Boyne School to need new roof says board

Boyne education officials are going to patch up the high school roof which they found to be in "terrible shape." The roof repair will hold off the leaks over the winter and give the board the chance to determine the best way to fix the roof that in places is 24 years old. "It's in bad shape," said board member John Mathers, Jr. "If we spend money now to patch, we can spend the time over the winter to plan the total job."

The roof repair could cost up to $150,000, according to superintendent Rich Kelly, who made a tour on the roof with Mathers. His cost figure was an estimate from a consultant that the board is considering because of his expertise in school roofs.

The board then voted to spend up to $2,450 with B and B Roofing Company to come in and patch up the obvious places where the leaking and cracks are occurring.

Replanning responsibilities of superintendent Rick Casper and teacher John McGeorge resulted in the board's dividing their teaching jobs into two classes each. McGeorge will also continue as athletics director and the two will split being in charge of honors academic correspondence courses.

The board put McGeorge, who will also be in charge of school attendance, on a teacher pay schedule with additional one-sixth teacher pay added, because he has been given no preparation period. Kelly noted McGeorge must also put in a great deal of after-school time in connection with the athletics program.

Other teacher matters included teacher aide layoff in playground supervision. The aides were Millie LaBrecque and Sharon Johnson. A remedial math aide position was dropped at middle school. The need will be met with nine weeks of remedial math class at the beginning of the school year and another nine weeks at the end, in addition to the regular scheduled class.

Two coaches were appointed: Jamie Vroman for eighth grade girls' basketball and Russ Harvey for varsity golf.

Chris Skornia was recalled to replace one teacher out because of illness, and Bill Wiesner hired to replace another.

Tuition for students outside the district will be $1700.33 for kindergarten, $3400.66 for grades 1 through 6, and $3519.67 for grades 7 through 12.

The board placed dental insurance with Michigan Association of School Boards, and contracted with Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District to allow it use of three Boyne City classrooms. The rooms to be used to teach students with disabilities will bring the school around $11,000, Kelly said.

He noted that the school is in good shape financially with fund equity of $529,295 from last year, which will support some budget needs for the coming year.

BF schools lose principal, board member

Board members of the Boyne Falls school district accepted two resignations in Monday night's meeting at the school cafeteria.

The resignation of board member John Hauser was accepted as he is going to be attending Western Michigan University on a full time basis and would not be able to attend the meetings of the district.

Ron Barnadyn was appointed to replace Hauser on an interim basis until the next election is held in June of 1985.

Joel Donaldson resigned as the school principal of the one school system as he has accepted a position as an elementary school principal in the Kingsley school district south of Traverse City. Donaldson's last day will be Aug. 30 which will help the new superintendent Robert Redmond.

Redmond and the personnel committee will be interviewing candidates. They hope to have someone hired to fill the principal's position by the middle of September.

In other action, the board heard an update on the ongoing school building project. The project will be almost complete by the time school starts. The remaining work will not interfere with school operation, Redmond said. He also informed the school board that the grant applied for to help pay some of the costs of energy saving remodeling was denied by the federal government. He added that the projected energy cost savings should offset the loan payments on the project.

The school board also agreed to let Redmond's children attend the school even though the new superintendent has not yet found a place to live within the school district. The board has a policy that the superintendent has to live within the district.

City commissioners, planners to meet with developers

City commissioners will be meeting with the members of the city planning board in a joint meeting Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. to discuss the upcoming One Water Street site plans with the developers of the project.

The meeting, which was asked for by the planning board, was to help set the direction the city should go as to future development of the waterfront properties within the city. The joint meeting date was decided in the noon meeting of the commissioners at the City Hall.

The commissioners also heard from Lynda Christensen concerning the reseeding project at Rotary Park. She was asked to appear in front of the commissioners by the parks and recreation commission to try to get some funding for increasing the water supply so that the baseball fields at the park could be watered.

She suggested that the ball clubs that use the park would be willing to help fund a program to get the increased amount of water that would be needed to water the fields.

City manager Randy Frykberg said that he would look into the possible costs that the project would take and would report back to the commission. Presently, the park only has a well which is felt inadequate to do the watering, as well as supply water to other parts of the park.

The lines that the well serves are too small, according to Frykberg, and would have to be replaced with larger diameter lines.

The commissioners then recessed the meeting to meet out at the Avalanche Preserve to look at the new steps that are being constructed by the Job Corps workers that the city is using for the project.

Frykberg explained to the commissioners where the steps will lead to and showed the members who were willing to walk up them what the scenic view would be like.

Fire completely destroyed the Boyne Commodities building located on Lake Street last Wednesday afternoon. The fire, which started because of a spark off a cutting torch, also closed temporarily the offices of William Battiste, Jr., who has a law office in the same building. Boyne Commodities is back in business, delivering food to schools after finding temporary warehouse space at the corner of U.S. 131 and M-32. Battiste, after cleaning up the water damage, has restarted his law practice in the same location. The story and additional photos are on page 4.

East Jordan to discuss budget increases

Budget increases in three proposed areas were discussed Tuesday, Aug. 21, by city council in East Jordan. Increased expenditures were requested for the fire department, senior center, and the city's liability umbrella policy.

Council set hearings for public comment on city budget amendment expenditures to be held Thursday, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m., and Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m.

The fire department's request for $3,400 would increase its budget from $41,950 to $45,350. The expected increase is due to an unusually high number of calls recently for chimney fires. The relocation of the department's answering service has also added to department costs.

A second issue opened for discussion at the public hearings will be the city's liability umbrella insurance coverage. The city currently holds a policy with a liability coverage of $1 million. For an additional premium of $1,300 the city can increase liability coverage to $3 million.

A third issue to be opened for discussion concerns additional expenditures of $2,108 to cover utility costs at the community building. A new lease agreement in the works between senior citizens and the city would require seniors to pay utilities on the senior center building. A delay in signing of the lease by the city has put the city over the budget.

In other business council agreed to a request by city clerk, Kathy O'Rear and treasurer, Glendora Murphy, to tape record council and committee meetings as council directs, for the purpose of writing city minutes.

A policy, transcribed by city attorney Scott Beatty, states that all tape recorded meetings will have signs posted and all tapes are to be retained for 60 days. According to Beatty, the tapes are public documents available to the public under the Freedom of Information Act.

Council endorsed a 12-year tax abatement to Bernard and Anna Schmitt, owners of Main Street Clothing in East Jordan. The commercial facilities' tax exemption is for $18,000 worth of restoration to the building at 200 Main Street.

A bid was awarded to James Tank of Charlevoix at a cost of $10,120 for improvements to the senior center building. Renovations will consist of a new emergency door, kitchen improvements and roof repair.

The city awarded a second bid to M&A Electric of Boyne City for electrical generator hookups at the city's water and sewer plants. The hookups will ensure the city of electricity in the event of a power outage at a cost of $11,306.

Council appointed Bob Tims to the Parks and Recreation Commission. Tims will replace Bruce Woodcock.

City superintendent Mike Dionne was appointed chairman to a committee which will work specifically at creating an emergency preparedness plan for the city.

Mound systems still in committee

The proposed Charlevoix County sanitary code with its much-discussed section on above-ground-level septic systems has returned to committee along with written opinions from county residents. County commissioners wanted the proposed code reviewed in terms of these opinions.

Health District III's present code was set in May 1966. The proposed update, according to commissioners, has minor changes except for the section on septic systems. "Mounds" as the above-ground systems are called, did not appear in the '66 code though they have been mandated by the department since then on a few building sites around the county.

Mounds are considered a feasible alternative to a buried septic system when the water table is so high that it makes a buried system unsafe. In the proposed code, specific regulations govern the possibility of use of mounds.

Commissioner Oral Sutliff said the committee work may take a few months. "None of us want to see it drag on, but we don't want to rush it just to complete it by a particular date."

He said the hope is that the proposed code, which must be approved by the department since

MR. AND MRS. CHRISTOPHER FAIR

Melissa Casper weds Christopher Fair

At the First Presbyterian Church of Boyne City in an afternoon ceremony on Aug. 18, the Rev. Milton Walls, Jr. performed the ceremony that united Melissa Casper in marriage to Christopher Fair. Melissa is the daughter of Rick and Kay Casper of Boyne City, and Christopher is the son of Margaret Fair of Honor, and Douglas Fair of St. Francis, Kansas.

Given in marriage by her father, Melissa wore a gown of white taffeta with an open v-neckline in front and a drop-V to the waist in back. The A-line skirt flowed into a chapel length train. The gown was accented with a matching taffeta mini-cap, and her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses, pink mini carnations, white daisies and baby's breath.

A special duet was offered by brother and sister of the bride, Bill and Ricka Casper, and soloist Diane Hausler was accompanied by Roberta Korhase, organist.

Joy Raber of Boyne City, a friend of the couple, was maid of honor for Melissa; Annie and Laurie Fair of Honor, sisters of the groom, Jonna Korhase of Boyne, and Katherine Drayton of Fenton, friends of the couple, served as bridesmaids. Jr. bridesmaid was Ricka Casper, sister of the bride.

The girls were dressed in rosebud off-the-shoulder taffeta gowns, and carried nosegays of a white mum and baby's breath.

Roger Korhase of Boyne City and friend of the couple was best man for Christopher, and James Raber of Boyne City and David Fair of Honor, Christopher's brother, were groomsmen, along with Bill Casper, brother of the bride, and Brian and Darryl Korhase of Boyne City, friends of the couple.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's mother, Margaret Fair, at the home of Jon Hartwell in Horton Bay.

After a reception in the banquet room of Boyne City Lanes, a buffet dinner for 300 guests, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to Chicago.

OUR COLORFUL MARKETS

I know of no place more colorful than our village garden market along one side of the green wooded city park on Boyne River. Fruits, flowers, vegetables of all sizes, colors and shapes tempt me. Then there are home made pies, cookies, breads, rolls and all kinds of jellies and jams. It is just the place to meet one's friends or make new ones. The friendly farmers and gardeners not only sell their produce but they will advise one on the best way to cook them as well as give advice on the best varieties to look for.

I like to think in color when these vegetables and fruits are available, such as beets, corn, cabbages, green and yellow beans; no need for meals to be dull. The following recipes can usually be made with the canned varieties, though now is the time for that fresh garden taste. These vegetable dishes are a delight to behold as well as having that special garden flavor. Why not try...

PICKLED BEETS

Wash the beets thoroughly and cut off the tops about one inch above the root. If the beets are very young the tops can be cooked for greens. Of course, the best greens are the ones you save when thinning the beets, leaving those tiny beets on, served with a little butter, vinegar and salt and pepper.

Now back to the beets. Cook them in water to cover until tender. Let them cool a little then peel the skins off; it slips off easily, then slice.

Ingredients:
2 cups beets, or 1 can sliced canned beets
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup of honey or 1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
About 1/16 teaspoon cloves

Heat syrup to the boiling point, add the beets and simmer about 5 minutes. These beets should marinate a while before serving. They do not need to be chilled. Good either way.

Cooking

Then there are those beautiful red and green cabbages. So rich in vitamin C. One cup cooked cabbage is only 35 calories, and 25 calories to one cup of shredded raw.

Here is an easy-to-do, tasty and colorful dish. I remember making this years ago and had forgotten about it.

RED CABBAGE

2 tablespoons salad oil
1 small head of red cabbage, cut up
2 medium apples, cut up
1/2 cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon caraway seeds. (Caraway always improves cabbage.)

I like to use a non-stick skillet for this, or my stainless steel electric fry pan. Heat oil in the skillet, add all ingredients and cover tightly. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, about 30 minutes or until tender. Serve hot.

My new friend, Gladys Milby, sent me this recipe. She says, "These are Virginia recipes. I am from Hampton, Virginia not too far from Jamestown and Williamsburg, where our history began."

She is spending the summer with her daughter in Pickford, MI. Here is her recipe for corn pudding. Other recipes from Gladys will be forthcoming.

CORN PUDDING

2 cans cream style corn
1 large can evaporated milk
3 large eggs
Ingredients:
2 cups beets, or 1 can sliced canned beets
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 stick melted margarine
Salt to taste, or just a dash

Mix corn and milk together. Mix cornstarch and sugar together. Beat eggs well, mix all together and pour into a buttered 2 quart baking dish. Pour melted butter over contents and bake at 350° for 45 to 50 minutes, or until a pretty brown on top. Thanks, Gladys.

CHEAP SPLASH ON

We were unable to find Old Spice after shave lotion at the market so we tossed a bottle of bargain brand into our basket. Not having used that kind before, I was not acquainted with its capability. When we got home I read the label. It said, "Splash-on...after shave...after shower...after anything!" So I splashed it on after anything and man! its capability was right up there with that of the old Boyne City tannery. A man who owed me money hid in an alley after sensing my approach three blocks away.

HOW TO EAT AND GET SICK

Yes, I'm a label reader. Many years ago I would very occasionally take a slight nip of the Devil's brew, just to be sociable, mind you; and I would always read what it said on the bottle before committing the sin. I wanted to know if it would be possible to get out of whatever I was about to get into. (I have known people who have gotten into things they couldn't get out of even though they hadn't drunk a drip.)

Satan's evil bracer never caused me much trouble. Not like eating too much sweet corn and baked beans at a nice Rotary picnic. I recall years ago when I over-did that combination at a picnic and was thrown for a three day loop. I held my stomach and would have gladly stepped off the plank blindfolded; whereas an occasional whiskey merely caused me to romp and make a damn fool of myself.

This is no endorsement for whiskey; nor is it a suggestion that you let ear corn and baked beans take three years off your life and give them to Jimmy Stackus. Sometimes I don't know what to put into my mouth—or how I got way out here in left field where the paying customers don't know what I'm talking about.

A HAIRY LAWN STORY

In addition to the Republicans and Democrats, I have been disturbed by two things this summer: My hair and our lawn.

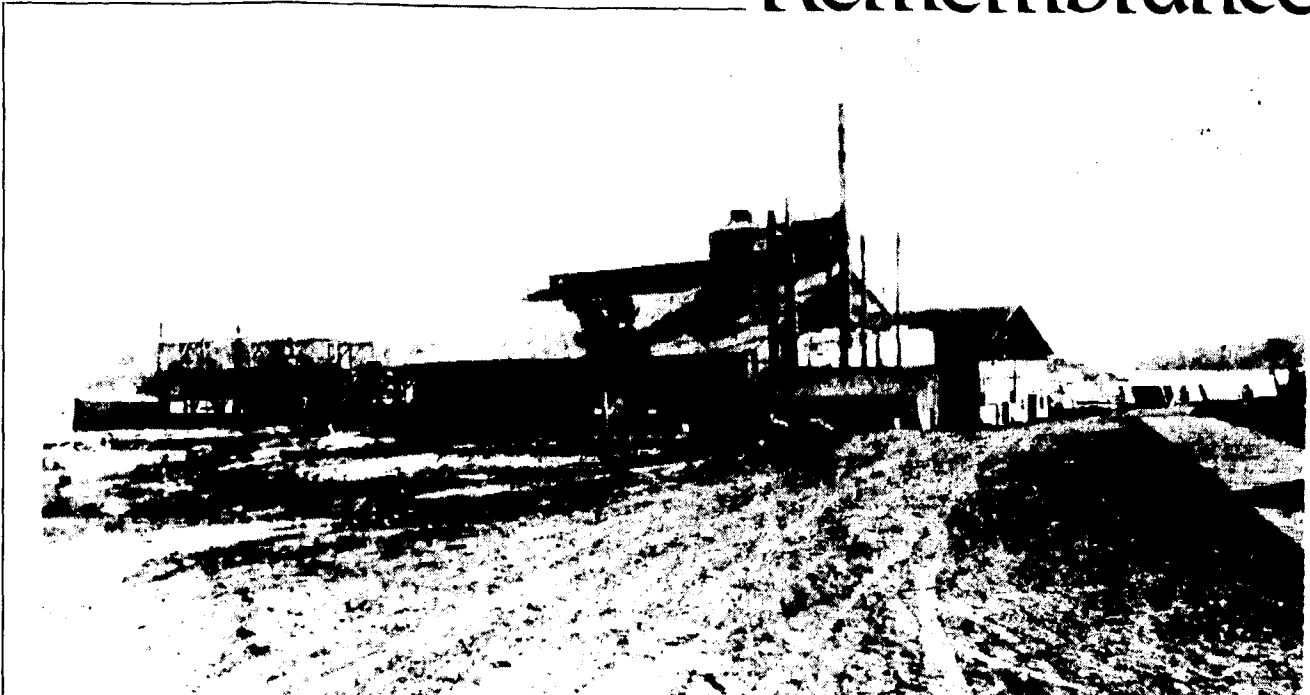

My hair, what's left of it, grows faster in summer than winter. At least my wife thinks so.

And take our lawn. It simply will not stay mowed. Cut it one day and within two or three days our neighbor's lawn looks greener and fresher cut.

Now, due to my recent unpleasantness, I have not been able to sustain lawn-mowing beyond 15 minutes or so. After that I huff and puff and become so angry I could blow our house down.

So my wife mows the lawn. I pull the cord for her to get the engine started and then walk along saying, "Mow here, mow there." That's because, in the brain part of my head, I've been an executive all my life and, just because nature has played a few tricks on me, I'm not about to quit now. Even though the government has begun to force social security upon me, I still spring out of bed in the morning ready to tell people what to do.

But to get back to my hair. The reason I know that it grows faster in summer is because whenever my wife begins to mow the lawn, she says, "I think it's time you went down and got a haircut."

Iron was king in the Ironton area back in the early days. This picture shows the Pig Iron Factory as it was on the south side of the narrows in Ironton. The plant was known for making cast iron that was sent out by freighters on the lakes to other ports where it was made into steel. The plant was closed down after the lumbering days took away the supply of charcoal and coke that was used to smelt the ore. If you have any pictures of the old days, bring them into our office so that we may share them with our readers.

This isn't supposed to be a plug for radio or for Garrison Keeler, but if you haven't listened to your radio on Saturday evenings for the last four or five years, you might not know the Prairie Home Companion suspense story.

Every Saturday evening Garrison (where did his parents get that name!) MCs an hour of mostly country music. People who care naught for country music tune in, but just to hear Garrison's two monologues.

The suspense is: will he or will he not succeed tonight.

When he succeeds, the evening is all fine. When he fails, it's always when we have company.

That makes it even more suspenseful, because we've staked a pile by making everyone listen.

What makes taking a chance worthwhile is that Garrison digs into his own childhood in a small country town and assembles its images and experiences into what usually turns out to be a work of art.

He seems to simply ramble from incident to comment to comment to incident about life in semi-fictional Lake Wobegone. But in the process, he gathers up the echoes from our own everyday lives—even city lives—and we find ourselves chuckling or choked up as he talks about graduation or Karl's car or any small, typical joys and ironies we typical people also have.

In contrast to the zapped-up situation comedies we've been fed for years, Garrison's leisurely accounts don't even seem to be trying to entertain.

They remind me of a short French movie I saw about 15 years ago. Not about love and Paris, this was about a little boy who wanted to have a chicken for a pet. It scarcely had a plot, but it was unforgettable, obviously.

Although a plot is meant to keep things together, Garrison denies plot. Yet as he wanders from one recollection to another with his sense of humor barely showing, we follow to the end, and there, suddenly it all fits together. And that's when we become aware of the intimate power in our own seemingly inconsequential lives.

So I guess it isn't suspense after all that makes us tune in. It's having the shades go up on how funny, how sweet, or how touching the smaller and more important things of life really are.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Why is it that a fire brings out some of the best of us, and some of the worst of others.

While we were trying to take pictures of the first real fire that the department has had in a long time, we heard many comments about the members of the department only being able to save basements and watering ponds.

Now we know that isn't the fact, but it does bring up a few points that the city may want to consider.

We don't know the size of the water mains that are in front of the building in question, but we do know that in many areas of the city, they are hopelessly inadequate for fighting a major fire of the sort the department had last week.

If the city, in their looking for grants, could come up with a grant so that they could replace many of the mains with larger ones, that would be a great help to those who have to fight the fire and endure listening to some of the comments made by the spectators who always turn out when there is a fire.

We also can see the need for the city to start saving up for some kind of aerial device so that they could get on top of some of the fires to spray water down. Right now, we have to thank the electrical companies who are generous with letting the department have the use of the Hi-Rangers they use in hanging wire.

It may come to that when one considers all the construction going on around the town that seems to be getting higher and larger each week.

It is also strange that the fire departments in the immediate area don't have a capability to get above a fire other than the City of Petoskey, which has a boom truck that goes up 60 feet in the air.

Of course they are about 20 to 30 minutes away from Boyne City and even longer from East Jordan.

If the city could determine that we need such a truck, some of the benefits that could be taken advantage of include an even lower fire insurance cost that we all pay when we buy fire insurance for our homes.

With the purchase of a new truck last year, all of our rates were reduced accordingly. Accordingly, that is, in relation to how close we live from the fire department.

Maybe we could get one of the developers who are making all the housing changes to contribute to start a fund while it is still fresh in our minds as to what a large fire can do to a wood structure.

After all, Boyne City has seen its share of fires over the years, and in going through the history books and looking at picture after picture of fires, it seems that the town is always slightly short of having the equipment to really help with the job.

We would like to see such a drive to continually upgrade started.

Probably even the members of the department would agree that some more equipment, better and larger water systems throughout the town, would make their job easier.

It is always nice to hear positive comments on stories that we write about some of the things that happen in the community. We enjoy it like almost everybody who likes to hear good things about themselves.

But, we always end up figuring that it is a little like being a dog. Of course a dog likes to be petted, likes to be played with, but let that dog come into the house with muddy feet, and the world of kindness stops quickly.

Boyne Valley Garden Club holds workshop

The August meeting of Boyne Valley Garden Club was held at the Litzenger Apts. at noon with 22 members attending. Since this was a workshop on making sachets, members brought bag lunches, with hostesses Grace Davis and Donna Mosley serving fresh fruit and cookies.

During the business meeting reports of committee chairmen were given. It was suggested that Allis McClain, the first year president, be recognized for her many contributions to the club, by making her the first honorary member. The entire club voted that this be done.

Club members were reminded that there will be a baby's breath wreath workshop on Sept. 6 at 10 o'clock at the home of Marg Whiteford.

Members were also asked to bring any extra perennial plants they have to share with others at the regular meeting on Sept. 27. Reginald Sharkey will be the speaker at that meeting.

Ingredients for pot-pourri mix had been collected earlier for sachets. The activity of the afternoon was making suitable packets.

Fire Wednesday destroys former ice plant

When the Boyne City Fire Department arrived on the scene, this is what they saw. Smoke was coming out of the eaves of the building that housed Boyne Commodities and the law offices of William Battiste, Jr.

Even a leak in one of the hoses from East Jordan didn't stop the firefighters from putting water on the blaze.

Smoke from the fire, which destroyed the warehouses of Boyne Commodities, could be seen for miles, but up close, it looked like a fog was coming in over the building.

We would like to thank everyone who helped us move items from our businesses during the recent fire.

With sincere thanks,
John and Bill Battiste

Fire destroyed the offices and the warehouse of Boyne Commodities last Wednesday after a welding torch apparently set fire to the building. The fire department was on the scene within seconds after the call was sounded at 6:27 p.m.

The building housed the commodity firm, which was a government storage facility that serves the northern part of Michigan with surplus food for the schools and the food program for the disadvantaged, as well as the legal offices for William Battiste, Jr.

The building, which was built in the late 1920s, was used as a meat packing plant, an ice making firm, and a freezer plant, as well as its latest use as a distribution center for the food programs.

It is owned by former Boyne City resident, William Battiste, Sr., who now lives in Virginia.

The fire, which started by sparks from a cutting torch, apparently ignited the insulation of one of the sections. The insulation was made of ground cork and sawdust. Workers were clearing out some old steel that was going to be in the way of a new compressor that was ordered just a few weeks ago and was to be installed this week.

Firemen were on the scene until 1:30 a.m. and were called back to the location after smoldering debris caught fire the next morning.

No estimate was given for the amount of loss, but the office of William Battiste, Jr. was only water damaged, according to the Battistes. They expect to be able to continue once they have cleaned up the mess and return the law books and other files to the office.

Members of the whole family worked during the fire to save all the books and records of the law firm, as well as the records of the commodity offices.

Last Thursday, Boyne Commodities found another location that they are working out of temporarily on U.S. 131 in Elmira. The fire destroyed cheese and butter that was stored awaiting delivery to the schools the firm serves. The company made deliveries to some of the schools on Friday, Battiste said.

Clean up of the building is underway, according to John Battiste, who is running the commodity firm.

The fire destroyed the main refrigerated section of the building which housed the butter and cheese. Other parts of the building were not touched by the fire due to the many block walls that separated the compartments of the building. The dry food areas, which are housed in a separate structure, were not harmed according to Battiste.

Working with the fire department to contain the blaze were members of the East Jordan Fire Department, Consumers Power and Wolverine Power. Both electrical firms assisted the fire department with Hi-Ranger lifts so that the firemen could put water down into the building.

C.H. Smith construction was also called to assist in helping to uncover blazing wood so that the firemen could put it out. They brought in a backhoe and cleared out walls so that the fire could be uncovered.

Members of the sheriff's department also helped with traffic control along with a few other volunteers who helped the firemen move hoses.

According to observers at the fire, it seemed that the fire department had some problems getting enough water to fight the blaze. That situation was remedied when the departments set up pumpers to draw water out of the lake.

Fire Chief Butch Erber talks over the situation with the East Jordan fire chief, Dick Barnett, after East Jordan was called to assist Boyne's fire department.

Thanks to Wolverine Power Company and Consumers Power, Hi-Ranger trucks were loaned out to the department with crews to run them to help put water on the fire from above.

Water from the deluge gun mounted on one of Boyne City's fire trucks puts a continual spray on the fire as it was located right on Lake Street. The gun, which can spray over a 1000 gallons of water a minute, was used continually to help fight the fire.

Spraying water where the smoke was so heavy and you can't see what you are doing was just one of the problems the firemen had during the fire. Here, firemen from East Jordan man a gun while others from the department look on trying to see where the water spray is going and if it is hitting where the fire is located.

Wanted: EJ four year olds

East Jordan elementary school is looking for four-year-olds. The school has a free program for these children that prepares them to get the most from their upcoming school experience. Arlene Rullman, in charge of the program, says it is so valuable, it is now in its eighth year. She hopes that subscribers to The Press who read this item will tell neighbors who may not have read it to call the school if they have a child who will be four by December 1. Children will come to school three days a week with teacher Toni Jeffery for activities that will help them succeed in school. The program also includes parents' coming one half day a week. In the process of helping their child at school, they pick up skills in teaching their child. Rullman says, "We believe parents are the most significant teachers of their children. Children also recognize the importance of school when they have their parents taking part with them. Rullman says, the idea has been so worthwhile, they have some kindergarten classes in the program too. Even if mothers are working, fathers, or other relatives, or baby sitters would fit the requirements, Rullman says. She asks that parents call the school right away to give the child's name, parent's name, address, and phone number. Appointment letters will then go out to these homes scheduling screening during the second week of school. The program will start up soon after screening has been completed.

EJ and BC coaches optimistic about teams, season

Fall sports programs are already in full swing for both Boyne City and East Jordan school systems, and everyone participating seems to be keyed up and excited to open their seasons.

East Jordan's varsity football team has some real bruisers out for practice this year, and coach Ted Jeffery says "for big people they seem to be doing well." Although they are not real quick, he is "happy with their performance so far, and they seem to be picking up the plays well. The kids are working hard, and they like to hit hard." Twenty four varsity players have turned out, some with experience, and they will use quite a few people to play both offense and defense. Jeffery says "they are quite a physical team, and we should win our share of the games."

East Jordan's junior varsity team has a lot of experience with 10 sophomores in line for possible starting jobs. They don't have a lot of size but they are quick and get off the line well. If they have any weak spots, it's in depth, as most of the team is made up of freshmen with limited experience. The front line and the backfield do have experience from last year's team. Assistant coach Steve Poole noted that the team will not be in the bottom of the standings and that East Jordan should win 75 percent of their games.

In Boyne City, coach Bob McCullough says his team has decent size and a fair amount of speedsters. They are "having pretty good scrimmages and hitting hard." They too are getting off the line well and they are excited about the upcoming season. McCullough says Gaylord, Rogers City, and St. Ignace are the teams to beat this year as they should all be tough, but quickly added "our first team to beat is Harbor Springs on Sept. 7."

Boyne City's junior varsity football team had 32 freshmen and 17 sophomores turn out, and they split up to field an all freshman team. The regular JV team may need to utilize some of the freshmen to fill gaps, but enough frosh will remain to keep their team going. Coach Dave Bricker says they are "eager," also "big and fast." The conditioning period looks good, but "hitting your teammates is different from hitting against another school's team."

Athletic director John McGeorge already scheduled three freshman games and is working on more.

In girls' basketball, coach Jack Caverly says the team "should do well," as they have good experience to work with and are basically strong. He wants to "keep the tempo of the game in our favor" using a "run and gun" style of play headed in numbers. Caverly says, "Other teams will know we've been there," and wants to approach the season "one game at a time, and go from there."

These swimmers from the Boyne City Swim School all received certificates or awards for swimming distances. The longest distance swimmers swam this year were 50 miles. Others swam shorter distances for their awards.

Malpass wins EJ tennis tourney

In a heavy program Saturday, Tad Malpass played down four separate challenges to first place in the East Jordan tennis tournament.

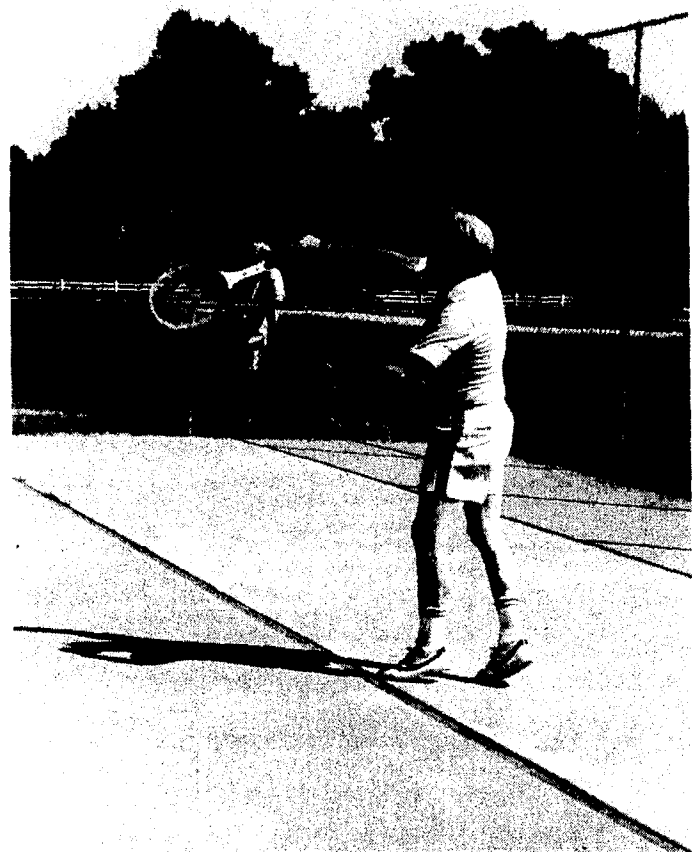

This makes the third year Malpass has come out on top, and not only in the singles contest but also, with his brother Tracy, in doubles on Sunday.

Malpass was a volunteer tennis instructor in the city recreation program this summer, training up some future competition, possibly.

He said the tournaments, sponsored by the city, are fun, being open to all levels of skill.

Coming in second in singles was Kevin Dietrich. First in women's singles was Lynn Hawkins, beating Arlene Evon of Grayling.

Hud Sommerville won his sets by means of his never-fall placement. The 72-year-old player was one of the competitors in the East Jordan tennis tournament last Saturday and Sunday.

proved by the four counties in the district, would protect the lake.

"None of us want to damage the environment," he said.

Concern has been voiced both in Charlevoix County, as well as in Emmet County where a new code was passed last year, that mound use will allow development around the lake in low-lying properties which till now could not be used for home sites.

Committee member Larry Levengood is one of those who have frequently stressed that mounds are only as good as the care is in building and maintaining them.

Dorothy Custer, who is also a member of the ad hoc committee, chaired by Irving Sturm, said that one of the written opinions was hers as she wished to go on record with her objections. Her view is that correct installation and maintenance of mounds require more supervision and enforcement than a community can customarily provide

Michigan summer expected to be best since 1978 in tourism

Michigan's summer tourism season—which began slowly due to cool weather—has heated up and a busy Labor Day holiday could help push the state to a four percent hike over last year, reports the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Warm, dry weather this Labor Day weekend should help propel Michigan to its best tourism year since 1978," stated James Drury, Auto Club Travel Operations' manager. "However, when adjustments for inflation and other factors are considered, 1978 will remain as the record tourism year."

Summer tourism spending in Michigan could approach a record $3.3 billion. By comparison, $2.5 billion was spent in Michigan for the same period in 1978.

The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates that motorists will drive 765 million miles this 78-hour Labor Day weekend, a two percent increase over last year. So far this year, the number of miles traveled in Michigan is up from 3 to 3.5 percent.

"Requests for Auto Club Tour Books and routings to Michigan destinations are up nearly five percent for the first seven months of this year, compared to the same period last year, with a 10 percent increase in July," Drury noted.

"All four regional tourist bureaus report summer travel increases ranging up to five percent," Drury noted. "Among the up-scale barometers are the Grand Traverse County area, where tourism is up 20 percent, and Dearborn's Greenfield Village, up 12 percent."

The Michigan Travel Bureau's survey of 20 tourist attractions shows a 6.5 percent overall attendance increase through July. Mackinac Bridge crossings are up .9 percent for the year while Grand Hotel visitors on Mackinac Island are up 6 percent. At Detroit's Boblo Island, attendance is up 10 percent.

Camping is on par with last year. Preliminary figures from the Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners indicate that overall camping by summer's end could be up nearly five percent over 1983, while camping at state parks is down 4.2 percent through mid-July.

"Labor Day travelers will find that self-serve gasoline costs have tumbled an average 4 cents per gallon on state highways since Memorial Day," Drury said. Statewide self-serve no-lead averages $1.236 per gallon. Gasoline supplies will be abundant for the holiday weekend, which officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31 and ends at midnight Monday, Sept. 3.

Seventeen persons died in 1983 Michigan Labor Day traffic, including five motorcyclists and three pedestrians. None of those killed in cars was wearing a safety belt. Eleven of the 15 at-fault drivers were drinking.

The Auto Club's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Holiday News Service will complete its 20th year of service by providing the latest information on traffic conditions and tourism for hourly broadcasts to more than 160 radio stations from 3 to 11 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and Monday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday.

Walloon author writes about world's oldest profession

BY NANCY JARVIS

Walloon Lake author H. Gordon Frost's latest book about the world's oldest profession isn't what one might expect. In fact, it ended up being far from what Frost had expected when he first got the idea 15 years ago.

The Gentlemen's Club; The Story of Prostitution in El Paso, is a historical documentation of brothels in El Paso, Texas and that town's sister city of Juarez, Mexico. It isn't pornography nor is it a blatant plea for the acceptance of prostitution.

The book spans over 100 years of prostitution starting with El Paso's tenderloin district in the 1800s to current day hitchhookers of the 1980s. Frost read every El Paso newspaper from 1848 to 1983, interviewed over 50 prostitutes ranging in age from 11 to 104, and he scanned police files and private ledgers.

He now calls Gentlemen's Club the most fascinating research project he has ever been involved in, and he has researched and authored or co-authored six other books.

The Gentlemen's Club will be unveiled in northern Michigan on Friday, Aug. 31 at Volume I Bookstore in Petoskey with an autograph party from 1 to 3 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

While the book focuses on El Paso, it is a rendering of the prostitution profession that can be held true almost anywhere from the big city hookers to the traveling ladies of the hunting camps. Prostitution is similar everywhere as are the women to practice it.

"I did notice similarities in personalities," Frost said. "I discovered they are the most honest women I have ever come across, as contrasted with certain society women.

"They don't dress in the garish clothes that Hollywood makes us believe they do. They are like our neighbors."

Frost fell into the idea of writing a book on prostitution after he gave a banquet speech titled Wire, Windmills, Whiskey, Women and Work; The Real Winners of the West. The main focus of the talk was of the importance of firearms in shaping the west.

The organization had specifically requested that Frost try to jazz up his talk a bit, as contrasted with previous speakers who had a tendency to put the audience to sleep.

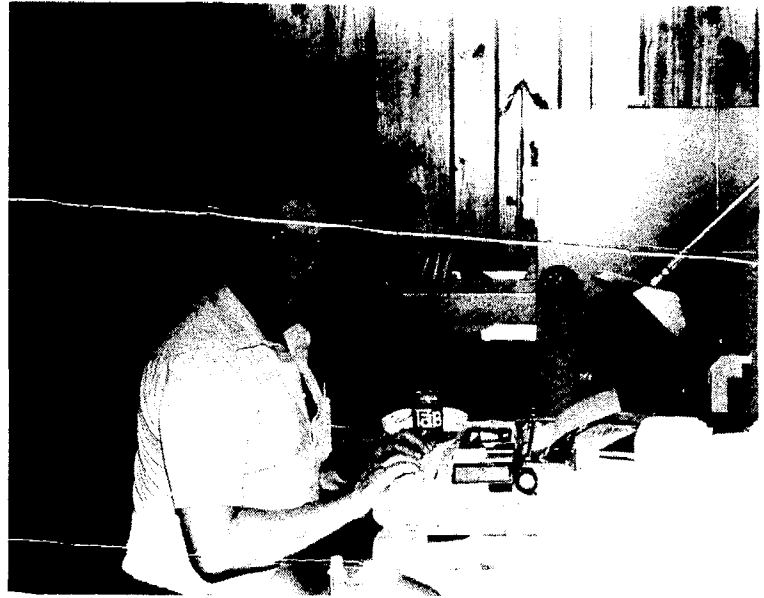

"When I got to the part about women, I mentioned three prostitutes and told about how prostitution was also important in settling the west. Without them, the men would go and shoot up the area, take the gold and turquoise, and return to the women. Prostitution brought culture and had a settling influence."

Frost said when he returned to Walloon Lake after that speech, he received 71 letters requesting more information about the women. That's when he decided a book was in order.

"Books have been written about prostitution," Frost said, "but they depicted the girls in a scornful, finger pointing, hypocritical way."

This author wanted to do it in another way. And he has. Through his research, he came around 180 degrees on the subject of prostitution, he said.

Wrote Frost in the book's epilogue: "When I first embarked on the odyssey of chronicling the intimate details of El Paso's oft-ignored-thus hidden-professionally passionate past, I had strong prejudices against prostitutes and their profession. However, in genesis and maturation of the

H. GORDON FROST

Gentlemen's Club, my attitudes slowly took a complete turnabout due to the self-evident truths encountered.

"...It is past time that we approach the problem of prostitution from a sensible, realistic aspect: one that deals jointly with decriminalization and humane treatment for some of the most human, beings."

Frost went about his research and interviewing in a professional, diplomatic manner. He paid the women he interviewed $50 for their time and tales. He began with an extensive list of questions about them and their work, and found that after they had answered the questions, they were willing to open up a bit and relate what became some of the most interesting aspects of the book.

The main hurdle was to get the women to believe he was not a member of the Vice Squad, but an actual author doing serious research. Since he was paying for his interviews, word got out and Frost found himself being approached by prostitutes eager to tell their story.

One of his most interesting interviews was with a woman 104 years old who had worked in one of the most famous establishments in the 1800s. She eventually went on her own to Mexico and started a partnership with "Nigger Red."

The woman, Lucy Martin, would only speak Spanish, although she knew English. Fortunately Frost speaks Spanish as well and was able to document her fascinating story even though the woman wouldn't allow a tape recording of their conversation or a photograph for fear she may cause embarrassment to one of her many great-grandchildren.

Summing up the interviews, Frost related: "Most of the girls I talked to would rather not be in another business. They make so much money so fast. All of the girls felt they were performing a service. If it wasn't for the demand, they wouldn't be there to supply."

"And again and again I encountered the incredible hypocrisy—arrest the girl and let the man go free. I observed pickups from a distance to ascertain if the women were hookers and most of the time it was the men who propositioned the girl."

Frost's book has been nominated for the Texas Historical Commission 1983 contest for best historical publication on local or regional Texas history.

It has been acclaimed by noted Southwestern historians.

The Gentlemen's Club publisher, Managan Books, has received numerous top design awards. The 31 limited edition books, complete with call girl cards and a garter belt with a pistol, sold fast for $125. So did the 100 parlor editions.

The book was number one bestseller in the southwest the first week out and has been hanging in ninth place ever since.

The chain-smoking author has written since he was 16, selling his first article at that age to True Confessions magazine. He has authored or co-authored six other books, several of a historical nature, and others about guns and gun fighters. He is an internationally recognized authority in the field of antique weapons and has served on the boards of many arms related organizations.

A Texas native, Frost taught science and history in the El Paso Public Schools for 15 years and only recently took up writing full time.

Frost discovered northern Michigan when he was 12 years old and he said he fell in love with the lake, the birds and the trees. His stepfather, who had come to the area since 1914, built a cabin on the lake.

He now lives in a log cabin not far from where Ernest Hemingway once lived. He is remodeling the cabin's interior and plans to display his extensive collection of brothel paraphernalia.

With The Gentlemen's Club's publication, Frost is now turning his attentions to other writing projects. The divorced father of four and grandfather of three was left by his wife after 28 years of marriage. He found himself all thumbs in the kitchen, and embarrassingly, tore apart his washing machine trying to find the lint trap.

He plans a book of a humorous tone on the trials and tribulations of middle-aged men on their own. He is also working on a cookbook.

He has completed, and is tightening up, his first fiction—a love story set on Mackinac Island.

"I hope it will do for the middle-aged man what Love Story did for the preppie," he said.

He is also working on a book of ghost stories, and has completed a book of poetry that will be published next spring.

Frost has been approached about movie rights to The Gentlemen's Club, but he is concerned about how the book may be portrayed.

"I will insist on it not being turned into an X-rated movie," he said. "Call it writer's pride."

Boat Works gets new boat lift

McIntyre Boat Works, located on Glenwood Beach, announced the acquisition of a 20 ton Travel-Lift for their business.

With the new equipment the boat works says they will be able to service and store boats in the 35 to 45 foot range. They say they will be able to pull boats out of the water to do repairs on bottoms, change propellers and other items that are on the bottom of boats and would be difficult to repair with the boat in the water.

The marina is continuing to expand, said Jeb McIntyre. He also commented that, "Perhaps this will help put to rest the persistent rumors that the marina is for sale. Our goal is to become one of the best marinas and the most versatile small marinas on the lake and in the north."

McIntyre added that, "With the growth and development occurring in Boyne City, the opportunities are unbelievable. Why would we want to sell now?"

Preserving nature's best

BY NANCY JARVIS

So, what is gourmet food? "I don't like to use the word gourmet," says Justin Rashid, owner of Petoskey's American Spoon Foods. "The word gourmet implies elitism and that good food is only for the elite. It's a matter of vocabulary. Why not skip the vocabulary and let people taste for themselves."

Taste one can at his Lake Street shop. Rashid leaves samples of his various preserves out on a table where shoppers can nibble and taste to see what they like best.

Things like wild blueberry, nectarine, wild blackberry and peach—in all 20 different preserves, including some seedless varieties. And tayberry, a combination of loganberry and red raspberry, is a new preserve that is growing in popularity.

All of American Spoon Foods preserves are made from the wild fruit and lemon juice, with only a little sugar added, and sometimes none at all. There is no water or pectin added to harden the preserves.

"These are the finest preserves made in the world," Rashid boasts. "They are so excellent because we try not to destroy what nature made perfect."

Other products include things like cranberry-maple sauce and tomato-apple relish. Curry, spinach and tomato fettucine hangs around the shop, too, as do the delicious and famous morel mushrooms, which sell for $10 an ounce.

A good part of American Spoon Food's business is through mail order to 48 states and hundreds of gourmet stores. They offer original bark wood gift packaging. Early in the now 5-year-old business, New York restaurants were big buyers. Now restaurants all over the country purchase American Spoon Foods, including local spots like Walloon Lake Inn, the Rowe Inn and the new Tapa-wingo.

The products are obtained from a vast number of suppliers, ordinary people out there picking and collecting for them. And Rashid himself collects mushrooms and berries when the pressures of the business allow him the time.

Rashid says it's fate that led him and his wife, Kate Marshall, to the food business. Rashid's father, despite his law degree, ran a grocery store, and Rashid fondly recalls the shopping tours to various markets and his father's lively bidding adventures.

His mother grew up on a farm and he "inherited" her love for good, pure food. "When I left theatre a friend read my cards and said I would make use of an inherited gift," Rashid recalls.

"My love of the outdoors and good food led me here. It's all connected with my feelings about the quality of life and pure food."

"There is a connection between what we choose to eat and where it came from. For city people, we provide the missing link. Somewhere in everyone's past they were connected to the farm and ate food they

Annual Kircher Cup Golf Tourney to be held this weekend

The 11th annual Kircher Cup "better ball" tournament this year will tee off with a record-breaking number of entries. More than 70 two-men teams are entered in the scratch competition.

Scheduled again this year for the Labor Day holiday weekend at Boyne Highlands Golf Resort, Harbor Springs, the 54-hole tournament is under the co-chairmanship of Everett Kircher and Glenn Johnson, Grosse Ile, a former Kircher Cup winner. Johnson is also a three-time winner of the Michigan state amateur title. He recently captured his third Great Lakes Senior Golf Association at Boyne Highlands, edging defending champion, Fred Zinn of Petoskey.

Zinn will team with another Petoskey resident, John Jorgensen. John and Steve Kircher, Everett Kircher's sons, will team up in this year's event. John will fly in from Big Sky, the Montana Boyne USA Resorts property he manages. Steve is a resident of Boyne City.

Play during the invitational event includes two rounds over the Heather Links, ranked among the top 100 golf courses by Golf Digest magazine. The second round will be played over the Moor course.

Over 250 golfers and their guests are expected, Johnson said. "It will be the largest tournament in Kircher Cup history."

The gang gets ready to tug the rest of the Eagles' picnickers across the line. It was their 40th annual children's picnic with Jane Thomas in charge of games this year.

grew themselves. That memory still exists and we provide that missing link.

"We're like the missing grandmother," Rashid said with a broad smile.

Tom Cooper, owner of Rocky Top Farms just south of Atwood, agrees the word gourmet is terribly misunderstood.

"A lot of people misuse the word gourmet," Cooper said. "Anyone can put 'gourmet' on a label, but that doesn't make it so. They think gourmet means high-priced, but it doesn't have to be that way."

Cooper says gourmet means the very best quality at a price anyone can afford.

"The finest base quality is a must, without that you have nothing," he said. "We grow and nurture our own fruits, we pick them, and we pack them within two hours. There isn't anybody that can match us on that."

"We don't rely on someone else's quality and we don't buy from brokers. We keep our products as natural as possible, which a lot of people are concerned about these days, and they should be."

Rocky Top Farms offers 22 varieties of preserves and dessert toppings, as well as special cedar gift boxes. A large part of their business is also mail order and they sell to fine restaurants and various department stores such as Jacobson's and Hudson's.

They also retail from their small shop on Essex Road, located about two miles south of Atwood.

They further offer full meals and farm tours to large groups pre-arranging a time. Fall tours will be in full swing, as well as sleigh rides this winter.

the Red Fox restaurant used to be located, will end up the afternoon in Boyne City.

Sunday, the boats will again race to Charlevoix returning on the same course.

The race, named for the restaurant which was closed down in the early sixties and was famous among Lake Charlevoix skippers as a place to stop on a cruise to eat, honors the restaurant and its memories.

Depending on the winds, the race which will start in Charlevoix off the Lake Charlevoix Yacht Club headquarters on the Chicago Club side at around 11 a.m., means the boats and their crews will be coming into the Boyne City port about 4 p.m.

The race starts with the boats sailing in a triangle near Charlevoix and then they start down the lake working their way on to Two-mile Point, head towards Hemingway Point, then cross the lake and go into Horton Bay or Hayden's Point, depending on the wind. They will then make their way into Boyne City.

The last run into the city is usually a spinnaker run and the boats make quite a display as they come into the city.

While they are here, a corn roast and party has been planned for them at the Veterans Park.

The race is about 15 to 17 miles in length each day.

Handicaps for the boats and all classes of them will be determined by the PHRF formula.

This year, boats ranging in length from 20 to over 40 feet will be participating. Most of the skippers and crew are from the Boyne City, Charlevoix and Petoskey areas.

The race was started back in the sixties by the now defunct Boyne City Yacht Club.

Labor Day—and still more activities

BY NANCY JARVIS
All does not end in northern Michigan with the passing of Labor Day.

There are still all sorts of activities, sports and nature oriented things to do and see. And the fall color can't be beat.

The water related activities usually associated with hot summer days continue well into September, and sometimes later. Swimming, bodysurfing, waterskiing, sailboarding—all can be fun and pleasant in the now well warmed water, even if the temperatures are only in the 70s.

Some brave souls continue to waterski and sailboard into October or even later with the wearing of a wetsuit. Why not set a record this year for your latest dip or waterskiing adventure?

Local underwater divers say fall is THE best time to dive since the water is warmer and the remnants of the summer people are in abundance. You might be surprised what people dropped over the edge of their boats or off the docks!

If all of this sounds too chilly, then bundle up and go for a wild-flower search. Lots of varieties remain in bloom up until frost, with many not coming into their own glory until late in the summer.

And springtime isn't the only time to pick mushrooms. The chanterelle and edible bolete varieties can be found from July through September under oak and pine trees and sometimes around

President praises graduate, adult ed starts Sept. 10

Eunice Coolman went back to school 62 years later to get her high school diploma. Her daughter Carol, proud of her mother's effort, wrote to President Ronald Reagan that Mrs. Coolman had graduated from the East Jordan adult education program this spring after having quit in her youth at 10th grade.

In a letter to Mrs. Coolman, President Reagan said, "Nancy joins me in sending our heartfelt congratulations. You have proven that America is a land of vast opportunity when we reach out with hard work and determination."

Mrs. Coolman had attended Grand Ledge High School before quitting. In those days, she has said, high school wasn't considered so important.

Her diploma came after taking adult ed. courses at the senior center in East Jordan. These daytime classes are taught by Sherry Block, who also will be teaching some evening adult ed. classes at the high school this fall.

Mrs. Coolman also passed some GED tests which gave her credit for knowing high school math and other subjects, according to adult ed. director Anne Johnston.

Johnston noted that adults from various age levels attended the classes held at the senior center. She said the blend of ages was productive.

Johnston will be at the senior center from noon until 3 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 5 to register students for the fall semester of daytime or evening classes of adult ed. She will also accept registrations on other days at the high school (536-2250).

Classes start on September 10.

Enrichment classes will begin September 17 except for a few scheduled to start earlier, Johnston said.

Brochures on both adult ed. and enrichment classes will be out this week. Johnston said to look inside the East Jordan public school brochure for the blue pages on adult ed. and enrichment classes.

For enrichment there will be everything from "Care and Feeding of Your Auto" to basketry, Johnston said. "It should be a good year!"

Many sports around the north offer special color tours aboard color boats. The Star of Charlevoix is a popular one, taking people around Lake Charlevoix for a spectacular view of the lake's colorful fall splendor.

And of course, hunting seasons begin in the fall. Check with the Department of Natural Resources for dates and the necessary permits.

Salmon fishing is also a strictly fall activity that many travel from all over to enjoy.

Whatever you choose to do, the fall can be the best time to do it. Come and enjoy what northern Michigan has to offer all year around!

SAIL-TV gives tourists information

A new TV channel has appeared in motels and condominiums in northern Michigan and it is loaded with information for vacation fun. SAIL-TV, the Straits Area Information Link, began broadcasting in July with continuous 24-hour information on area concerts, festivals, art shows, and other special events, plus five-day extended weather forecasts and marine weather.

Rick Stone, president of SAIL-TV, reports that 1,000 motel rooms and condominiums presently receive the service, in locations from St. Ignace, Mackinac Island, and Mackinaw City on the north to Petoskey, Boyne Falls, and Gaylord on the south. The channel is also installed in the Petoskey State Park. Subscribers pay a monthly fee to receive the service.

The station transmits a computer-generated teletext signal on a subcarrier of 100,000-watt FM station WQLZ from their transmitter near Indian River. A special receiver-decoder is installed at each subscribing hotel or condominium and the TV signal is then distributed to each room on the building's antenna system.

SAIL-TV is a year-around service and is working with area chambers of commerce to promote the activities and attractions for visitors in all four seasons. "It is amazing to see how many attractions are offered to visitors in this area," says Stone. "SAIL-TV is designed to encourage visitors to spend an extra night or two in the area, and also to plan a return trip this fall or winter." So far, the station has had no problem in finding activities to promote. Over 150 events have been covered on the channel during its first six weeks on the air.
