East Jordan Police are looking for some vandals who damaged vehicles and building materials at the new East Jordan Pool site over the weekend.

Petrie Construction reported to the police some boards were broken, the air was let out of the tires on construction equipment and sand was poured into the gas tanks of some vehicles.

If anyone knows anything about the incident they are asked to contact the East Jordan Police Department.

Area veterans of the Vietnam era will be honoring their fellow service men at ceremonies to be held this coming Friday during the MIA Day ceremony at Petoskey's Pennsylvania Park.

They will meet at 6:00 p.m. for the ceremony that will include a guest speaker, gun salute and the playing of taps. Area residents are invited to participate.

The Charlevoix County Economic Development Corporation is expected to hear what the proposed budget will be like for the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance for the next year. Alliance coordinator Dick Beagle will be making the presentation at the meeting which is to be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the County Building Annex.

East Jordan is planning to hold a preschool screening for four-year-olds who may be attending school next year. Those having children who are four or are going to be four by December 1, are asked to call 536-7564 for an appointment with one of the school counselors.

Charlevoix County Planners gave their approval to the new zoning ordinance. Wilson Township is planning to adopt even though they added a few changes and corrections to the package.

It is expected the township board will now approve it after making the final changes and corrections.

Boyne set to cook at Middle School

As a result of the ongoing discussions about the Boyne City Schools hot lunch program, the school board members Monday night decided to change the locations of the kitchens that are cooking the meals for the students.

The middle school will see hot meals being prepared in the kitchen that is to be completed shortly, while the high school will see the kitchen use for preparation dropped and the food brought in from possibly the elementary school although details are not yet completed.

The reason for the switch, according to the board, was the number of students who are eating the hot lunches at the middle school as compared to the other schools.

With increase caused by moving the fifth graders to the middle school, the board wanted to have the students getting a better quality meal.

The breakdown of meals being eaten at the schools are 300 daily at the elementary school, 210 daily at the middle school and 190 at the high school.

The move of the kitchen staff and the additional equipment needed to start up the kitchen at the middle school will cost the school system about $3,000 for the first year, as a large freezer is needed for the middle school kitchen.

Staffing problems will have to be worked out as some of the cooks will be transferred to the middle school while some of the servers at the middle school will come to the high school.

According to the cooking staff, the food quality at both schools will not change because of the move.

In a related matter, the hot lunch staff told the board the sales of the ala carte items, that the children have purchased over the past few years and the school board raised the prices on, are down compared to previous years. That was the intent of the school board as they had expressed concern with the amount of sugar the students were buying along with their meals.

The board agreed to the switch for a one year program. They said they will then take another look at how the program is working out and may try to figure out how the school system could cook at all three school locations.

Board member Gary Winters told the board "if the food is as good, and if we approach this thing positively, I think we will be able to see no drop-off of sales at either school."

The board then heard about a grievance from a teacher who had thought he would be transferred to the high school this year to teach in the place of a retiring school teacher.

Gary Graye had asked to be transferred to the high school to teach social studies but the request was refused by high school principal Warren Wade.

Wade, thinking about how difficult it would be to find a language teacher, had posted a job opening for that combination. The social studies teacher position was never posted according to the teacher contract rules.

Graye has spent the last 17 years with the Boyne City School system and had thought he would be entitled to the position. He has been teaching for the past few years days split between the high school and the middle school.

EJ Iron Works president dead at 60

East Jordan will be missing one of the town's guiding lights after word spread around of the death of the East Jordan Iron Works president, F. Bruce Malpass.

Malpass died Tuesday morning at Northern Michigan Hospital after a brief illness stemming from complications due to a plane crash in 1966. There will be a memorial service Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church at 5:00 p.m.

Malpass, the president of the Iron Works, was also more commonly known as being one of the most active members of many civic and community clubs, associations, and activities.

He was a school board member for 13 years during the Twin Valley days of the combined school system and retired from the East Jordan board in 1979.

Named as a Father of The Year in 1981 by the East Jordan Rotary Club, Malpass also was honored by the club as a Paul Harris Fellows honoree.

He was an active outdoorsman, a former Boy Scout Leader, Sunday School teacher and was on many boards of other civic organizations.

A past member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, he asked that in lieu of flowers being sent to the funeral home or to the family, donations be made to the hospital.

This year he is teaching totally at the middle school.

Graye filed the grievance during the summer after being turned down by Wade. Wade told the board he wanted to come up with the proper combination to make the school work. He said he had to keep the options open until he had hired a language teacher as they were hard to find.

The board will be making a decision on the grievance at their next meeting in October.

They then approved the student and teacher handbooks for the middle and high schools. The high school student handbook had several changes in them where the area of disciplinary action was spelled out as well as having the athletic training rules added.

Named to coaching positions at the middle school were Bill Hutchinson and Katie Bobowski. Both will be coaching the middle school basketball program for the seventh and eighth grades.

Also hired as a learning center teacher in the elementary school was Carole Pumarejo. She will be working half-time at the center. Pumarejo was named as the 1966 teacher of the year by the Detroit News when she was teaching in the Clarkston School District. She recently moved into the area.

In other action, the school board approved the schedule of classes to be taught in the high school completion program as well as the Community Education program.

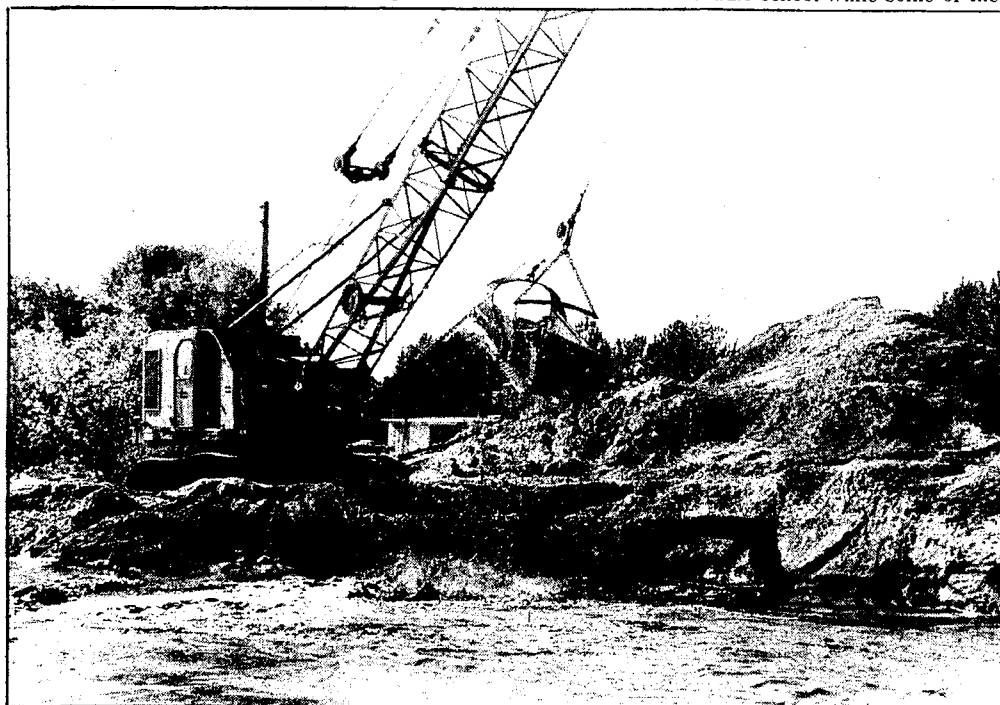

They also hired Mrs. Linda Howard as a part time teacher aide for the middle school.

Enrollment for the school district was up and changed from the first day count. As of Monday, there are 505 students in the elementary school, 318 in the middle school, and 369 in the high school. Officials expect to see some additional changes before making the fourth Friday count.

Malpass was born and raised in East Jordan, leaving after high school graduation to go to school in Flint, Detroit, and to serve in the Seabees of the Navy during the Second World War.

Malpass was also active in many foundry organizations throughout the nation, all with the idea they may help inspire him to achieve success with him company.

He is survived by his wife, Angela, and his daughter and four sons.

With water gushing out of the outlet pipe, the dredging operation for the new East Jordan Marina is underway. The operation includes a sand dredge that sucks up the sand along the bottom of the marina area near the East Jordan Iron Works and pumps it through a 1300 foot pipe under the bridge and over to the Sportsman's Park area.

EJ levies millage for schools

East Jordan's Board of Education met Monday night to determine the operating millage rate for the school system, and the levying of such tax rates. The board also discussed what to do about the vandalism that took place at the construction site for the community pool on school property, and to review the high school's perfect attendance policy.

The millage rate that was levied for the operation of the school system came to 36.2 mills.

The break-down of the millage included 32.2 mills for general operations of the school system, while 3.0 mills were provided for the retirement fund, and 1 mill was allocated for the library. Each member of the board was audibly called up for their vote, and all members answered yes.

The vandalism that took place at the pool construction site at the high school drew its' share of comments with Superintendent Tom Rossler reporting that the student council wished to offer a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandals.

Funding for the reward to be offered by the students council was a minimal amount and Rossler communicated to the board members that he was recommending that funding for a reward should be made large enough to enhance a potential witness of the act to come forward with information.

Rossler recommended that a sum of $300 be donated to the student council for their "Secret Witness" fund, for this circumstance only. Rossler also added that the money may not have to come from the school systems operational funds, as some local persons and businesses were interested in providing funds for the gathering of witness information.

Rossler went on to state that the amount offered should be of a substantial size in order to repel the possibility of this vandalism happening in the future. The entire panel of board members supported the motion to help out in the endeavor if needed.

The "perfect attendance policy" of the high school was also reviewed with principal Keith Moore presenting some of the facts that were revealed by the attendance books after trial basis policy had been instituted. Moores' figures showed that in the lower classes, first year students, the attendance policy enhanced regular attendance greatly. On the other hand, the seniors attendance record was undesirable. Sophomore attendance records showed that an increase of one day of attendance per pupil had taken place, while the junior had no change at all. Other aspects of determining how the policy was coming along included different looks at the figures. "But either way I looked at it, the seniors appeared to be doing the worst," said Moore. Moore concluded that honestly he could not tell if the information gleaned by the study was substantial enough to institute for the new school year based on the fact that many students appeared to be anxious to try and meet the standards that would qualify them for the benefits of the policy.

"It's not taught, it's caught."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

If you aren't wearing your safety belt when you go to shop the aisles of the supermarket, a group is urging those in the supermarket business to get involved and put straps on the carts for the youngsters who ride in them.

The group is serious, and they quote the Consumer Product Safety Commission reported that more than 9,000 children under the age of five are injured by falling out of the carts.

In my family, when the children were at that age where they were to ride in the basket, even that did little good.

We used to put the kids in the cart so we could control the reaching and putting into the cart such things as candy, Popsicles, ice cream and a group of items that would do nothing except to increase the food bill if they passed through the cashier's counter.

About the only thing I could think of at the time, was that I wished I had a belt or two to try to keep the kids from grabbing everything as we made our weekly trip down the aisles.

Then the kids started to grow, and it was a great thrill for them to just be put into the cart so they could have a ride.

After a few moments with the crushed bread, the frozen foods being on or around their legs, they wanted out. I was most happy to oblige, but it would add an additional challenge to the shopping spree.

How do you keep control of the kids as they want to run around the store in front of you, behind you, and three aisles over.

My kids never wanted to cry as they explored the store without parental guidance. They just kept going until they could not be found by an anxious parent, the store manager, three stock boys and two bag boys.

Usually they could be found somewhere in the area of the restrooms, no matter if the restrooms were for the public or for the employees. Never once would they end up in the frozen meat locker, although many thoughts were thought that that would be an excellent place to store them while they were in the market with their father.

Just the thought it might cool down their inquisitiveness also sounded nice at the time of the infraction.

So maybe it's a good idea for all those supermarkets across the land to buy and install safety belts for the young shoppers who go to the stores for the family food.

Even if the press release I received was a blatant advertising campaign for the manufacturer of the seat belts.

The firm says they have outfitted about a million carts with the belts and say the reaction to them is positive.

As a young father at the time, I would have used them. Then I would know where the children were when they were supposed to be with me.

Normally, fashion trends and I don't operate in the same sphere. I've discovered it's better for all concerned that way. For instance, I once tried on a chic blue cape. I'm not very tall and I saw right off that if I was to venture out in this garb, I'd feel like a fool. Not only that but, resembling a toadstool, my appearance would kill the fashion off or at least maim it in less than a month.

But recently I read of a trend, designer colognes marketed by fashion houses, that intrigues me because of its social value. Unfortunately, the same time I learned about the trend, I found out that sales are getting soft, especially here in the Midwest. I think I've figured out the reason for this, though, the Midwestern park anyway. So I offer some suggestions that I hope will firm up the sales.

The trouble is that fashion houses don't understand how Midwesterners think. They assume that everyone wants something exciting when they buy a new cologne. Likely New Yorkers and Californians do. But Midwesterners have a more practical turn of mind. So they don't go for the flamboyant names that designers put on their products.

Calvin Klein has a cologne called Obsession. What kind of a name is that? Embarrassing is what it is. And Christian Dior has Poison. And Yves Saint Laurent markets Opium. Most Midwesterners feel silly buying products with names like those.

Wherein our merchants are the best weather forecasters. . . .

Looking out the window I was sure I saw Fall moving up the road lickity split.

So I went outdoors to see if what I was seeing was actually what I was seeing.

The leaves were leaving; there was a chill to the air, along with an unmistakable whiff of school bus exhaust. Here and over there the trees were showing a tinge of color.

Not having a drug store calculator in my hip pocket, I ticked off the months, the weeks, the days and the minutes merely by fooling with my fingers.

Sure enough, Fall would be here in thirteen days; and what I was seeing and smelling were the threatening signs. Autumn was on the wing. Our wonderfully high fahrenheit days had gone out of business.

There is, however, a more accurate way of telling if summer has really hit the dust.

Go down town and check with the merchants. If they are turning up the steam in preparation for winter business, we have fiddled away another summer, with little to show for it beyond a nice tan, a big stomach and an empty pocketbook. (I speak here of myself. I seldom speak here of others.)

Merchants are pretty sharp at knowing which season is coming out from behind the trees. Have a look at what they are showing and you will know right off what kind of weather we are in for.

It certainly beats standing in the front yard fooling with your fingers.

A nationally known medical firm in Kalamazoo has discovered a way to grow hair on a bald head. The dope used is not yet sanctioned for use in this country. However, the firm slipped across the border into

Canada, giving those people a chance to try the "most exciting medicine to hit the market since whiskey made cough syrup taste better."

The smartest man I ever knew was bald headed. He lived in Boyne City where he worked and thrived better than most. Whenever he walked down the street his pockets jingled.

I have been losing my hair; and if it keeps falling out, I may one day be bald. I look forward to that day when I will thrive and jingle better than most. That firm in Kalamazoo doesn't know it, but growing hair on a bald head will not make a man rich, which is an exciting position to be in if you are broke.

My wife just loves it when I write this column. That's because when I am not thinking, I whistle.

Cooking

TOMATOES

In my geneology research I came across this account about "The Year Without a Summer"

The year of 1816 in New York State was one of disaster for it claimed that it froze every month of the year. It is called the year of two winters. Famine existed in some places which had a crop failure the year before. It is told that people crossed a bridge over Cayuga Lake in June when there was six inches of snow on the ground. It is also reported that there was ice of considerable thickness on the Fourth of July. And song birds froze to death, covering the ground under evergreen trees. Many young animals perished in the cold which was recorded as being coldest on record in most of the world.

This made me wonder how our forefathers made it through those kind of conditions. Grandma's garden was more than a hobby, it was necessary to their survival; their way of life. She had to make good use of everything grown as it matured. They had to use their tomatoes as they ripened so many were canned for future use. They did not make the spaghetti and taco sauces though they made lots of chili sauce and chow-chow from the ripe and green tomatoes. They broiled, sauteed, and scalloped them. Here are a few recipes from an old cookbook (1908). These recipes are just as good now as they were so many years ago.

SAUTEED TOMATOES

"Slice tomatoes; season with salt and pepper. Dip in crumbs, eggs and crumbs again and saute in hot frying pan. Serve on buttered toast." The crumbs would no doubt be the fine, dry ones.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES

"Arrange in layers canned tomatoes and bread cubes, sprinkle each layer with salt and pepper, dot with butter. Bake one-half hour. For variety rub dish with onion before putting in the tomatoes."

BUTTERED TOMATOES

Melt one-half cup butter; sprinkle six sliced tomatoes with salt and pepper; put in chafing dish and cover and cook 20 minutes. Serve on toast.

A double boiler could substitute for the chafing dish, or a covered non-stick fry pan.

Our modern taste prefers our tomatoes fresh, especially during the time for the home-grown varieties. However here is a recipe for baked tomatoes with a modern touch.

BAKED TOMATOES

From "Cooking by Touch"
4 tomato halves
6 tablespoons Dijon mustard
3 tablespoons finely chopped green onions
1/2 teaspoon basil
afew drops of Worcestershire Sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
1 lightly salt tomatoes and drain on paper towels
2 preheat oven to 425 degrees
3 mix remaining ingredients together. Spread over tomatoes, place them in lightly greased pan
4 bake in a 425 degree oven 10 minutes.

Be sure to serve the fresh tomatoes often during their ripening season. Our mothers always had them sliced for at least one meal a day when they were ripe. Usually with a cruet of vinegar, salt, pepper and sugar on the side for them if we wished. We never tired of those luscious tomatoes; the season was over far too soon!

Well, maybe for laughs on a grim March day. But even then, they'd only use it on their gerbils.

I understand that fashion houses want to strike out in new directions in naming their colognes since they're selling a new kind of merchandise. But some directions are best not struck out in, at least from the Midwestern viewpoint.

What the fashion houses need are down-to-earth names that hit practical people where they live, make them feel comfortable while smelling good. An unobtrusive fragrance called No Place Like Home or Take It As It Comes would attract Midwesterners. Have it one that could be worn both day and night, especially on the weekends. I envision something appropriate for giving dogs or babies baths and still be right for watching sunsets.

And then there could be something that smells soothing called Please Speak Softly For Recent guests of Walton Fritz were his grandson, Mr. and Mrs. David Manglos and son Ryan, and Mel Blunt. Other callers were his son-in-law, Jack Manglos and friend Terry of Independence, Missouri.

Scores of the senior bowlers this past week were: Chick Rickard-384, Pros Blancaert-376, Sarah Long-370, Joe Zarza-359, Clara Kimble-331, Bob White-322, Jean Marcham-299, Goldie-265, Mildred Sheldon-219, and Jerry Kimble (1 game)-122. The winners of Thursday's bingo games were 1st regular Barbara Ross, Harold Moyer, 3rd Frances Brewer, and 4th Evelyn Stebbins.

There were two winners for the first special-Fern Shaler and Evelyn Stebbins. The second special went to Rudy Sterly, and the cover all to Alta Skye. Caller this week was Bernice Suchara.

The seniors are saddened by the death of another one of their regular attenders, Roy Howard, who passed away on September 4th.

Julie Bradford's teaching post is in Alba, not Alma.

I've Had A Hard Day. This one would need an educational program along with it, getting everyone near and dear familiar with the fragrance. But it could do great things for mental health.

Although they need to do a little fine tuning in the matter of regional taste, and in the matter of price I must add, the fashion houses are onto a worthwhile thing in pushing for people to smell pretty. Smelling nice makes people feel good about themselves which helps keep them from getting hostile and running around shooting and stabbing one another.

I regret that I didn't notice about designer colognes sooner so I could speak up about the Midwestern point of view. From now on I'll try to follow fashions more closely, but from the sidelines. My mind still holds fast the image of me in a cape looking like a navy blue toadstool.

Rambler Jayvees defeated by Rams

The Boyne City Rambler JV Football Team was put under Thursday evening 22-0 by the Harbor Springs Rams in season opening action for both squads.

The Boyne City Rambler defense put up a good fight in opening game action, as they were able to halt the Rams on the first series of downs, but it was to be short lived. With the ball in the Ramblers possession, an untimely interception went to the Rams for a 37 yard TD run.

Boyne went to work on the offensive again, but were held short, not by the Rams, rather by their own inexperience as a Rambler ball carrier mistook the five yard line for the goal line and pulled up short.

The Ramblers gave up another TD midway through the second period to make it 16-0, but not plays for the Rams were squelched by the Rambler defense from that point on. Coach Dave Bricker stated that the team was able to hold the Rams to a minimum of offensive yards gained, but the Rambler offensive was not consistent enough to roll downfield.

The Ramblers fielded most of their freshman through the final quarter and they proved to be a scrappy lot as the Rams were held at bay, but with under a minute to go, a 32 yard scamper went to the endzone for the Rams.

Bricker was reasonably satisfied with the way the game went, praising the defensive unit. Bricker singled out Mark Harris as one of the defensive standouts who performed well. Harris was also the Rambler Quarterback for the game, pulling double duty for the Ramblers.

East Jordan Jayvees look promising

By Dennis Skrocki
The East Jordan Red Devils' Junior Varsity Football Team kicked off their 1986 season last Thursday topping the Elk Rapids Elks 21-6.

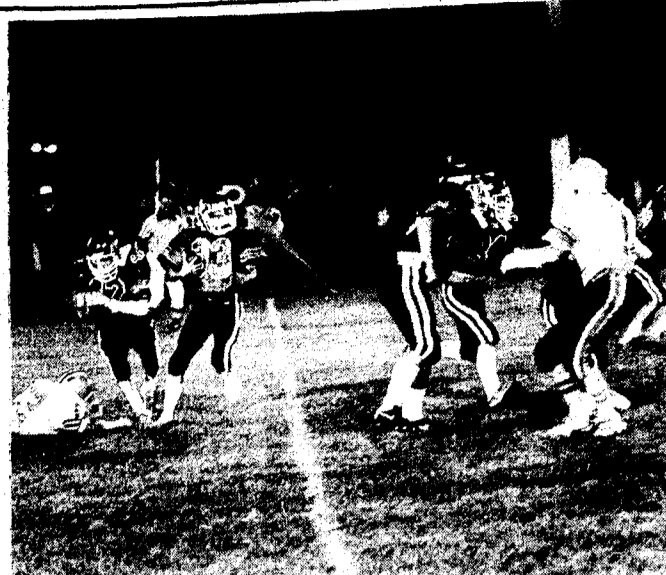

Matt Bishop led the offensive attack rushing for over 100 yards and two touchdowns. The other TD was scored by Brian Mathany on an 8 yard pass from quarterback Dan Pepin. Mark Moore added the extra point after each of the three touchdowns.

Defensively Jeff Burks, Lyle Walters, Matt Bishop, Dan Pepin and Mark Moore were the leading tacklers. Bishop collected two interceptions on the night with Burks getting one. Lyle Walters also came up with a fumble recovery.

The Junior Devils will host Charlevoix on Thursday, September 11. Kickoff time is at 6:30.

Scott Patton [33] was the recipient of this hand off and looks up field for Paul McGeorge [34] and another Rambler to provide a block.

Kerry Harvey [40] puts up a shot here from the middle of the key as Colleen Williams [50] looks on. See related story on page eight.

Area golfers compete

107 golfers took part in the Charlevoix Golf Tournament at Ye Nyne Olde Holles last Saturday. The tournament lasted all day as the 107 golfers vied for places in their respective flights.

Taking the first flight was Bob Nemecek of East Jordan while Biff Hoffman, also of East Jordan took the second place. Third went to Mick Kane of Boyne City.

Taking the second flight was Red Jesiek of East Jordan. Ron Agnello, Charlevoix, followed in second place and Hal Johnson of Boyne City finished third.

In the third flight, Bill Rowe of Boyne City took the first place followed by Rick Pethers of Boyne City and Mike Mihulka for the third place.

Mike Roberge of Boyne City took the first place in the fourth flight followed by Pat Price and Mike Hall, both of Boyne City.

In the championship flight, Mike Cummings of Boyne took the win followed by a tie between Chuck Pollock of Boyne City and Bob Jannisse of Boyne Falls.

Jack Phillips won the long drive contest for ages 55 and over with a 265 yard drive while Bud Jackson uncorked a 325 yard blast to take the long drive for those under 54.

Three Boyne Keglers place in top ten

Joe Deisler, the newest professional bowler to make Boyne City his home, led a group of Boyne area bowlers to one of the best finishes the area bowlers have had as three men finished in the top ten of the first Miller Northern Michigan Classic held at the Bellaire Lanes in Bellaire last Saturday.

Deisler took the first place with a fantastic finish when he had to have two strikes and a nine count in the tenth frame to win the match. He did it and beat out Dan Wood of Beaverton by only two strokes to take the final.

During the qualifying session, Deisler put on a real clinic for the pro bowlers, rolling a 789 series in his last three games.

With the win, Deisler, who also bowls on the PBA professional circuit during the summers, took home $600 for the win.

Other area bowlers finishing in the top ten included Ron Peters who finished in eighth with 1646 total pins, and Ron Grunch who had a 1554 total pin count to take the tenth place.

Not in the top ten but still finishing well was Don Kleinschrodt with a 19th place, Bill Kortase with a 36th place, and Ken Dell with the 40th place.

Deisler also took four of the high game awards with a 255 pin count.

The next match for the pros from the north will be in Manistee at the Manistee Lanes next month.

Rambler Q.B. Pat Weeks [12] tucks the ball away and attempts to step over this fallen Ram defender.

Two She Devils win medals

By Dennis Skrocki
The East Jordan Varsity Cross Country Teams saw their first action of the 1986 season last Saturday when they attended the 13th annual White Cloud Cross Country Invitational.

Here East Jordan saw their toughest competition of the season facing very good teams, some which are former state champions.

The boys' team, although taking last place, got a strong showing from members Tim Brennan, Nate Jason, Tracy Reich, Kevin Cordova, Gerry Cizewski and Steve Vincent.

The girls' team also has a strong showing taking the 4th place spot just one point behind 3rd place Muskegon Oak Ridge. Two runners received medals for the Lady Devils, Jody Cordova for 6th place and Renee Spence for 15th. Also turning in strong performances were Chris Jankowski, Theresa Brennan, Tresa Hoffman and Amy Jason.

The two teams will compete again on September 9 when they host their first home meet of the season.

Cub bears are born toothless, fur-less and blind, and often weigh less than a pound, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. How high can grasshopper leap? Nearly 10 feet, thanks to a rubber band-like protein called resilin stored in a grasshopper's knees, reports International Wildlife magazine. EJ schools

Moore also recommended that after hearing some input on the subject from the parents in the school system that some additions be made to upgrade the policy. Some parents are under the impression that a student may set a goal to qualify for the "no final exam" benefit of the policy, and work hard for a one marking period "A" and then slack off in the following marking periods for a grade high enough to keep a good average going. The members of the board decided that the policy would remain in the high school, but that a B average in all classes would be one of the requirements that would accompany the policy.

In other action taken by the board, the property owned by the school system west of the baseball field was designated as a construction site for a future softball diamond. This action was taken at the request of Mike Burr who appeared to be anxious for the opportunity to begin raising for the development of the facility. "It may very well be easier to get the ball rolling for fund raising if we can show something more solid than ideas when raising funds for the facility.

Some of the board members had taken the liberty to go out and measure the proposed area for a rough estimate to see if a softball diamond would fit in, and reported that it would.

Cost factors are the next issue concerning the facility with excavating, fencing, and a sprinkling system that all have to be installed. If the funding for the diamond could be raised, Burr informed the board that the sports boosters would take on the organizational department of the fundraiser.

After the amount of snowfall that hit the area was recalled, Rossler advised that the board should begin planning for snow removal on the school system properties. Last year the school paid out some $7,700 for snow removal and three options were presented to the board. One option is to purchase snow removal equipment for the schools and pay the custodians to remove the snow. The second option is to put the job up for bids for a total cost at all sites. The third option called for paying out additional money for a front-end loader to come in and remove the snowbanks made from plowing on a as needed basis.

BC Commission expected to start landfill survey

Boyne City Commissioners were expected to approve an engineering agreement with Granger Engineering, the Soil Conservation Service and the DNR that would study the best way to get the refuse problem at the closed city dump covered.

The agreement will look at the possibility of finding the areas where the trash is buried, dig it up and move it to a central location at the landfill.

If that were done, the cost of the final capping would be reduced as they would not have as much land to cover, according to city officials. The DNR has been after the city to come up with a plan that would finally close the landfill site in Evangeline Township.

The site was closed to the public in October of 1985 after city officials acceded to requests from area homeowners. Shortly after that, groundwater contamination was found at one of the wells installed on the site to detect possible contamination.

The cost of the study will be $9,400 and is expected to help ease the pressure from the DNR and the Evangeline Township residents. Granger will be the coordinating agency and will be working with the Soil Conservation Service and the DNR.

Boyerne falls to the Rams in season opener, 34-0

After an impressive scrimmage against the East Jordan Red Devils, the Boyne City Rambler Varsity Football squad was looking for a decent game in their opening game of the regular season against the Harbor Springs Rams, but things were not clicking on Friday night and the Ramblers suffered a 34-0 shut-out in front of their home-town fans.

A win was a possibility for the Ramblers, although the chances were slim at best, considering the fact that the Rams were fielding an extremely experienced backfield in the likes of John Clancy and Doug Dickenson. Clancy rushed for 1,000 yards last year, and Dickenson was a returning Q.B. with an adept ability to head up an offense. After it was all over Clancy had scored four T.D. runs enroute to piling up over 200 yards in the game.

The Ramblers proved to be vulnerable around the ends as the first Ram T.D. was a 62 yd. run by Clancy on their first play from scrimmage. The big plays were a continual threat to the Ramblers while the home team scrapped for every inch of yardage they could muster. The biggest play for Boyne was a 32 yard pass from Pat Weeks to Scott Beebe. Although Boyne suffered a low completion ratio in the passing department, the Rambler fans were kept on their feet with anticipation of breaking loose with aerial threats. Just one pass was totally out of reach, a long bomb that could have easily wound up as points on the Ramblers scorecard. Time after time Weeks put the ball in nicely, but it caromed off fingertips or was inches from completion.

Weeks felt the brunt of the Rams defense continually as he rolled out looking for receivers, only to see the defenders in hot pursuit, looking for sacks. On designated running plays Keoki Kuheana was the work horse for the Ramblers, butting heads with the Rams as he ground out seemingly lost yardage for short gains three and four yards at a time. In the second half, the Ramblers utilized other running backs, Brandon Billings, Steve Sutton, and Troy Heiermann, as Weeks mixed it up with his throwing arm in an effort to get back in the game. One of Week's most exciting pass attempts was a long one that traveled fifty yards just before the first half ended, barely out of reach of the receiver.

The Ramblers engineered a long time consuming drive midway through the first period that carried from their own 15 to the Harbor Springs 30 yard line. With Weeks alternately handing off to Kuheana and running the option, three first downs were recorded. A five yard completion to Beebe accounted for the first one, while Weeks scrambled for the second one and Kuheana ground the other out on a four yarder. The drive was finally halted early in the second period after the Rams poured through the line to drop Boyne for a six yard loss near the Harbor 40.

Midway through the third period Boyne demonstrated that the defense was not entirely at a loss. Following the Rams' first T.D. of the period, Boyne held the Rams offense to six yards on the series with Tom Lasater, Mike Miller, Bill Wicker, and Jeff Fineout controlling the runners. On the series, Miller dropped an attempt for yardage around his end for a loss, and the Rams were forced to punt after the third down play was held to zero by the Rambler interior.

Weeks put together another short drive after the defense had stopped the Rams. He opened the series with a completion for 7 yards to Heiermann and followed up with another seven yarder to Billings. The drive was put to an abrupt end when a pass was cut off for an interception, the first of two that the Rams would collect.

The interception set up the last T.D. that Harbor would get from the Ramblers as the Rams rebounded from a big sack by the Ramblers to score on another run around the end.

Boyne seriously threatened to break into the scoring column after Scott Patton returned the kick-off fifteen yards to the Rambler 32. A 12 yard pass from Weeks to Beebe put the Ramblers over the midfield line, and the big completion to Beebe for 32 yards put Boyne at the Harbor 18.

Aaron Richards was also the recipient of a completion that went for 5 yards that set up Beebe's reception. After a five yard sack, Richards was hit again by Weeks on third and long, but the first down was nullified when a Rambler was called for holding on the play. The Rams followed up to put the drive to a halt with the second interception after being called for pass interference that rattled the Ramblers receiver between three defenders.

With time running out in the game, Boyne began to promote the idea of desperate defensive measures in an attempt to stop the Rams from scoring again. Following a botched snap that gave Harbor the ball at midfield, the Ramblers put up their defensive fight that ended the Rams last possession with Tom Lasater dropping the ball carrier for a four yard loss on fourth and two to go. With two minutes remaining in the game,

Sutton was called upon to run the ball, and carried it for seven yards in two attempts, but a final fling with Weeks dropping back to pass ended in a sack with the Q.B. scrambling back to within two yards of the line of scrimmage.

All things considered, Boyne did have some stand-out plays, both on offense and defense with Weeks highlighting the offensive with the aerial attack to his receivers. Defensively Boyne was tough in the middle of the line, and regardless of Harbors sweeping rushes around the ends, many such plays were stopped at the line.

Saturday, the Ramblers take on an even more formidable foe in Riverbank, who are already a ranking team in the class D state standings.

Rambler girls suffer loss in Central Lake tourney

Boyerne City Rambler Girls' Basketball coach, Russ Harvey called it correctly when he stated that his team was "still working on the fundamentals of basketball", and was proven correct when the girls entered round one of the Central Lake Tournament. Boyne was matched with the Bellaire Eagles, a fairly competent squad of hoopsters who dominated the tourney game for a 43-27 win.

Bellaire opened the game with tremendous full court pressure that had the Rambler girls in a difficult situation from the opening tip. Boyne was caught flat-footed against the press time after time as possible press breaking passes were directionally telegraphed and the one of the Central Lake Tournament. Rambler passes for the Bellaire Eagles, a fairly competent squad of hoopsters who dominated the tourney game for a 43-27 win.

Bellaire opened the game with tremendous full court

pressive part of the Rambler game was the defense. Bellaire was repeatedly kept out of the key and were forced to shoot from the perimeter as they took a 12-0 lead after one quarter. Boyne also controlled the defensive boards out rebounding the Eagles on a ratio of 3-1, but continued to lose the ball against the press. Bellaire had no fast breaks in the period as the Ramblers were quick to get back and set up the defense, but were called for many fouls that the Eagles took to the line for bonus shots with three minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Bellaire continued to hit well from the perimeter through the second quarter and Boyne was held scoreless for the first three minutes of the period. Rambler six foot senior Kelly Smith found the hoop on an offensive rebound to break the ice for Boyne and followed up shortly after with a three point play. After being down 20-0, Smith's first five points of the game ignited a fire in the remainder of the Ramblers and the offense began to get the ball downcourt more. The remainder of the first half swung to the Ramblers as they held Bellaire silent for nearly five minutes, enroute to a 13-0 scoring surge.

Colleen Toton and Kelly Montgomery provided the Ramblers with the chance to set up the offense, getting the ball over the midcourt line dribbling through the defenders.

Kelly Smith was the top scorer for the Ramblers, getting 13 points. Mary Beth Archambault and Colleen Toton accounted for four points each, while Kerry Harvey, Lori Knight, and Kelly Montgomery had two points each.

Rams in the backfield best describes this situation, as Pat Weeks [12] hands off the ball to Keoki Kuheana of Boyne.

Red Devils roll over Elk Rapids, 20-6

By Dennis Skrocki
The East Jordan Red Devil Varsity Football team opened its 1986 campaign Friday with a 20-6 victory over a decent Elk Rapids club.

East Jordan put all of their points on the board in the second quarter. The first score came on a five yard run by Darrin "Freight Train" Bishop while the extra point attempt failed. The Red Devils scored again when Ted Snowden scampered into the end zone from 9 yards out. Darren Graham provided the extra points capping a 27 yard drive. E.J. put six more points on the board with minutes left in the first half after recovering an Elk Rapids fumble on the twelve yard line and working it down to the three. From there Darren Graham powered his way to pay dirt. The extra point attempt again failed.

The Devils mounted a 13 play drive in the third quarter but couldn't get it into the end zone before turning it over on downs. Elk Rapids got their only points of the game in the fourth quarter on a flat pass following a sustained drive. The extra point attempt was a failure.

Offensively Darren Graham led the E.J. rushing attack with 112 yards, Steve Dionne gained 66, and Ted Snowden picked up 42 yards. The Devils accumulated 301 total yards on the night.

Terry Burt led the defense with 9 tackles, while Steve Dionne added 8, Shannon Olstrom 6, and Jamie Bartlett 5. Burt and Kim Bob McKinnon had fumble recoveries.

The Red Devils will see their next action Friday, September 12 when they host the Charlevoix Red Raiders, kickoff time is 7:30.

The Positive Side

"It's not taught, it's caught."

Jottings

BY JIM SILBAR

If you aren't wearing your safety belt when you go to shop the aisles of the supermarket, a group is urging those in the supermarket business to get involved and put straps on the carts for the youngsters who ride in them.

The group is serious, and they quote the Consumer Product Safety Commission reported that more than 9,000 children under the age of five are injured by falling out of the carts.

In my family, when the children were at that age where they were to ride in the basket, even that did little good.

We used to put the kids in the cart so we could control the reaching and putting into the cart such things as candy, Popsicles, ice cream and a group of items that would do nothing except to increase the food bill if they passed through the cashier's counter.

About the only thing I could think of at the time, was that I wished I had a belt or two to try to keep the kids from grabbing everything as we made our weekly trip down the aisles.

Then the kids started to grow, and it was a great thrill for them to just be put into the cart so they could have a ride.

After a few moments with the crushed bread, the frozen foods being on or around their legs, they wanted out. I was most happy to oblige, but it would add an additional challenge to the shopping spree.

How do you keep control of the kids as they want to run around the store in front of you, behind you, and three aisles over.

My kids never wanted to cry as they explored the store without parental guidance. They just kept going until they could not be found by an anxious parent, the store manager, three stock boys and two bag boys.

Usually they could be found somewhere in the area of the restrooms, no matter if the restrooms were for the public or for the employees. Never once would they end up in the frozen meat locker, although many thoughts were thought that that would be an excellent place to store them while they were in the market with their father.

Just the thought it might cool down their inquisitiveness also sounded nice at the time of the infraction.

So maybe it's a good idea for all those supermarkets across the land to buy and install safety belts for the young shoppers who go to the stores for the family food.

Even if the press release I received was a blatant advertising campaign for the manufacturer of the seat belts.

The firm says they have outfitted about a million carts with the belts and say the reaction to them is positive.

As a young father at the time, I would have used them. Then I would know where the children were when they were supposed to be with me.

Normally, fashion trends and I don't operate in the same sphere. I've discovered it's better for all concerned that way. For instance, I once tried on a chic blue cape. I'm not very tall and I saw right off that if I was to venture out in this garb, I'd feel like a fool. Not only that but, resembling a toadstool, my appearance would kill the fashion off or at least maim it in less than a month.

But recently I read of a trend, designer colognes marketed by fashion houses, that intrigues me because of its social value. Unfortunately, the same time I learned about the trend, I found out that sales are getting soft, especially here in the Midwest. I think I've figured out the reason for this, though, the Midwestern park anyway. So I offer some suggestions that I hope will firm up the sales.

The trouble is that fashion houses don't understand how Midwesterners think. They assume that everyone wants something exciting when they buy a new cologne. Likely New Yorkers and Californians do. But Midwesterners have a more practical turn of mind. So they don't go for the flamboyant names that designers put on their products.

Calvin Klein has a cologne called Obsession. What kind of a name is that? Embarrassing is what it is. And Christian Dior has Poison. And Yves Saint Laurent markets Opium. Most Midwesterners feel silly buying products with names like those.

Remembrances

Some folks may remember the First National Bank building, before it burned down, on the corner of Park and Water Streets in Boyne City. The picture shows news and popcorn stands on the sidewalk of the recently paved streets of the city. This picture, and many more of this feature will be used in a pictorial map book that will be published in the future. If you have any old pictures of Boyne City or East Jordan, bring them to our office so we can make a copy for this popular feature.

Wherein our merchants are the best weather forecasters. . . .

Looking out the window I was sure I saw Fall moving up the road lickity split.

So I went outdoors to see if what I was seeing was actually what I was seeing.

The leaves were leaving; there was a chill to the air, along with an unmistakable whiff of school bus exhaust. Here and over there the trees were showing a tinge of color.

Not having a drug store calculator in my hip pocket, I ticked off the months, the weeks, the days and the minutes merely by fooling with my fingers.

Sure enough, Fall would be here in thirteen days; and what I was seeing and smelling were the threatening signs. Autumn was on the wing. Our wonderfully high fahrenheit days had gone out of business.

There is, however, a more accurate way of telling if summer has really hit the dust.

Go down town and check with the merchants. If they are turning up the steam in preparation for winter business, we have fiddled away another summer, with little to show for it beyond a nice tan, a big stomach and an empty pocketbook. (I speak here of myself. I seldom speak here of others.)

Merchants are pretty sharp at knowing which season is coming out from behind the trees. Have a look at what they are showing and you will know right off what kind of weather we are in for.

It certainly beats standing in the front yard fooling with your fingers.

A nationally known medical firm in Kalamazoo has discovered a way to grow hair on a bald head. The dope used is not yet sanctioned for use in this country. However, the firm shipped across the border into

Canada, giving those people a chance to try the "most exciting medicine to hit the market since whiskey made cough syrup taste better."

The smartest man I ever knew was bald headed. He lived in Boyne City where he worked and thrived better than most. Whenever he walked down the street his pockets jingled.

I have been losing my hair; and if it keeps falling out, I may

one day be bald. I look forward to that day when I will thrive and jingle better than most. That firm in Kalamazoo doesn't know it, but growing hair on a bald head will not make a man rich, which is an exciting position to be in if you are broke.

My wife just loves it when I write this column. That's because when I am not thinking, I whistle.

Editor,
Enclosed is the subscription card that I received to notify me that my subscription was due Sept. 1, 1986. Also enclosed is my check to renew my subscription for another year.

I continue to present as in the former years to find the series of "Remembrances" pictures and the stories below the pictures very, very fascinating. Needless to say, looking forward to more.

And while writing you, I want to mention it, it's worth the subscription price $18.00 per year to read the Obituaries weekly to learn "Who's living and who isn't."

Yours Sincerely,
Nate R. Richardson

P.S. In 1980 I had an uncle in East Jordan who passed away. I didn't learn about his death until 2 months later from another uncle (his brother.) I learned, now I get your paper.
