News Briefs

The annual East Jordan Lions Club Easter Egg Hunt will be held Saturday, March 29 at the East Jordan Civic Center. The hunt will begin at 10:30 a.m. Children of preschool age through age 12 may participate. Candy prizes will be awarded.

Because of the recall election in Boyne City Schools, petitions are available for those positions on the Boyne City school board. They may be picked up from the Board of Education office and will be due April 8th, 15 days after the election. Petitions for other vacancies are due the 7th of April, and should not be confused with those for the recall positions.

Anyone wishing to have his or her art considered for display at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey is invited to submit pieces for jurying on Wed., March 26th. Work for jury should consist of three to five pieces framed and ready to be hung. They should be brought in no later than noon and be ready for pick-up by 4 p.m. that same day.

Mike Wallace, principal of the Boyne Falls school, announced the annual kindergarten round-up will be held Thursday, April 24. Parents of children who will be five years old before December 1, 1986 are asked to call the school and make an appointment to register their child.

The Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance has taken the first step in promoting the area nationally by placing an ad in the publication Plants, Sites, and Parks. The magazine is nationally distributed and features economic and industrial development projects throughout the nation.

Tim Hayes, an employee at the Bergmann Center of Charlevoix was awarded a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Citizen Award recently. Hayes has been contacting senior citizens daily as a volunteer for the last two years. He calls to find out their well-being through the Senior Citizen Daily Telephone Contact Program.

Mathers, Monshor recalled from board

"The people have spoken and the war is over," said George Shiotellis, one of the leaders of the drive to recall two Boyne City School Board members, John Mathers and Larry Monshor. Both members were recalled in a close election held Monday. Out of a total of 877 ballots cast, the yes to recalling Mathers counted 414 while the no votes totaled 395. For Monshor, the vote was yes, 434, no, 388.

While the numbers do not total up to the total votes cast, election officials noted that in some cases the voters did not vote for one of the two on the ballot. 67 people did not vote on the Mathers question while 55 did not vote on the Monshor part of the ballot. There was one spoiled ballot, and one case where one voter voted both yes and no to Mathers. The election ended a bitter fight that started last October when John Mathers made a motion at the monthly school board meeting that would have effectively shut down the teaching of any sex education material in the school system. That motion was killed for lack of support, and was consequently changed to have the school principals report back to the board all of the subjects in which the sex education issue was being taught. The November meeting where the administrators were to have reported back to the board, was held in front of a packed gym crowd where the head of the Human Growth and Development committee, Thelma Behling, told the school board what the committee did and has done to protect those who did not, or would not want to be involved in the classes where the sex education was being taught. The school board at that meeting ended up trying to defend their position as to why they wanted to control the program instead of letting the committee do it. In the written statement of justification on the ballot, Mathers said he saved the school system from possible lawsuits by insisting the Human Growth and Development classes adhere to the state guidelines. Evidently the voters of the school district did not think Mathers' intentions were what he had intended and elected to vote him out of office. It was much the same with Monshor, who has been sided with Mathers on many of the sex education oriented subjects. Both were members of the Human Growth and Development committee as school board members. They had objected to when the committee had to meet, which is early in the morning before many leave for work and to the subjects being discussed in the committee for possible inclusion to the curricula. Both members had also worked on many of the projects the school system is involved with, primarily in the energy savings program the system has embarked upon. Many of the recall supporters expressed surprise that they forced the recall of the two. One said it was extremely difficult to win a recall election, especially after a period between the initial action and the election was so long. "If we could have held the election a few weeks after the November election, it would have been a lot easier," he concluded. The remaining members of the school board now have two weeks in which to name a replacement for each of the recalled members. If they can't agree on a new member within that time, the Charlevoix Intermediate School District will have to name new board members.

Two die in Boyne Falls area plane crash

Two men, Richard Turner, 51, of Birmingham and Jeff DeGaynor, 46, of Petoskey, were found dead in their aircraft after a one-and-a-half day search of land surrounding the Boyne Mountain Airport where they indicated they were to land Sunday afternoon.

U.S. Coast Guard, Civil Air Patrol and Charlevoix County Sheriff department members were searching for Turner, the pilot of the Piper Malibu, after he failed to land at the airport or at Boyne City where he has had an automobile stored.

Turner owns a second home on Walloon Lake. DeGaynor was a real estate developer from Petoskey.

Turner frequently flies between the Detroit area and Boyne City's airport where he keeps a car for transportation in this area. According to Jerry Jagow, a supervisor for the Federal Aviation Administration control station in Minneapolis which handles flights for this area, controllers gave the clearance for Turner to land on an instrument approach at about 3:25 p.m. The plane left Detroit at about 2:00 p.m.

A alert was sent to all area airports to notify the FAA if the missing plane had landed at another airport instead of at Boyne Mountain. That alert brought no response as of Tuesday morning.

The Coast Guard started searching for the downed plane Sunday night, using the two helicopters and night search lights. Coast Guard Lt. Kevin McGonagle said the search was difficult because of the terrain and the large amount of area where the plane could have gone down.

The pilot was to have told the FAA he was about ten minutes away from the airport when he contacted them last.

At the time, the area was seeing heavy snow showers which may have hampered visibility and flying conditions. According to area pilots, they frequently file flight plans for Boyne Mountain and then cancel them when they are in the area and fly down the Boyne River valley to Boyne City's airport. It is assumed Turner was going to do that, according to local officials involved in the search.

Monday, the search parties investigated the area around the Boyne Mountain airport. The plane was discovered by volunteers from the Melrose Township Fire Department after they joined the search Tuesday. Volunteer Jepson was the person on the department who discovered the plane laying on a hill about one mile east of the Hunt Sawmill, just off Sheriff road.

The plane was found about 10:15 a.m. Tuesday. It looked like the plane hit the hill in a valley of the headwaters of the Boyne River, dug in and flipped over. When it hit, it dug a hole in the top of the hill about two feet deep. The plane then collapsed into itself. Debris from the accident was scattered over an area 128 feet from the point of impact. There was no fire.

The FAA will be arriving today to start their investigation of the crash. The area is cordoned off to keep spectators from disturbing any of the area.

The bodies were taken by Coast Guard helicopter to the Boyne Mountain Airport for transportation to the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City.

DeGaynor was involved in the development of several projects in the Petoskey and Charlevoix. The last project he was trying to develop was the North Point Condominium project in Charlevoix. He was involved with the Number One Center building which Turner owned in Petoskey.

Turner is a part-owner of Avis Ford in Southfield and is the son of Harold Turner, who had a Ford dealership in Birmingham for many years before moving it to Troy in the early 1970's.

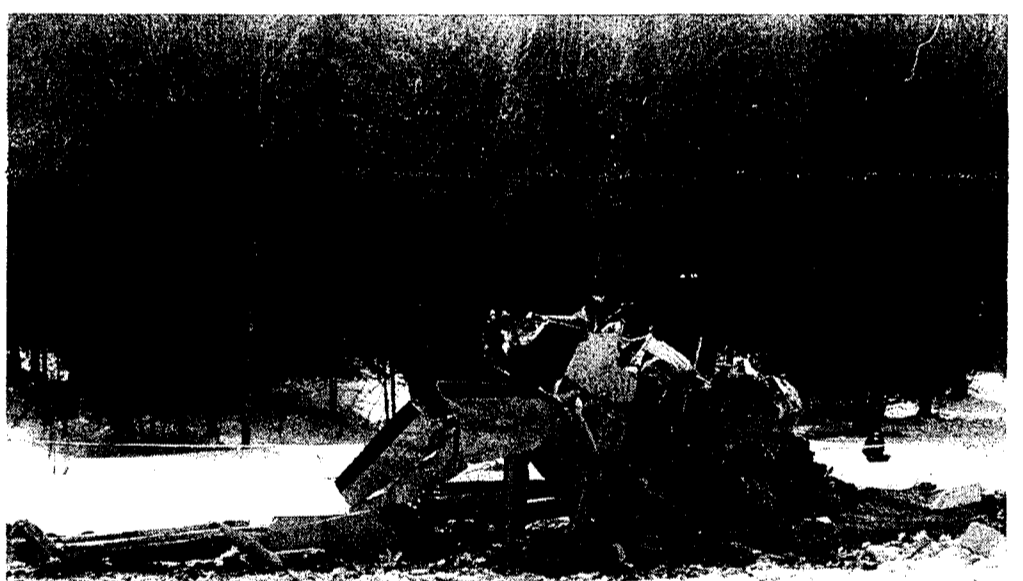

Turner sold the dealership in 1980 because of lagging sales and in 1983, became part owner of Avis Ford. Turner also is a partner of Turner Flannery Leasing, a Troy car and truck leasing firm. The missing plane is registered to Turner at that address, according to the Detroit Free Press.

Turner also had interests in a Ford dealership in Petoskey at one time.

EJ looking at budget cuts

The proposed budget presented to the East Jordan City Council for the year 1986-87 called for an overall 2.5% rollback in expenditures, and included substantial cuts in the city's sanitary disposal system and the reduction from full time recreation director to be cut to part time.

The city Parks and Recreation Committee has recommended in the budget proposal to drop the directors salary from $13,000 to $6,000 with the proposed cutback in recreation staffing. Past records showed that city revenues gleaned from the recreation department has declined steadily in recent years. In 1981-82 revenues were at $9,595 and slowly dropped to $3,383 in 1985-86. The public works committee has also submitted a suggestion to eliminate funding of the city landfill and contract with commercial haulers to remove city refuse. The city was forced to look for further

Little is left to help identify the Piper Malibu that carried Richard Turner and Jeff DeGaynor to their deaths Sunday afternoon. The plane flew into the side of a hill as it was on the final approach to the Boyne Mountain airport. The plane was discovered by volunteers from the Melrose Township Fire Department after the Coast Guard had searched the area. The fire department volunteers were using snowmobiles and could see the area from a different perspective. Also aiding in the search was the dispatch crew from the Boyne City Police Department. They relayed all the radio messages between the Sheriff's office and the searchers.

Area students enter Olympics of the Mind

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER
An international workout of the mental abilities of thousands of school age children takes place each year in a little known, rarely publicized olympics—the Olympics of the Mind.

This year approximately 125 students divided into 20 teams are a part of this event, representing East Jordan, Boyne City, and Charlevoix. These teams have worked for about three months solving a problem and presented their solutions at the regional competition in Traverse City on March 22.

The Olympics of the Mind concept was born out of some problems written by Dr. Sam Micklus and Dr. Ted Gourley in New Jersey. They hoped to set the students into an active creative problem solving process.

In 1978, there were 28 schools in New Jersey that gave the program a trial run. Dr. Micklus was with Glassboro State College and Dr. Gourley was with the New Jersey State Department of Education. The idea caught on rapidly and came to Michigan in 1978; today there are over 300 schools in Michigan involved in the Olympics of the Mind. Each year's problems are written by Dr. Micklus who bought out Dr. Gourley's rights to the program.

Six problems are written, with only five actually in competition. The problem for the youngest group (kindergarten through about second) is not judged and scored. It is primarily to get the younger children thinking and give them a chance to see the competition of the older children.

This year the problems are again challenging and fun. The children were divided into three divisions—I for Kindergarten through fifth grades, II for grades 6 through 8, and III for grades 9 through 12.

The problems were Happy Birthday (Division I) in which the children had to decide on the guest of honor, write a birthday song, make three gifts and design cards and work this into a skit form. Treasure Hunters was a computer problem; a program had to be developed to allow them to collect "treasures." Technocrats asked the students to design an assembly line and build an original product (Divisions I, II, and III.) Great Art Lives asked for the students to replicate the work of a famous artist, make up a skit, and paint something in the style of the artist (Divisions I, II, and III).

The balsa wood problem was called Bridging the Gap and the young engineers had to construct this bridge out of 25 grams of balsa wood. How much weight it holds determines the winner. (Divisions I, II, and III.) History.....the Way it Was was to be a humorous rendition of an actual historical event. (Divisions I and II).

Kathy Martinchek, from the Char-Em Intermediate School District, is the State Director of Michigan's Olympics of the Mind this year. She coordinates all four regional competitions and the state final competition, which will be at Central Michigan University, April 26. The top five teams in each division for each problem will go to the state finals and from that number the top team of each division of each problem will go on to the World Competition at the

MR. AND MRS. MAURICE FLUCKEY

Fluckeys celebrate 70th March 26

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fluckey of Boyne City will celebrate their 70th wedding anniversary on March 26th, which day will also be Mrs. Fluckey's (Alta's) 89th birthday. Maurice was 90 years old on March 20.

The Fluckeys were married on March 26, 1916 (Alta's 19th birthday) in Tower Hill, Illinois, where they had a farm. In 1933 they moved to Michigan where Mr. Fluckey sold new and used cars for many years. Mr. Fluckey was top Chevrolet salesman for the state of Michigan in the 1920s and 30s. They lived in Dearborn until 1957, when he retired and they moved to Boyne City. They have resided here since.

The Fluckeys have two children, Ralph of Howell and Robbie Schiller of Utica. They have 8 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren. They have been involved in many churches during their lives and are currently members of and active in the First Baptist Church of Boyne City. Mr. Fluckey was baptized last summer by Pastor Nixon in Lake Charlevoix.

Their children and friends and relatives have arranged a five week trip to Florida as an anniversary gift. They will be in Punta Gorda, near his two sisters, until some time in April.

There will be an open house for them here when they return. If you know the Fluckeys and wish to send a card or greeting, the Florida address is: Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fluckey, % Homer Syfert, 6114 Padula, Punta Gorda, FL 33950.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

This is the time when everyone starts to enjoy spring, even me. As I have said many times before, I don't like early spring with all of the mud and slush, but after a day or two of temperatures in the sixties, I think I could change my mind.

The sun and the warm temperatures are melting the snow so fast, the ditches can hardly keep up with it. Even out in the woods, the snows are disappearing fast.

Tomorrow it will probably snow again and make me not want to change my thoughts about early springs.

One thing about this kind of weather though, the sides and shoulders of the roads are very soft, so be careful when you drive on them or you may sink about roof top deep.

I was hoping, and still am, to go skiing one last time this season. But if this weather keeps up, I'll have to go golfing on the ski run instead.

When I was out in the woods chasing a plane crash, I kept thinking the ground around me was excellent for mushrooming. I guess a little sun and you end up thinking a lot of rushing the season.

But it won't be too long before that season is with us.

I am all ready gearing myself up for it. I stopped walking up and down the hills and started crawling instead.

I figure that if I were at ground level, I might be able to see some of the little morsels. And I have to get myself in shape to see them, pick them and gain all that weight back because I will cook them in butter.

Law should conform to nature

Editor,

On February 18, our daughter Rechelle, 15 years old, and her two friends Kellie and Amie, were killed in a tragic car accident on the way to school. The fog was so dense and the ice so slick yet school officials here decided no delay was necessary, nor was school to be cancelled.

The decision was made, the results fatal. It is not the first time, nor will it be the last. We know nothing can ever change, nor will our girls ever be here, but we feel deeply to do anything we can to prevent any other senseless injuries or deaths from happening.

The legislature in Michigan has forced a new law upon us. Are you aware that there is a mandatory 180 school day in session law that says any day missed because of weather will have to be made up? Some school districts are forced to comply this year. All schools will be forced to next year.

We feel this puts undue pressure upon school officials to make decisions that might not be focused primarily on the safety of the children, but rather complications of extending the school calendar.

We live in Michigan where nature and the weather play a big part in our everyday lives. Laws cannot change nature, therefore, the laws should conform and work with nature. This law defies nature and says our children must be in buses loaded to the hilt with students not in seat belts, and some even without proper seats, and then hope for the best. Let's not play politics with our children's lives. Let's encourage them to learn in a safe, comfortable, and relaxed atmosphere. They are our most precious and most valuable assets; they are our future. Let's let them have one. Our daughter, her two friends, and other students

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

Free, in the sense of "without cost or payment", is an exciting concept to Americans. We love owning things, all kinds of things. We also love to think of ourselves as being thrifty. Merchants have figured out a marvelous way to capitalize on these traits. They offer us free gifts with our purchases. And they hit us where we live.

Because the price is reasonable, we aren't too picky about what the free gift is, which is just as well since often it isn't much. This is especially true if the something we buy in order to qualify for a free gift doesn't cost much. That's fair, I guess. But it's a bit of a disappointment sometimes, although I understand that there have to be some limits on a thing like this.

For items we buy costing up to $10, the gift is usually a ballpoint pen or a key chain. Every household in America must have a lifetime supply of both by now and is working on a supply for their heirs. Throwing away free gifts is simply not done.

For things that cost $10 to $20, the screwdriver is a popular free gift. This price range covers a lot of merchandise, especially in the line of clothes. So you'd think that places like mail order houses, that are big dispensers of free gifts, would run out. Buy they never do.

Somewhere in the world, most likely either Taiwan or Hong Kong because their names show up on an astonishing number of things, some very industrious people are working lickety-split turning out these tools. I can just picture them. And then, snatching the finished tools off the assembly line, packaging them quickly in plastic bags, I can see the workers rushing them onto a ship bound for the United States. If the homeland of our screwdriver supply is Taiwan or the island part of Hong Kong, the natives would have to move them out fast because if they stockpiled them, their island might sink, or tilt a little.

A step up in the free gift line are telephones. These are only passed out as bonuses on the expensive stuff. A year's subscription to Time magazine will get you a telephone, or so a girl named Judy, who keeps showing up on my TV screen, has explained to me more times than seems necessary. Phones being as expensive as they are, the deal that Judy offers isn't bad, providing one wants to read the magazine. The free phone will no doubt convince some people that it's worth a try anyway.

It's hard to find a logical explanation for our continued enthusiasm for free gifts when we know in our heart of hearts that somewhere along the line we're paying for them. Maybe it's the child in us that still remembers the thrill of pulling out the free toy in the boxes of cereal and Cracker Jack. Or maybe it's the conviction that no one can have too many screwdrivers or pens or key chains. But the evidence, at least at our house, doesn't give that conviction a leg to stand on.

Of course, there may not be any logical explanation for our enthusiasm for free gifts. There doesn't have to be. The idea is fun for the customers and it works for the merchants. And that's all that really counts.

Besides, a little self-delusion is good for the soul.

This is the Rosabelle, anchored in South Arm about 1900. In answer to this verse by Sara Teasdale, a former summer resident, the Rosabelle sank with all hands in a Lake Michigan storm Oct. 30, 1921.

"Where is the scarlet Rosabelle
That brought the mill its grain,
Her white sails dripping with the sun
Or grayed against the rain."

Marshall Sayles

I crawled under the bed this morning looking for a quarter that had fallen through a hole in my pocket. Like most people the only thing I keep under the bed is dust. So it was rather strange finding a yellowing old copy of a column I had written years ago. I didn't know what to do with it nor how it got there. Which isn't too unusual, lots of people don't know what to do with things they find under the bed.

Suddenly I decided to be different than most. I would show lots of people what I had found under the bed.

Bold as all get out, I blew the dust off the old paper and copied the following.

There is nothing like coming home to a good wife and a good hot meal. Especially after you've spent a long, hard day watching those workmen building condominiums down by the lake.

In the house I yelled, "Yoo-hoo!" That's what our neighbors do instead of knocking.

No answer. So I yoo-hoed again. Still no answer. I checked every room in the house, including the broom closet. No wife. No supper. No nice kitchen smells.

Finally I sat on the davenport pondering the situation. All of my successful pondering has occurred on the davenport. I could get my own supper, but there's something about my messing up the kitchen.

Now, let's see. Was she lost, strayed or stolen? Sometimes when a wife is lost or stolen it costs money to get her back. But if she has inadvertently strayed off someplace money isn't usually involved, it's just the irritating principal of the thing. (If there is anything I hate, it is an irritating principal.)

Maybe she had gone shopping or to the beauty parlor without telling me. I checked the calendar notes for a clue. Ah, so that's where she had strayed off to.

I got into the car, heading for town. After passing a couple of unusual beauty parlors I came to her usual one. Inside I looked from Dan to Beersheba. (Dans do visit beauty parlors, life being the upside down thing it is.)

I went over the to the nearest woman, lifting that helmet-like thing from her head. "Is that you?" I asked.

"No," she said. Boy! Was I glad that I would have wasted my gas getting down here if that one had been her.

"I'm over here," she said above the hum of things. Oh, good. If she hadn't know who she was I'd have been stumped. With all that stuff on her head, I couldn't tell her from an astronaut preparing to go to the moon any day now.

The manager came over. "If you are waiting for your wife," she said, "you'll have to sit over there." "Over there" was a chair with some reading matter. I picked up a woman's magazine and began reading. "How to avoid getting into trouble without being married."

Suddenly, I was conscious of six women all in a row sizing me up. All in a row, mind you! That's one thing I've never been able to do. I cannot concentrate on my reading with six women sizing me up. And I did so want to read how a woman could avoid getting into trouble without being married.

I looked at those women looking at me and decided to get out of this place. Perhaps go home and play my fiddle in the root cellar so no one could hear these hunger pangs.

After her hair had been curled until it hurt just right, my wife got up, getting her coat. "What was it you wanted?" she asked.

"I want to know when supper will be ready," I said.

"You came way down here for that?"
 "Now, look," I said. "I've had a hard day watching those men build the condominiums and I'm hungry."
 "Oh, good," she said. "We'll go to the restaurant so I can show off my new hair-do."
 I looked around for some place to pound my fist.
 "Come along now," she smiled, patting me on the head. I like being patted on the head and smiled at, but not in front of six astronauts who refuse to mind their own business.

 In the restaurant she said, "My, don't we look grumpy."
 The coffee was cold and the food stuck in my windpipe. I could have handled things a lot better if she had been lost or stolen.

East Jordan--On March 21, eight students from East Jordan traveled to St. Ignace for a spelling contest. These students had won in their respective grades in local spelling contests in 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th grades. Krista Sumner and Linda Pinney represented the eighth grade, Rachel Moreau and Heather Shank represented the 7th grade, Katie Kretschmann and Forrest Omlund went for the 6th grade and Paula Carter and Scott Chanda were the 5th grade representatives.

Students from East Jordan just jump into their car and go to the Olympics of the Mind.

Others practice their play they performed at the regional contest in Traverse City over the weekend.

Olympics

University of Northern Arizona, May 29 and 30.

Each of the area schools runs their own program differently. Boyne City schools has Mrs. Susan Douglas as coordinator. Mrs. Douglas works with the academic honors class at the Middle School. She and Mrs. Marcia Towne, parent, have coached the four middle school teams and have used class time to work on the problems' solutions. One of the teams also used their solution at their local science fair.

Mrs. Ginny Schairbaum, a parent, has coordinated the Olympics of the Mind effort in Charlevoix. All the work has been done after school and with parents volunteering as coaches. This is their first time to go to competition and they are all excited.

Anne Johnston, Community Education Director of East Jordan, has coordinated the program for the past several years. All coaching is done by parent volunteers and the work is done after school or during lunch hours.

The youngsters give great energy and time to the producing of a product, constructing a structure, or designing a scene, as well as writing the scripts, making all props used, and coming up with a final production which will hopefully meet all the requirements of the problems. There are time limits and space limits to be dealt with also. That is a great deal of restrictions for young problem solvers!

All the parents involved seemed enthusiastic (though tired by the last week!). The students are running on top speed by the day of the regional competition and those last minute bursts of energy often mean the difference between winning a chance to go to state finals and losing it, as the energy is channeled into last minute and final solutions. The spirit of doing your best; of being happy for the winners, even if you aren't one; a coming together of minds and hearts seems to take place in the final stages of preparation. What a joy to see the enthusiasm and excited smiles! Its contagion spreads out into the entire school and certainly into the families of the participants and the coaches.

Thirty nine teams from the Char-Em Intermediate School District competed at the regional competition in Traverse City, 20 of these from Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan. Of the 20, the following will be going to the state finals: Boyne City team, Division II, "History as it was" placed 5th. Charlevoix had two teams, "Great art lives" and "History as it was", both placed 2nd. East Jordan with three teams, Division I "Bridging the gap", took 2nd, 111 pounds; Division II "Bridging the gap", placed 1st with 138 pounds; Division III, "Great art lives", placed fifth.

PUBLIC HEARING

CITY OF BOYNE CITY Fiscal Year 1986-1987

BUDGET AND FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING HEARING

The City of Boyne City will hold a Public Hearing at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, April 8, 1986, in the Commission Chambers of City Hall, 319 North Lake Street, for the purpose of hearing oral comments and considering written comments from the public concerning the proposed annual budget for Fiscal Year 1986/1987 and the use of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds as contained in the proposed budget, summarized below.

Federal Revenue Sharing is a program of general fiscal support from the Federal Government to State and local governments with only limited Federal requirements about how the money should be spent. Decisions on the use of these funds are made at the local level by the government and the people closest to local problems.

All interested citizens, groups, senior citizens, and organizations are encouraged to attend and to submit comments. Said budget summaries are available for review prior to the Public Hearing at City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, during regular working hours, Monday through Friday.

contractors when their present service cost was increased. Another option still open to solve the dilemma is granting a door-to-door pick-up franchise to another hauling company.

The budget calls for a total of $934,684 for the city to function next year, and is subject to approval after a public hearing is held to hear input on the proposed budget.

General fund expenditures will call for cost hikes for the police department, the fire department, clerk-treasurer, and the ambulance service. The police expenditure will go up 4.3%, the fire department will utilize a 33% raise, the clerk-treasurer will go up 7.2%, and the ambulance service will receive 1% more money to operate.

City administrators will also receive raises with the proposed budget. The public works superintendent will receive a salary of $27,750, a 6.7% jump, the police chief will receive a 5% hike to $21,000, the treasurer will get a 5.6% raise while the clerk receives a 9.68% raise.

2nd graders learn snowshoeing

The second graders in Mrs. Margaret Thompson's reading class in East Jordan Elementary recently learned how to snowshoe and that you can make your own snowshoes. Mrs. Gail Greenman brought in snowshoes made by her husband Pat from PCV pipe and nylon rope. Mr. Greenman made the snowshoes for their sons, using a standard wooden snowshoe for dimensions. All the second graders got a chance to walk on the snowshoes and to ask questions about them.

Howard in Adrian play

Boyne City's Chris Howard was one of seven students at Adrian College in Adrian, MI, who recently performed in the popular Neil Simon play, "California Suite."

"California Suite" is actually composed of four playlets, each acted out in the same suite of rooms in the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Produced by the college theater department, "California Suite" was performed in the historic Downs Theater on the college campus. Housed in Downs Hall, built in 1860, the theater is a 199-seat thrust stage facility.

Howard played Marvin Michaels, an out-of-town traveler who hires a prostitute, and Stu Franklin, one of four close friends who decide to vacation together.

Howard is a freshman at Adrian College. A 1985 graduate of

BOYNE CITY ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

Notice is hereby given that a Public Hearing will be held on Thursday, April 3, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. in the Commission Chambers, City Hall, by the Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals, to consider the following sign variance as petitioned by Little Lena's Restaurant:

A variance to install a 2 sided overhanging sign on the new Little Lena's Building at 117 Water Street. (Formerly the Lil Pub.)

The sign will overhang from the facing wall of the building 5 1/2 feet over the sidewalk, rather than the required 4 feet as Established by the Zoning Ordinance.

Every property owner within 300 feet of this building will be notified via first class mail of this sign variance request.

For more information on this variance request, contact the City Clerk's office during regular business hours.

A variance is also requested to allow an off-street loading space (10 ft. X 25 Ft.) to encroach 10.3 feet onto and upon the City's right of way of use easement abutting the Little Lenas Restaurant in the rear, for the purpose of allowing a cooler to be located in the allowable loading zone.

Loons coming back to Michigan soon

In the next 30 to 60 days, the loons will return to Michigan lakes. You don't have to have lakeshore property or even visit a Michigan lake during the warmer months to be involved with these attractive water birds. If you checked off a contribution to the Michigan Non-Game Wildlife Fund on your state income tax return, you're part of the Department of Natural Resources' effort to restore the loon population in Michigan.

Thanks to the funding from state taxpayers, the DNR is expanding a major effort to find out where loons have traditionally nested and to bring the loons back to certain lakes from which they've disappeared.

The loon is a large, black and white bird, bigger than a mallard. In the water, it resembles a duck except that it has a spearlike bill rather than the duck's flat beak. Its cry is a high-pitched wail and yodel. Reverberating eerily across the still surface of a lake, it resembles a maniacal laugh. Loons are devoted parents that often carry their young on their backs.

Because loons aren't as common as they once were, many people had never seen them before they were featured so prominently in the movie "On Golden Pond." Though biologists aren't sure why the loon population is declining in Michigan, they suspect that disturbance of nesting areas and harassment of adult loons are important. Loons like to nest where vegetation grows down to the water. Power boat wakes could submerge the nests and drown the young. Intentional haarrassment, such as trying to run over loons with power boats, also occurs.

The DNR is collecting information on loon whereabouts. Anyone who frequents Michigan lakes in the spring and wants to contribute information on loon sightings can help. The DNR is interested in finding out where loons stop along the way to their nesting areas, where they nest and where they used to nest, so if you see them now or used to see them, you have valuable information.

A lake that is just a stopping point now may have been a traditional nesting area in the past and may have potential as a future nesting site. If enough lake property owners are interested, the DNR and volunteers working with the DNR could help create nesting islands and protected areas to provide the loons with the kind of place they need to nest, or loon sanctuaries where the birds could raise their young unmolested. Assistance may also include an educational program to explain why people should stay away from the loons during the spring breeding and nesting period.

This effort is unique in that it is supported by voluntary contributions by Michigan taxpayers and voluntary efforts by wildlife conservationists. Getting involved is a positive way for you to help enhance your opportunities to observe and enjoy nature from your backdoor.

Health department warns of rabies outbreak

Northern Michigan contains a variety of biting animals such as dogs, cats, foxes, skunks, and bats. Any of these animals can transmit rabies.

A recent increase in the number of cat bites reported to the Michigan Department of Public Health has prompted State Health Director, Gloria Smith to urge cat owners to get their cats vaccinated and reduce the danger of rabies to humans.

Of the 1,626 animals tested for rabies by the health department during the 1984-85 fiscal year, 562 were cats. Three of those cats had rabies.

A January report by the Federal Centers for Disease Control states that cases of cat rabies in the United States now exceed cases of dog rabies.

Dr. Brian Youngs, Medical Director for District Health Department No. #3 (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties) feels that "A potential problem does exist with rabies in our area. Rabies is present at a low level in some area wildlife."

People of all ages may contact rabies if conditions are favorable. Many times children are the victims because they play with and handle wild or stray animals. Anyone handling animals, especially sportsmen and campers, are all in a high risk group due to exposure to potential rabies sources.

The disease may occur at any time and anywhere during the year, although locally the greatest exposure occurs in the warmer months when these animals are more active.

Rabies is transmitted to man through bites such as scratches in the skin. The saliva of rabid animals carries the virus in respiratory secretions which are more active.

Determining rabies in an animal is done by catching, confining, and observing the animal for 10 days to two weeks. Anyone trying to confine a suspect animal should be very cautious and use heavy gloves and other types of protective equipment. Any questions about confining suspect animals should be directed to the local animal control officer.

Infected animals rarely survive for more than 10 days after development of the symptoms. If symptoms develop, the animal is usually killed and the brain is examined. It is very important not to damage the animal's head while trying to capture it. If the animal shows rabid symptoms, the District Health Department should be notified.

If a biting animal escapes or is unknown, the following factors are used to determine risk: prevalence of rabies in the area, species of biting animals, severity of the wounds, and whether or not the attack was provoked or unprovoked. Domestic animals that come in contact with wild animals should be vaccinated for protection.

Once a person has been bitten by an animal that is suspected of carrying rabies certain steps should be taken to minimize the infection. The bite should be cleaned immediately and thoroughly washed with soap and water to remove saliva. Squeezing the wound to promote free bleeding is an aid to the cleansing action. The victim should be taken to medical help at once so that the treatment may be started if deemed necessary.

Regardless of the method used to treat the victim, it will take time. Most treatment will require a series of shots. In order to be most effective the vaccine should be started as soon as possible to allow the body to build a proper defense against rabies.

Anyone that would like more information about rabies should contact their county animal control officers, veterinarian, physician, or any office of District Health Department No. 3; Antrim (616) 533-8607, Charlevoix, (616) 547-6523, Emmet (616) 347-6014 and Otsego (517) 732-1794.

Sports medicine clinic to be held at Petoskey High

The Second Annual Petoskey Sports Medicine Conference will be held Saturday, April 19 from 8:30 am to 3 pm at Petoskey High School. Sponsors at the conference are the Petoskey High School Athletic Department and the Burns Clinic Foundation.

The seminar is geared toward school and recreational sports coaches, athletic directors, physical education teachers, student athletes, and other interested individuals. The information presented in this conference will help these individuals guide their athletes to a safe and enjoyable sports experience.

"Last year's conference was so successful, that we have decided to make it an annual event," stated Russell LaBeau, M.D., Conference Co-Director and Pediatrician at the Burns Clinic Medical Center. "This year we will be expanding the length of the conference to include more material."

Gary Hice, Petoskey

Athletic Director and Conference, Co-Director, feels the materials presented will be very useful to school sports coaches and athletic directors.

"The afternoon session will be a Weight Training Clinic conducted by Denny Starnes, Strength Coach at Central Michigan University. Student athletes wishing to attend just this session may do so. I think it will provide very useful information to them."

Additional faculty topics include: Allen D. Damschroder, M.D., Burns Clinic Orthopedic Surgeon who will speak on "Rehabilitation of Knee and Ankle Injuries;" Duane Taylor, Petoskey High School Counselor, who will discuss "Sports Psychology;" and a panel discussion on "The Female Athlete."

Dr. LaBeau and Pediatrician at the Burns Clinic Medical Center will present a session on "Emergency Evaluation and Treatment of Head and Neck Injuries."

In addition to the lectures and demonstrations, participants will have an opportunity to view exhibits of medical and athletic supplies.

The registration fee for the entire conference is $10.00 for adults and $5.00 for students. The fee includes all materials and lunch. Individuals wishing to attend only the Weight Training Clinic may do so for $3.00.

To register or to receive a brochure describing the conference, contact Martha Lancaster, Burns Clinic Foundation, 560 W. Mitchell, Petoskey, Mi. 49770, 616-348-2145.

6th Grade boys eligible for retreat

The Pastoral Vocations office of the Gaylord Diocese is offering boys in the sixth and seventh grades an opportunity to participate in the St. Lawrence Seminary Super Action Retreat '86. The retreat is scheduled for Monday, June 16th, through Thursday, June 19th at the seminary in Mt. Calvary, Wisconsin. Last years 320 boys from lower Michigan participated in the retreat.

The Super Action Retreat Programs are carried out over a four week period, with sixth and seventh grade boys from different areas scheduled for each week. Total participation last year exceeded 1,500 boys representing the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota.

The retreats are planned to help sixth and seventh grade boys gain a sense of their own self worth, a better awareness of the spiritual side of themselves, combined with a healthy dose of good fun while interacting with others their own age. The program combines the elements of prayer, small group activities and competitive, recreational sports and games. Last year's participants had much fun while making new friends and experiencing some personal growth. The Action Retreat is one way for the boys to grow as Christians.

A seminarian, brother, priest or layperson will chaperone each bus to and from St. Lawrence. When the buses arrive at St. Lawrence, the boys are divided into small groups and a seminarian is assigned to each group. The group leader guides them through their action packed days at St. Lawrence. While at St. Lawrence the boys also get a first hand look at what a seminarian and seminarians are all about. During the days and nights that the seminarian spends with his group, he develops a special friendship with each member. He is able to help each boy enjoy full participation in small and large group prayer experiences as well as in games and sports activities. He helps them get comfortable enough with him and with themselves so that during the prayer experience they can be more open in expressing how they feel about their relationship with God.

Under the supervision of their group leaders, the boys will also participate in team Olympics; entertaining and fun movies; sports, including softball, billiards, ping-pong, racquetball, handball, soccer, tennis, basketball, volleyball, etc., and even a little rest and snack time when the activities end.

Every boy will have many opportunities to talk with a seminarian, brother, or priest during the four days both in small group sessions and individually. Each boy will also have the chance to be heard and to get answers to questions that he may have about himself, the seminary or about his relationship with his family and God.

Super Action Retreat brochures and posters have been distributed throughout the diocese. All Religious Education Coordinators and pastors have been sent information about the retreat. Also, the Gaylord Diocesan Vocation Office has Super Action Retreat materials.

The retreat cost covers charter transportation, meals, lodging, use of equipment and facilities at St. Lawrence, and all retreat activities. The only exception to this are the monies for personal spending in the school store and canteen and for the lunch stops to and from the retreat.

The retreat cost is fifty dollars. The following are the designated pick-up and drop-off points for the Gaylord Diocese: Mackinaw City, Indian River, Gaylord, Grayling and West Branch.

For more information contact: Brother Lenny Gibeault (414) 753-3911 or write: Super Action retreat, St. Lawrence Seminary, Mt. Calvary, WI 53057.

Kindergarten screening set for preschoolers

There will be a Developmental Screening Clinic for all children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1987. This clinic is sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The purpose of this clinic is to provide parents information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three year old children, and to have your child informally screened in order to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years. This is a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

The clinics are scheduled as follows: April 30, 1986 at Boyne Falls in the United Methodist Church, corner of Center & Mill St. May 14, 1986 in East Jordan, the location to be announced.

If you are interested in attending either of the above clinics, or live in a district other than the ones listed above, please contact Pat Gauthier, 547-9947 at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or for further information.

Child's birthdate must be between Dec. 1, 1981 and Dec. 1, 1982.
