Boyerne authorizes airport runway engineering

Up to $8,000 was committed by the Boyne City Commissioners in authorizing the city manager to sign an agreement with Granger Engineering Company of Gaylord to work out the engineering and the design of the proposed runway extension at the Boyne City airport.

The engineering will allow for a 800 foot extension of the current east-west runway that is expected to get under construction this fall. The additional runway length will allow planes up to the small jets to land and take off. The commissioners also agreed to purchase a new portable trash pump for the water department from the Granger Company of Grand Rapids. The pump will help the water department as well as the other departments of the city to remove water from areas faster. City manager Randy Frykberg told the commissioners at the noon meeting that the city would have a minimum of eight people to work with the city on various projects this summer under the Youth Employment and Training Program. The eight positions will be in the areas of building and maintenance, mechanics assistant, Rotary Park groundskeeper, water department trainee, assistant harbor master, assistant public works department, and two positions working with the parks and recreation department to complete the steps at Avalanche Preserve park. The jobs will be starting about the middle of June and applications are available at the city hall for those youth between the ages of 16 and 21.

Each position offers the minimum wage pay scale authorized by the state. Frykberg also told the commissioners that the contract between the slo-pitch leagues and the city was finalized. The ballplayers will be using one field for play until the tournament season. The reason was to allow the second field grass to get better growth before it is played upon.

The commissioners also heard complaints and suggestions from Delcie Phillips and Genevieve Sutton concerning condominium developments, vacant lot and right-of-way grass that needs cutting. The commissioners explained the city's actions as to each complaint that was brought up. They also took under advisement some of the suggestions that were made.

Black replaces Hoffman on EJ council

Jim Black is East Jordan's newest council member replacing Tim Hoffman after Hoffman turned in a resignation request last Tuesday. Hoffman had served on the council since 1983. His request, which was accepted with regret by the council, cited personal differences with one of the other council members. In his resignation letter, given to the council May 21, Second Ward representative Tim Hoffman said his conflicts with Al Joseph were the main reason for the resignation. Joseph responded "I do not feel irreconcilable conflicts existed. I know I am headstrong at times, but what happens at the council table does not affect friendship." Mayor Pat Sweet accepted the resignation and recommended that Black be appointed to the unexpired term. Black, long active in Chamber of Commerce and local service organizations, now has the choice of serving out the term, or of seeking his own two-year seat on the council in the November elections.

In other business, the council turned down a request by a 2 to 4 vote, to vacate the unimproved portion of James Street. Several years ago, a garage was partially constructed onto the city property. The current owners requested that the council vacate that portion of James Street so that the property could become saleable.

A public hearing was held prior to the meeting at which some opposition to the request was heard. After the hearing, the council recessed the regular meeting to go out and take a look at the property in question. After reconvening, they voted to turn down the request.

Councilperson Ellen Cihak noted a request from the Freedom Festival organizers to sell pins on June 7 in order to raise funds for the festival. The council approved and voted their support.

Also considered by the council were several recommendations by the Recreation planning committee including the setting up of billboards in the Tourist Park and making additional improvements at Elm Pointe. No action was taken and the recommendations were referred to the Parks and Recreation committee under Carl Beck.

Jordan River cleaning itself

The outpouring of clay from a spring that cropped up along the river bank of the Jordan River has just about cleared up, according to those who have watched the spring for the last few days.

Last week, the spring was pouring forth clay and the clay was endangering the wildlife that live in the river.

Steve Swan, the DNR district fisheries biologist said that the river bottom has now cleared to the point where you can see the bottom, although the river is still carrying a heavy clay load.

He also said that because the river is starting to clean up, there appears to be little damage to the fish in the river.

He also said that some of the beaver dams in Landside Creek may have helped trap some of the clay before it got into the main stream. He has not detected any significant fish kill from the clay.

Memorial Day weekend '85

Boyerne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls were reporting a good weekend for business as the tourists and the resorters were up north in force.

But, because of the rains over the weekend, some of the outside activities that the resorters try to do, weren't as successful. Bar owners and restaurants in all three communities reported good sales for the Memorial weekend, and some said that they wished the entire year would be as busy as the one just past.

Jerry, from Jerry's Bar in East Jordan was very pleased with the crowds that came to East Jordan for the weekend. Other businesses reported sales were up considerably.

In Boyne City, the rains helped many of the restaurants and bars to be busy, while some of the outside activities, like the Dawn Patrol at the Boyne City Airport suffered a little from the early morning rains. The airport show did attract crowds later in the morning as the skies cleared and brought out the people to take plane rides, look at flying demonstrations, and enjoy a pig roast as well as take part in the airport dedication. The Lion's Club breakfast was the only washout as the Lion's gave up in defeat to the early morning rains.

Airplanes at the first Boyne City Dawn Patrol had a chance to compete for a spot landing contest. The contest saw the pilots trying to touch down the closest to a line that had been painted on the runway.

Small, bigger, and big were the planes trying for attention at the dawn patrol. The little plane was the home made model that is driven by feet pedals, while the next plane, also home made, is a Pitts Special that was constructed by Charles Scherping of Charlevoix. The other plane in the picture is a normal sized airplane that utilizes the airport.

With former city manager Forbes Tompkins and other members of the city commission looking on, Mary Anne Watkins cut the ribbon at the dedication of the new airport terminal building.

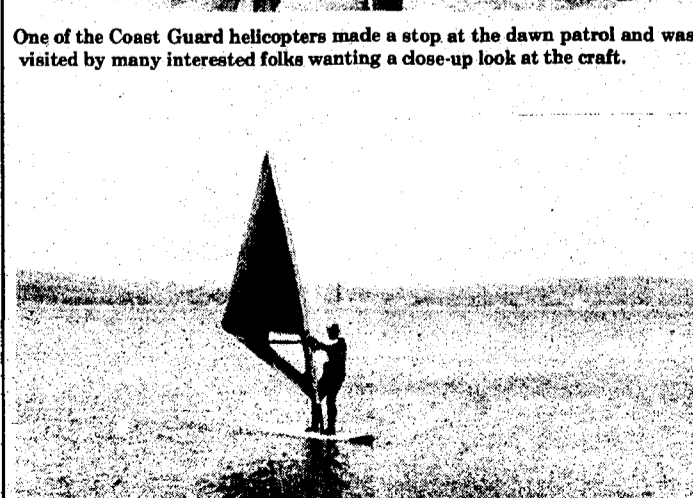

Cutting up a fat hog was Nord Schroeder along with Fred Lehto. The two roasted a hog for those who were attending the dawn patrol at the airport Sunday.

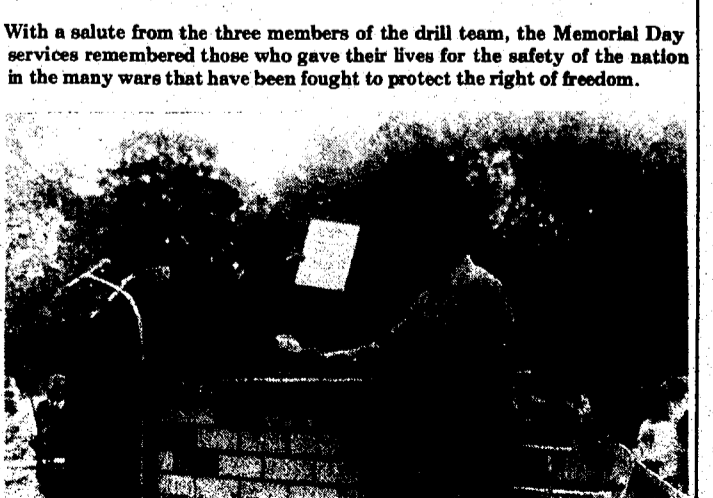

One of the Coast Guard helicopters made a stop at the dawn patrol and was visited by many interested folks wanting a close-up look at the craft.

With a salute from the three members of the drill team, the Memorial Day services remembered those who gave their lives for the safety of the nation in the many wars that have been fought to protect the right of freedom.

Shortly after the Memorial Day ceremonies, this intrepid sailor was out on his windsurfer enjoying the wind and the sun of the day Monday.

Cebert Gillespie was honored during the ceremony for his work for the past years as the Sergeant of arms for the veterans groups. He served as head of the drill team for many years and took part in many local military affairs.

Marshall Sayles

Poverty of resources forces me to write this column. I shall try to make it extremely humorous without being funny.

Twenty three days before summer officially jumps upon the bandwagon-Friday, June 21st. If that is so, what shall we call this weather we've been having. I say it's summer right now. But the calendar never seems to pay any attention to what I say. (Like I've said before, it doesn't list my birthday in red letters and I can't depend upon it at all.)

Have you noticed how the Boyne Theatre is being renovated? Looks like it will be a thorough job. I have no idea if it is being done over as a movie house or for some other commercial use. But if it is for movies I'll bet they will be of the Proctor and Gamble variety. For those few who are slow on the draw, that means a PG rating. Which means pretty good.

I've always liked movies with a PG rating. R's and X's disgust me. This shows that I have gobs of virtue. The older I get the more it kind of runs over, spilling into the streets. Sometimes, however, I get to thinking that I'm in danger of my virtue drying up. Television's prime time shows and swearing in the streets have been hacking away at my virtue for some time now and if this keeps up I have no idea how much longer I'll be able to hang on to it.

Proctor and Gamble movies will help, of course.

I have been terribly amiss in not thanking the many readers who called, wrote letters and sent cards during my recent crankiness in Petoskey's shelter of sickness. I hereby wish them all as well as they wished me.

A nice note from a faithful reader, who swims in Walloon in summer and spends the colder months in Ohio, perked me up quite a bit. I enjoyed her wonderful letter until I got to the part that referred to me as being "crusty".

Me crusty! Me, who has never spoken a word harsher than a flute tone? Me, who has the heart of a home made lemon pie on Sunday night?

I just looked that word up. Among other things it means devilish. Oh, phooey, she was right after all.

I went to One Water Street the other day to make reservations for dinner for two. I had no letters of introduction so I was forced to use my commanding appearance and my wild, peculiar beauty to win the attention of those in charge of who may enter and those who are told to keep walking until their hair floats. When the man saw my bright and intelligent face he said I could enter and have dinner so long as I behaved myself and did not make the usual fuss when presented with the bill. (This is not exactly what happened, but I'll be darned if I'm going to let accurate information creep into this column and spoil my readers' enjoyment.)

Mushroom weather and the Memorial Day holiday brought hundreds upon hundreds of people into Boyne City. I stopped to talk to a merchant whose doors had been banging all day.

"You sure are busy," I commented. "I'll bet you like this time of year." "Oh, yah," he said. "How would you like to be surrounded by hired help and a mortgage?"

An old friend from Detroit came to town over the week-end. He said that while he was walking down the street he suddenly thought of me. So he called me up and we had a high old time. Boy, do I like to be suddenly thought of.

(Dear Editor: Please keep this column in a cool place until it is published. Thanking you in advance, I remain in a sitting position, Yours truly, M.F.S.)

Jottings

What a weekend. I could have spent the time in bed trying to catch up on all the sleep I have been missing, but nooooo, I get myself involved with all of the activities that the community holds on such weekends as holidays.

That is one of the funny things about this town.

They hold all of the activities on the weekends when you want to be on vacation from work just like everybody else.

Why, I have a "honeydo" list that was presented to me about a month ago that will probably rot from old age before I get a chance to do any of the jobs.

First, there was the affair at the airport. Then I just had to watch that race they hold down in Indianapolis every year. That is watch it after I had listened to it on the radio. The next morning was the parade, and then I just had to watch until the end of the memorial service.

And of course, it was nap time for a couple of hours.

And down to the office to make up this column just so you would have something to read that was written by the publisher.

Sometimes you can never get the important things done when you want them done by someone/else.

I think I am going to start a new campaign.

To go along with the lonely quest of getting a major factory from General Motors up in the north country, of course.

This campaign is especially designed for those high school students who are, or who get, very nervous when they talk with elders, or talk in front of a group, or who have to do some thinking on their feet before they insert their foot in their mouth.

This campaign is to eliminate words like like, ummm, ya know, ya see, and a few others that cause stumbling problems with speakers.

I think if teachers would do their jobs, like the teachers of yesteryear, they would correct the students every chance they hear those types of stumbles from students. Of course, if teachers did do that, they would probably have to have aides hired to eliminate those speech patterns from their brains also.

Now saying this won't endear me or this newspaper with the teachers' union as they say that their members are above all that kind of stuff. They are hired only to teach the subject.

In the old days, teachers were hired to teach, no matter that if the subject that they were specializing in was algebra, they also corrected bad English as it was spoken in class. I can remember many a time when teachers corrected me, and some still are.

It's a fine spring morning. One wonders what fine thing one could do in honor of such a morning.

Listen. There's the cardinal's glad whistle and the elfin "witchety-witch" of the yellowthroat.

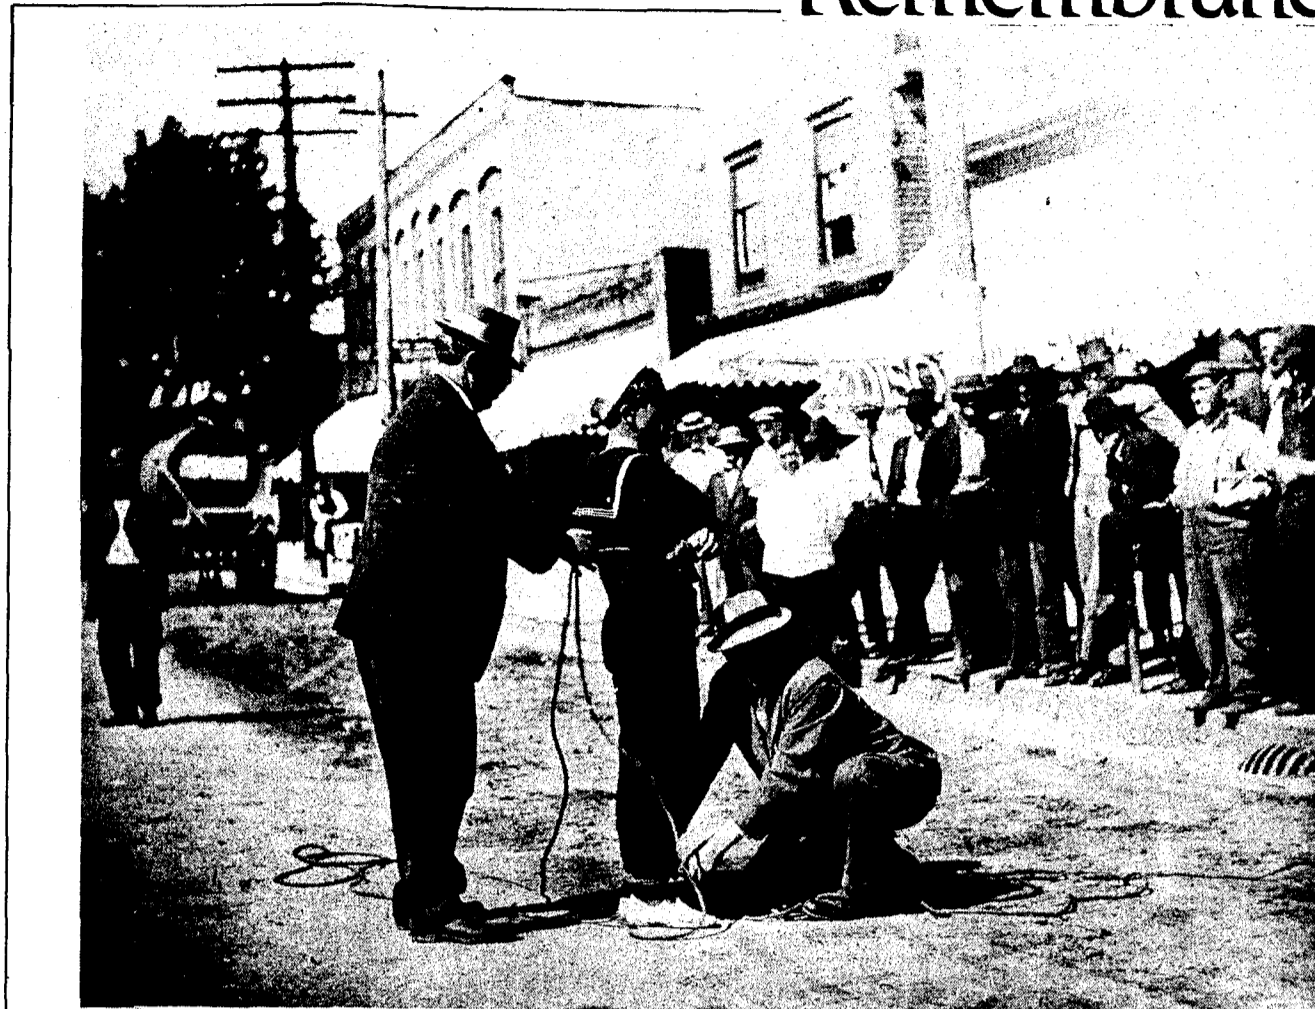

A suitable thing would be to join in. Whistle. Sing. Feel glad.

The rising sun seems to shine upward through the new leaves. Trees indeed become creatures of yellow-green light. Sun-lanterns.

Instead of being merely space, the cloudless sky has become a being itself—a great being of living blue.

And down on the lake, the sparkles on the waves seem to have leaped from the water to live in a special dimension of joy.

I think there is something wrong with us that we have no holiday to

We don't know who he was, but hopefully this World War I sailor was being tied up in just during some celebration the city had back then. The event took place downtown before the street was paved over and shows some of the old buildings that are still in existence today. If you

Let's skip over the matter of spring being an unpredictable season, especially in Michigan, because enough has been said and written on the subject to bore us all to tears, and move on to a problem connected with the unreliable season that has received little attention. This is the matter of tight closet space and the big hanger shortage that come up when warm weather drops in for a day or two and then bows out for a time and then repeats the theme.

The warm days entice us optimists to unpack and de-wrinkle our warm weather things and hang them lovingly in the closet. Of course, hangers and space have to be freed for the new arrivals so winter things must be removed and arranged elsewhere. A spare bed or any place where they won't be stepped on will do for the piles of clothes that go to the cleaners. The washable things land on the laundry room floor to be dealt with when the time and inclination coincide.

Once the hangers are full of summery things, the spring days pack up abruptly and go back to the place where spring hangs out when it isn't being charming in Michigan. The temperature dips below freeze-or at least back into the 30s and 40s and we optimists are staring at hangers full of scoop neck blouses and seersucker shorts. There's nothing to be done but dig out the scarves and heavy sweaters from the laundry room and the flannel slacks and blazers from the cleaning piles and figure out where to hang them. It's intolerable to think of putting the summer stuff away now that it's wrinkle-free. Piggybacking the clothes on hangers is a possibility. This only gets the bottom layer wrinkled. Or there's a quick trip to the store for a package of hangers so we can rehang some of the winter stuff and jam the whole mess together, which gets everything wrinkled.

And so, year in and year out, the Spring Closet Crisis comes around and closets entertain a massed

Jim Abney, an area supervisor with Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co. held the eighth graders interest as he told them and showed them what electricity could do if someone is careless. The program was the beginning of a program that the company is taking around to schools and includes a trailer that is set up like a real electric line would be. The eighth graders asked lots of questions about electricity and Abney was able to field them. Helping with the program was Charlie Leese, also of Top O' Michigan.

observe the ceremony at the Veteran's Park in downtown Boyne City. Visitors were told some remembrances of World War I by veterans from the war who still live in the area. Wreaths were placed in memory of those from the area who served in all wars by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliaries.

Earlier, the two groups made visits to all area cemeteries for memorial services. While many boats were put into the water, the empty dock spaces at many of the area marinas showed that many other boats still have to be launched between now and the Fourth of July weekend.

group of clothing for about six weeks that is appropriate for every conceivable kind of weather. The hanger and space problem could be avoided if we could contain our enthusiasm when the first warm days arrive and only take out a few light things until spring settles in for good. Somehow, some of us just can't get the hang of this kind of restrained behavior. We operate on the delightful but unfounded conviction that if we get our warm weather clothes out at the first crack of spring, the season will stick around.

If, some year, spring in Michigan does not pop in and out the way it usually does but settles in and stays a good, long time, we'll know that it took pity on us with all our warm weather clothes fresh and eager in our closets and decided to stay around and get acquainted.

To outsmart a gobble turkey is easier said than done. Long hours of preparation are required to accomplish a successful hunt, and Lyle Walter Jr. has proven that patience pays off.

First hunt bags turkey for 14 year old

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER
Some might call it beginner's luck, but fourteen-year-old Lyle Walter, Jr. doesn't think so. With obvious pride, he tells about the turkey he shot on his first turkey hunting expedition. The only clue to his success is given when he says, "It's how you set yourself, not how you call."
The East Jordan eighth grader is rightfully proud of his 14-pound turkey, which stood 3½ feet tall and had a 5-inch beard. He shot the bird with a Remington 12 gauge from a distance of about 15 to 20 feet. "After I shot it, I was afraid there wasn't going to be a beard," he said. "I shook all over when I got to the turkey and saw its beard!"
Neither Lyle or his father Lyle, Sr. had ever hunted turkey until this spring. Once they had received their permits, they began to study about the nature of and habitat of the wild turkey.

Using a gobble call, dressed in camouflage from head to toe, and arising at 4:30 in the morning to go out and get "set up" was all a part of the fun that paid off in a successful hunt.
Lyle, Jr. gives advice to someone thinking of hunting turkey, "Stay calm, don't move." The wild turkey is known to be a rather wild animal as its senses are very keen and its nature is to be very cautious and shy.
The young hunter, who is also a football and baseball player at the East Jordan schools, says, "We'll have a feast one of these days when Mom cooks my turkey!" That sounds like an excellent way to celebrate his first hunt.

DNR offers "free day" at recreational and state parks

Come and enjoy a day at the beach, a family picnic or a hike on the trails at one of the 89 State Park and Recreation Areas scattered throughout Michigan on June 2. The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Parks Division is hosting a statewide "parks" open house that day. The public may enter State Park and Recreation Areas without a motor vehicle permit in celebration of the open house. A multitude of recreational activities for all ages are provided year-around, says DNR Parks Division Chief

Jack Butterfield. Historic sites and exhibits and beautiful lakes for swimming, boating and fishing are just a sampling of the many offerings. Outstanding Upper Peninsula scenic State Park sites include the Tahquamenon Falls State Park. Here, says

Butterfield, one can take a rowboat ride to the island at the lower falls, or follow winding trails to the impressive Upper Tahquamenon Falls. A raft ride over Michigan's largest springs also offers a thrill to those visiting Palms Book State Park. Additional U.P. sites include a ghost town in Fayette State Park; Fort Wilkins State Park and Porcupine Mt. State Park, Michigan's largest wilderness State Park, not only offers impressive scenery and miles of trails, but interpretive shows and exhibits too. In the lower peninsula, one can explore a logging camp that relives Michigan's white pine logging era at Hartwick Pines State Park or climb Lake Michigan sand dunes and learn about them too at the interpretive center at Hoffmaster State Park. A visit to the Living Farm at Maybury State Park or a close-up view of ships from all over the world at the St. Clair River at Algonac State Park also offer a unique outing for the family. Canoe rides down the Huron River are available from the Proud Lake Recreation Area or one may sharpen his/her aim at the modern shooting range at Bald Mountain Recreation Area, just another sample of the varied activities enjoyed at State Park and Recreation Areas throughout Michigan.

State Park and Recreation Areas are open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Park brochures may be obtained from DNR Information Services Center, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI, 48909 (617-373-1220) and at all State Park and Recreation Areas.

On Saturday, May 18, East Jordan competed in regional play at Traverse City. Only one Red Devil, Danielle Baker, placed high enough to go to the state meet on June 1 at Clare. Baker placed third in the 440. For the boys, Todd Nachazel placed fourth and Jim Raymond seventh in the high hurdles and Kevin Molby placed sixth in the discus.

On Tuesday, May 21, the boys placed second at the Petoskey relays. In the special high hurdles event, Todd Nachazel took home a trophy for placing first. Ted Snowden came within 2/100 of a second of taking home a 1st place trophy in the 100 yard dash. Jim Raymond was fifth in the high hurdles. The relay teams had three 2nd place finishes and two third place. The relay teams were composed of Dave Nachazel, Tom Galmore, Jim Raymond, Don Reich, Dave Russell, Ted Snowden, Todd Nachazel, Rick Warden, and Keith Harchis.

Tournament play started at 10:00 Saturday when East Jordan took on the Capitals. Traverse City won in five innings by a score of 13-2. On Sunday East Jordan fell to the Petoskey Royals 9-2. Pete Zoulek went the distance for East Jordan giving up nine hits and six walks while fanning five. Tim Russell collected two hits including a two run homer and Keith Stewart and Rich Carpenter also rapped two hits picking up one hit each were Chuck Black and Mark Black.

Orioles move into first

The Boyne City Major Little League got their second week of action under their belts last week and two teams have shown an early season advantage as they are one-half game apart in the standings. The Orioles are currently in first place with the Tigers running a close second. The Tigers upped their win-loss record to 3-1 with a win over the Yankees in which Eric Richards hit two homers. The Orioles went to 4-1 with a 19-3 win over the Yankees on Memorial Day. The Orioles loss came at the hands of the Boyne Falls Loggers who took advantage of poor Oriole offense. The birds got rolling again Monday night as they collected 12 hits to the Yankees lone RBI double by Matt West.

EJ little league gets underway

BY DAN PEPIN
The East Jordan Little League organization has all the bugs worked out for the upcoming season and the various teams have organized.

Cliff Russel, Chris Snyder, and Tony Chanda. The Gulf and Western players for this year include Enos Bacon, Scott Coblenz, Mike Dionne, Pete Inman, Damon Norton, Chance Potter, Tom Zipp, Jerry Hosler, Mike Grunch, John Richards, Phil White, and Ben Peters.

You can kiss that one good-bye! James Crego powers a long fly over the outfield fences with a man on base. Crego's home run gave the Loggers a lead, but it diminished in later innings.

Loggers drop close one

The Boyne Falls Logger baseball team almost made it into the Northern Lakes Conference Districts this year, but fell short in the later stages of the Pre-District game against the Ellsworth hardballers, 5-4.

After the ill-fated fifth inning the Loggers retook the lead. Neil Wasylewski got a lead off single and advanced around the horn to score from third on a steal. Moments later Crego gave the Loggers the lead again when he belted a two out homer with Winhusen on base. Leading four to three the Loggers took the defensive position on the field and nearly had a win on ice in the final inning, but with two outs Ellsworth ran two base runners across the plate on a Logger error for the lead. Ellsworth went on to shut the Loggers down in the bottom of the seventh to advance into the districts. In the softball game the Lady Loggers had a hard row to hoe as they faced a team from the Johannesburg-Lewiston area. The final outcome ran 19-11 against Boyne Falls.

The Loggers fell behind early in the game as Joburg scored 16 runs in the first four innings, but regrouped to shut them down in the fifth and sixth innings. In the bottom of the seventh the Loggers had a rally going, but were put out on the baselines trying to over-advance the bases. Boyne Falls recorded twelve hits in the game with Lisa Topolinski getting three singles and Lisa Winhusen hitting two singles and a seventh inning two RBI single. Others hitters in the game were Kelly Payton, Dianne Massey, Renee Reynolds, Linda Koeman, Kristy Burkhardt, and Kim McNew, all with one baggers.

East Jordan starts fund-raiser for LL

The East Jordan Little League has launched its first annual "Community Birthday Calendar" fund-raising program. President Nancy Sherman explains that the unique calendar will be of special interest to the community as it will contain the birth-dates and wedding anniversaries of each family who purchases a calendar from a Little Leaguer. The campaign will continue until June 1st and the calendar will begin with the month of September, 1985 and run through August, 1986.

Funds will be used for equipment, rising Insurance and Charter fees, and the many other expenses that are encountered in running a successful program for nearly 200 children. "Our community has always been very supportive of our Little League program," according to Sherman. "And we are hoping for a very successful campaign that we can continue to do each year."

If you have not yet been contacted and wish to support Little League with an order, please contact Mrs. Sherman or any Little Leaguer and place your order by June 1st. Cost of the calendar is $5.00 per family.
