Starting this January, all foods that have sulfites used in them are going to be labeled in either the store, in the case of bulk foods, or on the package. The ruling came as an emergency regulation by the Department of Agriculture. Sulfites have been known to cause an allergic reaction in some people, especially asthmatics.

Cheese, butter and dried milk will be the offerings given away at this month's free food distribution. The Community Services Center on Park Street in Boyne City and the East Jordan Civic Center are the locations for pick-up of the food next Wednesday, Aug. 28, starting at 10 a.m. The food will be given out until 2 p.m. or until gone.

Rick Smith, a developer from Boyne City, was elected to a term on the Lake Charlevoix Association at their annual meeting last Tuesday. The group heard about wetlands and shoreline protection means as well as conducted the yearly business at hand.

The county numbering system, which was slated to be finished by the first of September has been put off until the first of October. The numbering system will give house numbers to every parcel of land within the county. Officials say it will help emergency vehicles as well as the general public in finding locations throughout the county.

Boyne Falls School will be starting next week Tuesday, Aug. 27 with a partial day starting at 8:25 a.m. Elementary students are to report to their classrooms while high school students are to report to the gym. Kindergartners do not have school that day but are to start the following day, Wednesday. Classes will run until 12:25 p.m. so no lunches will be served.

Bay Township is also starting to do the work to get the township hall up to current building codes. They are installing a handicap ramp, enlarging a door, painting trim work.

Boyne City yields to landfill pressures

After owning a landfill in Evangeline Township for 19 years, Boyne City is ready to get out of the landfill business, according to City Manager Randy Frykberg.

The township and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources have put increased pressure on the city to close the facility, after years of controversy about the unlicensed facility.

District Ground Water Quality Supervisor Larry Thornton said that as hundreds of unlicensed landfills close across the state in recent years, Boyne City is one of the hold outs.

"It is and has been an illegal, unlicensed dump," he said.

Under the standards of Public Act 87 of 1965, the first Michigan legislation dealing with the solid waste problem, the Evangeline Township site was licensed, but those standards were considerably more lax than today's.

"Public Act 87 was a good decision at the time it was made, but with advanced knowledge accumulated at the state level, the position changed to reflect new knowledge," explained Larry Sullivan, Charlevoix County Planner.

Although the Evangeline site is considered a poor one for a landfill by current standards, this was not always the case. According to Director of Environmental Health for District Health Department Number Three, Dean Mikulski, the location looked good to city officials and the Department of Public Health, which regulated landfills in 1966 when the Boyne City landfill was established.

"That was really considered very progressive thinking on behalf of the city at that time," Mikulski said.

Many communities were still operating open dumps, burning trash and discharging directly into ground or surface water in the 1960s. Prior to the establishment of the Evangeline Township site, Boyne City's landfill was located on the banks of the Boyne River.

Although, according to Mikulski, licensing under Act 87 required covering of refuse, controlling access to the landfill, eliminating burning and prohibiting discharge directly into water sources, it did not require any hydro-geological work be done. Because of this, there was no assessment of the possibility of contaminants leaching into ground water.

Mikulski noted that there was a great deal of outcry over the new standards.

"Environmental controls were very young at that point," he said.

The main concern then was to establish the new landfills on high, dry sites away from lakes and streams.

"With the criteria they were looking for at that time, the Evangeline Township site looked very good," explained Larry Levengood, Health Department Sanitarian.

The Boyne City landfill was licensed under the Department of Public Health until 1972. The DNR was given responsibility for landfill inspections in 1973 and did not renew the landfill's license.

In a letter dated May 1973, the DNR objected to blowing papers, digging of cells larger than could be used for one day's refuse, not enough equipment on the site and inadequate protection of the water.

According to Sullivan, a Solid Waste Management plan developed for the county in 1974 in accordance with the statutes of PA 87, recommended that the facility be closed. However, the city continued to operate the landfill.

"I think their attitude was it was licensed once, it would always be licensed," Levengood said.

In 1978, Public Act 641 was passed, tightening the criteria and standards for licensing. In 1981, Sullivan was given the primary task of developing a solid waste management plan under the new act.

A solid waste management committee was established, comprised of representatives of industry, environmental groups, municipalities and the public. Levengood noted that all municipalities were asked what options they wanted planned for use in their community, but Boyne City did not submit a suggestion.

The plan developed by the committee recommended that all unlicensed landfills in the county be closed and a transfer station established for Boyne City.

Sixty-seven percent of the municipalities in the county had to approve the plan, and they did. Among those not approving the plan were the residents of Evangeline Township.

But two years later, Evangeline Township wants the landfill closed, and according to Levengood, it is in the city's best interest to do so.

"I think it's clearly to Boyne City's advantage to close it," he said, citing the potential liability, the controversy, cost of services to Evangeline Township called for under the landfill agreement and the negative image amidst the city's positive strides.

Mikulski agreed, saying that as Boyne City continues to draw light industry, it becomes increasingly important that they provide the companies with safe disposal of solid wastes.

"It's critical that as the community plans for water service, sewer service and land use, they also provide for solid waste facilities that are safe," he said.

The health department officials also agreed that it is not possible to run a safe and economical landfill at the Evangeline site.

"You could do the best you could under PA Act 641, but you'd still fall short because of the land," Mikulski said.

Levengood added that the soil and water situation at the site is more complex than people have made it out to be.

"We don't know what's happening hydrogeologically at that site," he said. "The city has been warned for 12-13 years that the site is a potential problem."

Another factor stressed by the health department officials is that landfills are considered to have a lifespan of about 20 years. The Boyne City landfill has been in operation for more than 19 years.

"A sanitary landfill is not a perpetual thing," Mikulski said.

But the cost of developing a facility to handle solid wastes is so expensive that municipalities have to deal with the monetary constraints.

Sullivan said that some of this is a problem of public awareness and that most people are not interested in how their garbage is disposed of as long as it is picked up on schedule and the rates are not increased.

"We ship oranges in from Florida and California, but we won't pay to send the peels 20 miles away," he said.

The beginning of the building boom took off this past week in Boyne City as ground was broken and site work started for a 24 unit apartment project on Division Street. The project, headed up by Scott Dietze and Richard Brooks, will feature apartments for singles and families. Other projects set to get underway around Boyne City include the expansion of the runway at the airport, installation of sewer and water lines to the Air-Industrial Park, the Peninsula Beach project, and the building of the LexaMar plant in the industrial park.

EJ Board leaves hot lunch sports prices the same

Tickets for athletic events and prices for hot lunches for the 1985-86 school year in East Jordan will remain the same as they were last year, following school board approval at last week's meeting.

Hot lunches will cost 70 cents for elementary and 75 cents for high school students. Milk remains 15 cents. However, the prices of some ala carte items will increase, but the selection will be expanded.

A family all-sports pass remains at $45, with an individual pass $20. An all-sports student pass costs $15 again this year and senior citizens can obtain a pass at no charge in the superintendent's office.

The board also accepted "with regret" the resignation of Title I Director Arline Rullman, who has accepted a post as elementary principal in the Dowagiac Public School system in southwestern Michigan.

Rullman, who also taught kindergarten, was employed at East Jordan schools for 11 years.

Superintendent Tom Rossler, who called Rullman an "outstanding individual," asked the board to approve Pam Allen as interim director of the Title I program.

Rossler said that the position will not be easy to fill and would need time to find someone to permanently replace Rullman.

"We must take a long look at this," he said.

The board also accepted the resignation of girls' varsity basketball and volleyball coach Jamie Smith, who will join the Alba Public School system.

Former bus drivers Hugh Vaughan and Hank Grutsch were presented with plaques in recognition of their years of service at East Jordan.

Approval was given to four faculty appointments. Katherine Taylor was given a one-year contract to teach special education in the high school, replacing Lynn Zimmer who was granted a sabbatical leave. Steve Hines was approved as the girls' varsity basketball coach, with Becky Jingle as the girls' junior varsity basketball coach.

The custodial/maintenance crew was approved by the board, with Dale Shepard and Frank Curry as custodians and Matt Weisler and Mel Niswander as crew leaders.

Superintendent Rossler also asked the board to consider a recommendation to operate two junior-primary classes instead of one due to the number of students eligible. The board approved the proposal, which will split the 29 eligible students into groups of 15 and 14.

Rossler also told the board that four sections of kindergarten will be held with 80-85 kindergartners expected to be enrolled this fall. There will also be four sections of eighth graders.

Rossler also asked the board to decide whether to operate some combination classrooms in the elementary, allowing the elimination of 1-2 teaching positions, or to retain small classroom sizes.

"Classes will be large, especially in the lower elementary where teacher-pupil ratios seem to be important," Rossler said of the combination classrooms.

He told the school board that reductions need to be made in staff or supplies because of the defeat of

Bud Ashton resigns EJ principal position

A familiar face at East Jordan High School will be missing when school starts next week.

Bud Ashton, who served as high school principal for the last six and one-half years, resigned last week to accept a position as a junior high principal in Granby, Colorado.

Ashton said the opportunity to move to Colorado came up by chance on a recent trip to the state where he looked at possible future employment prospects.

"I just walked into it and there it was," he said. He added that it is a beautiful area where the people are friendly and motivated toward education.

Granby, whose school system is the same size as East Jordan's, is located in the Winter Park ski area about 55 miles northwest of Denver. Ashton said that although the move is attractive to him and his family financially, educationally and recreationally, it is very difficult to leave East Jordan.

"It's not easy," he said, adding that they have made many friends since moving to East Jordan in 1979.

The Grand Rapids native starts his new position Friday.

East Jordan Public Schools Superintendent Tom Rossler said the school board accepted Ashton's resignation Monday night at a special session following the Truth in Taxation meeting.

The search for a new principal has begun and Rossler said he expects the selection process to take four to five weeks.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Well, it seems official. One of Boyne City's fine institutions are going to close their doors forever.

When you think back at all of the really neat things that the Country Star Markets have done for the community, you also have to wonder why more people didn't continue to shop at the new store.

Sure, in hindsight, the company probably would have done many, many things differently than what they did, but in this world, you can't play by those rules of past, you have to work towards the future.

And that is what the company thought they were doing. Every projection, every bit of expert opinion was probably used to make the decision to move to a new store. Among the many was the consideration that if they had stayed at the old, they would have had to install a new roof, just like the folks at Glen's had to do when they bought the property. The Glen's stores put over a million dollars into the building, just to bring it to a point where they could use it. Country Star thought that a new location, built to their specifications would be about the same as the upgrading of the old.

And they were right. What they did not figure on, was the fact that shoppers are fickle. We have heard so many different things about the new store that we couldn't list them. From far out of the marketplace to unfriendly roof cleaners. All of the complaints just showed up when Boyne City is just starting to show the potential it has always had. The growth of the community is just starting.

So get those bargains while you still can, and remember some of the things that the store has provided for the senior citizens programs, the 4-Her's, the Girl Scouts, and many, many more community service clubs. Especially the golfers who this weekend will be playing the last of the Country Star Open golf matches. Have fun for the last time.

On these last days of summer, things seem to slow down a little bit. The workforce has a tendency to struggle a little getting out of bed in the morning, and wanting to leave work a little earlier.

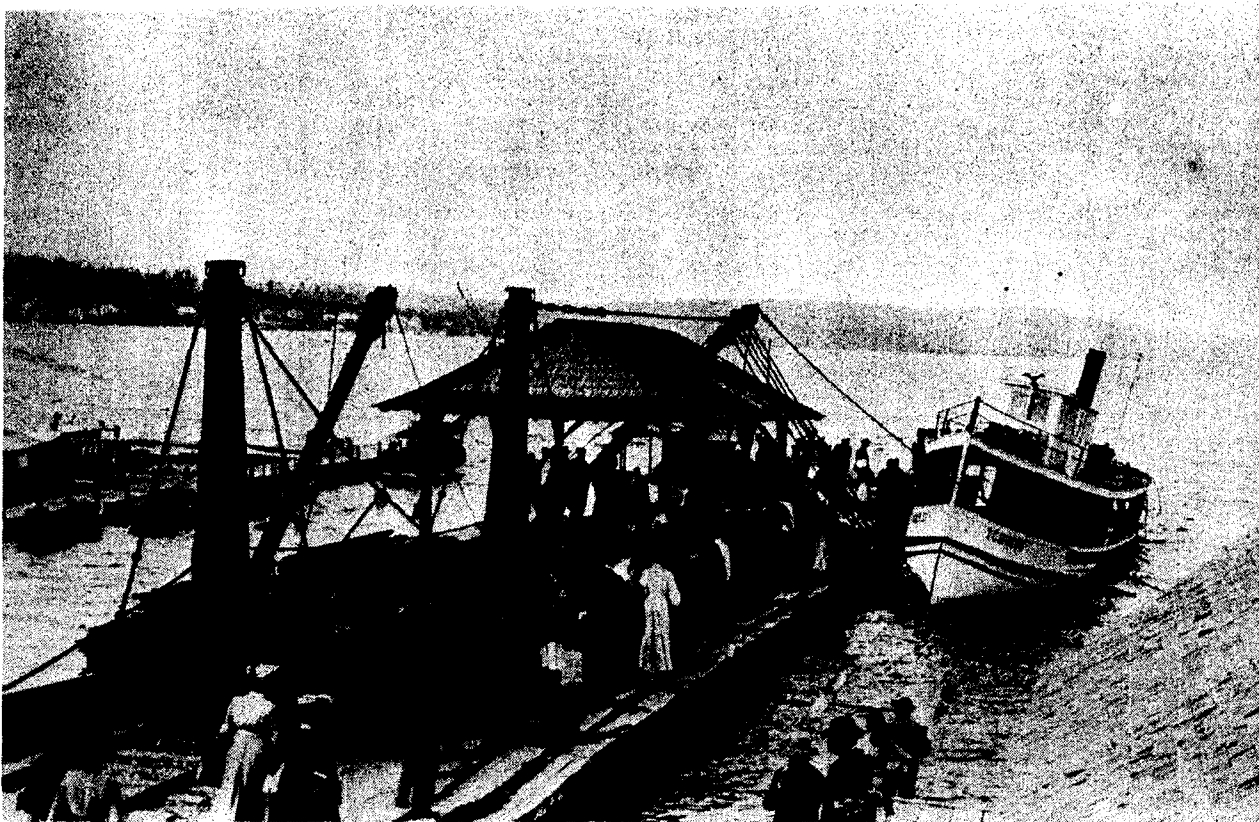

I think I know what they are thinking about. When you look around and see a lot of other people having fun while you have to work, makes a person a little jealous, and he wants to have the time off to do the same. At least that is true in my case.

Sure, I would like to have some time to go out sailing, or to finish painting or any of the other jobs that should get done before the snow starts going horizontal in front of the door.

We want a break too. But for most of us, we have to service those who are having the fun. Because we wanted to live up here, we have to help pay the price.

But, just think, some of the best days of the year are just around the corner, and we will not have to share them with too many people. AHHH, September, perhaps the best month of the year.

Remembrances

Raising the Tourist was a big project after the boat sank at the dock in Walloon Lake near the turn of the century. The boat carried freight and passengers all over the lake as they went from the train depot to the homes around the lake. If you have any old pictures of the Boyne City, East Jordan, Boyne Falls, Walloon Lake area, bring them into the office and we'll make a copy of them for everyone to remember.

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

In the normal course of things, we wouldn't dream of expecting a guest to work after inviting her to come and spend some time with us. It's rude and bad form too. Things have not been normal at our house, however, for a couple of months, so good manners have been dispensed with in the name of expediency. And we had plans that a herd of trap-dodging mice would be dispense with by a cat named Mocha.

Mocha and her owner have visited us on several occasions in the past and a good time was had by all. Mocha did seem a bit high strung, but that's understandable in light of her mixed genes. She has Siamese, Persian and tiger cat blood in her veins and it's probably an unsettling combination internally. It certainly is when it comes to her appearance. She has the striped face and forelegs of a tiger cat. The rest of her markings and coloration are approximately Siamese, give or take a few shades here and there. Her fur is silky like a Persian. It's very thick except at the base of her tail where there's hardly any at all. This distinctive wrapping covers an eight-pound package.

The beginning of Mocha's visit went swimmingly. She wandered into the utility room where the mice hang out and soon assumed a crouching position. She looked for all the world like an animal with cornered prey. This pose lasted for nearly an hour. Then her owner left and Mocha abandoned her post. She recognized that her environment was different without her friend, so she set about making the best of the new circumstances.

Mocha began a training program for our family immediately. She danced on her hind legs and meowed in commanding tones. Then she marched to the kitchen, tail straight up in an exclamation point, and stood in front of her food and water dishes. Both dishes were about a third full. She made it clear by non-stop meowing that this was not sufficient. We filled as directed. Then she brushed against my legs. We knew that Mocha does not tolerate being picked up. She wants to be scratched about the ears from a distance, preferably by someone bent double from a standing position. I did so until Mocha stalked off. She moved on to meow under two windows. She wanted them both open so she could sit or lie on the windowsills. We complied immediately. We wanted Mocha to feel that we were attentive so that she would feel secure and get back to mousing as soon as possible. Mocha didn't share our sense of urgency.

Eight days have passed and there's still no action on the mouse front. I guess we can't fault Mocha for not feeling like tackling our mouse problem. We know that she's done a noble job of ridding her own house of the little fellows and she's probably tired of dealing with them. Besides, no one told her that she was invited for a working vacation.

A number of years ago I was called upon to speak off the top of my head to a group of youngsters concerning the evils of poison hemlock, or any of the many things that rot the brain. I was to scare them with certain draw backs in life that could prevent them from rising any higher than a television commercial announcer.

On stage, I did not know what to say. So I thought I would draw upon my own experience and let it go at that.

My introductory remarks were rather original. I said: Now you kids listen good.

Then I began. You youngsters are about to become of age. Now let me tell you something about that.

The day I turned twenty-one I sallied forth into adulthood wrapped in a cloak of self importance, floating in a detached air of superiority. After all, I had reached the age when my leaves would never wither.

The best way to prove my maturity was to go straight to the nearest tavern and have at it. I entered the living hell with a slight rise to my nose.

Those stubborn and rebellious teen-age years were behind me as I stood full grown amid the stench of

When the wind is in the East; Then the fishes bite the least; When the wind is in the West; Then the fishes bite the best; When the wind is in the North; Then the fishes do come forth; When the wind is in the South; It blows the bait in the fish's mouth.

solve countywide problem

Editor,

Enclosed find this letter given to the Boyne City Commission, please publish it for the community.

The city's idea of a transfer station meets with disfavor with me.

In the first place, you the city, are trying to solve the problems of all of the townships around us, while your only concern should be the City of Boyne City. Because you are only one governing body, it is unconstitutional to try to dictate to all.

I would suggest before you jump off the deep end, that you form a committee of city and townships involved in this refuse problem. Include Bay, Evangeline, Melrose, Boyne Valley, Wilson, Eveline, and any other that may want to join. Otherwise, you will be stuck with all the dirty laundry of the whole area in future years to come.

If the townships don't want to get involved with a solution, and you go ahead with it alone, then you will be responsible for all future complaints and problems that are bound to come.

As for the DNR, they are going to insist on a quick solution, even though it has taken them 20 years or so to make up rules and regulations for us to abide by. And they are hard put to abide by their own rules.

As I hurried home on a talkative stomach, a disagreeable decision ran through my mind. I would move to Advance and live under an assumed name.

Now I want to warn you teenagers: When you become what is called an "adult", it will not mean that you have suddenly acquired the dexterity to out-kick a mule, even though you may have attained the age when it is legal to put your mind to it.

At that moment I was elbowed off the stage by someone who struck a chord, putting the kids to singing the Star Spangled Banner.

Good writers are seldom good speakers. I heard that many years ago and I still believe what I heard many years ago.

ARE YOU GIVING YOUR MONEY AWAY?

If you don't have an interest-earning checking account, like the kind you'll find at First Federal of Michigan, you're probably giving money away. Just handing it over to your bank—in the form of lost interest and monthly service charges.

A First Federal of Michigan interest-earning checking account actually pays you interest on the money in your account right up until the day the check you write comes back to First Federal. And every day until it does, you get 5% percent annual interest on your money compounded and paid monthly. To our average customer last year, that amounted to almost $70.

And if you maintain a minimum balance of only $300, you can do away with monthly service charges on your account. (If your present checking account doesn't have this no-charge feature, you know how much those monthly fees can add up to.)

Why, we even start you off with the first 50 checks imprinted with your name and address absolutely free.

So why settle for giving your money away when you can make money with a First Federal of Michigan interest-earning checking account.

WIN A FREE GIFT. OPEN YOUR ACCOUNT DURING OUR CHECKING ACCOUNT PROMOTION. Win 50 extra personalized checks, LCD clock pen or other free gifts. Details at all First Federal offices.

The Resolution passed and at this time John Buick, a representative of the Pine Lake Group officially presented a Warranty Deed for the 62 acres of land to Mayor Fitzpatrick to initiate the land transaction that will help bring LexaMar to Boyne City.

Boyne Falls to drop student insurance

Students in Boyne Falls will not have an insurance program purchased for them by the Boyne Falls school system when they return to school next week. The board decided to let the policy lapse after they determined that the cost of the program would be higher per pupil and have a $50 deductible for each time it is used.

The policy, from Mutual of Omaha, was a mandatory policy that the school board purchased for every student. Additional coverage could be purchased by the families themselves.

In making the decision, the board decided that most of the families have insurance coverage and that only two percent of the students would need the additional coverage, not enough to warrant the cost of providing it.

The board also raised the school lunch cost after seeing the lunch program run in the red for the last few years. New lunch costs will be 85 cents for the elementary students and 90 cents for the high school students. Adult prices will be $1.50. The lunch program has been subsidized by money from the general fund to bring it out of the red and the board agreed that raising the prices will help rectify the problem.

They also agreed to let the school try, on an experimental basis, a salad bar so that the students could have more variety and choice in menu selection, and agreed to let parents and senior citizens participate in the lunch program, if they would call the school before 10 a.m. each day that they plan to eat lunch with the students.

In other action the board approved the hiring of a half-time librarian, Diana Brown, and a half-time business teacher Douglas Doorn. Doorn was also named to be the JV girls' basketball coach as well as the varsity boys' basketball coach. Bill Aten was named to be the freshman class advisor.

Bid awards went to Detroit Pure Milk Company for the school milk program, Interstate Baking for bread, and Woodland Oil for gas.

The board also passed a resolution concerning the graduation requirements that will help the system get more state aid. While the district is out of formula, the new resolution will allow them to have a higher recapture figure in order to get more money back from the state.

The board also agreed to use the Charlevoix County Transit system to help carry home some of the kindergartners who live on the west side of U.S. 131. The use of the county buses will save about 20 minutes of bus time for the students in good weather and as much as 45 minutes in bad weather, according to Bob Redmond, the school superintendent. He told the board that those students would have to ride a school bus for more than an hour in order to get home and the transit system would be quicker and possibly cheaper for the school system.

Redmond also told the board that adult education classes from Boyne City may be offered at Boyne Falls if numbers of interested people signing up for classes are large enough to provide a program. Mike Wallace, the school principal was told of the possible program expansion Monday and will be looking further into the program. The program would cause the school system to join with Boyne City and several other schools in northern Michigan and make the program feasible for the school.

Twenty seven East Jordan youngsters participated in the Public Library's Summer Reading Program. The children ranged in age from 4 through 12. All of these youngsters compiled a staggering amount of books—a total of 436. Individual children read from 2 to 81 books, depending on age and interest.

All 27 readers gathered at the East Jordan Public Library in August for a party in celebration of their six weeks of reading. They were entertained by Barb Alger, children's librarian, with cartoons, games and contests with prizes (would you believe books!). Each child also received a "goody package" courtesy of the library.

Children who participated in the program were: Jenny Newmann, Sean Russell, Brian Mickey, Amy Mickey, Julie Mickey, Ken Mickey, Aron Renkiewicz, Sara Renkiewicz, Alan Rossler, Ryan Rossler, Jennifer Dunson, Kevin Dun-son, David Dunson, Rachel Norton, Emmy Ransom, Callie Ransom, Gregory Taylor, Kayla Fannell, Monique Simmons, Darcie Dietrich, Matt Dietrich, Kellie Barber, Christie Barber, Chris Weidlich, Robbie Weidlich, Jenny Witten and Matt Witten.

EJ may finally get marina grant

After 20 years of planning, the East Jordan city marina may at last become a reality.

The city has been nominated to receive funding for the project through the Michigan State Waterways Commission.

If funding is authorized, the city will receive a matching grant for half of the $1.2 million needed for the project.

Public Works Superintendent Mike Dionne said he is "fairly confident" that the city will receive grant monies.

"We are very definitely in the running," Dionne said. "If history holds true, once you are nominated, there is a fairly good chance you'll receive funding."

Dionne added that this is as close to getting state funding for the long-awaited project that any city council has come.

He said the participation of the Waterways Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in the planning process helped the city obtain a favorable ranking from the commission.

State funding for the plan, which calls for a 720 feet long main viewing/fishing pier starting at Memorial Park and running parallel to the Jordan River current, would not be authorized until after state budget appropriations are made next summer.

The additional funds needed to complete the marina project could be obtained through a bond issue. City council has retained a bonding law firm to handle the details.

The project also calls for a boat landing, docks, a wave attenuator and service facilities.

Dionne said the marina would be a "good shot in the arm" for the area and a good revenue source for the city.

Enthusiasm for learning sets first time students on way

BY LESLIE DAILEY

Enthusiasm for learning is one of the greatest influences a parent can have on a child to help the child have a successful school year. Remarks such as, "how exciting in two weeks you'll start a new year, learning new things and making new things" conveys to the child that, yes, school is exciting and he or she will be glad to be participating.

It is so important for the child to have the parents support and encouragement for a successful year.

Brushing off the cobwebs and indulging in basic review over last year's text books or flash cards can give the child the extra boost that will make the start even easier. And discussing what will be learned over the next year adds to the excitement.

What about a study area? Whether they are in the second grade or the seventh, a space may need to be cleared away in their room for homework. Or maybe some other area can be used. But now is the time to decide when their study time will be. Some children need to have play time right after school and would prefer to study after dinner, while others want to do their homework right after they get home. But planning ahead is much better than waiting until the semester has already begun.

Elementary School Counselor, Jan Biddick suggested that parents could write a little introductory note to the teacher just saying "Hi, I'm so and so" and let the teacher know who you are and that you're interested in being kept informed on behavior and parent is interested, and want to get feedback from parents.

Notes sent to the teacher thanking her for doing the neat section on dinosaurs that their child was so excited about is just as important as the notes the child brings to the parent telling how well their child is doing in class. Teachers need reinforcement as well. And the child will really benefit from this type of communication as he gets the subtle message that this is important and exciting.

In recent fact finding in schools, researchers have found that how well children do in school correlates closely with their esteem. Esteem is the number one factor in helping a child have a good school career. If a child sees himself as capable, he'll do much better," says Biddick. No longer is I.Q. the factor on which educational success is based, but "I CAN!"

Wanting everyone to have a good year, Biddick is more than willing to talk to parents if they have any concerns.
