East Jordan approves hiring computer consultant

BY VICKI NAEGELE

East Jordan City Council took another step toward computerizing the city offices with the hiring of a computer consultant to analyze the city's computer needs.

After a presentation by John Dorsey, a representative of Plante-Moran Consulting Service, council approved the estimated $4,000 study to be conducted by the Southfield-based CPA and consulting firm.

Dorsey said that his company will analyze the city's computer requirements, assist the city in putting together a contract, and oversee the implementation of the computer system chosen by the city.

Because it will be several weeks before the study can be completed, Mayor Pat Sweet suggested that the computer system could be purchased during the next fiscal year.

"If we were to initiate a study and get the information needed, we could delay paying for the system until the next budget year," she said.

Sweet also added that it is important for the city to act on the computerization proposal.

"I think we agreed that we can't afford to let this issue lie too long," she said.

Council also addressed East Jordan Library's proposal to become a district library. Mayor Sweet addressed three segments of the proposal that she and City Attorney Scott Beatty had questions on.

Sweet suggested that council request that the library add to its article concerning contributions that the level of contributions from the city would be set by the city council. There was also a question as to how long the city would fund the library waiting for a library millage to be approved.

She also noted that the proposal called for three representatives appointed by the city council and four representatives chosen by the school board. According to Beatty, legal statutes governing district libraries provides for equal representation of the municipalities. The school board is considered a municipality, as well as the city.

"I think it's an area where there wouldn't be any hardships in amending it," Sweet said.

The other issue of the proposal brought to the council's attention by Sweet was the article calling for library employees to remain under the city's fringe benefits—including insurance policies.

Sweet suggested that it might benefit the library employees to join a group of other district library employees or the school district's insurance program.

Public Works Superintendent Mike Dionne said it might be to the city's advantage to keep the library employees under their policy since policies are based on numbers and the city is on the borderline.

In his superintendent's report, Dionne reported that new construction on M-66 should be decided very shortly as to when and where the project will be started.

Cost quotations on new signs for the Tourist Park were considered, with the issue referred to the recreation and ways and means committees.

"This is your front door, so to speak," Sweet said. "You want it to be impressive."

Dionne also reported on the progress of the city's emergency preparedness program, noting that a fixed generator has been installed behind the fire barn and other generators are being repaired and updated.

Mayor Sweet added in her report that the city received a letter from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission asking if the city had any legal objections to a take-out liquor license being granted to Glen's Market.

Although some of the council questioned the need for another liquor outlet in the city, other council members said the council could not protect one business over another, adding that the Commission was not asking for approval, but whether the license would violate any city ordinances.

"They are asking for our objections, not our approval," Councilman Cliff Gibbard said.

Sweet also drew council's attention to the town meeting on the harbor project held Monday night, adding that she had sent out informational letters and posted notices to encourage good attendance.

"We are going to try to get this issue out to the public," she said. "If they have opinions, suggestions or questions, they can air them then."

In other action, council turned down an offer made by an Elm Pointe property owner to purchase a strip of land owned by the city, passed a resolution reaffirming a 1966 council action vacating an alley between Bowen and Maple streets, and passed a motion to pay for the use of the civic center for the harbor project meeting.

Mayor Sweet also appointed Vern Stark as official historian for the harbor project, calling it a "worthwhile cause" after a suggestion to document the changes in the harbor was made by Stark.

Residents of East Jordan look over the model of the project looks like it will be approved and ready for proposed marina basin in downtown East Jordan. The construction shortly after the approval is given.

News Briefs

Because of the Labor Day holiday falling on Monday we have moved the deadlines for classified ads, news and advertising to Friday at 5 p.m.

Students going to the Boyne City Middle School should plan on arriving at school next Tuesday no earlier than 8:05 a.m. September 3rd, not 9:05 as stated in the Boyne City Public School Newsletter.

There is still no word on who the mother is of the abandoned baby that was found in a parked car behind the John Buick Real Estate office. The baby was left in the car last Thursday afternoon. Doctors figure that the baby was one day old when it was found and checked over at the hospital by pediatricians. The baby, whose sex was not announced, is in the care of the County Department of Social Services. Boyne City police are still investigating the matter and hope to solve it.

While the rumors are rampant the Carter Food Store chain will be taking over the Country Star stores, at this time, the rumors are not true, according to Carter's officials. They will admit that they are looking at the operation as they look at all store closing operations in the state as part of their corporate policy.

Boyne City will again be filled with bicycles this coming weekend as the annual Dalmac bike tour comes through the town. Over 1000 cyclists are taking part with most coming this way as they work towards completing a 100 mile ride during the day. The tour starts in Lansing and ends up in St. Ignace after the cyclists cross the Mackinac Bridge on Labor Day.

Boyne may not need transfer station

Boyne City may not have a transfer station after all, as the members of the City Commission heard about a prebid meeting the city officials had with prospective bidders concerning the building and the maintaining of a transfer station.

City Manager Randy Frykberg told the commissioners at the Tuesday noon meeting that many of the bidders had asked why the city needs a transfer station, when commercial operators could handle the entire refuse problem.

Commissioner Steve Moody agreed with some of the findings of the prebid meeting and asked the other commissioners if the city should go to having commercial haulers handle the refuse of the city.

He said that even if the city had a transfer site, the city would still need to have it manned when it was open. "It might be better to not have anything as we should get entirely out of the refuse business."

Frykberg suggested that some of the bidders may want to offer their services to the city.

He also suggested the private sector could provide a transfer site for those who don't want to hire a commercial operator.

This led to another question the commissioners face of whether or not to license commercial operators at all. Frykberg said that the city will be doing some investigation as to the wording of an old ordinance that limits haulers serving the city to four, with the city attorney to find out what might happen if the city gets out of the landfill business.

The problems of where to find a place for the refuse would be left up to the commercial haulers if the city does stop using the city landfill.

Wells tainted in Landfill

Contaminates have been found in a test well at the Boyne City landfill in Evangeline Township.

Tests show detectable levels of organic contaminants in water taken from test well number three in July that are believed to originate from cleaning solvents, according to Kay Brower, environmental enforcement specialist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' Environmental Enforcement division.

Although further testing will be conducted after more test results are available for analysis, Brower said that the preliminary tests show the same contaminants found in earlier samples and confirms information obtained in the spring, considered inconclusive at that time.

"We'll know better what the whole picture is after the analysis," she said. "There are more parameters that have been tested on which the results aren't back yet." Brower said that more results should be available in the next two weeks.

She added that the contaminants found—dichloroethanes, trichloroethane and toluene are not

Marina in East Jordan draws positive comments

"Go for it! Do it!" was the enthusiastic response from the East Jordan residents attending the town meeting Monday night to the proposed harbor project.

Although all those in attendance were not in favor of the project, the overwhelming majority of those present supported city council's proposal to begin the harbor project, funded by the issue of revenue bonds that would mean a two mill increase in summer taxes.

Mayor Pat Sweet, who began the meeting by telling the audience that she and the other city officials were there to try to present the facts about the project as honestly and forthright as possible, asked the citizens of East Jordan to invest in their community.

"I feel strongly that this harbor project can really help our community to turn around," she said. "I believe in it strongly."

According to Sweet, the prospect of state funding covering half the cost of the project makes the time ripe for the start of the long-awaited harbor.

At a meeting of the Michigan State Waterways Commission last week, representatives from the city presented their plans for the boating and fishing harbor/marina facility and received a favorable response.

Sweet said that city officials were given a 90 percent chance of receiving a matching grant before their presentation and felt their position may have improved after the meeting, although they have had no official notification of status from the commission.

Commission funds are determined in part by the availability of federal monies, so final determination will not be made until next summer, with any project funds to East Jordan allocated in October 1986.

Vern Stark said that it is important for the city to initiate the project soon because the permits are in hand and new ones are becoming nearly impossible to obtain. He also noted that the money is being offered by the Waterways Commission now and it may never be offered again.

"If we choose not to participate this time, chances are that Waterways will not consider us again in the near future," concurred Sweet.

City Attorney Scott Beatty explained that a building authority will be formed under the statutes of PA 31 of 1948 as amended, whose duty it will be to issue self-liquidating bonds on behalf of the city to provide the funds needed to match the state grant.

This building authority will build the docks that will in turn be leased by the city. At the end of the lease period, the building authority will convey the project back to the city.

The total cost for the project is expected to be $1,272,000, with the city's share amounting to $636,000.

According to Sweet, if the city is able to rent the 60-70 proposed boat slips, the harbor could become self-supporting and the millage could be retired in five years.

Superintendent of Public Works Mike Dionne said that if 60 slips are rented at $600 each, that revenue, added to additional income from fuel and other sources, will exceed the amount of money raised by the two mills used to support the project.

He added that there is no guarantee that the slips will be filled, but the prevailing opinion at the meeting was that there is a definite need for another harbor facility on Lake Charlevoix.

"There will never be enough docking facilities," Stark said. He told his fellow residents that he had received many calls concerning docking facilities for boats of 28 feet, which cannot be accommodated by East Jordan's present harbor facilities.

"If we just take the leftovers that cannot dock in Charlevoix or Boyne City, we will fill our 61 slips," agreed Walt Thorsen, Harbor Commission member.

Mayor Sweet stressed that more than becoming self-supporting, the harbor project could bring needed revenue to the community.

She said that East Jordan has experienced a decline in recent years and new investment is needed to reverse that trend.

"We have to increase our tax base," she said. She added that the city has lost many visitors to neighboring towns because of the lack of adequate docking facilities.

"People want to come to town and they want to come by boat and they want to spend money," Sweet said. "The more people we get in this community, the more they are going to look at East Jordan. That's what this town needs, some growth."

"Something is going to turn this around and I think that something is going to be the harbor project."

Thorsen added that by conservative estimates average figures are that $100 is spent per boat per day. This extra demand will create more jobs, he suggested.

"We need something to jar this community loose," he said. "We either help East Jordan grow or let Main Street die on the vine like it has for the last 10 years."

A Boyne City summer resident told those present that he had come to the meeting as a potential investor in the community because of the harbor project. Tom Johnson said that he thinks the progress of communities such as Boyne City can be experienced by East Jordan with the construction of the harbor project.

"I say it could happen here, or I wouldn't be here," he said.

Some residents said improvements should be made in the community before the harbor project is completed.

"Give them something to look at when they come," suggested one resident. "Let's have another project to clean up the city and give them something to look at."

But Mayor Sweet asked the age-old question—"Which comes first, the chicken or the egg." She said that most of Boyne City's improvements came after a burst in sales.

"I do feel that once the influx of people happens, those businesses will want to improve."

Dionne said that a five-year-old study done by Michigan State University indicates that a 100 boat marina is expected to generate $582,299 in direct spending by clients storing their boats. Using that study as a basis, he estimates that the marina could mean $450,000 to East Jordan.

When asked to vote at the meeting for or against the proposed harbor project, only some four or five individuals indicated they opposed the project among the about 150 townspeople present.

BAR-B-QUES

To me, one appealing and interesting thing about a bar-be-que is the fact that the host who loves to preside over it wears a fun apron and many times the hostess wears one that matches his. Personally, I love aprons though I have not worn one for years. When my young grandchildren ask "what is that you are wearing" I decided that aprons were definitely not the mode. Now, I recall that my Mother always wore an apron and I picture her that way with love. I do not believe that it hurts any one to be a little loosely "tied to Mother's apron strings", which indicates a love of home and a symbol of family.

Enough of that. Now I have a couple of terrific recipes from Tim Manlon; he is a native of California, though here is his recipe for

TEXAS BAR-BE-QUE SAUCE

- 1 lb. ground beef, lean
- 1/2 medium onion, finely diced
- 2 cups tomato catsup
- 2 tablespoons horseradish
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- Splash (or more) white wine
- Peanut oil for browning meat.

Saute onions until translucent, add meat and cook slowly, mashing often to obtain as small a grain as possible. When meat appears to be done add other ingredients, stir well and simmer for about one hour.

The above recipe is considered a "loose" one in that the meat can be pre-seasoned with any number of things like cominos, chili powder, garlic, etc. Also, any meat can be bar-be-que'd with this sauce. The only secret is to cook the main course in the sauce about 10 minutes before you put it on the grill.

Here is Tim's recipe for BAR-BE-QUE'D PORK CHOPS
Loin cut pork chops 3/4 to 1 inch thick. Two per person
1 bottle "Catalina" brand salad dressing
Salt, pepper and garlic to taste

Season chops and marinate in salad dressing for at least 1 hour but not more than two. Place chops on grill (set as high as possible) over charcoal which has become evenly grey. These chops will be quite juicy and will tend to have the coals "flame" a lot if not watched closely. Turn and baste with dressing often. The chops should take about 45 minutes. To test they should be juicy but not pink. Do not let the outside appearance fool you. The sugar in the salad dressing will burn to a dark black color, it only adds to the taste and helps seal in the meat's natural juices.

Then there are those impromptu picnics when we want to travel to one of Northern Michigan's scenic places away from it all for a quickie. We take Bill's hibachi and grill hot dogs or hamburgers in no time flat. One day after a glorious picnic beyond Harbor Springs we forgot to repack the little grill when returning home and had to drive another 50 miles to retrieve it. That hibachi is priceless to us.

I like a little Worcestershire sauce poured over my hamburger before broiling; it has a very pleasant taste that I have acquired, and on such a picnic dill pickles and mustard are a must. Fancy foods can be left at home. We like those delicious fritters from our local bakery for dessert. I still like baked beans and potato salad for this kind of picnic though if it is just on the spur of the moment outing just heat up a can of pork and beans. Don't forget to put the can opener in the basket with the paper plates and cups.

East Jordan Baptist Church had Daily Vacation Bible School Aug. 19 through Aug. 23. A group of young people from First Baptist Church of Rochester, MI, came up and had a puppet show of Bible stories and songs and games. There was about 35 that attended church on Monday. The group went to Mackinac Island Thursday and left for home on Friday.

Mrs. Pat Smith and daughter Michelle of Mt. Morris came Aug. 23 to visit her parents, Jan and Ernie Walden and returned home on Aug. 25.

Two hundred and fifty people attended the wedding of Connie Prevo and Don Massey at the Full Gospel Truth Church. Rev. McWalter officiated and Rev. Harley Barber gave a blessing prayer.

Battiste draws right ticket, wins $100,000

Call it a case of beginner's luck. The first Michigan Lottery instant game ticket local resident William P. Battiste, Jr., 45, ever purchased was a "Free Ticket" winner. That was in the current instant game, "Michigan Summer," on sale through September 10. With that "Free Ticket," Battiste got another ticket which won one of twelve $100,000 lump sum prizes offered in the game.

"I didn't believe it," he said, added that he was "so shocked, he had to hang onto the walls" at the Par-T-Pak store in Boyne City where he got both tickets.

An attorney, Battiste and his wife, Jacqueline, have not yet made plans for his Lottery winnings. In addition to the $100,000 lump sum prizes, other instant cash prizes include $2, $5, $10, $50 and $100 won when three like amounts are found among six hidden on each ticket.

"Players have told us that they like to find frequent winners. Odds in 'Michigan Summer' are better than one in four that any ticket will award a prize ranging from a "Free Ticket" to $100,000," said Lottery Commissioner Michael J. Carr.

Net revenues from 'Michigan Summer,' and all Lottery games, are earmarked for the State School Aid Fund to help support K-12 education. The Lottery contribution in the current fiscal year is expected to total $318 million, the equivalent of nearly $100 in direct taxes per Michigan household.

Max Gibbard attends forum

The institute was designed for gifted students and combines ensemble and theory work with programming and musical applications of computers. Participating students were selected by intermediate school districts and nominated to the State Department of Education, which oversees the institute.

Participating student was Max Gibbard of East Jordan who is a student at East Jordan High School. His activities have included being a member of the school Student Leadership Forum. He is also a member of the honor roll. He hopes to attend college and study in medical therapy. Gibbard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Longton.

To cut down on traffic mishaps involving school buses, AAA Michigan advises motorists and student pedestrians to follow certain safeguards. Michigan law requires motorists in both directions to halt 10 feet on either side of a stopped school bus displaying flashing red lights. Students should always cross at least six feet in front of the bus in clear view of the bus driver and be alert for all traffic. Seven persons died in accidents involving school buses during the 1984-85 school year. AAA and the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation are co-sponsoring a series of statewide traffic safety education programs on school bus safety.

Bus program started to cut deaths

To reduce accidents and fatalities involving school buses, AAA Michigan is holding a series of statewide traffic safety education programs as part of its 1985 "School's Open-Drive Carefully" campaign.

"Most deaths and injuries involving school buses occur after students leave the bus and are struck by a passing vehicle or by the bus," stated Robert Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager.

Youngsters should be cautioned that cars do not always stop for the buses' flashing red lights and they should check traffic carefully before crossing the street. Youngsters should be advised by parents to cross at least six feet in front of the bus and never walk behind the bus or near the wheels so they can be seen by the bus driver at all times.

East Jordan Garden Club holds annual show

The East Jordan Garden Club held its Annual Flower Show on August 19th at the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Hugh Gidley literally took the show by storm, a storm of beautiful flowers, earning her six blue ribbons and a handful of other ribbons. There were approximately a hundred arrangements in different categories presented by sixteen members of the club, all avid gardeners. Bernadine Grieg, Thelma McKinnon, Cyg Riley, Peggy Midener, Jan Bircklebow, Gladys Sattler, Jane Bowen and Betty Yenni were also first place winners.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Well, I for one am glad to see that some of our legislators are doing something nice for the north country, especially those of us who are dealing with the tourist population.

What is being done, while it is a small thing, may help extend our tourist season at least until Labor Day. While that is not necessarily news to most of us, we have been experiencing a phenomenon within the last few years that is making the tourist season shorter, as parents are shortening up their vacations by a couple of weeks.

That shortening is caused by schools starting the school year before Labor Day.

And that is what the legislators are proposing to stop. They have a bill in committee that would require the school systems to start school some time after Labor Day, not before as is being done more frequently these days.

The starting before Labor Day wasn't an issue, 20 years ago. But as school systems started setting the opening day, the bargaining units that the schools have to work with, saw that as a negotiable item. The teachers and other collective bargaining units wanted to get out of school earlier, I would imagine, so they could go onto other well paying jobs for the summer time.

Well, if House Bill 4461 passes, then the schools would not be able to negotiate the starting of the schools before the Labor Day weekend. Anything after would be all right, and that in itself would make a few kids happy.

After all, who really wants to go back to work after a vacation? Especially one that is about three months long?

Of course, the bill has the support of many members of the tourist industry, who see it as a way to keep the tourist dollars flowing a little longer.

If we could also get the legislature to also open up the winter time as a vacation idea, and the fall color season, and the mushroom season, some of the businesses in the area might be able to make a few dollars more. And as everyone knows a few dollars here equal a few dollars there and we all benefit.

So send a letter to Representative Tom Alley, care of the State House of Representatives in Lansing, and urge him to get that bill out of committee and onto the floor for a favorable vote.

Rainy days are good for crops and flowers and trees and all the stuff that has roots. Things that don't have roots, like people, are seldom improved by rain. In fact, after a string of rainy days, some of us go downhill and take to holding conversations with soggy sneakers.

But this dismal state of affairs can be avoided if we have sense enough to skip out on the rain—leave home and go to a place where we can forget it.

And there's no better place for hiding from the rain than at K Mart. On days when even the lake and the hills seem oppressed by the weather, the fluorescent brightness in this modern emporium is a haven. Even if we don't need a thing the store has to offer, the atmosphere is a tonic. And we can always find something we need that we didn't know we needed, like blue plastic hangers. At ten for $1.47, we can hardly afford not to need them.

At K Mart, there are always things on sale, including trash bags. We might as well pick up a package. Since our trash seems to flow in a steady stream, we can never have too many bags to surround it.

Then there are shelves full of backpacks. The choices boggle our rain-weakened minds and we move on. But romance novels in the book department are another thing altogether. We quickly pick up a couple for the rainy day when the car won't start and we have to do our escaping from the rain at home.

Products for cleaning our ovens, our dogs and our teeth greet us. We pass them up on the grounds that they require too much vigor. We move on to the tube sox display. Tube sox have been a continuous sale item at K Mart since it opened. The picture comes to mind of some zealous plant manager striding up and down the factory floor exhorting workers to turn out even more tube sox.

Either tube sox are not as popular as the manufacturer chooses to believe or the number of feet in the world that can use sox has been over-estimated. So they are discouraged in an effort to get rid of the surplus. Perhaps the factory ought to re-tool and start turning out mittens. There doesn't seem to be any surplus of mittens, at least in Michigan.

The tube sox don't tempt us, but they do remind us that our feet are tired. And that's not all. The fluorescent lighting and miles upon miles of things have fatigued our eyes and minds as well. It's time to go home.

A trip to K Mart is not as good for our spirits as the rain is for the health of rooted things, but it will suffice as a temporary diversion. And the more impressionable of us carry K Mart in our minds for days. So we dream of elm trees festooned with backpacks and maples with their roots dressed in tube sox.

For the record...

Editor,

For the record, East Jordan was the first city in Charlevoix County to establish a museum. After many years of effort, interested volunteers were able to see it established on Elm Pointe Estate, on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix in 1976, the Bi-Centennial year.

The museum is open daily in July and August from 1 to 4 p.m. and weekends in June, Sept. and Oct. through the color season. There is no admission charge.

Perhaps a group of historic minded Boyne City folks like Battiste might like to visit the museum and see how we have preserved Jordan Valley area artifacts?

I'm sure our dedicated volunteers would welcome them.

They would also see the collection of the Annual Portside Arts Fair purchase prize award winners of paintings and crafts. These make our East Jordan facility the only Historical and Art Museum north of Grand Rapids.

The city-owned Elm Pointe Estate was a gift to the people of East Jordan from former summer residents Dr. and Mrs. George Westgate "on the basis that all said property shall be used and devoted exclusively for public purposes."

Many residents and the members of the Portside Art and Historical Society, the Portside Arts Fair Committee and Friends of Elm Pointe (all unpaid, dedicated volunteer citizens who reside within and without the city limits) realize the cultural and educational possibilities of our Elm Pointe inheritance, as well as the recreational.

These groups also encourage everyone in the area to join them in protecting and enhancing the facilities.

You'll notice the efforts of the East Jordan Garden Club this year...the next time you visit Elm Pointe for a family picnic or a museum visit.

Battiste's plea on behalf of a Boyne City Historical Museum facility is a good one. Don't give up. It took us many years of work and faith to realize ours!

Remembrances

The Fryant took daily trips from East Jordan to Harbor Springs back in the old days. This picture shows the boat going down the channel in Charlevoix before heading out into the big lake for the cruise to Harbor Springs. The boat was one of many that provided passenger service throughout the towns of the north as the road system was not yet completed.

Monday is Labor Day.

I went to the dictionary to see what the day meant and this is what it said:

In most states of the United States, the first Monday of September is set aside as a legal holiday in honor of labor.

Then I looked into another book and found the meaning of labor. It said that it is what a person does until he can find something better to do. (Amen!)

Still fussing around with labor, I found one source that insisted that a person must work so that he will not generate into sloth and luxury nor wade in where angels hold back. (We all know people who are not angels but who hold back when work is set before them. I never held back. But there were times when I laid myself down beside it and dozed off.)

Another source said that a man works and gathers in proper goods until he reaches the day when he doesn't have to do that sort of thing any more. (Whoopie, plus Amen!)

It says here that some people work with their heads, others work with their hands; some work with both hands and heads while a dinky size group does not work with anything but their mouths, calling upon Uncle Sam to come wipe their nose.

This has no reference to those who worked hard and long earning the pittance now doled out by a cranky government. It does, however, refer to those who lay down during their productive years and call upon one of our many agencies to spoon feed them.

Personally, I do not let the Devil furnish work for my idle hands, nor do I sneak in where angels hold back. But I do have a formula for honest loafing. It's legal and up to snuff.

Actually it wasn't until an epidemic of common sense broke out in the hindmost quarter of Wilson Township that I became happily infected with an intellectual virus resulting in my not working at all. In order to keep the farce alive, I always get up early to get a good start. (I have secretly set Monday aside to honor it.)

Oh, darn. I have a wild, passionate grief over the loss of how to finish this subject with the whirl of a high toned quotable sentence. I could swear, but I won't. This is a family newspaper.

Phooey. I'll just spit out three dashes, two hyphens and an asterisk. That ought to do it.

Heavens, what a queer sense of relief comes to me when I can wiggle out of something I shouldn't have started in the first place.

Lipizzaners visit Boyne

Edith Beck, city treasurer of Boyne City, renews some memories of the Lipizzan stallions that she saw being saved when she was a child in Austria. With her is Col. Ottomar Herrmann, who is the owner of the Lipizzan stallions that visited Boyne City last week.

Members of the Herrmann family and others working with the stallions presented half of the 18 horses in the finale of the show with the horses parading back and forth across the arena set up in the Veterans Memorial Park.

While the rains poured down, the stallions were kept dry inside a tent stable that was set up for them. The Sunday showings were rained out and the troupe stayed over to perform a show on Monday.

Busy Bridge Antiques offers 'something old'

BY LESLIE DAILEY
Remnants of years past that look pretty, are still serviceable, and of good quality are displayed at the Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan next to Hite Drugs on Main Street.

Carrying a general line of antiques and collectables, the store is also focusing on a line of antique related gifts.

"Handmade crafts, Gorham and other quality items will hopefully make people think of us when they want to buy wedding or birthday presents", says owner and operator Linda Snyder.

Linda and her husband Bob Snyder have stocked their store with fiesta dishes, glassware, furniture, dolls, quilts, baskets, and a general variety of quality items. Collecting for the past fifteen years, they have a knowledgeable background of antiques and collectables, and maintain contact with the reputable dealers in the area. They will research an item if a customer requests an unavailable item. Until the item becomes available to them the Snyders will keep a name on file and contact that person when they find the item.

Another service they offer is appraising. And as a sideline hobby they restore furniture and sell it. If you are refinishing a piece and want hardware for it, Busy Bridge Antiques may be just the place to go. Reproduction pulls, latches, hooks, keyholes, knobs and other hardware is found there.

When asked what appears to be the up and coming thing on the antique market, Snyder replied "American dinnerware from the forties is on the increase. And art decor is becoming very popular in the larger cities." In Snyder's store you will see a constantly increasing supply of old toys and children's items.

On your next journey through the East Jordan area pay them a visit. You'll be surprised at the variety of quality and nice looking items. Their hours are 10-5 except Sunday, year around. Their business partners, Sharon and Bill Jackson, are presently maintaining the Charlevoix branch of Busy Bridge during the summer season. It is located 10 miles south of Charlevoix off US 131 on Richardson Rd.

New tanning salon helps keep summer

BY LESLIE DAILEY
Love the sun but burn too easily?

Like to stay tan whatever the time of year?

When you enter the new tanning booth at Hair Unlimited you can stay exposed to the UVA rays for up to 10 minutes and draw a beautiful tan. For those who just can't tan, but burn instead, a slow start works well, three to five minutes a day for a few days to get a solid start and after that, gradual exposure to the sun should bring out a nice tan without the burning and blistering normally experienced.

Karen Habasco, owner and operator of the new addition to her building in Boyne City, said the unit is mostly for pretanning to prepare for extensive exposure to the sun. "Anyone going to spend a vacation in Florida or any real sunny location in the middle of winter will want to pre-tan so that they don't burn the first time they get out in the sun and end up having a miserable time on their vacation."

She also mentioned that skiers going out on the slopes may want to pre-tan to prepare their skin for some harsh exposure. And then there are those special occasions such as weddings where you just might want to add a little color to your complexion. Twice a week in the booth is all you need in order to maintain a tan, year around.

The tanning booth is a closed module type. You stand up in it while your favorite radio station is playing music through the overhead speaker. The cross ventilation style of the booth keeps it at a temperature that is 7 degrees warmer than room temperature. The pair of goggles supplied to you is essential equipment to wear. Frequency of use is up to your own personal discretion.

Introductory prices are now available for the use of the booth. You may walk in or call ahead of time from 9 to 5, or reserve a time for the evening. A reduced rate is being offered to those who also have a hair appointment with one of the excellent hair designers who work at Hair Unlimited

East Jordan boards agree on library guidelines

BY VICKI NAEGELE

Representatives from East Jordan's library, city council and school board tentatively agreed on guidelines that could lead to the formation of Jordan Valley District Library.

In a meeting last week, details were worked out concerning library funding prior to a favorable millage vote, number of representatives to serve on the board from each municipality and status of library employees.

Chief librarian Mickey Hamerski reviewed the proposed agreement, which is very similar to one adopted by the Traverse City District Library, and asked those in attendance what changes they would like made.

"This is for everybody's changes, input, whatever," she said.

Mayor Pat Sweet brought up three areas on behalf of the city council. First was the issue of funding to be provided to the library by the city until a millage is passed to support the library. Sweet asked that a clause be added to say funding will be "at a level set by the city council," and that was included in the agreement.

Sweet also questioned the unequal representation of district library board members to be appointed by the two municipalities—the city of East Jordan and the East Jordan school board—involved in the forming of the district library. The library agreement called for three representatives to be chosen by the city council, with four representatives appointed by the school board.

Hamerski said that the point had been considered and the unequal number was established to prevent a tie.

After a discussion as to what number of representatives would be best, agreement was reached that four would be chosen from each municipality.

"To have a quorum, I think we need the larger number," Hamerski said, noting that if more than eight were to serve, they would have to be elected, rather than appointed.

Hamerski pointed out that the district library board will be solely responsible for the operation of the library once it attains district status.

Councilman Al Joseph added that the library board must be a completely new entity, not an assembly of school board and city council members.

"I think it will be to our advantage to have people outside—not on city council, not on the school board—to serve," agreed Hamerski.

Mayor Sweet also concurred, adding that the more people who are involved from the outlying areas, the more interest there will be in the library.

Sweet also brought up the issue of fringe benefits for library employees, suggesting that they might be covered better under another policy such as the school district's or a district library group.

But Hamerski said she and her fellow library employees will be content to stay under the city's policy.

"For 12 years I asked to be put on the city's insurance policy," she said. "When we finally get it, it's a shame to toss it out the window."

Hamerski said that she knows of no organization of district libraries for insurance purposes and most district librarians are covered under city policies.

"It's a shame that three people cannot make a group to bid on insurance," she said.

Sweet said that if the librarians choose to remain under the city's policy, it would not be a problem.

"I don't think this is a big stumbling block," she said. "I just thought it could be to your advantage to check things out."

According to the proposed agreement, the district library would pay all salaries, benefits and fringes for its employees, channeling them through the city for disbursement.

Also discussed was the need for a millage election to fund the proposed district library. Hamerski said they hope to request one mill, which is the maximum a district board can levy.

According to Hamerski, the ballot must be worded correctly to give the board the authority to levy the millage.

"I don't know how to do this, but this is what I've been told to do," she said.

Hamerski said that she has been told that the tax increase levied by one mill will be less than the price of one book for the average family.

Because the cost of a special election would be approximately $2,000, according to Tom Rossler, school superintendent, those in attendance concurred that the issue should be put on the ballot at the next school district election in June.

Hamerski questioned the mayor as to whether the city can fund the library until a June ballot.

"I think we can," Sweet answered. "We'll do our utmost. We always have."

When asked if there are any long range plans for the library, Hamerski said that they have two plans—whether to buy books or not buy books, to close or not to close.

"We don't know if we'll ever have money to be open from year to year," she said.

Hamerski noted that there has been a great deal of public misconception about the library's attempt to gain district status.

She said that people have asked her why the library wants to separate from the city and where the new building is to be built. The chief librarian said the proposed change is not a matter of choice.

"We are trying to become funded properly, fully funded to provide better services," she explained. "We do need a bigger building, but all we want is funding so we can stay open."

The city's funding of the library has dropped 35 percent, from $24,294 to $37,589. Other sources of revenue to the library, such as state aid have also declined.

The state constitution allows libraries to become district libraries. Authority-type libraries may establish a district-wide tax levy by a vote of the electorate in the library district. This millage is initiated by the district library board, not the governing bodies of the municipalities involved in the formation of the district library.

A non-authority-type library does not have direct access to the voters and must receive its funding from the municipalities or through a general millage.

Hamerski said that an authority-type district library is needed to help guarantee funding and allow the district library board to make the decisions as to how that money will be spent.

"I just want to see the library stay open," she said.

The choice of a name for the new library was one of the easier questions facing the group. Hamerski suggested either Jordan Valley Area District Library or East Jordan Area District Library, but said they could choose any name they wished.

But her first suggestion received the greatest support, dropping the word "area" to shorten the name.

"I think the townships would prefer Jordan Valley," said William T. Mathews of the Library Advisory Board. "It will be easier to sell to the townships."

Despite the confidence of those in attendance, Hamerski said she was still concerned about the public's willingness to support the library.

However, she received the support of those present, including Mayor Sweet who said the city council is willing to promote the library's efforts.

"Mickey, I think you'll be pleasantly surprised and it will all go very easily," Sweet said. "People are pretty loyal in a small community and I think they have long recognized the work the three of you have put in."

band, owns the Bowling center in East Jordan called the council "progressive."

"This is the first positive step I've seen in the eight years we have been here."

Donna Schmitt applauded the concept of controlled growth, noting that the project will mean a great many pluses for the community, including more shops.

But while some hailed the council's decision a positive step, others were more skeptical.

Long-time resident John Laisure questioned several aspects of the project, including the location. He asked if any other sites had been considered, such as the other side of the lake.

But the mayor said that the site chosen, adjacent to Memorial Park, was the site that has been considered since the inception of the harbor project plans and that the city does not own enough property on the other side of the lake to build the project there.

City Lawyer Beatty added that permits have been issued for the proposed site and with the increasing difficulty of obtaining marina permits, it might not be possible to get a permit for a different location. Dionne pointed out that the project will be built using the existing dock and other facilities in the proposed location.

Laisure's strongest objection was to the procedure used by the council to fund the project. He said it should be voted on by the people of East Jordan, rather than authorized by the city council through PA 37.

"The majority of the people have the right to vote on this project," he said. "That's why we are still Americans. The council should not have the right to make the decision."

According to the statute, the council's decision can be appealed by petition if signed by 10 percent of the registered voters.

Sweet said that the council chose the option to use the building authority, not to circumvent a referendum ballot issue, but to save time and expense. If a ballot proposal to approve the project was not prepared by the Sept. 10 deadline for the November election, the vote would have to wait until next year or a special election would have to be held, which would be an additional expense.

"We are not trying to step behind people's backs by using this vehicle for funding," she assured the residents. "I was hoping we had public support."

Another resident questioned whether the building authority's power would extend beyond the harbor project.

"Will we be creating some kind of monster?" he asked.

"It will be limited to one project," Beatty answered.

Residents also asked the timetable for the project and were told by Sweet that if everything went well, dredging would begin in early spring with the main fishing pier finished by summer and the docks constructed by the end of summer.

Dionne added that if the city undertakes the project without state funding, the construction would be done in phases and delays could add to the expense of the project. However, if grant monies are available, the project would be streamlined.

Sweet noted that if the city accepts grant money, the state will impose guidelines as to how the facility can be managed. Thorsen agreed, but suggested this shouldn't be a problem.

Local golfers enjoy last Country Star tourney

Saying that it has been a pleasure to work with the staff of the Country Star Markets, Ye Nyne Olde Holles owner Lee Stadt, watched over the last of the Country Star Tournaments.

The contest, which features area locals is one of the highlights of the summer golf season for most of the local players. The tournament has grown from 30 players to about 100 under the sponsorship of the Country Star Markets.

This year's contest showed again who can be called the best on the hill as Lon Kowalske took the actual with a score of 75. The Boyne City player has placed well in previous tournaments as well.

In the Championship Flight, which is based on handicap scores, Joe Schlink Sr., of Boyne City, took the first place with a 69. He was followed by Mike Cummings, Boyne City, Bob McKnight, East Lansing, and Corky Rock, Boyne City, in a three way tie for second place. Cummings was the 1984 club champion.

Third place in the Champ division was a four-way tie between Chuck Pollock, Boyne City, Dave Waldron, East Jordan, Lon Kowalske, and Mick Kane. They all shot a handicap of 72 for the 18 holes.

Winners in the first flight included Ron Agnello, Charlevoix, for the first place, with Doug Hildebrand, Boyne City, second place was also a tie between Jim Howell, Boyne City, and Duane Shay, Boyne City. Third was taken by Mark Case, Boyne City.

Second Flight winners included Fred Lehto, first with a 66, Chuck Jackson, Boyne City, and tied for third were Dick McDonald, Onaway, and Vern Schmidt.

Third Flight winners were Steve Moody and Jerry Fallot, both of Boyne City, for the first place, followed by Allen Joppich of Onaway in second, and Ron Knight of Charlevoix in third.

Fourth Flight winners were Ron Beatty of Onaway and Berry Coutts of Boyne City, for first, Tom Garlock, Boyne City, in second place, and Larry Youman in third.

Winners of the longest drives were Corky Rock on the fifth hole and Jim Bunting on the eighth fairway. They hit drives of 270 yards and 230 yards respectively. The closest to the pin contest on the third hole was taken by Bill Rowe, while Kevin Janosik took the prize on the sixth hole.

Auditions set for musical

Audition dates to select performers for "Alice in Wonderland", a one-act musical scheduled for several performances in November, have been announced by Charlevoix musical director, Fran Tollas.

The production, geared to ages from 10 years and up, is sponsored by church groups and local organizations in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs.

Casting for approximately 20 men, women and children will be supervised by director Judith Darn-ton and Mrs. Tollas of East Jordan.

All auditions will be held at the Charlevoix First Congregational Church located at the corner of Park Avenue and State Street. Audition dates are Monday, Sept. 30 from 3-5:30 p.m. for children only;

7:30-9:30 p.m. for both age groups.

Performers should come prepared to do a reading from the script and to sing a song of choice that illustrates vocal range. Scripts will be available to read in the reading section of the Congregational Church after Sept. 15.

The musical uses satire and classic allegorical characters

Elk hunt application deadline nears

Only a short time remains for Michigan residents, 14 years or older, to apply for an elk hunt license by the Sept. 1 deadline, says a spokesperson for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). This year, 120 licenses will be issued for the December 10-15 elk hunt season, as approved by the State Natural Resources Commission. The application fee for the elk license is $4; application forms may be obtained from licensed dealers, at all DNR Regional, District and some Field Offices and at the Department's Information Services Center in Lansing. Last season's elk hunters are not eligible for elk licenses in 1985.

For further information call Judith Darn-ton after 6 p.m. at 547-5662.

North MI AHEC project started

In October, 1984, a federal grant for $860,000 was awarded to Michigan State University for the purpose of developing incentives to attract and retain health care professionals and support expansion of health care education in medically underserved areas.

Now in its planning year, the Northern Michigan Area Health Education Center (AHEC) is preparing to contact communities in the target region (from Saginaw County north to Cheboygan County, and the tip of the "Thumb"), in order to establish health and medical education needs.

Recycle North will take your old oil, newspapers

At one time or another, most of us find ourselves wondering what to do with that gallon or so of used motor oil left over from a do-it-yourself oil change. And because most people don't know where to take their used oil, it winds up in the trash, down the storm sewer, or on that patch of weeds behind the garage, says Scott Blanchard, education director for Recycle North, a Petoskey based nonprofit recycling group.

The problem with that, says Blanchard, is that you may wind up swimming in it next time you jump into your favorite lake. Statistics show that of the 15.5 million gallons of used oil generated in Michigan each year, only 4.5 million gallons are recycled. "Most people are shocked to learn that used oil dumping by individuals is an even bigger source of oil pollution in the Great Lakes than offshore drilling or tanker spills," he adds. To help keep oil out services to students and practitioners in the medical fields and ultimately improve delivery of health care. Other educational institutions involved in this effort are: University of Michigan, Ferris State, Saginaw Valley State College, Western Michigan, Delta College, Central Michigan University, and the Veterans Administration AHEC.

Emphasis will be on improved quality of health care and education in Geriatrics, Urban/Rural/Migrant Clinics, Continuing Education for professionals and people in the community, Health Occupations Opportunities for disadvantaged high school students who desire a career in a health profession, as well as developing a networking system for medical libraries to enhance availability of resource materials to the medical community.

The center director for Northern Michigan AHEC is Ms. Kim E. Sibilsky. Ms. Sibilsky resides in Harrisville, and spends most of her working day traveling the length and breadth of northern Michigan. The office for the Northern Michigan AHEC is located in Saginaw at Saginaw Cooperative Hospitals, Inc., which is one of the off-campus sites for the College of Human Medicine of Michigan State University.

In order to assess the community's needs for improved delivery of health care and education, informational material will be sent to personnel in the area. If interested in providing information please call (517) 771-6879, or write to: Northern Michigan AHEC, 1000 Houghton St., Saginaw, Mich. 48602.

Sisters to run in Blue Zoo

Boyer City resident Patricia O'Malley and her sister Karen will team up in the Blue Zoo 10-K, a run for women only, at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 8 at the Detroit Zoo, sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan.

They run an average of 15-30 miles each week in preparation for the race. According to Karen, "Patricia and I started running together three years ago. We usually stick together during the race and catch up on each other's lives."

"I feel the Blue Zoo 10-K is a definitely more competitive race, particularly for the women in the front," explained Patricia. "I don't think that women like to admit to competitiveness, but get them out in this run and it's really fun to watch."
