
- 2 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
- 1/2 cup sesame seeds

Cooking

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 cup water

Mix dry ingredients together. Mix oil and water together and add to the dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Roll thinly into 4 greased cookie sheets. Cut into squares. Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 350°. Outer crackers will brown faster so take them off as they brown. Be sure these are dry enough to be crisp. I highly recommend this recipe, the crackers are delicious. They are terrific with soup though just try them with a piece of cheese or a dab of jelly!

Then there are salads. I find that my growing teen-age grandson, whose favorite foods are hamburgers, French fries and milk shakes, also really likes salads and prefers to make his own adding slivers of cheese and meat with his favorite dressing. Those of us who are calorie conscious can take advantage of the many lower colored dressings on the market, which are delicious.

FLORENCE I. COLE

Services for Mrs. Florence I. Cole, 91, of East Jordan, were held August 20 at the Oak Chapel of the Vanderwall Funeral Home. The Rev. Arthur Mulka of St. Josephs Church officiated and graveside services were held at Forest Lawn Cemetery in Tower, Michigan.

A scripture service was held at the Vanderwall Funeral Home on August 19.

Mrs. Cole died Aug. 17, 1984 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The former Florence I. Covell was born May 16, 1893 in Clarion. She married Roland Gokee on Sept. 23, 1916 in Petoskey. He died in 1918. On April 29, 1921, she married Vincent Cole in Detroit. Mrs. Cole attended a business school in Detroit and was affiliated with the Burrough's Adding Machine Co. Later she and her husband operated a restaurant in Detroit and moved to East Jordan in 1944. Mr. Cole died in 1967.

She was a member and past matron of the Mark Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star; a member of Jasmine Chapter, Rebekah Lodge; a member of Senior Citizens Club of East Jordan; the Auxiliary of Rebec-Hosler-Sweet Post 221, American Legion and was affiliated with St. Josephs Catholic Church.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Milligan of Onaway and Mrs. Esther Turner of Saginaw; a brother, Frank S. Covell of Tower; several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association.

THOMAS L. KISER

Thomas L. Kiser, 81, of Cadillac, died Sept. 18, 1984 at Lakeview Manor Nursing Home in Cadillac. He was born Sept. 1, 1902 in East Jordan. He married Irene M. Etcher on Nov. 26, 1921 in East Jordan.

He had lived in East Jordan until 1951 when he then moved to Cheboygan until 1961. He also lived in the Tustin, Ashton and Park Lake areas and then in 1977, moved to Cadillac.

He was a former member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Cheboygan Eagles Club. He retired from Consumers Power Company as a supervisor in 1959.

He is survived by three children, Robert Kiser and Mrs. Don (Marge) Carls, both of Marion, Ted Kiser of McBain, and one brother Dale Kiser of Northport; nine grandchildren; 23 great grandchildren. His wife Irene died on May 25, 1983, and one son Thomas, in 1958.

Funeral services were held on Sept. 20 at the Burkholder Funeral Home in McBain. Rev. Richard W. Bachman officiated and graveside services were held at Sunset Hills Cemetery in East Jordan.

Swimmers complete lake swim

The annual swim across Lake Charlevoix is becoming a very popular and nerve-racking event for the parents of swim school students, as they gather at Whiting Park and gaze anxiously over the water trying to spot their kids coming in from Young State Park.

The lake was extremely gracious to the youngsters this year, providing a flat surface and a slight tail wind to help the swimmers along, for one of the best lake swims ever.

Thirty-two people began the one and one-quarter mile swim, and 32 finished, the youngest being Andrew McCready at nine and one-half years old.

JoAnn Baldwin was the first swimmer across in a record breaking time of 46 minutes.

Other swimmers were Barb Baldwin, Wayne Avery, Nikkie Erber, Denelle Baum, Derek Baum, John Karkosak, Julie Karkosak, Deb Gipperich, Bill Gipperich, Ricka Casper, Ed Reeves, April Silbar, Julie McCullough, Bob McCullough, Nancy McCullough, Jon Greetus, Curt Holley, Debbie Towne, Angie Towne, Chris Christenson, Kristy Christenson,

COMMISSION ORDER

PHEASANT HUNTING REGULATIONS FOR 1984

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on June 8, 1984, under the authority of Section 11, Chapter II, of Act 286, P.A. 1929, as amended, and Sections 1 and 3 of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, being Sections 312.11, 300.1, and 300.3 of The Michigan Compiled Laws, established the following pheasant hunting season regulations for 1984.

Seasons
Zone 1:
In that part of Menominee County lying south of Highway US-2 and Delta County, south and west of Escanaba River, October 10-20, inclusive.

Zones 2 and 3:
October 20-November 11, inclusive.

Bag Limits
Zone 1:
The bag limit shall be restricted to 1 male pheasant per day, 2 in possession, and 4 during the season.

Zones 2 and 3:
Statutory bag limits shall apply—2 male pheasants per day, 4 in possession, and 8 during the season.

Pheasants taken in any of the prescribed pheasant put-take areas shall be included in the small game hunter's daily bag and possession limit.

This Order replaces the previous Order entitled, "Pheasant Hunting Regulations for 1983," CWI-231.83, dated June 10, 1983, and shall take effect October 10, 1984 and remain valid until November 11, 1984.

Obituaries

MYRTLE LOUISE HELRIGEL
Funeral services for Myrtle Louise Helrigel, Boyne City's first librarian, were August 18, 1984 at M. J. Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids. Dr. Stanley Buck officiated. Myrtle Louise White was born in Dolton, Ontario, Canada (U.S. Citizen) on December 27, 1890, the daughter of Thomas and Hannah Mallow White. She was a graduate of Boyne City High School, of Miss Liggett's School in Detroit, attended Vassar College, graduate of Mosher Secretarial College in Chicago and did graduate work in Library Science at University of Chicago. On June 23, 1932 she was married to the Rev. William H. Helrigel in Boyne City. Dr. Helrigel died in 1983 in Grand Rapids. Mrs. Helrigel was instrumental in getting a Carnegie Public Library for Boyne City and became its first librarian. She was organist for Methodist Churches in Boyne City and Parchment. She and her husband traveled extensively in 54 countries prior to their moving into Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids in 1977. Mrs. Helrigel is survived by a stepdaughter, Mrs. Charles R. (Helen) Gibbs, Hartland, Wisconsin; a stepson, William H. Helrigel, Jr., Hendersonville, N.C.; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Mrs. Helrigel was preceded in death by three brothers, Everett, Orville and Hudson White.

Sea serpent legend

"Annie" delights theater goers

On the cover

Boaters making their appearance to Harbor Springs look for the Harbormaster almost the first thing as they have to locate a place to dock their boat. The "Springs" area is one of the more noted stops for boaters and visitors wanting to watch.

Veronica Medicine, curator of the Andrew J. Blackbird Museum in Harbor Springs sits on her front porch with her son, Joe. Veronica is a full-blooded Ottawa born in Harbor Springs.

Lover of tales talks about sea serpent

BY NANCY JARVIS

"It was in the 1700s," Veronica Medicine began, "and a group of Indians were cutting wood somewhere between Middle Village and Goodhart. They saw the creature, which they called a horned serpent, coming out of the sand dunes and crawling down toward the lake."

"The Indians sent someone to get the priest to verify what they saw. I don't know if anyone came."

"But as the legend goes, the serpent went back into the water and was gone. The Indians theorized that the serpent was a female and she went into the dunes to lay her eggs. She didn't harm anyone."

The legend of the sea serpent has been familiar to Veronica Medicine, curator of the Andrew J. Blackbird Museum in Harbor Springs, since she was a little girl. She never heard the legend in its entirety, and now, she says, the older Indians who knew it have passed on.

"I always hung around and listened when I shouldn't have," she says with a sly smile.

"The stories were part Indian and part English. I only got bits and pieces."

Veronica says that the sea serpent was sighted on and off over the years. Reports indicate the sightings revealed a head and several humps that gave the impression of a serpent.

The animal disappeared until after World War I when the government used an uninhabited island in Lake Michigan for studies, and again the serpent was sighted out from the Middle Village and Good Hart area.

It is believed that at one time the Great Lakes supported Baluga whales when the water level was higher and the lakes were a totally different shape than they are now, Veronica said. The creatures were called by various names: Algonquin and Stanley were two names she has heard.

"During this whole period, whether what people saw were whales or other creatures is not known," Veronica said.

She said pictographs, early drawings in caves on stone cliffs, documented in Sanilac County in the Upper Peninsula and one other location, picture a panther-like sea creature with a long tail that encircled its body and was used to rile up the water.

"When the natives wanted to go on the water, they would give gifts to the creature to make it behave," she said.

Gem points, tiny projectile points; food and tobacco were some of the gifts that were placed in the water to appease the spirits, Veronica said.

"I often wondered if there was something similar in other lakes," Veronica said, "since they are so deep and cold. I spoke to one geologist studying in the Lake Superior area who believes that Lake Superior was formed by a volcano that fell into itself. This geologist went to school and worked in the Keewenaw Peninsula area, and he told me the people there do have a legend."

"He spoke at great length about a creature that has been sighted up there."

'Annie' takes top honors as show of year

Hurry, you only have a few days left to see, hear, and enjoy one of the surprise hits in the Petoskey area as "Annie" is bringing out the playgoing public to the Petoskey Summer Theatre's presentation that will wrap up the first season of the professional acting group.

"Annie," as you will recall, is a story about an orphaned girl in the city of New York sometime during the Depression. Her finding a home with one of the big manufacturers over the Christmas vacation makes up the story line as she and "Daddy Warbucks" search for her parents.

With its cast of seven local girls, one from the Boyne City area, as orphans, almost stole the show from the regular performers. The girls make the play, they act well, sing fine, and do all the things that children of the theatre are supposed to do, and the adult performers look like they enjoy having the children as part of the performance.

The play will have performances until September 2, and tickets for the long-awaited show have been selling well, according to David Pritchard, the producer of the summer theatre.

In fact, Pritchard said that with "Annie," he expects that the summer theatre group will do more than break even in their first year of producing plays. It is unusual for a theatre group to even meet expenses in the first year, due to the heavy startup costs, let alone make a profit.

It shows that professional theater can do well in a tourist market.

There are some flaws in the performance, the theatre could have better acoustics, the six-piece ensemble that is providing the music could be a little better, but those are very minor considerations when the performers tackle songs like "Easy Street," "It's a Hard Knock Life," and "Tomorrow."

The group makes the songs come to life and unlike one of the major theatres of the world, you can get close enough to watch the actors and actresses really perform.

All in all, "Annie" is the hit of a successful season for the new company, and it is one that rates on the top of the don't miss list.

Paul Hermanson and Angie Williams are featured as Daddy Warbucks and Annie in the Petoskey Summer Theatre production of ANNIE now through September 2nd. For further information and reservations call 347-7221. The Petoskey Summer Theatre is located in the McCune Arts Center in downtown Petoskey.

Photographer displays skill at McKune

A perceptive eye, intellect, wit and imagination combined with more than fifty years of perfecting the photographer's skills, distinguish the work of Lloyd Ullberg. A small retrospective of selected photographs will be on exhibit in the Gallery at the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center throughout August.

The artist has chosen only black and white prints for this show and relies on their powerful polarities to reinforce his images. Subject matter is varied and falls into ten general categories, among them the western ghost towns and rock subjects are particularly mysterious.

This exhibit marks the first Mid-West showing of Californian Lloyd Ullberg's work, although he has shown frequently on the west coast and has some of his photographs in the archives of the Museum of Modern Art in New York, having been selected by Edward Steichen. Ullberg recently retired as staff photographer at the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco and now has time to take field trips into favorite western areas rarely visited by any but the most intrepid explorer. As he approaches his eightieth birthday he finds his curiosity, vision, and love of "that special aspect", undimmed and undiminished and looks forward to creating more unique statements tempered by a philosopher's vision. His past professional career as oboeist with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra (graduate of Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia) reveals itself in many of the strong lyrical photographs where counterpoint, rhythm and texture play important roles. Ullberg employs the artist's gifts in combining more than one discipline into an intuitive expression of objects most people look at every day but never "see" until re-introduced through the photographer's special eye.

Technical information regarding camera, film and paper will be posted in the gallery.

Lodge is unique as kids take over weekly for camps

BY NANCY JARVIS

You may not want to call during mealtimes, for the din of youths having a wonderful time could drown out whoever answers the phone.

For a good part of the year, Boyne Valley Lodge is overflowing with enthusiastic youths participating in a number of activities.

The lodge is unique in that it provides lodging, meals and activities for groups, and primarily youth groups.

Band and football camps are held there, as are church retreats, ski groups, conditioning camps and canoe groups. Wedding receptions are also held there, one of the few activities not oriented to group activities.

The lodge can accommodate up to 166 people in 27 rooms equipped with bunk beds and private baths. Casual dining facilities provide meals.

The lodge is nestled in the woods just outside of Walloon Lake Village. Up behind the lodge lies the football field, also used for outdoor wedding receptions. A heated pool provides swimming opportunities year around.

"We offer more atmosphere than a Holiday Inn," said Boyne Valley Lodge owner Greg Billiard. "And we offer a lot of flexibility. We go with people's schedules and provide a lot of variety."

The lodge further provides three miles of cross country ski trails, a poma lift for downhillers, a lighted skating rink, and an indoor pool table, video games and pinball.

All of the 50 acre can be used by lodge dwellers and is located only about one-quarter mile from Walloon Lake. It's ideal.

"We deal completely with groups," Billiard said. "It's seldom we have individuals stay here."

"It's nice to be able to tailor a weekend or a week to the needs of groups. Everything is scheduled by the leaders; the band directors, football coaches or whomever."

Meals range from the simple hamburger to prime rib and crab legs, depending on what the group wants.

Groups travel from as far away as Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio, Billiard said, although the majority are from Michigan.

Billiard, who has owned the lodge for five years now, said everyone enjoys the Walloon area, as they doubtless have since the lodge opened in 1958.

"The winter people don't realize what it looks like in the summertime," the owner commented. "I suppose the summer people miss the same thing in the winter."

Billiard said the crowds of youths are never a problem. Their sponsors and chaperones handle the situation very well.

"It's nice to work with kids doing the eight kinds of things. I like being a part of that," he said.

He commented that one participant in a cross country running group ran a record 52 miles in one day.

"He was in good shape before, but not after," Billiard jested.

Safety should be buzzword over Labor Day

If national averages hold true, dozens of recreational swimmers may be paralyzed this Labor Day weekend in diving accidents across the country.

Many will become lifetime quadriplegics due to spinal cord injuries suffered from dives into four feet of water or less, according to the Aquatic Injury Safety Group, a Detroit-based, non-profit organization dedicated to increasing public awareness of the dangers of diving.

"From the beginning of their lives children are taught a head-first dive into water is perfectly safe," states Ronald R. Gilbert, chairman of the safety group. "This is simply not true. Any head-first dive into four feet of water or less can result in crippling injuries."

Gilbert points to statistics released by the National Spinal Cord

Injury Data Research Center in Phoenix that show close to a thousand and spinal cord injuries resulting in paralysis or death are suffered by recreational divers every year. Diving is the fourth major cause of spinal cord injuries in the U.S., behind auto accidents, falls or jumps and gunshot wounds.

The center reports spinal cord injuries from diving are evenly split between open bodies of water, such as lakes, and swimming pools, including above-ground and in-ground pools. Swimmers most at risk, according to the statistics, are 15- to 29-year old males.

A nationally respected expert on diving safety, Dr. M.A. Gabrielsen compiled a list of common findings in diving injuries, including the following:

- 1) The majority of diving spinal cord injuries occurs in four feet of water or less.
- 2) In most cases, there are no adequate markers or warning signs prohibiting diving.
- 3) Spinal cord injury victims think they are executing "safe dives," which they have done many times before.

4) None of the victims are aware of the potential danger of diving in the areas where they perform their dives.

Gilbert notes, "None of the spinal cord injury victims that I've met ever believed they could become quadriplegics just from diving into water. Unfortunately, these people realized the truth too late."

Aquatic Injury Safety Group membership consists of approximately 100 practicing attorneys nationwide who represent clients fatally or critically injured in diving and other aquatic accidents.

The non-profit group was organized by Gilbert early last year to educate the public about aquatic safety, share information on aquatic injuries and require pool manufacturers and owners to provide depth markers and adequate warning signs about the dangers of diving.

Porkys being looked at as Natural Landmark

The National Park Service has identified a 47,671 acre portion of the Porcupine Mountains as a potential National Natural Landmark, according to Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Davis.

The National Park Service, in accordance with the procedures of the National Natural Landmarks Program, seeks to identify and designate areas containing ecological and/or geological features determined to be of national significance in illustrating the natural heritage of the United States.

The Porcupine Mts., a wilderness state park, are located in Ontonagon and Gogebic counties. The Porcupines arise abruptly from Lake Superior and form a 12 mile-long escarpment which runs parallel to the lake shore. High peaks in the park provide spectacular views of the forest, inland lakes and Lake Superior.

The National Park

Service identifies the site's significance as containing the best and largest virgin stands of hemlock in the Great Lakes area. Within the Porcupine State Park is the largest relatively undisturbed northern hemlock hardwood forest west of the Adirondack Mountains in New York State.

The Park Service also recognizes the Presque Isle River cascading over falls and rapids on its way to Lake Superior as providing extraordinary scenic beauty and cites outstanding examples of wave-cut beaches and former glacial lake shorelines.

A landmark designation officially recognizes the significance of a natural area. The Park Service states this designation is not a land withdrawal and does not affect the ownership of the area or the property owner's rights. The State of Michigan has ownership of the Porcupine State Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Duncan of Port Huron, and Mr. and Mrs. Arden Barnhart of Warren were in Walloon Lake for the funeral of their uncle, Henry Hinkley.

A. C. and Versa Fineout visited their daughter, Marion and son-in-law, Bill, at Portland the week of August 12th. They also picked up their grandson, Jeff Fineout, at the airport after visiting his father, Jim, in Andrews, Texas.

Bruce and Rose Charleton and son, Charles, from Wyandotte visited Dave and Terri Niezgoda for four days August 10 to 13.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Carlisle and daughter and son, Courtney and Kurt, have returned to their home in Kane, Pennsylvania after attending the funeral of Mrs. Carlisle's father, Henry Hinkley, of Country Club Road. Mrs. Carlisle, the former Dixie Hinkley is the daughter of Henry and Alice Hinkley.

Michelle and Lisa Stevens of Livonia spent a week visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stevens.

Michigan blessed with 2 potato seasons

What's the difference between Michigan's summer potatoes and Michigan's fall-crop potatoes? Quite a bit, but the most important one is this: Summer potatoes are available right now— young and tender and fresh from the harvest.

Michigan is the leading northern state in the production of potatoes harvested in summer. Some major potato states, such as Maine, Idaho and Washington, don't produce summer potatoes at all.

That means that those states' potatoes now in supermarkets are last year's crop, explains Roy H. Kaschyk, executive director of the Michigan Potato Industry Commission in Lansing.

By contrast, he said, the new Michigan potatoes currently moving to market are just out of the ground, and as fresh as a garden.

Most of them come from the fertile fields in Bay and Montcalm Counties. Potato growers in those areas usually start packing their new crop in July.

In contrast to potatoes harvested in Michigan in September and October, the summer crop doesn't go into storage.

Many of the fall-crop potatoes also go to processing plants, such as the Ore-Ida plant in Greenville, where French fries and other potato products are made, and Michigan fall-crop potatoes are also shipped throughout the eastern United States to makers of potato chips, soups, and other potato products.

The rebounding Michigan potato industry now produces more than 55,000 acres of potatoes, well above the 37,000 acres of a few years ago, Kaschyk said. One reason for the expansion is the dedication of growers to the production of high-quality potatoes, and he added that good examples are now available in the stores, fresh from the farmers' fields.

Thirteen historical sites now registered

The National Park Service, under the Department of the Interior, has announced 13 Northern Michigan properties have been entered in the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register of Historic Places is an official list of national cultural resources worthy of preservation.

The list includes districts, sites, buildings and structures significant in American history, architecture and archeology.

Those most recently places on the National Register of Historic Places include 12 lighthouses within nine counties of Northern Michigan.

Entered in the register were: Sturgeon Point Light Station, Alcona County; Thunder Bay Island Light Station, Alpena County; Herman and Anna Hanka Farm, Baraga County; St. Martin Island Light Station, Delta County; Skillagalee Light Station and White Shoal Light Station, Emmet County; Tawas Point Light Station, Iosco County; Bull Rock Light Station, Manitou Island Light Station and Eagle Harbor Light Station, Keweenaw County; Marquette Harbor Light Station, Marquette County; Forty-Mile Point Light Station, Presque Isle County; and Seul Choix Pointe Light Station, Schoolcraft County.

The National Park Service has assured that this designation does not affect ownership of the sites or the owners' rights, and no building or construction restrictions will be placed on these historical places unless federal funds are used.

As studies on the Edmund Fitzgerald's fate unfold, there is some evidence, Veronica says, that it may have been downed by a sea serpent.

One popular theory is that the Fitzgerald was split in two when three huge waves left the middle section of the freighter unsupported.

"My son has a book on the Fitzgerald and the caption on a picture of lifeboat number two reads, 'It looks as if it had been chewed on by some large creature.'"

"Then when the Jacques Cousteau party made their studies, their findings indicated that the ship hit something or something hit it. Others say the two sides of the ship rubbed together and that's what caused the damage."

Veronica said there is still question whether something is really out there or not.

"Legends like these are often brushed aside, swept under the carpet, like anything we cannot explain," she said. "I'm going to pursue it, not with any great vigor, but I'll keep my ears open about my friend the sea serpent."

In the 1940s and 50s, the Petoskey News Review published a number of articles about the sea serpent. There were drawings made from reported sightings and boat cruises were conducted for people to search for the creature.

Various letters to the editor gave actual accounts of sightings from members of the community. All of this could possibly be tied to the Indian sea serpent legend.

"Photos taken in Little Traverse Bay turned out to be a hoax," Veronica related. "Then the paper was going to be resurrect the idea of the sea serpent hoax, but it didn't go."

Why the sea serpent hasn't been sighted recently is well explained. Veronica said with the State of Michigan fish plantings, enough fish are in the Great Lakes to keep the creature contented far out in Great Lakes' waters.

"It is eating well and not coming up and making itself seen," she said.

"We have not heard of anyone seeing our sea serpent in recent years."

Veronica, a full blooded Ottawa born to Joe and Elizabeth Kishigo in the home she still resides in in Harbor Springs, is the youngest of six children. She married a Sioux Indian and lived in Texas for a number of years.

Widowed now, she enjoys her three children, her work at the historical museum, and has recently taken a strong interest in the traditional ways of her people.

She and her youngest son, Joe, attend meetings of the Elders. The Elders are steeped in the rich traditions of the Indians and practice the old traditional ceremonies. It is the "wisdom of the years" that she wishes to make a part of her life.
