The program is under the direction of the Commission on aging and the tests will be performed by personnel from the county health department. ## Township planning strategy against BC

Evangeline Township officials are planning to hold an executive session to determine the strategy the township intends to use to try to force more action from the City of Boyne City concerning the cleanup of the city's landfill in the township.

The action came at Monday night's meeting when the township officials heard an update concerning the landfill and the ongoing cleanup being done by the landfill operator for the city.

The township will be meeting with officials from the Department of Natural Resources and the County Health Department before a proposed meeting with the township lawyer.

The meeting with the lawyer will determine what options, or directions, the township should be taking to force more action out of the city.

In a related matter, the township will also be meeting with the lawyer to determine what action they should take to protect the township easements to Lake Charlevoix.

At one of the easements, the property owners next to an easement have erected a fence and have done other work on the township right-of-way, according to township officials.

Last year they sent a letter to surrounding property owners asking their help in clearing off any structure that may be intruding into the township rights-of-way.

This brought a letter in response from two property owners who said that because the township had not maintained the easement, the property reverted back to them.

The board authorized another letter be sent to the property owners asking they remove a fence recently installed across one of the easements on Glenwood Beach.

In other action the board named the official posting places for the township. Besides the posting on the Township hall, the other places included M-75 at the edge of the Boyne City limits, and the corner of Clute and Fineout Roads.

Board members discussed the possibility of the township holding a picnic at the township later this summer for all residents. A committee was named to look further into the project.

A controversial no smoking ordinance was tabled after several township residents spoke against the passage of the ordinance. The residents thought the language in the proposed ordinance was unenforceable as to the fines, and would limit those who may wish to use the township hall for private functions.

Also tabled was the filling of a vacancy on the planning commission. Two names are under consideration and the board could not agree on either. They tabled the naming of a new member while they research the need to name someone immediately.

The board discussed a proposed newsletter to be sent out to all township residents, the barrier free ramp bid, and a request by the Board of Realtors to be able to determine property within the township.

If you're looking for a source of firewood for next winter, see the workers building the new municipal beach. They ran into a mess of slab wood that has been buried in the lake since the lumbering days. Here workers are taking the slab wood to a site to have it burned.

Important school elections set for Monday

School elections next Monday could mean a whole new direction for the Boyne City Board, new textbooks and a district library in East Jordan, and the expansion and continuance of the Boyne Falls school districts plans.

The elections, traditionally held the second Monday of June will see nine candidates running for five seats on the Boyne City School Board.

Positions open include one four-year term, two two-year terms and two one-year terms.

Running for the four year term are Judy Follette, a Boyne City native and a key punch operator, billing clerk and John Mathers, a former school board member who was recalled in March. Mathers works as a maintenance clerk at the East Jordan Iron Works.

Seeking the two-year terms are Bill Christensen, presently a board member who was appointed to the board to fill in the seat formerly held by Phil Bowman last December. Christensen is the personnel director at the East Jordan Iron Works. Robert Schmoldt, a Michigan Bell Telephone Company employee ran for a board seat previously in 1979. He has maintained an interest in the schools since that time and is hoping to serve the community at this election.

Also running is Dave Crumbaugh, an advertising salesman for an area shopper. Crumbaugh is also a minister. Kenneth Giem, a manufacturing engineer at Allied Bendix Courter and a deacon at the First Presbyterian Church in Boyne City.

Seeking the one-year terms are Thelma Behling, currently also a Boyne City Commissioner and the Mayor Pro-Tem. Behling is retiring as school nurse after serving for 32 years. Dave Guznick, the member services advisor for Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company, and Ron Bishop a senior engineer at Allied Bendix Courter.

In East Jordan, two are running for the open seat for a four-year term. Michael Burr, an area insurance representative is facing incumbent Larry Chanda. Chanda is the product control manager for the Mechanical Components Division of the Wickes Corporation.

Besides the two running for office, the electorate will be asked to approve a .5 mill increase for new textbooks for the school system. They will also be asked to approve a shift in financing for the library by turning it into a district library.

In Boyne Falls, incumbents William Cousineau and Patricia Griffith are both unopposed in the election but voters will be asked to approve a 2.5 mill increase in taxes for three years.

Even if approved, some of the programs within the school system may have to be curtailed. The rest of the program will stay the same with the exception of the addition of one new math class and an advanced physical science course.

If approved, the school district would be replacing some broken furniture and some classroom typewriters. The school district would also replace three textbook series in the seventh and eighth grade english, high school literature and science and buy a new textbook for the physical science class.

If not approved, Superintendent Robert Redmond said the system will have a bare bones educational

BC commissioners okay easement for bank

First National Bank in Boyne City may be getting a new driveway into the drive-in facility of the bank after the city prepares an easement agreement and the bank agrees to pay all costs. This was determined at the noon meeting Tuesday of the Boyne City Commissioners.

The drive will be installed on city property off the new Air/Industrial Park drive currently under construction to serve the new park.

According to Randy Frykberg, the city manager, the drive would help ease a problem with curb cuts on the state highway as the service drive into the bank would have to be moved slightly.

The new drive may also help alleviate a potential safety problem for those coming out of the park and going to do business with the bank. Frykberg told commissioners drivers may opt for driving along the shoulder of the road in order to get into the bank instead of crossing to the right lane and into the drive-up.

Commissioners authorized the city attorney to make up an easement paper for the bank to sign. Along with the easement, the city had intended to use the land for a sign for the industrial park. The bank indicated it would grant permission to install the sign on bank owned property.

Commissioners then heard that light poles had been delivered to Rotary Park for the installation of lights on the softball field. The lights were donated to the city by the high school who used them on the football field until they replaced the lighting system last fall.

According to Lindsay Adams, the coordinator for the slow pitch league, the lights will be installed by the end of June.

In other action, the city was asked for an update on the city landfill by members of the Evangeline Township Board. They were told numerous phone calls have been made to the contractor who is working to complete the removal of the white goods (old refrigerators, stoves, washers and dryers and other large appliances).

Frykberg told the members of the board the contractor is working in all of the work on a schedule. It is hoped to have the job completed shortly, but the contractor

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

Yes folks, this is the time of the year for excuses. You know, excuses about going to work in the morning, or coming back to work in the afternoon.

Or going somewhere at night, or anytime. The excuse almost all occasions.

But it really works on Thursdays and Fridays, and seems to make people get out of bed early on Saturdays.

In fact, Boyne City and East Jordan could all use this excuse, and it could become almost as famous as the one used by the folks in Charlevoix.

That one goes, "Sorry I'm late, but the bridge was up."

For Boyne and E.J., the excuse could be, "Sorry I'm late, but the car turns automatically into garage sales."

Yes, this is the season to make people mull over other peoples junk, with everyone looking for a great bargain. I've seen some items that were priced about $20.00 go for a little as $5.00 because of the time of the day, the way the offer was made and how hungry the seller was to make some money.

I have also been to sales where you could find real bargains. Like some antique bottle, or a piece of deep cut glass, or a special type of tool you have been wanting to buy for years but could never find.

But it always amazes me that some items you would think of as total junk, are the same item that is sought after by some collector.

My garage sale probably would not attract that kind of person, if I were to have one. My garage sale would be best if I just left the items on the curb for Boyneland to pick up when they come around.

But I am sure that some of the items will attract the attention of someone. After all, we all need that reverse threaded whatzit, just in case, and you couldn't afford to pass up the deal, right?

There is an old adage someone told me a couple years ago that went like this...When the Dilworth was open, this town boomed, when it was closed, the town died.

Well, I am happy to announce, the city will be booming. The Wolverine-Dilworth Inn opened back up last week, quietly, so they could work out some of the glitches. Not everything is open, but as things get closer to the Fourth, more and more will be in operation.

That is true of other parts of the community as well.

Workers are working furiously to finish up everything they have to do in order to have the new store, new shop or new business ready for the summer onslaught.

It is one of the best things about being in a tourist resort community. Seeing all of the shops become alive in the surrounding towns, as well as this town, makes one think we are living in a busy, busy community.

I do know one thing after looking at all of the people walking up and down the streets. If I were a businessman, I would make sure my store would be open late in the day to serve those who are coming into the community to eat.

Boyne City, has more good restaurants than any of the surrounding towns and is starting to attract people to come to town just for that reason to eat.

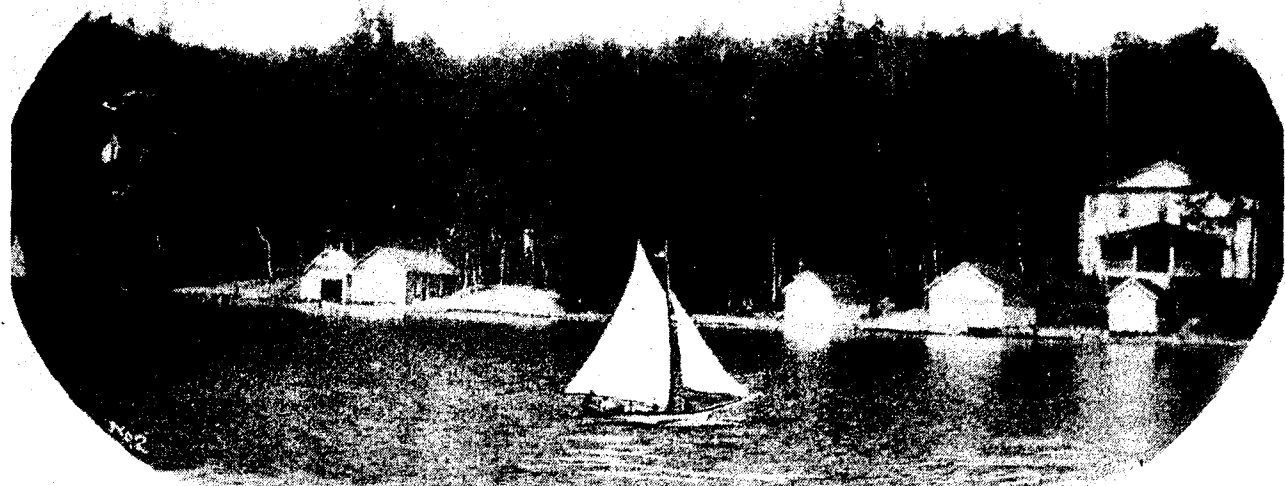

And after eating, or before if they arrive early for their reservation, they like to walk around the town to do some window shopping. At least that is what they tell me.

And if store is open, the chances are that someone will walk in and buy something they need.

It is interesting to see the changes being made by the merchants as they adapt to the changes within the city.

Just a few short years ago, some stores would close on Saturday afternoons.

CHAMBER TOP OF THE MOUNTAIN... (Faded text)

From a postcard in the early 1920's, this view of some Walloon Lake cottages would probably look the same today. The names of the cottage owners are still familiar to many in the Walloon area. If you have any old pictures showing some of the buildings of early Boyne, East Jordan and the surrounding area, bring them to our office and we'll copy them for this feature.

Marshall Sayles

After shoveling the grandeur of winter, Boyne Citizens now are mowing the glory of summer.

We pulled a foolish one Memorial Day. It went like this:

We wanted to go out for breakfast, but we also wanted to avoid the mass of people and cars arriving for the celebration. (I had attended more Memorial Day celebrations than strings of hair on my head, so it seemed okay to skip this one.)

To avoid the crowds, we waited until about ten o'clock to go out to the Country Star, thinking that most people would be down at the city park for the Memorial activities.

So we bought the morning paper and went out to where there was plenty of room and we could eat and read the paper in the quiet of the morning.

It turned out to be one of those mornings when a fool and his intelligence do not work in unison.

The place was full of people with many standing in line to be seated. For Pete's sake. How come all those people weren't down at the park for the celebration where they belonged?

Was I mad! I can remember when Boyne City people did as they ought.

"Did as they ought" is poor English, but it's a handy rig to let people understand what you mean when you mean it.

Have you been reading about the book on the life of Henry Ford II? It makes you realize the socially rich people often do some of the same things you do, but are accepted anyway.

News for the Township of Wilson: Did you know that septic tanks have an attraction for country gentlemen? Well, they do. Shirt and tie people like to live way out in the country away from the thundering heard. (I said heard, and meant it.)

Now don't look at me, just because I sank my roots in the gravel out here. Heavens, no. I am lazy and shiftless enough to command the respect and esteem of those who were born among the hoppers, the weekend and the wild berries. So I am not a purse heavy gentleman of the country.

But one who is, squawked to me the other day about his REA electric billing. He said it had edged up to more than $50 per month.

"I can't figure it out," he said.

"The only electricity we use out here is for a 10 watt bulb in our garage and our electric can opener." He wanted to spout further but I had a sudden urge to leave, putting my hearing distance away from his hearing distance.

It always amazes me when people out here lie about things just as though they were living in town.

Sunday morning I got out of bed before I wanted to. "If you don't get out of bed right now," my wife was saying, "I shall go down, get the Free Press and eat breakfast alone."

So I got up. But I didn't want to. I've been getting out of bed every morning for more than sixty years and I'm getting tired of it.

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

Americans generally embrace new technology with enthusiasm and vigor. We assume that each new development will make our lives easier and pleasanter. And that's how it usually goes. But a few years back, something new came along, a refinement of the beloved telephone. And it didn't go that way at all. We found that when we placed calls to businesses and doctors' offices, instead of often getting a busy signal like in the old days, we got through. But then we had to wait on hold an awfully long time before we were taken care of. Enthusiasm turned to outrage.

The outrage hasn't gone away. Neither has hold. And it shouldn't because it's a good system. It just takes some getting used to. And it seems like the best way to get used to it is to relax, enjoy yourself during your stay in limbo.

It's easier to be relaxed when you're prepared for the times when you're left "twisting in the wind" — a phrase the politicians involved in the Watergate Cover-up used. Of course, they stopped talking like that once they saw the light and began writing books and touring on the lecture circuit. Anyway, the thing to do is to have the area next to the phone set up with stuff to amuse or improve yourself with for times when "Will you hold please?" strikes.

A package of typing paper, pen, pencil and maybe even colored pencils should be within easy reach of the telephone. Those with an artistic bent can draw peaceful landscapes or violent storms or whatever serves best to reduce tension and improve the outlook.

Those who express themselves best with words can compose sonnets about the loneliness of limbo. The more ambitious can outline a novel, perhaps one about a character who keeps people waiting and gets his comeuppance in the end.

For those who consider these projects busywork and want to get important things done while they wait, some reading material by the phone gives meaning to the minutes. Instruction pamphlets for anything from how to care for your Amaryliss to how to have thin thighs in thirty days are fine reading material for the hold mode. Or review instructions for games you already know how to play but want to get better at. Instructions for games like Monopoly or Trivial Pursuit or croquet are a good size to slip under the phone so they'll always be handy. On second thought, reviewing instructions to improve performance in croquet isn't likely to help much. Wangling an invitation to the Palm Beach Polo and Country Club, where there's a "croquet pro" on the staff for heaven's sake, is a better bet. But instruction review will do until that can be arranged.

Reading interesting stuff while languishing on hold sounds good but isn't.

Being jerked out of a good article or short story when the person you're trying to reach suddenly decides to pick up the phone can make you crankier than being kept waiting in the first place.

Since being put on hold is inevitable, taking it well seems the sporting thing to do. And when you consider it in the company with other inevitable things, like death and taxes, the experience doesn't seem nearly so outrageous.

Wants support for library

Editor,

All the gold in the world would not be enough to buy the East Jordan Library if it were the only library in the world. Moreover, if it were the only library in the world, students, researchers, thinkers, and doers, from all the world would have been making pilgrimages to East Jordan for centuries.

A library is a storehouse of mankind's accumulated knowledge. The young seeking to learn, the doers and inventors seeking to learn how, the place where the disabled and elderly can still travel the world around in a book, and find comfort, courage, knowledge and joy.

Community education can mean more than a diploma

Three times per year we send out our brochure of activities and classes. We try to bring new and exciting leisure time classes to you. We can provide more classes and activities if those persons in the community who have special talents they would like to share with others would join our staff.

It does not take a college degree to be a leisure time instructor. The only requirement are a good background in your speciality and a willingness to work with others.

We are seeking instructors in the following area: Chinese stir fry, infant and child C.P.R., quilting, flower arranging, drawing, calligraphy, foreign language, rug-making, country painting, chair caning, sign language, guitar, vocal music, ice skating, wallpapering, folk dancing, pre-school aged activities. We are open to any ideas so call us today at 582-6765.

Boyne Community Education has an excellent staff to assist adults in earning their high school diploma. Below are questions most frequently asked when adults return to school. We are happy to assist any adult in gaining a high school diploma.

Q. Who may get into high school completion classes?

A. Anyone whose class has already graduated.

Q. I was a senior when I dropped out. How many credits must I earn?

A. The same number of credits that your original class was required to have.

Q. How long will it take to earn a high school diploma?

A. If you dropped out in the 11th or 12th grade, chances are you could finish in one year. If you dropped out in the 9th or 10th grade, it will probably take two or three years.

Q. How may I complete two or four years in one or two years?

A. Credit is granted for the following: military service, courses or training you have completed while in the service or in civilian life, work experience for jobs you have held, community services you have been involved in and approved correspondence courses you may have completed.

Q. How much time per week will it take?

A. That depends on you. Each class meets once a week for seventeen weeks per semester. We'd rather you didn't rush, but some people take as many as four classes a semester for four credits in one year.

Q. How good is a high school diploma?

A. It might help you get a better job. It might be something you wanted, but due to no fault of your own, you did not get your diploma.

Q. Isn't it harder to learn when you are older?

A. Apparently that is not so. The average age of our graduates is 35 years.

Q. How may I enroll?

A. By calling Shelly Martin at 582-6765.

Q. What are the General Education Development tests (G.E.D.)?

A. These tests measure what you have learned since you left school. They give you credit for what you know and what you have learned outside of school. The battery consists of five tests: reading, comprehension, writing skills, social studies, math, and science.

The number of children who leave schools each day, return home and are left unsupervised is a staggering 1.8 - 8.7 million.

Virtually every community is faced with the "latchkey" dilemma. Far too few communities provide programming and supervision for these children and Boyne City is among them. It is time for our community to take a close and serious look at providing programming that will include recreational, educational, and supervisory needs for these children.

There are many components that must be addressed in order to establish a successful "latchkey program". They include facilities, supervisors, materials, volunteers, and funding.

While members of the staff at Boyne City Public Schools have been discussing this issue for nearly a year, it is time to enlist the support of organizations and industry in our community.

Recently the Detroit Free Press addressed the "latchkey" issue. They provide astounding statistics that I would like to share with the community. First on the national level (these statistics are based on the year 1984); (1) The number of mothers in the labor force who have children under 18 is 19.5 million. (2) There are 15.4 million mothers who have children under age 6 and over half of these mothers are in the labor force. (3) There are 9.284 million women who have children under age three and 47.7 percent are in the labor force. This equates to 4.4 million women. (4) Over half of the 58 million children had mothers who were in the labor force. (5) Half of two-parent families revealed that both mother and father worked. (6) In 1986 women surpassed men by 29,000 professional jobs with women employed in 6,938 million of 13.8 million jobs.

Michigan's statistics in 1984 reveal that 3.5 million of our 6.8 million people age 16 and up are women. The number of employed women is 1.7 million. Concerning the employed women, 238,000 had children under six, 437,000 women had children between six and seventeen. There are 1.9 million married-couple families and at least one million had children under age 18. During the years 1980 - 1985 the women in the work force increased by 8 percent.

Throughout Michigan many companies are investigating the benefits of day care. Hospitals in this state employ a large percentage of women and presently they have taken a leadership role in providing care for the children of working mothers.

It is the intent of Boyne Community Education to provide care for these children. As the statistics show, it is time for all of us to get involved to help alleviate this growing problem. We need the help of everyone. Please call 582-6765 if you would like to share your ideas and concerns with the "Latchkey" situation.

Grandvue keeping residents part of real world

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER

Sprawling across a grassy knoll on Peninsula Road, Grandvue Medical Facility really affords a grand view from all sides. On this site in 1890-91 was built the first building of the County Poor Farm and Infirmary. The old building was raised in 1958 when the present building was ready to be occupied. With additions in 1968 and 1980 the building is now spacious enough to house about 100 residents and give room for about 100 employees to perform the tasks associated with a smooth operation.

Facts and figures do not tell the whole story. What Grandvue is really about is keeping the residents in an adult world, keeping them in touch with the community and not separating this portion of society into a separate community. Residents may range in age from 20 to 90 on any given day. Thus the holistic philosophy of meeting the total needs of a person is vital to maintaining an environment for residents which is warm and caring.

As society has become more mobile, families are often miles apart and the idea of an extended family in one household may not be practical. Every human being goes through many changes and phases from birth to death, and the hope of the Grandvue administrator Ron Conkle and his staff is that they can eradicate the idea that "they are old, we are not." All of us will become advanced in age and youth and advanced age need to be melded more closely as there are often similar goals and hopes and dreams among all ages. Mr. Conkle says the role of health care systems is constantly changing and so we must always be an "evolving health care delivery system." What was done last year may not be deemed the best for most residents this year. Flexibility is certainly a key to the ongoing process of developing programs and working with residents.

Nancy Carey, In-Service Director of Grandvue says, "The process families go through in the decision to place a member in Grandvue - with a different group, in a new home where their needs are met 24 hours a day - is not always easy and should be planned when possible. The family desires Grandvue to be a home, not just a hospital. Hoping that the total person needs will be met is a major consideration for the resident's family."

Fulfilling many of the needs of caring and helping to maintain outside contacts and allowing residents to retain roles they have always played is greatly enhanced by the many auxiliary members and many volunteers.

Brenda Joyce, Activities Director at Grandvue works with the volunteers, who number about 50 and are of all ages. The volunteers help in every area of the facility with the daily operational activities. They work in the beauty shop, help with bingo, help give parties, take residents on walks, do some sewing, assist with crafts, aid residents with correspondence and sometimes just visit. The volunteers help coordinate holiday activities and work in the craft room daily. The residents make Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls to sell. Residents are taken to the Senior Citizen Center twice a week with the help of volunteers. Shopping trips with dinner following are planned and are carried out with the help of volunteers. Certainly the residents are pleased to have the friendship of the volunteers and happy to be in the mainstream of life by shopping, seeing old friends at the Senior Citizen Center and at the summer picnics.

The Grandvue Auxiliary is a county wide group which works hard to raise funds for things needed, but not provided for in the regular budget. A county wide tag day sale is held in July each year, as well as a bake sale and card party. The Auxiliary has about 70 members who meet monthly, except in January and February to plan for fund usage and to provide special programs for the residents. The Auxiliary dues are used to make purchases for the facility.

The Auxiliary began in 1969 and has been very active in the past seventeen years. They administer the Memorial Funds, which has recently been designated as a way of helping provide continuing education opportunities for staff members.

The Auxiliary has purchased new equipment for the occupational therapy room from last years funds. Previous purchases included wheelchairs, patio and flower boxes, chairs and tables for the dining room, lounge chairs, card tables, sewing machine, stack chairs for meetings, two whirlpool baths and century tubs, day room furniture, drapery material, parlor furniture, providing pictures of residents for family, Christmas decorations and songbooks.

Many Auxiliary members are also volunteers, giving them a dual role and certainly focusing on their devotion to the smooth operation of Grandvue. Certainly both the volunteers and the Auxiliary welcome members who have time and energy to devote to helping make someone else feel his or her own importance.

Grandvue provides a service for Charlevoix County; all should take a closer look at its philosophy and utilize it as we meander through life year after year. The intertwining of all ages; all abilities, both physical and mental; and the process of giving and receiving as well as the most important preservation of human dignity for every person are lessons we should all take frequently. Life as an ongoing process with no more emphasis on youth than on age would no doubt strengthen our total society.

How about a great adventure on one of the 'great' ships with a young common sailor making the perilous journey around the bottom of South America, Cape Horn, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean in the 1830s with R. H. Dana in "Two Years Before the Mast". (An American classic.)

No doubt you have read the beautiful thought of a young English poet, who lived a very brief time (1795-1821), but whose simple phrase will live forever, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever".

These are all found in books and books can be borrowed without charge by the richest and poorest amongst us in our library.

I love libraries. As a depression age boy going through school, I was not really a good student, but I loved to read and I devoured hundreds of books and unwittingly learned as I did so. That period has stood me in good stead all my life. I still take refresher courses, in pleasure of course, at my public library in East Jordan.

A public library is a treasure trove for all of us, the young and the young at heart; the able and handicapped; the researchers; the inventors; and the historians. It is a place to be cherished, and indeed, loved.

On Monday June 9, 1986, you will have a chance to vote 'yes' (or no) for a one mill allocation of equalized value ($1.00 per 1,000) for the library to provide a stabilized annual budget so the librarian and her always helpful staff won't have to beg local governments for funds.

Please join Mrs. Cramer and me in voting YES and thereby advance knowledge and the well-being of every living person and thing. Remember when you were young and found that to learn was to be enriched. That helps all of us, readers and non-readers alike.

Wouldn't it be great if the voters of East Jordan and the townships of South Arm, Eveline, Wilson, Jordan, and Echo, (residents of the East Jordan school district, all voted YES. The place to vote is the Civic Center in East Jordan.

See you at the library!

Disappointed with candidates

Dear Editor:

It is with deep regret that I feel compelled to express my feelings regarding a recent attempt to involve the community of Boyne City in a "Meet Your Candidate" program, which was scheduled with the purpose of introducing School Board candidates and voters. It was to be hoped that all concerned citizens could share this time with the purpose of discussing issues and stands on public education in Boyne City.

Of the nine candidates running for Board positions, only three had the courtesy to respond in the affirmative concerning their attendance. Of the other six, their was either no response, or negative response. How sad that people who give lip service to wanting to participate in fostering good education don't have the time or inclination to come to a meeting designed to educate the voters on their positions. Does this mean they won't have the time required to conscientiously fulfill their job requirements if elected to the Board?

I truly feel that, in many instances, come next Tuesday when we express our opinions at the polls, it will be just another multiple choice issue rather than an informed vote.

She was told the city, county and state are reducing the bring program as per the regulations. Other parts of the road maintenance will have to be fitted into the city budget before they can be upgraded.

Commissioner Thelma Behling asked how the research was continuing on the proposed city income tax and was told the administration hopes to have some information within weeks.

East Jordan young authors honored with magazine

BY ELOUISE ROSSLER

Over 150 aspiring young writers and artists were honored with an awards program and a reception for parents and friends in East Jordan on May 22. Certificates and personal copies of the East Jordan Magazine "Legend Within Us" were awarded to the many students in attendance.

The young authors and artists are encouraged to submit their best stories and poems and drawings from kindergarten through twelfth grade by the Unlimited Potential group of parents and teachers who write and receive federal grants to promote this and other activities to provide enrichment and opportunity for students in the East Jordan Schools. Mrs. Kay Holley, an East Jordan Middle School teacher, was the magazine coordinator for the 1985-86 issue. Mrs. Anne Johnston is the school liaison who works with the year round program as Community Education Director. Many teachers assist by saving worthy writings for students and by encouraging students (especially the early elementary group) to write and submit. Class projects provide materials for the students to use in their creative endeavors.

This year the magazine actually became two as one was published for the kindergarten through seventh grade and another was published for the eighth through twelfth graders. Certainly Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, and John Updike must have started with poems and encouragement as these youngsters are getting. Louisa May Alcott, John Steinbeck and O'Henry translated events around them into books; the beginnings of such stories are evident in "Legend Within Us." Only time will tell how many of these young writers will record life in a forever way in books; however, they have certainly already made a contribution to the history of East Jordan.

Copies of "Legends Within Us" are available to read at the school libraries and at the East Jordan Public Library. Copies may be purchased for $2.00 by contacting the school offices or the community Education office, located in the high school.

Teachers Kay Holley and Ann Johnston let student Chad Allen show off one of the books published by the students as part of their school year. The books are available at area stores.

Future college students, parents find funding harder

Students attending college and their parents should get ready to feel squeezed a little harder this year as they fill out that financial aid form, according to Steven C. Denk, a Certified Financial Planner and executive director of The College Planning Institute in Park Ridge, Illinois. "Funding college just isn't getting any easier," says Denk. "Each year the financial assistance the government offers just keeps getting more difficult to qualify for, and with continued federal budget cuts imminent, federal assistance is drying up for many students."

Parents will want to hold on to their seats (or their pocketbooks) as the budget ax swings in the direction of student aid. For those parents or students who don't want to take this lying down, or can't afford to, help may be near at hand.

The College Planning Institute offers a free informational guide that describes the private, non-federal sources of money available to college students and discusses the computer search services that offer help in finding this money. This is money provided to students by corporations, industry trade groups, associations, clubs, unions, special interest groups and the like. The guide will be sent to you if you call toll free 1-800-872-1221 and ask for extension 6025.

As you'll probably recall, when President Reagan took office he was hoping that the private sector would one day take over much of what the government had been supplying. When it comes to college financial aid, it may surprise you to learn that over $3 billion in assistance is available from private sources all across the nation. In some instances, portions of this money never get disbursed due to a lack of students applying.

"Many parents and students don't have any idea this money exists, or if they do, they just don't know where to find it or how to apply," explains Denk.

"Today we have the information technology and the means to access data-bases holding billions of dollars worth of scholarship details. By using that technology, a parent or student can find out very quickly just where the money is that they qualify for."

As college costs continue to increase and federal aid gets battered by every new budget constraint, private grants and scholarships are going to play a larger role in helping parents and students find the means to cope with those tuition payments.

Perhaps Reagan will get his wish and begin seeing more private money take the place of federal assistance. For college students one thing is certain, they not only will want to see it, they'll need to see it.

NOTICE PUBLIC HEARING

BOYNE CITY
ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS MEETING

Thursday, June 19, 1986
7:30 p.m.
Commission Chambers
City Hall

Pursuant to rules and regulations as set by the Boyne City Zoning Ordinance concerning granting of variances, the Boyne City Zoning Board of Appeals has scheduled several Public Hearings for Thursday, June 19, 1986 at 7:30 p.m., in the Commission Chambers of City Hall, 319 N. Lake Street, to consider the following requests:

1. A request from Raymond F. Palicki, owner of the property known as "Morgan Manor", at 318 Morgan Street, to be allowed a variance set back of 27 feet rather than the required 50 feet, for the purpose of constructing 5 garages attached to the present building in the rear and to modify the rear entry-way of Morgan Manor. Also permission is being sought to reduce the size of the West Street parking lot by one-half.

2. A request from Richard Simon, owner of the property at 356 N. Park Street, to construct a second story to his present garage, which does not meet the back or side yard set backs and exists as a non-conforming pre-existing structure on the lower level. The upper level, which is in the process of being built must be given a variance to be built within the non-conforming side and back yard setbacks.

3. A request from the Boyne City Public Library located at the corner of E. Main Street and S. Park Street to continue to be allowed a variance to display a permanent free standing sign in the Central Business District. The sign presently standing is illegal and must be given a variance to remain in that location.

4. A request from Glen Truitt, owner of the Depot Restaurant at 151 Ray Street, to be granted a variance to erect and locate an off premise, free standing sign at the Northwest corner of S. Park Street and Ray Street, to advertise his Depot Restaurant. Off premise, free standing signs are not allowed in the Central Business District unless variances are granted.

5. A request from David Leamon, owner of a home located at 311 N. Park Street, to be granted a variance to build an addition on his house. The house is located eight feet from the front lot line. The variance would allow an addition to be built with the same front yard set back of 8 feet, measured from the eave. A similar south side yard set back of less than the required 7 foot set back is also being requested. The home is a non-conforming, pre-existing structure that has very close lot line set-backs and it is necessary to request such variances in order to remodel, enlarge and improve the said residence.

The property is located in a Residential 2 (R-2) zoned area. Property Tax Code No. 051-256-038-00.

More details and a location map of each of the five variance requests are available for review at the City Clerk's Office. Every property situated within 300 feet of each of these variance locations, is being notified via the U.S. Mail.

All interested persons are invited to attend the Public Hearings on the variance requests. Additional information is available at the City Hall during regular business hours or call (616) 582-6597.
