Falls attacking cold problem systematically

It's cold in some of the classrooms in Boyne Falls even though the school administration is trying to figure out why.

The school board heard complaints about some of the rooms at the school after Superintendent Bob Redmond told them of the problem at last Monday night's school board meeting.

His comments were refuted by some of the students attending the meeting and a parent who said one of his children had blue hands in the school last week.

Redmond told the board the school is trying to figure out why the three rooms on the high school side of the building are not functioning the way the energy management program is supposed to be working.

"We are trying to figure it out systematically, doing one thing at a time, until we find the problem," Redmond told the board.

He said he thought it was a problem with the unit that controls the startup of the heating cycle. "We have a problem with the controls people," he added.

Among the many things tried so far were the changing of almost all of the clock unit that controls when the system starts up. Redmond said the coldest days are early in the week, after the unit shuts down for the weekend. Later in the week, the cold rooms don't seem to be much of a problem as the heat retained through out the night helps in the morning startup of the heating plant.

Redmond told the board he will be changing the startup times on the electronic clock that controls the heat, having the rooms get up to temperature by six a.m. instead of eight a.m.

In the meantime, he said the coldest room, the art room, temperatures got down to 54 degrees one day and the teacher was given the okay to use the kiln and an oven to help warm the room up.

Rooms in the school are supposed to have a temperature of 68 degrees during the school day. At night, the system allows the rooms to cool down to about 55 degrees.

Redmond also told the board that some rooms are too hot but he can't explain why. The sensing unit is installed in the art room for that part of the building.

Redmond did tell the school board the energy usage is about the same as it was last year. Electrical energy cost is running a little higher he said, and gas usage is costing about the same although the amount of gas used is less.

He said he is working on the problem of the cold rooms, but until it is figured out, they will be cold and the kilns will be turned on to help cure the problem temporarily.

When one of the students asked about the teachers keeping the doors open to the classrooms, Redmond told them the teachers have been informed many times the hall is being left unheated and they should close the doors.

In other action, the school board okayed a new grading system which will reflect better the grade point average the students earn. In the past, the system used a four point basis, with a A being four points, a B three points, C two points and D one point.

The new grading system will be based on a 11 point system which will allow students to get a higher grade point average for plusses, or a lower point average for minuses within the ABCD grade levels.

"It will alter the way the point averages are determined," Principal Mike Wallace told the board after the curriculum committee had agreed to ask the board for approval to change. "But, I don't think it will change the class rankings very much," he added. Board members Pat Griffith wondered if the change to the new system should be made in the middle of the school year while Bob Winhusen suggested the new system start with the freshman level. He also thought difficulty of classes should be considered.

Both were outvoted by the other members of the board and the new grading system will take effect immediately. Wallace told the board the teachers have been using the 11 point system for some time and are having to readjust them to fit the four point system at the end of the marking period.

The school has the 11 point grades for the past two years and will refigure out the grade point averages of all students.

In making the motion, board member Jim Churchill said the new GPA will truly reflect what the student has done in high school.

Redmond told the board the change will not mean much to those students who will be going on the colleges as the students officers look at more than just the grade point average of the student.

Along the same lines, the board then agreed not to include those student grades from classes taken at North Central Michigan College in the grade point averages. The school will continue to use the credit the student earns from classes he attended at NCMC.

January 29 will be the Cheese Day in Charlevoix County. Items this month include cheese, flour, butter, and rice. Food will be distributed at the Boyne City Community Services Center, the East Jordan Civic Center, and the V.F.W. Hall in Charlevoix. The surplus food program will start at 10 a.m. and continue until all the food is distributed or until 2 p.m. The Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency is coordinating the program.

To clarify last week's newspaper article about the Walloon Water System, the check given to the water system from the Strobels to the system was the original check that had been returned to the Strobels and was re-submitted for the "published rate" and accepted by the WWS before turning the water back on.

Eighteen petitions have been picked up from the County Clerk's office for those seeking a spot on the Evangeline Township Board. Jane Brannon, the county clerk, said that if all the petitions are returned, it looks like she will have to run a primary election because the names have to be filed under a party designation.

A new $4 million statewide job training program may help some of the unemployed with the area. The new Job Opportunity bank is gearing up to train people for the new high tech type of jobs coming into Michigan. Those interested in the retraining program are asked to contact their participating community college. To qualify, you must have been laid off because of a plant closing or technological change, and prove financial need.

Special election called for township

Word filtered down from the Michigan State Governor's office over the weekend that will hopefully resolve the question of who is going to fill the four vacant positions on the Evangeline Township Board.

The governor is calling for a special general election Tuesday, March 18. The voting will take place at the Township Hall located on Wildwood Harbor Road.

A special primary election will be held, if necessary Tuesday, February 25.

Nominating petitions for the offices of township clerk, treasurer and two trustees are available from the County Clerk and must be returned to her by 4:00 p.m. on January 27.

The County Clerk's office will be handling all arrangements for the special elections and is available to answer any questions residents of the township may have concerning the election.

Petitions approved in recall drive

Boyne City School District residents will have to go to the polls within 60 days of next Monday to decide whether to retain or to oust school board members Larry Monshor and John Mathers.

The County Clerk, Jane Brannon, said Tuesday morning that the recall drive committee had submitted enough names to force the election on both men.

Out of the 102 petitions turned into the county, Mathers had 697 names of which 632 were found to be certified electors. Monshor had 704 names signed on the petitions asking his recall of which 624 were found to be certified.

The next step in the process will be for the County Clerk to call a meeting of the Special Election Scheduling Committee next Monday to set the date for the election.

The election will have to be held within 60 days from that meeting.

The recall election will be the first time the two have had to face the electorate, as a earlier different petition drive last year had failed to attract enough signatures.

The election was caused by the resignation recently of four township officials who were in disagreement with the way the township was being run. The resignation was a protest against the way the supervisor, Bessie Van Dorn was running the township business.

Van Dorn said that the calling of the special election will help settle down the controversy within the township. She hopes that a lot of residents will be interested in the election and will be taking out petitions and forming groups to work towards good township government.

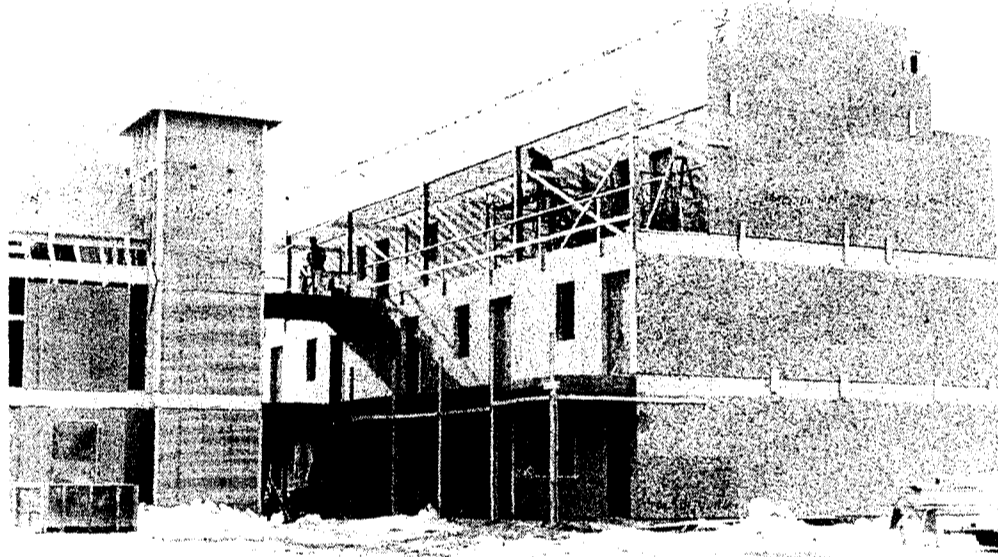

Election notices were posted throughout the township asking those interested in the election to get registered, if they are not registered already, over the weekend by members of the Sheriff's office. A registration notice is also being published in this week's Charlevoix County Press.

Monshor was not part of that drive as he had not served on the board long enough to qualify.

Both members will have a chance to explain their positions on the recall and why they should not be recalled as part of the election notices.

Members of the recall committee expressed satisfaction with the campaign so far and added, in a prepared statement, "The successful outcome of the petition drive affords an opportunity for the people of the Boyne City School District to review the performance of Mathers and Monshor during the last 18 months in office."

"During the next month, the electors can consider the issues which led to the petition drive and decide at the time of the recall election whether the board members should continue to serve. We hope that the election commission who is charged with the responsibility of setting the date of the election to recall will act promptly in order that the best interests of the electorate may be served."

Boyne City's winter building program continues at a fast pace with the building of Lexamar, the restoration of the Dilworth, and the Peninsula Beach Suites of the hotel/condominium project now under construction in the One Water Street complex.

Jordan weir still up in air after packed DNR meeting

After vast quantities of chinook salmon were planted in the Jordan River by the Department of Natural Resources, a monumental problem of controlling the annual salmon run has arisen, and the DNR is currently up in the air as how to solve the problem.

A great controversy accompanies the compounding problem as efforts to control snagging of the salmon have resulted in the closing of the Jordan to all fishing from Rogers Road Bridge, to the mouth of the river. This action has raised the dander of many local fishermen, both sportsfishermen and snaggers alike.

The closure of the river has been in effect for the seasons since 1984 from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31 when the DNR contracted TempoTech, a Hart, MI firm, to harvest the fish for market sale. The contract netted the DNR just $45,000 while the fishermen were put on hold at the Jordan River.

Harvest weirs are set up yearly on the river by TempoTech and prevent the fish from reaching the upper levels of the river where fishing is legal. This action is the most prominent stick in the anglers' craw, as they realize that the DNR expects them to fish where there are no fish.

Area civic leaders support the DNR for the most part, realizing that the yearly salmon plants provide income to the communities, as anglers from far and wide converge on the area to try their luck. With the huge influx of anglers on the river, the river banks become worn and erosion occurs, causing damage to public and private property. This is the basis for backing the DNR in an effort to control the fish and the anglers.

A special grant was received by the DNR from the Natural Rivers Zoning Board for three years for the placement of a weir, but some opposing factors in the controversy contend that the DNR did not use the proper channels in their quest for the grant.

The wild scenic portions of the river should not be disturbed, according to zoning board statutes, and weir opposers are using this as the foundation for their claim.

An approval by the Land Resource Programs Division would finalize the debate on the issue for three years if harvest weirs are approved. This meeting is yet to come.

Total opposition of the weir could result in the DNR discontinuing the salmon plantings, and would eliminate the salmon fishery in the area.

Water problem dissolved by demo

Boyne City Commissioners were told at the Tuesday noon meeting they had been awarded an additional $20,000 as part of the grant to be used for the extension of the runway and other improvements at the Boyne City Airport.

The grant was given by the Michigan Aeronautical Administration and includes a low interest loan of $34,000. The loan and the additional increase in the outright grant will bring the total project to $84,000.

The commissioners then heard City Manager Randy Frykberg explain that the water within the city was tested again, this time using the same type of precipitator Mary Churchill mentioned last week when she brought samples of her water to the commission meeting.

Frykberg showed 11 different samples of water taken from many places within the city including a new well, lined with plastic, the flowing spring well that many use for water in the Veterans Memorial Park, well head water from the new city well, water from the outflow of the waste water treatment plant, distilled water purchased from a local grocery store and a few others.

All were run through the precipitator.

All showed that when the ions of water are disturbed, iron, calcium, and other elements in the water are precipitated out and form a

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

It was a tough day, slogging through the slush and the snow checking ice depths and installing basements, but someone had to do it.

After all, hardly anyone even knows who the mayor of the city on ice is, after the phones went dead to the Boyne City Chamber office.

"This stuff has got to stop," the young man with me said. "I don't think I could install another sewer line. I just can't see why they don't run a beer tap from One Water Street or the Sportsman out here to service all these shanties."

"Back when I was a kid, they used to put pine trees out here so you could find out where to go in the middle of the night," he continued.

"The DNR sure knows how to mess up the works, making us put in these sewer lines and requiring all the underground utilities. The next thing they will tell us is that they want to see all the trash picked up daily."

"Oh stop your grouching and get on with the job at hand," I told him. "We have so much work to do and so little time to do it."

It seemed that it would take forever, and the real problem was that the owners of the shanties weren't bringing them out quick enough. A guy could freeze out here in the wind. They had better bring out a few more before I freeze solid just like the ice around here.

I was glad that I could jump into someones shanty to warm up a bit between hitting the next one on the list. Probably was a good thing they kept a good stock of Schnapps to keep us going.

"Look at it this way, at least we don't have to do this in the summer. The size of some of these things and the amount they weigh means they couldn't float if they were built of two inch foamcore."

Yeh, one of the unique things about this Smeltania City was the amount of different and crazy shanties. "Don't see something like this at Tip-up Town," some other wag yelled out over the cold.

Way out on the ice, I heard some guy shout he had a big one and he pulled like mad on his line. He was one of the few that didn't believe in shanties to keep out of the cold, and to make it worse, he wasn't fishing for smelt like all the other guys in the village. Looked like he pulled in a brown trout or something else. Might have been one of those Atlantic salmon that were planted years ago that got lost and couldn't find the mouth of the river.

I always wondered why no one caught any sturgeon either on the lake. Since they're bottom feeders and ninety percent of the guys fishing are letting their sinkers set on the bottom, I always figured that someone, someday is going to hook onto some ten foot critter and have to figure out a way to get him either off the hook or through the hole.

I could imagine him trying to hold onto the fishing line while trying to enlarge the hole big enough where he could drag that type of fish onto the ice. Heck, probably none of those fish would want to be around these parts. They must have better feeding somewhere else, like Mullett Lake.

"Well," I said, starting to talk like Reagan. "All we need is a few more shanties on the lake and it will start to look like it should. Maybe by the weekend..."

Remembrances

The voice of Smeltania. That was the name of Boyne City's "City on ice" radio station the first winter the Lake Charlevoix fishing town was established in the middle 1930's—some 50 years ago. The radio station was set up in a fish shanty by Wallace R. Earl, an early-day licensed amateur radio buff. "Wally," a 1935 BCHS graduate, delivered his short wave radio messages to the world between 11 and 12 a.m. each day describing current fishing conditions. This photo was published in the Detroit News when national newspapers and magazines were rushing to Boyne City to cover the brand new "Smeltania" story. [Photo submitted by Marshall Sayles.]

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

I'd never had more than a snickering relationship with home telephone answering machines. I thought they were silly and I refused to participate, except in an emergency. In that case, I'd leave an abbreviated message in a tight, disapproving voice.

And then we bought one. Actually, we didn't buy one; we bought three, one after the other. But we only have one now, which may still be one too many.

We decided to buy an answering machine when a family member on the East Coast became ill. We figured that the machine could catch any phone messages about her health that we would otherwise miss while we were out.

We did some comparison shopping on the machines. Cheap was what we wanted: a stripped down, basic model.

So we brought home our first answerer. We discovered as soon as we read the instructions that a pre-recorded message was part of the deal. The was no way we could record an outgoing message of our own. We weren't delighted, but we figured we could handle it.

We were less optimistic after we heard the tape. A gentleman, speaking in the clipped tones of one for whom the English language was not his native tongue, spoke formally of the fact that the telephone was being answered automatically. There was a singsong quality to his voice as he went on to say that the caller could leave a message if he wished.

Even though the recording sounded a bit odd, we went ahead and hooked up the machine. Might as well let the fellow have a go of it. And go he did, non-stop, as we discovered when the first call came in. He left no time for the caller to get a word in edgewise between rounds of his speech. We hustled the gentleman into his box and right back to the store.

We decided to pay more the second time around figuring we'd get a more reliable machine. We also decided that we weren't suited to pre-recorded messages, especially the kind taped by someone whose background didn't seem to bear the remotest resemblance to our own.

So, with high hopes and a lightened wallet, we brought home the second machine. It was handsome and had several bells and whistles. What it didn't have was the ability to record our outgoing message. We tried everything and so did the retailer.

So we got our money back and tried again. Since higher cost had not brought greater reliability, we backed off from the moderately priced models. We went for one in the "pretty cheap" range. This time, we set up the machine, recorded our message and it worked perfectly.

I have to say that there's an added advantage that I hadn't considered when we bought the machine. It answers the phone when I'm not dressed for phone calls. Like when I'm in the bathtub. There's no more throwing a robe over my dripping self just to catch a phone call about buying a vacation hideaway in an area not shown on state maps or a service that cleans the furnace so sparkling clean that I'd be proud to serve dinner on it.

I'm still not totally convinced that our new housemate is a good thing. A machine answering the phone seems pretentious. It's kind of like having a butler answer the door. But knowing that I'll never again have to talk on the phone dressed in a soggy bathrobe has softened my view of the arrangement considerably.

Marshall Sayles

Winter in Boyne City is like morning here in Florida. They both come too early.

And speaking of weather: According to my private sources the coldest temperature ever recorded in Michigan happened on the morning of February 9, 1934. A government report says it reached 51° below zero at Vanderbilt.

Another government report says the hottest day ever recorded in Michigan was 112° in the shade at Mio, east of Gaylord, on July 13, 1936.

These true facts are listed in the 1986 World Almanac my wife gave me for Christmas. I like to deal in true facts. I hate people who publish false facts.

The smart alec I have coffee with most mornings slid into the seat opposite me at the restaurant and asked if I was married or happy. I hate questions that twist my tongue all up before I can answer.

I was on the long distance AT&T horn with Henry Erber the other day and, among other things, he said that in Boyne City the snow was clear up to here. When I was going to school during the Hoover administration I didn't seem to mind if the snow was clear up to here. But now that I check the obituary column to see if my name is in it, I always give a wild shriek whenever I walk in cold snow that's clear up to here. That's because when a person gets older it is difficult to handle anything that comes clear up to here.

Hunting for my car in the nine thousand car parking lot the other day I saw a bumper sticker that said: Most accidents happen. It was the first time I agreed with something I didn't understand.

Back when I was on the bare foot side of 20, I became bothered by a certain sin I had committed. After worrying about it for a long time I finally went to our minister and confessed. He mumbled a few words, patted me on the head, telling me in a somber voice to go forth and sin no more. On the way home I chanced to meet a dear, close friend. In a moment of weakness I confessed my sin to him. He laughed so loud and so long his stomach hurt him terribly.

I immediately went out of the confession business and I haven't fiddled with it since.

Now I must chop this off. After all, if you get too much of a good thing it can make you sick.

Gives thanks

Editor,
Thank you to the volunteer firemen of Boyne City, East Jordan, and to the Petoskey Fire Dept. snorkel unit. Their hard work on New Year's Eve saved our Landings Condominium complex from total destruction.

Our thanks also goes out to the many Harborage and Boyne City residents who took in families that were left without a place to stay that night.

Thank you, Boyne City, for your help.

Boyne City over Saints, lose at Gaylord

Just when you thought football was over, the St. Ignace Saints came to town. That's probably just what the Boyne City Ramblers were thinking as the Ramblers beat the Saints 67-59 in what was a rough ball game from start to finish.

From the start you could tell it was going to be one of those games when St. Ignace fouled Nick Redman with barely 30 seconds gone. That didn't seem to bother Redman at all as he started the scoring on a nice power move seconds later.

Boyne City denied the Saints early by playing a zone defense and had Marc Archambault reject a shot as one of the highlights.

Boyne went up 4-0 on another good move by Redman but St. Ignace came right back with two buckets of their own. Then it was Scott Penny's turn to do a little damage and boy, did he ever do it good! He did so by taking the ball down court where Boyne had a two on one situation, needless to say, he didn't pass the ball but rather he decided to slam dunk the ball, and that brought the Rambler fans to their feet. St. Ignace wasn't bothered at all as they quickly tied the game and then moved ahead on a goal tending call on Redman. Then Scott got back into the act as he made a beautiful alley-oop pass to Redman who in turn put it in. Penny was then fouled and one free shot followed to put the score at 9-8.

The Saints then scored again to take the lead, but the lead wasn't theirs for long, as Archambault put in one free shot. Penny got the rebound of the second attempt and converted for a three point play to make it 12-10.

Steve Stutzman hit a jumper from the charity stripe after Boyne swiped the ball, but the Saints answered with one free shot. The Ramblers got a bucket each from Redman and Penny to end the first period with the score 18-11.

Mike DeSchryver began the second quarter with a basket but the Saints immediately answered with one of their own. The teams traded baskets throughout the second period with DeSchryver doing most of the damage for Boyne, and at the end of the second period it was Boyne ahead 32-27. Kevin Snyder hit a shot for the Ramblers to begin the second half, but the Saints again answered with two. Snyder wasn't finished though, so he hit another shot to make it 36-31. The third quarter proved to be rather sloppy as the Saints went ahead just before the period's end. Boyne tied the game on a basket by Snyder to make it 42-42.

The fourth quarter wasn't exciting at all, in fact, it was rather like watching a football game. The Saints, with four or five ex-football players on their squad, sent Boyne to the stripe again and again. The Ramblers made the most of the opportunity.

Both teams hit baskets to keep the game close but Boyne started to pull away with about three minutes left. Snyder hit a couple free throws to put it at 63-59, and then Archambault followed with two more after one of the Saints tried to run him over.

Snyder closed out the scoring with, you guessed it, two free throws to make the final 67-59.

High scorers for the Ramblers were, Redman with 16, Snyder 14, Scott Penny, who played only about six minutes due to illness had 11, and Marc Archambault had 10. Andy Luepnitz hit 13 for the Saints.

Coach Fowler said, "This was not one of the best, they were pretty fast." He also added, "A little more movement would have helped."

Boyne City went to Gaylord Friday night and came home wishing they hadn't gone in the first place, as they lost 68-43.

The Ramblers started out pretty good with some good defense and two quick buckets by DeSchryver and Penny to tie the game at 4-4. Rick Gray then hit a shot for the Blue Devils to put Gaylord ahead for good. Boyne responded with a foul shot by Snyder.

Gaylord then got two quick ones, one of them being a gift, the present being a goal tending call on Scott Penny. Three fouls on Gaylord sent Redman to the line once where he hit one shot to put it at 10-6 at the end of the first quarter.

Rick Gray and Mike DeSchryver traded shots before the hosts began to pull away. Boyne didn't seem to know what the words rebound and basket mean as Gaylord widened their lead to 30-14 at the half.

Scott Penny rejected a shot to start the second half but that only made the Devils mad. Boyne then made a feeble attempt at a come back but it only lasted eight points. Rick Gray then brought the Gaylord fans to their feet as he slammed one home to make the score 44-26.

Redman got a bucket to end the third quarter with the score at 46-28.

Fourth quarter action had both teams go to their benches to have their reserves get some much deserved playing time. The Devils already had a commanding lead that Boyne couldn't do anything about, so the Ramblers ended this one and went home to prepare for East Jordan.

Mike DeSchryver led the Ramblers with 16 points, Redman got nine, and Penny eight. For Gaylord, Rick Gray had 22 and Chris Markovitch 14.

In Tuesday night action, the Boyne City Ramblers easily defeated the St. Ignace Saints. Here Scott Penny soars in to the hoop enroute to slam dunking the basketball. Penny's dunk brought the fans to their feet and got them into the game.

Logger jayvees win in overtime thriller

Success came to the Boyne Falls Logger jayvees Friday night after coming from 16 points down in the third period, to win in overtime 54-47, over the Alba Wildcats.

The Loggers fell behind early to trail 9-11 after one period. Through the second quarter, Alba stretched the lead by eight points to be on top 22-16.

Midway through the third period Boyne Falls was down by 16 points when they began their game-winning surge. Timely buckets from Chris Gray and Adrian Churchill combined with tight defense set the Loggers in motion.

After trimming three points from the 16 point lead, the Loggers trailed 28-41 entering the fourth quarter. Gray was responsible for four Logger hoops in less than three minutes of action, while Alba felt control of the game slip away.

The Wildcats applied full court pressure in an attempt to hold Boyne Falls down, but the Loggers became adept at breaking away to set up the shot downcourt.

Defensive hustle on the part of Paul Wasylewski and Pat Topolinski provided the Loggers with fast breaks. By mid-quarter, Boyne Falls had pulled within one point and took the lead shortly after when Gray put an offensive rebound through.

The lead changed hands twice more before the Loggers came up with a tie score of 45-all with :47 on the clock. Seconds later the Loggers had the chance to win on the charity stripe, but failed to convert, sending the game into overtime.

Wasylewski gave Boyne Falls the jump seconds into the period, hitting from the left side. Churchill followed up with three points and the Wildcats missed wildly each trip down.

The Logger defense held Alba scoreless through nearly the entire overtime period, the Wildcats scoring with 30 seconds left in the game.

Gray led the Loggers in scoring with 16 points. Churchill was close behind with 15 points while Mark Brady had 10 points. Topolinski scored seven, and Wasylewski had six points.

suspension in the bottom of the container. With the samples taken, and with all of them showing some iron and other substances, the only conclusion the commissioners could see was the water within the community must be all right. State tests have showed the city water is of better than average quality, although it does have a great amount of hardness. The hardness is one of the things that helps make water taste better. The conclusion to the display was the machine used does not test water, it would just break it down to let you see the components making it up. Frykberg told the commissioners "The water is safe."

East Jordan in conference tie with Trojans

BY STEVE GEE

The East Jordan Red Devils (6-3) stayed on top in the Ski Valley Conference with victories over Bellaire and Pellston last week. The two wins moved East Jordan to 6-1 in the conference which ties them with Central Lake for first place. Central Lake is the only conference team to knock off the Red Devils thus far this season.

On Tuesday, the Red Devils traveled to Bellaire to take on the Eagles. This meeting turned out to be one of the easier games this season for the Devils as they romped the Eagles by a score of 80-53.

The game started out very slow with neither team scoring in the first two minutes. At one time early in the first period the score was 4-2 in favor of East Jordan, but by the end of the period, the Devils had jumped to a 21-2 lead. Senior Mike Goebel had eight first quarter points.

Bellaire started to make a game of it in the second period by outscoring the Devils 8-2 early in the period. Goebel then got hot for East Jordan as he helped build a 42-21 first half lead. Goebel had 21 points in the first half.

Aaron Spence, Tom Galmore, and Jim Raymond then got into the action in the third period with six points each. The Devils led by 32, 66-34, with eight minutes left in the game.

Not one of East Jordan's starters saw action in the final period which gave the reserves some much deserved playing time. Kim McKinnon took advantage of this and scored five points in the period. The Devils hung on to an 80-53 victory.

For East Jordan, Mike Goebel finished with 25 points while Tom Galmore totaled 11 and Aaron Spence and Jim Raymond each collected 10. Others scoring for East Jordan were Shannon Olstrom with six, Greg Kitson and Kim McKinnon with five each, Kevin Molby and Phil Nemecek with three apiece, and Dave Russell with two.

East Jordan killed the Eagles on the boards with a 52-25 rebounding advantage. Goebel led the team with 12 and Kevin Molby ended with eight. The Devils hit on 16 of 24 free throws (67 percent), committed 19 personal fouls, and turned the ball over 21 times.

East Jordan's junior varsity dropped their sixth straight with a 68-40 loss to Bellaire. The Devils trailed by scores of 17-12, 33-25, and 55-35 at the end of the first three periods.

Poor free throw shooting and 30 turnovers hurt the Devils' bid for a win. The Devils managed to hit on only two of 10 free throws (20 percent).

Mark Moore and Keith Harchis each collected 10 points for East Jordan. Also scoring for EJ were Tracy Morris with seven, Jayme Warwick with four, Alvin Merrill with three, and Kelly Harchis, Glen Stevens, and Scott Diller with two each.

Leading rebounders for East Jordan were Moore and Warwick with nine and Morris and Kelly Harchis with seven.

On Friday, East Jordan traveled to Pellston to take on the Hornets who had, at the time, a share of the Ski Valley Conference lead. It was a low scoring game with neither team shooting very well from the floor, but the Devils came from behind to take a 43-39 victory.

Pellston did a great job on shutting down East Jordan's scoring machine. Mike Goebel, to four first half points. But the experienced senior got hot in the second half to lead the team to a win.

East Jordan jumped out to an early 6-2 lead before Pellston rolled off seven unanswered points. Pellston hung on to the lead and took a 14-9 first period lead.

The second period saw a lot of missed shots as the two teams combined for only 14 points. Seven turnovers in the period hurt the Devils as they found themselves trailing 20-17 at the end of the first half.

Things didn't look much better for the Devils in the beginning of the second half. Both teams were ice cold starting the half as neither team scored in the first 4:30 of the quarter.

The Devils didn't get their first bucket until 5:30 into the period. But the things started to go good for the Devils. Goebel scored eight points in the last 2:30 to keep the Devils in the game at 28-25.

Goebel pulled the Devils to within one opening in the fourth period with a pair of free throws, but Pellston quickly built a five point lead again. The two teams traded buckets for awhile until Goebel put East Jordan up by one, 37-36, with a three point play with 2:19 remaining.

Pellston then went ahead 38-37 before Goebel again gave the Devils the lead, this time with 32 seconds remaining. An East Jordan foul gave Pellston a pair of free throws with 13 seconds left in the game.

The Hornets were able to sink one to retie the game. Shannon Olstrom then drew a foul for the Devils. He missed the free throw, but Goebel grabbed the offensive rebound and put it in to put East Jordan up, 41-39.

Greg Kitson was fouled with two seconds left and sank the free throws for East Jordan's final points.

Goebel ended with 21 points on the night (17 in the second half) to lead the Devils. Greg Kitson and Jim Raymond each scored six while Shannon Olstrom and Tom Galmore scored three each and Aaron Spence added a pair.

The Devils outrebounded their opponents 43-34 with Goebel pulling down 17. Kitson grabbed seven and Raymond collected six.

East Jordan hit on nine of 15 free throws for 60 percent, committed 10 fouls and lost the ball 16 times (only four times in the second half).

East Jordan junior varsity notched their first conference win with a 51-42 decision over the Hornets. The two teams were deadlocked at 12 at the end of the first period. Pellston took a 23-22 halftime lead, but the Devils led 38-31 going into the final period.

Alvin Merrill and Mark Moore each finished with 11 to lead East Jordan. Others scoring for the Devils were Kelly Harchis with nine, Jayme Warwick and Tracy Morris with six, and Glen Stevens and Keith Harchis with four.

Moore and Morris led the team with 12 rebounds apiece and Morris also collected three blocked shots. The Devils had their best night at the free throw line of the season by shooting 75 percent (15 for 20).

East Jordan's next action will be Friday night at home against the Harbor Springs Rams. East Jordan defeated the Rams earlier this season.

Logger varsity loses control with Alba

The Boyne Falls Logger varsity basketball squad went down to the Alba Wildcats Friday night 73-64 after leading handily in the early stages of the game. An Alba press midway through the second quarter threw the Loggers off their game and the Wildcats capitalized.

First period action opened with the Loggers playing their own style of game that netted them a 6-2 lead after two minutes. Ross Payton was an intimidating factor at this point on defense as the Alba shooters found it difficult to shoot over him. The Wildcats changed tactics a little and went the other way and began to even the score. With a little over two minutes left in the period, Alba tied the score at 12-all, and when the clock ran out the Loggers led 16-15.

Boyne Falls opened the second period with the press and took control of the game, playing tight defense in the key, but only scored six points in the first four minutes.

With Alba applying their press, the Loggers became disorganized and threw on 10 second violations at miscourt, creating even more turnovers. By halftime, the Wildcats had taken the lead 34-38, six of those points being scored in the final minute.

Boyne Falls opened the third quarter scoring nicely on an assist from Neil Wasylewski to Payton, but having found an effective weapon in their press, Alba continued to dominate the action and built a 53-44 lead going into the final period.

Both teams scored well in the fourth quarter, hitting 20 points each, and the Loggers could not trim the margin.

Brian Bennett was the Loggers' best scoring threat in the game as he canned 23 points. Payton also scored well with 18 points while Chad Robinson hit for 10 points. Joe Kondrat and Scott Winhusen scored eight and five points, respectively.

Rayders beat Harbor and Rogers

The Charlevoix Rayders have established themselves as contenders for the championship of the Michigan Huron Shores Conference basketball race and put two more wins into the plus column as they edged the Harbor Springs Rams 60-58 Tuesday night, and handily defeated the Rogers City Hurons 69-51 Friday night.

Tuesday against Harbor, the Rayders took the game to the limit as they experienced problems with turnovers late in the game, nearly losing it in the final seconds. Harbor missed a chance at the upset with a missed shot.

Although the Rams led 10-4 at one point in the first period, the Rayders came back to take control early in the second quarter. The Rams kept fairly close through the period and pulled within two points with eight seconds left in the half at 29-27.

In the third period, the action was tough and go as the game saw three ties. With Rayder Jody Putman off his game, the Rams took a seven point lead at 45-38, but Charlevoix was able to recover and tie the score at 52-all in the fourth quarter.

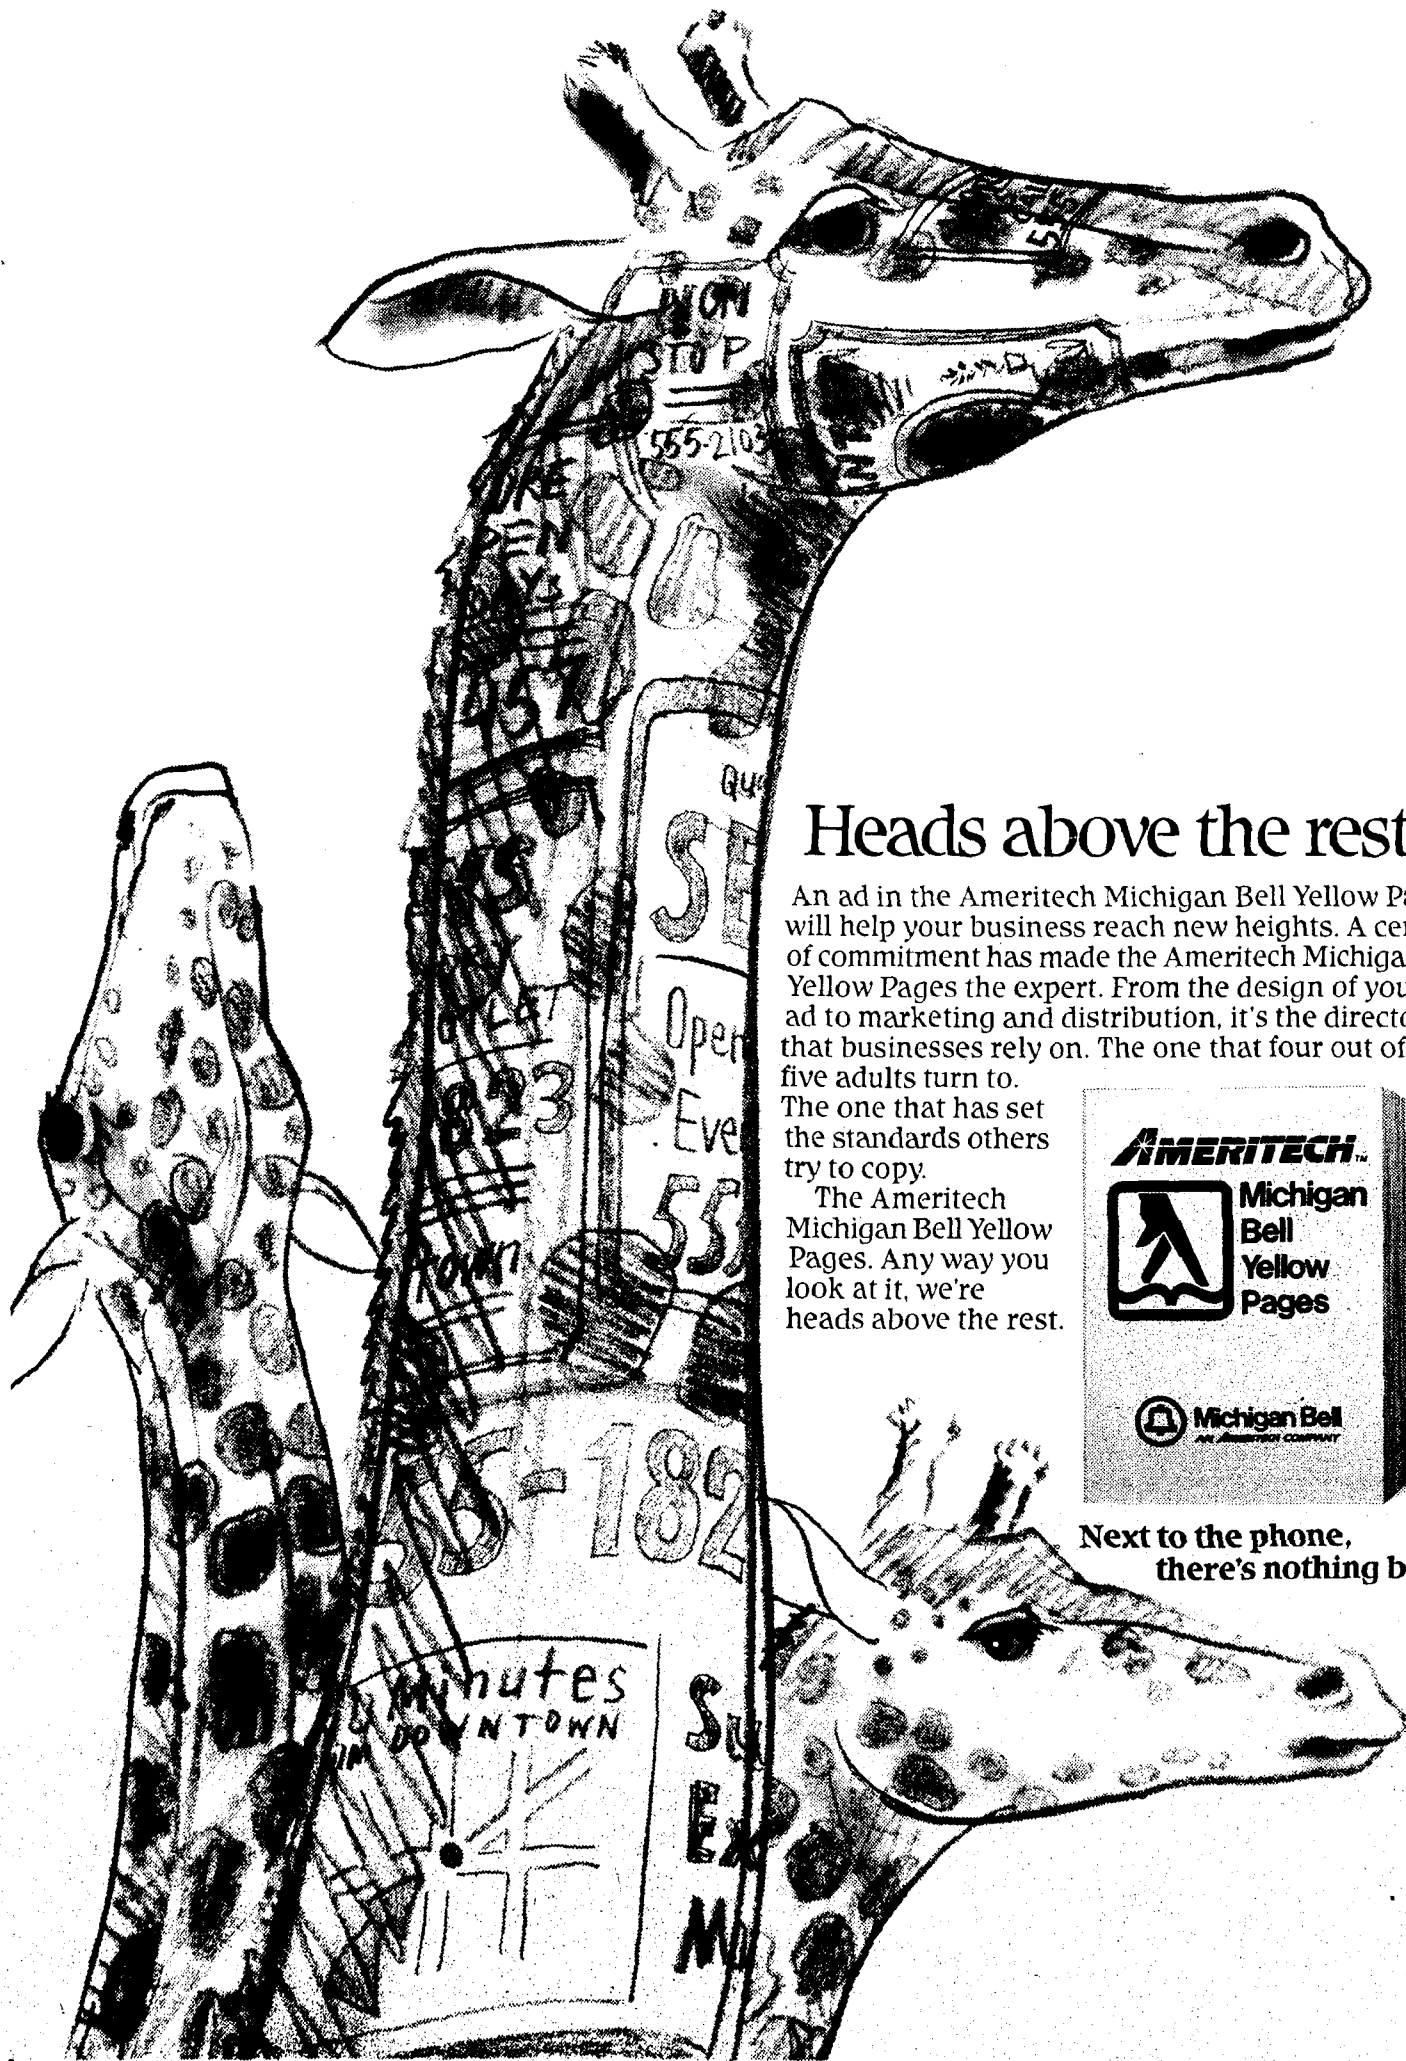

The Rayders built a 60-52 lead late in the final period when the Rams were unable to put the ball through the hoop, but faltered to allow the Rams to make a run at the margin.

High scorer for the Rayders was Tim Salmonson with 19 points. Sean Ferguson had 16 points, Tim Plagge had 10, Putman scored eight, and Dan Drury scored five points.

Friday against the Hurons, the Rayders made their record 6-1 to continue with their co-leadership in the conference with Cheboygan.

The score was close through the first period with Charlevoix leading at the end 16-14. The Rayder defensive efforts proved to be game deciding in the second quarter as the Hurons were only allowed four points, while the Charlevoix offensive scored 18 points. Charlevoix led 34-18 at the half.

High scorer was Ferguson with 19, while Jim Ciuk had 12, and Drury scored 10 points.
