BC planners trying to control home businesses

Boyer City planners started tackling the home occupation industry after reading an opinion from City Attorney Bill McTaggart during Monday evening's monthly planning board meeting.

After hearing the opinion that rezoning procedures regarding the revision in the zoning ordinance may not be necessary because of home occupation being covered in another part of the zoning ordinance under accessory uses, McTaggart said it appears that home occupations are legal in all classifications of zoning.

He suggested that perhaps it should not be legal under the Residential 3 zoning areas, apartments, or in places of high density like the mobile home park in further explaining the letter to the board members.

They agreed with him and asked him to start the process of making some revisions in the ordinance to not permit home occupations in the mobile home park or in R-3 zoning in a multiple family dwelling of more than three units.

He also asked to have all home occupations be registered with the city and will be adding wording to clarify the accessory building use as garages are determined.

McTaggart is to bring back to the planners the wording on the changes at the next meeting so the planners can act upon it.

The planners also talked about the increasing need for the expansion of the Central Business District. They have been looking at ways to increase the amount of land available for business expansion for the past few months.

The professional planners from the city's planning firm, Johnson, Johnson and Roy, stated that because of the unique downtown business district, and the city wanting to preserve that feeling, strip centers located on the outskirts of the community should be discouraged.

The planners had suggested land in the Boyne Avenue and Division Street area as a place for business expansion.

Mark Kowalske, a member of the board, told the rest of the members that while it is nice to be able to plan for future needs, he thought lands near the present Central Business District could be added without having to go outside of the downtown. He felt the present land available would be developed within a couple of years and the planners still had lots time to think about expansion of the CBD.

In other business, the planners made plans to attend a conference of the Michigan Society of Planning officials at Boyne Mountain in October and decided upon asking the city commissioners to approve Sandra Stanley as a new member of the planning board. She will be taking the place of Don Glowinski who has resigned as he has moved out of the city. Glowinski's term was due to expire in October.

Stanley has been attending the meetings according to planning officials and was willing to serve.

News Briefs

The Charlevoix County Press has added a new cartoon feature this week which is being drawn by East Jordan cartoonist Bernie Schmidt. The cartoon is based on the positive aspects of life and features a character who will become known to those who read the feature. Finding a local cartoonist has been one of the things the Press has wanted to do for many years. We hope you will enjoy reading and looking at the feature which will be set on the editorial page.

Richard Beagle, the head of the Charlevoix Antrim Growth Alliance has been given the first Michigan Industrial Developer's Association award as the "Medalist of the Year." The award, which was voted upon by all members of MIDA.

Over 250 members of the organization thought enough to name Beagle from a group of five that had previously been selected to receive honors from the organization.

Next Wednesday is another free food day as the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency will be holding their give-away program at the Boyne City Community Services Center in Boyne City, the East Jordan Civic Center in East Jordan and the VFW Hall in Charlevoix.

The free food will be given away starting at 10:00 a.m. and will last until 2:00 p.m. or until the food is gone.

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging was the recipient of $900 from the state commission on aging for the purpose of a 18 cubic foot refrigerator that will be used within the county. The grant was part of the monthly grants being given by the state agency. Over 100 grants were given out to senior centers for equipment.

Workers from Hodgekiss and Douma started to lay the asphalt on the roads of the new Air/Industrial Park Tuesday. The pavement will be ready for driving upon this weekend, according to officials from the firm. The asphalt is being laid in two lifts of three inches each to provide a heavy duty surface for the many heavy trucks which are expected to be using the roads.

BF board member resigns, search started

Boyer Falls school board members reluctantly accepted the resignation of Pat Griffith, who is moving out of the school district, at their monthly meeting held Monday night.

Board members will be starting a search to name a new member to fill out the rest of Griffith's term. Names for the spot are being accepted at the superintendent's office as well as by other board members.

Superintendent Bob Redmond was instructed to send a letter of thanks to her for the work she has done for the board and the school system.

The board then approved to bids of Woodland Oil for the gas used in the school busses, Interstate Bakeries for the bread and Twin Pines Farm Dairy for the milk the school will be using in the hot lunch program of the school.

They then approved of the hiring of Jim Lent to be a half-time counselor and a half-time science teacher for the high school.

Lent has had nine years of teaching experience and has recently completed a stint with the Sanilac Vocational Center in Sanilac County.

Rebecca Palminter was also hired as a half-time music instructor. She has not had any teaching experience but she is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and has a masters in music from Emporia State College in Kansas. Emporia is noted for its music program.

The board also rehired Marilyn Bradford as the girls' varsity basketball coach and Doug Doorne as the girls' Jayvee coach and the boys' varsity basketball coach. Both have been working with the student athletes in the gym since the opening of practice for the fall sport.

After several years of discussion, the board finally agreed to buy aluminum and glass panels to close off the hall area at the main entrance to the building in the area of the offices.

Redmond was told to ask for an updated bid from one firm that had bid the job last year. If that bid comes in lower than other bids, he was instructed to work out the details to get the job done as soon as possible.

The panels will help with maintaining heat in the office area and will help to keep students from getting in the way of work in progress. The panels will include a sliding glass window as well as a 42 inch door.

Redmond was asked to get input from the secretary whose office will be enclosed by the partitions, to see if she would like the idea drawn up.

The board then approved the student handbook with minor changes being made in the library section. The rules were being tightened up, Principal Mike Wallace told the board members. One of the changes will require a student using the library during class time to have a note from the teacher.

Redmond said the changes

City to go after trashy yard

Taking action against those citizens of Boyne City who have allowed trash and weeds to grow in their yards may be in store for one of the eight families cited, according to the City Clerk Tom Garlock, who is acting as the city manager while Randy Frykberg is on vacation.

Garlock said that only one of the eight has failed to comply with the request sent out by the city attorney who suggested the families would be taken to court if they did not clean up the trash in their yards. The commissioners at their noon meeting decided to act against that one family if they do not clean up within a few days.

The residents were notified by the city last May that they were violating the city ordinance concerning trash in yards and unsanitary conditions.

In other action the city authorized the spending of $17,378.91 to rebuild the Well Number One in the city. The city has been without the services of the well pending a decision to replace it or rebuild it. They decided to rebuild it as it was the less expensive alternative.

The well, which was pulled out of service after the new Number Three well was put on line, only pumps 250 gallons a minute compared to the larger capacity of the other wells the city uses. With the well Number One on line, the city would be

Weir OK'd for two years on Jordan

DNR officials met with members of the Jordan River Wild Scenic River board last Friday to request the placement of a weir at the Kit Carson Fishing Site this fall.

The request was approved by the board after a three to one vote on the matter.

During the discussion prior to the approval, it was noted that this may be the last year the DNR will have to put in a weir to harvest the salmon that are going up the river.

The salmon were planted in the river several years ago after East Jordan citizens urged the DNR to make a plant for the benefit of the community.

DNR biologist Steve Swan and Jerry Manz, also of the DNR, were told the city is in the process of considering building a blocking weir at the Memorial Bridge located on M-32.

If the weir is built, the weir at the Kit Carson site would not be constructed.

It was also stated that fishing would be allowed by the fishermen on the river within the city limits, south of the "Fairground" property owned by the South Arm Township.

The lamprey situation was discussed with thoughts of a blocking weir set up for the main river, but the creeks feeding it would probably continue to be poisoned. Sterilization was at one time considered for the lamprey, but it has not proved favorable, according to DNR officials.

A question was asked about the use of motorized boats south of the bridge but due to the many submerged docks and the Plans were announced by the new owners of the former IGA store in Boyne City showing the conversion of the former grocery store into a Victorian styled mall. The two partners in the new mall, Joe Deisler and Jeff Anderson, told the Press they were designing stores in the 500 to 3,000 square foot range. The plan does not have to come in front of the planning commission as they are not making any changes to the zoning, just remodeling the store and dressing the parking lots. The developers hope to get started on the conversion this fall, in order to have the store ready for renters this winter or next spring.

CORN

There is an echo of the past in many of our modern day recipes using corn. I suppose there is more than one story about how "Hush Puppies" were named. I have read where the hunters out with their hound dogs made them around their camp fire. When their dogs were howling for food they quickly fried their batter for corn pone or johnny cake into small balls and threw to the dogs yelling, "Hush Puppies."

Now, I had never made "Hush Puppies" thinking them really not too good if one threw them to the dogs. However, in my search for corn recipes I came up with this one and decided to make them. I made just 1/2 of this recipe which made about 15 to 18 small "Hush Puppies."

"Hush Puppies"
1 1/2 cups flour
1 1/2 cups cornmeal
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
2 eggs
buttermilk
1 medium finely chopped onion
Fat to fry, I used vegetable shortening.
Mix the flour, corn meal, salt and soda. Add eggs and buttermilk until it is the right consistency to hold its shape. Mix in the chopped onion. Drop by spoonfuls (I used a well rounded teaspoon) into hot fat and cook until puffed and golden brown, turning once if fat is not real deep.

Drain on paper towels. "Low and behold" they were delicious. I ate them hot dipped into a little honey. Then for my next meal which I shared with a friend, (I had batter left-over) we ate them with a sweet and sour sauce made this way:

Sauce

1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup barbecue sauce, tomato catsup or chili.

Chowders were very popular with our Grandmothers—a good meal-in-a dish for large families. I would like to share with you this recipe from Nancy Peterson of Bellaire.

Corn Chowder

3 slices salt pork cubed
1 large onion, sliced
4 large potatoes, sliced
2 cups water
6 large soda crackers
1 cup milk
2 cups corn (I used fresh cut off the cob)

1 teaspoon salt
dash of paprika
Fry salt pork until crisp. Stir in onion and cook until golden. Add water and potatoes. Cook until tender. Crumble crackers in small bowl, pour milk over, soak. Add to cooked potatoes, then add corn, salt, and paprika. Simmer over low heat 8 to 10 minutes.

This salad will give a colorful touch and just the right texture to serve with a meal of chowder. This recipe is from Edna Lefley, Nancy Peterson's aunt.

Jello Beet Salad

1 can shoestring beets
1 pkg. lime or lemon Jello
2 cups liquid (using beet juice) about 3 tablespoons lemon juice.
1/2 cup horseradish.
In a bowl dissolve the jello in one cup hot water. Then measure the liquid drained from the beets, add lemon juice and enough water to make one cup. Add to the dissolved jello with the horseradish and beets. Pour into a square or oblong pan and chill. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce leaf.

Marshall Sayles

He: Wonders of all wonders! I have discovered where to place the new Historical Museum so no Boyne City resident will throw his arms up in holy horror.

Me: What do you mean "his" arms? Some Boyne City women have also been known to reach for the heavens in a spasm of disappointment.

He: When I say "him" I mean all mankind, including women.

Me: A woman is a she or a her. In all my years of mingling among Boyne City women I have yet to meet one who would be tickled to be called a "him".

He: Will you shut up and listen to my safe and sane idea as to where the new museum should be placed, causing little or no explosion from the mouths of the talkative few?

Me: If you can do that. If you can silence the flapping tongues among us, you should be honored on the postoffice steps. In a starched shirt performance, and at the beat of a drum, the Mayor should crown you the brainiest individual ever to trod the streets of our town.

He: I can't tell whether you are patting me on the back or being sarcastic. Which is it?

Me: Tell me where you would put our brand new museum and I will tell you whether or not we proud bellies of the community will swallow your suggestion.

He: I think, sir, that the museum should be constructed as a second story over a vacant lot.

Me: Bravo! You have found the only possible way to shoot down the opposition without using a gun.

Here's a profitable idea that, as far as I know, has never gotten off the ground: Hundreds of northern Michigan folks, go south every fall and winter, joining the canes, crutches and social security set, leaving snowbanks to the young and frisky. Now, how come there are no back-to-Florida ads in the newspapers? Plumbers need to close the house up; garages need to go over the car for the long drive. A lot of things have to be done. Back-to-Florida ads would make as much sense as back-to-school ads. Merchants who grasp this idea and run with it should give me a small percentage of the gross—just enough to pay my way down there. (I'm only half as dumb as some people think I am.)

There's a hickey on my face. The doctor and I have been watching it in case it grows and requires removal. The other morning I stepped into the bathroom to check it in the mirror. Everything happens when you are in the bathroom. First, the doorbell rang. I started for the door when the telephone rang. At that moment I heard a police siren up the road. In my confusion I didn't know whether to answer the door, go to the phone or look out the window for the police. One of these days I shall get out of these woods and move downtown where people don't have to think.

***

Addendum: The phone call was from a woman who had dialed the wrong number. I told her to wait until I had answered the door. The man wanted to know if this was the road to Charlevoix. I told him to go back down Marshall Road and hang a left at Garth Bryan's and then follow the road to the Iron-ton Ferry. He said he had never heard of Mr. Bryan. I went back to the phone and asked the lady how anyone could expect to get to Charlevoix without knowing Garth Bryan. She hung up on me.

I swear, one of these days I am going to move out of the boondocks to the peace and quiet of Boyne City.

Editor and the People of Boyne City:

After Tuesday nights city commission meeting here in Boyne City on 8-12-86 as so often happens I thought of something additional that I should of said at that time. I am enclosing a copy of my note to the commissioners covering these thoughts. Now that I have had an opportunity to sleep on the idea it becomes more attractive than ever.

I think it would be a most wonderful thing for the community if the three families that

Three cheers for small business

It's easy to think that all business is big business. Just read the headlines about billion-dollar sales, global mega-mergers and the like.

But there's another kind of business that's even more important to our lives and economy, and it's right here under our noses.

We're talking about small business which, when combined, represents half of all jobs, 80 percent of all new employment and more than half the nation's output of goods and services.

Just walk down Main Street or visit the shopping center to see small business in action. There's the neighborhood hardware store, the corner grocer, the baker, barber, beautician and specialty boutique. There's also the druggist, the real estate companies, restaurant and gas station too.

Put them together and they're a big force. In Michigan alone, there are approximately 250,000 small businesses. Companies with fewer than 20 employees each account for 85 percent of all the state's workers. Michigan's largest small-business organization, the National Federation of Independent Business, has 19,000 members representing all sectors: agriculture, construction, financial, manufacturing and mining, retail, service fields, transportation and wholesale. And small business in Michigan, as elsewhere, has never played a greater role in weaving America's economic fabric.

It's encouraging that this month, small-business representatives from Michigan and throughout the nation will be given a forum at the White House Conference on Small Business, August 17-21, to address their most urgent concerns. The delegates will be armed with 2,200 recommendations forwarded by 20,000 small-business people at individual state conventions held over the past year. Among the most strongly endorsed recommendations on the small-business agenda are lowering the federal deficit and solving the liability insurance crisis, two issues which affect all Americans.

Small business' ability to confront these and other critical issues is yet another reason why this sector deserves public support.

Small business makes a major contribution to our lifestyle and plays a convincing role as the backbone of our economy.

From: National Federation of Independent Business

BY JIM SILBAR

I won't say I am going to be a 300 point roller like some of the experts around this town, but I think I may get hooked on an old sport that many have been playing at for years around here.

The Sport? Bowling. Yeah, bowling.

Now I will admit I haven't really tried the sport since I had to take it as a class in college. I needed a great grade to make up for the poor one I was expecting in another class and I figured a one hour credit of an A would help out the ol' grade point average.

So I took the class and tried to learn how to play the game. I hate to tell you how many years ago it was but it was over 20.

And I haven't touched a bowling ball since, except for one time I was out at Boyne City Lanes to pick up an ad and started to watch a few of the better bowlers of the area get together to roll a few lines during lunch.

I think Bud Jackson lent me a ball just to see if I could get the thing down the alley. I did, thanks to the great ball he lent me. I think I even rolled a couple of strikes that day.

I almost got enthused enough to start playing, but something kept getting in the way, like work. I couldn't find the time in a league, due to all the night meetings I go to during the week.

Until late Monday night. I stopped in to get an ad approved and ended up getting a bowling lesson from, who Ron Grunch and Ron Peters say, is one of the best bowlers in the state and a great instructor.

The manager of the alleys told me to get on this pair of shoes with the leather so you can slide and find a ball off the rack.

Using all of my remembered knowledge, most of which I had forgotten, I found a ball I thought would fit.

It was then I had lesson number one about the sport.

The instructor, Joe Deisler, Jr., gave me a few hints right off. Like start closer to the foul line, slow down the approach and gently release the ball.

He must have said the right things, because in a few shots I rolled a strike.

Hey, this game isn't too bad, I immediately thought, and I tried to roll another one.

No good, Joe said. He then had me move a little this way and point the ball that way. Talk about confused. But I got my brain sorted out and rolled a couple more strikes.

Boy, I am doing this thing right, I thought.

Then Ron Grunch who was practicing up on the next lane told me to try this old ball of his. What a difference.

The house ball I was using was like a brick compared to a good ball. Joe had me try a few more things and pretty soon I hit three strikes in a row.

I was ready to sign up for all the leagues.

But, like hunting mushrooms in the spring, sometimes you cannot see the little things when they are right in front of your nose. It was the same in my bowling.

I started to try some other things to see if they would work. I got confused and couldn't coordinate my brain with my hands and my feet.

Sure, I would roll a couple of good shots, only because I hit the mark, but I was rolling more bad ones.

Joe stopped me just when I was going from average to worse.

He says it was because I hadn't thrown a ball for all those years, and why did I quit? I also think he stopped me because he didn't want me to develop some bad habit he wouldn't be able to break the next time I get out to roll a few games.

He made it easy. But, I only had to shoot the first ball, he would keep re-racking the balls and telling me I should only learn how to throw strikes.

Maybe my next lesson will be how to not throw the ball into the gutter when I try to pick up all those splits I keep hearing other bowlers mention.

But in the meantime, he is going to fit me into a real ball, given to me by Ron Grunch who says he doesn't use it anymore.

Not to be outdone, Peters said he would give me one of his old bowling balls, too.

So if I can figure out the rest of the game, I'll see you at the bowling alley.

I already know the

Gaylord arts council sponsors photo contest until Oct. 17

With all the interest coming from the proposed historical museum in the Old City Park in Boyne City, this picture is a reminder that the park used to house a fine collection of wild animals. Pictured is the famous black bear that had its' home in the park for many years. Also featured in the park were deer and other small game. The park itself has been cleaned up of all the underbrush since these days when the picture was taken. If you have any old pictures of Boyne City, East Jordan, or the surrounding area, bring them to our office and we'll make a copy for this pictorial feature.

The Gaylord Area Council for the Arts is sponsoring a photo contest. There are two divisions: Black & White and Color. You may enter both. The contest is open to everyone. Photographs will be judged on light, creativity, composition and imagination. Prizes will be cash awards. Winners will be announced in the Charlevoix County Press after the Friday, October 17.

1. Enter no more than four photos - black & white, color or both. The photos should be no larger than 11 x 14 inches.
2. Mail photos to: PHOTO CONTEST, Arts Council, P.O. Box 249, Gaylord, MI 49735. Entries must be postmarked no later than October 17, 1986.
3. Include name, address and phone number on all entries. Photos will be returned only if accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope. The arts council assumes no responsibility for lost or damaged photographs.

Judges for the photo contest will be: Jim Silbar, Editor of the Charlevoix County Press, Boyne City; Ken Winter, Editor of the Petoskey News Review, Petoskey; and Jim Grisso, Publisher of the Gaylord Herald Times, Gaylord.

neighborly then I suggest we push on anyway.

I have known one of the people involved for a great many years and I just can't see him trying to block this project for personal reasons.

If push should come to shove, I can't imagine any judge refusing the city permission to build a museum in the park when that building would become a part of the park and be open to the public. I sure wouldn't spend three of four thousand dollars on attorney fees trying to convince him otherwise.

Lets hear some pros and cons on this thing and try and get our city commission to speed things up a bit and have a ground breaking this fall yet.

Everett K. Sayles
Boyne City.

Dear Commissioners:

Thank you for hearing me out Tuesday evening. I do have something of an afterthought that may have some merit.

Would it be feasible or even possible to officially designate the old city park as the Boyne City Historical Park? By doing so it should clear away any legal objection to building the museum there as almost all parks do have buildings in them that are directly connected to the use of the particular park.

Over the course of years such a park could very well develop into one of the most unique and beautiful parks anywhere in the north.

I can envision outdoor exhibits and displays of many kinds that would compliment the museum itself and preserve the memories of our past.

Finally, it would not only keep our present generation busy getting it started in the right direction but would have room for future generations to do their thing in also.

Am I dreaming or is such a concept worthy of real serious considerations?

Everett K. Sayles
Boyne City

Doesn't want hurried decision

Editor:

I just have to set Mr. E.K. Sayles straight on a few points about the Boyne City's Historical museum. First of all, I am not against the museum, only against a pell mell development.

Let's review some of the facts. The first choice of the society was an old church next to the library, which after saner minds prevailed the site was abandoned. Next was an old church on the corner of Michigan Ave. and Groveland, again after some thorough appraisal of the building it was decided that to rejuvenate and maintain that building would have been an impossible task.

Now the historical society and the city has come up with a site and certainly Mr. Sayles, if he still remembers, because they claim in some cases of old age, the mind goes first, I have whole heartedly endorsed that site plan.

But already it has shown that a thorough study in both cases, has avoided some very costly mistakes.

As far as being the Junior Commissioner of Boyne City Commission, that maybe so, but I would like to remind Mr. Sayles that I have lived in Boyne City in excess of 34 years. And during which time I certainly have not seen where Mr. Sayles civic contributions to Boyne City would make the who's - who list in the Boyne City's Hall of Fame.

I have lived in Boyne City long enough, that I have had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Everett K. Sayles' dad, Mr. Ollie Sayles, what a wonderful person he was. My only regret is that Mr. Everett Sayles can't seem to fill those shoes.

Writer encourages citizen input in museum controversy

Editor:

I would like to express my opinion on the proposed placement of the Historical Museum and comment on several matters pertaining to this project. I oppose the construction of a new building in this park. Old City Park is a very small public park. It is a park of natural beauty and should be preserved as such.

To those in favor of this proposal: think long and hard about what this would mean. Old City Park is over 100 years old, the trees maybe even older. If you cut some of those three down, you cut down some of Boyne City's history - a real contradiction of terms: remove history to install a historical museum.

In this day and age, when so many cities are searching for greenery and for available space to develop parks, it seems Boyne City is not making an effort to protect the park area it has. Boyne City is heavily promoting the Air/Industrial Park - with the anticipated growth of this town. Do you think our park space is adequate?

For the museum project itself, a suggestion to save space and cost: eliminate the public restrooms. Boyne City presently has two public restrooms. Those at the public boat launch have been temporarily closed this season because of heavy vandalism. Due to the high cost of repairing the restrooms, they may be permanently closed. The other restrooms in Sunset Park are also vandalized, sometimes very dirty and I think are generally poorly maintained. Does this justify building a third public restroom?

In an article of an Aug. 13 issue in the News Review City Manager Randy Frykberg recommends placing the museum at the present Chamber of Commerce building in Sunset Park. In response to this, a city commissioner says he "vehemently opposed placing museum in Sunset Park" "the view of Lake Charlevoix from Water St. would be ruined and never duplicated." I would like to know where was this concern when approx. 1 1/4 mile of shoreline in Boyne City was developed with multi-storied condominiums, restaurant and motel?

Finally I strongly object to the police chief and the city commissioners calling citizens complaints because they attended meetings to voice their opinion! In the past commissioners have said that the townspeople are apathetic, that they don't attend meetings. Your attitude will do little to promote constructive discussion or to encourage meeting participation in the future. It is your job as commissioners to listen to your constituents, listen to their ideas and to represent them. If you won't do that, you should not be a city commissioner.

For those of you wanting Old City Park preserved, let your feelings be known!

Looking over the parking lot prior to its being paved, the new management team for the Boyne City Lanes, Joe Deisler Jr., Jim Smith, and Joe Deisler made sure the lot would have the proper drainage when it was covered with asphalt. The new owners after a liquor license transfer is completed, will be adding many new features to the popular bowling alley, all designed to make bowling fun and interesting.

New owners plan total modernization of bowling alley

"We want to make bowling fun again in Boyne City," said Joe Deisler, the new owner of the Boyne City Lanes shortly after taking over the reins from the Moody family.

Deisler ought to know what makes the game fun as he has been in the bowling center business since 1959 when he and some partners purchased the State Lanes in Saginaw. Within a year or so, he had purchased control of the operation by buying out his partners.

Prior to getting into the bowling business, Deisler was working with his brothers in the mortuary business in Saginaw. But all the brothers liked to bowl, and they urged Deisler into the business so they could all have some fun in the sport.

But Deisler did them better, he fell in love with the business.

Five years later, he built a 56 lane bowling center, Stardust Lanes, also in Saginaw, but on the other side of town.

A few years after that, he purchased the Bay Lanes in Bay City with another 32 lanes.

Deisler had a couple of other interests, too. One was the love of this area. He bought a unit at the Wildwood development nine years ago and was starting to spend a lot of time around the Boyne City area.

Three years ago, he purchased a unit at The Harborage, after many talks with the developers Rick and Dave Smith. The Smiths used to stop in to talk with Deisler when they drove downstate on other business matters.

Whatever they talked about must have had an effect on Deisler as he sold out his interests in all of the bowling centers and retired to Boyne City two years ago.

He says he has been looking at the Boyne City operation for a couple years, but until everything fell into place this past spring and summer, he didn't think Boyne City Lanes was ready to sell.

Although the deal isn't completed yet, due to the license transfer, Deisler has been acting in a management capacity. The transfer is expected any day now, which will make him officially the owner.

If you drive by the bowling alley, you will see some of the immediate changes being made. A new sign was installed earlier this summer on the building, and this week, the parking lot is being paved with asphalt. They are also adding plenty of outside lighting to the parking area as well.

Deisler has added air-conditioning to the building which should also be completed this week.

But just as importantly as the refurbishing of the outside, the new owner is refurbishing all of the pin setting machines. They are also planning making many other changes to the alley this first year as well.

Deisler hired Jim Smith, formerly the manager of the Bellaire Lanes for the past three years to help run the alleys here.

Smith already knows most of the bowlers from his relationships in bowling in Bellaire.

He started his career in the bowling business in the Lansing area where he was the assistant manager of Metro Bowl for five years. Smith is originally from Bellaire, but he intends to move to Boyne City as soon as possible with his wife Sandy and their three children, Rhonda, 9, Jimmy, 8, and Michael, 6.

The last member of the management team set up by the Senior Deisler involves his son, commonly called Joe Junior, although he does have a different middle initial. Young Joe is charged with getting all of the machinery in top condition and keeping it that way as the chief lane supervisor. Deisler is also one of the top active bowlers on the national and regional Professional Bowlers Association circuit.

His being a certified pinsetter machanic and a bowler helps him know when the lanes are oiled right, a common complaint many bowlers have as they play the game, and running the way it should without breakdowns.

He will be moving to Boyne as soon as he can find a home. But he will be missing from the hometown scene when there is a tournament. He has been in 14 national tournaments and knows most of the pro bowlers we see on television personally.

Young Deisler is also an active instructor and will be offering help and hints as well as giving lessons at the bowling center.

The three intend to make Boyne City Lanes one of the premier bowling centers in northern Michigan. Each has said this area was just waiting for someone to take charge to get it there.

They will be starting and developing an extensive junior bowling program, offering more than just league play, and have added some parts of the sport that make it fun like "No tap Friday Night" and the popular "Moonlight Double Saturday Night."

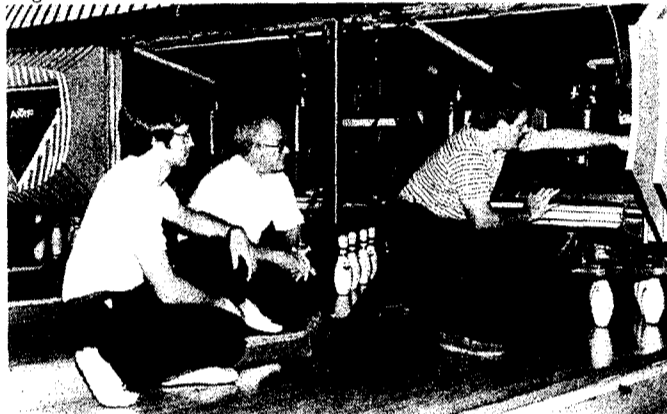

They will also be starting a senior citizen league during the day with the intention of having fun as the main idea. It will also help some seniors remain physically active.

As to other changes the new management team is planning, they have made subtle changes on the inside, added a satellite dish for those wishing to watch sports on the big screen and more.

But more changes are in the works, they say. "We have just started a three year modernization program," said the senior Deisler, "And we intend to be making changes and adding new things every week almost, during that time."

The changes may not happen on a weekly basis, but the management team has the bowling alley moving in the right direction, according to most of the heavy bowlers in the area.

"That's just what we like to see and hear," the younger Deisler said as he rolled another strike making it look like anyone could do it. He was referring to more than just the sound of the ball knocking down the pins.

Every machine in the Boyne City Lanes has been gone over by chief lane supervisor and certified mechanic Joe Deisler Jr. He points out some aspect of the repair to this machine to new owner Joe Deisler and manager Jim Smith.

Joe Jr. is also a member of the touring Professional Bowling Association and has participated in many national tournaments. He will also be helping to instruct those interested in the finer points of bowling at the lanes.

Ware-withal

BY GAIL WARE

Maureen Stapleton worries that my breakfast cereal isn't as good as it should be. And she's not alone. Other famous people in the acting profession have also expressed concern about the fiber and vitamin content of what I spoon into my mouth in the morning. I am touched but not touched enough to make the changes they advise.

The new cereal ads, sophisticated adult presentations, offer a refreshing change from the ads aimed at kids. I appreciate their lower key. But I'm not and have no wish to be sophisticated and adult about my choices in breakfast food. I made up my mind a long time ago what I'm willing to eat in the morning. And no reasoned rhetoric from anyone can move me from my favorite boxes.

Wheaties ranks highest on my cereal list. In my childhood, Wheaties sponsored the radio show, "Jack Armstrong". Jack performed all sorts of feats of derring-do just before dinner-time each weekday afternoon. I listened faithfully and ate my Wheaties so I could do as Jack did. Now that I think about it, the program was aimed more at boys than girls, but this escaped my notice at the time. So I ate my flakes and developed a taste for them.

I'm pleased to learn that Olympics star, Mary Lou Retton, eats Wheaties too. Having seen her perform, I figure that I'm on the right track although I have little more chance of emulating her than I did old Jack. But I comfort myself that Robert Browning would be gratified to know that my reach keeps right on exceeding my grasp.

I also favor Shredded Wheat in the morning. But it's more of an attachment to than a fondness for. My father ate Shredded Wheat for breakfast every morning of his life - that and figs or, dates. And I associate the cereal not only with my father but with all hardy Vermonters like him. I eat Shredded Wheat and imagine that every bite makes the very core of me stronger.

I'm not up to Shredded Wheat more than once or twice a week, it being an acquired taste that I'm still in the process of acquiring. But it seems worth working at. I figure that there must be something enjoyable about it for my father to have stuck with it all those years.

Cheerios I don't have to work on enjoying. The cereal delighted me from the first spoonful many years ago. And the yellow box, like a patch of sunlight on the breakfast table, makes it even better.

None of my choices have the amount of fiber or vitamins that some of the newer cereals claim to. But mine satisfy both body and spirit. And that's good enough for me. Besides, getting all the nutrition one needs for the day first thing in the morning leaves one with little incentive to stay up and doing for the rest of the day.

Maureen Stapleton may be disappointed that I won't even try her new cereal. Still, actresses being sentimental, she'd likely understand my attachment to the old standbys, especially Shredded Wheat. Since the cereal is nearly a century old, chances are her father ate Shredded Wheat for breakfast too.

"This is good back-up system in case anything happens to the reservoir" Garlock told the commissioners.

The 193 feet deep well will have surge protectors built in to the specifications according to Garlock.

The commissioners also approved the final plat for the new Air/Industrial Park, located just inside of the city limits. Although several manufacturing firms have started their buildings, the official plat wasn't determined until recently.

The city also accepted a check for $450 from the Boyne City Antique Auto Club which represents the amount of money charged to them for the use of the park a few weekends ago. Included in the money was the license fees for all of the dealers who were there.

They also accepted an anonymous donation for a new cascade air filling system for the fire department. The system will allow the fire department to refill their air tanks faster, according to Butch Erber, Fire Chief. He told the commissioners the volunteers would be adding to the money in order to get the system on line as quickly as possible. The total cost of the system, which would be hooked up with the new compressor the city purchased recently, will be $1750.

Pick-up Sat. for hazardous wastes in Pet.

Every American household uses products and materials that were unheard of a hundred years ago. Not only do we have new chemical products such as pesticides, medicines, and cleaning solvents, but also everyday products such as shampoo, tires, glue, paint, plastics, etc. When these products are no longer useful to us, they become wastes. Many of these new kinds of wastes can harm living things—even to the point of being life-threatening. Such wastes have been termed "hazardous wastes". People have always produced hazardous wastes, however in recent history the rising standard of living combined with the increasing population have greatly increased both the variety and amount of wastes produced. This has placed tremendous stress on Man's relationship with his environment. The term "hazardous waste" has a legal definition; it does not include all waste that needs careful management, such as nondegradable packaging and discarded refrigerators. A hazardous waste is a discarded substance whose chemical or biological nature makes it potentially dangerous to people and other living things. Man can no longer afford the attitude, "out of sight, out of mind" toward these products. For example, discarded motor oil poured down a storm drain goes directly into our lakes and waterways. It takes only a few parts of oil to contaminate a million parts of water. Hazardous wastes must be disposed of by methods which prevent them from reaching dangerous levels in our environment. In an effort to bring the issues of household hazardous waste disposal to the attention of Northern Michigan residents, District Health Department No. 3 is sponsoring a hazardous household waste Pick-Up Day on Saturday, August 23, 1986. Two sites have been selected for people to bring their household hazardous wastes for disposal. The two locations are Petoskey Giantway Plaza parking lot,

U.S. 31, North of Petoskey, from 9:00 a.m.-12:00 noon AND Gaylord Midway parking lot, Old U.S. 27, South, from 2:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. The Pick-Up Day will be carried out by Drug and Lab Disposal, Inc. of Plainwell, Michigan. Health Department official, Bert Notestine, advises that all household hazardous waste items must be in or with their original containers so that the product may be identified. Unknown substances will not be accepted according to Notestine. Northern Michigan residents are encouraged to clean their garages, storerooms, laundry rooms and sheds by August 23, in an effort to properly dispose of hazardous waste at the Pick-Up site nearest your home. Examples of items which are considered household hazardous wastes are paint stripper, batteries, wood preservatives including oil-base paints, insecticides, unused medicines, drain cleaner, aerosol cans of all types, cleaning solvents, etc. For more information, residents can call their local Health Department. Managing hazardous wastes in our environment requires each of us to be aware of what household products create hazardous wastes, to reduce the amount of waste we produce, to recycle wastes whenever possible, and to make certain that wastes are treated to make them non-hazardous prior to disposal. One of the simplest things an individual can do to reduce hazardous waste from the home is to choose cleaning products and methods which do not require the use of hazardous waste producing materials. Another option is to share products, except medications, with neighbors or relatives to avoid having to discard unused portions of hazardous products. Part two of this series will deal with alternatives to using toxic substances in the home which prevents the creation of hazardous waste and with what families can do to help protect our environment.

This picture shows some of the common household toxic waste that can be taken to Petoskey for proper disposal. There are many items which could cause problems in the future with the environment, according to those who are holding the clean-up.

are as follows: Varsity; Dina Baker, Anne Jeffery, Heather Klooster, Carin Joyce, Carolle McKenney, Chris Newville, Pam Decker, and Glenda Bennett. Junior Varsity: Danita Bennett, Rachelle Warner, Carolyn Skinkle, Amanda Carney, Nicole Weidler, Nikki

Burr, Kim MacEachern, and Traci Cearlock.

On Friday, August 15, the squads took the spirit award. Also, Varsity took 2nd place and Junior Varsity 5th place on their first cheer. On their second cheer the Varsity again took 2nd place with the Junior Varsity taking 4th.

Saturday, August 16 was the last day, therefore parents and fans were allowed to attend and watch their hometown squads cheer. That day the Varsity took two 2nd places and the Junior Varsity took two 3rd places.

Mackinaw City Ironworkers Festival Aug. 22-24

The Third Annual Ironworkers Festival will be held this weekend, August 22nd through the 24th, in Mackinaw City, Michigan at the grounds of the public schools. Activities include the first-ever "World Championship Column Climb". The winner of the climb will receive a belt buckle made of gold and silver and worth $750. This will take place on Sunday, August 24th, in the afternoon. Other skilled events for ironworkers only will be the Spud Throw, Rivet Throw, Rod Tying and Knot Tying events. A rigging demonstration will be given by Ironworkers Local 136. The public is invited to attend events. Other activities include a dinner cruise under the Mackinac Bridge, softball tournament, beer tent and live music, Ironworkers' Blue Jean Ball, millionaires games, horseshoes, fun run, talent show, and other family-oriented events. Weather permitting, there may be hot air ballooning, also. Trophies will be presented by Bud Light immediately following the competitive events. The Ironworkers Festival is the result of an idea by local businessman and former ironworker J. C. Stilwell and two other ironworker associates, Ed Tallman and Jack Strand. On the 25th Anniversary of the Mackinac Bridge the idea was born to reunite the ironworkers who had worked on the bridge. The first festival was held in 1984, and was successful enough so that it was decided to keep the event going. The reunion included men who were ironworkers, but who had not necessarily worked to build the bridge. Now these ironworkers come from all over the United States to hold their reunion and to compete in competitions using the unique skills they have learned in their line of work. For more information on the schedule of events, call the Chamber of Commerce at 616-436-5574.

French boys' choir at Cheboygan Opera House

The "Les Petits Chanteurs du Comte de Flandre", also known as the "County of Flanders Boys' Choir", will present a concert at the Cheboygan Opera House at 8 p.m., Friday Aug. 22.

The Choir has performed throughout Europe, Canada, and the United States, in addition to presentations for Pope John Paul II and the White House. The Choir is comprised of 40 boys, 9-14, and 10 young men. They come from schools, colleges, and universities in and around Lillie in the north of France.

Under the direction of Regis Decool, their repertoire, includes a wide variety of styles - religious music, Medieval Sacred music, French renaissance music, "Les Noels" (Christmas Carols), and Folksongs - Both American and French. Cheryl A. Dezeliski, Liturgist/Music Director for the Cheboygan Catholic Community, comments: "We are proud to be able to bring to Northern Michigan this fine youth choir which will bring to all present, through their singing and their presence, a great deal of joy and friendship, as well as a first-rate musical message." The appearance is sponsored by the Music Ministry of the Cheboygan Catholic Community. For ticket information call 627-7179, 627-2105 or the Opera House at 627-5841.

Tidbits

Discouraged amateur palentologists struggling to find fossils may need to look no farther than an ant-hill, says Ranger Rick magazine. Harvester ants, found in the western United States, store bone chips and other hard objects in their mounds. Why? Some hypothesize that such artifacts protect the mound from wind and rain or act as little solar heaters, insulating the ant's eggs and larvae.

CMU students study Michigan environment

Mt. Pleasant-- Thanks to a 20-year association between Central Michigan University and an environmental organization near Traverse City, biology students are gaining hands-on experience in assessing environmental conditions.

As early as 1955,

CMU students were conducting research on a group of connecting waters in Antrim County. Three of the lakes -- Bellaire, Clam, and Torch-- have been monitored for water quality by the Three Lakes Association since 1966.

The three lakes area is one of the most beautiful spots in Michigan. Long and narrow Torch Lake is crystal clear and has been rated the third most beautiful lake in the world by the National Geographic Society. The Three Lakes Association is concerned most with preserving that quality.

Dennis Gervin, a 28-year-old graduate student from Vestaburg, is the latest student to conduct research on the lakes. His project -- assessing the condition of the environment on watershed, the lakes, and surrounding land -- will satisfy requirements leading to his master's degree. It will also provide valuable information for the Three Lakes Association to use in protecting the quality of its lakes.

The agreement between CMU and Three Lake began with a concern by LaVerne Curry, former CMU biology professor (1946-75) and department chair (1960-75), to involve students in field projects.

"It was established to try to get students out into the field and get hands-on experience with environmental problems," said Curry, who is enjoying retirement with his wife in their home on Torch Lake. ("We love it here," he says.)

Curry first utilized students in 1955, when he secured a government grant for a project to compare water samples from Elk Lake in Antrim County and Coldwater Lake in Isabella County.

Soon a laboratory was set up in Elk Rapids for his students to use in analyzing their experiments.

"I had students come in and use the lab for different projects," said Curry. "After their research was done, the students wrote their reports and passed them along to the proper officials."

The Three Lakes Association was organized in 1966 and almost immediately had a working relationship with CMU. Three Lakes helped pay gas and mileage expenses for students traveling to the area to conduct experiments, and another laboratory was set up in Bellaire.

Increasing costs forced the shutdown of the labs in Elk Rapids and Bellaire several years ago, but the Three Lakes Association still generates funds to support students conducting research on the lakes.

"For many years we had a good association with CMU," said Bill Weiss, executive director of the Three Lakes Association. "Dennis is really exploring some new ground for us. We have had other people do background testing, but Dennis is getting new information about watershed for us to use in the future."

Gervin began his project last summer and presented his final report to the Three Lakes Association in January. The project was divided into three parts:

*Testing for levels of phosphorous in the tributaries of Torch, Clam, and Bellaire Lakes.

*Effects of acid rain on Torch, Clam, and Bellaire Lakes.

*Industrial-commercial waste on Torch, Clam, and Bellaire Lakes.

In the first part of his project, Gervin collected water samples to determine the level of nutrients, particularly phosphorous, in the lakes.

"The association has gathered data on its environment for the past 20 years and is very interested in phosphorous levels of the lake," said Gervin.

Camp Michigania: popular and filled

BY MIRIAM SMITH

Camp Michigania isn't your typical camp in terms of bonfires, nature hikes, and stone skipping sessions. Although these stalwart activities are provided, the University of Michigan Alumni Camp offers a great deal more; a very special and traditional atmosphere. It is not just a camp; it has become a greatly anticipated and much coveted means of escape for many U of M Alumni and their families. There is a special aura that goes along with Michigania; not necessarily in relation with the University of Michigan, it has more to do with the yearly reunion of 70 families per week who all share a common bond from their camp adventures.

Michigania provides 11 weekly sessions; eight of the 11 were filled to capacity this year. One-hundred sixty to 175 families were on a waiting list after the first session of camp—an example of the great demand for this highly treasured destination.

Camp Michigania Walloon is one of three U of M Alumni Camps. There is a Michigania East, located in New York's Adirondack Mountains; and a Michigania West, located in the Sequoia National Forest in California. Michigania Walloon is the oldest and largest of the three, originating in 1963 after the U of M Alumni purchased what was formerly Camp Huntington-Sherwood. Michigania is owned and operated by the Alumni Association, which is an independent organization.

Michigania is supported primarily from the campers' fees, thus allowing the camper to truly feel a beneficial part of this grand location.

Michigania is emphasized as being a "family camp", therefore adults as well as children can enjoy the rustic and stimulating activities; after all, adults are entitled to rekindle their Boy/Girl Scout upbringings, correct? Michigania is loaded with activities: archery, arts and crafts, field sports, nature study, boating, swimming, tennis, riding, and teen gatherings. Intellectual discussions are provided for the campers by members of the U of M faculty who also come to relish the beautiful scenery and all that accompanies it that is the very essence of Walloon Lake and Michigania.

Two staff groups are provided to assist campers: the outdoor staff and the kitchen staff. There are forty counselors presently employed in the outdoor staff, all of college age. Surprisingly enough, they come from various universities as opposed to being strictly from U of M. Each is assigned a specific program of activity, and are all highly qualified in these areas. The kitchen staff consists of 30 college and high school students, many of whom are from this area. They are responsible for freeing campers from the duty of cooking their own meals, and do so with efficiency and professionalism.

What appeals to alumni about Michigania? According to Greg Fleming, Camp Director, the most tantalizing feature for the would-be camper is the fact that it is a family vacation, and therefore activities are provided for all age groups.

"The number of nutrients indicate the rate of lakes age and the amount of algae.

"I drove around the lakes and collected samples. I discovered so few nutrients, I couldn't analyze them in my lab (set up in his van). I had to go to a professional lab."

Technically, Gervin found phosphorous at an average of 15 parts per billion, an extremely low level.

The second part of the project was to gauge the effects of acid rain on the lakes. He found the rain 60 times more acidic than unpolluted rain water. But he also discovered a high level of limestone in the lakes. Limestone, an alkali which raises the pH of water, tends to buffer the lakes from outside contamination, said Gervin. Taking under consideration the high pH, and his analysis and history of the soil and vegetation around the lakes, he concluded the surface water was not vulnerable to acid contamination and the land moderately vulnerable.

The third part of his project was more complex. He analyzed the potential threat of industrial and commercial waste spills. With the help of the Department of Natural Resources, Gervin found six sites in the county under investigation for contamination. He discovered an area where 1,000 gallons of fuel oil were spilled,

In order to become a camper, at least one member of the family must be a member of the U of M Alumni Association. It is not a prerequisite, however, that each camper be a die-hard Wolverine supporter, as periodically a camper is seen who boldly sports an article of clothing from an equally prestigious Big Ten university.

Camp Michigania has been a tradition on Walloon Lake for 23 years. For most everyone that has been a part of its experience, it truly fulfills any definition of an enjoyable experience period.

Camp director Greg Fleming described it as being "an unbeatable environment". Some would add that it is one of the most enjoyable ways to spend a week or a summer. Here's to at least 23 more years, Michigania!

CMU study

which, in a year or two, will find its way to Torch Lake, and found two gas stations with leaking underground tanks.

He also found an industrial site which had been cited for alleged violations as early as 1963 and is only gradually coming into compliance, he said. Next to the industrial site is a dump with barrels full of "nobody knows what," Gervin concluded the areas of contamination are a problem for the Three Lakes Association to consider.

Gervin's project satisfies Professor Curry's original goal of students achieving hands-on experience.

"My career goal is to be an environmental consultant, and that is what this work is," said Gervine, "I rate this experience very high."

Phenomenon of flocking birds has started

In late July on Beaver Island, I witnessed a late summer phenomenon that can be seen almost anywhere in the state—a large flock of birds going to an evening roost.

It happened to be chimney swifts, which assemble in large numbers, form a vortex and spiral down into a chimney. But the roosting phenomenon also occurs among blackbirds.

Both these birds are at their peak in population at this time of year, as all the surviving young of the year are present, along with the adults.

The chimney swift is a small, black bird with swept-back wings, a stubby tail, and a short beak that opens very wide. They're often called "flying cigars" because of their plump, blunt silhouette. Though they are ecologically similar to nighthawks—both feed exclusively on insects caught on the wing—and both have short beaks and swept-back wings, chimney swifts are members of the hummingbird family. Like hummingbirds, chimney swifts can fly vertically and can hover for a short time. In short, they are ideally adapted to living in chimneys. (Before humans started providing chimneys for swifts to line in, they used hollow trees.)

In the summer, chimney swifts are often seen darting, diving and swooping to catch insects. Often several birds fly together, twittering and making these aerial maneuvers in unison. In the evening, right around sundown, they collect in large numbers and settle into inactive chimneys, where they cling to the sides with their feet and lean back against their short, stiff tail feathers.

Chimney swifts also nest and raise their young in chimneys. They use a sticky saliva to glue together twigs and stick them to the side of the chimney. If the nest comes loose, you may have baby swifts in your fireplace, but this is unusual. Adult chimney swifts can fly straight up and out of a chimney. Other birds that fall into chimneys can't get themselves out that way.

A roosting flock of chimney swifts may number 100 to 200 birds. Blackbird flocks at this time of year may number into the thousands or even tens of thousands. All the birds in an area as large as a county may come together to form a single flock and occupy a common roost. I have stood for a half-hour and watched unbroken lines of blackbirds flying by on their way to the evening roosting site.

As the birds migrate south, that night roosting site will change, moving south with the birds. Birds may stay in one place for a few days or two weeks or as long as two months before they move on.

If you are along the flight route and you are not raising crops that these birds stop to feed on, you may view the spectacle with something approaching awe. If the birds descend on your crops or roost near your home, you may see it very differently.

If you live near the roost, you'll find yourself shouting over the racket the birds make. The cacophony of cheeps and squawks night after night can be quite disturbing. And the droppings from thousands of birds can make a smelly, unsightly mess.

People on the receiving end of this phenomenon often want to eliminate the birds. People who don't suffer any inconvenience from the birds often don't want to see them disturbed. The middle ground is to use visual and auditory scare tactics—such as aerial exploding charges, explosion-producing cannons, alarm and distress calls broadcast via loudspeaker, shotgun fire, whistles, bells, sirens, horns and other varied noisemakers—to make the birds move their roost backdoor, somewhere they won't be bothering anyone. This doesn't solve the crop depredation problem, but it allows at least some people to view the late summer roosting phenomenon as just another fascinating facet of nature from your backdoor.

How to wade through that realtor jargon

Every trade or profession has its own jargon—words and phrases that insiders understand but are a foreign language to most others. It's hard enough to learn the meaning of words used by one profession, but those buying, renting, insuring, remodeling or building a home will have to translate lawyerspeak, builderspeak and real-estate-speak, into something they can understand.

They will encounter modern-day Tower of Babel. What is most frustrating is that the real estate person, lender, builder and architect are all speaking English but they give familiar words meanings that have no relation to what we would expect.

For instance, if a "kicker" conjures up a vision of a soccer player or a goal post with a football sailing through, that is not what it means when the person using the term is a landlord or lender. To those people it means an extra charge in addition to the rent or principal and interest. For instance if a store is rented for $1,000 a month, the landlord may ask for a "kicker" of three percent extra for all the business you do over $30,000 for the month. A lender for an income property might add a "kicker" that gives him a portion of all rents over a certain dollar amount.

Boiler plate does not refer to the walls of your furnace when you are dealing with those involved in law or real estate. Boiler plate is the pre-printed form that contains most standard clauses for the type of contract, lease or mortgage that you will be asked to sign. Before you sign the boiler plate contract, the names of those involved and other specific details will be added.

When the landlord wants an escalator, he isn't asking for a moving stairway to take him to the second floor. He means that he has inserted an escalator in the lease that will raise the rent at intervals during your tenancy.

Bridge financing is for people who will never own a roadway over a river. It is an interim loan until a longer term loan is provided. For instance, a person selling one house and buying another may need to borrow money for a down payment and closing on his new home, if his former dwelling has not yet been sold and paid for. Or a builder may need construction money until he sells a house. Lintels are not used for soup. Lintels are beams over open spaces in your walls, such as doors, windows or fireplaces. They spread the weight from above over a longer span and decrease the pressure on the door or window frame.

Neither Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac are college friends of your husband. Fannie Mae is the nickname of Federal National Mortgage Association and Freddie Mac is Federal Home Loan Mortgage Association. Both buy mortgages from lenders so that they have money to relend to other people wanting mortgages.

Points are not the tips of arrows and spears, although they too can hurt. To a lender or a borrower, points are a percentage of the amount to be borrowed that is paid to the lender to increase his profit. Each point is one percent. For instance four points on a $50,000 mortgage would be four percent of $50,000 which is $2,000. This is in addition to whatever interest is being charged.

Although you might suspect that a party wall is a place to lean during conversation at a cocktail party, to a builder it is the common wall between two buildings.

Ante to a lawyer is not money put in a pot during a poker game. Ante is simply Latin for "before". This is one of many cases in which lawyers use unfamiliar Latin words and phrases in place of familiar English words.

Cynics have suspected that it is to force you to go to a lawyer to decipher contracts prepared by another lawyer.

To help people translate this sometimes incomprehensible jargon, the Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit organization, has just compiled a dictionary of words and phrases you need to know to rent, buy, lease, insure or mortgage property. Homeowners and Renters Guide to the Language of Real Estate, Banking, Law and Building can be ordered from CERC, 439 Clark St., South Orange, N.J. 07079.

There are literally hundreds of common English words which don't mean the same things to these professionals as they do to you and me. For instance, a balloon to a lender is not for celebrating. And when it comes due, a balloon usually does not make a borrower joyful. A balloon is a final payment on a loan that is much larger than regular payments. In order to keep their commitment to a short period, a bank may arrange a five year loan calling for 59 payments of $800 and a last payment of $60,000. The borrower is expected to renegotiate another mortgage for the $60,000 with the banker or another lender. Many times this is due when mortgage money is tight or the borrower's credit rating has been tarnished and the balloon cannot be refinanced. Result? Another home for the sheriff to sell at the auction.

If you find a bird dog at your door, don't call the ASPCA. She is a canvasser trying to get "leads," which could result in real estate listings or home improvement sales.

A shoe to an architect or builder is a moulding used at the bottom of the baseboard and a heel is part of a vertical framing member which rests closest to the floor. If you need strings, those are the side pieces that support the steps. Tendons are the materials used to reinforce concrete, such as cable or wire. Oh yes, a sole owner of property might have bought it on a shoe string (little money down).

A kite winder won't help you keep that high flier in the air. To a builder or architect, a kite winder is those few steps that take you around the curve in a stairway.

You may think that Mother Hubbard is a woman, a dress or a cupboard. Not in the mortgage business. To them, Mother Hubbard is a clause in a loan agreement that allows the lender, in the case of default, to foreclose not only on the mortgage but on any other collateralized loan they own.

A builder keeps a light in the window, sometimes six lights. A light is one section of glass in the window sash. A weep hole isn't where you cry when the mortgage payment comes due, it's a hole in the siding that permits moisture to leave the home. Prescription in lawyer language is acquiring a property through adverse possession. A parcel is a piece of property.

Don't be upset if your daughter has a few studs in her room. You do too. Those are the 2x4s that go from the floor to the ceiling inside the walls. Don't call the navy about the sub base outside your home. Sub base is the gravel or stone under your driveway or patio.

Robert L. Berko, executive director of CERC says that if there is to be a "meeting of the minds" (definition in the book) between you and any or all of the above professions, you must know what they are saying. This book will translate their insider's jargon into English.

Voluntary wetlands agreements for private landowners

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has begun a new program which promotes protection of Michigan's wetlands through voluntary agreements with private landowners. "The Wetland Stewardship Program is designed to educate landowners about the importance and need for wetland protection and to encourage them to protect their wetlands," says Gail Gruenwald, Wetland Program Coordinator for the Watershed Council.

"The Watershed

"Stuffy office syndrome," or indoor air pollution, such as tobacco smoke, formaldehyde from building insulation, and bacteria, affects the well being of countless American workers, reports National Wildlife magazine. According to researchers at the University of Wisconsin, constant exposure to dusts, gases, vapors and allergens in tightly sealed buildings causes employees to complain of eye, nose and throat irritations, headaches, skin rashes, fatigue and stress, not to mention, perhaps, the "Monday morning blues."

Council believes that landowners who recognize the importance of their wetland property will support protection of wetlands regionwide. That is our hope," says Gruenwald.

Private wetland owners can become stewards by signing non-binding, non-contractual agreements which state that the landowner will not drain, dredge, fill or in any way destroy their wetland. Wetland stewards receive a certificate of appreciation for participation in the program, as well as the satisfaction and pride which comes from knowing they have helped protect Michigan's wetlands. In addition, the Watershed Council will provide assistance to the wetland stewards regarding land management and advice on other protection measures.

"I think this is one of the Watershed Council's most exciting new programs," exclaims Carol Magee, the Watershed Council Executive Director. "We have enrolled one wetland steward in this first month of the program, and we hope to enroll many more in the months to come."

There is a great need for the Wetland Stewardship Program in this area, according to the Watershed Council. Small wetlands, especially those on lake frontage, are being filled and drained for housing at a rapid pace. "We want to slow that pace by encouraging landowners to protect their wetlands," Gruenwald explains. "Wetlands provide this area with important values, such as fish and wildlife habitat, water purification, shoreline stabilization, flood damage prevention, among others. The Watershed Council's Wetland Stewardship Program will help to protect these wetland values for our community in the years to come."

The idea for the stewardship program came from the Michigan Natural Areas Registry, which is a program of The Nature Conservancy in Lansing. The Registry targets unusual natural communities and habitats for rare, threatened or endangered plants and animals. "Our program is similar in operation, but we have targeted all wetlands, not just the most significant," states Gruenwald.

In addition to non-binding stewardship agreements, there are several options available to private landowners to permanently protect wetlands. "The Watershed Council can provide basic information on such protection devices as conservation easements, donations, donations with a reserved life estate, bargain sales, etc.," states Gruenwald. "We can also refer interested landowners to a land trust or conservancy, such as Northern Michigan's Little Traverse Conservancy, for assistance regarding implementing land protection mechanisms."

Please contact the Watershed Council at (616) 347-1181 if you own wetland property and are interested in becoming a wetland steward.

Summer car care hints for happy motoring

July and August can be unhappy months for many cars. All you have to do is drive near a big city when the sun is bright and the traffic slow. You'll see a lot of cars with their hoods up and engines steaming! The owners steam, too,

* * *

An alphabetical listing of Michigan's cities and villages starts with Acme (Grand Traverse County) and ends with Zilwaukee (Saginaw County). If such a list included past boom/ghost towns, the list might start with Aabec (Antrim County, Post Office operated until 1896) and end with Zutphen (Ottawa County, named for a town in the Netherlands, Post Office operated until 1906).

* * *

Geologists say that nature occasionally pulls the "plug" and drains Rainy Lake (Presque Isle County) near Onaway. Seems the lake occupies a limestone sinkhole depression with sediment (most of the time) blocking the drainage exit.

because it can mean expensive repairs.

If your engine has overheated that severely, there's a good chance that the cylinders or cam shafts have been scored, bearings badly worn...expensive stuff with today's engines! (Most times, this is not the case. There are a few simple things you can do to prevent your car from overheating.)

Here are some hot weather tips that can help...

1) Be sure your radiator is checked and contains the proper coolant. Don't just add water...pure water boils at a lower temperature than water mixed with anti-freeze (ethylene glycol). If you top off the radiator, be sure to use a 50/50 mix of water and anti-freeze to keep that boiling point as high as possible and carry a gallon or two in the trunk (just in case).

2) Blast bugs off the radiator with a garden hose (a stiff stream of water). Clean them out with a stiff bristled brush. Proper air flow for your radiator not only keeps your engine cool but also cools the transmission oil.

3) Be sure the transmission oil is at the proper level. If it's a brown color and smells burnt, change it. Have the bands in your automatic transmission adjusted before you go on any long trips. The weight of a trailer could be just enough to cause the bands to slip and leave you stranded on your vacation.

4) Inspect fan belts to check if they are glazed or cracked. If a belt breaks or slips badly on a hot day, your coolant won't circulate properly and you are sure to overheat. Your battery and air conditioner will suffer too. While you're at it, inspect the hoses. Are they cracked or mushy? If you have any doubt, replace the belts and hose before you start. They always fail at the worst possible times, so replace them before the trouble starts!

5) Turn off air conditioning if the engine is overheating. Air conditioning puts a big load on your cooling system.

6) Be careful! Wait until the engine cools to take the radiator cap off. The radiator is full of super heated water under pressure which will explode in your face and give you a nasty burn if you try to take the cap off too soon.

7) Change your oil regularly. You should start thinking about oil changes every

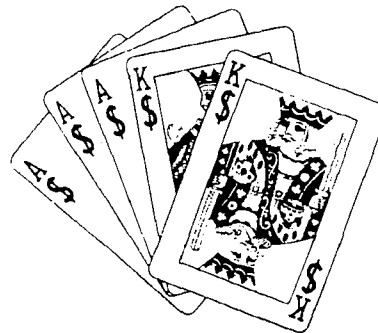

3,000 miles no matter what your car manual says. As engine oil gets dirty, it loses lubricating power; high friction means a hot engine. Change your oil before you go on a long trip...it's cheap insurance for your engine. Always use a high quality oil (in the summertime, the higher viscosity grades are better). Change the filter too. It contains a quart of filthy oil (no sense in mixing that in with new clean oil).

Wald art exhibition at McCune begins Aug. 24

Reknowned American artist and illustrator Carol Wald will present her work in a Limited Engagement Exhibition at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey beginning Sunday, Aug. 24.

Wald is well-known as a teacher and joror in Northern Michigan and nationally celebrated in more than 100 periodicals and magazines including L'Express, Forbes, Atlantic Monthly, Saturday Review, Fortune, People, and Time.

Forbes, Atlantic Monthly, Saturday Review, Fortune, People, and Time.

For her Petoskey exhibition, Wald will display a portion of her new series on Native Americans, which will be featured in New York's Museum of American Illustration Sept. 23 through Oct. 17. She will also exhibit works from her award-winning series "Hermit of the Sea," which was published by Nautical Quarterly.

published by Nautical Quarterly.

The "Hermit of the Sea" series received numerous honors, including the Twentieth Annual Publication Design Exhibition in New York City in 1985, and a certificate of merit from Communication Arts Awards in the same year.

The images used to create the photo-montages for the series were based upon four vintage photographs of Alain Gerbault, the first man to sail single handed across the Atlantic from east to west.

Wald conducted extensive research on Gerbault's 1923 voyage and subsequent travels before she began to combine paint, photography and collage to result in the richly textured images critics have found so compelling.

To create these montages, the artist amassed hundreds of picture fragments of sails, rigging, ships and a variety of shipman's gear as well as numerous special-effect photographs of weather and landscape environments. She spent hours in the darkroom, masking, collaging and manipulating this wide range of printed material, until one cohesive paper negative was achieved for each image. The artist then enhanced the photo montage with an application of oil paints.

Wald will be present at an opening reception Sunday, Aug. 24, from noon until 2:30 p.m. Her exhibition and sale will be hung in the Art Tree Sales Gallery through Saturday, Sept. 6.

The Art Tree is located in the McCune Arts Center, the former historic Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The public is invited to attend the opening reception. There is no charge.

Farms declining in Michigan Tidbits

The number of farms in Michigan during 1986 is estimated at 61,000 down 1,000 farms from the previous year. Michigan has lost 1,000 farms per year since 1983, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service. A farm is defined as "a place as of June 1 that sells or could sell $1,000 of agricultural products during the year." Total land in farms at 11,300,000 acres, declined 100,000 acres from a year ago. The average size of a farm in Michigan is 185 acres.

The number of farms in the United States in 1986 is estimated at 2.21 million, down 3 percent from 1985. The number of farms declined from 1 to 2 percent per year from 1981 through 1985. Total land in farms for 1986 is 1,007 million acres, a decline of less than one percent from a year ago. Land in farms has declined every year since reaching its peak at 1,206 million acres in 1954. Since the number of farms declined at a faster rate than land in farms the average size of farms increased from 425 acrea in 1981 to 455 acres in 1986.

Reports of purple, martin migrations requested for study

LANSING—With Michigan's summer populations of purple martins expected to start winging their way for Brazil any day now, reports of their southbound migrations are needed from all corners of the State to help blueprint many happy returns for the birds in nesting seasons to come, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

Those sightings of martin migrations are being requested by Ann Arbor researcher Richard Wolinski, who recently launched a five-year study aimed at helping stem the birds' nose-dive in numbers on Michigan's outdoor scene.

The study is one of some 30 field projects sponsored by the Nongame Wildlife Fund this summer to help bald eagles, piping plovers, lake sturgeon, bluebirds, sandhill cranes, timber wolves, endangered snakes, and a wide variety of rare and precious plants. The Fund is made up entirely of public donations. Nearly all of them come as checkoff contributions on State income tax returns.

Seconding his thoughts is Bob Hess, in charge of DNR's Nongame Wildlife Program. He explains:

"The information coming from cooperators over the next few years will hopefully help us determine the real answers to why the birds' populations have gone down so much. More importantly, their reports will help us focus on what needs to be done and also make it possible for us to pinpoint our management emphasis in those local parts of the State where the birds need help the most."

Detroit artists show at McCune through Sept. 2

Nine women artists will be exhibiting their work in a show titled, "Directions" at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey Aug. 11 through Sept. 2.

The women are members of the Detroit Society of Women Painters and Sculptors, an organization from the Detroit metropolitan area founded some 75 years ago.

Artists featured are Martha Cormie, Jeannine Goebel, Margaret Kelleher, Barbara Keiden, Sonia Molnar, Isabelle Rodger, F.C. Scafuri, Rita Skoczen and Frances Waring.

The award-winning artists of this highly diverse and accomplished group have been actively involved in the Michigan art scene and have also exhibited throughout the U.S. Their work is included in many private and corporate collections.

Included in the show will be works in watercolor, acrylic, collage and printmaking dealing with the subjects of the natural world interpreted in their own creative approaches.

A number of the featured artists will be present at an opening reception in the exhibition gallery Monday, Aug. 11, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The public is welcome, and there is no charge.

The artists will also present a lecture and demonstration at 1 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11, preceded by a noon luncheon. For reservations call 347-4337.

Statewide, the insect-eating birds have experienced a 50-percent decline in numbers over the last 20 years. In southwestern Lower Michigan, they have suffered a sharper drop, estimated at 75-80 percent for that same period.

In Michigan,

remaining colonies of purple martins are found mostly along open edges of inland lakes and the Great Lakes.

The largest members of North America's swallow family winter in South America, mostly in Brazil.

As the birds near the time for their peak migrations from Michigan in mid-August, they are starting to leave their individual colonies to join large roosting aggregations also made up of such birds as starlings and blackbirds, reports Wolinski.

Among those places where they will soon be seen en masse is Sand Point in Huron County. "For a day or two in mid-August, these birds will literally cover the Point where they will dot telephone wires and all other perching places," says Wolinski.
