Attendance policy draws fire in Boyne Falls

The student handbook at Boyne Falls School may be under fire if Charles Meyers is right when he asked the board at Monday night's meeting, "I would like to know where the schools take control. Somewhere in his life, I have control, and I would like to find out when you, the school system has control."

The question was asked after Meyers son was disciplined after missing a day of school when he went with his father on a recreational trip.

Meyers was told by the school principal, Mike Wallace, that according to school policies, the student was not allowed to miss school, and was disciplined for that reason.

Meyers contends that the policies are not clear as to when the school system can take control over the student and when it returns to the parent.

Superintendent Bob Redmond, told Meyers he would try to find out what the state school rules say about the matter. "It may be portal to portal," or when the portal leaves for school to the return home, he added.

Meyers thinks that the matter was handled sloppily, and the school used tactics that he thought were stopped when World War II was fought against the Nazis. He said that he didn't think the student should be punished for actions that he had no control over.

Meyers was told that the school has policies on attendance in the student handbook and that the school tries to follow them, including the state compulsory attendance law.

In backing up the statement made by Redmond, board member Bob Winhusen told Meyers that "It would be a dangerous precedent to have children missing school on a whim."

Wallace said that "As principal, I just followed policy after determining that the students went fishing. I gave them one hour of detention."

Meyers asked to be put on the next months agenda if he gets information back from his family lawyer in time.

In other action during the public forum section of the meeting, the board approved the Boyne Falls Polish committee use of the field next to the school for the horse pulling contest.

The board then approved adding to the school budget, a line item so that they could purchase new textbooks for the second grade social studies part of the curriculum. The book covers the same concepts as the present one in use, according to Wallace, but is updated and covers the material in greater depth. He added that the new textbook would fit with first and third grade texts on the subject.

Then the board agreed to give a graduation diploma to Anthony Berardin, a special education student who lives in the district but has not attended classes at the school but has gained enough credits for graduation through the intermediate school district program for special education students.

The superintendent and a board member will be making a special presentation to Berardin some time in the near future.

In hearing a report on the curriculum, Wallace told the board that one of the considerations may be to drop home economics and replace it with another academic English course.

They are also considering a change in the typing class moving from the ninth grade level to the eighth and adding computer literacy to the class.

Perhaps the biggest change that the committee is considering, would be to put courses like the core academic ones on the curriculum yearly that are presently being taught every other year. Those courses include geometry, and other advanced math classes that the students may have to take out of the natural progression of teaching them presently.

While no action was taken at the meeting, the committee wanted to give the board an update of what was being considered.

Winhusen made a comment that the board may have to change its philosophy and decide if they want to reach for higher levels of education or to remain at the status quo.

As part of the curriculum study, the teachers were asked to make up a want list of things that could help to make their job better for the students. The committee will be bringing it back to the board at the May meeting.

The board then went into a secret session to discuss collective bargaining plans.

Boyne City sets millage for 1985-86 city budget

Following approval last Tuesday of Boyne City's 1985-86 budget for 2.59 million, city commissioners this week agreed to ask 16.65 mills for operating the city. Another mill will go for the reduced debt retirement and the mill voted in special election for the museum will bring the total request to 18.65 mills. One mill is equal to about $39,000.

"It's a slim budget," said Randy

Frykberg as the commissioners Tuesday also considered the request for funds by Sean Ley, director of McCune Arts Center.

Ley was too late for this year's budget, but he said he needed a commitment by the city by May first if there were to be any funds forthcoming. The Endowment for the Arts will match any municipal donations, he said.

The Center's fund requests are the result of diminished federal and state monies, Ley said. Although the Center receives private contributions, a backlog of need exists from the cost of setting up the Center. To continue offering free of charge such amenities as the Prince Street Players, which perform before hundreds of school children, and the travelling exhibits at the Center, Ley said the Arts Council, serving both Charlevoix and Emmet County, would benefit by as much as the city could commit for the year 1986-87.

Ley asked for $1,000. Commissioners suggested that the Artrain fund be turned over to the Center's funding, noting that the city is expanding the library and building a museum this year and would be hard pressed to find any loose funds.

Commissioners will decide the matter at the April 23 meeting.

In other business, the commission approved transfer of the 1984 Class C liquor license with a dance permit assigned to 117 Water Street. The license will revert to Mike Gabos.

Rumors abound throughout the city concerning the newest idea for a city project. No one is telling where the idea came from, but the annual wetland in front of the Boyne City Hall is the designated place for a community swimming pool dedicated to several members of the City Commission. The pond, called Lake Frykberg by some members of the community, happens because the water table in the area is near the surface. After the city gets their wetlands approval, they may consider the idea, but, as one said, "Don't hold your breath while you are under water on this one."

East Jordan to ask school tax increase in June election

Millage increase was the hard news at the East Jordan school board meeting, April 9. "We now have 21.7 operative millage," said superintendent Tom Rossler. The request will be to renew that for three years, adding 2 mills for one year, and .5 mills for three years. The first year total plus the allocated millage will be for 33.8. For the succeeding two years, the total will be for 31.8 mills.

During late 1970s, the years of inadequate funding, East Jordan kept as much of its teaching staff in the public school as it could. In the words of school board member Bernie Schmitt, "The school kept people instead of buying books."

At the June 10 school election, the school will ask 2 mills for textbooks purchase, both to repair the past and to secure the future, in case state funding falls off, said Rossler.

Herb Griffin, school board treasurer noted that the books for automotive class are too old to solve problems in present day motors. The automotive class serves about 40 students from East Jordan plus a growing number of students from other schools, enough to start planning trade-offs with those schools for their classes in such programs as building trades.

Rossler stated that if savings are effected, the full 2 mills will not be levied. "Once before the school did not have to call for the full funding. If they pick up state funding, Rossler said, the local contribution will be reduced.

The school is trying to follow a national program of replacing textbooks every six years.

In addition to textbooks, replacement of some equipment is needed and roof repair needs to be completed.

A new school bus costing $36,310 will be delivered in July. More bus replacements are on the schedule, and the proposal is to fund their purchase with the .5 mills.

The board felt there was no way around the millage increase. The past four years have evidenced thrift and progress, according to Rossler. Board member Larry Chanda commented that the proposal was "very valid, very much needed."

Rossler's presentation also included a strong stress on parental participation in school. He asked for a parents' committee to be involved in education decision-making.

"It's their child," he said, "and they're paying the bill."

In other business, the board tentatively agreed on investing $6,900 for computer terminal installation, to do payroll, and in two years to add student scheduling and grading. The annual savings in time would be about $10,000, Rossler said. Annual cost would be about $4,000 plus an $800 phone lease charge.

"We are also looking toward use in academic programs," he said.

The board appointed Steve Poole to coach junior high boys' track and Becky Gengle to coach the girls. Linda Snyder will teach art part time from April 1 till school ends.

County numbering system to be ready in August

The county's new numbering system will be ready in August, according to Cinda Crozier, who was assigned the job last August.

Crozier said that mainland Charlevoix County is for the most part finished. Only Beaver Island remains.

In August the county will give out the new numbers to those who have a house or other building on a rural delivery route. Crozier explained that city numbers and post office box numbers will not be affected.

It was the serious problem of no numbers or roads with duplicated names or no names at all, resulting in accident and fire reports not being promptly met that prompted the numbering program, Crozier said.

The new system is laid out on a mapped grid, allowing any numbered location to be immediately identifiable.

The post offices require that the reflector-type numbers go on rural route mail boxes by September first, Crozier said, or owners will not get their mail.

Where the boxes are not next to the owner's drive or where the building is not serviced by mail delivery, the numbers will have to be mounted in some other way so that they will be easily visible from the road.

Crozier said each number will be five digits long. To figure what the number would be, she had to measure the length of the road in feet. Then, she said, if there was a house at, say, 13,000 feet, that number divided into the number of feet of the road produced the house number.

Some numbers will begin with zeroes, Crozier explained, so that all will have the five digits.

"It won't ever have to be done again," said Crozier. This is in contrast to the changes instituted in the past, contributing to the present

Trash draws ire in EJ

Trash and refuse reared its ugly head at the East Jordan City Council meeting. The ordinance covering removal of trash such as old appliances, unlicensed cars, and other refuse from yards and porches in the city has been published and will be enforced by the police department with a 10-day notice of the violation, city officials said.

Although the matter of a new telephone system for city offices was referred to committee, superintendent Mike Dionne reported that he has investigated telephone systems in the surrounding communities and believes that East Jordan could benefit financially from a new, more efficient system.

The rate structure for the city landfill, Dionne stated, needs review. The use rates currently in effect are less than those in other communities resulting in the loss of revenue to the city. Also proposed for review are the hours of the landfill's operation.

Representatives of East Jordan will be meeting with representatives of South Arm and Wilson Townships at the annual special township meeting next Wednesday evening at city hall. They will be discussing fire and ambulance contracts, Glendora Murphy said.

Additionally, Dionne reported that all rental slips at the city's marina have been rented for the summer. Many slips are still available at the tourist park, he said, for $250 for the season.

Several weddings, family picnics and company picnics are among the summer events approved by the council for the Elm Pointe facility this summer.

Gulf & Western Stamping Division, part of the manufacturing company of Gulf & Western Industries, Inc. that operates the automobile supplier plant in East Jordan, with approximately 320 employees recently completed one year without a lost-time accident at the facility on April 1, 1985.

In recognition of this significant achievement a catered luncheon was held on April 12 for all employees. In addition the employees were given one-half day off with pay.

One year without a lost-time accident is a tremendous achievement and the company said they are extremely proud of the employees and their efforts in achieving this record. It is certainly indicative of their attitude toward on-the-job safety.

Now that the plant has reached the one year mark, they are looking toward April 1, 1986 and two years with no lost-time accidents.

Two years ago the East Jordan facility achieved a record 16 months without a lost-time accident and hopes to surpass that mark. Ed Herndon, from the Michigan Department of Labor, hands the union representative a plaque signifying one year without having any lost man hours due to plant accidents, at ceremonies held last Friday at the Gulf and Western Stamping Division plant in East Jordan.

EJ Health Center starts expansion construction

A new addition to East Jordan Family Health Center is under way with completion expected by the end of this August, says director Chris Shea.

The expansion marks the steady growth of demand for the Center's services over its eight years of meeting area needs.

Shea said the two-story addition will provide 3,200 square feet for a new waiting room, a reception and

BRUNCH

It seems that the brunch has almost replaced the traditional Sunday dinner of the past in so many homes across our country. At first it was what its name indicated, between breakfast and lunch, yet it has become an institution that fits perfectly into our modern society; a relaxing time for family and friends which is served as early as the family is hungry or after church and before the sports events on TV. It can be strictly a family affair or a perfect time to invite some friends.

One good hot dish is called for, usually made with eggs. This Egg Foo Yong can be mixed before hand and fried the last thing. It satisfies that hunger for eggs and pancakes as well.

EGG FOO YONG with SALMON

1 can (7 1/2 oz.) pink salmon
5 eggs, beaten
1 med. onion, diced
1/2 lb. fresh bean sprouts or drained, canned bean sprouts
1 tablespoon soy sauce
Vegetable oil for frying
Ginger sauce

Drain salmon; combine with eggs, onion, bean sprouts and soy sauce. Mix well. Heat 1 tablespoon oil in skillet until hot. Pour enough batter in skillet to make 3 pancakes. When egg is set and brown on bottom, turn with pancake turner until egg is set. Remove to platter and keep warm while frying the rest of the batter. You might need to add a little more oil to the pan. Serves 4 generously.

This sauce makes these pancakes very special.

2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons white vinegar

1/2 teaspoon ginger
Just combine and serve.

Here is another delicious main dish for brunch. My friend, Wealtha, makes this French toast. It is an easy way to fix this old time favorite when she has guests to cook for, which is quite often.

BAKED FRENCH TOAST

1 loaf (1 lb.) French bread
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup brown sugar
Cinnamon
1 cup milk
3 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt

Preheat oven to 350°. Mix milk, salt and beaten eggs. Cut bread into 1" to 1 1/4" slices. Use a jelly roll pan 10" by 1 1/2". Spread butter and sugar in bottom of pan. Let bread slices stand in egg mixture until well saturated. Place on top of butter and sugar, sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake at 350°, 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with sour cream, jam or maple syrup. Thanks, Wealtha, this is yummy!

WEALTHA'S FRUIT SALAD

She makes a fruit salad of sliced oranges, grapefruit, thinly sliced apples and any other fresh fruit available such as pears, blueberries or nectarines. Then if she wants to extend it for a crowd or has some left over for another time, she adds a can of pie filling, usually cherries. Other fillings such as peaches are also very good and adds so much to any fruit salad, and will stay pretty and fresh in the refrigerator. The pie filling even keeps the fruit from turning dark.

Opinions

It's the beginning of working together

Last Sunday saw the beginning of something that will make the city of Boyne City a lot better. For the first time in a long time, we saw more members of the business community get together to discuss what should be happening, or what could happen to enhance the community.

The occasion was a rap session held at one of the local businesses where members of the Chamber of Commerce, the retail committee, and many other interested people gathered to discuss a variety of town matters.

The Chamber recently had completed a survey of local businesses, aiming to rank the value of the many promotions, festivals, and contests the city enjoys each year.

Most merchants rated the events in terms of what a particular festival or promotion could do for themselves.

Of course the community's Fourth of July celebration came out on top in almost all questionnaires, with others listed in decreasing importance.

While we appreciate the information, we wonder what reason there might be to list all of the events.

The merchants should be concerned with those they promote and sponsor, while the others can simply be enjoyed. Not every festival or event that goes on in the city should be looked at as a sales opportunity. For example, while Fourth of July was listed first, most of the merchants are closed for the event.

Other events are not conducive to making sales either, and a lot of them were not designed to do that.

Yes, the whole community benefits from any activity that brings people into town, whether the visitors stop for gas or have something to eat.

Such activities as the large conventions at Boyne Mountain, the upcoming barbershoppers' contest, the annual Labor Day bicycle tour that goes through town all help the town and bring a certain amount of business to those who want it.

But the important thing about the survey is that many merchants and businesses are finding out how activities can and do help them. Whether or not the merchants directly benefit.

We applaud the get-together of interested people, and we hope they add sales events where they might and not try to control those they have no control over.

I don't know which was funnier. Watching Moe at the Sportsman trying to tune in a scrambled signal on his satellite, or listening to him when the fight of the year was over in such a short time.

The fight of course, was the one between Thomas Hearns and Marvin Hagler, and almost every place in town was trying to tune it in, scrambled signal and all.

That it was a disappointment and only lasted for two and a half rounds is another thing, but watching the antics of what could be watched on the screen, and the voices of those in the place, mostly Moe's, of what was happening, was interesting. At least to me.

"He's down," someone said looking at a screen filled with moving colors. "No, they're fighting again and both boxers are up," someone else said.

In all the confusion, I was wondering what they were watching as I couldn't determine a thing.

Ahh, the life and travels of an editor. Last Friday, I had the opportunity to go over to East Jordan for the appreciation day at the Gulf and Western plant, then back to Boyne City, and finally up to Petoskey to see the Builders Home Show.

If this were back in the early part of the century, those little trips would have taken about a week, if my horse would have held up.

One of the things that we have taken and are taking for granted are our roads. America is great on building roads, and that may be one of the reasons that America is as great a nation as it is.

Now if we could just get the road into town fixed up by the state, we could have a great looking community. Maybe we should urge the writing of letters to the state highway department. Heck, we should do it anyway, without the urging, and tell them that they should take the proposed improvement off the back burner and put it on the front so that we could have a better road into town.

We're talking about M-75 from the city limits east of town down to the downtown where it turns the corner in front of the post office and then heads up to State Street where it turns again to head to Walloon.

It also might be a good idea to have the state add a state highway designation on the road over to Charlevoix.

If a road to East Jordan off of US 131 and going to Charlevoix can be a state highway, then why can't a road from Boyne Falls over to Charlevoix also be a state highway?

Oh well, just send a letter or two and maybe we can see some action.

As long as you are writing letters, why not write one to me. We are always looking for letters to the editor. It could be on almost any subject, and can be either long or short. Get something off your chest. Write one today.

And if you can do that, tell everyone you know to read it in the paper. Or better yet, tell them to get a subscription so they don't have to read yours.

I am in no condition to write this column. You will find this out after you've read it.

When I went to the hospital, I told the doctor what was wrong with me. He said no, that was not it at all. I get little pleasure arguing with someone who knows what he's talking about.

While working on our personal books the other day we found that we didn't owe anyone. My wife said that this was the way it was going to be from now on. That upset me. I dislike looking forward to doing business with my own money.

Back when the world was fresh and I was seriously engaged in the fine art of wild oat sowing, I used to think that older men were kind of stuffy and not with it. Now that I am on the withering end of the calendar, I get upset whenever I see young people fussing with those wild oats like I used to. I'm not disgusted with the kids, I'm mad at Father Time for saddling me with all these telling wrinkles. Like television, my prime time ends at 10 o'clock.

It dag nabs my fancy that my get-up-and-go hasn't even done that. It has not got up and gone. In fact, since I've been home from the hospital it hasn't done anything. It just lays there.

How would you like to wake up in the morning to find your get-up-and-go just lying there?

A country gentleman, who lives near us out here in the boon-docks, was telling me that his REA electric bill has edged up beyond $50 per month. "I can't figure it out," he said. "The only electricity we use is for a 10-watt bulb and a can opener."

That's one thing I've learned living among the wild cherry and poison sumac. People lie about things out here just as though they were living in town.

Our Social Security system is going broke. What will you do if the government has to cut you off?

I would have to sell my house and live in a tent.

Houses aren't selling right now and tents have been outlawed in Boyne City.

Then I would wrap myself into the welfare state and settle down for a long nap.

You've got too much money to go on welfare. If you lie about it, three men will come and drag you off to jail.

Do you mean that I'm liable to go directly from Social Security to jail? Yes.

Damn all Republicans and Democrats.

For the want of a nail, a shoe was lost. For the want of a shoe, the horse was lost. For the want of a horse, I'm paying over one dollar for a gallon of gasoline.

I warned you that I'm in no condition to write a column today. But you went ahead and read it anyway. Normally, I'd get mad and do something about that, but not with my get-up-and-go just lying there.

Disagrees with business

Editor,

After reading your opinion column in April 10th Press I got curious. Other than want ads, notices, banks and non-business ads I counted 35 regular business ads. Of these, 13 were from Boyne City. Many of these 13 are well established businesses are not about to fold their tents. This small number of advertisers should tell you something.

You seem to think that the no-show customers should be blamed for the business failures in town. Hogwash! People trade where they get good merchandising at a fair price, decent parking and courteous treatment. If it is necessary to drive a few miles further they will and they have absolutely no reason to feel guilty about their actions. After all, it's their money.

Contrary to all the hue and cry about trading at home and supporting the local merchants let me say this. These same merchants are in business for one reason and one reason only — to make money. Nothing wrong there. I just don't want them telling me that their concern for the community is the main reason they opened shop in Boyne City. We give them tax breaks, a million and a half dollar face lift down town — front and back, and the list goes on. Now if these merchants can't hack it whose fault really is it?

One of our larger merchants thought they could make more money by building a new modern place, giving up the very best location any where around town. They were wrong. When you let greed get in the way of your better judgment you can get hurt. Just don't blame it on the no-show customers.

We have many good solid merchants in Boyne City and they are not about to fold up. They support community projects — always have — and have earned the respect of the people over the years.

Merchandising is a highly competitive business and you had better be willing to take your bumps and have enough back-up money to carry yourself over the tough times. It takes more than a shoestring today.

Harry Truman said it all. "If you can't stand the heat — get out of the kitchen."

Barbara Cruden

There is a children's fairy story, which, like most fairy stories, has a large but lightly carried burden of truth.

A baby princess is welcomed into the world by a palace celebration. Each fairy invited by the king and queen bestows upon the infant some gift of good fortune — happiness, grace, beauty, and so on. I got to thinking about that.

The sages have told us that each of us also is very gifted. But of course it is one thing to be told and another to realize.

In my case one milestone of realization came years ago when I was reading an insert from one of my children's pop music albums. (Now there's a place to find truth!)

Each young musician in the group had written his little autobiography. One struck me.

It said, "I am..." and proceeded to name the books, people, and events that had formed and informed. That's all it was, just this wonderful three-page list.

I would therefore like to take off from Edison's pronouncement: "Genius is 5 parts inspiration and 95 parts perspiration" and say, "Life is ninety parts gift and maybe ten of endeavor." Even endeavor is a gift, really. What we are is a gift.

On a sunny spring day, one cannot help but be aware of gifts. How many there are!

On my wall I have pinned this quote from the famous French naturalist Jean Henri Fabre:

Life has unfathomable secrets. Human knowledge will be erased from the archives of the world before we possess the last word that the Gnat has to say to us.

The gift of endless exploration is so great, but it is only one. Without the gift of consistency there would be no sense to exploration. Who would explore chaos?

The gift of beauty is another. Beauty in things—a petal curving toward the stem, a man rejoicing in his work.

Being a teacher, I am very conscious of the gifts of language. Who worked out the power of a verb to tell both time and action with such fine definiteness!

The marvels of all kinds of invention overwhelm thought. I think of my pickup truck. No imagining life without it.

Gifts abstract are even more marvelous. The concept of law—another consistency taken from nature, but living by our own choice.

The gift of love, not needing law when love is pure enough.

And the gift of gifts—to perceive, to enjoy, and to pass along our gifts.

To the royal celebration of the little princess there also came a wicked fairy, doubly wicked for not having been invited. Yes, she gave the infant a fatal gift of death of be visited upon her when she was sixteen.

But one other fairy had not yet spoken. She used her wish to change death to sleep, from which the princess would be awakened.

So, I think, spring wakens the heart to renewed appreciation. It can even be spring in December, if we wish. And how many Decembers there may seem to be.

There must be some reason the sages have said, "Count your blessings!"

THINK ABOUT IT.

Your home. It's probably your most prized possession. You worked hard to get it. You work hard keeping it beautiful.

And so do we. Every year, residential collection crews haul away 120 million tons of trash from American homes. We are at your doorstep every week, providing reliable service, at a reasonable cost.

How reasonable? Most households are served for less than $15 a month. That's a real bargain when compared to other direct-to-home services, such as telephone, heat, electricity or water.

You can help us keep your cost low by disposing of your trash carefully. Worker injuries are a serious and costly problem. So please, wrap sharp objects in newspaper before disposing. Use lids to keep out rain. If there's something a little unusual in your trash—heavy magazines, a dozen jars of granny's tomatoes gone bad, cans of something you can't identify—write us a short note. Just so we will be prepared.

All this helps us. So we can continue to help you keep your neighborhood beautiful.

We help keep America beautiful. With your help.

Join us in the Keep America Beautiful Week, April 21-27

Girls beat boys in 6th graders' basketball contest

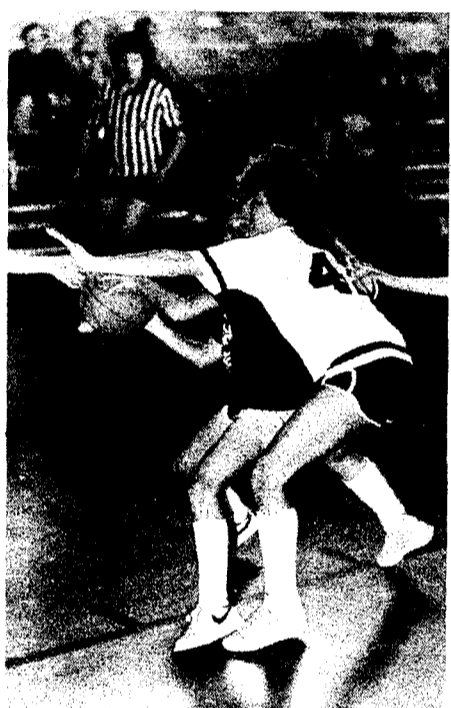

The girls' sixth grade basketball team were ball hounds and kept the boys from passing down court quite frequently.

Somewhere under all of that towering height is a sixth grade boy trying to get a shot off, while his teammate tries to lend a hand.

Early in the game the girls built a commanding lead and the faces of the sixth grade boys showed utter frustration as they tried to catch up.

The sixth grade girls' coach, Jack Caverly stresses the importance of a good defense as is illustrated by this young lady.

Entering School Program refunded by District Health Department

Entering school is a major milestone in a child's life. It is important that each child is prepared physically for school.

The Board of Health for District Health Department No. 3 has approved funding for the continuation of the School Enterer's Health Assessment Program. This is a locally initiated program which was developed to insure that all children entering kindergarten have an opportunity for a comprehensive health assessment.

A complete health assessment is being offered again by District Health Department No. 3 to all children entering kindergarten this fall. The health assessment will include a physical assessment by a specially trained registered nurse, lab tests including hematocrit and urinalysis, vision and hearing screening, a review of immunization status (with immunizations provided as needed) and a test to determine general development status.

State law requires that all children entering schools have completed their immunizations and have been screened for vision and hearing ability. District Health Department No. 3 has long provided a hearing and vision screening service for our school enterer's as well as immunization clinics for general public use.

Local schools will be holding Kindergarten

Round-up to prepare children for entering school this fall. During Kindergarten Round-up the District Health Department will have information about the School Enterer's Health Assessment clinic or hearing and vision only clinics. Parents will be encouraged to make a clinic appointment during the round-up.

This screening will be done on an appointment basis with one of the children's parents present. The screening will require about one hour to complete and will be held at various clinic sites throughout the district area.

This service is offered on a voluntary basis without charge to all children in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties entering kindergarten this fall. Donations will be appreciated so that the District Health Department may continue to provide this service to the community.

Dr. Brian Youngs, Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 strongly recommends "that all children participate in this screening process or have a comprehensive physical examination completed by a physician before entering school."

Parents that are unable to make an appointment during Kindergarten Round-up should call the nearest office of District Health Department No. 3 for clinic times. Parents should be aware that if their child does not participate in the assessment program, it is mandatory that each child's vision and hearing be screened and immunizations be completed before entering school.

Nationally known Calvaryman to appear at Civic Center in East Jordan April 20th

The Calvarymen, a quartet that was organized in 1956, and has well over a quarter of a century of singing and traveling across America and Canada will be making an appearance in East Jordan April 20th for a performance at the East Jordan Civic Center a 7:00 p.m.

The internationally known group has sung on some of the nations finest gospel music promotions, including their annual appearance at the national quartet convention in Nashville Tenn. They appear as regular guest artists on Sing Out America which is shown on the CBN cable network. They are not strangers to the recording industry having 35 LP's to their credit.

With their home base in the Flint, Michigan area, they were designated by the Michigan State senate in 1981 as Michigan's good will ambassadors.

In a church service March 3rd, they received congratulations by telegram from President Reagan on their 29th anniversary.

Versatile in their style, they sing a wide range of music from traditional and middle of the road to southern gospel with a sound of their own.

Their appearance at the East Jordan Civic Center April 20th is being sponsored into the area by the East Jordan Baptist Church.

Bob Pluister and his daughter took a short break while answering hundreds of questions about his business at the annual Home Show that was held last weekend. The new floor layout, the carpeting, and the interest in building all helped to make the show one of the most successful the group has held in several years.

County 4-Hers to show completed projects at Achievement Day at Whiting

Charlevoix County 4-H'ers will be showing their completed projects from the winter at the annual 4-H County Achievement Day to be held at Whiting Park near Advance. The date is Saturday, April 27, and the hours are from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Public viewing can begin after the midday break at 12, and the public is invited to remain for the style show and awards presentation from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Members and leaders will place exhibits and displays in the earlier part of the morning to be ready for evaluation beginning at 10 a.m. People from the community serve as evaluators and hold short interviews with each 4-H child. Evaluators need to have some knowledge of the project area they are working in, but even more important is the willingness to give children some time and attention as they talk about their accomplishments.

Following evaluation, ribbons are placed on all projects. Members each receive green participation ribbons for attending and either blue or red ribbons for their work.

Outstanding projects receive special recognition. In addition, the County 4-H Council confers a number of $15 Trip Awards to members whom the evaluators agree are deserving of this reward for their efforts based on work plus the interview.

The Trip Awards are redeemable for 4-H events in the county or on the state level.

Achievement Day closes with a style show during which members show ensembles they have made or assembled. This is judged by a panel of three. Members model by age groups.

Friends of 4-H, family members and members of the community are all welcome and urged to take part in Achievement Day by attending this event.

casher office, and a new business office. He explained that the shifting around will allow for four additional exam rooms. Downstairs there will be a community room to be open to groups for meetings, and also to be used for health education classes.

The expansion will also make room for a third doctor. Shea said he will be able to announce soon who will fill the opening.

Building designer was Reid Associates, Saginaw. Shea said the addition will make a definite change in the building's appearance.

Petrie Construction of East Jordan is general contractor. The $149,000 addition cost will be partially funded by a federal grant of $71,000. Donations totalling $20,000 have already been received. The remaining $58,000 is to be subject of a fund drive to begin Monday, April 15.

Interlochen String Quartet to appear in concert at Harbor Springs as prelude to summer

A summer preview! The concluding Prelude concert features three of the Northwood Orchestra's musicians performing as members of the Interlochen String Quartet in concert, April 18 at 8 p.m. at the Holy Childhood Church, Harbor Springs.

The informal, Wednesday concert will also bring all the components of the string family onto the performing platform. The standard violins, viola and cello will be complemented by guest artist Thomas Knific on string bass.

Mr. Knific is affiliated with the Interlochen Arts Academy where he is a string bass instructor and the coordinator of jazz.

He frequently performs with the quartet, making it a quintet. He says that his instrument "rounds-out the string family with all the voices" in the string-quintet.

His artistry will be showcased in Dvorak's Quintet in G. op. 87.

Formerly principal bass with the Cleveland Chamber Symphony, Mr. Knific has also performed with renowned jazz attractions including Ramsey Lewis, George Benson, Freddie Hubbard and the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra.

The virtuoso earned his masters degree from the University of Akron following his bachelor's of music from the Cleveland Institute. He was awarded his Artists Diploma from the Accademia Chigiana in Italy.

The Interlochen String Quartet has performed together four years and also conducts workshops, master classes, young people's concerts and lecture-demonstrations - a total package which reflects the association with the academy.

Each quartet member is an instructor at Interlochen, as well as a highly recognized musician.

Violinist Renata Artman-Knific has studied and performed worldwide and has played with the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra and the English Chamber Orchestra.

Rosemary Malocsay adds to her career on violin by teaching at the National Music Camp.

David Holland, violinist, has been Interlochen's resident violist since 1973. He is the conductor of the string orchestra and teacher of chamber music.

Celloist Crispin Campbell is the coordinator for the ensemble.

As representatives off IAA, their musicianship maintains the fine standards associated with the namesake of the ensemble.

Both Knifics, Malocsay and Campbell are members of the Northwood Orchestra, which hosts both the Prelude concert series and the summertime Festival of the Lakes in Harbor Springs.

Together in the quartet, these musicians present an exciting lead-in to the orchestra's three-week concert festival featuring full orchestra with soloists and guest artists.

Tickets for the Interlochen String Quartet event are $8/adults and $5/students and are available at the door the evening of the concert or in advance at the McCune Arts Center, Petoskey.

The audience is invited to attend a reception at the New York restaurant immediately following the concert.

Pentacostal Church to see movie about Soviets

The Christians of Communist lands are sending a message to the church in the west... a message of suffering and pain. However it is also a message of triumph and victorious Christian growth as the Church under Communist oppression risks life to worship, to fellowship, and to receive the Word of God.

This message is graphically portrayed in "Beyond the Cross" a newly released film produced by Underground Evangelism, a missionary outreach based in Los Angeles, CA.

"Beyond the Cross" was filmed over the past several years. Many of the scenes were actually filmed by the persecuted Church inside the Soviet Union.

"Beyond the Cross is a stirring documentary of the heart-rending story of Ivan Moiseyev, a young Russian who was cruelly murdered for his faith. Scenes of Christian leaders being reunited with their families only moments after being released from prison; interviews with exiled believers confined to the barren, frigid wastelands of Siberia - you will witness it all in "Beyond the Cross."

You are invited to attend a showing of this factual film at Trinity Pentecostal Church of God, 401 State St., Boyne City, on Wednesday, April 24 at 7:00 p.m.

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School Boards' Association is holding its spring meeting at the Charlevoix High School on Wednesday, April 17, 1985 at 7:00 p.m. This Star Spangled Salute will focus on Gifted/talented/creative education in our local schools.

Featured in the evening's presentations will be students from Char-Em schools who are currently participating in a variety of enrichment activities that are presently being offered through local schools.

Some of the featured programs will be: Student Leadership Forum, College for Kids, Summer Institute for the Arts and Sciences, Midwest Talent Search, Olympics of the Mind, Spelling Bee Competitions, Academic Honors Class Members, and Future

Problem Solving Teams.

This dinner meeting will feature student speakers and brief presentations of some problem solutions and projects that have resulted from this year's enrichment activities.

For further information call Kathy Martineck or Susan Van Wieren, 547-9947.

The familiar robin has many personalities

Don't look now, but the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the backyard animal world is probably in your lawn or nearby at this very minute.

No, it's nothing exotic or rare—it's the robin. And he exhibits not just two but three distinct personalities as the seasons change.

In the spring, he's friendly and tolerant of humans in his territory. He's often out on the lawn when we come out in the morning, and he doesn't fly away—just moves off a bit, keeping a safe distance but going on about his business of hunting worms. If he's not on the lawn, he's sitting in a tree or on a nearby fence singing his heart out to declare his territory. The robin is one of the earliest birds to sing—you may hear his pleasant song long before the sun comes up.

Robins will be building nests soon. Windowills, garages and porches are favorite nesting sites, so the robin family often provides little humans with their first glimpse of the process of egg laying and incubating, hatching and growth, feeding and learning to fly.

About the time strawberries and cherries begin to ripen, Dr. Jekyll gives way to Mr. Hyde. The familiar behavior that was so endearing in early spring suddenly seems overbold, as the robins and their growing family take a big share of the fruit even before it's fully ripe.

For backyard gardeners, this is more a nuisance than a crisis, but for commercial growers who can lose income to flocks of robins, this behavior causes more than an inconvenience—it's a threat to their livelihood.

In the fall, the robins move away from urban and suburban yards into rural woods. It may seem that they've all gone unless you visit the woods and see them there. Don't expect to see the same bird you knew so well in the spring, however. The familiar yard bird now behaves like a timid woodland thrush—it doesn't sing, it scratches in the forest litter looking for bugs, it flocks in large numbers and it flees at your approach. Its behavior is shy and secretive, much more like that of the woodthrush than the bird we knew in April.

Most of the robins do leave Michigan in November or December when the weather turns cold. Some remain in the woods, where they can find wet areas or spots free of snow where they can scratch through the leaves and find invertebrates to eat. They also feed on berries that grow in or on the edge of the woods.

This past winter's New Year's Day ice storm in mid-Michigan quickly followed by lots of snow and cold, sealed off the robins' food supply. Forced out of the woods, they moved back into yards and neighborhoods and large institutional areas like MSU, where they had a better chance of finding food. MSU was a haven because the steam tunnels that lie under the campus created snow-free areas where robins could feed. The fruit-bearing ornamental plantings around the campus provided another food source when the ice melted. As soon as a widespread thaw occurred, the robins scattered again.

Watching the robin at various times of the year is almost enough to make you think you're dealing with several different birds. But this variation in behavior is simply an expression of the robin's adaptability to different environments. It's this adaptability that has enabled robins to adapt to and thrive in human-created habitats, where it is a visible and enjoyable part of nature from your backyard.

Spring outing set for hearing impaired of north

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER

Imagine not hearing voices, music, cars or alarms! For a short time it would be great; but consider the plight of hearing impaired persons who never hear these things. Consider also their families who learn to live in this soundless world with the hearing impaired person.

Around the theme of socialization and learning for the whole family will be the Third Annual Michigan Chapter of the Alexander Graham Bell Association Spring Outing. It will be held May 3, 4, and 5 at Camp Hay-O-Went-Ha (YMCA Camp) on Torch Lake. It has previously been held in the Kalamazoo area, and local residents who are active in the Michigan Chapter of the A.G. Bell Association are very excited about showing the "North Country" to other hearing impaired persons. The Outing is being co-hosted by the Char-Em Intermediate and the COP Intermediate. Mrs. Christy Dunne, the Char-Em Hearing Impaired teacher, has worked diligently on this project and has taken children to the previous Outings. Mrs. Dunne stated that the Outing is for "the entire family of the hearing impaired person" and is also for educators and for adults with hearing impairment.

Mrs. Dunne has encouraged the families of her seven students to be involved in this weekend of fun. Her students are Lisa Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Graham; Tony Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Everett; Debbie Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Roberts; Sarah Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Spencer; Jerry Morden, son of Mrs. Judy Morden; Shannon Notestine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Notestine; and Chrystal Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson. Out of Mrs. Dunne's interest and the similar needs of these children and their families has grown the Concerned Parents of the Hearing Impaired for the Char-Em area. They have had the assistance of a local group from Gaylord in getting started. This group meets to give these children and families additional socialization and to form a support group to help each other when the need arises.

The Spring Outing will have registration and informal get-acquainted time on Friday evening. There will be small group session on Saturday for the adults involved on such topics as curriculum ideas, legal aspects, and also computer demonstrations. Children will be involved in nature hikes, archery, tennis and other outdoor activities if the weather permits. Other activities for the children may be arts and crafts and performing skits. The main thrust of the whole weekend is for the entire family to have a fun-filled social time with other families.

or individuals may still contribute; information is available by calling 582-6728 and asking for Mrs. Dunne.

Anyone interested in more information or in registration forms should call 582-6728. Persons interested in being involved or in attending the Outing are invited to call. Certainly those who become involved will learn a great deal and have a greater appreciation for the many sounds we who hear take for granted.

The cost of the weekend is purposely kept very nominal so that all families can participate. Gifts and donations from the East Jordan Rotary, the East Jordan Lions, the East Jordan Lionesses, the Charlevoix Grange, the Boyne City Lions, the Boyne Falls Knights of Columbus, and Gulf and Western have helped cover the costs. Little Traverse Civic Theatre presenting "Odd Couple" as season ends

With stage veterans Ron Grow as the outrageous Oscar Madison and Mickey Berryer as the finicky Felix Unger, "The Odd Couple" promises to cap Little Traverse Civic Theatre's 1984-85 season with side-splitting laughter.

Neil Simon's classic, a hit on stage, screen and television, opens in the Ross Stoakes Theatre Thursday, May 2, under the direction of another veteran of the footlights—Jan Smith—who has acted and directed for LTCT countless times during the past two decades. Smith directed last season's comedy hit, "Matchmaker," a year ago.

The cast of eight is liberally sprinkled with familiar names: Bill Zoerhof, Larry Kilmer, Beth Strawbridge and Karen Coon have all played principal roles on the Petoskey stage. Zoerhof's most recent outing was in the "Matchmaker," when he played the rich, eligible widower Horace Vandergelder. Kilmer also appeared in "Matchmaker" as the young adventurer, Cornelius, and before that he portrayed Mitch in

"Streetcar Named Desire."

Strawbridge was last seen in "Streetcar" also, playing Stella Kowalske in one of the theatre's most demanding works. The Charlevoix woman has comedy credits, too; she was the ghost in "Blythe Spirit" two seasons ago. Coon's most recent role was that of Sarah, the lizard, in Albee's "Seascape," for which she wore a scaly body suit, green make-up, and performed the entire play on all-fours.

There are two first-timers in the LTCT cast as well. They are Larry Van Liew and Robert Kyser, who have the roles of Murray and Vinnie, the poker-playing buddies of Oscar and Felix.

Crow and Berryer need little introduction to the Northern Michigan audience. Grow is a comedian, clown and mime with national television credits in his resume. Last spring, he drew raves for his writing, directing, and starring role in a variety show benefit for the Hospice of Petoskey. Berryer has acted in 24 plays during the past 25 years, most of them with civic theatre groups in the north Detroit suburbs. His most recent performance for LTCT was as the king in the musical production of "The King and I."

"ODD COUPLE" stars Ron Grow [left] and Mickey Berryer as Oscar and Felix in the rapid-fire comedy to be presented by Little Traverse Civic Theatre beginning May 2. [Photo courtesy Audrey Collins].

Janada Rehkopf has served LTCT both on stage and behind the scenes for the past 11 years, but she makes her first excursion into the territory of producer for the "Odd Couple." She pulls together all the details for the company's season finale.

Play dates are May 2, 3, 4, 7, 9, 10, and 11.

Senior citizen and student ticket prices are reduced on Tuesday and Thursday, May 7 and 9. Tickets are available at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center. Curtain time is 8 p.m. for all performances.

Local winners in a Poison Prevention Poster Contest sponsored by the Northern Michigan Pharmacists Association, Charlevoix Area Hospital and other area hospitals were announced last week. Lani Ochs, right, coordinator of the contest for the Pharmacists Association, presented checks to the three top finishers at the local level. From left are Gina Howard of Boyne City who placed third and received $5, Junnie Barrow of Ellsworth who placed second and received $10 and Matthew Wolgamott of Ellsworth who won first place and received $15. The contest was open to first through third graders in Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim, and Cheboygan Counties. Matthew's first place poster will now advance to the finals of the competition in Petoskey.

Area Lions set for White Cane Week

"Stop for the White Cane" will be the rallying cry for more than 23,000 Lions Club members in Michigan as they gear up for the 49th annual White Cane Week drive, scheduled for April 26 to May 5.

"It is crucial to the safety of the 16,000 blind and visually impaired in this state that all drivers know this law," according to Owne Suits, Michigan Lions White Cane Chairman.

"Every driver must come to a full stop before cautiously proceeding when he or she approaches a blind person with a White Cane or Leader Dog in harness. The driver can see—the blind person can't," Suits emphasized.

Besides educating the public in the White Cane laws, another prime purpose of the massive White Cane Week drive is to generate funds for the many Lions projects and institutions dedicated to helping the blind.

"Our goal of $1.5 million will enable us to purchase White Canes, Braille watches, eyeglasses, examinations and various other aids for the unsighted." Suits continued. "We want to help the blind help themselves, and this takes a great deal of funding. The people of Michigan have never forgotten those less fortunate than themselves, even through difficult economic times. We can't continue our work without their help. It's as simple as that," he said.

The Michigan White Cane Law requires all motorists to stop at least ten feet from blind persons carrying White Canes or being led by Leader Dogs in harness. The public should also be aware that all public facilities must permit a blind person with a Leader Dog in harness to enter and use those premises.

"This public awareness is more important than ever with the 'right turn on red' law," according to Suits. "Blind persons cannot see red traffic lights, so their White Canes must tell motorists to stop, and that is why awareness of the law is so crucial."

During the ten-day period, the Lions will be selling miniature White Cane pins on street corners, shopping malls, banks, businesses and other heavily trafficked areas. Also cooperating in the drive are city, county and state governments, schools, Secretary of State offices and police departments.

To symbolize and create awareness of their efforts, the Lions have chosen pretty 21-year old Lisa Binsfeld of Warren as the 1985 White Cane Queen. Lisa, a sophomore at Oakland University, lost her sight following an operation for a brain tumor at the age of 13. Pressure on her optic nerve resulted in total blindness. Lisa will make personal appearances throughout the state and on numerous radio and television programs during her reign.

Money collected from the sale of the White Cane pins is used to support the many worthwhile projects and institutions of the Lions Clubs. Thousands of Michiganians have already benefited from Leader Dogs for the Blind, Rochester, now "graduating" more than 350 dog-student teams annually; the Leader Dog puppy program; Welcome Home for the Blind, Grand Rapids, built to fill the needs of the sightless elderly; the Michigan Lions Eye Banks, located on the campuses of the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and in the upper peninsula.

Group looking for nature sanctuary in county

"Every county ought to have a place like this," a leading Port Huron businessman whispered over the shoulder of Bertha Daubendiek, Executive Secretary of the Michigan Nature Association (MNA). He was standing with a group overlooking a spectacular wooded ravine, and admiring a yellow-billed cuckoo through binoculars.

The date was May 18, 1963. The occasion was the opening for the public of the MNA's Pine River Nature Sanctuary in St. Clair County.

Today, there are 88 MNA nature sanctuaries scattered throughout 36 counties of Michigan. The preserves range in size from ¼ acre to 480 acres. One-third are in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. But over 20 are in the greater Detroit metropolitan area, one as close as 35 miles to the Detroit City Hall.

What is a nature sanctuary? The MNA originated the term, meaning an area set aside for birds, animals and plants.

The MNA's carefully selected properties total 4650 acres and include examples of all of Michigan's 28 major habitats, including upland forests, swampy woodlands, inland lakes, rocky outcrops, orchid fens, dunes, dry and wet prairies, sphagnum bogs, and marshes. They also protect one third of the state's endangered, threatened, and rare species.

Charlevoix County is one of the 47 Michigan counties that do not yet have an MNA preserve.

"Do you know of a place where there are still a lot of wildflowers? Do you have a favorite spot you would like to see preserved?" Daubendiek asks. These might possibly be what the nature group is looking for. And they are willing to send out a scout to check. To inform the MNA about local wilderness deserving preservation, or for more details about the MNA's work in Michigan, contact Bertha Daubendiek at the MNA Business Office, P.O. Box 102, Avoca, MI 48006; telephone (313) 324-2626.

MNA explorers inspect approximately 50 prospective sanctuaries each year, and the organization chooses the best it can afford for preservation. An average of three have been added each year. The MNA also accepts gifts of land suitable for sanctuaries.
