Boyer City is holding their Sidewalk Sale this weekend, July 19-20 with bargains, clowns, music, magicians, a farmers' market, and free health screening by the Charlevoix Area Hospital staff. Of course they are planning on offering bargains on all kinds of merchandise.

Wildwood Harbor Road, at least a portion of it, will remain open after the Charlevoix County Road Commission decided Friday after a public hearing. The hearing was called for when one of the adjacent property owners requested the closure, but another property owner on the other side of the road asked that it remain open. The road is presently a two-track trail with little or no traffic. The hearing said that the road commission had previously agreed to keep the old road open when a new right-of-way was granted for a new road some time ago.

Magna buys 82 acres in industrial park

It's official. After months of background work, rumor, and just good efforts by all parties involved, Magna International of America has purchased 82 acres of land in Boyne City for the development of LexMar, a new company that will be making plastic molded body parts for the automotive industry.

The plant, a joint venture between Magna and LexaLite of Charlevoix, will be operational as soon as February according to plans expressed at the Tuesday noon meeting of the Boyne City Commission.

But before the plant can be constructed, the city has to provide a few items that will facilitate the new company moving into town. Tuesday, they finished up with most of the groundwork that will be required.

The initial plan was to have the company purchase 20 acres of land in the new air-industrial park, but company officials decided that would not be enough, so the city was able to arrange the purchase of 62 acres that the Pine Lake Group was holding for investment. The city then will sell the 20 acres in the park, along with the 62 acres of the Pine Lake group to Magna.

The cost quoted at the meeting was $200,000 for the acreage. Because of certain requirements that the corporation asked for, the land of the Pine Lake Group had to be under the control of the city first.

After the deed had passed from the group to the city, the commissioners then authorized the annexation of the land into the city. That was another of the criteria that Magna required so they could deal with only one governmental body instead of two prior to the purchase. The land of the Pine Lake Group was located in Evangeline Township.

With the purchase of the land by the city from Pine Lake and the annexation, the next step the commissioners took was zoning the land industrial so development could take place. They also put the property into the air-industrial park with their resolution.

With those items accomplished, the commissioners then established a hearing date to allow the city to make an Industrial District. This will allow the city to issue tax abatements for the development of the land. They designated the entire park as the area that qualifies.

With all of those done, the city then sold the 82 acres of land to the Magna Corporation.

The commissioners then took steps to protect the park and approved a list of restrictions that the Economic Development Commission had worked up after several meetings. They also approved a set of criteria that will become the guideline for granting future tax abatements.

According to Richard Beagle, the county industrial task force coordinator, those abatements "are extremely helpful in showing a company exactly what he would get if he followed the criteria. These objective standards set down the rules."

That done, the commissioners then filed a notice of intent to the Small Cities Block Grant Program in order to find money to develop the needed utilities to the park. The city was required to provide water and sewer, and a Class A road to the property. The notice will start the granting process.

They also approved a resolution that okay the issuing of industrial revenue bonds, if needed. These bonds will be issued by the Municipal Finance Commission with a value up to $10,000,000. The bonds are not guaranteed by the city and the city has no obligation to pay in the case of default.

According to Randy Frykberg, the bonds, if required, have already attracted several banks for possible purchase.

Watching Mayor Keith Fitzpatrick sign the final documents that allowed the sale of 82 acres of the new Air-Industrial Park in Boyne City to be sold to Magna International of America for the first of several plants, LexaMar, City Manager Randy Frykberg, John Buick, who represented Pine Lake Group, and Siegfried Niedermair of Magna International, Inc., who purchased the land for the corporation. Also present are Jim Cline, of LexaLite and the operating officer of

They then passed a resolution that said one percent of the fees from the bonds would go to the city instead of to the bonding authority.

Observing all of the action of the city at their meeting was Siegfried Niedermair, one of the top officials of Magna International. After all the work that the commissioners did, Niedermair said that he was happy to come to Boyne City, extremely pleased with the cooperation of all the parties involved in bringing the plant to town and they are looking forward to becoming a partner with the community.

He also said that depending on the economy, six to 10 plants are possible for the Boyne City location. He said that this area could become the base of the automotive plastics industry based on the plastic molding possibilities of other plants although they could be bringing in light stamping plants as well as sub-assembly plants as they develop the park.

Jim Cline, who will head the new LexMar plant, said that he appreciates all of the cooperation of the city officials and all other parties involved in helping. Cline who works as a vice president of LexaLite in Charlevoix, also told members of the press that it would be four to five months before the plant will start hiring.

The plant that will be constructed will be around 75,000 square feet and will be leased to LexMar by Magna. They will be expending seven million in capital expenses this year and are expecting to spend about $10 million over the next few years on the plant. The plant projects approximately 150 jobs will be available.

All of the work that was done at the Tuesday noon meeting represents three to four months of work that would have had to come in the future and thus, delaying the plant, said attorney Bill McLaughart.

The resolutions will help in meeting the aggressive timetable that the plant has set for being in operation.

In other action at the noon meeting, the city authorized the spending of up to $6,500 for the repair of valves in the wastewater treatment facility.

They also heard the steps that are being taken for those property owners who have been neglecting their yards. Those steps include a letter urging action from the city, followed by a letter from the city attorney and finally court action if no progress is made to keep up the grounds within the city limits.

EJ Student insurance rates jump

Despite a reduction in claim ceilings from $10,000 to $3500, insurance rates will increase more than 10 percent for East Jordan schools this year.

At its meeting on July 8, the school board approved coverage by First Agency of Kalamazoo. Premiums will be $5.43 per student for claims up to $3500. The premium last year was $4.91 per student for claims up to $10,000.

A rider for claims from $3500 to $10,000 was attached to cover students who participate in interscholastic sports. Catastrophic coverage for school athletes with claims from $10,000 to $1 million was also approved by the board. This will cost East Jordan schools $1.40 per athlete.

All school board officers were retained in 1985-86. Elected were Mary Jason, president; Shirley Bauer, vice president; Edwin Drenth, secretary; and Herbert Griffin, treasurer.

The school board will hold its regular meetings on the second Tuesday of each month at 7:00 p.m. Meetings are held in the school board offices at the elementary school.

A request from the East Jordan Public Library for cooperation of the board in joining with the city to form a district library was tabled. Additional information on the proposal was requested. The East Jordan city council recently approved the plan. Two governmental units, however, must join in the proposal in order to put the measure on the ballot.

County to get lake management grant

In a joint announcement, State Senator Mitch Irwin and State Representative Ralph Ostling revealed that the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources, Division of Land Resource Programs, has awarded a $12,500 Coastal Management Grant to the County of Charlevoix.

The grant will enable the County to complete the first part of a two-year process to develop a Lake Charlevoix Management Plan. The project involves data collection and analysis. The County Planning Commission appointed an Advisory Committee, composed of various interest groups, to develop the plan. Senator Irwin said the plan is needed because of the "ever-increasing demands upon the lake which, if left unmanaged, could affect the water quality in a negative way."

Project funds will be used to develop and mail an attitude survey to County residents to help determine community views and concerns about the lake. "The survey will serve a dual purpose; it will provide important information to the committee, in addition to involving local residents in the process", Representative Ostling said.

A technician will also be hired, for a short period of time, to help gather information and prepare reports for the Advisory Committee.

Road estimates cause concern for Wilson Twp

Cost estimates to fix up some roads in Wilson Township, the way that they were presented, and the Wilson Township Board didn't see eye to eye at their last board meeting when Fred Welch, the engineer for the Charlevoix County Road Commission gave the township estimates to fix up Marshall, Behling, Zink, Pleasant Valley and Carson roads.

The board expressed disappointment with the thought that the bids were just estimates and the sample contracts the road commission prepared which called for a 40 percent down payment within the project start time.

The contract also calls for the Road commission to stop work if the estimated cost was 10 percent higher than the estimate. The township would have to agree to the higher costs before the work would get started again.

The estimates for each road was broken down with Marshall Road to cost $40,000 for grading, widening and installing culverts as well as graveling; Behling Road at $18,000 for graveling, $2,000 for gravel at the ends of Zink Road; $2,000 for gravel on Pleasant Valley Road, and $5,000 for grading and graveling two-tenths of a mile of Carson Road.

The section of Carson Road was to be split with the road commission.

The board decided to let Bob Herrmann, the township supervisor, and trustee Les Fall look at each road site named by Welch to see if the work can be put off or needs to be done.

The roads were identified by the township as needing improvements at their annual meeting last April and $150,000 was earmarked for improvements.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

When I was down at the beach the other day, the high water we are seeing all around the area got me to thinking about all of the water that is in the lake. Or should I say lakes, because we are connected all the way out to the sea and almost all of the lakes are experiencing high water just as we are.

Now we all know that the Corps of Engineers is keeping track of the water level, they even sent me a table showing the result of a couple of months ago and the projected change that is going to occur in the future months. Of course they are saying that the water is supposed to peak in July or August, depending on a lot of things that I don't know about, or have no control over anyway.

These high water figures can mean a great deal to those of us who live on or near the water. To the shipper, it means that he can load his boat with a little more, to the land owner, it can mean that he might be seeing his home slide into the lake.

What is good for one, is not necessarily good for the other.

One thing is certain. The high water isn't high enough to have the City of Chicago open all of the gates to let Lake Michigan water flush out the Mississippi through the Chicago Drainage Canal.

But then, we probably need all this water.

Especially if you look at it from the standpoint that these great lakes lie almost halfway between the equator and the north pole. This land is called a temperate zone and is, according to some scientists, ideal.

All of the water in the lake is almost potable. That means you can drink it. In fact, all of the major cities, and some not so major, are drawing water from the lakes for their water systems.

Industry could not operate without the water. They use it for many, many things.

That is one of the reasons that we should watch the water quality as far as toxins and chemicals that are being put into the water. If we go downstate, we may have to drink it.

The production of food and fiber requires large amounts of water to grow and to feed humanity. That is why certain elements are trying to get some of the lake water diverted, so they could grow more and better crops.

Of course, our officials are against any other group taking our water from us.

In many other parts of the nation, they sell water rights. They have more value than the ground itself, because without the water, the land is useless.

About the only thing bad about the water is that right now, it is higher than it has been.

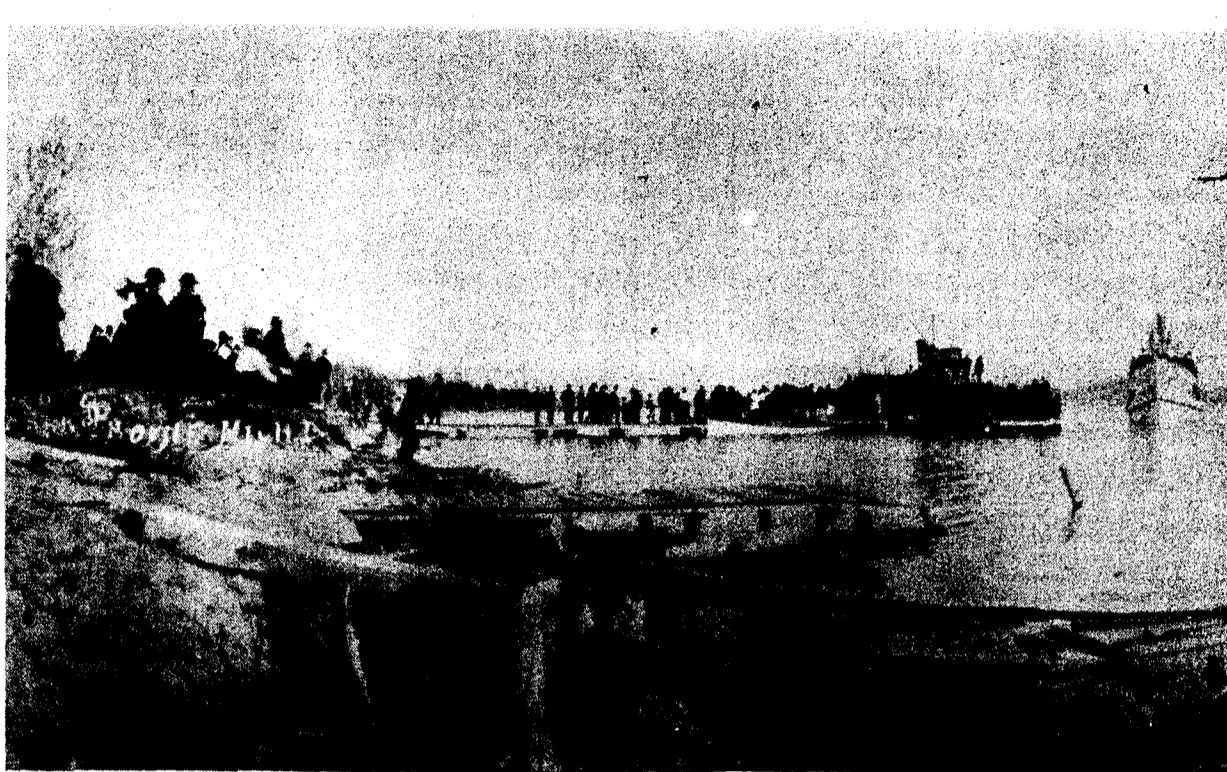

Lakefront owners are getting worried that they may have to expend some money for some shoreline protection to keep the sand from washing away and letting their homes fall into the water.

But, high water and low water are reached in cycles. The level of water varies as much as the amount of snow and rain we get from year to year, and we can't control those cycles yet.

The main point that we all should have to worry about, is not the high water, we should look at that as a blessing.

What we should worry about is the opposite. What if the lake were to go dry?

Remembrances

Going on a picnic back about the turn of the century meant getting on a boat to go down the lake to Glenwood Beach. The area of the beach shows some of the wood that washed up on the beach from some of the area sawmills and other developments. Today, the beach is the location of many fine year-around homes. The boat in the background unloads passengers headed for the picnic area.

The Monopoly board shows that the first copyright date was 1935. Americans have played this game through three wars, sundry educational experiments like "See and Say" reading and "New" math and the cyclical rise and fall of the hemline. Come what may, we've never lost our zeal for bringing financial ruin to our friends in this socially acceptable fashion. We Americans develop long-term loyalties to strange ways of whiling away our leisure hours.

For those who have never played the game, the rules state: "The idea of the game is to buy and rent or sell properties so profitably that one becomes the wealthiest player and eventual winner." The game board is arranged with sets of properties along the border, each set designated by its own color. You must own both or all three of a color, a monopoly, in order to put houses and hotels on the properties so that you can charge exorbitant rent to the unfortunate players who land on your holdings through the roll of the dice. If you're lucky, players land on your property more often than you land on theirs. The winner is the sole remaining player after all the others have gone bankrupt.

Monopoly came on the market during the Depression when getting rich with play money was the closest thing to wealth most people could aim for so its early popularity is easy to understand. The reasons for the continuing sales of the game are less clear.

Maybe it's because players can apply their philosophy of living to the way they play the game, especially when it comes to buying houses for their monopoly. Those who paint life with bold strokes buy lots of houses early in the game, using up all their capital. They either win big or lose early. Then there are the careful planners who buy a few houses at a time, preserving a "rainy day" fund. They don't get wiped out early, but unless they step up their buying program, they don't win either.

Obviously, Monopoly does not teach conservative financing. It doesn't teach cooperation either. It's not a game that you'd use to help your children learn to work together for the common good. Monopoly is every man for himself all the way.

Since the game is not big on teaching values, what is it good for? Some people argue that it gives our fundamental greed a chance to come out and play, as well as any aggressive urges that have been waiting for an opening. Maybe. If so, there's ample justification for playing every so often to keep us civilized and charming the rest of the time.

I figure it's been around so long because it's still engrossing enough to take our minds off our problems for a short time and put them on the game board. We get a chance to play fast and loose with money and property not our own.

In any case, it's undeniable that Monopoly has been around for 50 years because we like to play the game; and pleasure, strange or otherwise, is what leisure hours are for.

The Fourth of July has been celebrated all to pieces and as the dust settles I find there are no holidays in August. Did you hear what I said? No holidays in the sweltering month of August. Nothing to look forward to but the heat and those damn seat belts. If it wasn't for the weather and the legislature I would lead a far, far more exciting life.

He: Last week you would have us believe there are no gossips in Boyne City. Why do you whip up such boloney and hand it out as the truth when you know full well that blabber mouths get up early to spread tittle-tattle up one street and down the other?

Me: I was shafted by a scientific survey that showed no gossips in town. It backfired. Now I find the grapevine actually sizzles with rumor and scuttlebutt.

He: The Coca-Cola Company got flimflammed by a scientific survey that said everyone was tickled with their latest drink. It backfired on them, too. Now they've got to fall back on their old drink. Since you were also backfired upon, what do you have to fall back on?

Me: Nothing. I'm fraught with self pity and wish desperately that I had the financial bloat and foxiness of the Coca-Cola Company so I would have something wonderful to fall back on.

Fraught? Foxiness?

Me: Hey, man. Don't you dig the mother tongue?

He: The only thing I understand is that you are using fancy words to get around something you said that really ain't so. Just like the Coca-Cola Company, you tried to get the public to swallow a fib.

Me: A fib! You wouldn't think of saying that if I had something dandy to fall back on.

(Note: Oh, how the rich and famous get away with what the poor man has to take on the chin, or the nose or whatever the poor man has to take it on.)

Last week's column was too long. This week's is rather short. But let me tell you something. If I had not been cursed with a strong mind and a weak back I wouldn't be writing at all. I'd be out mowing the lawn. That's what I'd be out on the lawn doing.

4th annual quilt show Grayling July 25-28

The Icehouse, along with the newly established "Au Sable Quilt Guild", is pleased to announce they will be sponsoring the 4th annual quilt show this summer. This 4-day event will begin Thursday, July 25, with Sunday, July 28, being the last day of showing. The location of the show is 509 Norway Street, in Grayling. There is no charge and the public is invited.

Antique quilts, new quilts, wall hangings, quilted clothing, and various other quilted projects will be on display in the upper level of the shop. We would welcome the opportunity to display it for you. Contact The Icehouse, 348-4821 for details.

Whether you are a beginning quilter, a collector, or just enjoy seeing a part of America's history, be sure to set aside a day to attend this unique event here in Northern Michigan. Remember July 25 to July 28, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at The Icehouse, 509 Norway Street, Grayling.

High in the air, the swinging ladders soared, giving the spectators to the Kelly-Miller Circus lots of thrills as the performers went through the tricks that made up the act. The three-ring circus played to maximum crowds for both shows Monday.

Even the animals get cared for at a circus like Kelly-Miller. This camel sprained a knee when he was coming out of the trailer and has the wound dressed by the crew that takes care of the animals. All circus animals are well cared for as most companies appreciate the draw that the exotic animals can bring to the circus.

District Health Dept. No. 3 is warning parents of the continuing danger of childhood diseases and urging them to make sure that all of their children are fully immunized.

Brian Youngs, M.D., Medical Director, is especially concerned at this time because of the recently reported case of pertussis (whooping cough) in the area. Pertussis is a serious disease, especially in small children. The illness may begin with headache, runny nose, and an irritating cough. The cough becomes worse as more and more mucus is discharged from the throat and bronchial passages. Between violent coughing spells a high pitched gasp for air may occur which has given whooping cough its name. Complications of the disease include pneumonia and brain damage. Pertussis, as well as polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diph-teria, and tetanus, may be prevented by properly immunizing children. The District Health Department recommends a series of immunizations that should be started at 2 months of age for most children. The series should be completed prior to the child's entry into kindergarten. A tetanus and diphtheria booster should be given to adults and children every 10 years.

Immunizations are offered by District Health Dept. No. 3 at Boyne City in the Presbyterian Church basement on South Park St. on the 2nd Tuesday, 1 to 3 p.m.

At East Jordan Family Health Center on the 4th Tuesday, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and in Charlevoix at the County Building Annex on the 2nd Monday 1 to 3 p.m.

For more information about immunizations contact your physician or any office of District Health Dept. No. 3. Bellaire: 616-538-8670; East Jordan: 616-536-7371; Charlevoix - 616-547-6523; Petoskey - 616-347-6014; or Gaylord - 517-732-1794.
