News Briefs

Starting next week, Silbar Communications will be inserting the Northwest Michigan Vacationeer into the County Press as well as making it available to over 12,000 tourists each week of the summer. Distribution for the Vacationeer includes Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties as well as the I-75 corridor and other locations in Northern Michigan. Advertisers are asked to call the County Press for advertising information and rates.

A new bill was introduced in the state legislature which would make all fast food restaurants place take-out food in biodegradable containers. Proponents of the bill say the styrofoam and plastic coated wrappers are incinerated less cleanly and efficiently than plain paper and cardboard containers. If passed, the food firms would have one year to get the new package or face a $1,000 per day fine.

If you are one of those who need to use the tax amnesty program which is underway, you are not alone. So far, 13.3 million dollars have been collected by the state in an effort to let taxpayers pay off bills without interest.

Boyne starts income tax research

Boyne City--City commissioners spent most of their Tuesday noon meeting discussing some of the proposals concerning how the city will find the money to repair and replace the infrastructure improvements they say are needed throughout the city.

The improvements are the roads, streets, sewer and water lines that are aging and needing replacement according to city officials.

The meeting was kind of a review of their monthly evening meeting two weeks ago where residents told commissioners they did not like the way the city was proposing the work was to be paid for. The city had proposed an elaborate special assessment district would pay as much as 80 percent of the cost of the improvement.

The commissioners had also broached the idea of a city-wide income tax at the noon meeting held the same day. They asked some of the residents what they thought of the idea at the evening meeting.

At Tuesday's meeting, Commissioner Cass Toton told the rest of the commission they would have to take a long hard look at what had to be done and how the city proposed to pay for it. He told the commissioners that before starting an income tax program, they should hold a meeting with business and industrial people to see what their concerns would be as they would be the ones who would have to provide the information to the taxpayers.

He also suggested the city may have to give a tax cut in order to get the income tax plan approved by the voters.

Thelma Behling told the other commissioners the city needs a definite plan. Exactly what is needed, and a definite length of time the tax would be collected, were some of the concerns she had heard from residents.

Commissioner Bill Grimm thought he heard at the evening meeting the city could have an income tax to pay for the road improvements, and the sewer and water main improvements should be paid for by those using them.

Moody agreed with Grimm and said if the city were to have an income tax, it would have to go strictly for the road improvements and not for sewer and water. "That would be a whole different bag," he reflected, "as to how we would have to pay for those improvements."

Memorial Day weekend memorable

Boyne City--"The city was hoping" one local observer said after he glanced down the main street on Saturday afternoon. "Maybe this will make the beginnings of a good summer for all of us merchants."

According to some of the tourist businesses in the area, most said they had a good weekend, greeting and serving those who were in town. Quite a few of the restaurants also said they had a good weekend serving dinners and lunches.

Many of the bars also reported a busy weekend.

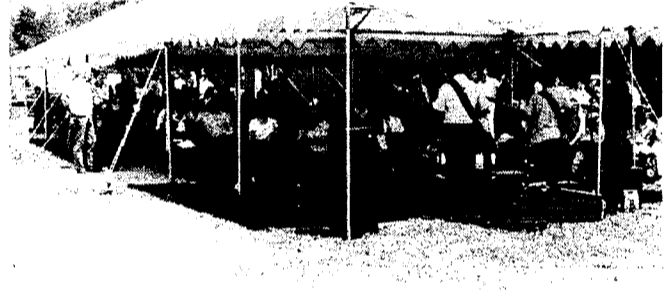

City officials were amazed at the turnout for the second annual fly-in and pig roast held at the Boyne City Airport on Sunday. "The weather couldn't have been better," one of the people in charge said. Two pigs were roasted and served to about 300 people who showed up to look at some of the vintage airplanes and cars that lined the taxiway.

Saturday quite a few visited the Bay Township Hall for an Ice Cream Social being held to earn money for the annual Horton Bay Fourth of July parade.

While on Sunday, a crowd rested in the shade of a tent while they waited for the roast pig to be cooked. They also had time to view many aircraft on display as the city held their second annual Fly-In.

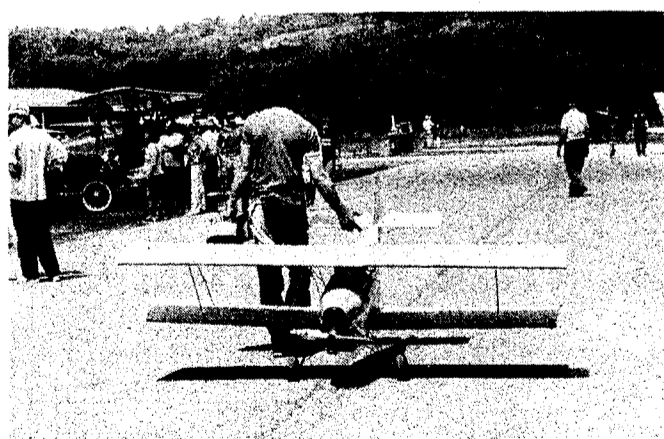

Two volunteers carved up the roast pig, making sure everyone got a good hunk of meat. There were two pigs roasted up for the hungry crowds and over 200 dinners were served.

Bob Winchester flew his newly acquired aircraft over from Charlevoix to display it at the fly-in.

Don Ziegler of East Jordan turned on the smoke as he went into a 45 degree climb during a demonstration of acrobatic flying. He was joined by Chuck Scherpling. Both flew the acrobatic plane call a Pitts Special.

It's unusual to see an airplane being dragged along the taxiway, but this large model bi-wing was handled that way after demonstrating it could fly.

The real purpose for the weekend was to honor those who have served in our armed forces. Here, members of the Ladies Auxiliary placed a wreath in their honor.

Shortly after the wreath placement, the rifle squad fired a three round salute to those who fell in service to the country.

Evangeline zoning map rejected

A proposed draft of the Evangeline Township zoning ordinances and a proposed zoning map were sent back to the zoning commission for further work after citizens of the township literally tore the proposal to pieces with suggestions and comments for the betterment of the township.

The most controversial issue became evident when the proposed zoning map of the township indicated that Young State Park would be re-zoned from RC (recreational) to R1, (single family residence). In fact just one small parcel of land remained as RC and was not even indicated as such on the proposed zoning map. At first glance, one member of the audience commented that the map proposal was "primitive, indeed, and difficult to follow". One of the most vocal objectors to rezoning the State park to R1 was Anne Thurston who wanted to know why the zoning commission had even considered the park for R1 status.

The answer was truly unclear, and indicated that the state sometimes trades property with private individuals. Thurston was also informed that such development of the park was unlikely as most of the area is wetlands and stipulations that govern development of such lands are nearly impossible to comply with. Thurston was still not satisfied as to why the proposed change was offered and countered with the statement the township should not seem to offer the property for development at all. "Why wave a red flag for everyone to see? You're inviting conflict with this type of proposal."

RICE
Every spring I watch for that happy bird, the bright yellow, white and black Bob-O-Link. I even drive out on country roads where I have seen them before, and lo and behold, about the middle of May there he is singing to his mate.

In the 1879 edition of McGuffey's reader the poem "Robert of Lincoln" was used as a moral lesson "Worthy of the attention of all little birds and boys" not to over indulge as the Bob-O-Link does when he is old and fills himself upon rice. In South Carolina he is called the rice bird where he plays havoc with the rice crop; gorging himself so he can hardly fly. However, I still enjoy reading

John Logan's
ROBERT OF LINCOLN
"Merrily swinging on briar and weed
Near to the nest of his little dame,
Over the mountain-side or mead,
Robert of Lincoln is telling his name
Bob-O-Link, Bob-O-Link
Spink, Spank, Spink"

Here are a few notes that I find interesting about rice.

- 1-Rice grew wild in pre-historic India and tropical Southeast Asia. About one-half of the world's population is almost wholly dependent upon rice.
- 2-Many Asians eat rice 3 times a day and often very little else.
- 3-It was first grown in America in South Carolina.
- 4-United States exports thousands of bushels every year—even to South Pacific nations.
- 5-United States ranks among the leading exporters of rice though it furnishes only a little over 1% of the world's total rice crop.

The places to find rice recipes are in the old cookbooks. Our grandmothers cooked rice in many varied ways. It was a wholesome staple, was inexpensive, and a good "keeper", and easy to digest—especially the way they made rice pudding.

Grandma on the farm had lots of good milk and a fire going in the cookstove so it was no problem to put a dish of pudding into the oven for a couple of hours.

INDIAN RICE PUDDING
(Lowmies Cookbook Pub. 1908)

4 cups milk
1/4 cup rice
1/2 cup molasses
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon salt
Mix ingredients in the order given, pour into deep baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake two hours. Stir once during cooking. For Indian Rice with apples: To the rice pudding, add two cups pared and quartered apples before baking.

Home grown, fresh, green peppers will soon be available at our garden markets, and here is a delicious way to use them.

RICE STUFFING FOR PEPPERS
Cut off the tops of green peppers; remove the seeds and par-boil peppers for about 5 minutes. Cook 1 cup rice in chicken stock. (I use the chicken bouillon for this) until tender; add 1/4 cup finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons red pepper (or pimiento) finely chopped. Two tablespoons melted butter, a few chopped mushrooms (a small can, drained, is OK). Season with salt and pepper.

In filling the peppers you might need to add a little more chicken stock or hot water if the filling is very thick.

This could fill 6 peppers. You might want to save some cooked rice for the next time you serve most any kind of soup, especially beef or vegetable.

RICE BALLS FOR SOUP
1 cup cold cooked rice
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, cayenne, nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 egg

As you can see the old recipes did not specify how much you use of spices. In this case the cooked rice was most likely salted while cooking; cayenne is very hot so go easy here, less than an eighth; and taste for nutmeg, some like lots of nutmeg and some families do not.

Mash rice or put through sieve, add flour, egg and seasonings. Roll into balls, allowing a teaspoon for each ball. Cook in boiling salted water until they harden on the outside. Serve hot with soup.

Citizen alert—have your blood pressure checked

Northern Michigan residents are alerted by Dr. Brian L. Youngs Medical Director for District Health Dept. No. 3 (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties) to have their blood pressure checked during May, National High Blood Pressure Month.

Army Spec. 4 Dana P. Langworthy, son of Rita M. Langworthy of Petoskey, has participated in Team Spirit '86, a Republic of Korea/United States Combined Forces Command sponsored exercise held in South Korea.

His former guardian, Dawn M. Derenzly lives in East Jordan.

Langworthy is a wheel-and-vehicle mechanic with the 19th Support Command in South Korea.

He is a 1983 graduate of Petoskey High School.

Youngs, about 30% of our area's adult population suffers from high blood pressure, or hypertension, and many are unaware of their condition.

Although more than one half of all hypertensives are aware of their condition, only about 10 percent maintain treatment that keeps their blood pressure under control.

Elevated blood pressures—if left untreated—can lead to strokes, heart failures, or kidney disease. Blood pressure is the force of blood pushing against the walls of the blood vessels. High blood pressure results when blood vessels become narrow, forcing the heart to pump harder to push blood through the body.

The causes of high blood pressure are unknown. Salt intake, obesity and lack of exercise contributes to the disease. Although there is no cure, the condition can be controlled through daily treatment that includes salt reduction, weight loss, moderate exercise and daily medication.

According to Dr. Youngs, "patients sometimes have trouble adhering to treatment because it requires a change in routine activities. Unwanted side effects that occasionally occur from medication also deters treatment maintenance."

It takes a daily, lifetime commitment that many people tend to neglect. I would like to encourage everyone to make a special effort to have his or her blood pressure checked this month. A painless blood pressure check can be done at clinics held by the District Health Department (call nearest office for scheduled times) or by someone's own physician. ## Garden Club has workshop

The Boyne Valley Garden Club met on Thursday, May 22 at Litzendurgen Place for a workshop on Japanese flower arranging with Master Judge Mildred Webb of Traverse City as guest instructor. After giving the basic principles for Japanese flower arranging, members using their own materials, created some interesting arrangements. During the business meeting plans were made to send president Lois Pollack and a delegate to the Annual State Convention at Ann Arbor June 3-5.

Other dates of interest to the members are a visit to Mr. McRae's Iris Garden in Charlevoix on May 29th. Tentative plans are for a trip to Cheboygan to see the Grass Bay Project.

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

If this wasn't a busy weekend for you, then you must not have been in Boyne City or East Jordan.

There was no limit concerning the things that could have been done, or things that needed doing amid all of the activities going on around town.

In our household a list was prepared citing all the things that needed to be done this weekend. Probably were about 20 items running from cutting the grass to washing the windows and planting the garden.

But I don't think many of them got done, because every time I turned around to do something, it wouldn't work.

I mean, the lawnmower would not start. So this week I'll have to take it to the shop and have it tuned up. The carpentry work wasn't done because I found I had purchased the wrong things to do the job. I bought carriage bolts when I should have purchased lag bolts.

It serves me right though. I should have looked at the job first instead of just blindly getting the parts. I seem to do the latter more and more as I grow older.

Then I couldn't find the squeegee to do the windows. Of course I had already made up my special cleaning fluid consisting of water and vinegar. I figure I was lucky to have found the bucket on that job.

And since other things like the laundry took priority, the garden did not get planted, the cars didn't get washed, the furniture didn't get refinished, and a whole lot of other things did not get done.

Normally, we could expect help from other members of the family, but one went on strike, and the other just plain disappeared for the hours I thought she should work.

That left all of the jobs on the list to be done by the two adults in the family.

One job is completed though, the dishes were put into the dishwasher, and then more dishes were put in the dishwasher and finally, all of the dishes were done to start off the new week.

On top of all of the work not getting done, I came down with the first of the summer colds. My nasal passages have been draining like the Boyne River, it seems. And the head starts to hurt, along with the rest of the muscles in the body.

I guess you should never plan to do things but then when you get a lot of them done, just look back and say, "Gee, I did a lot of things this weekend."

Maybe in my case, I'll do that next weekend. It looks like a weekend to almost relax in. Maybe the lawnmower will be fixed and I'll get the grass cut, get started on the carpentry and the painting, and get the table all done in time for the summer visitors.

Which brings up another point.

If you have just recently moved to the area, did you notice last weekend how many friends you have?

And did they all show up at your door?

If they didn't this past weekend, they'll be here for sure over the Fourth of July weekend.

After all, with all this talk about terrorism overseas, all those people who were supposed to go over there to spend their millions are probably coming right up here to play a little golf, a little tennis, do some fishing or waterskiing, go for a sailboat ride, or any of the other pastimes we seem to always find time to do instead of a list of things that needs to be done.

BY GAIL WARE

Jubilant and self-satisfaction radiated from Capitol Hill recently when the Senate Finance Committee finally managed to agree on a tax reform package. And the mood was justified. Committee members reaching agreement on a matter of any import, much less one of great consequence, ranks in degree of difficulty with that of a three-year-old getting through a whole summer without picking any of the neighbors' flowers. Yet most programs large and small owe their existence to committees or, more precisely, committee meetings. It's a miracle that anything ever gets done.

A Sunday School Picnic committee meeting of my acquaintance that occurred last Monday night illustrates the trouble with committees. The meeting was called for 7:00 p.m. By forty minutes past the hour, all six members had arrived.

The chairman explained that there were four items on the agenda, food being the first. The church would pay for and barbecue the meat for the picnic. The first decision to be made by the committee was what kind of meat to buy. A committee person reported that she'd read that charcoal broiling causes cancer, which touched off an argument on the subject. When the chairman got the meeting back on track, eight different possible cuts of meat were suggested. A chicken enthusiast pointed out that both pork and beef contained cholesterol. A skirmish developed over which had the most. Since no one had much hard information on the matter, the argument died and the discussion turned to chicken. The committee floundered around in whole, half or cut up chicken possibilities and ended up tabling the subject for the next meeting.

The chairman suggested potluck for the rest of the meal. Committee members agreed. But one member pointed out that a decision on the meat course had to be made before families could sign up for appropriate side dishes to bring. A short disagreement broke out as to the validity of her point.

The chair moved on to item #2 on the agenda, games. The subject of sack races caused some debate, especially regarding the condition of the sacks. The chairman, muscles tightening around his mouth, promised to check the sacks and replace as needed. Relay races came up next and were approved all around. The exact kind of things to be relayed was batted about.

As the discussion warmed up, the chairman quickly asked for volunteers to run the games. Several persons indicated that they'd be happy to but that they had a graduation open house to attend that day and so did a number of other members of the congregation.

The chairman cleared his throat and announced that the date of the picnic was item #4 on the agenda but that they might as well discuss it now. There was one other Sunday possible for the picnic: the Sunday before the proposed date. The committee groaned.

The chairman sighed. He announced that the only other item on the agenda, prizes for the games, could be covered at the next meeting. Meeting adjourned.

Certainly Sunday School Picnic committee meetings are looser than those of important committee meetings of the Senate. But the nature of man is universal, so the Senate committee must have had some of the same problems that the picnic committee did. It encourages one to know that they managed to get the job done anyway. They deserve to be jubilant and very, very pleased with themselves.

Editor,

It was our pleasure to participate for the first time in the National Mushroom Hunting contest in Boyne City last weekend. We were warmed by the friendliness of all the people we encountered. The Lions Club should be commended for their good organization of the event that enabled so many people to move smoothly and on schedule. It was interesting to us to see that the participants came from so many parts of the midwest.

As outsiders it is perhaps easier to see ways in which your event might be enhanced. The youngsters certainly enjoyed the carnival; we would like to have seen more sponsored events for adults. The merchants might have benefited from having so many potential out-of-town customers had there been some attraction to their business places.

We enjoyed the Depot, getting to know the proprietors there and appreciated the opportunity to visit with other hunters during the "mushroom seminar". A panel discussion might have promoted participation: the "pro's" leading off with some background information, then accepting questions from the others. We would like to have seen the festivities start earlier. Not only would we have been into the woods "while the dew was still on" (avocated by avid hunters) but also we think it would have been fun to come back to the park for a luncheon and exchange of tales afterwards. Then the winners could be announced at the close of the luncheon while the crowd was still assembled!

One more thought: do you have a high school marching band? Nothing like a band to make a parade a parade!

These remarks are not meant in a derogatory way. We thoroughly enjoyed being participants. We think you have a fantastic natural resource in your native morels and we appreciate your sharing with us non-residents. We hope the event grows in success and is continued forever!!

See you next year!

He: What did you do Memorial Day?

Me: I took great delight in listening to the drums and fifes of Boyne City, whooping it up in recognition of those who had fought to save this country from the clutches of greedy nations that would do us in.

He: Gotcha! Monday wasn't Memorial Day. The real date is Friday. You danced and swooned amiss. Why didn't you wait until Friday to throw your patriotism around?

Me: In Boyne City we do what the government says. If it says to celebrate on Monday instead of Friday, we kick up our heels on Monday and let Friday go to hang. Our government knows best, even though it may be wrong.

He: True. They use Memorial

Day for rest and relaxation, drinking beer instead of flag waving.

He: What can be done to make ignorant people more aware of the true meaning of Memorial Day?

Me: They can go up to Maple Lawn and have a good look at the statue of the unknown soldier. He has been standing there for seventy years. There's an inscription on the base that hasn't been read by half of the people in town.

He: What does it say?

Me: If you don't know, it means that you belong to the wrong half of the people in town.

He: I ain't the wrong half of anything. There's no need for you to bow me down with the iron heel of unjust sarcasm.

Me: Your patriotism is in short shift. If you drank less beer and waved more flags, this country would blossom in a fresh burst of hail columbia.

Suddenly I forgot what I was talking about. That can happen to people my age. So I turned to my wife, who was within hearing distance, and told her that a four dollar gloom had clouded my thoughts, asking what to do.

She kissed my throbbing temples and told me to go soak my head and think no more about it.

Weekend

Volunteers of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Posse submitted their horses to hazing and disruption during a training session recently. The session was to train the horses to not be bothered with crowds and the noises they cause. The horses were ridden by members of the posse around a circle while other members tried to frighten the horses. Many of the horses were not afraid of the strange noises, firecrackers and flares used in the training.

Thurston was vocally backed up by many other members of the audience and they, too, spoke against the proposed change. At the conclusion of the state park discussion, the zoning commission was fairly instructed by the audience as a whole to undo the proposed change on the park.

Another proposed zoning change indicated that some 65 acres of property owned by developer Rick Smith was to be rezoned from R2 to R3 status to agricultural land. Smith went into an oratory explaining to the commission just what could happen if his property were indeed to be made agriculture. Smith informed the commission that agricultural land was the easiest type of property to develop in grid fashion. He contended that under the proposed rezoning of his particular piece of property, he could measure off every 200 feet and install an access road to the rear pieces and set up "ribbon development". Smith also went on to state that he thought ribbon development was one of the poorest types of development possible and that the commission should reconsider what they proposed.

In offering a suggestion as to how the commission could properly control the development of property such as his, they might consider instituting a PUD status zone, PUD being Planned Unit Development. In this consideration the commission would hold a tighter grip on just how certain properties could be developed and would be able to set up their own standards of development. Smith also went on to say that once a PUD area was established, if a developer were to comply with the stipulations set up by the commission, it was his opinion that a permit should be granted. He reiterated that careful planning in governing such a development could be extremely beneficial to the township, and gave again his disapproval of grid or ribbon development.

Other changes or non-changes that received discussion included the installation of satellite dishes in the township. Bruce Janssen was of the opinion that satellite dishes are permanent structures and should meet ordinance standards for such structures. Janssen noted that several locations in the township had already installed dishes and it was his opinion that some of them were not installed in compliance with good neighbor characteristics in mind, rather with how would be the easiest way to put them in.

Another topic brought before the commission by Janssen dealt with the ordinance standards for the placement of signs. Being in the business of designing signs, Janssen informed the commission that the stipulations concerning sign placement and size were outdated and were probably overlooked by the commission as they included no changes. It was agreed upon that Janssen would draft a letter to the commission suggesting ideas for current standards regarding signs.

Of course a long line formed for the airplane rides that were being offered by area pilots, and the acrobatic airplane show put on by Charles Scherping and Don Ziegler provided some excitement for the crowds too.

For the first weekend of summer, the Memorial Day weekend was one of the best in recent memory as the weatherman held off the rains and blustery winds the area seems to have on a regular basis.

The weekend marks the beginning of the summer tourist season and the State Park was almost filled with campers. Other attractions such as the golf courses received heavy play as many tried to get the best shot of the season this past weekend.

It all makes up for the long spring another businessman said. He also hopes the business he did over the weekend will continue all summer long as we move into the heart of the summer tourist season.

Moody also suggested the city should look into the hook-up and tap-in fees when one of the residents along a road is presently being served by water or sewer service. He thinks the cost of the tap-ins may be one reason why some homeowners may not want to be part of the city water and sewer system.

When asked what some of the opinions of city workers might be concerning an income tax, Carl Dulin, the assistant city treasurer told the commissioners the city would possibly have to hire two additional people, complete with all the fringe benefits to review and audit the returns when they come in. He also said the tax would be very hard to enforce.

Hy Stover, a resident at the meeting, asked if the city could guarantee some matter of confidentiality. "This is a small town," he reminded the commissioners.

While no action was taken, the city manager and staff are starting to review and research the income tax questions. They are setting up meetings with other communities who have a tax to see how it is handled and what problems the city of Boyne City may be faced with if the Boyne Commissioners decide it is the best way for the city to go to get the money to pay for the improvements.

Income tax

In other action, the commissioners approved a request from the Charlevoix County Hospice to hold a fund raiser at One Water Street. The Hospice is having a dinner and raffle auction to raise money for their program and needed the resolution as they are giving away a prize worth more than $500.

The commissioners also discussed but took no action on a request to make Front Street, which goes behind the stores in the downtown section, be a one-way street. The Chief John Talboys that the road was designed for two way traffic and it would be very difficult to make it into a one-way street.

Kesslers attend reunion

Seoul, Korea--May 15, 1986--A tour of one of the world's oldest civilizations and a chance to visit with family now stationed on the Korean peninsula combined to make an ideal vacation for a Boyne City family who took part in the Reunion in Korea program, sponsored by the Korea National Tourism Corporation (KNTC).

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Kessler joined their son, Col. Kenneth Kessler, who is the deputy engineer stationed at Yongsan Army Garrison in Seoul, for a five-day visit in the Republic of Korea (ROK) over the Christmas holidays. They were welcomed by top United States Forces in Korea (USFK) officials who briefed the group on the American commitment to the ROK and the threat facing peace and security in the area.

The U.S. Army has some 29,000 soldiers in the Republic of Korea, helping to protect the peace in this strategically vital area of the world. More than 90 per cent of them are serving one-year tours of duty away from their families.

Reunion in Korea was established in 1981 in recognition of the centennial of diplomatic relations between the U.S. and the ROK. The program demonstrates the Republic's appreciation of American contributions to security on the Korean peninsula by enabling family members of USFK and Department of Defense civilian personnel to visit Korea at special group rates. Although tour costs vary according to departure and return points, the unique package includes round-trip air fare, hotel accommodations and all meals and tours affordably priced for the servicemembers' families.

USFK representatives accompanied the Reunion group throughout the program, which includes tours of the United Nations Command Joint Security Area at Panmunjom on Korea's Demilitarized Zone, the ancient Changduk Palace in Seoul, Bulguksa Temple and the National Museum in Kyongju, the ancient capital of Korea's Shilla Dynasty.

Tour members also had the opportunity to visit the Korean

Folk Village in Suwon. Like a living museum, the Folk Village includes reproductions of traditional Korean houses, complete with villagers actually practicing the ancient crafts and demonstrating the old ways of life. In contrast, the group was given a tour of the massive Hyundai shipyard in Ulsan where modern craftsmen work in heavy industry.

Throughout the visit participants stayed at first class hotels and were given the opportunity to dine on traditional Korean foods and be entertained by top Korean musicians and dancers.

Established by the Michigan Legislature and Governor Blanchard in 1983, it is now entering its fourth consecutive summer, and will have provided 72,000 jobs when it ends this fall.

Applications are currently being accepted and work will begin as early as June 2.

Howe said there are approximately 385 MYC jobs in northwestern Michigan, including Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leeelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford counties.

"Eligible young men and women living in one of these 10 counties have a good chance of finding work with the Youth Corps this summer, but they should apply soon," said Dennis Aenis of the Youth Employment and Training Programs, which administers much of the MYC program in northwestern Michigan.

Plans for the area include refurbishing the lighthouse and supporting buildings at Beaver Island Camp on Beaver Island; maintaining city buses at the Traverse City bus garage; and entering computer data for the Traverse City United Way office.

Youth Corps applications are available at the MESC offices in Traverse City and Petoskey, many area schools and community colleges, and DSS offices.

College for Kids classes are designed for highly motivated students who desire to study a field of interest in greater depth and at a faster pace than is normally possible in regular school classes. The College for Kids planning committee recognizes that talents exist in a variety of areas. Some talent areas are academic such as reading, science, or math; other talent areas include the fine arts, motor skills, and creativity. The committee has attempted to offer a broad spectrum of classes that appeal to students of various talents and interests. The class descriptions should be carefully read to determine the appropriateness of the class for each particular student. Classes are Monday through Friday, June 16th through the 27th. All classes are the two weeks long and students are expected to attend each class session. Classes meet on the campus of North Central Michigan College in Petoskey from 1:00 p.m. until 3:00 p.m. Any exception to this is noted in the course descriptions that are available through the Char-Em Intermediate School District. Classes include "ABC's and Pitter Patter with Paterson," instructor Maury Cohen; "Advanced Art," instructor Sandy Selden; "Advanced Computers," instructor Ken Bartley; "Architectural Design - OM (Olympics of the Mind Model)," instructor Jim Helmer; "Costume Construction and Design," instructor Jill Leetsma; "Creative Writing," instructor Tony Dunaske; "Financially Yours," instructor

Devils outsted from hardball districts

BY STEVE GEE

The East Jordan Red Devils were knocked out of District Tournament play last Friday by the Elk Rapids Elks. The Devils played a double header with the Elks and counted the first game as the District game.

In the first game, Bill Kraemer put the Devils on top 1-0 with a monstrous home run in the second inning. Greg Kitson was pitching a great game for East Jordan, allowing only one base runner through the first five innings. In the top of the sixth, the Elks scored two unearned runs to take a 2-1 lead. But East Jordan came right back in their half of the inning to tie it when John Hribljan scored due to a couple of errors, a balk, and a passed ball.

Elk Rapids took advantage of a fielding and mental error on behalf of the Devils to score four runs in the top of the seventh to win 6-2.

Greg Kitson pitched the whole game allowing five hits, two walks, and six runs (none earned) while
