Instead of assessment districts

Boyerne may consider income tax for projects

Faced with finding an easier way to pay for the needed street, water and sewer improvements at their monthly evening meeting, the Boyne City commissioners may follow a suggestion of Steve Moody to have the voters approve a city-wide income tax on those living within the city as well as those who work in the city and use city facilities.

The suggestion was made at the noon meeting Tuesday, and other commissioners have already started thinking it may be the solution to funding city infrastructure improvements without having to go to special assessment districts.

Moody estimated quickly, without really looking at actual figures, the city could generate the $300,000 yearly it needs to do the work to upgrade and replace the city's badly deteriorated systems.

While not yet official, as it has to be voted upon by the city residents, the idea is starting to be looked at by city officials. If it looks like the way the city should go, then the commissioners may put it up to a vote of the people.

In other action at the noon meeting, the commissioners heard a new proposal from Northern Associates concerning the two parcels of land next to the new Peninsula Beach.

Northern won the bid to purchase the two lots when they offered the city $65,500 last month. In the meantime, a citizens group has lobbied to get time to see if they could raise money to provide the city's share of the grant that is making the beach project viable.

Northern's new proposal would be to let them purchase the two lots for $65,500, contribute and deed back to the city parcel B, behind the wastewater treatment plant, for park or any other city use, agree to no building plans as yet on parcel A, agree to no indoor boat storage, and agree to exchange the Main Street right-of-way property for an equal amount of property on the north side of the treatment plant.

The only contingency Northern made was to have the property be sold to them at Tuesday night's meeting.

Members of the citizens group were asked if this new proposal was agreeable, all expressed approval. The members in attendance at the meeting, Richard May, Gary Mellon and Hy Stover said the proposal seemed to be all right with them and they would get back to the commissioners Tuesday evening.

In other action, the city approved the purchase of four new lawn tractors for mowing city properties. Frank's Total won the low bid for two tractors, a 20 horsepower with a 60 inch mower and a 18 horsepower model with a 48 inch mower. Both are Bolens tractors and will cost the city $8,242.38. The other bid for two tractors was won by Boyne Appliance and Power Equipment for two 18 horsepower Gilson tractors with 42 inch mowers. The cost for those tractors was $7,224.

They also asked the city manager to draft a letter to the C.H. Smith Company to have the work at the former landfill be completed by the end of May. That action was asked by the Evangeline Township Board in a letter to the commissioners and by their attendance at the commission meeting.

The city also authorized Kenmark, Inc. to paint parking lines and cross walks next week within the city. Cost estimates were in the range of $1,800.

Also authorized was the awarding of the engineering and inspection contract to Granger Engineering for the Peninsula Beach project.

The commissioners also discussed the possible purchase of the "Heavenly Hideaway" building as a future historical museum and decided to take no action on finding a site for a museum.

They also agreed in principle, to allow a 57 foot boat to dock at the city marina for the summer. The owner of the boat proposed to tie up at the end of the boat docks where other large boats had tied up in the past. He will pay for the installation of piers as well as slip rental for the season.

Mushroom count slim, but contest great

Winners of the 1986 27th National Mushroom Hunt included Wayne Stevens, third place, non-resident men; Jill Huntoon, third, non-resident women; Butch Williams, second, non-resident men; Mildred Gillian, second, non-resident women; Jeff Lindsay, first, non-resident men; Becky Holmes, second, resident women; Susan Matison, first place resident women; Gerry Boris, third, resident women; Stan Boris, first, grand championship division; Tony Romero, third, resident men; and Glenn Truit first place, resident men.

Dry weather makes hunters work

On the one hand, the weather made for a great festival, the carnival had a successful weekend along with many of the area businesses.

But on the other hand, the good weather made for poor to slim mushroom hunting as the results of the 27th National Mushroom Hunting Championships showed.

The winner of the professional division, Stan Boris of Charlevoix and a former Boyne City native, only found 91 mushrooms total for the two days of collecting. His 46 on Saturday and 45 on Sunday were far more than former national champion Dana Shaler. Shaler, of Boyne City, came up with 48 mushrooms found on Saturday to take the early lead, but headed off in the wrong direction for the Sunday 90 minute period and only found one. Shaler took the second place followed by Marshall Holmes in third place with a two day total of 27.

In the resident women's division, Susan Matison of Boyne City had a 24 count in the championship finals held on Sunday. Her Saturday count was 14.

Taking second place among the resident women was Becky Holmes of Traverse City who found 23 while Gerry Boris of Charlevoix, took third place with 21.

Resident men's division was won by Glen Truit of Boyne City with a count of 31 for the finals. He was followed by Mark Hall, Boyne City, who came in with 20 and Tony Romero, East Jordan, taking third place with 16.

In the non-resident women's division, Judy Owen of Royal Oak, took the first place with 56 mushrooms. Owen also took the highest count for the finals with her mushrooms. Mildred Gillian of Tipp City, Ohio, took second place with 29 and Jill Huntoon, Elsie, finished in third with 26.

The non-resident men division was won by Jeff Lindsay of Grand Rapids who found 40 mushrooms. He was followed by Butch Williams, Centralia, Ill., who had 26. Taking third place was Wayne Stevens, of Salem, Ill., with 14.

The count of mushrooms was a disaster as compared to previous years. Officials could only give for a reason that the lack of rain the weeks preceding the event made for the slim picking.

Mushrooms have a very high water content and without the water to make them grow they were found sparingly, according to the hunters.

If it had rained, one official told the Press, the ideal conditions for mushroom hunting possibly would have brought in more mushrooms than the Lions Club members could count. While that didn't happen, officials from the club are looking to next year to bring out the mushrooms that didn't grow this season.

In another contest held in the city, the group of Wendy Hosmer, Delia Genson and Amy Barden took the first place in the annual high school art department's store window painting contest. Their award winning window was on the glass of the White Rose ladies apparel location. Second place in the window contest was won by the group who painted up the Bob Mather's Ford dealership, consisting of Mike Meadows, Patty Johnson and Tim Cook.

Third place was taken by Paula Fortan, Shanna Grams, Shawn Bowman, Linda Judkins, Jean Purroll and Hank Abney for their window at Barretts of Boyne furniture store.

BC Schools face housing problem

Boyerne City schools are facing a real problem as they must decide what to do with class sizes and rooms in the elementary school. The decision will have to be made at a special meeting to be held next Monday night in the high school media center.

The problem was brought up to the board when the Boyne City Nursery School asked if they could use the portable classroom next to the middle school next year.

While they were not told they could, the board did hear a discussion the long-range planning committee has been talking over recently.

The committee has been trying to decide how to fit all of the classes into the elementary school due to the growth of the student population this past year.

One of the many options the board is considering is making the class sizes larger by having less sections for many of the kindergarten through fifth grades. They also have another option which might move the fifth graders into the middle school, or asking the voters to approve building new classrooms on the elementary school.

The long-range planning committee has looked at the school's many different problems and out of the options considered has not yet made a recommendation to the full board as to what could be done to house the students.

If class sizes are increased there would be room for the present class load, but if they decide to try to reduce class size to maintain quality education, then the school will be short two classrooms.

East Jordan--The re-zoning of a section of M66 south was approved by the East Jordan city council recently, and made available to the property owners involved some positive re-sale opportunities.

The parcels of land in question are located from the southern borders of Wickes south to Bridge Street and included four places of residence. Three of the houses are included in the stretch from Wickes to Bridge Street, while the fourth is located across the street near Glen's.

The changes in zoning status were from R1, strictly residential, to R2, meaning that the properties involved could be represented as residential or commercial properties. The zoning change complies with the future plan of the city and deleted the problem of spot zoning. Spot zoning is being removed from the over-all outlook of the city in order to keep certain areas in uniform standards with neighboring properties. This act of re-zoning eliminated future requests for re-zoning by including four

City hears concerns on assessments

Over 100 people showed up at the Boyne City Hall Tuesday night to express their feelings on the way the city has proposed to fund improvements to the city's infrastructure. The public hearing was held to help the city decide which way it should go to pay for the proposed projects.

The meeting turned into a general "bitching" session with the city officials hearing the residents say they were against the setting up of any special assessment district, any raise in taxes, water or sewer rates, rebuilding of the roads or any of the actions the city has proposed by the use of special assessment districts to pay for the projects.

Many in attendance were older citizens who thought the improvements proposed would cost them more than they thought it would be worth.

One resident told the city if the costs to him were as much as proposed in a letter sent out by the city, then the city would be owing some of the property as he wasn't going to pay for it.

Many others expressed concerns with the need for many of the projects, telling the city not to do certain projects.

City commissioners, hearing of the many complaints on the way the city is being run, tried to get input from the residents on other possible ways to fund improve-

FOOD IS BEAUTIFUL

This is what "Lowneys Cookbook" published in 1908 states about

GARNISHINGS

"It has been said that 'what appeals to the eye generally appeals to the palate.' Use care and taste in serving; dainty service will make the simplest food attractive. Never allow any food which looks unsightly to be served. Toasted bread burned on one side may take away the appetite, but toasted a golden brown with crusts cut off and then cut into strips and served in between the folds of a fresh doily will appeal to the most fastidious."

Now we do not go to this much effort for eye appeal, we know that "Food is Beautiful." Our modern host or hostess knows this and uses the food itself as trimmings; how glad we are that we can now be more casual. Not too many years ago it was not the accepted thing to eat any of the garnishings. I read

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

I had always heard that when the black flies are out biting, the white morels are out also. But last weekend was ridiculous.

No, I didn't get all bitten up by black flies, but I couldn't find a mushroom either. I looked in what I thought were ideal conditions, I even took my mushroom finding daughter and our reporter Jerry Froats with me in case I would get lost.

We drove to a spot somewhere past the 150 pickers who were dropped off on Saturday for their mushroom hunting period, drove up a two track road into the wilderness, parked, and started to look.

We went up the hills and down them, but did not even see anything other than one twenty day old "beefsteak" that had shown signs of insects eating, drying skin and spore. Not even worth picking.

I had thought after all the trips I've made into the woods with past national champions that I could find something special. You know, that place where the mushrooms grow in rings, but nope, couldn't even find a case of poison ivy.

That will probably be it for my mushroom hunting experience of the season. Unless we get some rain. Then I will be closing up the office and heading out to the hills, possibly along with a few hundred locals who are waiting for the same thing.

In the meantime, I think I will be buying mushrooms from those few who have figured out a way to find them when they are not coming out in quantities for amateur hunters like myself.

So if you have any to sell, reasonable, give me a call. If I can scare up a few bucks, I might be in the market for a bunch.

Just think, summer unofficially starts with Memorial Day and the summer tourist season is already gearing up for what they hope is a great one.

Tourists will have to watch out for all the construction equipment moving around town though, as Boyne City and East Jordan are becoming the places for the re-growth of the northwest.

One casual observer of the area told me the other day we have lost our sizzle. Tourists are going other places with as much or more frequency than they are coming here. I was inclined to go along with him until he was telling me all this during the annual Florida Bound exodus that happens every spring.

If this area has lost its sizzle, this side of the county can't be blamed. We seem to be attracting more developers every day who want to become part of the great happenings to Boyne and East Jordan.

If you haven't noticed the community, drive around and see all of the projects. But the important thing is that there are more coming. Boyne City is the hot spot of the north and while a few folks may not like it, they really don't have much choice as those who do want the development are out numbering them.

Remembrances

A notation with this picture identifies it as East Jordan in the 1930s. In the 30 years since last week's picture of the same location, businesses have changed, lamp posts have been installed, facades have changed, but it looks as though East Jordan is still hopping. If you have any old photographs of the area that you would like to share with our readers, please bring them in and we will make a copy to publish in the Remembrances section.

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

The sun's back in brilliant form again and certainly the sight delights me. But after such a long time without a good showing, I'd forgotten that for me bright sunlight has its down side. It embarrasses me.

Because I'm an optimist, I don't think of myself as a poor housekeeper. Casual is how I see my housekeeping. That has a nice, jaunty sound. And when it comes to dusting, I'm extraordinarily casual.

I do dust now and then. But my emphasis is more on then than now. Then is in the future, in this instance anyway, and makes no demands on my todays.

This year has allowed me to be more casual than usual. During the late fall and winter months, the sun did little more than slightly light the inside of the house. So surfaces like tables and the bar snuggled under light blankets of dust and no one was the wiser. Well, that's not quite true. But the dust wasn't awfully obvious, so its presence wasn't disquieting, at least to me. But then came spring. And the sunlight spotlighted my sins of omission.

It's not the wielding of the dust-cloth itself that I have such an aversion to. It's getting all the stuff picked up in order to get to the surface that needs dusting. I examine everything as I pick it up and try to decide whether it belongs on that table or elsewhere.

There are always several magazines with one article in them that once seemed worthwhile keeping. But a month or so later, I wonder. So I have to sit down and reread the articles in order to make up my mind. And I end up throwing out some magazines, which makes me feel noble and sad at the same time.

This leads me to stop dusting while I consider my strong attachment to the printed word. I wonder if there's a name for this kind of attachment and whether it's a real neurosis that I should worry about. And I decide that I shouldn't, or probably not anyway. The only harm it does, after all, is create a bit of clutter here and there about the house.

Continuing my dusting, I pick up a few books in the process of being read. And I'm tempted to read some more. But I usually don't. I just distribute the books around so that the piles on various tables look fairly even, just to give the place a look of symmetry.

And there's always the little stuff like paper clips and rubber bands and change and vaguely familiar looking buttons. These have to be resettled with those of their own kind.

The process seems so picky and unrewarding. It shouldn't take so much effort just to make the place presentable in sunlight.

Things are pretty well dusted up right now, but it's a temporary thing. Dust regenerates faster than the speed of lightning. I don't know why and I've never tried to find out. I figure that scientific explanation wouldn't make me feel any happier.

I keep telling myself that the presence of sunshine, especially after such a long absence, is a joy. I shouldn't be complaining over a minor thing like dusting. I keep telling myself, but it doesn't work.

This is one example of a non-profit group making use of the Save-Share Program to help raise funds. There are many more groups using it, too. Glen's wants everyone in Boyne City to know about Save-Share and hopes more groups will use it to raise funds.

All a group has to do is register with the store manager and begin saving the green cash register tapes. Glen's will pay 1 percent of the total qualified amount of all tapes brought in by any registered group; and not just once, but each time a group brings in $25.00 worth of slips or more.

Fifth grade students from Boyne City and Boyne Falls visited the William Korthase farm last Friday on a field trip sponsored by the Soil Conservation Department in Boyne City. The students learned various aspects of farm life by visiting a pond, forest, field, and milk parlor. At each stop, they heard a lecture from area specialists. When it was over, they enjoyed a yogurt and cookie break courtesy of the Korthases and the Michigan Milk Producers.

Late water, sewer payments raised

East Jordan--Late payment of water and sewer service in the city of East Jordan has been accelerated to 10% of the total bill after city council met to discuss the funding of sewer improvements in the city.

The 1986-87 budget for the city of East Jordan called for extensive repairs in the system when sewer expenditures revealed that many deficiencies were apparent. The sewer systems digester and boiler are badly deteriorated, and the hydrostatic water infiltrator is overloading the systems rated capacity. Also monitoring of the water systems output is insufficient for representative sampling and a new purging pump system must be installed to correct the problem.

During a council discussion set up to deal with the problem of funding the overhauls required to upgrade the sewer system, council proposed to raise the present fees by five dollars per living unit, meaning that apartments and other dual purpose dwellings will each be charged for their own service.

When late charges became the topic of discussion, a proposal to raise the late charge to 5% of the total bill was presented. The issue was tossed around and a ratio for a $50 bill figured that the late charge would be $2.50. Some members of council were of the opinion that a late charge of $2.50 was a paltry amount, and that a higher penalty should be instituted. It was revealed to the council that 50% of the water and sewer bills were coming in late and the 10% late charge would accompany the billing statements.

After much discussion on how to spend the newly discovered source of revenue, it was decided to split the late charge in half, giving 5% to the sewer system, and giving the remainder to the water system. This action would enable the city to upgrade the water system in unison with the sewer system.

Historical Society to host museum re-opening

On Saturday, May 17 between 4-6 p.m., the Boyne City Historical Society will celebrate the first anniversary of the Caboose Museum. Christened last spring, the last car in the now defunct White Pine Line has served as a temporary museum for the area's artifacts and treasures.

Closed for the winter, the Caboose Museum will reopen with a first anniversary celebration, "Hors D'oeuvres Extra Ordinaire" at the Depot Restaurant. The historical society will welcome guests with an extravagant hot and cold finger food smorgasbord prepared by Glenn and Lyssa Truitt. Door prizes will add excitement to the event.

Tickets are available for a $6.00 donation from the Bread Box Bakery, the Chamber Office or the Depot Restaurant. Proceeds will benefit the proposed museum.

pieces of property together. The re-zoning request was presented to the council by Ellen Cihak representing Jordan Valley Realty. The request was also in compliance with the zoning commission over-all plan for the city. One of the properties involved is currently in the process of being sold to an individual who wishes to offer satellite dish sales to the community. Another section of land included in the re-zoning act is owned by the Everetts. They were present at the zoning hearing to inquire what was taking place with their property status. After lengthy discussion of the matter, the Everetts were satisfied with the results of the zoning change and offered no objections. It appeared that having the advantage of the option of resale opportunities in dual zoning status was appealing to the Everetts, and Cihak informs that other property owners included in the rezoning are satisfied with the situation also.

Resale shop opens in Boyne Falls

A new resale shop is opening in Boyne Falls, June 5, according to Pat Chamberlin, the manager of the operation.

The shop is being run as part of the funding program for the Challenge Mountain organization which has taken over the former Walloon Hills Ski Resort and turned it into a place for handicapped skiers.

Located across the street from the Chateau Ptak Ski shop in downtown Boyne Falls, the store will be selling children's, ladies and mens apparel along with a few furniture items, dishes and glassware.

Donations are being accepted from residents provided it's clean and in good shape. Donations are being accepted on Wednesdays through Saturdays only.

Proceeds from the shop will be going to further develop the Challenge Mountain program which started last year at the former resort.

The resort was donated to the program by Boyne USA Resorts.

The Challenge organization is still looking for volunteers to help sort out the many items of clothing, or for any of the many other positions needed to help with the program.

The store will be open Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays after June 5th for business from area residents.

The operation is staffed by volunteers from the area.

Others involved include Evonne Metzger, Joan Foster, Gerry Beyer, Tillie Jenkins and Mary McNamara.

Challenge Mountain is trying to provide the skiing experience to youngsters and others who may not have the natural ability to ski without training and supervision.

East Jordan High School performing "Cheaper By the Dozen"

This Thursday and Friday, the East Jordan High School will be performing the "all-school play "Cheaper by the Dozen." Showtime for each night is 7:00 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets may be purchased from members of the cast or at the door for $3.00 adult and $1.50 for children.

"Cheaper by the Dozen" is taken from a true book about the Gilbreth family. The play, written by Frank Gilbreth, Jr., blends both comedy and drama by showing a conflict of interest between dad and the oldest daughter, Anne. Anne wants to be like all of the other kids but her dad wants her to study hard enough so she can skip grades.

Sean Shea has the job of playing the lead role of dad, while Jody McDermott will play Anne. The rest of the children are played by Michelle Decker, Max Gibbard, Amy Sulak, Mike Carey, Jason Vallad, Audra Carney, Marianne Petrie, and Lena Schmitt. Other cast members include Danita Bennett, Michelle Beauvais, Adrian Maule, Carl Knop, Trisha Fox, and Justin Parks. Miss Susan Petrie is directing the play with the help of senior Bill Lytle.

fold on Division, frightening children at play and racing past the cemetery as though drivers were afraid of the dead?

Division lacks curb and gutter and was never made to carry the traffic it does today. There are times when, if you slow down to wipe your brow, the car behind will go around on the grass to get ahead of you. That should never happen on Division. (There are some things that should happen on Division, but that isn't one of them.)

If Division is going to be an established truck-caravan through town short-cut, residents along the way should be notified that it is no longer a mere side street, but a main developing thoroughfare with a much greater potential for accidents.

I am not a preacher. I am not what is today called an activist. And I am going through all sorts of do dads to stop from being a crank. So I do not usually speak right out like I just did about Division Street.

I'm more likely to hold back, sit in the corner and whine. But this time I figured that the increased activity on Division is so fraught with danger it merited bringing the whine out of the corner and scattering it around in public.

where a girl was not accepted into a college sorority because she ate the lettuce under her salad. I am glad that we are allowed to eat the beautiful greens on our plates when we feel like it. Recently at a local restaurant the touch of green was a sprig of Swiss chard, a luscious combination of light and dark green to brighten up a winter brunch.

My friend, Rosalyn Chapel, always sets a delightfully attractive table for any meal, and I am thinking of a centerpiece which she made from her garden vegetables. This centerpiece was made to eat as well as to look at, except for the squash in the center. On a large round platter she put a beautiful round yellow squash (a green one would also do) in the center; then surrounded it with pieces of fresh garden vegetables in finger food sizes to dip in a sauce which she passed. The vegetables were green and red peppers, tiny carrots, cherry tomatoes, pieces of raw summer squash, zucchini and cucumbers. This was a centerpiece which I remember with pleasure. With this she served a casserole of macaroni, tuna and cheese, and a potato salad, with ice cream and cookies for dessert; a delicious meal out on her patio.

This next recipe illustrates how food is beautiful; stir-frys are always to attractive.

Cooking

GREEN BEANS WITH TOMATOES

1 lb. fresh green beans—halve if large
1 clove of garlic, squeezed
1 teaspoon basil
3 tablespoons oil
½ cup walnut halves

1½ cups cherry tomatoes, halved
Cook the beans in boiling water 3 to 5 minutes. Drain. In large skillet saute garlic and basil in oil 1 minute. Add nuts and stir-fry 1 minute. Add beans and cherry tomatoes and stir-fry 2 minutes. A dish beautiful to behold!

You will want to stir-fry the new asparagus on the market. This one with oranges and water chestnuts is a real "posh" way to serve that luscious asparagus.

ORANGE SESAME ASPARAGUS
1½ lbs. fresh asparagus, ends discarded, cut into 1½ in. pieces
3 tablespoons sesame seeds
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon oil
1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 cup orange juice
1 can (11 oz.) Mandarin orange segments, drained
Cook asparagus in boiling water 3 to 4 minutes, drain and set aside. Saute sesame seed in butter and oil until lightly toasted. Add chestnuts and stir-fry 1 minute, add the orange juice mixed with the orange sections and stir-fry about 2 minutes. My friends really liked this dish.

Alex the Alert bicycle visits Boyne City and East Jordan schools

"Alex the Always Alert Talking Bicycle"—the most popular bicycle safety program ever offered by AAA Michigan—visited Boyne City and East Jordan Elementary schools this week.

The visit was part of a three-month statewide program aimed at reducing bicycle injuries and deaths involving students riding in traffic.

Before school is out, 150,000 school children will hear Alex's safety message in 480 assemblies across the state," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Safety and Traffic manager. "Alex's message is that bicycling is fun, but there are certain safety rules that must be followed.

"Alex instructs the students about bicycle courtesy, basic riding techniques and how and when to mix with traffic," Cullen said. "He also explains about riding one on a bicycle, night riding, bicycle maintenance, and what side of the road or street to ride on."

Alex is a talking BMX-type bicycle. An AAA Michigan safety consultant and Alex tell the assembled students about bike safety.

Last used in 1979, Alex has been refurbished and his message has been updated to include the latest bicycle safety, security and maintenance information. Separate programs have been developed for kindergarten through third grade and fourth through sixth grades.

During 1984, 47 bicyclists were killed and 3,657 injured in 4,197 accidents. The number of accidents probably is much higher because many minor injuries never are reported, Cullen added.

"Since youngsters under age 15 account for 57 percent of the deaths and 51 percent of the injuries reported in bicycle accidents, it is important that every student understand the correct safety procedures," Cullen said. "The safety message is especially important as youngsters get their bikes ready to ride as warmer weather approaches."

ments and repairs to the city infrastructure.

The commission kept asking how the residents would feel about a proposed city income tax idea, starting at the Tuesday noon meeting.

With a straw vote, quite a few of the residents seemed to be in favor of the city income tax, provided the money would be spent on the infrastructure only.

Other votes for special assessment districts did not fare well.

One resident asked for a vote that was not taken. He asked the commissioners to find out how many people at the meeting would want the city to just tighten up their belts to find money for the improvements.

Former City Manager Forbes Tompkins asked what had happened to all of the money he had in city build up back when he was in office. He also asked if the city had considered the new beach to be a higher priority than the streets.

Tompkins ended up by asking the city to look at areas within the city budget where cuts could be made.

The city has been running on a tight budget for the last three years, according to present City Manager Randy Frykberg. Frykberg also told the audience you can't compare the past with the future.

Commissioner Steve Moody told the crowd you can't have your cake and eat it too. He said the city has tried to accommodate many concerns of citizens and will continue to do so if they can find the funding.

Moody then asked if the city should do the improvements suggested.

While some residents agreed the sewer and water work should be done by assessment, they did not feel the roads and sidewalk costs should be borne by the property owner.

In closing the public hearing, Mayor Pro Tem Thelma Behling told the audience none of the commissioners wanted special as-

The East Jordan girls also won their meet by scoring 68 points to assessments, but they did want the public input to help decide the way to go to cover the cost of the improvements.

In other action, the commissioners voted to sell the two parcels of land next to the beach subject to the proposal presented to the commission at the noon meeting. In essence, the city would be selling one parcel, parcel A, next to the Maple Street right-of-way to Northern Associates for $65,000. They would also agree to a property swap to obtain land next to the wastewater treatment plant for additional parking for a portion of the Main Street right-of-way.

Central Lake 59 and Gaylord St. Mary's 35.

Placing first for the Devils were Jody Cordova in the mile and two mile runs; Jennifer Moreau in the 400; Erin Snyder in the high jump; the 800 relay team of Moreau, Kristy Miller, Jill Peter, and Heather Klooster; the 1600 relay team of Miller, Klooster, Moreau, and Tricia Armstrong; and the 3200 relay team of Cordova, Snyder, Peters, and Laura Nemecek.

BC Elementary may get portable classrooms

If, going to the reduced class size recommendation, the board will have to look at other options. One would be to buy or rent portable classrooms. Another would be to construct new classrooms on the present building.

Dr. Richard Fish told the board "any option we take seems to be a short range solution to a long-range problem."

One problem the school administrators are looking at is the amount of growth in the community due to the increase in manufacturing plants. The administrators say they can't look into the future as they don't know what new plants will do to the system as far as student enrollments. They are estimating it will increase, but how much remains to be seen, according to Superintendent Rich Kelly.

Another option being looked at is to move the eighth grade into the high school to allow the move of the fifth grade into the middle school.

Some teachers in the audience recommended the school system stay with smaller class sizes because of the better education the students could receive. Others suggested renting the portable classrooms instead of buying.

The committee hopes to come up with a recommendation this week to present to the board next Monday night. Parents are urged to attend the meeting and a letter is supposed to go home with each elementary student discussing the dilemma.

Also discussed was the upcoming switch in adult education from the Straits Area Community Schools group based in St. Ignace, to the Kingsley Area Community Education Consortium based in Kingsley.

Shelly Martin, director for community education for the system, told the board she is looking forward to the switch as she thinks it will give more control over the local program. She also told the board the teachers will be able to be better paid, the school system will receive money to pay for some of the indirect costs, and the local system will have control over the enrichment classes being offered. Martin said she expects a smoother working relationship between the schools than she has had in the past.

The board then approved the requests of the Boyne City Little League and the City Recreation Department to use the softball and hardball baseball fields this summer providing they provide all maintenance.

It was then agreed to file a claim against the State of Michigan for underfunding a state mandated education program. The resolution was requested by the school's attorney to help them get some more money from the state.

Distributive Education will be started next year after the board approved the new class in the high school. The program will allow students to work in positions during the school day as part of their education. Commonly called a co-op program, the students will be allowed to take the class and then work at area businesses during the school day as part of their educational requirements. The board also approved a new textbook for the class.

Other textbooks approved for next year include a new language arts book for the elementary level with an emphasis on grammar and writing. Another textbook on the same program was approved for the middle school which stresses writing.

The board then agreed to hire a new teacher for the high school. After a job posting and other requirements were met, the school will be hiring Chris Brilinski to teach physical education, English and health. She is also qualified to coach in the athletic programs. She has had nine years of teaching experience according to principal Warren Wade, at Wade's previous school system. Kelly told the board she would come into the system at the fifth year salary level.

The board also agreed to continue the student insurance program with First Agency, Inc. The insurance is secondary coverage on students for school related accidents.

Next week the board will be hearing of two coaching resignations as well as making the decision on the elementary school class loads.

Boyne City Commission Minutes

BOYNE CITY CITY COMMISSION MINUTES

WEEKLY MEETING, APRIL 22, 1986 - 11:30 A.M.: All commissioners present except Fitzpatrick. There were 16 people in attendance.

Spring Clean-up days were set for April 29 and 30, north of the River and May 1 and 2, south of the River. Beautification Weekend was set for May 17 and 18, with the City furnishing a 40 yard dumpster to be located by the Street Garage, for citizens to bring their debris to be dumped. A fee will be charged for larger items.

A letter was sent to the Liquor Control Commission stating that the City is opposed to Carter's Food Store getting a SDD Liquor License Permit. Present stores adequately fill the needs of the community for such a service.

It was approved to sell Parcels "A" and "B" at Peninsula Beach to Northern Associates for $65,500. The vote was 4 Yes 1 No and the motion carried. This action had to be re-voted this week because under the City Charter at least 4 Commissioners must vote in the affirmative to buy or sell any City property.

It was voted to transfer an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate for Wolverine Election to Lake County when the company moves there next year.

Meeting adjourned at 12:45 p.m.

WEEKLY MEETING, APRIL 29, 1986 - 11:30 A.M.: All Commissioners were present. There were 18 people present at the meeting.

EJ sweeps two doubleheaders

Last week, the East Jordan Red Devil's baseball team upped their season record to 11-3 (7-3 in the Ski Valley Conference) by sweeping double headers from the Pellston Hornets and Bellaire Eagles.

Last Monday, the Devils hosted the Pellston Hornets and defeated them by scores of 12-2 and 10-2. In the first game the Devils bats were somewhat quiet through the first five innings as they collected five runs on only four hits. But in the bottom of the sixth, the Devils scored seven more times to defeat the Hornets by the 10 run mercy rule.

Scott Bartig went the distance for the Devils giving up four hits and two walks while striking out eight. Getting the hits for the Red Devils were John Richards and Dan Pepin with two each (one of Richards being a solo blast in the fourth inning) and Dennis Skrocki, John Hribljan, and Bill Lytle with one each.

The Devils started out quick in the second game by scoring three runs in each of the first three innings. Greg Kitson earned the victory by going five innings while allowing three hits and two walks while fanning eleven.

Collecting hits for East Jordan were Mark Moore with two and Dennis Skrocki, Greg Kitson, Bill Lytle, and Bill Kraemer with one a piece. Lytle drove in three of the Devils runs.

East Jordan played host to the Bellaire Eagles on Thursday and handed them a pair of losses by scores of 10-5 and 8-7.

The Devils got on the scoreboard first and held a 5-0 lead going into the fourth. The Eagles then scored four runs to pull to within one. But the Devils bats got moving in the fifth as they scored five more times to seal the victory. Bartig earned the victory by going four innings while giving up three hits, five walks and four runs (non earned) while striking out three. Freshman Matt Bishop came in on relief to earn his second save of the year by pitching the final three innings, while allowing two hits and three walks, while striking out three.

Collecting hits for East Jordan were Steve Dionne with three, Greg Kitson with two, and Dennis Skrocki, John Hribljan, Bill Kraemer, Matt Bishop, and Dave Russell each added one. Bishop's was a two run homer in the fifth.

The second game was a lot closer than the Devils wished. After leading by a score of 8-3 going into the sixth, the Devils quickly saw the lead diminish to one after a grand slam by the Eagles. Greg Kitson showed a lot of poise by pitching out of the jam in the sixth after the home run. With no outs an error and a walk put runners on first and second for the Eagles. Kitson then got the next batter on a fly ball and then forced the next batter to hit into an inning ending double play. Kitson when the distance giving up four hits, five walks and six earned runs while striking out ten.

The Devils managed only five hits but took advantage of walks and errors by scoring all of their runs in the third and fourth inning. Collecting the hits for East Jordan were Dennis Skrocki, Greg Kitson, Bill Lytle, Dan Pepin, and Carl Knop with one each.

The Devils will host Harbor Springs on Thursday.
